

in the beginning god created heaven, and earth. and the earth was void and empty, and darkness was upon the face of the deep; and the spirit of god moved over the waters. and god said: be light made. and light was made. and god saw the light that it was good; and he divided the light from the darkness. and he called the light day, and the darkness night; and there was evening and morning one day. and god said: let there be a firmament made amidst the waters: and let it divide the waters from the waters. and god made a firmament, and divided the waters that were under the firmament, from those that were above the firmament, and it was so. and god called the firmament, heaven; and the evening and morning were the second day. god also said: let the waters that are under the heaven, be gathered together into one place: and let the dry land appear. and it was so done. and god called the dry land, earth; and the gathering together of the waters, he called seas. and god saw that it was good. and he said: let the earth bring forth the green herb, and such as may seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after its kind, which may have seed in itself upon the earth. and it was so done. and the earth brought forth the green herb, and such as yieldeth seed according to its kind, and the tree that beareth fruit having seed each one according to its kind. and god saw that it was good. and the evening and the morning were the third day. and god said: let there be lights made in the firmament of heaven, to divide the day and the night, and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days and years: to shine in the firmament of heaven, and to give light upon the earth. and it was so done. and god made two great lights: a greater light to rule the day; and a lesser light to rule the night: and the stars. and he set them in the firmament of heaven to shine upon the earth. and to rule the day and the night, and to divide the light and the darkness. and god saw that it was good. and the evening and morning were the fourth day. god also said: let the waters bring forth the creeping creature having life, and the fowl that may fly over the earth under the firmament of heaven. and god created the great whales, and every living and moving creature, which the waters brought forth, according to their kinds, and every winged fowl according to its kind. and god saw that it was good. and he blessed them, saying: increase and multiply, and fill the waters of the sea: and let the birds be multiplied upon the earth. and the evening and morning were the fifth day. and god said: let the earth bring forth the living creature in its kind, cattle and creeping things, and beasts of the earth, according to their kinds. and it was so done. and god made the beasts of the earth according to their kinds, and cattle, and every thing that creepeth on the earth after its kind. and god saw that it was good. and he said: let us make man to our image and likeness: and let him have dominion over the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the air, and the beasts, and the whole earth, and every creeping creature that moveth upon the earth. and god created man to his own image: to the image of god he created him: male and female he created them. and god blessed them, saying: increase and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it, and rule over the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the air, and all living creatures that move upon the earth. and god said: behold i have given you every herb bearing seed upon the earth, and all trees that have in themselves seed of their own kind, to be your meat: and to all the beasts of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to all that move upon the earth, and wherein there is life, that they may have to feed upon. and it was so done. and god saw all the things that he had made, and they were very good. and the evening and morning were the sixth day.

so the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the furniture of them. and on the seventh day god ended his work which he had made: and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had done. and he blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because in it he had rested from all his work which god created and made. these are the generations of the heaven and the earth, when they were created, in the day that the lord god made the heaven and the earth: and every plant of the field before it spring up in the earth, and every herb of the ground before it grew: for the lord god had not rained upon the earth; and there was not a man to till the earth. but a spring rose out the earth, watering all the surface of the earth. and the lord god formed man of the slime of the earth: and breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul. and the lord god had planted a paradise of pleasure from the beginning: wherein he placed man whom he had formed. and the lord god brought forth of the ground all manner of trees, fair to behold, and pleasant to eat of: the tree of life also in the midst of paradise: and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. and a river went out the place of pleasure to water paradise, which from thence is divided into four heads. the name of the one is phison: that is it which compasseth all the land of hevilath, where gold groweth. and the gold of that land is very good: there is found bdellium, and the onyx stone. and the name of the second river is gehon: the same is it that compasseth all the land of ethiopia and the name of the third river is tigris: the same passeth along by the assyrians. and the fourth river is euphrates. and the lord god took man, and put him into the paradise for pleasure, to dress it, and keep it. and he commanded him, saying: of every tree of paradise thou shalt eat: but of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat. for in what day soever thou shalt eat of it, thou shalt die the death. and the lord god said: it is not good for man to be alone: let us make him a help like unto himself. and the lord god having formed out of the ground all the beasts of the earth, and all the fowls of the air, brought them to adam to see what he would call them: for whatsoever adam called any living creature the same is its name. and adam called all the beasts by their names, and all the fowls of the air, and all the cattle of the field: but for adam there was not found a helper like himself. then the lord god cast a deep sleep upon adam: and when he was fast asleep, he took one of his ribs, and filled up flesh for it. and the lord god built the rib which he took from adam into a woman: and brought her to adam. and adam said: this now is bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh; she shall be called woman, because she was taken out of man. wherefore a man shall leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife: and they shall be two in one flesh. and they were both naked: to wit, adam and his wife: and were not ashamed.

now the serpent was more subtle than any of the beasts of the earth which the lord god made. and he said to the woman: why hath god commanded you, that you should not eat of every tree of paradise? and the woman answered him, saying: of the fruit of the trees that are in paradise we do eat: but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of paradise, god hath commanded us that we should not eat; and that we should not touch it, lest perhaps we die. and the serpent said to the woman: no, you shall not die the death. for god doth know that in what day soever you shall eat thereof, your eyes shall be opened: and you shall be as gods, knowing good and evil. and the woman saw that the tree was good to eat, and fair to the eyes, and delightful to behold: and she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave to her husband who did eat. and the eyes of them both were opened: and when they perceived themselves to be naked, they sewed together fig leaves, and made themselves aprons. and when they heard the voice of the lord god walking in paradise at the afternoon air, adam and his wife hid themselves from the face of the lord god, amidst the trees of paradise. and the lord god called adam, and said to him: where art thou? and he said: i heard thy voice in paradise; and i was afraid, because i was naked, and i hid myself. and he said to him: and who hath told thee that thou wast naked, but that thou hast eaten of the tree whereof i commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat? and adam said: the woman, whom thou gavest me to be my companion, gave me of the tree, and i did eat. and the lord god said to the woman: why hast thou done this? and she answered: the serpent deceived me, and i did eat. and the lord god said to the serpent: because thou hast done this thing, thou art cursed among all cattle, and the beasts of the earth: upon thy breast shalt thou go, and earth shalt thou eat all the days of thy life. i will put enmities between thee and the woman, and thy seed and her seed: she shall crush thy head, and thou shalt lie in wait for her heel. to the woman also he said: i will multiply thy sorrows, and thy conceptions: in sorrow shalt thou bring forth children, and thou shalt be under thy husband's power, and he shall have dominion over thee. and to adam he said: because thou hast hearkened to the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, whereof i commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat, cursed is the earth in thy work; with labour and toil shalt thou eat thereof all the days of thy life. thorns and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou eat the herbs of the earth. in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return to the earth, out of which thou wast taken: for dust thou art, and into dust thou shalt return. and adam called the name of his wife eve: because she was the mother of all the living. and the lord god made for adam and his wife, garments of skins, and clothed them. and he said: behold adam is become as one of us, knowing good and evil: now, therefore, lest perhaps he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever. and the lord god sent him out of the paradise of pleasure, to till the earth from which he was taken. and he cast out adam; and placed before the paradise of pleasure cherubims, and a flaming sword, turning every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

and adam knew eve his wife: who conceived and brought forth cain, saying: i have gotten a man through god. and again she brought forth his brother abel. and abel was a shepherd, and cain a husbandman. and it came to pass after many days, that cain offered, of the fruits of the earth, gifts to the lord. abel also offered of the firstlings of his flock, and of their fat: and the lord had respect to abel, and to his offerings. but to cain and his offerings he had no respect: and cain was exceedingly angry, and his countenance fell. and the lord said to him: why art thou angry? and why is thy countenance fallen? if thou do well, shalt thou not receive? but if ill, shall not sin forthwith be present at the door? but the lust thereof shall be under thee, and thou shalt have dominion over it. and cain said to abel his brother: let us go forth abroad. and when they were in the field, cain rose up against his brother abel, and slew him. and the lord said to cain: where is thy brother abel? and he answered, i know not: am i my brother's keeper? and he said to him: what hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood crieth to me from the earth. now, therefore, cursed shalt thou be upon the earth, which hath opened her mouth and received the blood of thy brother at thy hand, when thou shalt till it, it shall not yield to thee its fruit: a fugitive and vagabond shalt thou be upon the earth. and cain said to the lord: my iniquity is greater than that i may deserve pardon. behold thou dost cast me out this day from the face of the earth, and i shall be hidden from thy face, and i shall be a vagabond and a fugitive on the earth: everyone, therefore, that findeth me, shall kill me. and the lord said to him: no, it shall not be so: but whosoever shall kill cain, shall be punished sevenfold. and the lord set a mark upon cain, that whosoever found him should not kill him. and cain went out from the face of the lord, and dwelt as a fugitive on the earth, at the east side of eden. and cain knew his wife, and she conceived, and brought forth henoah: and he built a city, and called the name thereof by the name of his son henoah. and henoah begot irad, and irad begot maviael, and maviael begot mathusael, and mathusael begot lamech: who took two wives: the name of the one was ada, and the name of the other was sella. and ada brought forth jabel: who was the father of such as dwell in tents, and of herdsmen. and his brother's name was jubal; he was the father of them that play upon the harp and the organs. sella also brought forth tubalcain, who was a hammerer and artificer in every work of brass and iron. and the sister of tubalcain was noema. and lamech said to his wives ada and sell: hear my voice, ye wives of lamech, hearken to my speech: for i have slain a man to the wounding of myself, and a stripling to my own bruising. sevenfold vengeance shall be taken for cain: but for lamech seventy times sevenfold. adam also knew his wife again: and she brought forth a son, and called his name seth, saying: god hath given me another seed, for abel whom cain slew. but to seth also was born a son, whom he called enos; this man began to call upon the name of the lord.

this is the book of the generation of adam. in the day that god created man, he made him to the likeness of god. he created them male and female; and blessed them: and called their name adam, in the day when they were created. and adam lived a hundred and thirty years, and begot a son to his own image and likeness, and called his name seth. and the days of adam, after he begot seth, were eight hundred years: and he begot sons and daughters. and all the time that adam lived came to nine hundred and thirty years, and he died. seth also lived a hundred and five years, and begot enos. and seth lived after he begot enos, eight hundred and seven years, and begot sons and daughters. and all the days of seth were nine hundred and twelve years, and he died. and enos lived ninety years, and begot cainan. after whose birth he lived eight hundred and fifteen years, and begot sons and daughters. and the days of enos were nine hundred and five years, and he died. and cainan lived seventy years, and begot malaleel. and cainan lived after he begot malaleel, eight hundred forty years, and begot sons and daughters. and all the days of cainan were nine hundred and ten years, and he died. and malaleel lived sixty-five years, and begot Jared. and malaleel lived after he begot Jared, eight hundred and thirty years, and begot sons and daughters. and all the days of malaleel were eight hundred and ninety-five years, and he died. and Jared lived a hundred and sixty-two years, and begot Henoch. and Jared lived after he begot Henoch, eight hundred years, and begot sons and daughters. and all the days of Jared were nine hundred and sixty-two years, and he died. and Henoch lived sixty-five years, and begot Matusala. and Henoch walked with god: and lived after he begot Matusala, three hundred years, and begot sons and daughters. and all the days of Henoch were three hundred and sixty-five years. and he walked with god, and was seen no more: because god took him. and Matusala lived a hundred and eighty-seven years, and begot Lamech. and Matusala lived after he begot Lamech, seven hundred and eighty-two years, and begot sons and daughters. and all the days of Matusala were nine hundred and sixty-nine years, and he died. and Lamech lived a hundred and eighty-two years, and begot a son. and he called his name noe, saying: this same shall comfort us from the works and labours of our hands on the earth which the lord hath cursed. and Lamech lived after he begot noe, five hundred and ninety-five years, and he begot sons and daughters. and all the days of Lamech came to seven hundred and seventy-seven years, and he died. and noe, when he was five hundred years old, begot Sem, Cham, and Japheth.

and after that men began to be multiplied upon the earth, and daughters were born to them. the sons of god seeing the daughters of men, that they were fair, took themselves wives of all which they chose. and god said: my spirit shall not remain in man for ever, because he is flesh, and his days shall be a hundred and twenty years. now giants were upon the earth in those days. for after the sons of god went in to the daughters of men and they brought forth children, these are the mighty men of old, men of renown. and god seeing that the wickedness of men was great on the earth, and that all the thought of their heart was bent upon evil at all times, it repented him that he had made man on the earth. and being touched inwardly with sorrow of heart, he said: i will destroy man, whom i have created, from the face of the earth, from man even to beasts, from the creeping thing even to the fowls of the air, for it repenteth me that i have made them. but noe found grace before the lord. these are the generations of noe: noe was a just and perfect man in his generations, he walked with god. and he begot three sons, Sem, Cham, and Japheth. and the earth was corrupted before god, and was filled with iniquity. and when god had seen that the earth was corrupted (for all flesh had corrupted its way upon the earth,) he said to noe: the end of all flesh is come before me, the earth is filled with iniquity through them, and i will destroy them with the earth. make thee an ark of timber planks: thou shalt make little rooms in the ark, and thou shalt pitch it within and without. and thus shalt thou make it: the length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits: the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits. thou shalt make a window in the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish the top of it: and the door of the ark thou shalt set in the side: with lower, middle chambers, and third stories shalt thou make it. behold i will bring the waters of a great flood upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, under heaven. all things that are in the earth shall be consumed. and i will establish my covenant with thee, and thou shalt enter into the ark, thou and thy sons, and thy wife, and the wives of thy sons with thee. and of every living creature of all flesh, thou shalt bring two of each sort into the ark, that they may live with thee: of the male sex, and the female. of fowls according to their kind, and of beasts in their kind, and of every thing that creepeth on earth according to its kind; two of every sort shall go in with thee, that they may live. thou shalt take unto thee of all food that may be eaten, and thou shalt lay it up with thee: and it shall be food for thee and them. and noe did all things which god commanded him.

and the lord said to him: go in thou and all thy house into the ark: for thee i have seen just before me in this generation. of all clean beasts take seven and seven, the male and female. but of the beasts that are unclean two and two, the male and female. of the fowls also of the air seven and seven, the male and the female: that seed may be saved upon the face of the whole earth. for yet a while, and after seven days, i will rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights; and i will destroy every substance that i have made, from the face of the earth. and noe did all things which the lord had commanded him. and he was six hundred years old, when the waters of the flood overflowed the earth. and noe went in and his sons, his wife and the wives of his sons with him into the ark, because of the waters of the flood. and of the beasts clean and unclean, and of fowls, and of every thing that moveth upon the earth, two and two went in to noe into the ark, male and female, as the lord had commanded noe. and after seven days were passed, the waters of the flood overflowed the earth. in the six hundredth year of the life of noe in the second month, in the seventeenth day of the month, all the fountains of the great deep were broken up, and the flood gates of heaven were open: and the rain fell upon the earth forty days and forty nights. in the selfsame day noe, and sem, and cham, and japheth his sons: his wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, went into the ark: they and every beast according to its kind, and all the cattle in their kind, and every thing that moveth upon the earth according to its kind, and every fowl according to its kind, and all birds, and all that fly. went in to noe into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein was the breath of life. and they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh, as god had commanded him: and the lord shut him in on the outside. and the flood was forty days upon the earth, and the waters increased, and lifted up the ark on high from earth. for they overflowed exceedingly: and filled all on the face of the earth: and the ark was carried upon the waters. and the waters prevailed beyond measure upon the earth: and all the high mountains under the whole heaven were covered. the water was fifteen cubits higher than the mountains which it covered. and all flesh was destroyed that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beasts, and of all creeping things that creep upon the earth: and all men. and all things wherein there is the breath of life on the earth, died. and he destroyed all the substance that was upon the earth, from man to beast, and the creeping things and fowls of the air: and they were destroyed from the earth: and noe only remained, and they that were with him in the ark. and the waters prevailed upon the earth a hundred and fifty days.

and god remembered noe, and all the living creatures, and all the cattle which were with him in the ark, and brought a wind upon the earth, and the waters were abated. the fountains also of the deep, and the flood gates of heaven were shut up, and the rain from heaven was restrained. and the waters returned from off the earth going and coming: and they began to be abated after a hundred and fifty days. and the ark rested in the seventh month, the seven and twentieth day of the month, upon the mountains of armenia. and the waters were going and decreasing until the tenth month: for in the tenth month, the first day of the month, the tops of the mountains appeared. and after that forty days were passed, noe, opening the window of the ark which he had made, sent forth a raven: which went forth and did not return, till the waters were dried up upon the earth. he sent forth also a dove after him, to see if the waters had now ceased upon the face of the earth. but she, not finding where her foot might rest, returned to him into the ark: for the waters were upon the whole earth: and he put forth his hand, and caught her, and brought her into the ark. and having waited yet seven other days, he again sent forth the dove out of the ark. and she came to him in the evening, carrying a bough of an olive tree, with green leaves, in her mouth. noe therefore understood that the waters were ceased upon the earth. and he stayed yet other seven days: and he sent forth the dove, which returned not any more unto him. therefore in the six hundredth and first year, the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were lessened upon the earth, and noe opening the covering of the ark, looked, and saw that the face of the earth was dried. in the second month, the seven and twentieth day of the month, the earth was dried. and god spoke to noe, saying: go out of the ark, thou and thy wife, thy sons, and the wives of thy sons with thee. all livings things that are with thee of all flesh, as well in fowls as in beasts, and all creeping things that creep upon the earth, bring out with thee, and go ye upon the earth: increased and multiply upon it. so noe went out, he and his sons: his wife, and the wives of his sons with him. and all living things, and cattle, and creeping things that creep upon the earth, according to their kinds, went out of the ark. and noe built an altar unto the lord: and taking of all cattle and fowls that were clean, offered holocausts upon the altar. and the lord smelled a sweet savour, and said: i will no more curse the earth for the sake of man: for the imagination and thought of man's heart are prone to evil from his youth: therefore i will no more destroy every living soul as i have done. all the days of the earth, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, night and day, shall not cease.

and god blessed noe and his sons. and he said to them: increase and multiply, and fill the earth. and let the fear and dread of you be upon all the beasts of the earth, and upon all the fowls of the air, and all that

move upon the earth: all the fishes of the sea are delivered into your hand. and every thing that moveth and liveth shall be meat for you: even as the green herbs have i delivered them all to you: saving that flesh with blood you shall not eat. for i will require the blood of your lives at the hand of every beast, and at the hand of man, at the hand of every man, and of his brother, will i require the life of man. whosoever shall shed man's blood, his blood shall be shed: for man was made to the image of god. but increase you and multiply, and go upon the earth, and fill it. this also said god to noe, and to his sons with him, behold i will establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you: and with every living soul that is with you, as well in all birds as in cattle and beasts of the earth, that are come forth out of the ark, and in all the beasts of the earth. i will establish my covenant with you, and all flesh shall be no more destroyed with the waters of a flood, neither shall there be from henceforth a flood to waste the earth. and god said: this is the sign of the covenant which i will give between me and you, and to every living soul that is with you, for perpetual generations. i will set my bow in the clouds, and it shall be the sign of a covenant between me, and between the earth. and when i shall cover the sky with clouds, my bow shall appear in the clouds: and i will remember my covenant with you, and with every living soul that beareth flesh: and there shall no more be waters of a flood to destroy all flesh. and the bow shall be in the clouds, and i shall see it, and shall remember the everlasting covenant, that was made between god and every living soul of all flesh which is upon the earth. and god said to noe: this shall be the sign of the covenant which i have established between me and all flesh upon the earth. and the sons of noe who came out of the ark, were sem, cham, and japheth: and cham is the father of chanaan. these three are the sons of noe: and from these was all mankind spread over the whole earth. and noe, a husbandman, began to till the ground, and planted a vineyard. and drinking of the wine was made drunk, and was uncovered in his tent. which when cham the father of chanaan had seen, to wit, that his father's nakedness was uncovered, he told it to his two brethren without. but sem and japheth put a cloak upon their shoulders, and going backward, covered the nakedness of their father: and their faces were turned away, and they saw not their father's nakedness. and noe awaking from the wine, when he had learned what his younger son had done to him, he said: cursed be chanaan, a servant of servants, shall he be unto his brethren. and he said: blessed be the lord god of sem, be chanaan his servant. may god enlarge japheth, and may he dwell in the tents of sem, and chanaan be his servant. and noe lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years: and all his days were in the whole nine hundred and fifty years: and he died.

these are the generations of the sons of noe: sem, cham, and japheth: and unto them sons were born after the flood. the sons of japheth: gomer, and magog, and madai, and javan, and thubal, and mosoch, and thiras. and the sons of gomer: ascenez and riphath and thogorma. and the sons of javan: elisa and tharsis, cetthim, and dodanim. by these were divided the islands of the gentiles in their lands, every one according to his tongue and their families in their nations. and the sons of cham: chus, and mesram, and phuth, and chanaan. and the sons of chus: saba and hevila, and sabatha, and regma, and sabatacha. the sons of regma: saba and dadan. now chus begot nemrod: he began to be mighty on earth. and he was a stout hunter before the lord. hence came a proverb: even as nemrod the stout hunter before the lord. and the beginning of his kingdom was babylon, and arach, and achad, and chalanne in the land of sennaar. out of that land came forth assur, and built ninive, and the streets of the city, and chale. resen also between ninive and chale: this is the great city. and mesraim begot ludim, and ananim, and laabim, nepthum, and phetrusim, and chasluim; of whom came forth the philistines, and the capthorim. and chanaan begot sidon, his firstborn, the hethite, and the jebusite, and the amorrite, and the gergesite, the hevite and the aracite: the sinite, and the aradian, the samarite, and the hamathite: and afterwards the families of the chanaanites were spread abroad. and the limits of chanaan were from sidon as one comes to gera even to gaza, until thou enter sodom and gomorrhah, and adama, and seboim even to lesa. these are the children of cham in their kindreds, and tongues, and generations, and lands, and nations. of sem also, the father of all children of heber, the elder brother of japheth, sons were born. the sons of sem: elam and assur, and arphaxad, and lud, and aram. the sons of aram: us and hull, and gether: and mess. but arphaxad begot sale, of whom was born heber. and to heber were born two sons: the name of the one was phaleg, because in his days the earth was divided: and his brother's name jectan. which jectan begot elmodad, and saleph, and asarmoth, jare, and anduram, and uzal, and decla, and ebal, and abimael, saba, and ophir, and hevila, and jobab. and their dwelling was from messa as we go on as far as sephar, a mountain in the east. these are the children of sem according to their kindreds and tongues, and countries in their nations. these are the families of noe, according to their peoples and nations. by these were the nations divided on the earth after the flood.

and the earth was of one tongue, and of the same speech. and when they removed from the east, they found a plain in the land of sennaar, and dwelt in it. and each one said to his neighbour: come, let us make brick, and bake them of stones, and slime instead of mortar. and they said: come, let us make a city and a tower, the top whereof may reach to heaven: and let us make our name famous before we be scattered abroad into all lands. and the lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of adam were building. and he said: behold, it is one people, and all have one tongue: and they have begun to do this, neither will they leave off from their designs, till they accomplish them in deed. come ye, therefore, let us go down, and there may not understand one another's speech. and so the lord scattered them from that place into all lands, and they ceased to build the city. and therefore the name thereof was called babel, because there the language of the whole earth was confounded: and from thence the lord scattered them abroad upon the face of all countries. these are the generations of sem: sem was a hundred years old when he begot arphaxad, two years old when he begot arphaxad, two years after the flood. and sem lived after he begot arphaxad, five hundred years, and begot sons and daughters. and arphaxad lived thirty-five years, and begot sale, and arphaxad lived after he begot sale, three hundred and three years; and begot sons and daughters. sale also lived thirty years, and begot heber. and sale lived after he begot heber, four hundred and three years; and begot sons and daughters. and heber lived thirty-four years, and begot phaleg. and heber lived after he begot phaleg, four hundred and thirty years: and begot sons and daughters. phaleg also lived thirty years, and begot reu. and phaleg lived after he begot reu, two hundred and nine years, and begot sons and daughters. and reu lived thirty-two years, and begot sarug. and reu lived after he begot sarug, two hundred and seven years, and begot sons and daughters. and sarug lived thirty years, and begot nachor. and sarug lived after he begot nachor, two hundred years: and begot sons and daughters. and nachor lived nine and twenty years, and begot thare. and nachor lived after he begot thare, a hundred and nineteen years: and begot sons and daughters. and thare lived seventy years, and begot abram, and nachor, and aran. and these are the generations of thare: thare begot abram, nachor, and aran. and aran begot lot. and aran died before thare his father, in the land of his nativity in ur of the chaldees. and abram and nachor married wives: the name of abram's wife was sarai: and the name of nachor's wife, melcha, the daughter of aran, father of melcha, and father of jescha. and sarai was barren, and had no children. and thare took abram, his son, and lot the son of aran, his son's son, and sarai his daughter in law, the wife of abram his son, and brought them out of ur of the chaldees, to go into the land of chanaan: and they came as far as haran, and dwelt there. and the days of thare were tow hundred and five years, and he died in haran.

and the lord said to abram: go forth out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and out of thy father's house, and come into the land which i shall shew thee. and i will make of thee a great nation, and i will bless thee, and magnify thy name, and thou shalt be blessed. i will bless them that bless thee, and curse them that curse thee, and in thee shall all the kindred of the earth be blessed: so abram went out as the lord had commanded him, and lot went with him: abram was seventy-five years old when he went forth from haran. and he took sarai his wife, and lot his brother's son, and all the substance which they had gathered, and the souls which they had gotten in haran: and they went out to go into the land of chanaan. and when they were come into it, abram passed through the country into the place of sichem, as far as the noble vale: now the chanaanite was at that time in the land. and the lord appeared to abram, and said to him: to thy seed will i give this land. and he built there an altar to the lord, who had appeared to him. and passing on from thence to a mountain, that was on the east side of bethel, he there pitched his tent, having bethel on the west, and hai on the east; he built there also an altar to the lord, and called upon his name. and abram went forward, going, and proceeding on to the south. and there came a famine in the country; and abram went down into egypt, to sojourn there: for the famine was very grievous in the land. and when he was near to enter into egypt, he said to sarai his wife: i know that thou art a beautiful woman: and that when the egyptians shall see thee, they will say: she is his wife: and they will kill me, and keep thee. say, therefore, i pray thee, that thou art my sister: that i may be well used for thee, and that my soul may live for thy sake. and when abram was come into egypt, the egyptians saw the woman that she was very beautiful. and the princes told pharao, and praised her before him: and the woman was taken into the house of pharao. and they used abram well for her sake. and he had sheep and oxen, and he asses, and menservants and maidservants, and she asses, and camels. but the lord scourged pharao and his house with most grievous stripes for sarai, abram's wife. and pharao called abram, and said to him: what is this that thou hast done to me? why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife. for what cause didst thou say, she was thy sister, that i might take her to my wife? now therefore, there is thy wife, take her, and go thy way. and pharao gave his men orders concerning abram: and they led him away, and his wife, and all that he had.

and abram went up out of egypt, he and his wife, and all that he had, and lot with him, into the south. and he was very rich in possession of gold and silver. and he returned by the way that he came, from the south to bethel, to the place where before he had pitched his tent between bethel and hai: in the place of the altar which he had made before; and there he called upon the name of the lord. but lot also, who was with abram, had flocks of sheep, and herds of beasts, and tents. neither was the land able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, and they could not dwell together. whereupon also there arose a strife between the herdsmen of abram and of lot. and at that time the chanaanite and the pherezite dwelled in that country. abram therefore said to lot: let there be no quarrel, i beseech thee, between me and thee, and between my herdsmen and thy herdsmen: for we are brethren. behold the whole land is before thee: depart from me i pray thee: if thou wilt go to the left hand, i will take the right: if thou choose the right hand, i will pass to the left. and lot, lifting up his eyes, saw all the country about the jordan, which was watered throughout, before the lord destroyed sodom and gomorrha, as the paradise of the lord, and like egypt as one comes to segor. and lot chose to himself the country about the jordan, and he departed from the east: and they were separated one brother from the other. abram dwelt in the land of chanaan; and lot abode in the towns that were about the jordan, and dwelt in sodom. and the men of sodom were very wicked, and sinners before the face of the lord, beyond measure. and the lord said to abram, after lot was separated from him: lift up thy eyes, and look from the place wherein thou now art, to the north and to the south, to the east and to the west. all the land which thou seest, i will give to thee, and to thy seed for ever. and i will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: if any man be able to number the dust of the earth, he shall be able to number thy seed also. arise and walk through the land in the length, and in the breadth thereof: for i will give it to thee. so abram removing his tent came and dwelt by the vale of mambre, which is in hebron: and he built there an altar to the lord.

and it came to pass at that time, that amraphel king of sennaar, and arioch king of pontus, and chodorlahomor king of the elamites, and thadal king of nations, made war against bara king of sodom, and against bersa king of gomorrha, and against sennaab king of adama, and against semeber king of seboim, and against the king of bala, which is segor. all these came together into the woodland vale, which now is the salt sea. for they had served chodorlahomor twelve years, and in the thirteenth year they revolted from him. and in the fourteenth year came chodorlahomor, and the kings that were with him: and they smote the raphaim in astarothcarnaim, and the zuzim with them, and the emim in save of carithaim. and the chorreans in the mountains of seir, even to the plains of pharan, which is in the wilderness. and they returned, and came to the fountain of misphat, the same is cades: and they smote all the country of the amalecites, and the amorrhean that dwelt in asasonthamar. and the king of sodom, and the king of gomorrha, and the king of adama, and the king of seboim, and the king of bala, which is segor, went out: and they set themselves against them in battle array in the woodland vale: to wit, against chodorlahomor king of the elamites, and thadal king of nations, and amraphel king of sennaar, and arioch king of pontus: four kings against five. now the woodland vale had many pits of slime. and the king of sodom, and the king of gomorrha turned their backs and were overthrown there: and they that remained fled to the mountain. and they took all the substance of the sodomites, and gomorrhites, and all their virtuals, and went their way: and lot also, the son of abram's brother, who dwelt in sodom, and his substance. and behold one that had escaped told abram the hebrew, who dwelt in the vale of mambre the amorrhite, the brother of escol, and the brother of aner: for these had made league with abram. which when abram had heard, to wit, that his brother lot was taken, he numbered of the servants born in his house, three hundred and eighteen well appointed: and pursued them to dan. and dividing his company, he rushed upon them in the night: and defeated them, and pursued them as far as hoba, which is on the left hand of damascus. and he brought back all the substance, and lot his brother, with his substance, the women also the people. and the king of sodom went out to meet him, after he returned from the slaughter of chodorlahomor, and of the kings that were with him in the vale of save, which is the king's vale. but melchisedech the king of salem, bringing forth bread and wine, for he was the priest of the most high god, blessed him, and said: blessed be abram by the most high god, who created heaven and earth. and blessed be the most high god, by whose protection the enemies are in thy hands. and he gave him the tithes of all. and the king of sodom said to abram: give me the persons, and the rest take to thyself. and he answered him: i lift up my hand to the lord god the most high, the possessor of heaven and earth, that from the very woof thread unto the shoe latchet, i will not take of any things that are thine, lest thou say i have enriched abram: except such things as the young men have eaten, and the shares of the men that came with me, aner, escol, and mambre: these shall take their shares.

now when these things were done, the word of the lord came to abram by a vision, saying: fear not, abram, i am thy protector, and thy reward exceeding great. and abram said: lord god, what wilt thou give me? i shall go without children: and the son of the steward of my house is this damascus eliezer. and abram added: but to me thou hast not given seed: and lo my servant, born in my house, shall be my heir. and immediately the word of the lord came to him, saying: he shall not be thy heir: but he that shall come out of thy bowels, him shalt thou have for thy heir. and he thought him forth abroad, and said to him: look up to heaven and number the stars, if thou canst. and he said to him: so shall thy seed be. abram believed god, and it was reputed to him unto justice. and he said to him: i am the lord who brought thee out from ur of the chaldees, to gibe thee this land, and that thou mightest possess it. but he said: lord god, whereby may i know that i shall possess it? and the lord answered, and said: take me a cow of three years old, and a she goat of three years, and a ram of three years, a turtle also, and a pigeon. and he took all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid the two pieces of each one against the other; but the birds he divided not. and the fowls came down upon carcasses, and abram drove them away. and when the sun was setting, a deep sleep fell upon abram, and a great and darksome horror seized upon him. and it was said unto him: know thou beforehand that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land not their own, and they shall bring them under bondage, and afflict them four hundred years. but i will judge the nation which they shall serve, and after this they shall come out with great substance. and thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace, and be buried in a good old age. but in the fourth generation they shall return hither: for as yet the iniquities of the amorrites are not at the full until this present time. and when the sun was set, there arose a dark mist, and there appeared a smoking furnace and a lamp of fire passing between those divisions. that day god made a covenant with abram, saying: to thy seed will i give this land, from the river of egypt even to the great river euphrates. the cineans and cenezites, the cedmonites, and the hethites, and the pherezites, the raphaim also, and the amorrites, and the chanaanites, and the gergesites, and the jebusites.

now sarai the wife of abram, had brought forth no children; having a handmaid, an egyptian, named agar, she said to her husband: behold, the lord hath restrained me from bearing: go in unto my handmaid, it may be i may have children of her at least. and when he agreed to her request, she took agar the egyptian her handmaid, ten years after they first dwelt in the land of chanaan, and gave her to her husband to wife. and he went in to her. but she, perceiving that she was with child, despised her mistress. and sarai said to abram: thou dost unjustly with me: i gave my handmaid into thy bosom, and she perceiving herself to be with child, despiseth me. the lord judge between me and thee. and abram made answer, and said to her: behold thy handmaid is in thy own hand, use her as it pleaseth thee. and when sarai afflicted her, she ran away. and the angel of the lord having found her, by a fountain of water in the wilderness, which is in the way to sur in the desert, he said to her: agar, handmaid of sarai, whence comest thou? and whither goest thou? and she answered: i flee from the face of sarai, my mistress. and the angel of the lord said to her: return to thy mistress, and humble thyself under her hand. and again he said: i will multiply thy seed exceedingly, and it shall not be numbered for multitude. and again: behold, said he, thou art with child, and thou shalt bring forth a son: and thou shalt call his name ismael, because the lord hath heard thy affliction. he shall be a wild man: his hand will be against all men, and all men's hands against him: and he shall pitch his tents over against all his brethren. and she called the name of the lord that spoke unto her: thou the god who hast seen me. for she said: verily here have i seen the hinder parts of him that seeth me. therefore she called that well, the well of him that liveth and seeth me. the same is between cades and bared. and agar brought forth a son to abram: who called his name ismael. abram was fourscore and six years old when agar brought him forth ismael.

and after he began to be ninety and nine years old, the lord appeared to him: and said unto him: i am the almighty god: walk before me, and be perfect. and i will make my covenant between me and thee: and i will multiply thee exceedingly. abram fell flat on his face. and god said to him: i am, and my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father. of many nations. neither shall thy name be called any more abram: but thou shalt be called abraham: because i have made thee a father of many nations. and i will make thee increase, exceedingly, and i will make nations of thee, and kings shall come out of thee. and i will establish my covenant between me and thee, and between thy seed after thee in their generations, by a perpetual covenant: to be a god to thee, and to thy seed after thee. and i will give to thee, and to thy seed, the land of thy sojournment, all the land of chanaan for a perpetual possession, and i will be their god. again god said to abraham: and thou therefore shalt keep my covenant, and thy seed after thee in their generations. this is my covenant which you shall observe, between me and you, and thy seed after thee: all the male kind of you shall be circumcised: and you shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin, that it may be for a sign of the covenant between me and you. an infant of eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generations: he that is born in the house, as well as the bought servant shall be circumcised, and whosoever is not of your stock: and my covenant shall be in your flesh for a perpetual covenant. the male, whose dash of his foreskin shall not be circumcised, that soul shall be destroyed out of his people: because he hath broken my covenant. god said also to abraham: sarai thy wife thou shalt not call sarai, but sara. and i will bless her, and of her i will give thee a son, whom i will bless, and he shall become nations, and kings of people shall spring from him. abraham fell upon his face, and laughed, saying in his heart: shall a son, thinkest thou, be born to him that is a hundred years old? and shall sara that is ninety years old bring forth? and he said to god: o that ismael may live before thee. and god said to abraham: sara thy wife shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name isaac, and i will establish my covenant with him for a perpetual covenant, and with his seed after him. and as for ismael i have also heard thee. behold, i will bless him, and increase, and multiply him exceedingly: he shall beget twelve chiefs, and i will make him a great nation. but my covenant i will establish with isaac, whom sara shall bring forth to thee at this time in the next year. and when he had left oil speaking with him, god went up from abraham. and abraham took ismael his son, and all that were born in his house: and all whom he had bought, every male among the men of his house: and he circumcised the flesh of their foreskin forthwith the very same day, as god had commanded him. abraham was ninety and nine years old, when he circumcised the flesh of his foreskin. and ismael his son was full thirteen years old at the time of his circumcision. the selfsame day was abraham circumcised and ismael his son. and all the men of his house, as well they that were born in his house, as the bought servants and strangers were circumcised with him.

and the lord appeared to him in the vale of mambre as he was sitting at the door of his tent, in the very heat of the day. and when he had lifted up his eyes, there appeared to him three men standing near him: and as soon as he saw them he ran to meet them from the door of his tent, and adored down to the ground. and he said: lord, if i have found favour in thy sight, pass not away from thy servant: but i will fetch a little water, and wash ye your feet, and rest ye under the tree. and i will set a morsel of bread, and strengthen ye your heart, afterwards you shall pass on: for therefore are you come aside to your servant. and they said: do as thou hast spoken. abraham made haste into the tent to sera, and said to her: make haste, temper together three measures of flour, and make cakes upon the hearth. and he himself ran to the herd, and took from thence a calf very tender and very good, and gave it to a young man: who made haste and boiled it. he took also butter and milk, and the calf which he had boiled, and set before them: but he stood by them under the tree. and when they had eaten, they said to him: where is sara thy wife? he answered: lo, she is in the tent. and he said to him: i will return and come to thee at this time, life accompanying and sara thy wife shall have a son. which when sara heard, she laughed behind the door of the tent. now they were both old, and far advanced in years, and it had ceased to be with sara after the manner of women. and she laughed secretly, saying: after i am grown old and my lord is an old man, shall i give myself to pleasure? and the lord said to abraham: why did sera laugh, saying: shall i who am an old woman bear a child indeed? is there any thing hard to god? according to appointment i will return to thee at this same time, life accompanying, and sara shall have a son. sara denied, saying: i did not laugh: for she was afraid. but the lord said, nay: but thou didst laugh: and when the men rose up from thence, they turned their eyes towards sodom: and abraham walked with them, bringing them on the way. and the lord said: can i hide from abraham what i am about to do: "seeing he shall become a great and mighty nation, and in him all the nations of the earth shall be blessed? for i know that he will command his children, and his household after him to keep the way of the lord, and do judgment and justice: that for abraham's sake the lord may bring to effect all the things he hath spoken unto him. and the lord said: the cry of sodom and gomorrha is multiplied, and their sin is become exceedingly grievous. i will go down and see whether they have done according to the cry that is come to me: or whether it be not so, that i may know. and they turned themselves from thence, and went their way to sodom: but abraham as yet stood before the lord. and drawing nigh he said: wilt thou destroy the just with the wicked? if there be fifty just men in the city, shall they perish withal? and wilt thou not spare that place for the sake of the fifty just, if they be therein? far be it from thee to do this thing, and to slay the just with the wicked, and for the just to be in like case as the wicked, this is not beseeming thee: thou who judgest all the earth, wilt not make this judgment. and the lord said to him: if i and in sodom fifty just within the city, i will spare the whole place for their sake. and abraham answered, and said: seeing i have once begun, i will speak to my lord, whereas i am dust and ashes. what if there be ave less than fifty just persons? wilt thou for five and forty destroy the whole city? and he said: i will not destroy it, if i find five and forty. and again he said to him: but if forty be found there, what wilt thou do? he said: i will not destroy it for the sake of forty. lord, saith he, be not angry, i beseech thee, if i speak: what if thirty shall be found there? he answered: i will not do it, if i and thirty there. seeing, saith he, i have once begun, i will speak to my lord. what if twenty be found there? he said: i will not destroy it for the sake of twenty. i beseech thee, saith he, be not angry, lord, if i speak yet once more: what if tell should be found there? and he said: i will not destroy it for the sake of ten. and the lord departed, after he had left speaking to abraham: and abraham returned to his place.

and the two angels came to sodom ii in the evening, and lot was sitting in the gate of the city. and seeing them, he rose up and went to meet them: and worshipped prostrate to the ground, and said: i beseech you, my lords, turn in to the house of your servant, and lodge there: wash your feet, and in the morning you shall go on your way. and they said: no, but we will abide in the street. he pressed them very much to turn in unto him: and when they were come in to his house, he made them a feast, and baked unleavened bread and they ate: but before they went to bed, the men of the city beset the house both young and old, all the people together. and they called lot, and said to him: where are the men that came in to thee at night? bring them out hither that we may know them: lot went out to them, and shut the door after him, and said: no not so, i beseech you, my brethren, do not commit this evil. i have two daughters who as yet have not known man: i will bring them out to you, and abuse you them as it shall please you, so that you do no evil to these men, because they are come in under the shadow of my roof. but they said: get thee back thither. and again: thou camest in, said they, as a, stranger, was it to be a judge? therefore we will afflict thee more than them. 0 and they pressed very violently upon lot: and they were even at the point of breaking open the doors. and behold the men put out their hand, and drew in lot unto them, and shut the door: and them that were without, p they struck with blindness from the least to the greatest, so that they could not find the door. and they said to lot: hast thou here ally of thine? son in law, or sons, or daughters, all that are thine bring them out of this city: for we will destroy this place, because their cry is grown loud before the lord, who hath sent us to destroy them. so lot went out, and spoke to his sons in law that were to have his daughters, and said : arise : get you out of this place, because the lord will destroy this city. and he seemed to them to speak as it were in jest. and when it was- morning, the angels pressed him, saying: arise, take thy wife, and the two daughters which thou hast: lest thou also perish in the wickedness of the city. and as he lingered, they took his hand, and the hand of his wife, and of his two daughters, because the lord spared him. and they brought him forth, and set him without the city: and there they spoke to him, saying : save thy life : look not back, neither stay thou in all the country about: but save thyself in the mountain, lest thou be also consumed. and lot said to them: i beseech thee my lord, because thy servant hath found grace before thee, and thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou hast shewn to me, in saving my life, and i cannot escape to the mountain, lest some evil seize me, and i die : there is this city here at hand, to which i may flee, it is a little one, and i shall be saved in it: is it not a little one, and my soul shall live? and he said to him: behold also in this, i have heard thy prayers, not to destroy the city for which thou hast spoken. make haste and be saved there, because i cannot do any thing till thou go in thither. therefore the name of that city was called segor. the sun was risen upon the earth, and lot entered into segor. and the lord rained upon sodom and gomorrha brimstone and fire from the lord out of heaven. and he destroyed these cities, and all the country about, all the inhabitants of the cities, and all things that spring from the earth. and his wife looking behind her, was turned into a statue of salt. and abraham got up early in the morning and in the place where he had stood before with the lord, u he looked towards sodom and gomorrha, and the whole land of that country: and he saw the ashes rise up from the earth as the smoke of a furnace. now when god destroyed the cities of that country, remembering abraham, he delivered lot out of the destruction of the cities wherein he had dwelt. and lot went up out of segor, and abode in the mountain, and his two daughters with him, (for he was afraid to stay in segor,) and he dwelt in a cave, he and his two daughters with him. and the elder said to the younger our father is old, and there is no man left on the earth, to come in unto us after the manner of the whole earth. come, let us make him drunk with wine, and let us lie with him, that we may preserve seed of our father. and they made their father drink wine that night: and the elder went in and lay with her father : but he perceived not neither when his daughter lay down, nor when she rose up. and the next day the elder said to the younger : behold i lay last night with my father, let us make him drink wine also to night, and thou shalt lie with him, that we may save seed of our father. they made their father drink wine that night also, and the younger daughter went in, and lay with him: and neither then did he perceive when she lay down, nor when she rose up. the two daughters of lot were with child by their father. and the elder bore a son, and called his name moab: he is the father of the moabites unto this day. the younger also bore a son, and called his name ammon, that is, the son of my people: he is the father of the ammonites unto this

abraham removed from thence to the south country, and dwelt between cedes and sur, and sojourned in gerara. and he said of sara his wife: she is my sister. so abimelech the king of oerara sent, and took her. and god came to abimelech in a dream by night, and he said to him: lo thou shalt die for the woman thou hast taken: for she hath a husband. now abimelech had not touched her, and he said : lord, wilt thou slay a nation, that is ignorant and justl did not he say to me : she is my sister: and she say, he is my brother? in the simplicity of my heart, and cleanness of my hands have i done this. and god said to him: and i know that thou didst it with a sincere heart: and therefore i withheld thee from sinning against me, and i suffered thee not to touch her. now therefore restore the man his wife, for he is a prophet: and he shall pray for thee, and thou shalt live: but if thou wilt not restore her, know that thou shalt surely die, thou and all that are thins. and abimelech forthwith rising up in the night, called all his servants: and spoke all these words in their hearing, and all the men were exceedingly afraid. and abimelech called also for abraham, and said to him: what hast thou done to us? what have we offended thee in, that thou hast brought upon me and upon my kingdom a great sin? thou hast done to us what thou oughtest not to do. and again he expostulated with him, and said, what sawest thou, that thou hast done this? abraham answered: i thought with myself, saying: perhaps there is not the fear of god in this place: and they will kill me for the sake of my wife: howbeit, otherwise also she is truly my sister, the daughter of my father, and not the daughter of my mother, and i took her to wife. and after god brought me out of my father's house, i said to her: i thou shalt do me this kindness: in every place, to which we shall come, thou shalt say that i am thy brother. and abimelech took sheep and oxen, and servants and handmaids, and gave to abraham: and restored to him sara, his wife. and said: the land is before you, dwell where-soever it shall please thee. and to sara he said: behold i have given thy brother a thousand pieces of silver: this shall serve thee for a covering of thy eyes to all that are with thee, and whithersoever thou shalt go: and remember thou wast taken. and when abraham prayed, god healed abimelech and his wife, and his handmaids, and they bore children: for the lord had closed up every womb of the house of abimelech on account of sara, abraham's wife.

and the lord visited sara, as he had promised: and fulfilled what he had spoken. and she conceived and bore a son in her old age, at the time that god had foretold her. and abraham called the name of his son, whom sara bore him, isaac. and he circumcised him the eighth day, as god had commanded him, when he was a hundred years old: for at this age of his father was isaac born. and sara said: god hath made a laugh-ter for me: whosoever shall hear of it will laugh with me. and again she said: who would believe that abraham should hear that sara gave suck to a son, whom she bore to him in his old age. and the child grew and was weaned: and abraham made a great feast on the day of his weaning. and when sara had seen the son of agar the egyptian playing with isaac her son, she said to abraham: cast out this bondwoman, and her son: for the son of the bondwoman shall not be heir with my son isaac. abraham took this grievously for his son. and god said to him: let it not seem grievous to thee for the boy, and for thy bondwoman: in all that sara hath said to thee, hearken to her voice: for in isaac shall thy seed be called. but i will make the son also of the bondwoman a great nation, because he is thy seed. so abraham rose up in the morning, and taking bread and a bottle of water, put it upon her shoulder, and delivered the boy, and sent her away. and she departed, and wandered in the wilderness of bersabee. and when the water in the bottle was spent, she cast the boy under one of the trees that were there. and she went her way, and sat over against him a great way off as far as a bow can carry, for she said: i will not see the boy die: and sitting over against, she lifted up her voice and wept. and god heard the voice of the boy: and an angel of god called to agar from heaven, saying: what art thou doing, agar? fear not: for god hath heard the voice of the boy, from the place wherein he is. arise, take up the boy, and hold him by the hand: for i will make him a great nation. and god opened her eyes: and she saw a well of water, and went and filled the bottle, and gave the boy to drink. and god was with him: and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became a young man, an archer. and he dwelt in the wilderness of paran, and his mother took a wife for him out of the land of egypt. at the same time abimelech, and phicol the general of his army said to abraham: god is with thee in all that thou dost. swear therefore by god, that thou wilt not hurt me, nor my posterity, nor my stock: but according to the kindness that i have done to thee, thou shalt do to me, and to the land wherein thou hast lived a stranger. and abraham said: i will swear. and he reproved abimelech for a well of water, which his servants had taken away by force. and abimelech answered: i knew not who did this thing: and thou didst not tell me, and i heard not of it till today. and abraham took sheep and oxen and gave them to abimelech: and both of them made a league. and abraham set apart seven ewe lambs of the flock. and abimelech said to him: what mean these seven ewe lambs which thou hast set apart? but he said: thou shalt take seven ewe lambs at my hand: that they may be a testimony for me, that i dug this well. therefore that place was called bersabee: because both of them did swear. and they made a league for the well of oath. and abimelech, and phicol the general of his army arose and returned to the land of the palestines. but abraham planted a grove in bersabee, and there called upon the name of the lord god eternal. and he was a sojourner in the land of the palestines many days.

after these things, god tempted abraham, and said to him: abraham, abraham. and he answered: here i am. he said to him: take thy only begotten son isaac, whom thou lovest, and go into the land of vision: and there thou shalt offer him for a holocaust upon one of the mountains which i will show thee. so abraham rising up in the night, saddled his ass: and took with him two young men, and isaac his son: and when he had cut wood for the holocaust he went his way to the place which god had commanded him. and on the third day, lifting up his eyes, he saw the place afar off. and he said to his young men: stay you here with the ass: i and the boy will go with speed as far as yonder, and after we have worshipped, will return to you. and he took the wood for the holocaust, and laid it upon isaac his son: and he himself carried in his hands fire and a sword. and as they two went on together, isaac said to his father: my father. and he answered: what wilt thou, son? behold, saith he, fire and wood: where is the victim for the holocaust? and abraham said: god will provide himself a victim for an holocaust, my son. so they went on together. and they came to the place which god had shown him, where he built an altar, and laid the wood in order upon it: and when he had bound isaac his son, he laid him on the altar upon the pile of wood. and he put forth his hand and took the sword, to sacrifice his son. and behold an angel of the lord from heaven called to him, saying: abraham, abraham. and he answered: here i am. and he said to him: lay not thy hand upon the boy, neither do thou any thing to him: now i know that thou fearest god, and hast not spared thy only begotten son for my sake. abraham lifted up his eyes, and saw behind his back a ram amongst the briers sticking fast by the horns, which he took and offered for a holocaust instead of his son. and he called the name of that place, the lord seeth. whereupon even to this day it is said: in the mountain the lord will see. and the angel of the lord called to abraham a second time from heaven, saying: by my own self have i sworn, saith the lord: because thou hast done this thing, and hast not spared thy only begotten son for my sake: i will bless thee, and i will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that is by the seashore: thy seed shall possess the gates of their enemies. and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast obeyed my voice. abraham returned to his young men, and they went to bersabee together, and he dwelt there. after these things, it was told abraham that melcha also had borne children to nachor his brother. hus the firstborn, and buz his brother, and camuel the father of the syrians, and cased, and azau, and pheldas, and jedlaph, and bathuel, of whom was born rebecca: these eight did melcha bear to nachor abraham's brother. and his concubine, named roma, bore tabee, and gaham, and tahas, and maacha.

land of chanaan: and abraham came to mourn and weep for her: and after he rose up from the funeral obsequies, he spoke to the children of heth, saying: i am a stranger and sojourner among you: give me the right of a burying-place with you, that i may bury my dead. the children of heth answered, saying: my lord, hear us, thou art a prince of god among us: bury thy dead in our principle sepulchers: and no man shall have power to hinder thee from burying thy dead in his sepulcher. abraham rose up, and bowed down to the people of the land, to wit the children of heth: and said to them: if it please your soul that i should bury my dead, hear me, and intercede for me to ephron the son of seor. that he may give me the double cave, which he hath in the end of his field: for as much money as it is worth he shall give it me before you, for a possession of a buryingplace. now ephron dwelt in the midst of the children of heth. and ephron made answer to abraham in the hearing of all that went in at the gate of the city, saying: let it not be so, my lord, but do thou rather hearken to what i say: the field i deliver to thee, and the cave that is therein, in the presence of the children of my people, bury thy dead. abraham bowed down before the people of the land, and he spoke to ephron, in the presence of the people: i beseech thee to hear me: i will give money for the field: take it, and so i will bury my dead in it. and ephron answered: my lord, hear me. the ground which thou desirest, is worth four hundred sicles of silver: this is the price between me and thee: but what is this? bury thy dead. and when abraham had heard this, he weighed out the money that ephron had asked, in the hearing of the children of heth, four hundred sicles of silver of common current money. and the field that before was ephron's, wherein was the double cave, looking towards mambre, both it and the cave, and all the trees thereof in all its limits round about, was made sure to abraham for a possession, in the sight of the children of heth, and of all that went in at the gate of his city. and so abraham buried sara his wife, in a double cave of the field, that looked towards mambre, this is hebron in the land of chanaan. and the field was made sure to abraham, and the cave that was in it, for a possession to bury in, by the children of heth.

now abraham was old; and advanced in age: and the lord had blessed him in all things. and he said to the elder servant of his house, who was ruler over all he had: put thy hand under my thigh, that i may make thee swear by the lord the god of heaven and earth, that thou take not a wife for my son, of the daughters of the chanaanites, among whom i dwell: but that thou go to my own country and kindred, and take a wife from thence for my son isaac. the servant answered: if the woman will not come with me into this land, must i bring thy son back again to the place, from whence thou camest out? and abraham said: beware thou never bring my son back again thither. the lord god of heaven, who took me out of my father's house, and out of my native country, who spoke to me, and swore to me, saying: to thy seed will i give this land: he will send his angel before thee, and thou shalt take from thence a wife for my son. but if the woman will not follow thee, thou shalt not be bound by the oath; only bring not my son back thither again. the servant therefore put his hand under the thigh of abraham his lord, and swore to him upon this word. and he took ten camels of his master's herd, and departed, carrying something of all his goods with him, and he set forth and went on to mesopotamia to the city of nachor. and when he had made the camels lie down without the town near a well of water in evening, at the time when women were wont to come out to draw water, he said: o lord the god of my master abraham, meet me today, i beseech thee, and show kindness to my master abraham. behold i stand nigh the spring of water, and the daughters of the inhabitants of this city will come out to draw water. now, therefore, the maid to whom i shall say: let down thy pitcher that i may drink: and she shall answer, drink, and i will give thy camels drink also: let it be the same whom thou hast provided for thy servant isaac: and by this i shall understand, that thou hast shown kindness to my master. he had not yet ended these words within himself, and behold rebecca came out, the daughter of bathuel, son of melcha, wife to nachor the brother of abraham, having a pitcher on her shoulder: an exceedingly comely maid, and a most beautiful virgin, and not known to man: and she went down to the spring, and filled her pitcher and was coming back. and the servant ran to meet her, and said: give me a little water to drink of thy pitcher. and she answered: drink, my lord. and quickly she let down the pitcher upon her arm, and gave him drink. and when he had drunk, she said: i will draw water for thy camels also, till they all drink. and pouring out the pitcher into the troughs, she ran back to the well to draw water: and having drawn she gave to all the camels. but he musing beheld her with silence, desirous to know whether the lord had made his journey prosperous or not. and after that the camels had drunk, the man took out golden earrings, weighing two sicles: and as many bracelets of ten sicles weight. and he said to her: whose daughter art thou? tell me: is there any place in thy father's house to lodge? and she answered: i am the daughter of bathuel, the son of melcha, whom she bore to nachor. and she said moreover to him: we have good store of both straw and hay, and a large place to lodge in. the man bowed himself down, and adored the lord, saying: blessed be the lord god of my master abraham, who hath not taken away his mercy and truth from my master, and hath brought me the straight way into the house of my master's brother. then the maid ran, and told in her mother's house, all that she had heard. and rebecca had a brother named laban, who went out in haste to the man, to the well. and when he had seen the earrings and bracelets in his sister's hands, and had heard all that she related, saying: thus and thus the man spoke to me: he came to the man who stood by the camels, and near to the spring of water, and said to him: come in, thou blessed of the lord: why standest thou without? i have prepared the house, and a place for the camels. and he brought him into his lodging: and he unharnessed the camels and gave straw and hay, and water to wash his feet, and the feet of the men that were come with him. and bread was set before him. but he said: i will not eat, till i tell my message. he answered him: speak. and he said: i am the servant of abraham: and the lord hath blessed my master wonderfully, and he is become great: and he hath given him sheep and oxen, silver and gold, menservants and womenservants, camels and asses. and sara my master's wife hath borne my master a son in her old age, and he hath given him all that he had. and my master made me swear, saying: thou shalt not take a wife for my son of the chanaanites, in whose land i dwell: but thou shalt go to my father's house, and shalt take a wife of my own kindred for my son: but i answered my master: what if the woman will not come with me? the lord, said he, in whose sight i walk, will send his angel with thee, and will direct thy way: and thou shalt take a wife for my son of my own kindred, and of my father's house. but thou shalt be clear from my curse, when thou shalt come to my kindred, if they will not give thee one. and i came today to the well of water, and said: o lord god of my master abraham, if thou hast prospered my way, wherein i now walk, behold i stand by the well of water, and the virgin, that shall come out to draw water, who shall hear me say: give me a little water to drink of thy pitcher: and shall say to me: both drink thou, and i will also draw for thy camels: let the same be the woman, whom the lord hath prepared for my master's son. and whilst i pondered these things secretly with myself, rebecca appeared coming with a pitcher, which she carried on her shoulder: and she went down to the well and drew water. and i said to her: give me a little to drink. and she speedily let down the pitcher from her shoulder, and said to me: both drink thou, and to thy camels i will give drink. i drank, and she watered the camels. and i asked her, and said: whose daughter art thou? and she answered: i am the daughter of bathuel, the son of nabor, whom melcha bore to him. so i put earrings on her to adorn her face, and i put bracelets on her hands. and falling down i adored the lord, blessing the lord god of my master abraham, who hath brought me the straight way to take the daughter of my master's brother for his son. therefore if you do according to mercy and truth with my master, tell me: but if it please you otherwise, tell me that also, that i may go to the right hand, or to the left. and laban and bathuel answered: the word hath proceeded from the lord, we cannot speak any other thing to thee but his pleasure. behold rebecca is before thee, take her and go thy way, and let her be the wife of thy master's son, as the lord hath spoken. which when abraham's servant heard, falling down to the ground he adored the lord. and bringing forth vessels of silver and gold, and garments, he gave them to rebecca for a present. he offered gifts also to her brothers, and to her mother. and a banquet was made, and they ate and drank together, and lodged there. and in the morning, the servant arose, and said: let me depart, that i may go to my master. and her brother and mother answered: let the maid stay at least ten days with us, and afterwards she shall depart. stay me not, said he, because the lord hath prospered my way: send me away, that i may go to my master. and they said: let us call the maid, and ask her will. and they called her, and when she was come, they asked: wilt thou go with this man? she said: i will go. so they sent her away, and her nurse, and abraham's servant, and his company, wishing prosperity to their sister, and saying: thou art our sister, mayst thou increase to thousands of thousands, and may thy seed possess the gates of their enemies. so rebecca and her maids, being set upon camels, followed the man: who with speed returned to his master. at the same time isaac was walking along the way to the well which is called of the living and the seeing: for he dwelt in the south country. and he was gone forth to meditate in the field, the day being now well spent: and when he had lifted up his eyes, he saw camels coming afar off. rebecca also, when she saw isaac, lighted off the camel, and said to the servant: who is that man who cometh towards us along the field? and he said to her: that man is my master. but she quickly took her cloak, and covered herself. and the servant told isaac all that he had done. who brought her into the tent of sara his mother, and took her to wife: and he loved her so much, that it moderated the sorrow which was occasioned by his mother's death.

and abraham married another wife, named cetura: who bore to him zamran, and jecsan, and madan, and madian, and jesboc, and sue. jecsan also begot saba and dadan. the children of dadan were assurim, and latusim, and loomin. but of madian was born epha, and opher, and henoah, and abida, and eldaa: all these were the children of cetura. and abraham gave all his possessions to isaac. and to the children of the concubines he gave gifts, and separated them from isaac his son, while he yet lived, to the east country. and the days of abraham's life were a hundred and seventy-five years. and decaying he died in a good old age, and having lived a long time, and being full of days: and was gathered to his people. and isaac and ismael his sons buried him in the double cave, which was situated in the field of ephron the son of seor the hethite, over against mambre; which he had bought of the children of heth: there was he buried, and sara his wife. and after his death, god blessed isaac his son, who dwelt by the well named of the living and seeing. these are the generations of ismael the son of abraham, whom agar the egyptian, sara's servant, bore unto him: and these are the names of his children according to their calling and generations. the firstborn of ismael was nabajoth, then cedar, and ad-beel, and mabsam. and masma, and duma, and massa, hadar, and thema, and jethur, and naphis, and cedma. these are the sons of ismael: and these are their names by their castles and towns, twelve princes of their tribes. and the years of ismael's life were a hundred and thirty-seven, and decaying he died, and was gathered unto his people. and he dwelt from hevila as far as sur, which looketh towards egypt, to them that go towards the assyrians. he died in the presence of all his brethren. these also are the generations of isaac the son of abraham: abraham begot isaac: who when he was forty years old, took to wife rebecca the daughter of bathuel the syrian of mesopotamia, sister to laban. and isaac besought the lord for his wife, because she was barren; and he heard him, and made rebecca to conceive. but the children struggled in her womb: and she said: if it were to be so with me, what need was there to conceive? and she went to consult the lord. and he answering said: two nations are in thy womb, and two peoples shall be divided out of thy womb, and one people shall overcome the other, and the elder shall serve the younger. and when her time was come to be delivered, behold twins were found in her womb. he that came forth first was red, and hairy like a skin: and his name was called esau. immediately the other coming forth, held his brother's foot in his hand, and therefore he was called jacob. isaac was threescore years old when the children were born unto him. and when they were grown up, esau became a skillful hunter, and a husbandman, but jacob a plain man dwelt in tents. isaac loved esau, because he ate of his hunting: and rebecca loved jacob. and jacob boiled pottage: to whom esau, coming faint out of the field, said: give me of this red pottage, for i am exceeding faint. for which reason his name was called edom. and jacob said to him: sell me thy first birthright. he answered: lo i die, what will the first birthright avail me. jacob said: swear therefore to me. esau swore to him, and sold his first birthright. and so taking bread and the pottage of lentils, he ate, and drank, and went his way; making little account of having sold his first birthright.

and when a famine came in the land, after that barrenness which had happened in the days of abraham, isaac went to abimelech king of the palestines to gerara. and the lord appeared to him and said: go not down into egypt, but stay in the land that i shall tell thee. and sojourn in it, and i will be with thee, and will bless thee: for to thee and to thy seed i will give all these countries, to fulfill the oath which i swore to abraham thy father. and i will multiply thy seed like the stars of heaven: and i will give to thy posterity all these countries: and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed. because abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my precepts and commandments, and observed my ceremonies and laws. so isaac abode in gerara. and when he was asked by the men of that place, concerning his wife, he answered: she is my sister; for he was afraid to confess that she was his wife, thinking lest perhaps they would like him because of her beauty. and when very many days were passed, and he abode there, abimelech king of the palestines looking out through a window, saw him playing with rebecca his wife. and calling for him, he said: it is evident she is thy wife: why didst thou feign her to be thy sister? he answered: i feared lest i should die for her sake. and abimelech said: why hadst thou deceived us? some man of the people might have lain

with thy wife, and thou hadst brought upon us a great sin. and he commanded all the people, saying: he that shall touch this man's wife, shall surely be put to death. and isaac sowed in that land, and he found that same year a hundredfold: and the lord blessed him. and the man was enriched, and he went on prospering and increasing, till he became exceeding great: and he had possessions of sheep and of herds, and a very great family. wherefore the palestines envying him, stopped up at that time all the wells, that the servants of his father abraham had digged, filling them up with earth: insomuch that abimelech himself said to isaac: depart from us, for thou art become much mightier than we. so he departed and came to the torrent of gerara, to dwell there: and he digged again other wells, which the servants of his father abraham had digged, and which, after his death, the palestines had of old stopped up: and he called them by the same names by which his father before had called them. and they digged in the torrent, and found living water. but there also the herdsmen of gerara strove against the herdsmen of isaac, saying: it is our water. wherefore he called the name of the well, on occasion of that which had happened, calumny. and they digged also another; and for that they quarreled likewise, and he called the name of it, enmity. going forward from thence, he digged another well, for which they contended not: therefore he called the name thereof, latitude, saying: now hath the lord given us room, and made us to increase upon the earth. and he went up from that place to bersabee, where the lord appeared to him that same might, saying: i am the god of abraham thy father; do not fear, for i am with thee: i will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant abraham's sake. and he built there an altar: and called upon the name of the lord, and pitched his tent: and commanded his servants to dig a well. to which place when abimelech, and ochozath his friend, and phicol chief captain of his soldiers came from gerara, isaac said to them: why are ye come to me, a man whom you hate, and have thrust out from you? and they answered: we saw that the lord is with thee, and therefore we said: let there be an oath between us, and let us make a covenant, that thou do us no harm, as we on our part have touched nothing of thine, nor have done any thing to hurt thee: but with peace have sent thee away increased with the blessing of the lord. and he made them a feast, and after they had eaten and drunk: arising in the morning, they swore one to another: and isaac sent them away peaceably to their own home. and behold the same day the servants of isaac came, telling him of a well which they had digged, and saying: we have found water. whereupon he called it abundance: and the name of the city was called bersabee, even to this day. and esau being forty years old, married wives, judith the daughter of beeri the hethite, and basemath the daughter of elon of the same place. and they both offended the mind of isaac and rebecca.

now isaac was old, and his eyes were dim, and he could not see: and he called esau, his elder son, and said to him: my son? and he answered: here i am. and his father said to him: thou seest that i am old, and know not the day of my death. take thy arms, thy quiver, and bow, and go abroad: and when thou hast taken some thing by hunting, make me savoury meat thereof, as thou knowest i like, and bring it, that i may eat: and my soul may bless thee before i die. and when rebecca had heard this, and he was gone into the field to fulfill his father's commandment, she said to her son jacob: i heard thy father talking with esau thy brother, and saying to him: bring me of thy hunting, and make me meats that i may eat, and bless thee in the sight of the lord, before i die. now, therefore, my son, follow my counsel: and go thy way to the flock, bring me two kids of the best, that i may make of them meat for thy father, such as he gladly eateth: which when thou hast brought in, and he hath eaten, he may bless thee before he die. and he answered her: thou knowest that esau my brother is a hairy man, and i am smooth. if my father shall feel me, and perceive it, i fear lest he will think i would have mocked him, and i shall bring upon me a curse instead of a blessing. and his mother said to him: upon me be this curse, my son: only hear thou my voice, and go, fetch me the things which i have said. he went, and brought, and gave them to his mother. she dressed meats, such as she knew his father liked. and she put on him very good garments of esau, which she had at home with her: and the little skins of the kids she put about his hands, and covered the bare of his neck. and she gave him the savoury meat, and delivered him bread that she had baked. which when he had carried in, he said: my father? but he answered: i hear. who art thou, my son? and jacob said: i am esau thy firstborn: i have done as thou didst command me: arise, sit, and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless me. and isaac said to his son: how couldst thou find it so quickly, my son? and isaac said: come hither, that i may feel thee, my son, and may prove whether thou be my son esau, or not. he came near to his father, and when he had felt him, isaac said: the voice indeed is the voice of jacob; but the hands are the hands of esau. he said: art thou my son esau? he answered: i am. - - - then he said: bring me the meats of thy hunting, my son, that my soul may bless thee. and when they were brought, and he had eaten, he offered him wine also, which after he had drunk, he said to him: come near me, and give me a kiss, my son. he came near, and kissed him. and immediately as he smelled the fragrant smell of his garments, blessing him, he said: behold the smell of my son is as the smell of a plentiful field, which lord hath blessed. god give thee the dew of heaven, and of the fatness of the earth, abundance of corn and wine. and let peoples serve thee, and tribes worship thee: be thou lord of thy brethren, and let thy mother's children bow down before thee. cursed be he that curseth thee: and let him that blesseth thee be filled with blessings. isaac had scarce ended his words, when jacob being now gone out abroad, esau came, and brought in to his father meats made of what he had taken in hunting, saying: arise, my father, and eat of thy son's venison; that thy soul may bless me. and isaac said to him: why! who art thou? he answered: i am thy firstborn son esau. isaac was struck with fear, and astonished exceedingly: and wondering beyond what can be believed, said who is he then the even now brought me venison that he had taken, and i ate of all before thou camest? and i have blessed him, and he shall be blessed. esau having heard his father's words, roared out with a great cry: and being in a great consternation, said: bless me also, my father. and he said: thy brother came deceitfully and got thy blessing. but he said again: rightly is his name called jacob; for he hath supplanted me lo this second time: my first birthright he took away before, and now this second time he hath stolen away my blessing. and again he said to his father: hast thou not reserved me also a blessing? isaac answered: i have appointed him thy lord, and have made all his brethren his servants: i have established him with corn and wine, and after this, what shall i do more for thee, my son? and esau said to him: hast thou only one blessing, father? i beseech thee bless me also. and when he wept with a loud cry, isaac being moved, said to him: in the fat of the earth, and in the dew of heaven from above, shall thy blessing be. thou shalt live by the sword and shalt serve thy brother: and the time shall come, when thou shalt shake off and loose his yoke from thy neck. esau therefore always hated jacob for the blessing wherewith his father had blessed him: and he said in his heart: the days will come of the mourning of my father, and i will kill my brother jacob. these things were told to rebecca: and she sent and called jacob her son, and said to him: behold esau thy brother threateneth to kill thee. now therefore, my son, hear my voice: arise and flee to laban my brother to haran: and thou shalt dwell with him a few days, till wrath of thy brother be assuaged, and his indignation cease, and he forget the things thou hast done to him: afterwards i will send, and bring thee from thence hither. why shall i be deprived of both my sons in one day? and rebecca said to isaac: i am weary of my life because of the daughters of heth: if jacob take a wife of the stock of this land, i choose not to live.

and isaac called jacob, and blessed him, and charged him, saying: take not a wife of the stock of chanaan: but go, and take a journey to mesopotamia of syria, to the house of bathuel thy mother's father, and take thee a wife thence of the daughters of laban thy uncle. and god almighty bless thee, and make thee to increase, and multiply thee: that thou mayst be a multitude of people. and give the blessings of abraham to thee, and to thy seed after thee: that thou mayst possess the land of thy sojournment, which he promised to thy grandfather. and when isaac had sent him away, he took his journey and went to mesopotamia of syria to laban the son of bathuel the syrian, brother to rebecca his mother. and esau seeing that his father had blessed jacob, and had sent him into mesopotamia of syria, to marry a wife thence; and that after the blessing he had charged him, saying: thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of chanaan: and that jacob obeying his parents was gone into syria: experiencing also that his father was not well pleased with the daughters of chanaan: he went to ismael, and took to wife, besides them he had before, mabeleth the daughter of ismael, abraham's son, the sister of nabajoth. but jacob being departed from bersabee, went on to haran. and when he was come to a certain place, and would rest in it after sunset, he took of the stones that lay there, and putting under his head, slept in the same place. and he saw in his sleep a ladder standing upon the earth, and the top thereof touching heaven: the angels also of god ascending and descending by it; and the lord leaning upon the ladder, saying to him: i am the lord god of abraham thy father, and the god of isaac; the land, wherein thou sleepest, i will give to thee and to thy seed. and thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth: thou shalt spread abroad to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south: and in thee and thy seed all the tribes of the earth shall be blessed. and i will be thy keeper whithersoever thou goest, and will bring thee back into this land: neither will i leave thee, till i shall have accomplished all that i have said. and when jacob awaked out of sleep, he said: indeed the lord is in this place, and i knew it not. and trembling he said: how terrible is this place! this is no other but the house of god, and the gate of heaven. and jacob, arising in the morning, took the stone, which he had laid under his head, and set it up for a title, pouring oil upon the top of it. and he called the name of the city bethel, which before was called luz. and he made a vow, saying: if god shall be with me, and shall keep me in the way by which i walk, and shall give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, and i shall return prosperously to my father's house: the lord shall be my god: and this stone, which i have set up for a title, shall be called the house of god: and of all things that thou shalt give to me, i will offer tithes to thee.

then jacob went on in his journey, and came into the east country. and he saw a well in the field, and three flocks of sheep lying by it: for the beasts were watered out of it, and the mouth thereof was closed with a great stone. and the custom was, when all the sheep were gathered together to roll away the stone, and after the sheep were watered, to put it on the mouth of the well again. and he said to the shepherds: brethren, whence are you? they answered: of haran. and he asked them, saying: know you laban the son of nachor? they said: we know him. he said: is he in health? he is in health, say they: and behold rachel his daughter cometh with his flock. and jacob said: there is yet much day remaining, neither is it time to bring the flocks into the folds again: first give the sheep drink, and so lead them back to feed. they answered: we cannot, till all the cattle be gathered together, and we remove the stone from the well's mouth, that we may water the flocks. they were yet speaking, and behold rachel came with her father's sheep: for she fed the flock. and when jacob saw her, and knew her to be his cousin-german, and that they were the sheep of laban, his uncle: he removed the stone wherewith the well was closed. and having watered the flock, he kissed her: and lifting up his voice, wept. and he told her that he was her father's brother, and the son of rebecca: but she went in haste and told her father. who, when he heard that jacob his sister's son was come, ran forth to meet him; and embracing him, and heartily kissing him, brought him into his house. and when he had heard the causes of his journey, he answered: thou art my bone and my flesh. and after the days of one month were expired, he said to him: because thou art my brother, shalt thou serve me without wages? tell me what wages thou wilt have. now he had two daughters, the name of the elder was lia: and the younger was called richel. but lia was bleared eyed: rachel was well favoured, and of a beautiful countenance. and jacob being in love with her, said: i will serve thee seven years for rachel thy younger daughter. laban answered: it is better that i give her thee than to another man; stay with me. so jacob served seven years for rachel: and they seemed but a few days, because of the greatness of his love. and he said to laban: give me my wife; for now the time is fulfilled, that i may go in unto her. and he, having invited a great number of his friends to the feast, made the marriage. and at night he brought in lia his daughter to him, giving his daughter a handmaid, named zalpha. now when jacob had gone in to her according to custom when morning was come he saw it was lia: and he said to his father in law: what is it that thou didst mean to do? did not i serve thee for rachel? why hast thou deceived me? laban answered: it is not the custom in this place, to give the younger in marriage first. make up the week of days of this match: and i will give thee her also, for the service that thou shalt render me other seven years. he yielded to his pleasure: and after the week was past, he married rachel: to whom her father gave bala for her servant. and having at length obtained the marriage he wished for, he preferred the love of the latter before the former, and served with him other seven years. and the lord seeing that he despised lia, opened her womb, but her sister remained barren. and she conceived and bore a son, and called his name ruben, saying: the lord saw my affliction: now my husband will love me. and again she conceived and bore a son, and said: because the lord heard that i was despised, he hath given this also to me: and she called his name simeon. and she conceived the third time, and bore another son: and said: now also my husband will be joined to me, because i have borne him three sons: and therefore she called his name levi. the fourth time she conceived and bore a son, and said: now will i praise the lord: and for this she called him juda. and she left bearing.

and rachel, seeing herself without children, envied her sister, and said to her husband: give me children, otherwise i shall die. and jacob being angry with her, answered: am i as god, who hath deprived thee of the fruit of thy womb? but she said: i have here my servant bala: go in unto her, that she may bear upon my knees, and i may have children by her. and she gave him bala in marriage: who, when her husband had gone in unto her, conceived and bore a son. and rachel said: the lord hath judged for me, and hath heard my voice, giving me a son, and therefore she called his name dan. and again bala conceived and bore another, for whom rachel said: god hath compared me with my sister, and i have prevailed: and she called him nephtali. lia, perceiving that she had left off bearing, gave zelpha her handmaid to her husband. and when she had conceived and brought forth a son, she said: happily. and therefore called his name gad. zelpha also bore another. and lia said: this is for my happiness: for women will call me blessed. therefore she called him aser. and ruben, going out in the time of the wheat harvest into the field, found mandrakes: which he brought to his mother lia. and rachel said: give me part of thy son's mandrakes. she answered: dost thou think it a small matter, that thou hast taken my husband from me, unless thou take also my son's mandrakes? rachel said: he shall sleep with thee this night, for thy son's mandrakes. and when jacob returned at even from the field, lia went out to meet him, and said: thou shalt come in unto me, because i have hired thee for my son's mandrakes. and he slept with her that night. and god heard her prayers: and she conceived and bore the fifth son, and said: god hath given me a reward, because i gave my handmaid to my husband. and she called his name issachar. and lia conceived again, and bore the sixth son, and said: god hath endowed me with a good dowry: this turn also my husband will be with me, because i have borne him six sons: and therefore she called his name zabulon. after whom she bore a daughter, named diana. the lord also remembering rachel, heard her, and opened her womb. and she conceived, and bore a son, saying: god hath taken my reproach. and she called his name joseph, saying: the lord give me also another son. and when joseph was born, jacob said to his father in law: send me away that i may return into my country, and to my land. give me my wives, and my children, for whom i have served thee, that i may depart: thou knowest the service that i have rendered thee. laban said to him: let me find favour in thy sight: i have learned by experience, that god hath blessed me for thy sake. appoint thy wages which i shall give thee. but he answered: thou knowest how i have served thee, and how great thy possession hath been in my hands. thou hadst but little before i came to thee, and now thou art become rich: and the lord hath blessed thee at my coming. it is reasonable therefore that i should now provide also for my own house. and laban said: what shall i give thee? but he said: i require nothing: but if thou wilt do what i demand, i will feed, and keep thy sheep again. go round through all thy flocks, and separate all the sheep of divers colours, and speckled: and all that is brown and spotted, and of divers colours, as well among the sheep, as among the goats, shall be my wages. and my justice shall answer for me to morrow before thee when the time of the bargain shall come: and all that is not of divers colours, and spotted, and brown, as well among the sheep as among the goats, shall accuse me of theft. and laban said: i like well what thou demandest. and he separated the name day the she goats, and the sheep, and the he goats, and the rams of divers colours, and spotted: and all the flock of one colour, that is, of white and black fleece, he delivered into the hands of his sons. and he set the space of three days' journey betwixt himself and his son in law, who fed the rest of his flock. and jacob took green robs of poplar, and of almond, and of place trees, and pilld them in part: so when the bark was taken off, in the parts that were pilld, there appeared whiteness: but the parts that were whole remained green: and by this means the colour was divers. and he put them in the troughs, where the water was poured out: that when the flocks should come to drink, they might have the rods before their eyes, and in the sight of them might conceive. and it came to pass that in the very heat of coition, the sheep beheld the rods, and brought forth spotted, and of divers colours, and speckled. and jacob separated the flock, and put the rods in the troughs before the eyes of the rams: and all the white and the black were laban's: and the rest were jacob's, when the flocks were separated one from the other. so when the ewes went first to ram, jacob put the rods in the roughs of water before the eyes of the rams, and of the ewes, that they might conceive while they were looking upon them: but when the latter coming was, and the last conceiving, he did not put them. and those that were late ward, become laban's: and they of the first time, jacob's. and the man was enriched exceedingly, and he had many flocks, maid servants and men servants, camels and asses.

but after that he heard the words of the sons of laban, saying: jacob hath taken away all that was our father's, and being enriched by his substance is become great: and perceiving also that laban's countenance was not towards him as yesterday and the other day, especially the lord saying to him: return into the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred, and i will be with thee. he sent, and called rachel and lia into the field, where he fed the flocks, and said to them: i see your father's countenance is not towards me as yesterday and the other day: but the god of my father hath been with me. and you know that i have served your father to the utmost of my power. yea, your father also hath overreached me, and hath changes my wages ten times: and yet god hath not suffered him to hurt me. if at any time he said: the speckled shall be thy wages: all the sheep brought forth speckled: but when he said on the contrary: thou shalt take all the white ones for thy wages: all the flocks brought forth white ones. and god hath taken your father's substance, and given it to me. for after that time came of the ewes conceiving, i lifted up my eyes, and saw in my sleep that the males which leaped upon the females were of diverse colors, and spotted, and speckled. and the angel of god said to me in my sleep: jacob? and i answered: here i am. and he said: lift up thy eyes, and see that all the males leaping upon the females, are of divers colors, spotted, and speckled. for i have seen all that laban hath done to thee. i am the god of bethel, where thou didst anoint the stone, and make a vow to me. now therefore arise, and go out of this land, and return into thy native country. and rachel and lia answered: have we anything left among the goods and inheritance of our father's house? hath he not counted us as strangers and sold us, and eaten up the price of us? but god hath taken our father's riches, and delivered them to us, and to our children: wherefore do all that god hath commanded thee. then jacob rose up, and having set his children and wives upon camels, went his way. and he took all his substance, and flocks, and whatsoever he had gotten in mesopotamia, and went forward to isaac his father to the land of chanaan. at that time laban was gone to shear his sheep, and rachel stole away her father's idols. and jacob would not confess to his father in law that he was flying away. and when he was gone, together with all that belonged to him, and having passed the river, was going on towards mount galaad, it was told laban on the third day that jacob fled. and he took his brethren with him, and pursued after him seven days; and overtook him in the mount of galaad. and he saw in a dream god saying to him: take heed thou speak not any thing harshly against jacob. now jacob had pitched his tent in the mountain: and when he with his brethren had overtaken him, he pitched his tent in the same mount of galaad. and he said to jacob: why hast thou done thus, to carry away, without my knowledge, my daughters, as captives taken with the sword. why wouldst thou run away privately and not acquaint me, that i might have brought thee on the way with joy, and with songs, and with timbrels, and with harps? thou hast not suffered me to kiss my sons and daughters: thou hast done foolishly: and now, indeed, it is in my power to return thee evil: but the god of your father said to me yesterday: take heed thou speak not any things harshly against jacob. suppose thou didst desire to go to thy friends, and hadst a longing after thy father's house: why hast thou stolen away my gods? jacob answered: that i departed unknown to thee, it was for fear lest thou wouldst take away thy daughters by force. but whereas thou chargest me with theft: with whomsoever thou shalt find thy gods, let him be slain before our brethren. search, and if thou find any of thy things with me, take them away. now when he said this, he knew not that rachel had stolen the idols. so laban went into the tent of jacob, and of lia, and of both the handmaids, and found them not. and when he was entered into rachel's tent, she in haste hid the idols under the camel's furniture, and sat upon them: and when he had searched all the tent, and found nothing, she said: let not my lord be angry that i cannot rise up before thee, because it has now happened to me, according to the custom of women, so his careful search was in vain. and jacob being angry, said in a chiding manner: for what fault of mine, and for what offense on my part hast thou so hotly pursued me, and searched all my household stuff? what hast thou found of all the substance of thy house? lay it here before my brethren, and thy brethren, and let them judge between me and thee. have i therefore been with thee twenty years? thy ewes and goats were not barren, the rams of thy flocks i did not eat: neither did i show thee that which the beast had torn, i made good all the damage: whatsoever was lost by theft, thou didst exact it of me: day and night was i parched with heat, and with frost, and sleep departed from my eyes. and in this manner have i served thee in thy house twenty years, fourteen for thy daughters, and six for thy flocks: thou hast changed also my wages ten times. unless the god of my father abraham, and the fear of isaac had stood by me, peradventure now thou hadst sent me away naked: god beheld my affliction and the labour of my hands, and rebuked thee yesterday. laban answered him: the daughters are mine and the children, and thy flocks, and all things that thou seest are mine: what can i do to my children, and grandchildren? come therefore, let us enter into a league: that it may be for a testimony between me and thee. and jacob took a stone, and set it up for a title: and he said to his brethren: bring hither stones. and they gathering stones together, made a heap, and they ate upon it. and laban called it the witness heap: and jacob, the hillock of testimony: each of them according to the propriety of his language. and laban said: this heap shall be a witness between me and thee this day, and therefore the name thereof was called galaad, that is, the witness heap. the lord behold and judge between us when we shall be gone one from the other. if thou afflict my daughters, and if thou bring in other wives over them: none is witness of our speech but god, who is present and beholdeth. and he said again to jacob: behold, this heap, and the stone which i have set up between me and thee, shall be a witness: this heap, i say, and the stone, be they for a testimony, if either i shall pass beyond it going towards thee, or thou shalt pass beyond it, thinking harm to me. the god of abraham, and the god of nathan, the god of their father, judge between us. and jacob swore by the fear of his father isaac. and after he had offered sacrifices in the mountain, he called his brethren to eat bread. and when they had eaten, they lodged there: but laban arose in the night, and kissed his sons, and daughters, and blessed them: and returned to his place.

jacob also went on the journey he had begun: and the angels of god met him. and when he saw them, he said: these are the camps of god, and he called the name of that place mahanaïm, that is, camps. and he sent messengers before him to esau his brother to the land of seir to the country of edom: and he commanded them, saying: thus shall ye speak to my lord esau: thus saith thy brother jacob: i have sojourned with laban, and have been with him until this day. i have oxen, and asses, and sheep, and menservants, and womenservants: and now i send a message to my lord, that i may find favor in thy sight. and the messengers returned to jacob, saying: we came to esau thy brother, and behold he cometh with speed to meet thee with four hundred men. then jacob was greatly afraid; and in his fear divided the people that was with him, and the flocks, and the sheep, and the oxen, and the camels, into two companies, saying: if esau come to one company and destroy it, the other company that is left shall escape. and jacob said: o god of my father abraham, and god of my father isaac, o lord, who saidst to me: return to thy land and to the place of thy birth, and i will do well for thee, i am not worthy of the least of all thy mercies, and of thy truth which thou hast fulfilled to thy servant. with my staff i passed over this jordan; and now i return with two companies. deliver me from the hand of my brother esau, for i am greatly afraid of him: lest perhaps he come, and kill the mother with the children. thou didst say that thou wouldst do well by me, and multiply my seed like the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for the multitude. and when he had slept there that night, he set apart, of the things which he had, presents for his brother esau. two hundred she goats, twenty he goats, two hundred ewes, and twenty rams, thirty milch camels with their colts, forty kine, and twenty bulls, twenty she asses, and ten of their foals. and he sent them by the hands of his servants, every drove by itself, and he said to his servants: go before me, and let there be a space between drove and drove. and he commanded the first, saying: if thou meet my brother esau, and he ask thee: whose art thou? or whither goest thou? or whose are these before thee? thou shalt answer: thy servant jacob's: he hath sent them as a present to my lord esau: and he cometh after us. in like manner he commanded the second and the third, and all that followed with the droves, saying: speak ye the same words to esau, when ye find him. and ye shall add: thy servant jacob himself also followeth after us: for he said: i will appease him with the presents that go before, and afterwards i will see him, perhaps he will be gracious to me. so the presents went before him, but himself lodged that night in the camp. and rising early he took his two wives, and his two handmaids, with his eleven sons, and passed over the ford of jacob. and when all things were brought over that belonged to him, he remained alone: and behold a man wrestled with him till morning. and when he saw that he could not overcome him, he touched the sinew of his thigh, and forthwith it shrank. and he said to him: let me go, for it is break of day. he answered: i will not let thee go except thou bless me. and he said: what is thy name? he answered: jacob. but he said: thy name shall not be called jacob, but israel: for if thou hast been strong against god, how much more shalt thou prevail against men? jacob asked him, tell me by what name art thou called? he answered: why dost thou ask my name? and he blessed him in the same place. and jacob called the name of the place phanuel, saying: i have seen god face to face, and my soul has been saved. and immediately the sun rose upon him, after he was past phanuel; but he halted on his foot. therefore the children of israel, unto this day, eat not the sinew, that shrank in jacob's thigh: because he touched the sinew of his thigh and it shrank.

and jacob lifting up his eyes, saw esau coming, and with him four hundred men: and he divided the children of lia, and of rachel, and of the two handmaids: and he put both the handmaids and their children foremost: and lia and her children in the second place: and rachel and joseph last. and he went forward and bowed down with his face to the ground seven times until his brother came near. then esau ran to meet his brother, and embraced him: and clasping him fast about the neck, and kissing him, wept. and lifting up his eyes, he saw the women and their children, and said: what mean these? and do they belong to thee? he answered: they are the children which god hath given to me thy servant. then the handmaids and their children came near, and bowed themselves. lia also with her children came near, and bowed down in like manner, and last of all joseph and rachel bowed down. and esau said: what are the droves that i met? he answered: that i might find favor before my lord. but he said: i have plenty, my brother, keep what is thine for thyself. and jacob said: do not so i beseech thee, but if i have found favor in thy eyes, receive a little present at my hands: for i have seen thy face, as if i should have seen the countenance of god: be gracious to me, and take the blessing, which i have brought thee, and which god hath given me, who giveth all things. he took it with much ado at his brother's earnest pressing him, and said: let us go on together, and i will accompany thee in thy journey. and jacob said: my lord, thou knowest that i have with me tender children, and sheep, and kine with young: which if i should cause to be overdriven, in one day all the flocks will die. may it please my lord to go before his servant: and i will follow softly after him, as i shall see my children to be able, until i come to my lord in seir. esau answered: i beseech thee, that some of the people at least, who are with me, may stay to accompany thee in the way. and he said: there is no necessity: i want nothing else but only to find favor, my lord, in thy sight. so esau returned, that day, the way that he came, to seir. and jacob came to sooth: where having built a house, and pitched tents, he called the name of the place sooth, that is, tents. and he passed over to salem, a city of the sichemites, which is in the land of chanaan, after he returned from mesopotamia of syria: and he dwelt by the town: and he bought that part of the field, in which he pitched his tents, of the children of hemor, the father of sichem for a hundred lambs. and raising an altar there, he invoked upon it the most mighty god of israel.

and dina the daughter of lia went out to see the women of that country. and when sichem the son of hemor the hevite, the prince of that land, saw her, he was in love with her: and took her away, and lay with her, ravishing the virgin. and his soul was fast knit unto her, and whereas she was sad, he comforted her with sweet words. and going to hemor his father, he said: get me this damsel to wife. but when jacob had heard this, his sons being absent, and employed in feeding the cattle, he held his peace till they came back. and when hemor the father of sicheim was come out to speak to jacob, behold his sons came from the field: and hearing what had passed, they were exceeding angry, because he had done a foul thing in israel, and committed an unlawful act, in ravishing jacob's daughter, and hemor spoke to them: the soul of my son sicheim has a longing for your daughter: give her him to wife: and let us contract marriages one with another: give us your daughters and take you our daughters, and dwell with us: the land is at your command, till, trade, and possess it. sicheim also said to her father and to her brethren: let me find favor in your sight: and whatsoever you shall appoint i will give. raise the dowry, and ask gifts, and i will gladly give what you shall demand: only give me this damsel to wife. the sons of jacob answered sicheim and his father deceitfully, being enraged at the deflowering of their sister: we cannot do what you demand, nor give our sister to one that is uncircumcised, which with us is unlawful and abominable. but in this way may we be allied with you, if you will be like us, and all the male sex among you be circumcised: then will we mutually give and take your daughters, and ours: and we will dwell with you, and will be one people: but if you will not be circumcised, we will take our daughter and depart: their offer pleased hemor, and sicheim his son: and the young man made no delay, but forthwith fulfilled what was required, for he loved the damsel exceedingly, and he was the greatest man in all his father's house. and going into the gate of the city they spoke to the people: these men are peaceable and willing to dwell with us: let them trade in the land, and till it, which being large and wide wanteth men to till it: we shall take their daughters for wives, and we will give them ours. one thing there is for which so great a good is deferred: we must circumcise every male among us, following the manner of the nation. and their substance, and cattle, and all that they possess, shall be ours: only in this let us condescend, and by dwelling together, we shall make one people. and they all agreed, and circumcised all the males. and behold the third day, when the pain of the wound was greatest, two of the sons of jacob, simeon and levi, the brothers of dina, taking their swords, entered boldly into the city, and slew all the men: and they killed also hemor and sicheim, and took away their sister dina, out of sicheim's house. and when they were gone out, the other sons of jacob came upon the slain; and plundered the city in revenge of the rape. and they took their sheep and their herds and their asses, wasting all they had in their houses and in the fields. and their children and wives took captive, and when they had boldly perpetrated these things, jacob said to simeon and levi: you have troubled me, and made me hateful to the chanaanites and pherezites, the inhabitants of this land: we are few: they will gather themselves together and kill me; and both i, and my house, shall be destroyed. they answered: should they abuse our sister as a strumpet?

in the meantime god said to jacob: arise, and go up to bethel, and dwell there, and make there an altar to god, who appeared to thee when thou didst flee from esau thy brother. and jacob having called together all his household, said: cast away the strange gods that are among you, and be cleansed and change your garments. arise, and let us go up to bethel, that we may make there an altar to god: who heard me in the day of my affliction, and accompanied me in my journey. so they gave him all the strange gods they had, and the earrings which were in their ears: and he buried them under the turpentine tree, that is behind the city of sicheim. and when they were departed, the terror of god fell upon all the cities round about, and they durst not pursue after them as they went away. and jacob came to luz, which is in the land of chanaan, surnamed bethel: he and all the people that were with him. and he built there an altar, and called the name of that place, the house of god: for there god appeared to him when he fled from his brother. at the same time debora the nurse of rebecca died, and was buried at the foot of bethel under an oak: and the name of that place was called, the oak of weeping. and god appeared again to jacob, after he returned from mesopotamia of syria, and he blessed him, saying: thou shalt not be called any more jacob, but israel shall be thy name. and he called him israel. and said to him: i am god almighty, increase thou and be multiplied. nations and peoples of nations shall be from thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins. and the land which i gave to abraham and isaac, i will give to thee, and to thy seed after thee. and he departed from him. but he set up a monument of stone, in the place where god had spoken to him: pouring drink offerings upon it, and pouring oil thereon: and calling the name of that place bethel. and going forth from thence, he came in the springtime to the land which leadeth to ephrata: wherein when rachel was in travail, by reason of her hard labor she began to be in danger, and the midwife said to her: fear not, for thou shalt have this son also. and when her soul was departing for pain, and death was now at hand, she called the name of her son benoni, that is, the son of my pain: but his father called him benjamin, that is, the son of the right hand. so rachel died, and was buried in the highway that leadeth to ephrata, that is bethlehem. and jacob erected a pillar over her sepulcher: this is the pillar of rachel's monument, to this day. departing thence, he pitched his tent beyond the flock tower. and when he dwelt in that country, ruben went, and slept with bala, the concubine of his father: which he was not ignorant of. now the sons of jacob were twelve. the sons of lia: ruben the first-born, and simeon, and levi, and juda, and issachar, and zebulon. the sons of rachel: joseph and benjamin. the sons of bala, rachel's handmaid: dan and naphthali. the sons of zelpha, lia's handmaid: gad and aser: these are the sons of jacob, that were born to him in mesopotamia of syria. and he came to isaac his father in mambre, the city of arbee, this is hebron: wherein abraham and isaac sojourned. and the days of isaac were a hundred and eighty years. and being spent with age he died, and was gathered to his people, being old and full of days: and his sons esau and jacob buried him.

and these are the generations of esau, the same is edom. esau took wives of the daughters of chanaan: ada the daughter of elon the hethite, and oolibama the daughter of ana, the daughter of sebeon the hevite: and basemath the daughter of ismael, sister of naba-joth. and ada bore eliphaz: basemath bore rahuel: oolibama bore jehus and ihelon and core. these are the sons of esau, that were born to him in the land of chanaan. and esau took his wives and his sons and daughters, and every soul of his house, and his substance, and cattle, and all that he was able to acquire in the land of chanaan: and went into another country, and departed from his brother jacob. for they were exceeding rich, and could not dwell together: neither was the land in which they sojourned able to bear them, for the multitude of their flocks. and esau dwelt in mount seir: he is edom. and these are the generations of esau the father of edom in mount seir, and these the names of his sons: eliphaz the son of ada the wife of esau: and rahnel the son of basemath his wife. and eliphaz had sons: theman, omar, sepho, and gatham, and cenee. and thamna was the concubine of eliphaz the son of esau: and she bore him amalech. these are the sons of ada the wife of esau. and the sons of rahuel were nahath and zara, samma and meza. these were the sons of basemath the wife of esau. and these were the sons of oolibama, the daughter of ana, the daughter of sebeon, the wife of esau, whom she bore to him, jehus, and ihelon, and core. these were dukes of the sons of esau: the sons of eliphaz the first-born of esau: duke theman, duke omar, duke sepho, duke cenez, duke core, duke gatham, duke amalech: these are the sons of eliphaz, in the land of edom, and these the bone of ada. and these were the sons of rahuel, the son of esau: duke nahath, duke zara, duke samma, duke meza. and these are the dukes of rahuel, in the land of edom: these the sons of basemath the wife of esau. and these the sons of oolibama the wife of esau: duke jehus, duke ihelon, duke core. these are the dukes of oolibama, the daughter of ana, and wife of esau. these are the sons of esau, and these the dukes of them: the same is edom. these are the sons of seir the horrite, the inhabitants of the land: lotan, and sobal, and sebeon, and ana, and dison, and eser, and disan. these are dukes of the horrites, the sons of seir in the land of edom. and lotan had sons: hori and heman. and the sister of lotan was thamna. and these the sons of sobal: alvan and manahat, and ebal, and sepho, and oman. and these the sons of sebeon: aia and ana. this is ana that found the hot waters in the wilderness, when he fed the asses of sebeon his father: and he had a son dison, and a daughter oolibama. and these were the sons of dison: hamdan, and eseban, and jethram, and charan. these also were the sons of eser: balaan, and zavan, and acan. and disan had sons: hus, and aram. these were dukes of the horrites: duke lotan, duke sobal, duke sebeon, duke ana, duke dison, duke eser, duke disan: these were dukes of the horrites that ruled in the land of seir. and the kings that ruled in the land of edom, before the children of israel had a king were these: bela the son of beer, and the name of his city denaba. and bela died, and jobab the son of zara of bosra reigned in his stead. and when jobab was dead, husam of the land of the themanites reigned in his stead. and after his death, adad the son of badad reigned in his stead, who defeated the medianites in the country of moab: and the name of his city was avith. and when adad was dead, there reigned in his stead, semla of masreca. and he being dead, saul of the river rohoboth, reigned in his stead. and when he also was dead, balanan the son of achobor succeeded to the kingdom. this man also being dead, adar reigned in his place, and the name of his city was phau: and his wife was called meetabel, the daughter of matred, daughter of mezaab. and these are the names of the dukes of esau in their kindreds, and places, and callings: duke thamna, duke alva, duke jetheth, duke oolibama, duke ela, duke phinon, duke cenez, duke theman, duke mabsar, duke magdiel, duke hiram: these are the dukes of edom dwelling in the land of their government; the same is esau the father of the edomites.

and jacob dwelt in the land of chanaan wherein his father sojourned. and these are his generations: joseph, when he was sixteen years old, was feeding the dock with his brethren, being but a boy: and he was with the sons of and of zelpa his father's wives: and he accused his brethren to his father of a most wicked crime. now israel loved joseph above all his sons, because he had him in his old age: and he made him a coat of divers colours. and his brethren seeing that he was loved by his father, more than all his sons, hated him, and could not speak peaceably to him. now it fell out also that he told his brethren a dream, that he had dreamed: which occasioned them to hate him the more. and he said to them: hear my dream which i dreamed. i thought we were binding sheaves in the field: and my sheaf arose as it were, end stood, and your sheaves standing about, bowed down before my sheaf. his brethren answered: shalt thou be our king? or shall we be subject to thy dominion? therefore this matter of his dreams and words ministered nourishment to their envy and hatred. he dreamed also another dream, which he told his brethren, saying: i saw in a dream, as it were the sun, and the moon, and eleven stars worshipping me. and when he had told this to his father and brethren, his father rebuked him, and said: what meaneth this dream that thou hast dreamed? shall i and thy mother, and thy brethren worship thee upon the earth? his brethren therefore envied him: but his father considered the thing with himself. and when his brethren abode in sicheem feeding their father's docks, israel said to him

: thy brethren feed the sheep in sichem: come, i will send thee to them. and when he answered: i am ready: he said to him: go, and see if all things be well with thy brethren, and the cattle: and bring me word again what is doing. so being sent from the vale of hebron, he came to sichem: and a man found him there wandering in the field, and asked what he sought. but he answered: i seek my brethren; tell me where they feed the docks. and the man said to him: they are departed from this place: for i heard them say: let us go to dothain. and joseph went forward after his brethren, and found them in dothain. and when they saw him afar off, before he came nigh them, they thought to kill him. and said one to another: behold the dreamer cometh. come, let us kill him, and cast him into some old pit: and we will say: some evil beast hath devoured him: and then it shall appear what his dreams avail him: and ruben hearing this, endeavoured to deliver him out of their hands, and said: do not take away his life, nor shed his blood: but cast him into this pit, that is in the wilderness, and keep your hands harmless: now he said this, being desirous to deliver him out of their hands and to restore him to his father. and as soon as he came to his brethren, they forthwith stript him of his outside coat, that was of divers colours: and cast him into an old pit, where there was no water. and sitting down to eat bread, they saw some ismaelites on their way coming from calaad, with their camels, carrying spices, and balm, and myrrh to egypt. and juda said to his brethren: what will it profit us to kill our brother, and conceal his blood? it is better that he be sold to the ismaelites, and that our hands be not defiled: for he is our brother and our flesh. his brethren agreed to his words. and when the madianite merchants passed by, they drew him out of the pit, and sold him to the ismaelites, for twenty pieces of silver: and they led him into egypt. and ruben, returning to the pit, found not the boy: and rending his garments he went to his brethren, and said: the boy doth not appear and whither shall i go? and they took his coat, and dipped it in the blood of a kid, which they had killed: sending some to carry it to their father, and to say: this we have found: see whether it be thy son's coat, or not. and the father acknowledging it, said: it is my son's coat, an evil wild beast hath eaten him, a beast hath devoured joseph. and tearing his garments, he put an sackcloth, mourning for his son a long time. and alibis children being gathered together to comfort their father in his sorrow, he would not receive comfort, but said: i will go down to my son into hell, mourning. and whilst he continued weeping, the madianites sold joseph in egypt to putiphar, an eunuch of pharao, captain of the soldiers.

at that time juda went down from his brethren, and turned in to a certain odollamite, named hiras. and he saw there the daughter of a man of chanaan, called sue: and taking her to wife, he went in unto her. and she conceived, and bore a son, and called his name her. and conceiving again, she bore a son, and called him onan. she bore also a third: whom she called sela. after whose birth, she ceased to bear any more. and juda took a wife for her his firstborn, whose name was thamar. and her, the firstborn of juda, was wicked in the sight of the lord: and was slain by him. juda, therefore add to onan his son: go in to thy brother's wife and marry her, that thou mayst raise seed to thy brother. he knowing that the children should not be his, when he went in to his brother's wife, spilled his seed upon the ground, lest children should be born in his brother's name. and therefore the lord slew him, because he did a detestable thing. wherefore juda said to thamar his daughter in law: remain a widow in thy father's house, till sela my son grow up: for he was afraid lest he also might die, as his brethren did. she went her way and dwelt in her father's house. and after many days were past, the daughter of sue the wife of juda died: and when he had taken comfort after his mourning, he went up to thannas, to the shearers of his sheep, he and hiras the odollamite the shepherd of his flock. and it was told thamar that her father in law was come up to thannas to shear his sheep. and she put off the garments of her widowhood, and took a veil: and changing her dress, sat in the cross way, that leadeth to thannas: because sela was grown up, and she had not been married to him. when juda saw her, he thought she was a harlot: for she had covered her face, lest she should be known. and going to her, he said: suffer me to lie with thee: for he knew her not to be his daughter in law. and she answered: what wilt thou give me to enjoy my company? he said: i will send thee a kid out of the flock. and when she said again: i will suffer what thou wilt, if thou give a pledge, till thou send what thou promisest, juda said: what wilt thou have for a pledge? she answered: thy ring and bracelet, and the staff which thou holdest in thy hand. the woman therefore at one copulation conceived. and she arose and went her way: and putting off the apparel which she had taken, put on the garments of her widowhood. and juda sent a kid by his shepherd, the odollamite, that he might receive the pledge again, which he had given to the woman: but he, not finding her, asked the men of that place: where is the woman that sat in the cross way? and when they all made answer: there was no harlot in this place, he returned to juda, and said to him: i have not found her; moreover the men of that place said to me, that there never sat a harlot there. juda said: let her take it to herself; surely she cannot charge us with a lie: i sent the kid which i promised: and thou didst not find her. and behold after three months they told a lie, saying: thamar, thy daughter in law hath played the harlot, and she appeareth to have a big belly. and juda said: bring her out that she may be burnt. but when she was led to execution, she sent to her father in law, saying: by the man, to whom these things belong, i am with child. see whose ring, and bracelet, and staff this is. but he acknowledging the gifts, said: she is juster than i: because i did not give her to sela, my son. however, he knew her no more. and when she was ready to be brought to bed, there appeared twins in her womb: and in the very delivery of the infants, one put forth a hand, whereon the midwife tied a scarlet thread, saying: this shall come forth the first. but he drawing back his hand, the other came forth: and the woman said: why is the partition divided for thee? and therefore called his name phares. afterwards his brother came out, on whose hand was the scarlet thread: and she called him zara.

and joseph was brought into egypt, and putiphar an eunuch of pharao, chief captain of the army, an egyptian, bought him of the ismaelites, by whom he was brought. and the lord was with him, and he was a prosperous man in all things: and he dwelt in his master's house, who knew very well that the lord was with him, and made all that he did to prosper in his hand. and joseph found favour in the sight of his master, and ministered to him: and being set over all by him, he governed the house committed to him, and all things that were delivered to him: and the lord blessed the house of the egyptian for joseph's sake, and multiplied all his substance, both at home, and in the fields. neither knew he any other thing, but the bread which he ate. and joseph was of a beautiful countenance, and comely to behold. and after many days his mistress cast her eyes on joseph, and said: lie with me. but he, in no wise consenting to that wicked act, said to her: behold, my master hath delivered all things to me, and knoweth not what he hath in his own house: neither is there any thing which is hot in my power, or that he hath not delivered to me, but thee, who art his wife: how then can i do this wicked thing, and i sin against my god? with such words as these day by day, both the woman was importunate with the young man, and he refused the adultery. now it happened on it certain day, that joseph went into the house, and was doing some business without any, man with him: and she catching the skirt of his garment, said: lie with me. but he leaving the garment in her hand, fled, and went out. and when the woman saw the garment in her hands, and herself disregarded, she called to her the men of her house, and said to them: see, he hath brought in a hebrew, to abuse us: he came in to me, to lie with me: and when i cried out, and he heard my voice, he left the garment that i held, and got him out. for a proof therefore of her fidelity, she kept the garment, and shewed it to her husband when he returned home: and said: the hebrew servant, whom thou best brought, came to me to abuse me. and when he heard me cry, he left the garment which i held, and fled out. his master hearing these things, and giving too much credit to his wife's words, was very angry. and cast joseph into the prison, where the king's prisoners were kept, and he was there shut up. but the lord was with joseph and having mercy upon him gave him favour in the sight of the chief keeper of the prison: who delivered into his hand all the prisoners that were kept in custody: and whatsoever was done was under him. neither did he himself know any thing, having committed all things to him: for the lord was with him, and made all that he did to prosper.

after this, it came to pass, that two eunuchs, the butler and the baker of the king of egypt, offended their lord. and pharao being angry with them (now the one was chief butler, the other chief baker) he sent them to the prison of the commander of the soldiers, in which joseph also was prisoner, but the keeper of the prison delivered them to joseph, and he served them. some little time passed, and they were kept in custody. and they both dreamed a dream the same night, according to the interpretation agreeing to themselves: and when joseph was come in to them in the morning, and saw them sad, he asked them, saying: why is your countenance sadder to day than usual? they answered: we have dreamed a dream, and there is nobody to interpret it to us. and joseph said to them: both not interpretation belong to god? tell me what you have dreamed. the chief butler first told his dream: i saw before me a vine, on which were three branches, which by little and little sent out buds, and after the blossoms brought forth ripe grapes: and the cup of pharao was in my hand: and i took the grapes, and pressed them into the cup which i held, and i gave the cup to pharao. joseph answered: this is the interpretation of the dream: the three branches are yet three days: after which pharao will remember thy service, and will restore thee to thy former place: and thou shalt present him the cup according to thy office, as before thou wast wont to do. only remember me, when it shall be well with thee, and do me this kindness: to put pharao in mind to take me out of this prison: for i was stolen away out of the land i of the hebrews, and here without any fault was cast into the dungeon. the chief baker seeing that he had wisely interpreted the dream, said: i also dreamed a dream, that i bed three baskets of meal upon my head: and that in one basket which was uppermost, i carried all meats that are made by the art of baking, and that the birds ate out of it. joseph answered: this is the interpretation of the dream: the three baskets are yet three days: after which pharao will take thy hand from thee, and hang thee on a cross, and the birds shall tear thy flesh. the third day after this was the birthday of pharao: and he made a great feast for his servants, and at the banquet remembered the chief butler, and the chief baker. and he restored the one to his place to present him the cup: the other he hanged on a gibbet, that the truth of the interpreter might be shewn. but the chief butler, when things prospered with him, forgot his interpreter.

after two years pharao had a dream. he thought he stood by the river, out of which came up seven kine, very beautiful and fat: and they fed in marshy places. other seven also came up out of the river, ill favoured, and leanfleshed: and they fed on the very bank of the river, in green places: and they devoured them, whose bodies were very beautiful and well conditioned. so pharao awoke. he slept again, and dreamed another dream: seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk full and fair: then seven other ears sprung up thin and blasted, and devoured all the beauty of the former. pharao awaked after his rest: and when morning was come, being struck with fear, he sent to all the interpreters of egypt, and to all the wise men: and they being called for, he told them his dream, and there was not any one that could interpret it. then at length the chief butler remembering, said: i confess my sin: the king being angry with his servants, commanded me and the chief baker to be cast into the prison of the captain of the soldiers: where in one night both of us dreamed a dream foreboding things to come. there was there a young man a hebrew, servant to the same captain of the soldiers: to whom we told our dreams, and we heard what afterwards the event of the thing proved to be so. for i was restored to my office: and he was hanged upon a gibbet. forthwith at the king's command, joseph was brought out of the prison, and they shaved him, and changing his apparel, brought him in to him. and he said to him: i have dreamed dreams, and there is no one that can expound them: now i have heard that thou art very wise at interpreting them. joseph answered: without me, god shall give pharao a prosperous answer. so pharao told what he had dreamed: methought i stood upon the bank of the river, and seven kine came up out of the river exceeding beautiful and full of flesh: and they grazed on green places in a marshy pasture. and behold, there followed these, other seven kine, so very ill favoured and lean, that i never saw the like in the land of egypt: and the devoured and consumed the former, and yet gave no mark of their being full: but were as lean and ill favoured as before. i awoke, and then fell asleep again, and dreamed a dream: seven ears of corn grew upon one stalk, full and very fair. other seven also thin and blasted, sprung of the stock: and they devoured the beauty of the former: i told this dream to the conjecturers, and there is no man that can expound it. joseph answered: the king's dream is one: god hath shewn to pharao what he is about to do. the seven beautiful kine, and the seven full ears, are seven years of plenty: and both contain the same meaning of the dream. and the seven lean and thin kine that came up after them, and the seven thin ears that were blasted with the burning wind, are seven years of famine to come: which shall be fulfilled in this order: behold, there shall come seven years of great plenty in the whole land of egypt: after which shall follow other seven years of so great scacity, that all the abundance before shall be forgotten: for the famine shall consume all the land, and the greatness of the scarcity shall destroy the greatness of the plenty. and for that thou didst see the second time a dream pertaining to the same thing: it is a token of the certainty, and that the word of god cometh to pass, and is fulfilled speedily. now therefore let the king provide a wise and industrious man, and make him ruler over the land of egypt: that he may appoint overseers over all the countries: and gather into barns the fifth part of the fruits, during the seven fruitful years, that shall now presently ensue: and let all the corn be laid up under pharao's hands and be reserved in the cities. and let it be in readiness, against the

famine of seven years to come, which shall oppress egypt, and the land shall not be consumed with scarcity. the counsel pleased pharao and all his servants. and he said to them: can we find such another man, that is full of the spirit of god? he said therefore to joseph: seeing god hath shewn thee all that thou hast said, can i find one wiser and one like unto thee? thou shalt be over my house, and at the commandment of thy mouth all the people shall obey: only in the kingly throne will i be above thee. and again pharao said to joseph: behold, i have appointed thee over the whole land of egypt. and he took his ring from his own hand, and gave it into his hand: and he put upon him a robe of silk, and put a chain of gold about his neck. and he made him go up into his second chariot, the crier proclaiming that all should bow their knee before him, and that they should know he was made governor over the whole land of egypt. and the king said to joseph: i am pharao; without thy commandment no man shall move hand or foot in all the land of egypt. and he turned his name, and called him in the egyptian tounge, the saviour of the world. and he gave him to wife aseneth the daughter of putiphare priest of heliopolis. then joseph went out to the land of egypt: (now he was thirty years old when he stood before king pharao) and he went round all the countries of egypt. and the fruitfulness of the seven years came: and the corm being bound up into sheaves was gathered together into the barns of egypt. and all the abundance of grain was laid up in every city. and there was so great abundance of wheat, that it was equal to the sand of the sea, and the plenty exceeded measure. and before the famine came, joseph had two sons born: whom aseneth the daughter of putiphare priest of heliopolis bore unto him. and he called the name of the first born manasses, saying: god hath made me to forget all my labours, and my father's house. and he named the second epharaim, saying: god hath made me to grow in the land of my poverty. now when the seven years of the plenty that had been in egypt were past: the seven years of scarcity, which joseph had foretold, began to come: and the famine prevailed in the whole world, but there was bread in all the land of egypt. and when there also they began to be famished, the people cried to pharao for food. and he said to them: go to joseph: and do all that he shall say to you. and the famine increased daily in all the land: and joseph opened all the barns, and sold to the egyptians: for the famine had oppressed them also. and all provinces came into egypt, to buy food, and to seek some relief of their want.

and jacob hearing that food was sold in egypt, said to his sons: why are ye careless? i have heard that wheat is sold in egypt: go ye down, and buy us necessaries, that we may live, and not be consumed with want. so the ten brethren of joseph went down, to buy corn in egypt: whilst benjamin was kept at home by jacob, who said to his brethren: lest perhaps he take any harm in the journey. and they entered into the land of egypt with others that went to buy. for the famine was in the land of chanaan. and joseph was governor in the land of egypt, and corn was sold by his direction to the people. and when his brethren had bowed down to him, and he knew them, he spoke as it were to strangers somewhat roughly, asking them: whence came you? they answered: from the land of chanaan, to buy necessities of life. and though he knew his brethren, he was not known by them. and remembering the dreams, which formerly he had dreamed, he said to them: you are spies. you are come to view the weaker parts of the land. but they said: it is not so, my lord, but thy servants are come to buy food. we are all the sons of one man: we are come as peaceable men, neither do thy servants go about any evil. and he answered them: it is otherwise: you are come to consider the unfenced parts of this land. but they said: we thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of chanaan: the youngest is with our father, the other is not living. he saith: this is it that i said: you are spies. i shall now presently try what you are: by the health of pharao you shall not depart hence, until your youngest brother come. send one of you to fetch him: and you shall be in prison, till what you have said be proved, whether it be true or false: or else by the health of pharao you are spies. so he put them in prison three days. and the third day he brought them out of prison, and said: do as i have said, and you shall live: for i fear god. if you be peaceable men, let one of your brethren be bound in prison: and go ye your ways and carry the corn that you have bought, unto your houses. and bring your youngest brother to me, that i may find your words to be true, and you may not die. they did as he had said. and they talked one to another: we deserve to suffer these things, because we have sinned against our brother, seeing the anguished of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear: therefore is this affliction come upon us. and ruben one of them, said: did not i say to you: do not sin against the boy: and you would not hear me? behold his blood is required. and they knew not that joseph understood, because he spoke to them by an interpreter. and he turned himself away a little while, and wept: and returning he spoke to them. and taking simeon, and binking him in their presence, he commanded his servants to fill their sacks with wheat, and to put every man's money again in their sacks, and to give them besides provisions for the way: and they did so. but they having loaded their asses with the corn, went their way. and one of them opening his sack, to give his beast provender in the inn, saw the money in the sack's mouth; and said to his brethren: my money is given me again, behold it is in the sack. and they were astonished, and troubled, and said to one another: what is this that god hath done unto us? and they came to jacob their father in the land of chanaan, and they told him all things that had befallen them, saying: the lord of the land spoke roughly to us, and took us to be spies of the country. and we answered him: we are peaceable men, and we mean no plot. we are twelve brethren born of one father: one is not living, the youngest is with our father in the land of chanaan. and he said to us: hereby shall i know that you are peaceable men: leave one of your brethren with me, and take ye necessary provision for your houses, and go your ways. and bring your youngest brother to me, that i may know you are not spies: and you may receive this man again, that is kept in prison: and afterwards may have leave to buy what you will. when they had told this, they poured out their corn and every man found his money tied in the mouth of his sack: and all being astonished together, their father jacob said: you have made me to be without children: joseph is not living, simeon is kept in bonds, and benjamin you will take away: all these evils are fallen upon me. and ruben answered him: kill my two sons if i bring him not again to thee: deliver him unto my hand, and i will restore him to thee. but he said: my son shall not go down with you: his brother is dead, and he is left alone: if any mischief befall him in the land to which you go, you will bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to hell.

in the mean time the famine was heavy upon all the land. and when they had eaten up all the corn, which they had brought out of egypt, jacob said to his sons: go again and buy us a little food. juda answered: the man declared unto us with the attestation of an oath, saying: you shall not see my face, unless you bring your youngest brother with you. if therefore thou wilt send him with us, we will set out together, and will buy necessities for thee. but if thou wilt not, we will not go: for the man, as we have often said, declared unto us, saying: you shall not see my face without your youngest brother. israel said to them: you have done this for my misery in that you told him you had also another brother. but they answered: the man asked us in order concerning our kindred: if our father lived: if we had a brother: and we answered him regularly, according to what he demanded: bring hither your brother with you? and juda said to his father: send the bou with me, that we may set forward, and may live: lest both we and our children perish. i take the boy upon me, require him at my hand: unless i bring him again, and restore him to thee, i will be guilty of sin against thee for ever. if delay had not been made, we had been here again the second time. then israel said to them: if it must needs be so, do what you will: take of the best fruits of the land in your vessels, and carry down presents to the man, a little balm, and honey, and storax, myrrh, turpentine, and almonds. and take with you double money, and carry back what you found in your sacks, lest perhaps it was done by mistake. and take also your brother, and go to the man. and may my almighty god make him favourable to you; and send back with you your brother, whom he keepeth, and this benjamin: and as for me i shall be desolate without children. so the men took the presents, and double money, and benjamin: and went down into egypt, and stood before joseph. and when he had seen them, and benjamin with them, he commanded the steward of his house, saying: bring in the men into the house, and kill victims, and prepare a feast: because they shall eat with me at noon. he did as he was commanded, and brought the men into the house. and they being much afraid, said there one to another: because of the money, which we carried back the first time in our sacks, we are brought in: that he may bring upon us a false accusation, and by violence make slaves of us and our asses. wherefore going up to the steward of the house, at the door, they said: sir, we desire thee to hear us: we came down once before to buy food: and when we had bought, and come to the inn, we opened our sacks, and found our money in the mouths of the sacks: which we have now brought again in the same weight. and we have brought other money besides, to buy what we want: we cannot tell who put it in our bags. but he answered: peace be with you, fear not: your god, and the god of your father hath given you treasure in your sacks. for the money, which you gave me, i have for good. and he brought simeon out to them. and having brought them into the house, he fetched water, and they washed their feet, and he gave provender to their asses. but they made ready the presents, against joseph came at noon: for they had heard that they should eat bread there. then joseph came into his house, and they offered him the presents holding them in their hands, and they bowed down with their face to the ground. but he, courteously saluting them again, asked them, saying: is the old man your father in health, of whom you told me? is he yet living? and they answered: thy servant our father is in health, he is yet living. and bowing themselves they made obeisance to him. and joseph lifting up his eyes, saw benjamin his brother, by the same mother, and said: is this your young brother, of whom you told me? and he said: god be gracious to thee, my son. and he made haste because his heart was moved upon his brother, and tears gushed out: and going into his chamber he wept. and when he had washed his face, coming out again, he refrained himself, and said: set bread on the table. and when it was set on, for joseph apart, and for his brethren apart, for the egyptians also that ate with him, apart, (for it is unlawful for the egyptians to eat with the hebrews, and they think such a feast profane:) they sat before him, the firstborn according to his birthright, and the youngest according to his age. and they wondered very much: taking the messes which they received of him: and the greater mess came to benjamin, so that it exceeded by five parts. and they drank, and were merry with him.

and joseph commanded the steward of his house, saying: fill their sacks with corn, as much as they can hold: and put the money of every one in the top of his sack. and in the mouth of the younger's sack put my silver cup, and the price which he gave for the wheat. and it was so done. and when the morning arose, they were sent away with their asses. and when they were now departed out of the city, and had gone forward a little way; joseph sending for the steward of his house, said: arise, and pursue after the men: and when thou hast overtaken them, say to them: why have you returned evil for good? the cup which you have stolen is that in which my lord drinketh, and in which he is wont to divine: you have done a very evil thing. he did as he had commanded him. and having overtaken them, he spoke to them the same words. and they answered: why doth our lord speak so, as though thy servants had committed so heinous a fact? the money, that we found in the top of our sacks, we brought back to thee from the land of chanaan: how then should it be that we should steal out of thy lord's house, gold or silver? with whomsoever of thy servants shall be found that which thou seekest, let him die, and we will be the bondmen of my lord. and he said to them: let it be according to your sentence: with whomsoever it shall be found, let him be my servant, and you shall be blameless. then they speedily took down their sacks to the ground, and every man opened his sack. which when he had searched, beginning at the eldest and ending at the youngest, he found the cup in benjamin's sack. then they rent their garments, and loading their asses again, returned into the town. and juda at the head of his brethren went in to joseph, (for he was not yet gone out of the place,) and they altogether fell down before him on the ground. and he said to them: why would you do so? know you not that there is no one like me in the science of divining. and juda said to him: what shall we answer my lord? or what shall we say, or be able justly to allege? god hath found out the iniquity of thy servants: behold, we are all bondmen to my lord, both we, and he with whom the cup was found. joseph answered: god forbid that should do so: he that stole the cup, he shall be my bondman: and go you away free to your father. then juda coming hearer, said boldly: i beseech thee, my lord, let thy servant speak a word in thy ears, and be not angry with thy servant: for after pharao thou art, my lord. thou didst ask thy servants the first time: have you a father or a brother? and we answered thee, my lord: we have a father an old man, and a young boy, that was born in his old age; whose brother by the mother is dead: and he alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him tenderly. and thou saidst to thy servants: bring him hither to me, and i will set my eyes on him. we suggested to my lord: the boy cannot leave his father: for if he leave him, he will die. and thou saidst to thy servants: except your youngest brother come with you, you shall see my face no more. therefore when we were gone up to thy servant our father, we told him all that my lord had said. and our father said: go again, and buy us a little wheat. and we said to him: we cannot go: if our youngest brother go down with us, we will set out together: otherwise, without him we dare not see the man's face. whereunto he answered: you know that my wife bore two. one went out, and you said: a beast devoured him: and hitherto he appeareth not. if you take this also, and any thing befall him in the way you will bring down my gray hairs with sorrow unto hell. therefore if i shall go to thy servant our father, and the boy be wanting, (whereas his life dependeth upon the life of him,) and he shall see that he is not with us, he will die, and thy servants shall bring down his gray hairs with sorrow unto hell. let me be

tht proper servant, who took him into my trust, and promised, saying: if i bring him not again, i will be guilty of sin against my father for ever. therefore i thy servant will stay instead of the boy in the service of my lord, and let the boy go up with his brethren. for i cannot return to my father without the boy, lest i be a witness of the calamity that will oppress my father.

joseph could no longer refrain himself before many that stood by: whereupon he commanded that all should go out, and no stranger be present at their knowing one another. and he lifted up his voice with weeping, which the egyptians and all the house of pharao heard. and he said to his brethren: i am joseph: is my father yet living? his brethren could no answer him, being struck with exceeding great fear. and he said mildly to them: come nearer to me. and when they were come near him, he said: i am joseph, your brother, whom you sold into egypt. be not afraid, and let it not seem to you a hard case that you sold me into these countries: for god sent me before you into egypt for your preservation. for it is two years since the famine began to be upon the land, and five years more remain, wherein there can be neither ploughing nor reaping. and god sent me before, that you may be preserved upon the earth, and may have food to live. not by your counsel was i sent hither, but by the will of god: who hath made me as it were a father to pharao, and lord of his whold house, and governor in all the land of egypt. make haste, and go ye up to my father, and say to him: thus saith thy son joseph: god hath made me lord of the whole land of egypt: come down to me, linger not. and thou shalt dwell in the land of gessen: and thou shalt be near me, thou and thy sons, and thy son's sons, thy sheep, and thy gerds, and all things that thou hast. and there i will feed thee, (for there are yet five years of famine remaining,) lest both thou perish, and thy house, and all things that thou hast. behold, your eyes, and the eyes of my brother benjamin see that it is my mouth that speaketh to you. you shall tell my father of all my glory, and all things that you have seen in egypt: make haste and bring him to me. and falling upon the neck of his brother benjamin, he embraced him and wept: and benjamin in like manner wept also on his neck. and joseph kissed all his brethren, and wept upon every one of them: after which they were emboldened to ,peak to him. and it was heard, and the fame was abroad in the king's court: the brethren of joseph are come: and pharao with all his family was glad. and he spoke to joseph that he should give orders to his brethren, saying : load your beasts, and go into the land of chanaan. and bring away from thence your father and kindred, and come to me: and i will give you all the good things of egypt, that you may eat the marrow of the land. give orders also that they take wagons out of the land of egypt, for/ the carriage of their children and their wives: and say: take up your father, and make haste to come with all speed: and leave nothing of your house- hold stuff: for all the riches of egypt shall be yours. and the sons of israel did as they were bid. and joseph gave them wagons according to pharao's commandment: and provisions for the way. he ordered also to be brought out for every one of them two robes: but to benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver with ave robes of the best: sending to his father as much money and raiment, adding besides ten he asses to carry off all the riches of egypt, and as many she asses, carrying wheat and bread for the journey. so he sent away his brethren, and at their departing said to them: be not angry in the way. and they went up out of egypt, and came into the land of chanaan to their father jacob. and they told him, saying: joseph thy son is living: and he is ruler in all the land of egypt. which when jacob heard, he awaked as it were out of a deep sleep, yet did not believe them. they, on the other side, told the whole order of the thing. and when he saw the wagons and all that he had sent his spirit revived, and he said: it is enough for me, if joseph my son be yet living: iwill go and see him before i die.

and israel taking his journey, with all that he had, came to the well of the oath, and killing victims there to the god of his father isaac, he heard him by a vision in the night calling him, and saying to him: jacob, jacob. and he answered him: lo, here i am. god said to him: i am the most mighty god of thy father: fear not, go down into egypt, for i will make a great nation of thee there. i will go down with thee thither, and will bring thee back again from thence: joseph also shall put his hands upon thy eyes. and jacob rose up from the well of the oath: and his sons took him up, with their children and wives in the wagons, which pharao had sent to carry the old man, and all that he had in the land of chanaan, and he came into egypt with all his seed:" his sons, and grandsons, daughters, and all his offspring together. and these are the names of the children of israel, that entered into egypt, he and his children. his firstborn ruben, the sons of ruben: henoah and phallu, and hesron and charmi. the sons of simeon: jamuel and jamin and ahod, and jachin and sohar, and saul the son of a woman of chanaan. the sons of levi: gerson and caath and merari. the sons of juda: her and onan and sela and phares and zara. and her and onan died in the land of chanaan. and sons were born to phares: hesron and hamul. the sons of issachar: thola and phua and job and semron. the sons of zabulon: sared and elo and jabeleh. these are the sons of lia, whom she bore in mesopotamia of syria, with dins his daughter. all the souls of her sons and daughters, thirty-three. the sons of cad: sephian and haggi and suni and esebon and heri and arodi and areli. the sons of beer: jamne and jesua and jesuri and beria, and sara their sister. the sons of beria: heber and melchiel. these are the sons of zelpa, whom laban gave to lia his daughter. and these she bore to jacob, sixteen souls. the sons of rachel jacob's wife: joseph and benjamin. and sons were born to joseph, in the land of egypt, whom aseneth the daughter of putiphare priest of heliopolis bore him: man-

asses and ephraim. the sons of benjamin: bela and bechor and asbel and gera and naaman and echi and ros and mophim and ophim and ared. these are the sons of rachel, whom she bore to jacob: all the souls, four-teen. the sons of dan: husim. the sons of nephtali: jaziel and guni and jeser and sallem. these are the sons of bala, whom laban gave to rachel his daughter: and these she bore to jacob: all the souls, seven. all the souls that went with jacob into egypt, and that came out of his thigh, besides his sons' wives, sixty-six. and the sons of joseph, that were born to him in the land of egypt, two souls. all the souls of the house of jacob, that entered into egypt, were seventy. and he sent juda before him to joseph, to tell him; and that he should meet him in gessen. and when he was come thither, joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet his father, in the same place: and seeing him, he fell upon his neck, and embracing him wept. and the father said to joseph: now shall i die with joy, because i have seen thy face, and leave thee alive. and joseph said to his brethren, and to all his father's house: i will go up, and will tell pharao, and will say to him: my brethren and my father's house, that were in the land of chanaan, are come to me: and the men are shepherds, and their occupation is to feed cattle: their flocks and herds, and all they have, they have brought with them. and when he shall call you, and shall say: what is your occupation? you shall answer: we thy servants are shepherds, from our infancy until now, both we and our fathers. and this you shall say, that you may dwell in the land of gessen, because the egyptians have all shepherds in abomination.

then joseph went in and told pharao, saying: my father and brethren, their sheep and their herds, and all that they possess, are come out of the land of chanaan: and behold they stay in the land of gessen. five men also the last of his brethren, he presented before the king: and he asked them: what is your occupation? they answered: re thy servants are shepherds, both we, and our fathers. we are come to sojourn in thy land, because there is no grass for the flocks of thy servants, the famine being very grievous in the land of chanaan: and we pray thee to give orders that we thy servants may be in the land of gessen. the king therefore said to joseph: thy father and thy brethren are come to thee. the land of egypt is before thee: make them dwell in the best place, and give them the land of gessen. and if thou knowest that there are industrious men among them, make them rulers over my cattle. after this joseph brought in his to the king, and presented him before him: and he blessed him. and being asked by him: how many are the days of the years of thy life? he answered: the days of my pilgrimage are a hundred and thirty years, few, and evil, and they are not come up to the days of the pilgrimage of my fathers. and blessing the king, he went out. but joseph gave a possession to his father and his brethren in egypt, in the best place of the land, in ramesses, as pharao had commanded. and he nourished them, and all his father's house, allowing food to every one. for in the whole world there was want of bread, and a famine had oppressed the land: more especially of egypt and chanaan. out of which he gathered up all the money for the corn which they bought, and brought it into the king's treasure. and when the buyers wanted money, all egypt came to joseph, saying: give us bread: why should we die in thy presence, having now no money. and he answered them: bring your cattle, and for them i will give you food, if you have no money. and when they had brought them, he gave them food in exchange for their horses, and sheep, and oxen, and asses and he maintained them that year for the exchange of their cattle. and they came the second year, and said to him: we will not hide from our lord, how that our money is spent, and our cattle also are gone: neither art thou ignorant that we have nothing now left but our bodies and our lands. why therefore shall we die before thy eyes? we will be thins, both we and our lands: buy us to be the king's servants, and give us seed, lest for want of tillers the land be turned into a wilderness. so joseph bought all the land of egypt, every man selling his possessions, because of the greatness of the famine. and he brought it into pharao's hands: and all its people from one end of the borders of egypt, even to the other end thereof, except the land of the priests, which had been given them by the king: to whom also a certain allowance of food was given out of the public stores, and therefore they were not forced to sell their possessions. then joseph said to the people: behold as you see, both you and your lands belong to pharao: take seed and sow the fields, that you may have corn. the fifth part you shall give to the king: the other four you shall have for seed, and for food for your families and children. and they answered: our life is in thy hand: only let my lord look favourably upon us, and we will gladly serve the king. from that time unto this day, in the whole land of egypt, the fifth part is paid to the king, and it is become as a law, except the land of the priests, which was free from this covenant. so israel dwelt in egypt, that is, in the land of gessen, and possessed it: and grew, and was multiplied exceedingly. and he lived in it seventeen years: and all the days of his life came to a hundred and forty-seven years. and when he saw that the day of his death drew nigh, he called his son joseph, and said to him: if i have found favour in thy sight, put thy hand under my thigh; and thou shalt shew me this kindness and truth, not to bury me in egypt: but i will sleep with my fathers, and thou shalt take me away out of this land, and bury me in the burying place of my ancestors. and joseph answered him: i will do what thou hast commanded. and he said: swear then to me, and as he was swearing, israel adored god, turning to the bed's head.

after these things, it was told joseph that his father was sick: and he set out to go to him, taking his two sons manasses and ephraim. and it was told the old man: behold i thy son joseph cometh to thee. and being strengthened he sat on his bed. and when joseph was come in to him, he said : god almighty appeared to me at lute, which is in the land of chanaan: and he blessed me, and he said : i will cause thee to increase and multiply, and i will make of thee a multitude of people: and i will give this land to thee, and to thy seed after thee for an everlasting possession. so thy two sons who were born to thee in the land of egypt before i came hither to thee, shall be mine: ephraim and manasses shall be reputed to me as ruben and simeon. but the rest whom thou shalt have after them, shall be thine, and shall be called by the name of their brethren in their possessions. for, when i came out of mesopotamia, rachel died from me in the land of ohanaan in the very journey, and it was springtime: and i was going to ephrata, and i buried her near the way of ephrata, which by another name is called beth-lehem. then seeing his sons, he said to him: who are these? he answered: they are my sons, whom god hath given me in this place. and he said: bring them to me that i may bless them. for israel's eyes were dim by reason of his great age, and he could not see clearly. and when they were brought to him, he kissed and embraced them. and said to his son: i am not deprived of seeing thee: moreover god hath shewed me thy seed. and when joseph had taken them from his father's lap, he bowed down with his face to the ground. and he set ephraim on his right bend, that is, towards the left hand of israel; but manasses on his left hand, to wit, towards his father's right hand, and brought them near to him. but he stretching forth his right hand, put it upon the head of ephraim the younger brother; and the left upon the head of manasses who was the elder, changing his hands. and jacob blessed the sons of joseph, and said: god, in whose sight my fathers abraham and isaac walked, god that feedeth me from my youth until this day; the angel that delivereth me from all evils, bless these boys: and let my name be called upon them, and the names of my fathers abraham, and isaac, and may they grow into a multitude upon the earth. and joseph seeing that his father had put his right hand upon the head of ephraim, was much displeased: and taking his father's hand he tried to lift it from ephraim's head, and to remove it to the head of manasses. and he said to his father: it should not be so, my father: for this is the first-born, put thy right hand upon his head. but he refusing, said: i know, my son, i know: and this also shall become peoples, and shall be multiplied: but this younger brother shall be greater than he: and his seed shall grow into nations. and he blessed them at that time, saying: in thee shall israel be blessed, and it shall be said: god do to thee as to ephraim, and as to manasses. and he set ephraim before manasses. and he said to joseph his son: be- hold i die, and god will be with you, and will bring you back into the land of your fathers. i give thee a portion above thy brethren, which i took out of the hand of the amorrite a with my sword and bow.

and jacob called his sons, and said to them: gather yourselves together that i may tell you the things that shall befall you in the last days. gather yourselves together, and hear, o ye sons of jacob, hearken to israel your father: ruben, my firstborn, thou art my strength, and the beginning of my sorrow: excelling in gifts, greater in command. thou art poured out as water, grow thou not: because thou wentest up to thy father's bed, and didst defile his couch. simeon and levi brethren: vessels of iniquity, waging war. let not my soul go into their counsel, nor my glory be in their assembly: "be- cause in their fury they slew a man, and in their selfwill they undermined a wall. cursed be their fury, because it was stubborn: and their wrath because it was cruel: i will divide them in jacob, and will scatter them in israel. juda, thee shall thy brethren praise: thy hands shall be on the necks of thy enemies: the sons of thy father shall bow down to thee. juda is a lion's whelp: to the prey, my son, thou art gone up: resting thou hast couched as a lion, and as a lioness, who shall rouse him? the sceptre shall not be taken away from juda, nor a ruler from his thigh, till he come that is to be sent, and he shall be the expectation of nations. ying his foal to the vineyard, and his ass, o my son, to the vine. he shall wash his robe in wine, and his garment in the blood of the grape. his eyes are more beautiful than wine, and his teeth whiter than milk. zabulon shall dwell on the sea shore, and in the road of ships, reaching as far as sidon. issachar shall be a strong ass lying down between the borders. he saw rest that it was good: and the land that it was excellent: and he bowed his shoulder to carry, and became a servant under tribute. dan shall judge his people like an- other tribe in israel. let dan be a snake in the way, a serpent in the path, that biteth the horse's heels that his rider may fall backward. i will look for thy salvation, o lord. gad, being girded, shall fight before him: and he himself shall be girded backward. aser, his bread shall be fat, and he shall yield dainties to kings. nephtali, a hart let loose, and giving words of beauty. joseph is a growing son, a growing son and comely to behold; the daughters run to and fro upon the wall. but they that held darts provoked him, and quarrelled with him, and envied him. his bow rested upon the strong, and the bands of his arms and his hands were loosed, by the hands of the mighty one of jacob: thence he came forth a pastor, the stone of israel. the god of thy father shall be thy helper, and the almighty shall bless thee with the blessings of heaven above, with the blessings of the deep that lieth be- neath, with the blessings of the breasts and of the womb. the blessings of thy father are strengthened with the blessings of his fathers: until the desire of the everlasting hills should come; may they be upon the head of joseph, and upon the crown of the nazirite among his brethren. benjamin a ravenous wolf, in the morning shall eat the prey, and in the evening shall divide the spoil. all these are the twelve tribes of israel: these things their father spoke to them, and he blessed every one, with their proper blessings. and he charged them, saying:

i am now going to be gathered to my people : bury me with my fathers in the double cave, which is in the field of ephron the hethite, over against mambre in the land of chanaan, which abraham bought to-gather with the field of ephron the hethite for a pos-session to bury in. there they buried him, and sara his wife: there was isaac buried with rebecca his wife: there also lia doth lie buried. - - - and when he had ended the commandments, wherewith he instructed his sons, he drew up his feet upon the bed, and died: and he was gathered to his people."

and when joseph saw this, he fell upon his father's face weeping and kissing him. and he commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father. and while they were fulfilling his commands, there passed forty days: for this was the manner with bodies that were embalmed, and egypt mounted for him seventy days. and the time of the mourning being expired, joseph spoke to the family of pharao: if i have found favour in your sight, speak in the ears of pharao: for my father made me swear to him, saying: behold i die: thou shalt bury me in my sepulchre which i have digged for myself in the land of chanaan. so i will go up and bury my father, and return. and pharao said to him: go up and bury thy father according as he made thee swear. so he went up, and there went with him all the ancients of pharao's house, and all the elders of the land of egypt, and the house of joseph with his brethren, except their children, and their flocks and herds, which they left in the land of gessen. he had also in his train chariots and horsemen: and it was it great company. and they came to the threshing-floor of atad, which is situated beyond the jordan: where celebrating the exequies with a great and vehement lamentation, they spent full seven days. and when the inhabitants of chanaan saw this, they said: this is a great mourning to the egyptians. and therefore the name of that place was called, the mourning of egypt. so the sons of jacob did as he had commanded them. and carrying him into the land of chanaan, they buried him in the double cave which abraham had bought together with the held for a pos-session of a buryingplace, of ephron the hethite over against mambre. and joseph returned into egypt with his brethren, and all that were in his company, after he had buried his father. now he being dead, his brethren were afraid, and talked one with another : lest perhaps he should remember the wrong he suffered, and requite us all the evil that we did to him. and they sent a message to him, saying: thy father commanded us before he died, that we should say thus much to thee from him: i beseech thee to forget the wickedness of thy brethren, and the sin and malice they practiced against thee: we also pray thee, to forgive the servants of the god of thy father this wickedness. and when joseph heard this, he wept. and his brethren came to him: and worshipping prostrate on the ground they said: we are thy servants. and he answered them: fear not: can we resist the will of god? you thought evil against me: but god turned it into good, that he might exalt me, as at present you see, and might save many people. fear not: i will feed you and your children. and he comforted them, and spoke gently and mildly. and he dwelt in egypt with all his father's house: and lived a hundred and ten years. and he saw the children of ephraim to the third generation. the children also of machir the son of manasses were born on joseph's knees. after which he told his brethren: god will visit you after my death, and will make you go up out of this land, to the land which he swore to abraham, isaac, and jacob. and he made them swear to him, saying: god will visit you, carry my bones with you out of this place: and he died being a hundred and ten years old. and being embalmed he was laid in a coffin in egypt.

these are the names of the children of israel, that went into egypt with jacob: they went in, every man with his household: ruben, simeon, levi, juda, issachar, zabulon, and benjamin, dan, and nephtali, gad and aser. and all the souls that came out of jacob's thigh, were seventy: but joseph was in egypt. after he was dead, and all his brethren, and all that generation, the children of israel increased, and sprung up into multitudes, and growing exceedingly strong they filled the land. in the mean time there arose a new king over egypt, that knew not joseph: and he said to his people: behold the people of the children of israel are numerous and stronger than we. come, let us wisely oppress them, lest they multiply: and if any war shall rise against us, join with our enemies, and having overcome us, depart out of the land. therefore he set over them masters of the works, to afflict them with burdens, and they built for pharao cities of tabernacles, phithom and ramesses. but the more they oppressed them, the more they were multiplied, and increased: and the egyptians hated the children of israel, and afflicted them and mocked them: and they made their life bitter with hard works in clay, and brick, and with all manner of service, wherewith they were overcharged in the works of the earth. and the king of egypt spoke to the midwives of the hebrews: of whom one was called sephora, the other phua, commanding them: when you shall do the office of midwives to the hebrew women, and the time of delivery is come: if it be a man child, kill it: if a woman, keep it alive. but the midwives feared god, and did not do as the king of egypt had commanded, but saved the men children. and the king called for them and said: what is that you meant to do, that you would save the men children? they answered: the hebrew women are not as the egyptian women: for they themselves are skillful in the office of a midwife; and they are delivered before we come to them. therefore god dealt well with the midwives: and the people multiplied and grew exceedingly strong. and because the midwives feared god, he built them houses. pharao therefore charged all his people, saying: whatsoever shall be born of the male sex, ye shall cast into the river: whatsoever of the female, ye shall save alive.

after this there went a man of the house of levi; and took a wife of his own kindred. and she conceived, and bore a son; and seeing him a goodly child hid him three months. and when she could hide him no longer, she took a basket made of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and pitch: and put the little babe therein, and laid him in the sedges by the river's brink, his sister standing afar off, and taking notice what would be done. and behold the daughter of pharao came down to wash herself in the river: and her maids walked by the river's brink. and when she saw the basket in the sedges, she sent one of her maids for it: and when it was brought, she opened it and seeing within it an infant crying, having compassion on it she said: this is one of the babes of the hebrews. and the child's sister said to her shall i go and call to thee a hebrew woman, to nurse the babe? she answered: go. the maid went and called her mother. and pharao's daughter said to her. take this child and nurse him for me: i will give thee thy wages. the woman took, and nursed the child: and when he was grown up, she delivered him to pharao's daughter. and she adopted him for a son, and called him moyses, saying: because i took him out of the water. in those days after moyses was grown up, he went out to his brethren: and saw their affliction, and an egyptian striking one of the hebrews his brethren. and when he had looked about this way and that way, and saw no one there, he slew the egyptian and hid him in the sand. and going out the next day, he saw two hebrews quarreling: and he said to him that did the wrong: why strikest thou thy neighbour? but he answered: who hath appointed thee prince and judge over us: wilt thou kill me, as thou didst yesterday kill the egyptian? moyses feared, and said: how is this come to be known? and pharao heard of this word and sought to kill moyses: but he fled from his sight, and abode in the land of madian, and he sat down by a well. and the priest of madian had seven daughters, who came to draw water: and when the troughs were filled, desired to water their father's flocks. and the shepherds came and drove them away: and moyses arose, and defending the maids, watered their sheep. and when they returned to raguel their father, he said to them: why are ye come sooner than usual? they answered: a man of egypt delivered us from the hands of the shepherds: and he drew water also with us, and gave the sheep to drink. but he said: where is he? why have you let the man go? call him that he may eat bread. and moyses swore that he would dwell with him. and he took sephora his daughter to wife: and she bore him a son, whom he called gersam, saying: i have been a stranger in a foreign country. and she bore another, whom he called eliezer, saying: for the god of my father, my helper hath delivered me out of the hand of pharao. now after a long time the king of egypt died: and the children of israel groaning, cried out because of the works: and their cry went up unto god from the works. and he heard their groaning, and remembered the covenant which he made with abraham, isaac, and jacob. and the lord looked upon the children of israel, and he knew them.

now moyses fed the sheep of jethro his father in law, the priest of madian: and he drove the flock to the inner parts of the desert, and came to the mountain of god, horeb. and the lord appeared to him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he saw that the bush was on fire and was not burnt. and moyses said: i will go and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt. and when the lord saw that he went forward to see, he called to him out of the midst of the bush, and said: moyses, moyses. and he answered: here i am. and he said: come not nigh hither, put off the shoes from thy feet: for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground. and he said: i am the god of thy father, the god of abraham, the god of isaac, and the god of jacob. moyses hid his face: for he durst not look at god. and the lord said to him: i have seen the affliction of my people in egypt, and i have heard their cry because of the rigour of them that are over the works: and knowing their sorrow, i am come down to deliver them out of the hands of the egyptians, and to bring them out of that land into a good and spacious land, into a land that floweth with milk and honey, to the places of the chanaanite, and hethite, and amorrhite, and pherezite, and hevite, and jebusite. for the cry of the children of israel is come unto me: and i have seen their affliction, wherewith they are oppressed by the egyptians. but come, and i will send thee to pharao, that thou mayst bring forth my people, the children of israel out of egypt. and moyses said to god: who am i that i should go to pharao, and should bring forth the children of israel out of egypt? and he said to him: i will be with thee: and this thou shalt have for a sign, that i have sent thee: when thou shalt have brought my people out of egypt, thou shalt offer sacrifice to god upon this mountain. moyses said to god: lo, i shall go to the children of israel, and say to them: the god of your fathers hath sent me to you. if they should say to me: what is his name? what shall i say to them? god said to moyses: i am who am. he said: thus shalt thou say to the children of israel: he who is, hath sent me to you. and god said again to moyses: thus shalt thou say to the children of israel: the lord god of your fathers, the god of abraham, the god of isaac, and the god of jacob, hath sent me to you: this is my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations. go, gather together the ancients of israel, and thou shalt say to them: the lord god of your fathers, the god of abraham, the god of isaac, and the god of jacob, hath appeared to me, saying: visiting i have visited you: and i have seen all that hath befallen you in egypt. and i have said the word to bring you forth out of the affliction of egypt, into the land of the chanaanite, the hethite, and the amorrhite, and pherezite, and hevite, and jebusite, to a land that floweth with milk and honey. and they shall hear thy voice: and thou shalt go in, thou and the ancients of israel, to the king of egypt, and thou shalt say to him: the lord god of the hebrews hath called us: we will go three days' journey into the wilderness, to sacrifice unto the lord our god. but i know that the king of egypt will not let you go, but by a mighty hand. for i will stretch forth my hand and will strike egypt with all my wonders which i will do in the midst of them: after these he will let you go. and i will give favour to this people, in the sight of the egyptians: and when you go forth, you shall not depart empty: but every woman shall ask of her neighbour, and of her that is in her house, vessels of silver and of gold, and raiment: and you shall put them on your sons and daughters, and shall spoil egypt.

moyses answered and said: they will not believe me, nor hear my voice, but they will say: the lord hath not appeared to thee. then he said to him: what is that thou holdest in thy hand? he answered: a rod. and the lord said: cast it down upon the ground. he cast it down, and it was turned into a serpent: so that moyses fled from it. and the lord said: put out thy hand and take it by the tail. he put forth his hand, and took hold of it, and it was turned into a rod. that they may believe, saith he, that the lord god of their fathers, the god of abraham, the god of isaac, and the god of jacob, hath appeared to thee. and the lord said again: put thy hand into thy bosom. and when he had put it into his bosom, he brought it forth leprous as snow. and he said: put back thy hand into thy bosom. he put it back, and brought it out again, and it was like the other flesh. if they will not believe thee, saith he, nor hear the voice of the former sign, they will believe the word of the latter sign. but if they will not even believe these two signs, nor hear thy voice: take of the river water, and pour it out upon the dry land, and whatsoever thou drawest out of the river shall be turned into blood. moyses said: i beseech thee, lord. i am not eloquent from yesterday and the day before: and since thou hast spoken to thy servant, i have more impediment and slowness of tongue. the lord said to him: who made man's mouth? or who made the dumb and the deaf, the seeing and the blind? did not i? go therefore and i will be in thy mouth: and i will teach thee what thou shalt speak. but he said: i beseech thee, lord send whom thou wilt send. the lord being angry at moyses, said aaron the levite is thy brother, i know that he is eloquent: behold he cometh forth to meet thee, and seeing thee shall be glad at heart. speak to him, and put my words in his mouth: and i will be in thy mouth, and in his mouth, and will shew you what you must do. he shall speak in thy stead to the people, and shall be thy mouth: but thou shalt be to him in those things that pertain to god. and take this rod in thy hand, wherewith thou shalt do the signs. moyses went his way, and returned to jethro his father in law and said to him: i will go and return to my brethren into egypt, that i may see if they be yet alive. and jethro said to him: go in peace. and the lord said to moyses, in madian: go, and return into egypt: for they are all dead that sought thy life. moyses therefore took his wife, and his sons, and set them upon an ass: and returned into egypt, carrying the rod of god in his hand. and the lord said to him as he was returning into egypt: see that thou do all the wonders before pharao, which i have put in thy hand: i shall harden his heart, and he will not let the people go. and thou shalt say to him: thus saith the lord: israel is my son, my firstborn. i have said to thee: let my son go, that he may serve me, and thou wouldst not let him go: behold i will kill thy son, thy firstborn. and when he was in his journey, in the inn, the lord met him, and would have killed him. immediately sephora took a very sharp stone, and circumcised the fore skin of her son, and touched his feet and said: a bloody spouse art thou to me. and he let him go after she had said a bloody spouse art thou to me, because of the circumcision. and the lord said to aaron: go into the desert to meet moyses. and he went forth to meet him in the mountain of god, and kissed him. and moyses told aaron all the words of the lord, by which he had sent him, and the signs that he had commanded. and they came together, and they assembled all the ancients of the children of israel. and aaron spoke all the words which the lord had said to moyses: and he wrought the signs before the people, and the people believed. and they heard that the lord had visited the children of israel: and that he had looked upon their affliction: and falling down they adored.

after these things moyses and aaron went in, and said to pharao: thus saith the lord god of israel: let my people go that they may sacrifice to me in the desert. but he answered: who is the lord, that i should hear his voice, and let israel go? i know not the lord, neither will i let israel go. and they said: the god of the hebrews hath called us, to go three days' journey into the wilderness and to sacrifice to the lord our god: lest a pestilence or the sword fall upon us. the king of egypt said to them: why do you moyses and aaron draw off the people from their works? get you gone to your burdens. and pharao said: the people of the land is numerous: you see that the multitude is increased: how much more if you give them rest from their works? therefore he commanded the same day the overseers of the works, and the taskmasters of the people, saying: you shall give straw no more to the people to make brick, as before: but let them go and gather straw. and you shall lay upon them the task of bricks, which they did before, neither shall you diminish any thing thereof: for they are idle, and therefore they cry, saying: let us go and sacrifice to our god. let them be oppressed, with works, and let them fulfill them: that they may not regard lying words. and the overseers of the works and the taskmasters went out and said to the people: thus saith pharao, i allow you no straw: go, and gather it where you can find it: neither shall any thing of your work be diminished. and the people was scattered through all the land of egypt to gather straw. and the overseers of the works pressed them, saying: fulfill your work every day as before you were wont to do when straw was given you. and they that were over the works of the children of israel were scourged by pharao's taskmasters, saying: why have you not made up the task of bricks both yesterday and to day as before? and the officers of the children of israel came, and cried out to pharao, saying: why dealest thou so with thy servants? straw is not given us, and bricks are required of us as before: behold we thy servants are beaten with whips, and thy people is unjustly dealt withal. and he said: you are idle, and therefore you say: let us go and sacrifice to the lord. go therefore, and work: straw shall not be given you, and you shall deliver the accustomed number of bricks. and the officers of the children of israel saw that they were in evil case, because it was said to them: there shall not a whit be diminished of the bricks for every day. and they met moyses and aaron, who stood over against them as they came out from pharao: and they said to them: the lord see and judge, because you have made our savour to stink before pharao and his servants, and you have given him a sword to kill us. and moyses returned to the lord, and said: lord, why hast thou afflicted this people? wherefore hast thou sent me? for since the time that i went in to pharao to speak in thy name, he hath afflicted thy people: and thou hast not delivered them.

and the lord said to moyses: now thou shalt see what i will do to pharao: for by a mighty hand shall he let them go, and with a strong hand shall he cast them out of his land. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: i am the lord, that appeared to abraham, to isaac, and to jacob, by the name of god almighty; and my name adonai i did not shew them. and i made a covenant with them, to give them the land of chanaan, the land of their pilgrimage wherein they were strangers. i have heard the groaning of the children of israel, wherewith the egyptians have oppressed them: and i have remembered my covenant. therefore say to the children of israel: i am the lord who will bring you out from the work prison of the egyptians, and will deliver you from bondage: and redeem you with a high arm, and great judgments. and i will take you to myself for my people, i will be your god: and you shall know that i am the lord your god who brought you out from the work prison of the egyptians. and brought you into the land, concerning which i lifted up my hand to give it to abraham, isaac, and jacob and i will give it you to possess, i am the lord. and moyses told all this to the children of israel: but they did not hearken to him, for anguish of spirit, and most painful work. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying go in, and speak to pharao king of egypt, that he let the children of israel go out of his land. moyses answered before the lord behold the children of israel do no hearken to me; and how will pharao hear me, especially as i am of uncircumcised lips? and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, and he gave them a charge unto the children of israel, and unto pharao the king of egypt, that they should bring forth the children of israel out of the land of egypt. these are the heads of their house by their families. the sons of rubel the firstborn of israel: henoah and phallu, hesron and charmi. these are the kindreds of ruben. the sons of simeon: jamuel, and jamin and ahod, and jachin, and soar, and saul the son of a chanaanitess: these are the families of simeon. and these are the names of the sons of levi by their kindreds: gerson, and caath, and merari. and the years of the life of levi were a hundred and thirty seven. the sons of gerson: lobni and semei, by their kindreds. the sons of caath: amram, and isaar, and eiebron, and ozziel. and the years of caath's life were a hundred and thirty-three. the sons of merari: moholi and musi. these are the kindreds of levi by their families. and amram took to wife jochabed his aunt by the father's side: and she bore him aaron and moyses. and the years of amram's life were a hundred and thirty-seven. the sons also of isaar: core, and nepheg, and zechri. the sons also of ozziel: mizael, and elizaphan, and sethri. and aaron took to wife elizabeth the daughter of aminadab, sister of nahason, who bore him nadab, and abiu, and

eleazar, and ithamar. the sons also of core: aser, and elcana, and abiasaph. these are the kindreds of the corites. but eleazar the son of aaron took a wife of the daughters of phutiel: and she bore him phinees. these are the heads of the levitical families by their kindreds. these are aaron and moyses, whom the lord commanded to bring forth the children of israel out of the land of egypt by their companies. these are they that speak to pharao king of egypt, in order to bring out the children of israel from egypt: these are that moyses and aaron in the day when the lord spoke to moyses in the land of egypt. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: i am the lord: speak thou to pharao king of egypt all that i say to thee. and moyses said before the lord: lo i am of uncircumcised lips, how will pharao hear me?

and the lord said to moyses: behold i have appointed thee the god of pharao: and aaron thy brother shall be thy prophet. thou shalt speak to him all that i command thee; and he shall speak to pharao, that he let the children of israel go out of his land. but i shall harden his heart, and shall multiply my signs and wonders in the land of egypt, and he will not hear you: and i will lay my hand upon egypt, and will bring forth my army and my people the children of israel out of the land of egypt, by very great judgments. and the egyptians shall know that i am the lord, who have stretched forth my hand upon egypt, and have brought forth the children of israel out of the midst of them. and moyses and aaron did as the lord had commanded: so did they. and moyses was eighty years old, and aaron eighty-three, when they spoke to pharao. and the lord said to moyses and aaron: when pharao shall say to you, shew signs: thou shalt say to aaron: take thy rod, and cast it down before pharao, and it shall be turned into a serpent. so moyses and aaron went in unto pharao, and did as the lord had commanded. and aaron took the rod before pharao, and his servants, and it was turned into a serpent. and pharao called the wise men and the magicians: and they also by egyptian enchantments and certain secrets did in like manner. and they every one cast down their rods, and they were turned into serpents: but aaron's rod devoured their rods. and pharao's heart was hardened, and he did not hearken to them, as the lord had commanded. and the lord said to moyses: pharao's heart is hardened, he will not let the people go. go to him in the morning, behold he will go out to the waters: and thou shalt stand to meet him on the bank of the river: and thou shalt take in thy hand the rod that was turned into a serpent. and thou shalt say to him: the lord god of the hebrews sent me to thee saying: let my people go to sacrifice to me in the desert: and hitherto thou wouldst not hear. thus therefore saith the lord: in this thou shalt know that i am the lord: behold i will strike with the rods that is in my hand, the water of the river, and it shall be turned into blood. and the fishes that are in the river shall die, and the waters shall be corrupted, and the egyptians shall be afflicted when they drink the water of the river. the lord also said to moyses: say to aaron, take thy rod, and stretch forth thy hand upon the waters of egypt, and upon their rivers, and streams and pools, and all the ponds of waters, that they may be turned into blood: and let blood be in all the land of egypt, both in vessels of wood and of stone. and moyses and aaron did as the lord had commanded: and lifting up the rod he struck the water of the river before pharao and his servants: and it was turned into blood. and the fishes that were in the river died: and the river corrupted, and the egyptians could not drink the water of the river, and there was blood in all the land of egypt. and the magicians of the egyptians with their enchantments did in like manner: and pharao's heart was hardened, neither did he hear them, as the lord had commanded. and he turned himself away and went into his house, neither did he set his heart to it this time also. and all the egyptians dug round about the river for water to drink: for they could not drink of the water of the river. and seven days were fully ended, after that the lord struck the river.

and the lord said to moyses: go in to pharao, and thou shalt say to him: thus saith the lord: let my people go to sacrifice to me. but if thou wilt not let them go behold i will strike all thy coasts with frogs. and the river shall bring forth an abundance of frogs: which shall come up, and enter into thy house, and thy bed-chamber, and upon thy bed, and in the houses of thy servants, and to thy people, and into thy ovens, and into the remains of thy meats; and the frogs shall come in to thee and to thy people, and to all thy servants. and the lord said to moyses: say to aaron, stretch forth thy hand upon the streams and upon the rivers and the pools, and bring forth frogs upon the land of egypt. and aaron stretched forth his hand upon the waters of egypt, and the frogs came up, and covered the land of egypt. and the magicians also by their enchantments did in like manner, and the brought forth frogs upon all the land of egypt but pharao called moyses and aaron and said to them: pray ye to the lord to take away the frogs from me and from my people; and i will let the people go to sacrifice to the lord. and moyses said to pharao: set me a time when i shall pray for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people, that the frogs may be driven away from thee and from thy house, and from thy servants, and from thy people: and may remain only in the river. and he answered: tomorrow. but he said: i will do according to thy word; that thou mayst know that there is none like to the lord our god. and the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy house, and from thy servants, and from thy people; and shall remain only in the river. and moyses and aaron went forth from pharao: and moyses cried to the lord for the promise, which he had made to pharao concerning the frogs. and the lord did according to the word of moyses: and the frogs died out of the houses, and out of the villages, and out of the fields: and they gathered them together into immense heaps, and the land was corrupted. and

pharao seeing that rest was given, hardened his own heart, and did not hear them, as the lord had commanded. and the lord said to moyses: say to aaron, stretch forth thy rod, and strike the dust of the earth: and may there be sciniphs in all the land of egypt. and they did so. and aaron stretched forth his hand, holding the rod: and he struck the dust of the earth, and there came sciniphs on men and on beasts: all the dust of the earth was turned into sciniphs through all the land of egypt. and the magicians with their enchantments practiced in like manner, to bring forth sciniphs, and they could not and there were sciniphs as well on men as on beasts. and the magicians said to pharao this is the finger of god. and pharao heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them, as the lord had commanded. the lord also said to moyses: arise early, and stand before pharao: for he will go forth to the waters: and thou shalt say to him: thus saith the lord: let my people go to sacrifice to me. but if thou wilt not let them go, behold i will send in upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy houses all kind of flies: and the houses of the egyptians shall be filled with flies of divers kinds, and the whole land wherein they shall be. and i will make the land of gessen wherein my people is, wonderful in that lay, so that flies shall not be there: and thou shalt know that i am the lord in the midst of the earth. and i will put a division between my people and thy people: tomorrow shall this sign be. and the lord did so, and there came a very grievous swarm of flies into he houses of pharao and of his servants, and into all the land of egypt: and the land was corrupted by this kind of flies. and pharao called moyses and aaron, and said to them: go, and sacrifice to your god in this land. and moyses said: it cannot be so: for we shall sacrifice the abominations of the egyptians to the lord our god: now if we kill those things which the egyptians worship, in their presence, they will stone us. we will go three days' journey into the wilderness: and we will sacrifice to the lord our god, as he hath commanded us. and pharao said: i will let you go to sacrifice to the lord your god in the wilderness: but go no farther: pray for me. and moyses said: i will go out from thee, and will pray to the lord: and the flies shall depart from pharao, and from his servants, and from his people tomorrow: but do not deceive any more, in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the lord. so moyses went out from pharao, and prayed to the lord. and he did according to his word: and he took away the flies from pharao, and from his servants, and from his people: there was not left so much as one. and pharao's heart was hardened, so that neither this time would he let the people go.

and the lord said to moyses: go in to pharao, and speak to him: thus saith the lord god of the hebrews: let my people go to sacrifice to me. but if thou refuse, and withhold them still: behold my hand shall be upon thy fields: and a very grievous murrain upon thy horses, and asses, and camels, and oxen, and sheep. and the lord will make a wonderful difference between the possessions of israel and the possessions of the egyptians, that nothing at all shall die of those things that belong to the children of israel. and the lord appointed a time, saying: tomorrow will the lord do this thing in the land. the lord therefore did this thing the next day: and all the beasts of the egyptians died, but of the beasts of the children of israel there died not one. and pharao sent to see: and there was not any thing dead of that which israel possessed. and pharao's heart was hardened, and he did not let the people go. and the lord said to moyses and aaron: take to you handfuls of ashes out of the chimney, and let moyses sprinkle it in the air in the presence of pharao. and be there dust upon all the land of egypt: for there shall be boils and swelling blains both in men and beasts in the whole land of egypt. and they took ashes out of the chimney, and stood before pharao, and moyses sprinkled it in the air: and there came boils with swelling blains in men and beasts. neither could the magicians stand before moyses for the boils that were upon them, and in all the land of egypt. and the lord hardened pharao's heart, and he hearkened not unto them, as the lord had spoken to moyses. and the lord said to moyses: arise in the morning, and stand before pharao, and thou shalt say to him: thus saith the lord the god of the hebrews: let my people go to sacrifice to me. for i will at this time send all my plagues upon thy heart, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people: that thou mayst know there is none like me in all the earth. for now i will stretch out my hand to strike thee, and thy people with pestilence, and thou shalt perish from the earth. and therefore have i raised thee, that i may shew my power in thee, and my name may be spoken of throughout all the earth. dost thou yet hold back my people: and wilt thou not let them go? behold i will cause it to rain to morrow at this same hour, an exceeding great hail: such as hath not been in egypt from the day that it was founded, until this present time. send therefore now presently, and gather together thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field: for men and beasts, and all things that shall be found abroad, and not gathered together out of the fields, which the hail shall fall upon, shall die. he that feared the word of the lord among pharao's servants, made his servants and his cattle flee into houses: - - - and the lord said to moyses: stretch forth thy hand towards heaven, that there may be hail in the whole land of egypt, upon men, and upon beasts, and upon every herb of the field in the land of egypt. and moyses stretched forth his rod towards heaven, and the lord sent thunder and hail, and lightning running along the ground: and the lord rained hail upon the land of egypt. and the hail and fire mixed with it drove on together: and it was of so great bigness, as never before was seen in the whole land of egypt since that nation was founded. and the hail destroyed through all the land of egypt all things that were in the fields, both man and beast: and the hail smote every herb of the field, and it broke every tree of the country. only in the land of gessen, where the children of israel were, the hail fell not. and pharao sent and called moyses and aaron, saying to them: i have sinned this time also; the lord is just:

i and my people are wicked. pray ye to the lord, that the thunderings of god and the hail may cease: that i may let you go, and that you may stay here no longer. moyses said: as soon as i am gone out of the city, i will stretch forth my hands to the lord, and the thunders shall cease, and the hail shall be no more: that thou mayst know that the earth is the lord's. but i know that neither thou, nor thy servants do yet fear the lord god. the flax therefore and the barley were hurt, because the barley was green, and the flax was now boiled: but the wheat, and other winter corn were not hurt, because they were lateward. and when moyses was gone from pharao out of the city, he stretched forth his hands to the lord: and the thunders and the hail ceased, neither did there drop any more rain upon the earth. and pharao seeing that the rain and the hail, and the thunders were ceased, increased his sin. and his heart was hardened, and the heart of his servants, and it was made exceeding hard: neither did he let the children of israel go, as the lord had commanded by the hand of moyses.

and the lord said to moyses: go in to pharao; for i have hardened his heart, and the heart of his servants: that i may work these my signs in him. and thou mayest tell in the ears of thy sons, and of thy grandsons, how often i have plagued the egyptians, and wrought my signs amongst them: and you may know that i am the lord: therefore moyses and aaron went in to pharao, and said to him: thus saith the lord god of the hebrews: how long refusest thou to submit to me? let my people go, to sacrifice to me. but if thou resist, and wilt not let them go, behold i will bring in to morrow the locust into thy coasts: to cover the face of the earth that nothing thereof may appear, but that which the hail hath left may be eaten: for they shall feed upon all the trees that spring in the fields. and they shall fill thy houses, and the houses of thy servants, and of all the egyptians: such a number as thy fathers have not seen, nor thy grandfathers, from the time they were first upon the earth, until this present day. and he turned himself away, and went forth from pharao. and pharao's servants said to him: how long shall we endure this scandal? let the men go to sacrifice to the lord their god. dost thou not see that egypt is undone? and they called back moyses and aaron to pharao: and he said to them: go, sacrifice to the lord your god: who are they that shall go? moyses said: we will go with our young and old, with our sons and daughters, with our sheep and herds: for it is the solemnity of the lord our god. and pharao answered: so be the lord with you, as i shall let you and your children go: who can doubt but that you intend some great evil? it shall not be so: but go ye men only, and sacrifice to the lord: for this yourselves also desired. and immediately they were cast out from pharao's presence. and the lord said to moyses: stretch forth thy hand upon the land of egypt unto the locust, that it may come upon it, and devour every herb that is left after the hail. and moyses stretched forth his rod upon the land of egypt: and the lord brought a burning wind all that day, and night: and when it was morning, the burning wind raised the locusts: and they came up over the whole land of egypt: and rested in all the coasts of the egyptians innumerable, the like as had not been before that time, nor shall be hereafter. and they covered the whole face of the earth, wasting all things. and the grass of the earth was devoured, and what fruits soever were on the trees, which the hail had left: and there remained not any thing that was green on the trees, or in the herbs of the earth in all egypt. wherefore pharao in haste called moyses and aaron, and said to them: i have sinned against the lord your god, and against you. but now forgive me my sin this time also, and pray to the lord your god, that he take away from me this death. and moyses going forth from the presence of pharao, prayed to the lord. and he made a very strong wind to blow from the west, and it took the locusts and cast them into the red sea: there remained not so much as one in all the coasts of egypt. and the lord hardened pharao's heart, neither did he let the children of israel go. and the lord said to moyses: stretch out thy hand towards heaven: and may there be darkness upon the land of egypt, so thick that it may be felt. and moyses stretch forth his hand towards heaven: and there came horrible darkness in all the land of egypt for three days. no man saw his brother, nor moved himself out of the place where he was: but wheresoever the children of israel dwelt there was light. and pharao called moyses and aaron, and said to them: go sacrifice to the lord: let your sheep only, and herds remain; let your children go with you. moyses said: thou shalt give us also sacrifices and burnt offerings, to the lord our god. all the flocks shall go with us: there shall not a hoof remain of them: for they are necessary for the service of the lord our god: especially as we know not what must be offered, till we come to the very place. and the lord hardened pharao's heart, and he would not let them go. and pharao said to moyses: get thee from me, and beware thou see not my face any more: in what day soever thou shalt come in my sight, thou shalt die. moyses answered: so shall it be as thou hast spoken, i will not see thy face any more.

and the lord said to moyses: yet one plague more will i bring upon pharao and egypt, and after that he shall let you go and thrust you out. therefore thou shalt tell all the people that every man ask of his friend, and every woman of her neighbour, vessels of silver, and of gold. and the lord will give favour to his people in the sight of the egyptians. and moyses was a very great man in the land of egypt, in the sight of pharao's servants, and of all the people. and he said: thus said the lord: at midnight i will enter into egypt. and every firstborn in the land of the egyptians shall die, from the firstborn of pharao who sitteth on his throne, even to the first born of the handmaid that is at the mill, and all the firstborn of beasts. and there shall be a great cry in all the land of egypt, such as neither hath been before, nor shall be hereafter. but with all the children of israel there shall not a dog make the least noise, from man even to beast: that you may know how wonderful a difference the lord maketh between the egyptians and israel. and all these thy servants shall come down to me, and shall worship me, saying: go forth thou, and all the people that is under thee: after that we will go out. and he went out from pharao exceeding angry. but the lord said to moyses: pharao will not hear you, that many signs may be done in the land of egypt. and moyses and aaron did all the wonders that are written, before pharao. and the lord hardened pharao's heart, neither did he let the children of israel go out of his land.

and the lord said to moyses and aaron in the land of egypt: this month shall be to you the beginning of months: it shall be the first in the months of the year. speak ye to the whole assembly of the children of israel, and say to them: on the tenth day of this month let every man take a lamb by their families and houses. but if the number be less than may suffice to eat the lamb, he shall take unto him his neighbour that joineth to his house, according to the number of souls which may be enough to eat the lamb. and it shall be a lamb without blemish, a male, of one year: according to which rite also you shall take a kid. and you shall keep it until the fourteenth day of this month: and the whole multitude of the children of israel shall sacrifice it in the evening. and they shall take of the blood thereof, and put it upon both the side posts, and on the upper door posts of the houses, wherein they shall eat it. and they shall eat the flesh that night roasted at the fire, and unleavened bread with wild lettuce. you shall not eat thereof any thing raw, nor boiled in water, but only roasted at the fire: you shall eat the head with the feet and entrails thereof. neither shall there remain any thing of it until morning. if there be any thing left, you shall burn it with fire. and thus you shall eat it: you shall gird your reins, and you shall have shoes on your feet, holding staves in your hands, and you shall eat in haste: for it is the phase (that is the passage) of the lord. and i will pass through the land of egypt that night, and will kill every firstborn in the land of egypt both man and beast: and against all the gods of egypt i will execute judgments: i am the lord. and the blood shall be unto you for a sign in the houses where you shall be: and i shall see the blood, and shall pass over you: and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when i shall strike the land of egypt. and this day shall be for a memorial to you: and you shall keep it a feast to the lord in your generations with an everlasting observance. seven days shall you eat unleavened bread: in the first day there shall be no leaven in your houses: whosoever shall eat any thing leavened, from the first day until the seventh day, that soul shall perish out of israel. the first day shall be holy and solemn, and the seventh day shall be kept with the like solemnity: you shall do no work in them, except those things that belong to eating. and you shall observe the feast of the unleavened bread: for in this same day i will bring forth your army out of the land of egypt, and you shall keep this day in your generations by a perpetual observance. the first month, the fourteenth day of the month in the evening, you shall eat unleavened bread, until the one and twentieth day of the same month in the evening. seven days there shall not be found any leaven in your houses: he that shall eat leavened bread, his soul shall perish out of the assembly of israel, whether he be a stranger or born in the land. you shall not eat any thing leavened: in all your habitations you shall eat unleavened bread. and moyses called all the ancients of the children of israel, and said to them: go take a lamb by your families, and sacrifice the phase. and dip a bunch of hyssop in the blood that is at the door, and sprinkle the transom of the door therewith, and both the door cheeks: let none of you go out of the door of his house till morning. for the lord will pass through striking the egyptians: and when he shall see the blood on the transom, and on both the posts, he will pass over the door of the house, and not suffer the destroyer to come into your houses and to hurt you. thou shalt keep this thing as a law for thee and thy children for ever. and when you have entered into the land which the lord will give you as he hath promised, you shall observe these ceremonies. and when your children shall say to you: what is the meaning of this service? you shall say to them: it is the victim of the passage of the lord, when he passed over the houses of the children of israel in egypt, striking the egyptians, and saving our houses. and the people bowing themselves, adored. and the children of israel going forth did as the lord had commanded moyses and aaron. and it came to pass at midnight, the lord slew every firstborn in the land of egypt, from the firstborn of pharao, who sat on his throne, unto the firstborn of the captive woman that was in the prison, and all the firstborn of cattle. and pharao arose in the night, and all his servants, and all egypt: for there was not a house wherein there lay not one dead. and pharao calling moyses and aaron, in the night, said: arise and go forth from among my people, you and the children of israel: go, sacrifice to the lord as you say. your sheep and herds take along with you, as you demanded, and departing, bless me. and the egyptians pressed the people to go forth out of the land speedily, saying: we shall all die. the people therefore took dough before it was leavened: and tying it in their cloaks, put it on their shoulders. and the children of israel did as moyses had commanded: and they asked of the egyptians vessels of silver and gold, and very much raiment. and the lord gave favour to the people in the sight of the egyptians, so that they lent unto them: and they stripped the egyptians. and the children of israel set forward from ramesse to sooth, being about six hundred thousand men on foot, beside children. and a mixed multitude without number went up also with them, sheep and herds and beasts of divers kinds, exceeding many. and they baked the meal, which a little before they had brought out of egypt, in dough: and they made earth cakes unleavened: for it could not be leavened, the egyptians pressing them to depart, and not suffering them to make any stay: neither did they think of preparing any meat. and the abode of the children of israel that they made in egypt, was four hundred and thirty years. which being expired, the same day all the army of the lord went forth out of the land of egypt. this is the observable night of the lord, when he brought them forth out of the land of egypt: this night all the children of israel must observe in their generations. and the lord said to moses and aaron: this is the service of the phase: no foreigner shall eat of it. but every bought servant shall be circumcised, and so shall eat. the stranger and the hireling shall not eat thereof. in one house shall it be eaten, neither shall you carry forth of the flesh thereof out of the house, neither shall you break a bone thereof. all the assembly of the children of israel shall keep it. and if any stranger be willing to dwell among you, and to keep the phase of the lord, all his males shall first be circumcised, and then shall he celebrate it according to the manner: and he shall be as he that is born in the land: but if any man be uncircumcised, he shall not eat thereof. the same law shall be to him that is born in the land, and to the proselyte that sojourneth with you. and all the children of israel did as the lord had commanded moses and aaron. and the same day the lord brought forth the children of israel out of the land of egypt by their companies.

and the lord spoke to moses, saying: sanctify unto me every firstborn that openeth the womb among the children of israel, as well of men as of beasts: for they are all mine. and moses said to the people: remember this day in which you came forth out of egypt, and out of the house of bondage, for with a strong hand hath the lord brought you forth out of this place: that you eat no leavened bread. this day you go forth in the month of new corn. and when the lord shall have brought thee into the land of the chanaanite, and the hethite, and the amorrhite, and the hevite, and the jebusite, which he swore to thy fathers that he would give thee, a land that floweth with milk and honey, thou shalt celebrate this manner of sacred rites in this month. seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread: and on the seventh day shall be the solemnity of the lord. unleavened bread shall you eat seven days: there shall not be seen any thing leavened with thee, nor in all thy coasts. and thou shalt tell thy son in that day, saying: this is what the lord did to me when i came forth out of egypt. and it shall be as a sign in thy hand, and as a memorial before thy eyes: and that the law of the lord be always in thy mouth, for with a strong hand the lord hath brought thee out of the land of egypt. thou shalt keep this observance at the set time from days to days. and when the lord shall have brought thee into the land of the chanaanite, as he swore to thee and thy fathers, and shall give it thee: thou shalt set apart all that openeth the womb for the lord, and all that is first brought forth of thy cattle: whatsoever thou shalt have of the male sex, thou shalt consecrate to the lord. the firstborn of an ass thou shalt change for a sheep: and if thou do not redeem it, thou shalt kill it. and every firstborn of men thou shalt redeem with a price. and when thy son shall ask thee to morrow, saying: what is this? thou shalt answer him: with a strong hand did the lord bring us forth out of the land of egypt, out of the house of bondage. for when pharao was hardened, and would not let us go, the lord slew every firstborn in the land of egypt, from the firstborn of man to the firstborn of beasts: therefore i sacrifice to the lord all that openeth the womb of the male sex, and all the firstborn of my sons i redeem. and it shall be as a sign in thy hand, and as a thing hung between thy eyes, for a remembrance: because the lord hath brought us forth out of egypt by a strong hand. and when pharao had sent out the people, the lord led them not by the way of the land of the philistines which is near: thinking lest perhaps they would repent, if they should see wars arise against them, and would return into egypt. but he led them about by the way of the desert, which is by the red sea: and the children of israel went up armed out of the land of egypt. and moses took joseph's bones with him: because he had adjured the children of israel, saying: god shall visit you, carry out my bones from hence with you. and marching from socoth they encamped in etham in the utmost coasts of the wilderness. and the lord went before them to shew the way by day in a pillar of a cloud, and by night in a pillar of fire: that he might be the guide of their journey at both times. there never failed the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, before the people.

and the lord spoke to moses, saying: speak to the children of israel: let them turn and encamp over against phihahiroth which is between magdal and the sea over against beelsephon: you shall encamp before it upon the sea. and pharao will say of the children of israel: they are straitened in the land, the desert hath shut them in. and i shall harden his heart, and he will pursue you: and i shall be glorified in pharao, and in all his army: and the egyptians shall know that i am the lord. and they did so. and it was told the king of the egyptians that the people was fled: and the heart of pharao and of his servants was changed with regard to the people, and they said: what meant we to do, that we let israel go from serving us? so he made ready his chariot, and took all his people with him. and he took six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots that were in egypt: and the captains of the whole army. and the lord hardened the heart of pharao king of egypt, and he pursued the children of israel: but they were gone forth in a mighty hand. and when the egyptians followed the steps of them who were gone before, they found them encamped at the sea side: all pharao's horse and chariots, and the whole army were in phihahiroth before beelsephon. and when pharao drew near, the children of israel, lifting up their eyes, saw the egyptians behind them: and they feared exceedingly, and cried to the lord. and they said to moses: perhaps there were no graves in egypt, therefore thou hast brought us to die in the wilderness: why wouldst thou do this, to lead us out of egypt? is not this the word that we spoke to thee in egypt, saying: depart from us that we may serve the egyptians? for it was much better to serve them, than to die in the wilderness. and moyses said to the people: fear not: stand and see the great wonders of the lord, which he will do this day: for the egyptians, whom you see now, you shall see no more for ever. the lord will fight for you, and you shall hold your peace. and the lord said to moyses: why criest thou to me? speak to the children of israel to go forward. but lift thou up thy rod, and stretch forth thy hand over the sea, and divide it: that the children of israel may go through the midst of the sea on dry ground. and i will harden the heart of the egyptians to pursue you: and i will be glorified in pharao, and in all his host, and in his chariots, and in his horsemen. and the egyptians shall know that i am the lord, when i shall be glorified in pharao, and in his chariots and in his horsemen. and the angel of god, who went before the camp of israel, removing, went behind them: and together with him the pillar of the cloud, leaving the forepart, stood behind, between the egyptians' camp and the camp of israel: and it was a dark cloud, and enlightening the night, so that they could not come at one another all the night. and when moyses had stretched forth his hand over the sea, the lord took it away by a strong and burning wind blowing all the night, and turned it into dry ground: and the water was divided. and the children of israel went in through the midst of the sea dried up: for the water was as a wall on their right hand and on their left. and the egyptians pursuing went in after them, and all pharao's horses, his chariots and horsemen through the midst of the sea, and now the morning watch was come, and behold the lord looking upon the egyptian army through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, slew their host. and overthrew the wheels of the chariots, and they were carried into the deep. and the egyptians said: let us flee from israel: for the lord fighteth for them against us. and the lord said to moyses: stretch forth thy hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the egyptians, upon their chariots and horsemen. and when moyses had stretched forth his hand towards the sea, it returned at the first break of day to the former place: and as the egyptians were fleeing away, the waters came upon them, and the lord shut them up in the middle of the waves. and the waters returned, and covered the chariots and the horsemen of all the army of pharao, who had come into the sea after them, neither did there so much as one of them remain. but the children of israel marched through the midst of the sea upon dry land, and the waters were to them as a wall on the right hand and on the left: and the lord delivered israel on that day out of the hands of the egyptians. and they saw the egyptians dead upon the sea shore, and the mighty hand that the lord had used against them: and the people feared the lord, and they believed the lord, and moyses his servant.

then moyses and the children of israel sung this canticle to the lord: and said: let us sing to the lord: for he is gloriously magnified, the horse and the rider

he hath thrown into the sea. the lord is my strength and my praise, and he is become salvation to me: he is my god and i will glorify him: the god of my father, and i will exalt him. the lord is as a man of war, almighty is his name. pharao's chariots and his army he hath cast into the sea: his chosen captains are drowned in the red sea. the depths have covered them, they are sunk to the bottom like a stone. thy right hand, o lord, is magnified in strength: thy right hand, o lord, hath slain the enemy. and in the multitude of thy glory thou hast put down thy adversaries: thou hast sent thy wrath, which hath devoured them like stubble. and with the blast of thy anger the waters were gathered together: the flowing water stood, the depth were gathered together in the midst of the sea. the enemy said: i will pursue and overtake, i will divide the spoils, my soul shall have its fill: i will draw my sword, my hand shall slay them. thy wind blew and the sea covered them: they sunk as lead in the mighty waters. who is like to thee, among the strong, o lord? who is like to thee, glorious in holiness, terrible and praiseworthy, doing wonders? thou stretchedst forth thy hand, and the earth swallowed them. in thy mercy thou hast been a leader to the people which thou hast redeemed: and in thy strength thou hast carried them to thy holy habitation. nations rose up, and were angry: sorrows took hold on the inhabitants of philisthim. then were the princes of edom troubled, trembling seized on the stout men of moab: all the inhabitants of chanaan became stiff. let fear and dread fall upon them, in the greatness of thy arm: let them become unmoveable as a stone, until thy people, o lord, pass by: until this thy people pass by, which thou hast possessed. thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thy inheritance, in thy most firm habitation which thou hast made, o lord; thy sanctuary, o lord, which thy hands have established. the lord shall reign for ever and ever. for pharao went in on horseback with his chariots and horsemen into the sea: and the lord brought back upon them the waters of the sea: but the children of israel walked on dry ground in the midst thereof. so mary the prophetess, the sister of aaron, took a timbrel in her hand: and all the women went forth after her with timbrels and with dances: and she began the song to them, saying: let us sing to the lord, for he is gloriously magnified, the horse and his rider he hath thrown into the sea. and moyses brought israel from the red sea, and they went forth into the wilderness of sur: and they marched three days through the wilderness, and found no water. and they came into mara, and they could not drink the waters of mara, because they were bitter: whereupon he gave a name also agreeable to the place, calling it mara, that is, bitterness. and the people murmured against moyses, saying: what shall we drink? but he cried to the lord, and he shewed him a tree, which when he had cast into the waters, they were turned into sweetness. there he appointed him ordinances, and judgments, and there he proved him, saying: if thou wilt hear the voice of the lord thy god, and do what is right before him, and obey his commandments, and keep all his precepts, none of the evils that i laid upon egypt, will i bring upon thee: for i am the lord thy healer. and the children of israel came into elim, where there were twelve fountains of water, and seventy palm trees: and they encamped by the waters.

and they set forward from elim, and all the multitude of the children of israel came into the desert of sin, which is between elim and sinai: the fifteenth day of the second month, after they came out of the land of egypt. and all the congregation of the children of israel murmured against moyses and aaron in the wilderness. and the children of israel said to them: would to god we had died by the hand of the lord in the land of egypt, when we sat over the flesh pots, and ate bread to the full. why have you brought us into this desert, that you might destroy all the multitude with famine? and the lord said to moyses: behold i will rain bread from heaven for you: let the people go forth, and gather what is sufficient for every day: that i may prove them whether they will walk in my law, or not. but the sixth day let them provide for to bring in: and let it be double to that they were wont to gather every day. and moyses and aaron said to the children of israel: in the evening you shall know that the lord hath brought you forth out of the land of egypt: and in the morning you shall see the glory of the lord: for he hath heard your murmuring against the lord: but as for us, what are we, that you mutter against us? and moyses said: in the evening the lord will give you flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full: for he hath heard your murmurings, with which you have murmured against him, for what are we? your murmuring is not against us, but against the lord. moyses also said to aaron: say to the whole congregation of the children of israel: come before the lord: for he hath heard your murmuring. and when aaron spoke to all the assembly of the children of israel, they looked towards the wilderness: and behold the glory of the lord appeared in a cloud. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: i have heard the murmuring of the children of israel: say to them: in the evening you shall eat flesh, and in the morning you shall have your fill of bread: and you shall know that i am the lord your god. so it came to pass in the evening, that quails coming up, covered the camp: and in the morning, a dew lay round about the camp. and when it had covered the face of the earth, it appeared in the wilderness small, and as it were beaten with a pistle, like unto the hoar frost on the ground. and when the children of israel saw it, they said one to another: man! which signifieth: what is this! for they knew not what it was. and moyses said to them: this is the bread, which the lord hath given you to eat. this is the word, that the lord hath commanded: let every one gather of it as much as is enough to eat: a gomor for every man, according to the number of your souls that dwell in a tent, so shall you take of it. and the children of israel did so: and they gathered, one more, another less. and they measured by the measure of a gomor: neither had he more that had gathered more: nor did he find less that had provided less: but every one had gathered, according to what they were able to eat. and moyses said to them: let no man leave thereof till the morning. and they hearkened not to him, but some of them left until the morning, and it began to be full of worms, and it putrefied, and moyses was angry with them. now every one of them gathered in the morning, as much as might suffice to eat: and after the sun grew hot, it melted. but on the sixth day they gathered twice as much, that is, two gomors every man: and all the rulers of the multitude came, and told moyses. and he said to them: this is what the lord hath spoken: to morrow is the rest of the sabbath sanctified to the lord. whatsoever work is to be done, do it: and the meats that are to be dressed, dress them: and whatsoever shall remain, lay it up until the morning. and they did so as moyses had commanded, and it did not putrefy, neither was there worm found in it. and moyses said: eat it to day, because it is the sabbath of the lord: to day it shall not be found in the field. gather it six days: but on the seventh day is the sabbath of the lord, therefore it shall not be found. and the seventh day came: and some of the people going forth to gather, found none. and the lord said to moyses: how long will you refuse to keep my commandments, and my law? see that the lord hath given you the sabbath, and for this reason on the sixth day he giveth you a double provision: let each man stay at home, and let none go forth out of his place the seventh day. and the people kept the sabbath on the seventh day. and the house of israel called the name thereof manna: and it was like coriander seed white, and the taste thereof like to flour with honey. and moyses said: this is the word, which the lord hath commanded: fill a gomor of it, and let it be kept unto generations to come hereafter, that they may know the bread, wherewith i fed you in the wilderness, when you were brought forth out of the land of egypt. and moyses said to aaron: take a vessel, and put manna into it, as much as a gomor can hold: and lay it up before the lord to keep unto your generations, as the lord commanded moyses. and aaron put it in the tabernacle to be kept. and the children of israel ate manna forty years, till they came to a habitable land: with this meat were they fed, until they reached the borders of the land of chanaan. now a gomor is the tenth part of an ephi.

then all the multitude of the children of israel setting forward from the desert of sin, by their mansions, according to the word of the lord, encamped in raphidim, where there was no water for the people to drink. and they chode with moyses, and said: give us water, that we may drink. and moyses answered them: why chide you with me? wherefore do you tempt the lord? so the people were thirsty there for want of water, and murmured against moyses, saying: why didst thou make us go forth out of egypt, to kill us and our children, and our beasts with thirst? and moyses cried to the lord, saying: what shall i do to this people? yet a little more and they will stone me. and the lord said to moyses: god before the people, and take with thee

of the ancients of israel: and take in thy hand the rod wherewith thou didst strike the river, and go. behold i will stand there before thee, upon the rock horeb: and thou shalt strike the rock, and water shall come out of it that the people may drink. moyses did so before the ancients of israel: and he called the name of that place temptation, because the chiding of the children of israel, and for that they tempted the lord, saying: is the lord amongst us or not? and amalec came, and fought against israel in raphidim. and moyses said to josue: choose out men: and go out and fight against amalec: to morrow i will stand on the top of the hill having the rod of god in my hand. josue did as moyses had spoken, and he fought against amalec; but moyses, and aaron, and hur went up upon the top of the hill. and when moyses lifted up his hands, israel overcame: but if he let them down a little, amalec overcame. and moyses' hands were heavy: so they took a stone, and put under him, and he sat on it: and aaron and hur stayed up his hands on both sides. and it came to pass that his hands were not weary until sunset. and josue put amalec and his people to flight, by the edge of the sword. and the lord said to moyses: write this for a memorial in a book, and deliver it to the ears of josue: for i will destroy the memory of amalec from under heaven. and moyses built an altar: and called the name thereof, the lord my exaltation, saying: because the hand of the throne of the lord, and the war of the lord shall be against amalec, from generation to generation.

and when jethro the priest of madian, the kinsman of moyses, had heard all the things that god had done to moyses, and to israel his people, and that the lord had brought forth israel out of egypt, he took sephora the wife of moyses whom he had sent back: and her two sons, of whom one was called gersam, his father saying: i have been a stranger in a foreign country. and the other eliezer: for the god of my father, said he, is my helper, and hath delivered me from the sword of pharao. and jethro the kinsman of moyses came with his sons and his wife, to moyses into the desert, where he was camped by the mountain of god. and he sent word to moyses, saying: i jethro thy kinsman come to thee, and thy wife, and thy two sons with her. and he went out to meet his kinsman, and worshipped and kissed him: and they saluted one another with words of peace. and when he was come into the tent, moyses told his kinsman all that the lord had done to pharao, and the egyptians, in favour of israel: and all the labour which had befallen them in the journey, and that the lord had delivered them. and jethro rejoiced for all the good things that the lord had done to israel, because he had delivered them out of the hands of the egyptians. and he said: blessed is the lord, who hath delivered you out of the hand of pharao, and out of the hand of the egyptians, who hath delivered his people out of the hand of egypt. now i know that the lord is great above all gods: because they dealt proudly against them. so jethro the kinsman of moyses offered holocausts and sacrifices to god: and aaron and all the ancients of israel came, to eat bread with them before god. and the next day moyses sat, to judge the people, who stood by moyses from morning until night. and when his kinsman had seen all things that he did among the people, he said: what is it that thou dost among the people? why sittest thou alone, and all the people wait from morning till night. and moyses answered him: the people come to me to seek the judgment of god. and when any controversy falleth out among them, they come to me to judge between them, and to shew the precepts of god, and his laws. but he said: the thing thou dost is not good. thou art spent with foolish labour, both thou and thy people that is with thee: the business is above thy strength, thou alone canst not bear it. but hear my words and counsels, and god shall be with thee. be thou to the people in those things that pertain to god, to bring their words to him: and to shew the people the ceremonies and the manner of worshipping, and the way wherein they ought to walk, and the work that they ought to do. and provide out of all the people able men, such as fear god, in whom there is truth, and that hate avarice, and appoint of them rulers of thousands, and of hundreds, and of fifties, and of tens. who may judge the people at all times: and when any great matter soever shall fall out, let them refer it to thee, and let them judge the lesser matters only: that so it may be lighter for thee, the burden being shared out unto others. if thou dost this, thou shalt fulfil the commandment of god, and shalt be able to bear his precepts: and all this people shall return to their places with peace. and when moyses heard this, he did all things that he had suggested unto him. and choosing able men out of all israel, he appointed them rulers of the people, rulers over thousands, and over hundreds, and over fifties, and over tens. and they judged the people at all times: and whatsoever was of greater difficulty they referred to him, and they judged the easier cases only. and he let his kinsman depart: and he returned and went into his own country.

in the third month of the departure of israel out of the land of egypt, on this day they came into the wilderness of sinai: for departing out of raphidim, and coming to the desert of sinai, they camped in the same place, and there israel pitched their tents over against the mountain. and moyses went up to god: and the lord called unto him from the mountain, and said: thus shalt thou say to the house of jacob, and tell the children of israel: you have seen what i have done to the egyptians, how i have carried you upon the wings of eagles, and have taken you to myself. if therefore you will hear my voice, and keep my covenant, you shall be my peculiar possession above all people: for all the earth is mine. and you shall be to me a priestly kingdom, and a holy nation. those are the words thou shalt speak to the children of israel. moyses came, and calling together the elders of the people, he declared all the words which the lord had commanded. and all the people answered together: all that the lord hath spoken, we will do. and when moyses had related the people's words to the lord, the lord said to him: lo, now will i come to thee in the darkness of a cloud, that the people may hear me speaking to thee, and may believe thee for ever. and moyses told the words of the people to the lord. and he said to him: go to the people, and sanctify them to day, and to morrow, and let them wash their garments, and let them be ready against the third day: for on the third day the lord will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount sinai. and thou shalt appoint certain limits to the people round about, and thou shalt say to them: take heed you go not up into the mount, and that ye touch not the borders thereof: every one that toucheth the mount dying he shall die. no hands shall touch him, but he shall be stoned to death, or shall be shot through with arrows: whether it be beast, or man, he shall not live. when the trumpet shall begin to sound, then let them go up into the mount. and moyses came down from the mount to the people, and sanctified them. and when they had washed their garments, he said to them: be ready against the third day, and come not near your wives. and now the third day was come, and the morning appeared: and behold thunders began to be heard, and lightning to flash, and a very thick cloud to cover the mount, and the noise of the trumpet sounded exceeding loud, and the people that was in the camp, feared. and when moyses had brought them forth to meet god from the place of the camp, they stood at the bottom of the mount. and all mount sinai was on a smoke: because the lord was come down upon it in fire, and the smoke arose from it as out of a furnace: and all the mount was terrible. and the sound of the trumpet grew by degrees louder and louder, and was drawn out to a greater length: moyses spoke, and god answered him. and the lord came down upon mount sinai, in the very top of the mount, and he called moyses unto the top thereof. and when he was gone up thither, he said unto him: go down, and charge the people: lest they should have a mind to pass the limits to see the lord, and a very great multitude of them should perish. the priests also that come to the lord, let them be sanctified, lest he strike them. and moyses said to the lord: the people cannot come up to mount sinai: for thou did charge, and command, saying: set limits about the mount, and sanctify it. and the lord said to him: go, get thee down: and thou shalt come up, thou and aaron with thee: but let not the priests and the people pass the limits, nor come up to the lord, lest he kill them. and moyses went down to the people and told them all.

and the lord spoke all these words: i am the lord thy god, who brought thee out of the land of egypt, out of the house of bondage. thou shalt not have strange gods before me. thou shalt not make to thyself a graven thing, nor the likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, nor of those things that are in the waters under the earth. thou shalt not adore them, nor serve them: i am the lord thy god, mighty, jealous, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me: and shewing mercy unto thousands to them that love me, and keep my commandments. thou shalt not take the name of the lord thy god in vain: for the lord will not hold him guiltless that shall take the name of the lord his god in vain. remember that thou keep holy the sabbath day. six days shalt thou labour, and shalt do all thy works. but on the seventh day is the sabbath of the lord thy god: thou shalt do no work on it, thou nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy beast, nor the stranger that is within thy gates. for in six days the lord made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all things that are in them, and rested on the seventh day: therefore the lord blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it. honour thy father and thy mother, that thou mayest be longlived upon the land which the lord thy god will give thee. thou shalt not kill. thou shalt not commit adultery. thou shalt not steal. thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour. thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house: neither shalt thou desire his wife, nor his servant, nor his handmaid, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is his. and all the people saw the voices and the flames, and the sound of the trumpet, and the mount smoking: and being terrified and struck with fear, they stood afar off, saying to moyses: speak thou to us, and we will hear: let not the lord speak to us, lest we die. and moyses said to the people: fear not: for god is come to prove you, and that the dread of him might be in you, and you should not sin. and the people stood afar off. but moyses went to the dark cloud wherein god was. and the lord said to moyses: thus shalt thou say to the children of israel: you have seen that i have spoken to you from heaven. you shall not make gods of silver, nor shall you make to yourselves gods of gold. you shall make an altar of earth unto me, and you shall offer upon it your holocausts and peace offerings, your sheep and oxen, in every place where the memory of my name shall be: i will come to thee, and will bless thee. and if thou make an altar of stone unto me, thou shalt not build it of hewn stones: for if thou lift up a tool upon it, it shall be defiled. thou shalt not go up by steps unto my altar, lest thy nakedness be discovered.

these are the judgments which thou shalt set before them. if thou buy a hebrew servant, six years shall he serve thee: in the seventh he shall go out free for nothing. with what raiment he came in, with the like let him go out: if having a wife, his wife also shall go out with him. but if his master gave him a wife, and she hath borne sons and daughters: the woman and her children shall be her master's: but he himself shall go out with his raiment. and if the servant shall say: i love my master and my wife and children, i will not go out free: his master shall bring him to the gods, and he shall be set to the door and the posts, and he shall bore his ear through with an awl: and he shall be his servant for ever. if any man sell his daughter to be a servant, she shall not go out as bondwomen are wont to go out. if she displease the eyes of her master to whom she was delivered, he shall let her go: but he shall have no power to sell her to a foreign nation, if he despise her. but if he have betrothed her to his son, he shall deal with her after the manner of daughters. and if he take another wife for him, he shall provide her a marriage, and raiment, neither shall he refuse the price of her chastity. if he do not these three things, she shall go out free without money. he that striketh a man with a will to kill him, shall be put to death. but he that did not lie in wait for him, but god delivered him into his hands: i will appoint thee a place to which he must flee. if a man kill his neighbour on set purpose and by lying in wait for him: thou shalt take him away from my altar, that he may die. he that striketh his father or mother, shall be put to death. he that shall steal a man, and sell him, being convicted of guilt, shall be put to death. he that curseth his father, or mother, shall die the death. if men quarrel, and the one strike his neighbour with a stone or with his fist, and he die not, but keepeth his bed: if he rise again and walk abroad upon his staff, he that struck him shall be quit, yet so that he make restitution for his work, and for his expenses upon the physicians. he that striketh his bondman or bondwoman with a rod, and they die under his hands, shall be guilty of the crime. but if the party remain alive a day or two, he shall not be subject to the punishment, because it is his money. if men quarrel, and one strike a woman with child, and she miscarry indeed, but live herself: he shall be answerable for so much damage as the woman's husband shall require, and as arbiters shall award. but if her death ensue thereupon, he shall render life for life. eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe. if any man strike the eye of his manservant or maidservant, and leave them but one eye, he shall let them go free for the eye which he put out. also if he strike out a tooth of his manservant or maidservant, he shall in like manner make them free. if an ox gore a man or a woman, and they die, he shall be stoned: and his flesh shall not be eaten, but the owner of the ox shall be quit. but if the ox was wont to push with his horn yesterday and the day before, and they warned his master, and he did not shut him up, and he shall kill a man or a woman: then the ox shall be stoned, an his owner also shall be put to death. and if they set a price upon him, he shall give for his life whatsoever is laid upon him. if he have gored a son, or a daughter, he shall fall under the like sentence. if he assault a bondman or a bond woman, he shall give thirty sicles of silver to their master, and the ox shall be stoned. if a man open a pit, and dig one, and cover it not, and an ox or an ass fall into it, the owner of the pit shall pay the price of the beasts: and that which is dead shall be his own. if one man's ox gore another man's ox, and he die: they shall sell the live ox, and shall divide the price, and the carcass of that which died they shall part between them: but if he knew that his ox was wont to push yesterday and the day before, and his master did not keep him in: he shall pay ox for ox, and shall take the whole carcass.

if any man steal an ox or a sheep, and kill or sell it: he shall restore five oxen for one ox, and four sheep for one sheep. if a thief be found breaking open a house or undermining it, and be wounded so as to die: he that slew him shall not be guilty of blood. but if he did this when the sun is risen, he hath committed murder, and he shall die. if he have not wherewith to make restitution for the theft, he shall be sold. if that which he stole be found with him, alive, either ox, or ass, or sheep: he shall restore double. if any man hurt a field or a vineyard, and put in his beast to feed upon that which is other men's: he shall restore the best of whatsoever he hath in his own field, or in his vineyard, according to the estimation of the damage. if a fire breaking out light upon thorns, and catch stacks of corn, or corn standing in the fields, he that kindled the fire shall make good the loss. if a man deliver money, or any vessel unto his friend to keep, and they be stolen away from him that received them: if the thief be found he shall restore double: if the thief be not known, the master of the house shall be brought to the gods, and shall swear that he did not lay his hand upon his neighbour's goods, to do any fraud, either in ox, or in ass, or sheep, or raiment, or any thing that may bring damage: the cause of both parties shall come to the gods: and if they give judgment, he shall restore double to his neighbour. if a man deliver ass, ox, sheep, or any beast, to his neighbour's custody, and it die, or be hurt, or be taken by enemies, and no man saw it: there shall be an oath between them, that he did not put forth his hand to his neighbour's goods: and the owner shall accept of the oath: and he shall not be compelled to make restitution. but if it were taken away by stealth, he shall make the loss good to the owner. if it were eaten by a beast, let him bring to him that which was slain, and he shall not make restitution. if a man borrow of his neighbour any of these things, and it be hurt or die, the owner not being present, he shall be obliged to make restitution. but if the owner be present, he shall not make restitution, especially if it were hired and came for the hire of his work. if a man seduce a virgin not yet espoused, and lie with her: he shall endow her, and have her to wife. if the maid's father will not give her to him, he shall give money according to the dowry, which virgins are wont to receive. wizards thou shalt not suffer to live. whosoever copulateth with a beast shall be put to death. he that sacrificeth to gods, shall be put to death, save only to the lord. thou shalt not molest a stranger, nor afflict him: for yourselves also were strangers in the land of egypt. you shall not hurt a widow or an orphan. if you hurt them they will cry out to me, and i will hear their cry: and my rage shall be enkindled, and i will strike you with the sword, and your wives shall be widows, and your children fatherless. if thou lend money to any of my people that is poor, that dwelleth with thee, thou shalt not be hard upon them as an extortioner, nor oppress them with usuries. if thou take of thy neighbour a garment in pledge, thou shalt give it him again before sunset. for that same is the only thing wherewith he is covered, the clothing of his body, neither hath he any other to sleep in: if he cry to me, i will hear him, because i am compassionate. thou shalt not speak ill of the gods, and the prince of thy people thou shalt not curse. thou shalt not delay to pay thy tithes and thy firstfruits: thou shalt give the firstborn of thy sons to me. thou shalt do the same with the firstborn of thy oxen also and sheep: seven days let it be with its dam, the eighth day thou shalt give it to me. you shall be holy men to me: the flesh that beasts have tasted of before, you shall not eat, but shall cast it to the dogs.

thou shalt not receive the voice of a lie: neither shalt thou join thy hand to bear false witness for a wicked person. thou shalt not follow the multitude to do evil: neither shalt thou yield in judgment, to the opinion of the most part, to stray from the truth. neither shalt thou favour a poor man in judgment. if thou meet thy enemy's ox or ass going astray, bring it back to him. if thou see the ass of him that hateth thee lie underneath his burden, thou shalt not pass by, but shalt lift him up with him. thou shalt not go aside in the poor man's judgment. thou shalt fly lying. the innocent and just person thou shalt not put to death: because i abhor the wicked. neither shalt thou take bribes, which even blind the wise, and pervert the words of the just. thou shalt not molest a stranger, for you know the hearts of strangers: for you also were strangers in the land of egypt. six years thou shalt sow thy ground, and shalt gather the corn thereof. but the seventh year thou shalt let it alone, and suffer it to rest, that the poor of thy people may eat, and whatsoever shall be left, let the beasts of the field eat it: so shalt thou do with thy vineyard and thy oliveyard. six days thou shalt work: the seventh day thou shalt cease, that thy ox and thy ass may rest: and the son of thy handmaid and the stranger may be refreshed. keep all things that i have said to you. and by the name of strange gods you shall not swear, neither shall it be heard out of your mouth. three times every year you shall celebrate feasts to me. thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread. seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread, as i commanded thee, in the time of the month of new corn, when thou didst come forth out of egypt: thou shalt not appear empty before me. and the feast of the harvest of the firstfruits of thy work, whatsoever thou hast sown in the field. the feast also in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in all thy corn out of the field. thrice a year shall all thy males appear before the lord thy god. thou shalt not sacrifice the blood of my victim upon leaven, neither shall the fat of my solemnity remain until the morning. thou shalt carry the firstfruits of the corn of thy ground to the house of the lord thy god. thou shalt not boil a kid in the milk of his dam. behold i will send my angel, who shall go before thee, and keep thee in thy journey, and bring thee into the place that i have prepared. take notice of him, and hear his voice, and do not think him one to be contemned: for he will not forgive when thou hast sinned, and my name is in him. but if thou wilt hear his voice, and do all that i speak, i will be an enemy to thy enemies, and will afflict them that afflict thee. and my angel shall go before thee, and shall bring thee in unto the amorrhite, and the hethite, and the pherezite, and the chanaanite, and the hevite, and the jebusite, whom i will destroy. thou shalt not adore their gods, nor serve them. thou shalt not do their works, but shalt destroy them, and break their statues. and you shall serve the lord your god, that i may bless your bread and your waters, and may take away sickness from the midst of thee. there shall not be one fruitless nor barren in thy land: i will fill the number of thy days. i will send my fear before thee, and will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come: and will turn the backs of all thy enemies before thee. sending out hornets before, that shall drive away the hevite, and the chanaanite, and the hethite, before thou come in. i will not cast them out from thy face in one year: lest the land be brought into a wilderness, and the beasts multiply against thee. by little and little i will drive them out from before thee, till thou be increased, and dost possess the land. and i will set thy bounds from the red sea to the sea of the palestines, and from the desert to the river: i will deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hands, and will drive them out from before you. thou shalt not enter into league with them, nor with their gods. let them not dwell in thy land, lest perhaps thy make thee sin against me, if thou serve their god: which undoubtedly will be a scandal to thee.

and he said to moyses: come up to the lord, thou, and aaron, nadab, and abiu, and seventy of the ancients of israel, and you shall adore afar off. and moyses alone shall come up to the lord, but they shall not come nigh; neither shall the people come up with him. so moyses came and told the people all the words of the lord, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice: we will do all the words of the lord, which he hath spoken. and moyses wrote all the words of the lord: and rising in the morning he built an altar at the foot of the mount, and twelve tables according to the twelve tribes of israel. and he sent young men of the children of israel, and they offered holocausts, and sacrificed pacific victims of calves to the lord. then moyses took half of the blood, and put it into bowls: and the rest he poured upon the altar. and taking the book of the covenant, he read it in the hearing of the people: and they said: all things that the lord hath spoken we will do, we will be obedient. and he took the blood and sprinkled it upon the people, and he said: this is the blood of the covenant which the lord hath made with you concerning all these words. then moyses and aaron, nadab and abiu, and seventy of the ancients of israel went up: and they saw the god of israel: and under his feet as it were a work of sapphire stone, and as the heaven, when clear. neither did he lay his hand upon those of the children of israel, that retired afar off, and they saw god, and they did eat and drink. and the lord said to moyses: come up to me into the mount, and be there: and i will give thee tables of stone, and the law, and the commandments which i have written: that thou mayst teach them. moſes roſe up, and his miniſter joſue: and moſes going up into the mount of god, ſaid to the ancients: wait ye here till we return to you. you have aaron and hur with you: if any queſtion ſhall ariſe, you ſhall refer it to them. and when moſes was gone up, a cloud covered the mount. and the glory of the lord dwelt upon ſinai, covering it with a cloud ſix days: and the ſeventh day he called him out of the miſt of the cloud. and the ſight of the glory of the lord was like a burning fire upon the top of the mount, in the eyes of the children of iſrael. and moſes, entering into the miſt of the cloud, went up into the mountain: and he was there forty days, and forty nights.

and the lord ſpoke to moſes, ſaying: ſpeak to the children of iſrael, that they bring firſtfruits to me: of every man that offereth of his own accord, you ſhall take them. and theſe are the things you muſt take: gold, and ſilver, and braſs, violet and purple, and ſcarlet twice dyed, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and rams' ſkins dyed red, and violet ſkins, and ſetim wood: oil to make lights: ſpices for ointment, and for ſweetſmelling incenſe: onyx ſtones, and precious ſtones to adorn the ephod and the rational. and they ſhall make me a ſanctuary, and i will dwell in the miſt of them: according to all the likenneſs of the tabernacle which i will ſhew thee, and of all the veſſels for the ſervice thereof: and thus you ſhall make it: frame an ark of ſetim wood, the length whereof ſhall be of two cubits and a half: the breadth, a cubit and a half: the height, likewise, a cubit and a half. and thou ſhalt overlay it with the pureſt gold within and without: and over it thou ſhalt make a golden crown round about: and four golden rings, which thou ſhalt put at the four corners of the ark: let two rings be on the one ſide, and two on the other. thou ſhalt make bars alſo of ſetim wood, and ſhalt overlay them with gold. and thou ſhalt put them in through the rings that are in the ſides of the ark, that it may be carried on them. and they ſhall be always in the rings, neither ſhall they at any time be drawn out of them. and thou ſhalt put in the ark the teſtimony which i will give thee. thou ſhalt make alſo a propitiatory of the pureſt gold: the length thereof ſhall be two cubits and a half, and the breadth a cubit and a half. thou ſhalt make alſo two cherubims of beaten gold, on the two ſides of the oracle. let one cherub be on the one ſide, and the other on the other. let them cover both ſides of the propitiatory, ſpreading their wings, and covering the oracle, and let them look one towards the other, their faces being turned towards the propitiatory where-with the ark is to be covered. in which thou ſhalt put the teſtimony that i will give thee. thence will i give orders, and will ſpeak to thee over the propitiatory, and from the miſt of the two cherubims, which ſhall be upon the ark of the teſtimony, all things which i will command the children of iſrael by thee. thou ſhalt make a table alſo of ſetim wood, of two cubits in length, and a cubit in breadth, and a cubit and half in height. and thou ſhalt overlay it with the pureſt gold: and thou ſhalt make to it a golden ledge round about. and to the ledge itſelf a poliſhed crown, four inches high: and over the ſame another little golden crown. thou ſhalt prepare alſo four golden rings, and ſhalt put them in the four corners of the ſame table over each foot. under the crown ſhall the golden rings be, that the bars may be put through them, and the table may be carried. the bars alſo themſelves thou ſhalt make of ſetim wood, and ſhalt overlay them with gold to bear up the table. thou ſhalt prepare alſo diſhes, and bowls, cenſers, and cups, wherein the libations are to be offered of the pureſt gold. and thou ſhalt ſet upon the table loaves of propoſition in my ſight always. thou ſhalt make alſo a candleſtick of beaten work of the fineſt gold, the ſhaft thereof, and the branches, the cups, and the bowls, and the lilies going forth from it. ſix branches ſhall come out of the ſides, three out of the one ſide, and three out of the other. three cups as it were nuts to every branch, and a bowl withal, and a lily: and three cups, likewise of the faſhion of nuts in the other branch, and a bowl withal, and a lily. ſuch ſhall be the work of the ſix branches, that are to come out from the ſhaft: and in the candleſtick itſelf ſhall be four cups in the manner of a nut, and at every one, bowls and lilies. bowls under two branches in three places, which together make ſix coming forth out of one ſhaft. and both the bowls and the branches ſhall be of the ſame beaten work of the pureſt gold. thou ſhalt make alſo ſeven lamps, and ſhalt ſet them upon the candleſtick, to give light over againſt. the ſnuffers alſo and where the ſnuffings ſhall be put out, ſhall be made of the pureſt gold. the whole weight of the candleſtick with all the furniture thereof ſhall be a talent of the pureſt gold. look and make it according to the pattern, that was ſhewn thee in the mount.

and thou ſhalt make the tabernacle in this manner: thou ſhalt make ten curtains of fine twiſted linen, and violet and purple, and ſcarlet twice dyed, diverſified with embroidery. the length of one curtain ſhall be twenty-eight cubits, the breadth ſhall be four cubits. all the curtains ſhall be of one meaſure. five curtains ſhall be joined one to another, and the other five ſhall be coupled together in like manner. thou ſhalt make loops of violet in the ſides and tops of the curtains, that they may be joined one to another. every curtain ſhall have fifty loops on both ſides, ſo ſet on, that one loop may be againſt another loop, and one may be fitted to the other. thou ſhalt make alſo fifty rings of gold wherewith the veils of the curtains are to be joined, that it may be made one tabernacle. thou ſhalt make alſo eleven curtains of goats' hair, to cover the top of the tabernacle. the length of one hair curtain ſhall be thirty cubits: and the breadth four: the meaſure of all the curtains ſhall be equal. five of which thou ſhalt couple by themſelves, and the ſix others thou ſhalt couple one to another, ſo as to double the ſixth curtain in the front of the roof. thou ſhalt make alſo fifty loops in the edge of one curtain, that it may be joined with the other: and fifty loops in the edge of the other curtain, that it may be coupled with its fellow. thou shalt make also fifty buckles of brass, wherewith the loops may be joined, that of all there may be made one covering. and that which shall remain of the curtains, that are prepared for the roof, to wit, one curtain that is over and above, with the half thereof thou shalt cover the back parts of the tabernacle. and there shall hang down a cubit on the one side, and another on the other side, which is over and above in the length of the curtains, fencing both sides of the tabernacle. thou shalt make also another cover to the roof, of rams' skins dyed red; and over that again another cover of violet coloured skins. thou shalt make also the boards of the tabernacle standing upright of setim wood. let every one of them be ten cubits in length, and in breadth on cubit and a half. in the sides of the boards shall be made two mortises, whereby one board may be joined to another board: and after this manner shall all the boards be prepared. of which twenty shall be in the south side southward. for which thou shalt cast forty sockets of silver, that under every board may be put two sockets at the two corners. in the second side also the tabernacle that looketh to the north, there shall be twenty boards, having forty sockets of silver, two sockets shall be put under each board. but on the west side of the tabernacle thou shalt make six boards. and again other two which shall be erected in the corners at the back of the tabernacle. and they shall be joined together from beneath unto the top, and one joint shall hold them all. the like joining shall be observed for the two boards also that are to be put in the corners. and they shall be in all eight boards, and their silver sockets sixteen, reckoning two sockets for each board. thou shalt make also five bars of setim wood, to hold together the boards on one side of the tabernacle. and five others on the other side, and as many at the west side: and they shall be put along by the midst of the boards from one end to the other. the boards also themselves thou shalt overlay with gold, and shall cast rings of gold to be set upon them, for places for the bars to hold together boardwork: which bars thou shalt cover with plates of gold. and thou shalt rear up the tabernacle according to the pattern that was shewn thee in the mount. thou shalt make also a veil of violet and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine twisted linen, wrought with embroidered work, and goodly variety: and thou shalt hang it up before four pillars of setim wood, which themselves also shall be overlaid with gold, and shall have heads of gold, but sockets of silver. and the veils shall be hanged on with rings, and within it thou shalt put the ark of the testimony, and the sanctuary, and the holy of holies shall be divided with it. and thou shalt set the propitiatory upon the ark of the testimony in the holy of holies. and the table without the veil: and over against the table the candlestick in the south side of the tabernacle; for the table shall stand in the north side. thou shalt make also a hanging in the entrance of the tabernacle of violet and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine twisted linen with embroidered work. and thou shalt overlay with gold five pillars of setim wood, before which the hanging shall be drawn: their heads shall be of gold, and the sockets of brass.

thou shalt make also an altar of setim wood, which shall be five cubits long and as many broad, that is, foursquare, and three cubits high. and there shall be horns at the four corners of the same: and thou shalt cover it with brass. and thou shalt make for the uses thereof pans to receive the ashes, and tongs and flesh-hooks, and firepans: all its vessels thou shalt make of brass. and a grate of brass in manner of a net: at the four corners of which shall be four rings of brass, which thou shalt put under the hearth of the altar: and the grate shall be even to the midst of the altar. thou shalt make also two bars for the altar of setim wood, which thou shalt cover with plates of brass: and thou shalt draw them through rings, and they shall be on both sides of the altar to carry it. thou shalt not make it solid, but empty and hollow in the inside, as it was shewn thee in the mount. thou shalt make also the court of the tabernacle, in the south side whereof southward there shall be hangings of fine twisted linen of a hundred cubits long for one side. and twenty pillars with as many sockets of brass, the heads of which with their engraving of silver. in like manner also on the north side there shall be hangings of a hundred cubits long, twenty pillars, and as many sockets of brass, and their heads with their engraving of silver. but in the breadth of the court, that looketh to the west, there shall be hangings of fifty cubits, and ten pillars, and as many sockets. in that breadth also of the court, which looketh to the east, there shall be fifty cubits. in which there shall be for one side hangings of fifteen cubits, and three pillars and as many sockets. and in the other side there shall be hangings of fifteen cubits, with three pillars and as many sockets. and in the entrance of the court there shall be made a hanging of twenty cubits of violet and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine twisted linen, with embroidered work: it shall have four pillars with as many sockets. all the pillars of the court round about shall be garnished with plates of silver, silver heads and sockets of brass. in length the court shall take up a hundred cubits, in breadth fifty, the height shall be of five cubits, and it shall be made of fine twisted linen, and shall have sockets of brass. all the vessels of the tabernacle for all uses and ceremonies, and the pins both of it, and of the court, thou shalt make of brass. command the children of israel that they bring thee the purest oil of the olives, and beaten with a pestle: that a lamp may burn always, in the tabernacle of the testimony without the veil that hangs before the testimony. and aaron and his sons shall order it, that it may give light before the lord until the morning. it shall be a perpetual observance throughout their successions among the children of israel.

take unto thee also aaron thy brother with his sons, from among the children of israel, that they may minister to me in the priest's office: aaron, nadab, and abiu, eleazar, and ithamar. and thou shalt make a holy vesture for aaron thy brother for glory and for beauty. and thou shalt speak to all the wise of heart, whom i have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make aaron's vestments, in which he being consecrated may minister to me. and these shall be the vestments that they shall make: a rational and an ephod, a tunick and a strait linen garment, a mitre and a girdle. they shall make the holy vestments for thy brother aaron and his sons, that they may do the office of priesthood unto me. and they shall take gold, and violet, and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine linen. and they shall make the ephod of gold, and violet, and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine twisted linen, embroidered with divers colours. it shall have the two edges joined in the top on both sides, that they may be closed together. the very workmanship also and all the variety of the work shall be of gold, and violet, and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine twisted linen. and thou shalt take two onyx stones, and shalt grave on them the names of the children of israel: six names on one stone, and the other six on the other, according to the order of their birth. with the work of an engraver and the graving of a jeweller, thou shalt engrave them with the names of the children of israel, set in gold and compassed about: and thou shalt put them in both sides of the ephod, a memorial for the children of israel. and aaron shall bear their names before the lord upon both shoulders, for a remembrance. thou shalt make also hooks of gold. and two little chains of the purest gold linked one to another, which thou shalt put into the hooks. and thou shalt make the rational of judgment with embroidered work of divers colours, according to the workmanship of the ephod, of gold, violet, and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine twisted linen. it shall be foursquare and doubled: it shall be the measure of a span both in length and in breadth. and thou shalt set in it four rows of stones: in the first row shall be a sardius stone, and a topaz, and an emerald: in the second a carbuncle, a sapphire and a jasper. in the third a ligurius, an agate, and an amethyst: in the fourth a chrysolite, an onyx, and a beryl. they shall be set in gold by their rows. and they shall have the names of the children of israel: with twelve names shall they be engraved, each stone with the name of one according to the twelve tribes. and thou shalt make on the rational chains linked one to another of the purest gold: and two rings of gold, which thou shalt put in the two ends at the top of the rational. and the golden chains thou shalt join to the rings, that are in the ends thereof: and the ends of the chains themselves thou shalt join together with two hooks on both sides of the ephod, which is towards the rational. thou shalt make also two rings of gold which thou shalt put in the top parts of the rational, in the borders that are over against the ephod, and look towards the back parts thereof. moreover also other two rings of gold, which are to be set on each side of the ephod beneath, that looketh towards the nether joining, that the rational may be fitted with the ephod, and may be fastened by the rings thereof unto the rings of the ephod with a violet fillet, that the joining artificially wrought may continue, and the rational and the ephod may not be loosed one from the other. and aaron shall bear the names of the children of israel in the rational of judgement upon his breast, when he shall enter into the sanctuary, a memorial before the lord for ever. and thou shalt put in the rational of judgment doctrine and truth, which shall be on aaron's breast, when he shall go in before the lord: and he shall bear the judgment of the children of israel on his breast, in the sight of the lord always. and thou shalt make the tunick of the ephod all of violet, in the midst whereof above shall be a hole for the head, and a border round about it woven, as is wont to be made in the outmost parts of garments, that it may not easily be broken. and beneath at the feet of the same tunick round about, thou shalt make as it were pomegranates, of violet, and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, with little bells set between: so that there shall be a golden bell and a pomegranate, and again another golden bell and a pomegranate. and aaron shall be vested with it in the office of his ministry, that the sound may be heard, when he goeth in and cometh out of the sanctuary, in the sight of the lord, and that he may not die. thou shalt make also a plate of the purest gold: wherein thou shalt grave with engraver's work, holy to the lord. and thou shalt tie it with a violet fillet, and it shall be upon the mitre, hanging over the forehead of the high priest. and aaron shall bear the iniquities of those things, which the children of israel have offered and sanctified, in all their gifts and offerings. and the plate shall be always on his forehead, that the lord may be well pleased with them. and thou shalt gird the tunick with fine linen, and thou shalt make a fine linen mitre, and a girdle of embroidered work. moreover for the sons of aaron thou shalt prepare linen tunicks, and girdles and mitres for glory and beauty: and with all these things thou shalt vest aaron thy brother, and his sons with him. and thou shalt consecrate the hands of them all, and shalt sanctify them, that they may do the office of priesthood unto me. thou shalt make also linen breeches, to cover the flesh of their nakedness from the reins to the thighs: and aaron and his sons shall use them when they shall go in to the tabernacle of the testimony, or when they approach the altar to minister in the sanctuary, lest being guilty of iniquity they die. it shall be a law for ever to aaron, and to his seed after him.

and thou shalt also do this, that they may be consecrated to me in priesthood. take a calf from the herd, and two rams without blemish, and unleavened bread, and a cake without leaven, tempered with oil, wafers also unleavened anointed with oil: thou shalt make them all of wheat flour. and thou shalt put them in a basket and offer them: and the calf and the two rams. and thou shalt bring aaron and his sons to the door of the tabernacle of the testimony. and when thou hast washed the father and his sons with water, thou shalt clothe aaron with his vestments, that is, with the linen garment and the tunic, and the ephod and the rational, which thou shalt gird with the girdle. and thou shalt put the mitre upon his head, and the holy plate upon the mitre, and thou shalt pour the oil of unction upon his head: and by this rite shall he be consecrated. thou shalt bring his sons also and shalt put on them the linen tunicks, and gird them with a girdle: to wit, aaron and his children, and thou shalt put mitres upon them: and they shall be priests to me by a perpetual ordinance. after thou shalt have consecrated their hands, thou shalt present also the calf before the tabernacle of the testimony. and aaron and his sons shall lay their hands upon his head, and thou shalt kill him in the sight of the lord, beside the door of the tabernacle of the testimony. and taking some of the blood of the calf, thou shalt put it upon the horns of the altar with thy finger, and the rest of the blood thou shalt pour at the bottom thereof. thou shalt take also all the fat that covereth the entrails, and the caul of the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and shalt offer a burnt offering upon the altar: but the flesh of the calf and the hide and the dung, thou shalt burn abroad, without the camp, because it is for sin. thou shalt take also one ram upon the head whereof aaron and his sons shall lay their hands. and when thou hast killed him, thou shalt take of the blood thereof, and pour round about the altar: and thou shalt cut the ram in pieces, and having washed his entrails and feet, thou shalt put them upon the flesh that is cut in pieces, and upon his head. and thou shalt offer the whole ram for a burnt offering upon the altar: it is an oblation to the lord, a most sweet savour of the victim of the lord. thou shalt take also the other ram, upon whose head aaron and his sons shall lay their hands. and when thou hast sacrificed him, thou shalt take of his blood, and put upon the tip of the right ear of aaron and of his sons, and upon the thumbs and great toes of their right hand and foot, and thou shalt pour the blood upon the altar round about. and when thou hast taken of the blood, that is upon the altar, and of the oil of unction, thou shalt sprinkle aaron and his vesture, his sons and their vestments. and after they and their vestments are consecrated, thou shalt take the fat of the ram, and the rump, and the fat that covereth the lungs, and the caul of the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and the right shoulder, because it is the ram of consecration. and one roll of bread, a cake tempered with oil, a wafer out of the basket of unleavened bread, which is set in the sight of the lord. and thou shalt put all upon the hands of aaron and of his sons, and shalt sanctify them elevating before the lord. and thou shalt take all from their hands, and shalt burn them upon the altar for a holocaust, a most sweet savour in the sight of the lord, because it is his oblation. thou shalt take also the breast of the ram, wherewith aaron was consecrated, and elevating it thou shalt sanctify it before the lord, and it shall fall to thy share. and thou shalt sanctify both the consecrated breast, and the shoulder that thou didst separate of the ram, wherewith aaron was consecrated and his sons, and they shall fall to aarons share and his sons' by a perpetual right from the children of israel: because they are the choicest and the beginnings of their peace victims which they offer to the lord. and the holy vesture, which aaron shall use, his sons shall have after him, that they may be anointed, and their hands consecrated to it. he of his sons that shall be appointed high priest in his stead, and that shall enter into the tabernacle of the testimony to minister in the sanctuary, shall wear it seven days. and thou shalt take the ram of the consecration, and shalt boil the flesh thereof in the holy place: and aaron and his sons shall eat it. the loaves also, that are in the basket, they shall eat in the entry of the tabernacle of the testimony, that it may be an atoning sacrifice, and the hands of the offerers may be sanctified. a stranger shall not eat of them, because they are holy. and if there remain of the consecrated flesh, or of the bread till the morning, thou shalt burn the remainder with fire: they shall not be eaten, because they are sanctified. all that i have commanded thee, thou shalt do unto aaron and his sons. seven days shalt thou consecrate their hands: and thou shalt offer a calf for sin every day for expiation. and thou shalt cleanse the altar when thou hast offered the victim of expiation, and shalt anoint it to sanctify it. seven days shalt thou expiate the altar and sanctify it, and it shall be most holy. every one that shall touch it shall be holy. this is what thou shalt sacrifice upon the altar: two lambs of a year old every day continually. one lamb in the morning and another in the evening. with one lamb a tenth part of flour tempered with beaten oil, of the fourth part of a hin, and wine for libation of the same measure. and the other lamb thou shalt offer in the evening, according to the rite of the morning oblation, and according to what we have said, for a savour of sweetness: it is a sacrifice to the lord, by perpetual oblation unto your generations, at the door of the tabernacle of the testimony before the lord, where i will appoint to speak unto thee. and there will i command the children of israel, and the altar shall be sanctified by my glory. i will sanctify also the tabernacle of the testimony with the altar, and aaron with his sons, to do the office of priesthood unto me. and i will dwell in the midst of the children of israel, and will be their god: and they shall know that i am the lord their god, who have brought them out of the land of egypt, that i might abide among them, i the lord their god.

thou shalt make also an altar to burn incense, of setim wood. it shall be a cubit in length, and another in breadth, that is, foursquare, and two in height. horns shall go out of the same. and thou shalt overlay it with the purest gold, as well as the grate thereof, as the walls round about and the horns. and thou shalt make to it a crown of gold round about, and two golden rings under the crown on either side, that the bars may be put into them, and the altar be carried. and

thou shalt make the bars also of setim wood, and shalt overlay them with gold. and thou shalt set the altar over against the veil, that hangeth before the ark of the testimony before the propitiatory wherewith the testimony is covered, where i will speak to thee. and aaron shall burn sweet smelling incense upon it in the morning. when he shall dress the lamps, he shall burn it: and when he shall place them in the evening, he shall burn an everlasting incense before the lord throughout your generations. you shall not offer upon it incense of another composition nor oblation, and victim, neither shall you offer libations. and aaron shall pray upon the horns thereof once a year, with the blood of that which was offered for sin, and shall make atonement upon it in your generations. it shall be most holy to the lord. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: when thou shalt take the sum of the children of israel according to their number, every one of them shall give a price for their souls to the lord, and there shall be no scourge among them, when they shall be reckoned. and this shall every one give that passeth at the naming, half a sicle according to the standard of the temple. a sicle hath twenty obols. half a sicle shall be offered to the lord. he that is counted in the number from twenty years and upwards, shall give the price. the rich man shall not add to half a sicle, and the poor man shall diminish nothing. and the money received which was contributed by the children of israel, thou shalt deliver unto the uses of the tabernacle of the testimony, that it may be a memorial of them before the lord, and he may be merciful to their souls. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: thou shalt make also a brazen laver with its foot, to wash in: and thou shalt set it between the tabernacle of the testimony and the altar. and water being put into it, aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and feet in it: when they are going into the tabernacle of the testimony, and when they are to come to the altar, to offer on it incense to the lord, lest perhaps they die. it shall be an everlasting law to him, and to his seed by successions. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: take spices, of principal and chosen myrrh five hundred sicles, and of cinnamon half so much, that is, two hundred and fifty sicles, of calamus in like manner two hundred and fifty. and of cassia five hundred sicles by the weight of the sanctuary, of oil of olives the measure hin: and thou shalt make the holy oil of unction, an ointment compounded after the art of the perfumer, and therewith thou shalt anoint the tabernacle of the testimony, and the ark of the testament, and the table with the vessels thereof, the candlestick and furniture thereof, the altars of incense, and of holocaust, and all the furniture that belongeth to the service of them. and thou shalt sanctify all, and they shall be most holy: he that shall touch them shall be sanctified. thou shalt anoint aaron and his sons, and shalt sanctify them, that they may do the office of priesthood unto me. and thou shalt say to the children of israel: this oil of unction shall be holy unto me throughout your generations. the flesh of man shall not be anointed therewith, and you shall make none other of the same composition, because it is sanctified, and shall be holy unto you. what man soever shall compound such, and shall give thereof to a stranger, he shall be cut off from his people. and the lord said to moyses: take unto thee spices, stacte, and onycha, galbanum of sweet savour, and the clearest frankincense, all shall be of equal weight. and thou shalt make incense compounded by the work of the perfumer, well tempered together, and pure, and most worthy of sanctification. and when thou has beaten all into very small powder, thou shalt set of it before the tabernacle of the testimony, in the place where i will appear to thee. most holy shall this incense be to you. you shall not make such a composition for your own uses, because it is holy to the lord. what man soever shall make the like, to enjoy the smell thereof, he shall perish out of his people.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: behold, i have called by name beseleel the son of uri the son of hur of the tribe of juda, and i have filled him with the spirit of god, with wisdom and understanding, and knowledge in all manner of work. to devise whatsoever may be artificially made of gold, and silver, and brass, of marble, and precious stones, and variety of wood. and i have given him for his companion ooliab the son of achisamech of the tribe of dan. and i have put wisdom in the heart of every skilful man, that they may make all things which i have commanded thee, the tabernacle of the covenant, and the ark of the testimony, and the propitiatory that is over it, and all the vessels of the tabernacle, and the table and the vessels thereof, the most pure candlestick with the vessels thereof, and the altars of incense, and of holocaust, and all their vessels, the laver with its foot, the holy vestments in the ministry for aaron the priest, and for his sons, that they may execute their office about the sacred things: the oil of unction, and the incense of spices in the sanctuary, all things which i have commanded thee, shall they make. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: see that thou keep my sabbath: because it is a sign between me and you in your generations: that you may know that i am the lord, who sanctify you. keep you my sabbath: for it is holy unto you: he that shall profane it, shall be put to death: he that shall do my work in it, his soul shall perish out of the midst of his people. six days shall you do work: in the seventh day is the sabbath, the rest holy to the lord. every one that shall do any work on this day, shall die. let the children of israel keep the sabbath, and celebrate it in their generations. it is an everlasting covenant between me and the children of israel, and a perpetual sign. for in six days the lord made heaven and earth, and in the seventh he ceased from work. and the lord, when he had ended these words in mount sinai, gave to moyses two stone tables of testimony, written with the finger of god.

and the people seeing that moyses delayed to come down from the mount, gathering together against aaron, said: arise, make us gods, that may go before us: for as to this moyses, the man that brought us out of the land of egypt, we know not what has befallen him. and aaron said to them: take the golden earrings from the ears of your wives, and your sons and daughters, and bring them to me. and the people did what he had commanded, bringing the earrings to aaron. and when he had received them, he fashioned them by founders' work, and made of them a molten calf. and they said: these are thy gods, o israel, that have brought thee out of the land of egypt. and when aaron saw this, he built an altar before it, and made proclamation by a crier's voice, saying: to morrow is the solemnity of the lord. and rising in the morning, they offered holocausts, and peace victims, and the people sat down to eat, and drink, and they rose up to play. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: go, get thee down: thy people, which thou hast brought out of the land of egypt, hath sinned. they have quickly strayed from the way which thou didst shew them: and they have made to themselves a molten calf, and have adored it, and sacrificing victims to it, have said: these are thy gods, o israel, that have brought thee out of the land of egypt. and again the lord said to moyses: see that this people is stiffnecked: let me alone, that my wrath may be kindled against them, and that i may destroy them, and i will make of thee a great nation. but moyses besought the lord his god, saying: why, o lord, is thy indignation kindled against thy people, whom thou hast brought out of the land of egypt, with great power, and with a mighty hand? let not the egyptians say, i beseech thee: he craftily brought them out, that he might kill them in the mountains, and destroy them from the earth: let thy anger cease, and be appeased upon the wickedness of thy people. remember abraham, isaac, and israel, thy servants, to whom thou swarest by thy own self, saying: i will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven: and this whole land that i have spoken of, i will give to you seed, and you shall possess it for ever. and the lord was appeased from doing the evil which he had spoken against his people. and moyses returned from the mount, carrying the two tables of the testimony in his hand, written on both sides, and made by the work of god: the writing also of god was graven in the tables. and josue hearing the noise of the people shouting, said to moyses: the noise of battle is heard in the camp. but he answered: it is not the cry of men encouraging to fight, nor the shout of men compelling to flee: but i hear the voice of singers. and when he came nigh to the camp, he saw the calf, and the dances: and being very angry, he threw the tables out of his hand, and broke them at the foot of the mount: and laying hold of the calf which they had made, he burnt it, and beat it to powder, which he strowed into water, and gave thereof to the children of israel to drink. and he said to aaron: what has this people done to thee, that thou shouldst bring upon them a most heinous sin? and he answered him: let not my lord be offended: for thou knowest this people, that they are prone to evil. they said to me: make us gods, that may go before us: for as to this moyses, who brought us forth out of the land of egypt, we know not what is befallen him. and i said to them: which of you hath any gold? and they took and brought it to me: and i cast it into the fire, and this calf came out. and when moyses saw that the people were naked, (for aaron had stripped them by occasion of the shame of the filth, and had set them naked among their enemies,) then standing in the gate of the camp, he said: if any man be on the lord's side let him join with me. and all the sons of levi gathered themselves together unto him: and he said to them: thus saith the lord god of israel: put every man his sword upon his thigh: go, and return from gate to gate through the midst of the camp, and let every man kill his brother, and friend, and neighbour. and the sons of levi did according to the words of moyses, and there were slain that day about three and twenty thousand men. and moyses said: you have consecrated your hands this day to the lord, every man in his son and in his brother, that a blessing may be given to you. and when the next day was come, moyses spoke to the people: you have sinned a very great sin: i will go up to the lord, if by any means i may be able to entreat him for your crime. and returning to the lord, he said: i beseech thee: this people hath sinned a heinous sin, and they have made to themselves gods of gold: either forgive them this trespass, or if thou do not, strike me out of the book that thou hast written. and the lord answered him: he that hath sinned against me, him will i strike out of my book: but go thou, and lead this people whither i have told thee: my angel shall go before thee. and i in the day of revenge will visit this sin also of theirs. the lord therefore struck the people for the guilt on occasion of the calf which aaron had made.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: god, get thee up from this place, thou and thy people which thou has brought out of the land of egypt, into the land concerning which i swore to abraham, isaac, and jacob, saying: to thy seed i will give it. and i will send an angel before thee, that i may cast out the chanaanite, and the amorrhite, and the hethite, and the pherezite, and the hevite, and the jebusite. that thou mayst enter into the land that floweth with milk and honey. for i will not go up with thee, because thou art a stiff-necked people: lest i destroy thee in the way. and the people hearing these very bad tidings, mourned: and no man put on his ornaments according to custom. and the lord said to moyses: say to the children of israel: thou art a stiff-necked people; once i shall come up in the midst of thee, and shall destroy thee. now presently lay aside thy ornaments, that i may know what to do with thee. so the children of israel laid aside their ornaments by mount horeb. moyses also taking the tabernacle, pitched it without the camp afar off, and called the name thereof, the tabernacle of the covenant. and all the people that had any question, went forth to the tabernacle of the covenant, without the camp. and when moyses went forth to the tabernacle, all the people rose up, and every one stood in the door of his pavilion, and they beheld the back of moyses, till he went into the tabernacle. and when he was gone into the tabernacle of the covenant, the pillar of the cloud came down, and stood at the door, and he spoke with moyses. and all saw that the pillar of the cloud stood at the door of the tabernacle. and they stood, and worshipped at the doors of their tents. and the lord spoke to moyses face to face, as a man is wont to speak to his friend. and when he returned into the camp, his servant josue the son of nun, a young man, departed not from the tabernacle. and moyses said to the lord; thou commandest me to lead forth this people: and thou dost not let me know whom thou wilt send with me, especially whereas thou hast said: i know thee by name, and thou hast found favour in my sight. if therefore i have found favour in thy sight, show me thy face, that i may know thee, and may find grace before thy eyes: look upon thy people this nation. and the lord said: my face shall go before thee, and i will give thee rest. and moyses said: if thou thyself dost not go before, bring us not out of this place. for how shall we be able to know, i and thy people, that we have found grace in thy sight, unless thou walk with us, that we may be glorified by all people that dwell upon the earth? and the lord said to moyses: this word also, which thou hast spoken, will i do: for thou hast found grace before me, and thee i have known by name. and he said: shew me thy glory. he answered: i will shew thee all good, and i will proclaim in the name of the lord before thee: and i will have mercy on whom i will, and i will be merciful to whom it shall please me. and again he said: thou canst not see my face: for man shall not see me and live. and again he said: behold there is a place with me, and thou shalt stand upon the rock. and when my glory shall pass, i will set thee in a hole of the rock, and protect thee with my right hand, till i pass: and i will take away my hand, and thou shalt see my back parts: but my face thou canst not see.

and after this he said: hew thee two tables of stone like unto the former, and i will write upon them the words which were in the tables, which thou brokest. be ready in the morning, that thou mayst forthwith go up into mount sinai, and thou shalt stand with me upon the top of the mount. let no man go up with thee: and let not any man be seen throughout all the mount: neither let the oxen nor the sheep feed over against it. then he cut out two tables of stone, such as had been before: and rising very early he went up into the mount sinai, as the lord had commanded him, carrying with him the tables. and when the lord was come down in a cloud, moyses stood with him, calling upon the name of the lord. and when he passed before him, he said: o the lord, the lord god, merciful and gracious, patient and of much compassion, and true, who keepest mercy unto thousands: who takest away iniquity, and wickedness, and sin, and no man of himself is innocent before thee. who renderest the iniquity of the fathers to the children, and to the grandchildren, unto the third and fourth generation. and moyses making haste, bowed down prostrate unto the earth, and adoring, said: if i have found grace in thy sight: o lord, i beseech thee, that thou wilt go with us, (for it is a stiffnecked people,) and take away our iniquities and sin, and possess us. the lord answered: i will make a covenant in the sight of all. i will do signs such as were never seen upon the earth, nor in any nation: that this people, in the midst of whom thou art, may see the terrible work of the lord which i will do. observe all things which this day i command thee: i myself will drive out before thy face the amorrhite, and the chanaanite, and the hethite, and the pherezite, and the hevite, and the jebusite. beware thou never join in friendship with the inhabitants of that land, which may be thy ruin: but destroy their altars, break their statues, and cut down their groves: adore not any strange god. the lord his name is jealous, he is a jealous god. make no covenant with the men of those countries lest, when they have committed fornication with their gods, and have adored their idols, some one call thee to eat of the things sacrificed. neither shalt thou take of their daughters a wife for thy son, lest after they themselves have committed fornication, they make thy sons also to commit fornication with their gods. thou shalt not make to thyself any molten gods. thou shalt keep the feast of the unleavened bread. seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread, as i commanded thee in the time of the month of the new corn: for in the month of the springtime thou camest out from egypt. all of the male kind, that openeth the womb, shall be mine. of all beasts, both of oxen and of sheep, it shall be mine. the firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a sheep: but if thou wilt not give a price for it, it shall be slain. the firstborn of thy sons thou shalt redeem: neither shalt thou appear before me empty. six days shalt thou work, the seventh day thou shalt cease to plough, and to reap. thou shalt keep the feast of weeks with the firstfruits of the corn of thy wheat harvest, and the feast when the time of the year returneth that all things are laid in. three times in a year all thy males shall appear in the sight of the almighty lord the god of israel. for when i shall have taken away the nations from thy face, and shall have enlarged thy borders, no man shall lie in wait against thy land when thou shalt go up, and appear in the sight of the lord thy god thrice in a year. thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice upon leaven: neither shall there remain in the morning any thing of the victim of the solemnity of the lord. the first of the fruits of thy ground thou shalt offer in the house of the lord thy god. thou shalt not boil a kid in the milk of his dam. and the lord said to moyses: write these words by which i have made a covenant both with thee and with israel. and he was there with the lord forty days and forty nights: he neither ate bread nor drank water, and he wrote upon the tables the ten words of the covenant. and when moyses came down from the mount sinai, he held the two tables of the testimony, and he knew not that his face was horned from the conversation of the lord. and aaron and the children of israel seeing the face of moyses horned, were afraid to come near. and being called by him, they returned, both aaron and the rulers of the congregation. and after that he spoke to them. and all the children of israel came to him: and he gave them in commandment all that he had heard of the lord in mount sinai. and having done speaking, he put a veil upon his face. but when he went in to the lord, and spoke with him, he took it away until he came forth, and then he spoke to the children of israel all things that had been commanded him. and they saw that the face of moyses when he came out was horned, but he covered his face again, if at any time he spoke to them.

and all the multitude of the children of israel being gathered together, he said to them: these are the things which the lord hath commanded to be done. six days you shall do work: the seventh day shall be holy unto you, the sabbath, and the rest of the lord: he that shall do any work on it, shall be put to death. you shall kindle no fire in any of your habitations on the sabbath day. and moyses said to all the assembly of the children of israel: this is the word the lord hath commanded, saying: set aside with you firstfruits to the lord. let every one that is willing and hath a ready heart, offer them to the lord: gold, and silver, and brass, violet and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine linen, goats' hair, and rams' skins dyed red, and violet coloured skins, setim wood, and oil to maintain lights, and to make ointment, and most sweet incense. onyx stones, and precious stones, for the adorning of the ephod and the rational. whosoever of you is wise, let him come, and make that which the lord hath commanded: to wit, the tabernacle and the roof thereof, and the cover, the rings, and the board work with the oars, the pillars, and the sockets: the ark and the staves, the propitiatory, and the veil that is drawn before it: the table with the bars and the vessels, and the loaves of proposition: the candlestick to bear up the lights, the vessels thereof and the lamps, and the oil for the nourishing of fires: the altar of incense, and the bars, and the oil of unction and the incense of spices: the hanging at the door of the tabernacle: the altar of holocaust, and its grate of brass, with the bars and vessels thereof: the laver and its foot: the curtains of the court with the pillars and the sockets, the hanging in the doors of the entry, the pins of the tabernacle and of the court with their little cords: the vestments that are to be used in the ministry of the sanctuary, the vesture of aaron the high priest, and of his sons, to do the office of priesthood to me. and all the multitude of the children of israel going out from the presence of moyses, offered firstfruits to the lord with a most ready and devout mind, to make the work of the tabernacle of the testimony. whatsoever was necessary to the service, and to the holy vestments, both men and women gave bracelets and earrings, rings and tablets: every vessel of gold was set aside to be offered to the lord. if any man had violet, and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, fine linen and goats' hair, rams' skins dyed red, and violet coloured skins, metal of silver and brass, they offered it to the lord, and setim wood for divers uses. the skilful women also gave such things as they had spun, violet, purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, giving all of their own accord. but the princes offered onyx stone, and precious stones, for the ephod and the rational, and spices and oil for the lights, and for the preparing of ointment, and to make the incense of most sweet savour. all both men and women with devout mind offered gifts, that the works might be done which the lord had commanded by the hand of moyses. all the children of israel dedicated voluntary offerings to the lord. and moyses said to the children of israel: behold the lord hath called by name beseleel the son of uri the son of hur of the tribe of juda. and hath filled him with the spirit of god, with wisdom and understanding and knowledge and all learning. to devise and to work in gold and silver and brass, and in engraving stones, and in carpenters' work. whatsoever can be devised artificially, he hath given in his heart: ooliab also the son of achisamech of the tribe of dan: both of them hath he instructed with wisdom, to do carpenters' work and tapestry, and embroidery in blue and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine linen, and to weave all things, and to invent all new things.

beseleel, therefore, and ooliab, and every wise man, to whom the lord gave wisdom and understanding, to know how to work artificially, made the things that are necessary for the uses of the sanctuary, and which the lord commanded. and when moyses had called them, and every skilful man, to whom the lord had given wisdom, and such as of their own accord had offered themselves to the making of the work, he delivered all the offerings of the children of israel unto them. and while they were earnest about the work, the people daily in the morning offered their vows. whereupon the workmen being constrained to come, said to moyses: the people offereth more than is necessary. moyses therefore commanded proclamation to be made by the crier's voice: let neither man nor woman offer any more for the work of the sanctuary. and so they ceased from offering gifts, because the things that were offered did suffice, and were too much. and all the men that were wise of heart, to accomplish the work of the tabernacle, made ten curtains of twisted fine linen, and violet, and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, with varied work, and the art of embroidering: the length of one curtain was twenty-eight cubits, and the breadth four: all the curtains were of the same size. and he joined five curtains, one to another, and the other five he coupled one to another. he made also loops of violet in the edge of the curtain on both sides, and in the edge of the other curtain in like manner, that the loops might meet on against another, and might be joined each with the other. whereupon also he cast fifty rings of gold, that might catch the loops of the curtains, and they might be made one tabernacle. he made also eleven curtains of goats' hair, to cover the roof of the tabernacle: one curtain was thirty cubits long and four cubits broad: all the curtains were of one measure. five of which he joined apart, and the other six apart. and he made

fifty loops in the edge of one curtain, and fifty in the edge of another curtain, that they might be joined one to another. and fifty buckles of brass wherewith the roof might be knit together, that of all the curtains there might be made one covering. he made also a cover for the tabernacle of rams' skins dyed red: and another cover over that of violet skins. he made also the boards of the tabernacle of setim wood standing. the length of one board was ten cubits: and the breadth was one cubit and a half. there were two mortises throughout every board, that one might be joined to the other. and in this manner he made for all the boards of the tabernacle. of which twenty were at the south side southward, with forty sockets of silver, two sockets were put under one board on the two sides of the corners, where the mortises of the sides end in the corners. at that side also of the tabernacle, that looketh toward the north, he made twenty boards. with forty sockets of silver, two sockets for every board. but against the west, to wit, at that side of the tabernacle, which looketh to the sea, he made six boards, and two others at each corner of the tabernacle behind: which were also joined from beneath unto the top, and went together into one joint. thus he did on both sides at the corners: so there were in all eight boards and they had sixteen sockets of silver, to wit, two sockets under every board. he made also bars of setim wood, five to hold together the boards of one side of the tabernacle, and five others to join together the boards of the other side: and besides these, five other bars at the west side of the tabernacle towards the sea. he made also another bar, that might come by the midst of the boards from corner to corner. and the board works themselves he overlaid with gold, casting for them sockets of silver. and their rings he made of gold, through which the bars might be drawn: and he covered the bars themselves with plates of gold. he made also a veil of violet, and purple, scarlet, and fine twisted linen, varied and distinguished with embroidery: and four pillars of setim wood, which with their heads be overlaid with gold, casting for them sockets of silver. he made also a hanging in the entry of the tabernacle of violet, purple, scarlet, and fine twisted linen, with the work of an embroiderer. and five pillars with their heads, which he covered with gold, and their sockets he cast of brass.

and beseleel made also the ark of setim wood: it was two cubits and a half in length, and a cubit and a half in breadth, and the height was of one cubit and a half: and he overlaid it with the purest gold within and without. and he made to it a crown of gold round about, casting four rings of gold at the four corners thereof: two rings in one side, and two in the other. and he made bars of setim wood, which he overlaid with gold, and he put them into the rings that were at the sides of the ark to carry it. he made also the propitiatory, that is, the oracle, of the purest gold, two cubits and a half in length, and a cubit and a half in breadth. two cherubims also of beaten gold, which he set on the two sides of the propitiatory: one cherub in the top of one side, and the other cherub in the top of the other side: two cherubims at the two ends of the propitiatory, spreading their wings, and covering the propitiatory, and looking one towards the other, and towards it. he made also the table of setim wood, in length two cubits, and in breadth one cubit, and in height it was a cubit and a half. and he overlaid it with the finest gold, and he made to it a golden ledge round about. and to the ledge itself he made a polished crown of gold, of four fingers' breadth, and upon the same another golden crown. and he cast four rings of gold, which he put in the four corners at each foot of the table, over against the crown: and he put the bars into them, that the table might be carried. and the bars also themselves he made of setim wood, and overlaid them with gold, and the vessels for the divers uses of the table, dishes, bowls, and cups, and censers of pure gold, wherein the libations are to be offered. he made also the candlestick of beaten work of the finest gold. from the shaft whereof its branches, its cups, and bowls, and lilies came out: six on the two sides: three branches on one side, and three on the other. three cups in manner of a nut on each branch, and bowls withal and lilies; and three cups of the fashion of a nut in another branch, and bowls withal and lilies. the work of the six branches that went out from the shaft of the candlestick was equal. and in the shaft itself were four cups after the manner of a nut, and bowls withal at every one, and lilies: and bowls under two branches in three places, which together make six branches going out from one shaft. so both the bowls, and the branches were of the same, all beaten work of the purest gold. he made also the seven lamps with their snuffers, and the vessels where the snuffings were to be put out, of the purest gold. the candlestick with all the vessels thereof weighed a talent of gold. he made also the altar of incense of setim wood, being a cubit on every side foursquare, and in height two cubits: from the corners of which went out horns. and he overlaid it with the purest gold, with its grate and the sides, and the horns. and he made to it a crown of gold round about, and two golden rings under the crown at each side, that the bars might be put into them, and the altar be carried. and the bars themselves he made also of setim wood, and overlaid them with plates of gold. he compounded also the oil for the ointment of sanctification, and incense of the purest spices, according to the work of a perfumer.

he made also the altar of holocaust of setim wood, five cubits square, and three in height: the horns whereof went out from the corners, and he overlaid it with plates of brass. and for the uses thereof, he prepared divers vessels of brass, cauldrons, tongs, flesh-hooks, pothooks, and firepans. and he made the grate thereof of brass, in manner of a net, and under it in the midst of the altar a hearth, casting four rings at the four ends of the net at the top, to put in bars to carry it. and he made the bars of setim wood, and overlaid them with plates of brass: and he drew them through the rings that stood out in the sides of the altar. and the altar itself was not solid, but hollow, of boards, and empty within. he made also the laver of brass, with the foot thereof, of the mirrors of the women that watch at the door of the tabernacle. he made also the court, in the south side whereof were hangings of fine twisted linen, of a hundred cubits, twenty pillars of brass with their sockets, the heads of the pillars, and the whole graving of the work, of silver. in like manner at the north side the hangings, the pillars, and the sockets and heads of the pillars were of the same measure, and work and metal. but on that side that looketh to the west, there were hangings of fifty cubits, ten pillars of brass with their sockets, and the heads of the pillars, and all the graving of the work, of silver. moreover towards the east he prepared hangings of fifty cubits: fifteen cubits of which were on one side with three pillars, and their sockets: and on the other side (for between the two he made the entry of the tabernacle) there were hangings equally of fifteen cubits, and three pillars, and as many sockets. all the hangings of the court were woven with twisted linen. the sockets of the pillars were of brass, and their heads with all their gravings of silver: and he overlaid the pillars of the court also with silver. and he made in the entry thereof an embroidered hanging of violet, purple, scarlet, and fine twisted linen, that was twenty cubits long, and five cubits high according to the measure of all the hangings of the court. and the pillars in the entry were four with sockets of brass, and their heads and gravings of silver. the pins also of the tabernacle and of the court round about he made of brass. these are the instruments of the tabernacle of the testimony, which were counted according to the commandment of moyses, in the ceremonies of the levites, by the hand of ithamar son of aaron the priest: which beseeled the son of uri the son of hur of the tribe of juda had made as the lord commanded by moyses, having for his companion ooliab the son of achisamech of the tribe of dan: who also was an excellent artificer in wood, and worker in tapestry and embroidery in violet, purple, scarlet, and fine linen. all the gold that was spent in the work of the sanctuary, and that was offered in gifts was nine and twenty talents, and seven hundred and thirty sicles according to the standard of the sanctuary. and it was offered by them that went to be numbered, from twenty years old and upwards, of six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty men able to bear arms. there were moreover a hundred talents of silver, whereof were cast the sockets of the sanctuary, and of the entry where the veil hangeth. a hundred sockets were made of a hundred talents, one talent being reckoned for every socket. and of the thousand seven hundred and seventy-five he made the heads of the pillars, which also he overlaid with silver. and there were offered of brass also seventy-two thousand talents, and four hundred sicles besides. of which were cast the sockets in the entry of the tabernacle of the testimony, and the altar of brass with the grate thereof, and all the vessels that belong to the use thereof. and the sockets of the court as well round about as in the

and he made, of violet and purple, scarlet and fine linen, the vestments for aaron to wear when he ministered in the holy places, as the lord commanded moyses. so he made an ephod of gold, violet, and purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine twisted linen. with embroidered work: and he cut thin plates of gold, and drew them small into threads, that they might be twisted with the woof of the aforesaid colours, and two borders coupled one to the other in the top on either side, and a girdle of the same colours, as the lord had commanded moyses. he prepared also two onyx stones, fast set and closed in gold, and graven by the art of a lapidary, with the names of the children of israel: and he set them in the sides of the ephod for a memorial of the children of israel, as the lord had commanded moyses. he made also a rational with embroidered work, according to the work of the ephod, of gold, violet, purple, and scarlet twice dyed, and fine twisted linen, foursquare, double, of the measure of a span. and he set four rows of precious stones in it. in the first row was a sardius, a topaz, and emerald. in the second, a carbuncle, a sapphire, and a jasper. in the third, a ligurius, an agate, and an amethyst. in the fourth, a chrysolite, an onyx, and a beryl, set and enclosed in gold by their rows. and the twelve stones were engraved with the names of the twelve tribes of israel, each one with its several name. they made also in the rational little chains linked one to another of the purest gold, and two hooks, and as many rings of gold. and they set the rings on either side of the rational, on which rings the two golden chains should hang, which they put into the hooks that stood out in the corners of the ephod. these both before and behind so answered one another, that the ephod and the rational were bound together, being fastened to the girdle and strongly coupled with rings, which a violet fillet joined, lest they should flag loose, and be moved one from the other, as the lord commanded moyses. they made also the tunick of the ephod all of violet, and a hole for the head in the upper part at the middle, and a woven border round about the hole: and beneath at the feet pomegranates of violet, purple, scarlet, and fine twisted linen: and little bells of the purest gold, which they put between the pomegranates at the bottom of the tunick round about: to wit, a bell of gold, and a pomegranate, wherewith the high priest went adorned, when he discharged his ministry, as the lord had commanded moyses. they made also fine linen tunicks with woven work for aaron and his sons: and mitres with their little crowns of fine linen: and linen breeches of fine linen: and a girdle of fine twisted linen, violet, purple, and scarlet twice dyed, of embroidery work, as the lord had commanded moyses. they made also the plate of sacred veneration of the purest gold, and they wrote on it with the engraving of a lapidary, the holy of the lord: and they fastened it to the mitre with a violet fillet, as the lord had commanded moyses. so all the work of the tabernacle and of the roof of the testimony was finished: and the children of israel did all things which the lord had commanded moyses. and they offered the tabernacle and the roof and the whole furniture, the rings, the boards, the bars, the pillars, and their sockets, the cover of rams' skins dyed red, and the other cover of violet skins, the veil, the ark, the bars, the propitiatory, the table, with the vessels thereof, and the loaves of proposition: the candlestick, the lamps, and the furniture of them with the oil: the altar of gold, and the ointment, and the incense of spices: and the hanging in the entry of the tabernacle: the altar of brass, the grate, the bars, and all the vessels thereof: the laver with the foot thereof: the hangings of the court, and the pillars with their sockets: the hanging in the entry of the court, and the little cords, and the pins thereof. nothing was wanting of the vessels, that were commanded to be made for the ministry of the tabernacle, and for the roof of the covenant. the vestments also, which the priests, to wit, aaron and his sons, used in the sanctuary, the children of israel offered as the lord had commanded. and when moyses saw all things finished, he blessed them.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: the first month, the first day of the month, thou shalt set up the tabernacle of the testimony, and shalt put the ark in it, and shalt let down the veil before it: and thou shalt bring in the table, and set upon it the things that are commanded according to the rite. the candlestick shall stand with its lamps, and the altar of gold whereon the incense is burnt, before the ark of the testimony. thou shalt put the hanging in the entry of the tabernacle, and before it the altar of holocaust: the laver between the altar and the tabernacle, and thou shalt fill it with water. and thou shalt encompass the court with hangings, and the entry thereof. and thou shalt take the oil of unction and anoint the tabernacle with its vessels, that they may be sanctified: the altar of holocaust and all its vessels: the laver with its foot: thou shalt consecrate all with the oil of unction, that they may be most holy. and thou shalt bring aaron and his sons to the door of the tabernacle of the testimony, and having washed them with water, - - - - thou shalt put on them the holy vestments, that they may minister to me, and that the unction of them may prosper to an everlasting priesthood. and moyses did all that the lord had commanded. so in the first month of the second year, the first day of the month, the tabernacle was set up. and moyses reared it up, and placed the boards and the sockets and the bars, and set up the pillars, and spread the roof over the tabernacle, putting over it a cover, as the lord had commanded. and he put the testimony in the ark, thrusting bars underneath, and the oracle above. and when he had brought the ark into the tabernacle, he drew the veil before it to fulfil the commandment of the lord. and he set the table in the tabernacle of the testimony at the north side without the veil, setting there in order the loaves of proposition, as the lord

had commanded moyses. he set the candlestick also in the tabernacle of the testimony over against the table on the south side, placing the lamps in order, according to the precept of the lord. he set also the altar of gold under the roof of the testimony over against the veil, and burnt upon it the incense of spices, as the lord had commanded moyses. and he put also the hanging in the entry of the tabernacle of the testimony, and the altar of holocaust of the entry of the testimony, offering the holocaust, and the sacrifices upon it, as the lord had commanded. and he set the laver between the tabernacle of the testimony and the altar, filling it with water. and moyses and aaron, and his sons washed their hands and feet, when they went into the tabernacle of the covenant, and went to the altar, as the lord had commanded moyses. he set up also the court round about the tabernacle and the altar, drawing the hanging in the entry thereof. after all things were perfected, the cloud covered the tabernacle of the testimony, and the glory of the lord filled it. neither could moyses go into the tabernacle of the covenant, the cloud covering all things and the majesty of the lord shining, for the cloud had covered all. if at any time the cloud removed from the tabernacle, the children of israel went forward by their troops: if it hung over, they remained in the same place. for the cloud of the lord hung over the tabernacle by day, and a fire by night, in the sight of all the children of israel throughout all their mansions.

and the lord called moyses, and spoke to him from the tabernacle of the testimony, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: the man among you that shall offer to the lord a sacrifice of the cattle, that is, offering victims of oxen and sheep, if his offering be a holocaust, and of the herd, he shall offer a male without blemish, at the door of the testimony, to make the lord favourable to him: and he shall put his hand upon the head of the victim, and it shall be acceptable, and help to its expiation. and he shall immolate the calf before the lord, and the priests the sons of aaron shall offer the blood thereof, pouring it round about the altar, which is before the door of the tabernacle. and when they have flayed the victim, they shall cut the joints into pieces, and shall put fire on the altar, having before laid in order a pile of wood: and they shall lay the parts that are cut out in order thereupon, to wit, the head, and all things that cleave to the liver, the entrails and feet being washed with water: and the priest shall burn them upon the altar for a holocaust, and a sweet savour to the lord. and if the offering be of the hocks, a holocaust of sheep or of goats, he shall offer a male without blemish: and he shall immolate it at the side of the altar that looketh to the north, before the lord: but the sons of aaron shall pour the blood thereof upon the altar round about: and they shall divide the joints, the head, and all that cleave to the liver: and shall lay them upon the wood, under which the fire is to be put: but the entrails and the feet they shall wash with water. and the priest shall offer it all and burn it all upon the altar for a holocaust, and most sweet savour to the lord. but if the oblation of a holocaust to the lord be of birds, of turtles, or of young pigeons, the priest shall offer it at the altar: and twisting back the neck, and breaking the place of the wound, he shall make the blood run down upon the brim of the altar. but the crop of the throat, and the feathers he shall cast beside the altar at the east side, in the place where the ashes are wont to be poured out, and he shall break the pinions thereof, and shall not cut, nor divide it with a knife, and shall burn it upon the altar, putting fire under the wood. it is a holocaust and oblation of most sweet savour to the lord.

when any one shall offer an oblation of sacrifice to the lord, his offering shall be of fine flour, and he shall pour oil upon it, and put frankincense, and shall bring it to the sons of aaron the priests: and one of them shall take a handful of the flour and oil, and all the frankincense, and shall put it a memorial upon the altar for a most sweet savour to the lord. and the remnant of the sacrifice shall be aaron's, and his sons', holy of holies of the offerings of the lord. but when thou offerest a sacrifice baked in the oven of flour, to wit, loaves without leaven, tempered with oil, and unleavened wafers, anointed with oil: if thy oblation be from the fryingpan, of flour tempered with oil, and without leaven, thou shalt divide it into little pieces, and shalt pour oil upon it. and if the sacrifice be from the gridiron, in like manner the flour shall be tempered with oil: and when thou offerest it to the lord, thou shalt deliver it to the hands of the priest. and when he hath offered it, he shall take a memorial out of the sacrifice, and burn it upon the altar for a sweet savour to the lord. and whatsoever is left, shall be aaron's, and his sons', holy of holies of the offerings of the lord. every oblation that is offered to the lord shall be made without leaven, neither shall any leaven or honey be burnt in the sacrifice to the lord. you shall offer only the firstfruits of them and gifts: but they shall not be put upon the altar, for a savour of sweetness, whatsoever sacrifice thou offerest, thou shalt season it with salt, neither shalt thou take away the salt of the covenant of thy god from thy sacrifice. in all thy oblations thou shalt offer salt. but if thou offer a gift of the firstfruits of thy corn to the lord, of the ears yet green, thou shalt dry it at the fire, and break it small like meal, and so shalt thou offer thy firstfruits to the lord, pouring oil upon it and putting on frankincense, because it is the oblation of the lord. whereof the priest shall burn for a memorial of the gift, part of the corn broken small and of the oil, and all the frankincense.

and if his oblation be a sacrifice of peace offerings, and he will offer of the herd, whether male or female, he shall offer them without blemish before the lord. and he shall lay his hand upon the head of his victim, which shall be slain in the entry of the tabernacle of the testimony, and the sons of aaron the priests shall pour the blood round about upon the altar. and they shall offer of the sacrifice of peace offerings, for an oblation to the lord, the fat that covereth the entrails, and all the fat that is within. the two kidneys with the fat wherewith the flanks are covered, and the caul of the liver with the two little kidneys. and they shall burn them upon the altar, for a holocaust, putting fire under the wood: for an oblation of most sweet savour to the lord. but if his oblation and the sacrifice of peace offering be of the flock, whether he offer male or female, they shall be without blemish. if he offer a lamb before the lord, he shall put his hand upon the head of his victim: and it shall be slain in the entry of the tabernacle of the testimony: and the sons of aaron shall pour the blood thereof round about upon the altar. and they shall offer of the victim of peace offerings a sacrifice to the lord: the fat and the whole rump, with the kidneys, and the fat that covereth the belly and all the vitals and both the little kidneys, with the fat that is about the flanks, and the caul of the liver with the little kidneys. and the priest shall burn them upon the altar, for the food of the fire, and of the oblation of the lord. if his offering be a goat, and he offer it to the lord, he shall put his hand upon the head thereof: and shall immolate it in the entry of the tabernacle of the testimony. and the sons of aaron shall pour the blood thereof round about upon the altar. and they shall take of it for the food of the lord's fire, the fat that covereth the belly, and that covereth all the vital parts : the two little kidneys with the caul that is upon them which is by the flanks, and the fat of the liver with the little kidneys: and the priest shall burn them upon the altar, for the food of the fire, and of a most sweet savour. all the fat shall be the lord's. by a perpetual law for your generations, and in all your habitations: neither blood nor fat shall you eat at all.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: say to the children of israel: the soul that sinneth through ignorance, and doth any thing concerning any of the commandments of the lord, which he commanded not to be done: if the priest that is anointed shall sin, making the people to offend, he shall offer to the lord for his sin a calf without blemish. and he shall bring it to the door of the testimony before the lord, and shall put his hand upon the head thereof, and shall sacrifice it to the lord. he shall take also of the blood of the calf, and carry it into the tabernacle of the testimony. and having dipped his finger in the blood, he shall sprinkle with it seven times before the lord, before the veil of the sanctuary. and he shall put some of the same blood upon the horns of the altar of the sweet incense most acceptable to the lord, which is in the tabernacle of the testimony. and he shall pour all the rest of the blood at the foot of the altar of holocaust in the entry of the tabernacle. and he shall take off the fat of the calf for the sin offering, as well that which covereth the entrails, as all the inwards: the two little kidneys, and the caul that is upon them, which is by the hanks, and the fat of the liver with the little kidneys, as it is taken off from the calf of the sacrifice of peace offerings, and he shall burn them upon the altar of holocaust. but the skin and all the flesh with the head and the feet and the bowels and the dung, and the rest of the body he shall carry forth without the camp into a clean place where the ashes are wont to be poured out, and he shall burn them upon a pile of wood, they shall be burnt in the place where the ashes are poured out. and if all the multitude of israel shall be ignorant, and through ignorance shall do that which is against the commandment of the lord, and afterwards shall understand their sin, they shall offer for their sin a calf, and shall bring it to the door of the tabernacle. and the ancients of the people shall put their hands upon the head thereof before the lord. and the calf being immolated in the sight of the lord, the priest that is anointed shall carry of the blood into the tabernacle of the testimony. and shall dip his finger in it and sprinkle it seven times before the veil. and he shall put of the same blood on the horns of the altar that is before the lord, in the tabernacle of the testimony: and the rest of the blood he shall pour at the foot of the altar of holocaust, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the testimony. and all the fat thereof he shall take off, and shall burn it upon the altar: doing so with this calf, as he did also with that before: and the priest praying for them, the lord will be merciful unto them. but the calf itself he shall carry forth without the camp, and shall burn it as he did the former calf: because it is for the sin of the multitude. if a prince shall sin, and through ignorance do any one of the things that the law of the lord forbiddeth, and afterwards shall come to know his sin, he shall offer a buck goat without blemish, a sacrifice to the lord. and he shall put his hand upon the head thereof: and when he hath immolated it in the place where the holocaust is wont to be slain before the lord, because it is for sin, the priest shall dip his finger in the blood of the victim for sin, touching therewith the horns of the altar of holocaust, and pouring out the rest at the foot thereof. but the fat he shall burn upon it, as is wont to be done with the victims of peace offerings: and the priest shall pray for him, and for his sin, and it shall be forgiven him. and if any one of the people of the land shall sin through ignorance, doing any of those things that by the law of the lord are forbidden, and offending, and shall come to know his sin, he shall offer a she goat without blemish. and he shall put his hand upon the head of the victim that is for sin, and shall immolate it in the place of the holocaust. and the priest shall take of the blood with his finger, and shall touch the horns of the altar of holocaust, and shall pour out the rest at the foot thereof. but taking off all the fat, as is wont to be taken away of the victims of peace offerings, he shall burn it upon the altar, for a sweet savour to the lord: and he shall pray for him, and it shall be forgiven him. but if he offer of the flock a victim for his sin, to wit, an ewe without blemish: he shall put his hand upon the head thereof, and shall immolate it in the place where the victims of holocausts are wont to be slain. and the priest shall take of the blood thereof with his finger, and shall touch the horns of the altar of holocaust, and the rest he shall pour out at the foot thereof. all the fat also he shall take off, as the fat of the ram that is offered for peace offerings is wont to be taken away: and shall burn it upon the altar, for a burnt sacrifice of the lord: and he shall pray for him and for his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

if any one sin, and hear the voice of one swearing, and is a witness either because he himself hath seen, or is privy to it: if he do not utter it, he shall bear his iniquity. whosoever toucheth any unclean thing, either that which hath been killed by a beast, or died of itself, or any other creeping thing: and forgetteth his uncleanness, he is guilty, and hath offended: and if he touch any thing of the uncleanness of man, according to any uncleanness wherewith he is wont to be defiled, and having forgotten it, come afterwards to know it, he shall be guilty of an offence. the person that sweareth, and uttereth with his lips, that he would do either evil or good, and bindeth the same with an oath, and his word, and having forgotten it afterwards understandeth his offence, let him do penance for his sin, and offer of the flocks an ewe lamb, or a she goat, and the priest shall pray for him and for his sin: but if he be not able to offer a beast, let him offer two turtles, or two young pigeons to the lord, one for sin, and the other for a holocaust, and he shall give them to the priest: who shall offer the first for sin, and twist back the head of it to the little pinions, so that it stick to the neck, and be not altogether broken off. and of its blood he shall sprinkle the side of the altar, and whatsoever is left, he shall let it drop at the bottom thereof, because it is for sin. and the other he shall burn for a holocaust, as is wont to be done: and the priest shall pray for him, and for his sin, and it shall be forgiven him. and if his hand be not able to offer two turtles, or two young pigeons, he shall offer for his sin the tenth part of an ephi of flour. he shall not put oil upon it, nor put any frankincense thereon, because it is for sin: and he shall deliver it to the priest: who shall take a handful thereof, and shall burn it upon the altar for a memorial of him that offered it: praying for him and making atonement: but the part that is left, he himself shall have for a gift. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: if any one shall sin through mistake, transgressing the ceremonies in those things that are sacrificed to the lord, he shall offer for his offence a ram without blemish out of the flocks, that may be bought for two sicles, according to the weight of the sanctuary: and he shall make good the damage itself which he hath done, and shall add the fifth part besides, delivering it to the priest, who shall pray for him, offering the ram, and it shall be forgiven him. if any one sin through ignorance, and do one of those things which by the law of the lord are forbidden, and being guilty of sin, understand his iniquity, he shall offer of the hocks a ram without blemish to the priest, according to the measure and estimation of the sin: and the priest shall pray for him, because he did it ignorantly: and it shall be forgiven him, because by mistake he trespassed against the lord.

the lord spoke to moyses, saying: whosoever shall sin, and despising the lord, shall deny to his neighbour the thing delivered to his keeping, which was committed to his trust; or shall by force extort any thing, or commit oppression; or shall find a thing lost, and denying it, shall also swear falsely, or shall do any other of the many things, wherein men are wont to sin: being convicted of the offence, he shall restore all that he would have gotten by fraud, in the principal, and the fifth part besides to the owner, whom he wronged. moreover for his sin he shall offer a ram without blemish out of the flock, and shall give it to the priest, according to the estimation and measure of the offence: and he shall pray for him before the lord, and he shall have forgiveness for every thing in doing of which he hath sinned. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: command aaron and his sons: this is the law of a holocaust: it shall be burnt upon the altar, all night until morning: the fire shall be of the same altar. the priest shall be vested with the tunic and the linen breeches, and he shall take up the ashes of that which the devouring fire hath burnt, and putting them beside the altar, shall put off his former vestments, and being clothed with others, shall carry them forth without the camp, and shall cause them to be consumed to dust in a very clean place, and the fire on the altar shall always burn, and the priest shall feed it, putting wood on it every day in the morning, and laying on the holocaust, shall burn thereupon the fat of the peace offerings. this is the perpetual fire which shall never go out on the altar. this is the law of the sacrifice and libations, which the children of aaron shall offer before the lord, and before the altar. the priest shall take a handful of the flour that is tempered with oil, and all the frankincense that is put upon the flour: and he shall burn it on the altar for a memorial of most sweet odour to the lord: and the part of the flour that is left, aaron and his sons shall eat, without leaven: and he shall eat it in the holy place of the court of the tabernacle. and therefore it shall not be leavened, because part thereof is offered for the burnt sacrifice of the lord. it shall be most holy, as that which is offered for sin and for trespass. the males only of the race of aaron shall eat it. it shall be an ordinance everlasting in your generations concerning the sacrifices of the lord: every one that toucheth them shall be sanctified. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: this is the oblation of aaron, and of his sons, which they must offer to the lord, in the day of their anointing: they shall offer the tenth part of an ephi of flour for a perpetual sacrifice, half of it in the morning, and half of it in the evening: it shall be tempered with oil, and shall be fried in a fryingpan. and the priest that rightfully succeedeth his father, shall offer it hot, for a most sweet odour to the lord, and it shall be wholly burnt on the altar. for every sacrifice of the priest shall be consumed with fire, neither shall any man eat thereof. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: say to aaron and his sons: this is the law of the victim for sin: in the place where the holocaust is offered, it shall be immolated before the lord. it is holy of holies. the priest that offereth it, shall eat it in a holy place, in the court of the tabernacle. whatsoever shall touch the flesh thereof, shall be sanctified. if a garment be sprinkled with the blood thereof, it shall be washed in a holy place. and the earthen vessel, wherein it was sodden, shall be broken, but if the vessel be of brass, it shall be scoured, and washed with water. every male of the priestly race shall eat of the flesh thereof, because it is holy of holies. for the victim that is slain for sin, the blood of which is carried into the tabernacle of the testimony to make atonement in the sanctuary, shall not be eaten, but shall be burnt with fire.

this also is the law of the sacrifice for a trespass, it is most holy: therefore where the holocaust is immolated, the victim also for a trespass shall be slain: the blood thereof shall be poured round about the altar. they shall offer thereof of the rump and the fat that covereth the entrails: the two little kidneys, and the fat which is by the flanks, and the caul of the liver with the little kidneys. and the priest shall burn them upon the altar: it is the burnt sacrifice of the lord for a trespass. every male of the priestly race, shall eat this flesh in a holy place, because it is most holy. as the sac-

rice for sin is offered, so is also that for a trespass: the same shall be the law of both these sacrifices: it shall belong to the priest that offereth it. the priest that offereth the victim of holocaust, shall have the skin thereof. and every sacrifice of flour that is baked in the oven, and whatsoever is dressed on the grid-iron, or in the fryingpan, shall be the priest's that offereth it: whether they be tempered with oil, or dry, all the sons of aaron shall have one as much as another. this is the law of the sacrifice of peace offerings that is offered to the lord. if the oblation be for thanksgiving, they shall offer leaves without leaven tempered with oil, and unleavened wafers anointed with oil, and fine flour fried, and cakes tempered and mingled with oil: moreover leaves of leavened bread with the sacrifice of thanks, which is offered for peace offerings: of which one shall be offered to the lord for firstfruits, and shall be the priest's that shall pour out the blood of the victim. and the flesh of it shall be eaten the same day, neither shall any of it remain until the morning. if any man by vow, or of his own accord offer a sacrifice, it shall in like manner be eaten the same day: and if any of it remain until the morrow, it is lawful to eat it: but whatsoever shall be found on the third day shall be consumed with fire. if any man eat of the flesh of the victim of peace offerings on the third day, the oblation shall be of no effect, neither shall it profit the offerer: yea rather whatsoever soul shall defile itself with such meat, shall be guilty of transgression. the flesh that hath touched any unclean thing, shall not be eaten, but shall be burnt with fire: he that is clean shall eat of it. if any one that is defiled shall eat of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace offerings, which is offered to the lord, he shall be cut off from his people. and he that hath touched the uncleanness of man, or of beast, or of any thing that can defile, and shall eat of such kind of flesh, shall be cut off from his people. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: say to the children of israel: the fat of a sheep, and of an ox, and of a goat you shall not eat. the fat of a carcass that hath died of itself, and of a beast that was caught by another beast, you shall have for divers uses. if any man eat the fat that should be offered for the burnt sacrifice of the lord, he shall perish out of his people. moreover you shall not eat the blood of any creature whatsoever, whether of birds or beasts. every one that eateth blood, shall perish from among the people. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, saying: he that offereth a victim of peace offerings to the lord, let him offer therewith a sacrifice also, that is, the libations thereof. he shall hold in his hands the fat of the victim, and the breast: and when he hath offered and consecrated both to the lord, he shall deliver them to the priest, who shall burn the fat upon the altar, but the breast shall be aaron's and his sons'. the right shoulder also of the victims of peace offerings shall fall to the priest for firstfruits. he among the sons of aaron, that offereth the blood, and the fat, he shall have the right shoulder also for his portion. for the breast that is elevated and the shoulder that is separated i have taken of the children of israel, from off their victims of peace offerings, and have given them to aaron the priest, and to his sons, by a law for ever, from all the people of israel. this is the anointing of aaron and his sons, in the ceremonies of the lord, in the day when moyses offered them, that they might do the office of priesthood, and the things that the lord commanded to be given them by the children of israel, by a perpetual observance in their generations. this is the law of holocaust, and of the sacrifice for sin, and for trespass, and for consecration, and the victims of peace offerings: which the lord appointed to moyses in mount sinai, when he commanded the children of israel, that they should offer their oblations to the lord in the desert of sinai.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: take aaron with his sons, their vestments, and the oil of unction, a calf for sin, two rams, a basket with unleavened bread, and thou shalt gather together all the congregation to the door of the tabernacle. and moyses did as the lord had commanded. and all the multitude being gathered together before the door of the tabernacle, he said: this is the word that the lord hath commanded to be done. and immediately he offered aaron and his sons: and when he had washed them, he vested the high priest with the strait linen garment, girding him with the girdle, and putting on him the violet tunic, and over it he put the ephod, and binding it with the girdle, he fitted it to the rational, on which was doctrine and truth. he put also the mitre upon his head: and upon the mitre over the forehead, he put the plate of gold, consecrated with sanctification, as the lord had commanded him. he took also the oil of unction, with which he anointed the tabernacle, with all the furniture thereof. and when he had sanctified and sprinkled the altar seven times, he anointed it, and all the vessels thereof, and the laver with the foot thereof, he sanctified with the oil. and he poured it upon aaron's head, and he anointed and consecrated him: and after he had offered his sons, he vested them with linen tunicks, and girded them with girdles, and put mitres on them as the lord had commanded. he offered also the calf for sin: and when aaron and his sons had put their hands upon the head thereof, he immolated it: and took the blood, and dipping his finger in it, he touched the horns of the altar round about. which being expiated, and sanctified, he poured the rest of the blood at the bottom thereof. but the fat that was upon the entrails, and the caul of the liver, and the two little kidneys, with their fat, he burnt upon the altar: and the calf with the skin, and the flesh and the dung, he burnt without the camp, as the lord had commanded. he offered also a ram for a holocaust: and when aaron and his sons had put their hands upon its head, he immolated it, and poured the blood thereof round about upon the altar. and cutting the ram into pieces, the head thereof, and the joints, and the fat he burnt in the fire, having first washed the entrails, and the feet, and the whole ram together he burnt upon the altar, because it was a holocaust of most sweet odour to the lord, as he had commanded him. he offered also the second

ram, in the consecration of priests: and aaron, and his sons put their hands upon the head thereof: and when moyses had immolated it, he took of the blood thereof, and touched the tip of aaron's right ear, and the thumb of his right hand, and in like manner also the great toe of his right foot. he offered also the sons of aaron: and when with the blood of the ram that was immolated, he had touched the tip of the right ear of every one of them, and the thumbs of their right hands, and the great toes of their right feet, the rest he poured on the altar round about: but the fat, and the rump, and all the fat that covereth the entrails, and the caul of the liver, and the two kidneys with their fat, and with the right shoulder, he separated. and taking out of the basket; of unleavened bread, which was before the lord, a loaf without leaven, and a cake tempered with oil and a wafer, he put them upon the fat, and the right shoulder, delivering all to aaron, and to his sons: wile having lifted them up before the lord, he took them again from their hands, and burnt them upon the altar of holocaust, because it was the oblation of consecration, for a sweet odour of sacrifice to the lord. and he took of the ram of consecration, the breast for his portion, elevating it before the lord, as the lord had commanded him. and taking the ointment, and the blood that was upon the altar, he sprinkled aaron, and his vestments, and his sons, and their vestments with it. and when he had sanctified them in their vestments, he commanded them, saying: boil the flesh before the door of the tabernacle, and there eat it. eat ye also the loaves of consecration, that are laid in the basket, as the lord commanded me, saying: aaron and his sons shall eat them: and whatsoever shall be left of the flesh and the leaves, shall be consumed with fire. and you shall not go out of the door of the tabernacle for seven days, until the day wherein the time of your consecration shall be expired. for in seven days the consecration is finished: as at this present it hath been done, that the rite of the sacrifice might be accomplished. day and night shall you remain in the tabernacle observing the watches of the lord, lest you die: for so it hath been commanded me. and aaron and his sons did all things which the lord spoke by the hand of moyses.

and when the eighth day was come, moyses called aaron and his sons, and the ancients of israel, and said to aaron: take of the herd a calf for sin, and a ram for a holocaust, both without blemish, and offer them before the lord. and to the children of israel thou shalt say: take ye a he goat for sin, and a calf, and a lamb, both of a year old, and without blemish for a holocaust, also a bullock and a ram for peace offerings: and immolate them before the lord, offering for the sacrifice of every one of them flour tempered with oil; for to day the lord will appear to you. they brought therefore all things that moyses had commanded before the door of the tabernacle: where when all the multitude stood, moyses said: this is the word, which the lord hath commanded: do it, and his glory will appear to you. and he said to aaron: approach to the altar, and offer sacrifice for thy sin: offer the holocaust, and pray for thyself and for the people: and when thou hast slain the people's victim, pray for them, as the lord hath commanded. and forthwith aaron, approaching to the altar, immolated the calf for his sin: and his sons brought him the blood of it: and he dipped his finger therein, and touched the horns of the altar, and poured the rest at the foot thereof. and the fat, and the little kidneys, and the caul of the liver, which are for sin, he burnt upon the altar, as the lord had commanded moyses: but the flesh and skins thereof he burnt with fire without the camp. he immolated also the victim of holocaust: and his sons brought him the blood thereof, which he poured round about on the altar. and the victim being cut into pieces, they brought to him the head and all the members, all which he burnt with fire upon the altar, having first washed the entrails and the feet with water. then offering for the sin of the people, he slew the he goat: and expiating the altar, he offered the holocaust: adding in the sacrifice the libations, which are offered withal, and burning them upon the altar, besides the ceremonies of the morning holocaust. he immolated also the bullock and the ram, the peace offerings of the people: and his sons brought him the blood, which he poured upon the altar round about. the fat also of the bullock, and the rump of the ram, and the two little kidneys, with their fat, and the caul of the liver, they put upon the breasts. and after the fat was burnt upon the altar, aaron separated their breasts, and the right shoulders, elevating them before the lord, as moyses had commanded. and stretching forth his hands to the people, he blessed them. and so the victims for sin, and the holocausts, and the peace offerings being finished, he came down. and moyses and aaron went into the tabernacle of the testimony, and afterwards came forth and blessed the people. and the glory of the lord appeared to all the multitude: and behold a fire, coming forth from the lord, devoured the holocaust, and the fat that was upon the altar: which when the multitude saw, they praised the lord, falling on their faces.

and nadab and abiu, the sons of aaron, taking their censers, put fire therein, and incense on it, offering before the lord strange fire: which was not commanded them. and fire coming out from the lord destroyed them, and they died before the lord. and moyses said to aaron: this is what the lord hath spoken: i will be sanctified in them that approach to me, and i will be glorified in the sight of all the people. and when aaron heard this, he held his peace. and moyses called misael and elisaphan, the sons of oziel, the uncle of aaron, and said to them: go and take away your brethren from before the sanctuary, and carry them without the camp. and they went forthwith and took them as they lay, vested with linen tunicks, and cast them forth, as had been commanded them. and moyses said to aaron, and to eleazar and ithamar, his sons: uncover not your heads, and rend not your garments, lest perhaps you die, and indignation come upon all the congregation. let your brethren, and all the house of israel, bewail the burning which the lord has kindled: but you shall not go out of the door of the tabernacle, otherwise you shall perish, for the oil of the holy unction is on you. and they did all things according to the precept of moyses. the lord also said to aaron: you shall not drink wine nor any thing that may make drunk, thou nor thy sons, when you enter into the tabernacle of the testimony, lest you die: because it is an everlasting precept through your generations : and that you may have knowledge to discern between holy and unholy, between unclean and clean: and may teach the children of israel all my ordinances which the lord hath spoken to them by the hand of moyses. and moyses spoke to aaron, and to eleazar and ithamar, his sons that were left: take the sacrifice that is remaining of the oblation of the lord, and eat it without leaven beside the altar, because it is holy of holies. and you shall eat it in a holy place: which is given to thee and thy sons of the oblations of the lord, as it hath been commanded me. the breast also that is offered, and the shoulder that is separated, you shall eat in a most clean place, thou and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee. for they are set aside for thee and thy children, of the victims of peace offerings of the children of israel: because they have elevated before the lord the shoulder and the breast, and the fat that is burnt on the altar, and they belong to thee and to thy sons by a perpetual law, as the lord hath commanded. while these things were a doing, when moyses sought for the buck goat, that had been offered for sin, he found it burnt: and being angry with eleazar and ithamar, the sons of aaron that were left, he said: why did you not eat in the holy place the sacrifice for sin, which is most holy, and given to you, that you may bear the iniquity of the people, and may pray for them in the sight of the lord, especially whereas none of the blood thereof hath been carried within the holy places, and you ought to have eaten it in the sanctuary, as was commanded me? aaron answered: this day hath been offered the victim for sin, and the holocaust before the lord: and to me what thou seest has happened: how could i eat it, or please the lord in the ceremonies, having a sorrowful heart? which when moyses had heard he was satisfied.

and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, saying: say to the children of israel: these are the animals which you are to eat of all the living things of the earth. whatsoever hath the hoof divided, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, you shall eat. but whatsoever cheweth indeed the cud, and hath a hoof, but divideth it not, as the camel, and others, that you shall not eat, but shall reckon it among the unclean. the chero-grilus which cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof, is unclean. the hare also: for that too cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof. and the swine, which, though it divideth the hoof, cheweth not the cud. the flesh of these you shall not eat, nor shall you touch their carcasses, because they are unclean to you. these are the things that breed in the waters, and which it is lawful to eat. all that hath fins, and scales, as well in the sea, as in the rivers, and the pools, you shall eat. but whatsoever hath not fins and scales, of those things that move and live in the waters, shall be an abomination to you, and detestable : their flesh you shall not eat, and their carcasses you shall avoid. all that have not fins and scales, in the waters, shall be unclean. of birds these are they which you must not eat, and which are to be avoided by you: the eagle, and the griffon, and the osprey, and the kite, and the vulture, according to their kind, and all that is of the raven kind, according to their likeness. the ostrich, and the owl, and the larus, and the hawk according to its kind. the screech owl, and the cormorant, and the ibis, and the swan, and the bittern, and the porphyryon, the heron, and the charadriion according to its kind, the houp also, and the bat. of things that fly, whatsoever goeth upon four feet, shall be abominable to you. but whatsoever walketh upon four feet, but hath the legs behind longer, wherewith it hopeth upon the earth, that you shall eat, as the bruchus in its kind, the attacus, and ophiomachus, and the locust, every one according to their kind. but of dying things whatsoever hath four feet only, shall be an abomination to you: and whosoever shall touch the carcasses of them, shall be defiled, and shall be unclean until the evening: and if it be necessary that he carry any of these things when they are dead, he shall wash his clothes, and shall be unclean until the sun set. every beast that hath a hoof, but divideth it not, nor cheweth the cud, shall be unclean: and he that toucheth it, shall be defiled. that which walketh upon hands of all animals which go on all four, shall be unclean: he that shall touch their carcasses shall be defiled until evening. and he that shall carry such carcasses, shall wash his clothes, and shall be unclean until evening: because all these things are unclean to you. these also shall be reckoned among unclean things, of all that move upon the earth, the weasel, and the mouse, and the crocodile, every one according to their kind: the shrew, and the chameleon, and the stello, and the lizard, and the mole: ll these are unclean. he that toucheth their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. and upon what thing soever any of their carcasses shall fall, it shall be defiled, whether it be a vessel of wood, or a garment, or skins or haircloths; or any thing in which work is done, they shall be dipped in water, and shall be unclean until the evening, and so afterwards shall be clean. but an earthen vessel, into which any of these shall fall, shall be defiled, and therefore is to be broken. any meat which you eat, if water from such a vessel be poured upon it, shall be unclean; and every liquor that is drunk out of any such vessel, shall be unclean. and upon whatsoever thing any of these dead beasts shall fall, it shall be unclean: whether it be oven, or pots with feet, they shall be destroyed, and shall be unclean. but fountains and cisterns, and all gatherings together of waters shall be clean. he that toucheth their carcasses shall be defiled. if it fall upon seed corn, it shall not defile it. but if any man pour water upon the seed, and afterwards it be touched by the carcasses, it shall be forthwith defiled. if any beast die, of which it is lawful for you to eat, he that toucheth the carcass thereof, shall be unclean until the evening: and he that eateth or carrieth any thing thereof, shall wash his clothes, and shall be unclean until the evening. If that creepeth upon the earth shall be abominable, neither shall it be taken for meat. whatsoever goeth upon the breast on four feet, or hath many feet, or traileth on the earth, you shall not eat, because it is abominable. do not defile your souls, nor touch aught thereof, lest you be unclean, for i am the lord your god: be holy because i am holy. defile not your souls by any creeping thing, that moveth upon the earth. for i am the lord, who brought you out of the land of egypt, that i might be your god. you shall be holy, because i am holy. this is the law of beasts and fowls, and of every living creature that moveth in the waters, and creepeth on the earth: that you may know the differences of the clean, and unclean, and know what you ought to eat, and what to refuse.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: if a woman having received seed shall bear a man child, she shall be unclean seven days, according to the days of the separation of her flowers. and on the eighth day the infant shall be circumcised: but she shall remain three and thirty days in the blood of her purification. she shall touch no holy thing, neither shall she enter into the sanctuary, until the days of her purification be fulfilled. but if she shall bear a maid child, she shall be unclean two weeks, according to the custom of her monthly courses, and she shall remain in the blood of her purification sixty-six days. and when the days of her purification are expired, for a son, or for a daughter, she shall bring to the door of the tabernacle of the testimony, a lamb of a year old for a holocaust, and a young pigeon or a turtle for sin, and shall deliver them to the priest: who shall offer them before the lord, and shall pray for her, and so she shall be cleansed from the issue of her blood. this is the law for her that beareth a man child or a maid child. and if her hand find not sufficiency, and she is not able to offer a lamb, she shall take two turtles, or two young pigeons, one for a holocaust, and another for sin: and the priest shall pray for her, and so she shall be cleansed.

and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, saying: the man in whose skin or flesh shalt arise a different colour or a blister, or as it were something shining, that is, the stroke of the leprosy, shall be brought to aaron the priest, or any one of his sons. and if he see the leprosy in his skin, and the hair turned white, and the place where the leprosy appears lower than the skin and the rest of the flesh: it is the stroke of the leprosy, and upon his judgment he shall be separated. but if there be a shining whiteness in the skin, and not

lower than the other flesh, and the hair be of the former colour, the priest shall shut him up seven days. and the seventh day he shall look on him: and if the leprosy be grown no farther, and hath not spread itself in the skin, he shall shut him up again other seven days. and on the seventh day, he shall look on him: if the leprosy be somewhat obscure, and not spread in the skin, he shall declare him clean, because it is but a scab: and the man shall wash his clothes, and shall be clean. but if the leprosy grow again, after he was seen by the priest and restored to cleanness, he shall be brought to him, and shall be condemned of uncleanness. if the stroke of the leprosy be in a man, he shall be brought to the priest, and he shall view him. and when there shall be a white colour in the skin, and it shall have changed the look of the hair, and the living flesh itself shall appear: it shall be judged an inveterate leprosy, and grown into the skin. the priest therefore shall declare him unclean, and shall not shut him up, because he is evidently unclean. but if the leprosy spring out running about in the skin, and cover all the skin from the head to the feet, whatsoever falleth under the sight of the eyes, the priest shall view him, and shall judge that the leprosy which he has is very clean: because it is all turned into whiteness, and therefore the man shall be clean. but when the live flesh shall appear in him, then by the judgment of the priest he shall be defiled, and shall be reckoned among the unclean: for live flesh, if it be spotted with leprosy, is unclean. and if again it be turned into whiteness, and cover all the man, the priest shall view him, and shall judge him to be clean. when also there has been an ulcer in the flesh and the skin, and it has been healed, and in the place of the ulcer, there appeareth a white scar, or somewhat red, the man shall be brought to the priest: and when he shall see the place of the leprosy lower than the other flesh, and the hair turned white, he shall declare him unclean, for the plague of leprosy is broken out in the ulcer. but if the hair be of the former colour, and the scar somewhat obscure, and be not lower than the flesh that is near it, he shall shut him up seven days. and if it spread, he shall judge him to have the leprosy: but if it stay in its place, it is but the scar of an ulcer, and the man shall be clean. the flesh also and skin that hath been burnt, and after it is healed hath a white or a red scar, the priest shall view it, and if he see it turned white, and the place thereof is lower than the other skin: he shall declare him unclean, because the evil of leprosy is broken out in the scar. but if the colour of the hair be not changed, nor the blemish lower than the other flesh, and the appearance of the leprosy be somewhat obscure, he shall shut him up seven days, and on the seventh day he shall view him: if the leprosy be grown farther in the skin, he shall declare him unclean. but if the whiteness stay in its place, and be not very clear, it is the sore of a burning, and therefore he shall be cleansed, because it is only the scar of a burning. if the leprosy break out in the head or the beard of a man or woman, the priest shall see them, and if the place be lower than the other flesh, and the hair yellow, and thinner than usual: he shall declare them unclean, because it is the leprosy of the head and the

beard; but if he perceive the place of the spot is equal with the flesh that is near it, and the hair black: he shall shut him up seven days, and on the seventh day he shall look upon it. if the spot be not grown, and the hair keep its colour, and the place of the blemish be even with the other flesh: the man shall be shaven all but the place of the spot, and he shall be shut up other seven days: if on the seventh day the evil seem to have stayed in its place, and not lower than the other flesh, he shall cleanse him, and his clothes being washed he shall be clean. but if after his cleansing the spot spread again in the skin, he shall seek no more whether the hair be turned yellow, because he is evidently unclean. but if the spot be stayed, and the hair be black, let him know that the man is healed, and let him confidently pronounce him clean. if a whiteness appear in the skin of a man or a woman, the priest shall view them. if he find that a darkish whiteness shineth in the skin, let him know that it is not the leprosy, but a white blemish, and that the man is clean. the man whose hair falleth off from his head, he is bald and clean: and if the hair fall from his forehead, he is bald before and clean. but if in the bald head or in the bald forehead there be risen a white or reddish colour, and the priest perceive this, he shall condemn him undoubtedly of leprosy which is risen in the bald part. now whosoever shall be defiled with the leprosy, and is separated by the judgment of the priest, shall have his clothes hanging loose, his head bare, his mouth covered with a cloth, and he shall cry out that he is defiled and unclean. all the time that he is a leper and unclean, he shall dwell alone without the camp. a woollen or linen garment that shall have the leprosy in the warp, and the woof, or a skin. or whatsoever is made of a skin, if it be infected with a white or red spot, it shall be accounted the leprosy, and shall be shewn to the priest. and he shall look upon it and shall shut it up seven days: and on the seventh day when he looketh on it again, if he find that it is grown, it is a axed leprosy: he shall judge the garment unclean, and every thing wherein it shall be found: and therefore it shall be burnt with fire. but if he see that it is not grown, he shall give orders, and they shall wash that part wherein the leprosy is, and he shall shut it up other seven days. and when he shall see that the former colour is not returned, nor yet the leprosy spread, he shall judge it unclean, and shall burn it with fire, for the leprosy has taken hold of the outside of the garment, or through the whole. but if the place of the leprosy be somewhat dark, after the garment is washed, he shall tear it off, and divide it from that which is sound. and if after this there appear in those places that before were without spot, a flying and wandering leprosy: it must be burnt with fire. if it cease, he shall wash with water the parts that are pure, the second time, and they shall be clean. this is the law touching the leprosy of any woollen or linen garment, either in the warp or woof, or any thing of skins, how it ought to be cleansed, or pronounced unclean.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: this is the rite of a leper, when he is to be cleansed: he shall be brought to the priest: who going out of the camp when he shall and that the leprosy is cleansed, shall command him that is to be purified, to offer for himself two living sparrows, which it is lawful to eat, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop. and he shall command one of the sparrows to be immolated in an earthen vessel over living waters: but the other that is alive he shall dip, with the cedar wood, and the scarlet and the hyssop, in the blood of the sparrow that is immolated: wherewith he shall sprinkle him that is to be cleansed seven times, that he may be rightly purified: and he shall let go the living sparrow, that it may fly into the field. and when the man hath washed his clothes, he shall shave all the hair of his body, and shall be washed with water: and being purified, he shall enter into the camp, yet so that he tarry without his own tent seven days: and on the seventh day he shall shave the hair of his head, and his beard and his eyebrows, and the hair of all his body. and having washed again his clothes, and his body, on the eighth day he shall take two lambs without blemish, and an ewe of a year old without blemish, and three tenths of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice, and a sextary of oil apart. and when the priest that purifieth the man, hath presented him, and all these things before the lord, at the door of the tabernacle of the testimony, he shall take a lamb, and offer it for a trespass offering with the sextary of oil: and having offered all before the lord, he shall immolate the lamb, where the victim for sin is wont to be immolated, and the holocaust, that is, in the holy place: for as that which is for sin, so also the victim for a trespass offering pertaineth to the priest: it is holy of holies. and the priest taking of the blood of the victim that was immolated for trespass, shall put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand and the great toe of his right foot: and he shall pour of the sextary of oil into his own left hand, and shall dip his right finger in it, and sprinkle it before the lord seven times. and the rest of the oil in his left hand, he shall pour upon the tip of the right ear of him that is cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand and the great toe of his right foot, and upon the blood that was shed for trespass, and upon his head. and he shall pray for him before the lord, and shall offer the sacrifice for sin: then shall he immolate the holocaust, and put it on the altar with the libations thereof, and the man shall be rightly cleansed. but if he be poor, and his hand cannot find the things aforesaid: he shall take a lamb for an offering for trespass, that the priest may pray for him, and a tenth part of hour tempered with oil for a sacrifice, and a sextary of oil, and two turtles or two young pigeons, of which one may be for sin, and the other for a holocaust: and he shall offer them on the eighth day of his purification to the priest, at the door of the tabernacle of the testimony before the lord. and the priest receiving the lamb for trespass, and the sextary of oil, shall elevate them together. and the lamb being immolated, he shall put of the blood thereof upon the tip of the right ear of him that is cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and the great toe of his right foot: but he shall pour part of the oil into his own left hand, and dipping the finger of his right hand in it, he shall sprinkle it seven times before the lord: and he shall touch the tip of the right ear of him that is cleansed, and the thumb of his right hand and the great toe of his right foot, in the place of the blood that was shed for trespass. and the other part of the oil that is in his left hand, he shall pour upon the head of the purified person, that he may appease the lord for him. and he shall offer a turtle, or young pigeon, one for trespass, and the other for a holocaust, with their libations. this is the sacrifice of a leper, that is not able to have all things that appertain to his cleansing. and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, saying: when you shall be come into the land of chanaan, which i will give you for a possession, if there be the plague of leprosy in a house, he whose house it is, shall go and tell the priest, saying: it seemeth to me, that there is the plague of leprosy in my house, and he shall command, that they carry forth all things out of the house, before he go into it, and see whether it have the leprosy, lest all things become unclean that are in the house. and after- wards he shall go in to view the leprosy of the house. and if he see in the walls thereof as it were little dints, disfigured with paleness or redness, and lower than all the rest, he shall go out of the door of the house, and forthwith shut it up seven days, and returning on the seventh day, he shall look upon it. if he find that the leprosy is spread, he shall command, that the stones wherein the leprosy is, be taken out, and cast without the city into an unclean place: and that the house be scraped on the inside round about, and the dust of the scraping be scattered without the city into an unclean place: and that other stones be laid in the place of them that were taken away, and the house be plastered with other mortar. but if, after the stones be taken out, and the dust scraped off, and it be plastered with other earth, the priest going in perceive that the leprosy is returned, and the walls full of spots, it is a lasting leprosy, and the house is unclean: and they shall destroy it forthwith, and shall cast the stones and timber thereof, and all the dust without the town into an unclean place. he that entereth into the house when it is shut, shall be unclean until evening, and he that sleepeth in it, and eateth any thing, shall wash his clothes. but if the priest going in perceive that the leprosy is not spread in the house, after it was plastered again, he shall purify it, it being cured, and for the purification thereof he shall take two sparrows, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop: and having immolated one sparrow in an earthen vessel over living waters, he shall take the cedar wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet, and the living sparrow, and shall dip all in the blood of the sparrow that is immolated, and in the living water, and he shall sprinkle the house seven times: and shall purify it as well with the blood of the sparrow, as with the living water, and with the living sparrow, and with the cedar wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet. and when he hath let go the sparrow to fly freely away into the field, he shall pray for the house, and it shall be rightly cleansed. this is the law of every kind of leprosy and stroke. of the leprosy of garments and houses, of a scar and of blisters breaking out, of a shining spot, and when the colours are diversely changed: that it may be known when a thing is clean or unclean.

and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, saying: speak to the children of israel, and say to them: the man that hath an issue of seed, shall be unclean. and then shall he be judged subject to this evil, when a filthy humour, at every moment, cleaveth to his flesh, and gathereth there. every bed on which he sleepeth, shall be unclean, and every place on which he sitteth. if ally man touch his bed, he shall wash his clothes: and being washed with water, he shall be unclean until the evening. if a man sit where that man hath sitten, he also shall wash his clothes: and being washed with water, shall be unclean until the evening. he that toucheth his flesh, shall wash his clothes: and being himself washed with water shall be unclean until the evening. if such a man cast his spittle upon him that is clean, he shall wash his clothes: and being washed with water, he shall be unclean until the evening. the saddle on which he hath sitten shall be unclean. and whatsoever has been under him that hath the issue of seed, shall be unclean until the evening. he that carrieth any of these things, shall wash his clothes: and being washed with water, he shall be unclean until the evening. every person whom such a one shall touch, not having washed his hands before, shall wash his clothes: and being washed with water, shall be unclean until the evening. if he touch a vessel of earth, it shall be broken: but if a vessel of wood, it shall be washed with water. if he who suffereth this disease be healed, he shall number seven days after his cleansing, and having washed his clothes, and all his body in living water, he shall be clean. and on the eighth day he shall take two turtles, or two young pigeons, and he shall come before the lord, to the door of the tabernacle of the testimony, and shall give them to the priest: who shall offer one for sin, and the other for a holocaust: and he shall pray for him before the lord, that he may be cleansed of the issue of his seed. the man from whom the seed of copulation goeth out, shall wash all his body with water: and he shall be unclean until the evening. the garment or skin that he weareth, he shall wash with water, and it shall be unclean until the evening. the woman, with whom he copulateth, shall be washed with water, and shall be unclean until the evening. the woman, who at the return of the month, hath her issue of blood, shall be separated seven days. every one that toucheth her, shall be unclean until the evening, and every thing that she sleepeth on, or that she sitteth on in the days of her separation, shall be defiled. he that toucheth her bed shall wash his clothes: and being himself washed with water, shall be unclean until the evening. whosoever shall touch any vessel on which she sitteth, shall wash his clothes: and himself being washed with water, shall be defiled until the evening. if a man copulateth with her in the time of her flowers, he shall be unclean seven days: and every bed on which he shall sleep shall be defiled. the woman that hath an issue of blood many days out of her ordinary time, or that ceaseth not to flow after the monthly courses, as long as she is subject to this disease, shall be unclean, in the same manner as if she were in her flowers. every bed on which she sleepeth, and every vessel on which she sitteth, shall be defiled. whosoever toucheth them shall wash his clothes: and himself being washed with water, shall be unclean until the evening. if the blood stop and cease to run, she shall count seven days of her purification: and on the eighth day she shall offer for herself to the priest, two turtles, or two young pigeons, at the door of the tabernacle of the testimony: and he shall offer one for sin, and the other for a holocaust, and he shall pray for her before the lord, and for the issue of her uncleanness. you shall teach therefore the children of israel to take heed of uncleanness, that they may not die in their filth, when they shall have defiled my tabernacle that is among them. this is the law of him that hath the issue of seed, and that is defiled by copulation. and of the woman that is separated in her monthly times, or that hath a continual issue of blood, and of the man that sleepeth with her.

and the lord spoke to mooses, after the death of the two sons of aaron, when they were slain upon their offering strange fire: and he commanded him, saying, speak to aaron thy brother, that he enter not at all into the sanctuary, which is within the veil before the propitiatory, with which the ark is covered, lest he die, (for i will appear in a cloud over the oracle,) unless he first do these things: he shall offer a calf for sin, and a ram for a holocaust. he shall be vested with a linen tunic, he shall cover his nakedness with linen breeches: he shall be girded with a linen girdle, and he shall put a linen mitre upon his head: for these are holy vestments: all which he shall put on, after he is washed. and he shall receive from the whole multitude of the children of israel two buck goats for sin, and one ram for a holocaust. and when he hath offered the calf and prayed for himself, and for his own house, he shall make the two buck goats to stand before the lord in the door of the tabernacle of the testimony: and casting lots upon them both, one to be offered to the lord, and the other to be the emissary goat: that whose lot fell to be offered to the lord, he shall offer for sin: but that whose lot was to be the emissary goat, he shall present alive before the lord, that he may pour out prayers upon him, and let him go into the wilderness. after these things are duly celebrated, he shall offer the calf, and praying for himself and for his own house, he shall immolate it: and taking the censer, which he hath filled with the burning coals of the altar, and taking up with his hand the compounded perfume for incense, he shall go in within the veil into the holy place: that when the perfumes are put upon the fire, the cloud and vapour thereof may cover the oracle, which is over the testimony, and he may not die. he shall take also of the blood of the calf, and sprinkle with his finger seven times towards the propitiatory to the east. and when he hath killed the buck goat for the sin of the people, he shall carry in the blood thereof within the veil, as he was commanded to do with the blood of the calf, that he may sprinkle it over against the oracle, and may expiate the sanctuary from the uncleanness of the children of israel, and from their transgressions, and all their sins. according to this rite shall he do to the tabernacle of the testimony, which is fixed among them in the midst of the filth of their habitation. let no man be in the tabernacle when the high priest goeth into the sanctuary, to pray for himself and his house, and for the whole congregation of israel, until he come out. and when he is come out to the altar that is before the lord, let him pray for himself, and taking the blood of the calf, and of the buck goat, let him pour it upon the horns thereof round about: and sprinkling with his finger seven times, let him expiate, and sanctify it from the uncleanness of the children of israel. after he hath cleansed the sanctuary, and the tabernacle, and the altar, then let him offer the living goat: and putting both hands upon his head, let him confess all the iniquities of the children of israel, and all their offences and sins: and praying that they may light on his head, he shall turn him out by a man ready for it, into the desert. and when the goat hath carried all their iniquities into an uninhabited land, and shall be let go into the desert, aaron shall return into the tabernacle of the testimony, and putting off the vestments, which he had on him before when he entered into the sanctuary, and leaving them there, he shall wash his flesh in the holy place, and shall put on his own garments. and after that he has come out and hath offered his own holocaust, and that of the people, he shall pray both for himself, and for the people: and the fat that is offered for sins, he shall burn upon the altar. but he that hath let go the emissary goat, shall wash his clothes, and his body with water, and so shall enter into the camp. but the calf and the buck goat, that were sacrificed for sin, and whose blood was carried into the sanctuary, to accomplish the atonement, they shall carry forth without the camp, and shall burn with fire, their skins and their flesh, and their dung: and whosoever burneth them shall wash his clothes, and flesh with water, and so shall enter into the camp. and this shall be to you an everlasting ordinance: the seventh month, the tenth day of the month, you shall afflict your souls, and shall do no work, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger that sojourneth among you. upon this day shall be the expiation for you, and the cleansing from all your sins: you shall be cleansed before the lord. for it is a sabbath of rest, and you shall afflict your souls by a perpetual religion. and the priest that is anointed, and whose hands are consecrated to do the office of the priesthood in his father's stead, shall make atonement; and he shall be vested with the linen robe and the holy vestments, and he shall expiate the sanctuary and the tabernacle of the testimony and the altar, the priest also and all

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to aaron and his sons, and to all the children of israel, saying to them: this is the word, which the lord hath commanded, saying: any man whosoever of the house of israel if he kill an ox, or a sheep, or a goat in the camp, or without the camp, and offer it not at the door of the tabernacle an oblation to the lord, shall be guilty of blood: as if he had shed blood, so shall he perish from the midst of his people. therefore the children of israel shall bring to the priest their victims, which they kill in the field, that they may be sanctified to the lord before the door of the tabernacle of the testimony, and they may sacrifice them for peace offerings to the lord. and the priest shall pour the blood upon the altar of the lord, at the door of the tabernacle of the testimony, and shall burn the fat for a sweet odour to the lord. and they shall no more sacrifice their victims to devils, with whom they have committed fornication. it shall be an ordinance for ever to them and to their posterity. and thou shalt say to them: the man of the house of israel, and of the strangers who sojourn among you, that offereth a holocaust or a victim, and bringeth it not to the door of the tabernacle of the testimony, that it may be offered to the lord, shall perish from among his people. if any man whosoever of the house of israel, and of the strangers that sojourn among them, eat blood, i will set my face against his soul, and will cut him off from among his people: because the life of the flesh is in the blood: and i have given it to you, that you may make atonement with it upon the altar for your souls, and the blood may be for an expiation of the soul. therefore i have said to the children of israel: no soul of you, nor of the strangers that sojourn among you, shall eat blood. any man whosoever of the children of israel, and of the strangers that sojourn among you, if by hunting or fowling, he take a wild beast or a bird, which is lawful to eat, let him pour out its blood, and cover it with earth. for the life of all flesh is in the blood: therefore i said to the children of israel: you shall not eat the blood of any flesh at all, because the life of the flesh is in the blood, and whosoever eateth it, shall be cut off. the soul that eateth that which died of itself, or has been caught by a beast, whether he be one of your own country or a stranger, shall wash his clothes and himself with water, and shall be defiled until the evening: and in this manner he shall be made clean. but if he do not wash his clothes, and his body, he shall bear his iniquity.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: i am the lord your god. you shall not do according to the custom of the land of egypt, in which you dwell: neither shall you act according to the manner of the country of chanaan, into which i will bring you, nor shall you walk in their ordinances. you shall do my judgments, and shall observe my precepts, and shall walk in them. i am the lord your god. keep my laws and my judgments, which if a man do, he shall live in them. i am the lord. no man shall approach to her that is near of kin to him, to uncover her nakedness. i am the lord. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father, or the nakedness of thy mother: she is thy mother, thou shalt not uncover her nakedness. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's wife: for it is the nakedness of thy father. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy sister by father or by mother, whether born at home or abroad. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy son's daughter, or thy daughter's daughter: because it is thy own nakedness. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's wife's daughter, whom she bore to thy father, and who is thy sister. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's sister: because she is the flesh of thy father. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister: because she is thy mother's flesh. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's brother: neither shalt thou approach to his wife, who is joined to thee by affinity. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy daughter in law: because she is thy son's wife, neither shalt thou discover her shame. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy brother's wife: because it is the nakedness of thy brother. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy wife and her daughter. thou shalt not take her son's daughter or her daughter's daughter, to discover her shame: because they are her flesh, and such copulation is incest. thou shalt not take thy wife's sister for a harlot, to rival her, neither shalt thou discover her nakedness, while she is yet living. thou shalt not approach to a woman having her flowers, neither shalt thou uncover her nakedness. thou shalt not lie with thy neighbour's wife, nor be defiled with mingling of seed. thou shalt not give any of thy seed to be consecrated to the idol moloch, nor defile the name of thy god: i am the lord. thou shalt not lie with mankind as with womankind, because it is an abomination. thou shalt not copulate with any beast, neither shalt thou be defiled with it. a woman shall not lie down to a beast, nor copulate with it: because it is a heinous crime. defile not yourselves with any of these things with which all the nations have been defiled, which i will cast out before you, and with which the land is defiled: the abominations of which i will visit, that it may vomit out its inhabitants. keep ye my ordinances and my judgments, and do not any of these abominations: neither any of your own nation, nor any stranger that sojourneth among you. for all these detestable things the inhabitants of the land have done, that; were before you, and have defiled it. beware then, lest in like manner, it vomit you also out, if you do the like things, as it vomited out the nation that was before you. every soul that shall commit any of these abominations, shall perish from the midst of his people. keep my commandments. do not the things which they have done, that have been before you, and be not defiled therein. i am the lord your god.

the lord spoke to mooses, saying: speak to all the congregation of the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: be ye holy, because i the lord your god am holy. let every one fear his father, and his mother. keep my sabbaths. i am the lord your god. turn ye not to idols, nor make to yourselves molten gods. i am the lord your god. if ye offer in sacrifice a peace offering to the lord, that he may be favourable, you shall eat it on the same day it was offered, and the next day: and whatsoever shall be left until the third day, you shall burn with fire. if after two days ally man eat thereof, he shall be profane and guilty of impiety: and shall bear his iniquity, because he hath defiled the holy thing of the lord, and that soul shall perish from among his people. when thou reapest the corn of thy land, thou shalt not cut down all that is on the face of the earth to the very ground: nor shalt thou gather the ears that remain. neither shalt thou gather the bunches and grapes that fall down in thy vineyard, but shalt leave them to the poor and the strangers to take. i am the lord your god. you shall not steal. you shall not lie, neither shall any man deceive his neighbour. thou shalt not swear falsely by my name, nor profane the name of thy god. i am the lord. thou shalt not calumniate thy neighbour, nor oppress him by violence. the wages of him that hath been hired by thee shall not abide with thee until the morning. thou shalt not speak evil of the deaf, nor put a stumblingblock before the blind: but thou shalt fear the lord thy god, because i am the lord. thou shalt not do that which is unjust, nor judge unjustly. respect not the person of the poor, nor honour the countenance of the mighty. but judge thy neighbour according to justice. thou shalt not be a detractor nor a whisperer among the people. thou shalt not stand against the blood of thy neighbour. i am the lord. thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart, but reprove him openly, lest thou incur sin through him. seek not revenge, nor be mindful of the injury of thy citizens. thou shalt love thy friend as thyself. i am the lord. keep ye my laws. thou shalt not make thy cattle to gender with beasts of any other kind. thou shalt not sow thy field with different seeds. thou shalt not wear a garment that is woven of two sorts. if a man carnally lie with a woman that is a bondservant and marriageable, and yet not redeemed with a price, nor made free: they both shall be scourged, and they shall not be put to death, because she was not a free woman. and for his trespass he shall offer a ram to the lord, at the door of the tabernacle of the testimony: and the priest shall pray for him and for his sin before the lord, and he shall have mercy on him, and the sin shall be forgiven. when you shall be come into the land, and shall have planted in it fruit trees, you shall take away the first-fruits of them: the fruit that comes forth shall be unclean to you, neither shall you eat of them. but in the fourth year, all their fruit shall be sanctified, to the praise of the lord. and in the fifth year you shall eat

the fruits thereof, gathering the increase thereof. i am the lord your god. you shall not eat with blood. you shall not divine nor observe dreams. nor shall you cut your hair roundwise: nor shave your beard. you shall not make any cuttings in your flesh, for the dead, neither shall you make in yourselves any figures or marks: i am the lord. make not thy daughter a common strumpet, lest the land be defiled, and filled with wickedness. keep ye my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary. i am the lord. o not aside after wizards, neither ask any thing of soothsayers, to be defiled by them: i am the lord your god. rise up before the hoary head, and honour the person of the aged man: and fear the lord thy god. i am the lord. if a stranger dwell in your land, and abide among you, do not upbraid him: but let him be among you as one of the same country: and you shall love him as yourselves: for you were strangers in the land of egypt. i am the lord your god. do not any unjust thing in judgment, in rule, in weight, or in measure. let the balance be just and the weights equal, the bushel just, and the sextary equal. i am the lord your god, that brought you out of the land of egypt. keep all my precepts, and all my judgments, and do them. i am the lord.

and the lord spoke to mooses, saying: thus shalt thou say to the children of israel: if any man of the children of israel, or of the strangers, that dwell in israel, give of his seed to the idol moloch, dying let him die: the people of the land shall stone him. and i will set my face against him: and i will cut him off from the midst of his people, because he hath given of his seed to moloch, and hath defiled my sanctuary, and profaned my holy name. and if the people of the land neglecting, and as it were little regarding my commandment, let alone the man that hath given of his seed to moloch, and will not kill him: i will set my face against that man, and his kindred, and will cut off both him and all that consented with him, to commit fornication with moloch, out of the midst of their people. the soul that shall go aside after magicians, and soothsayers, and shall commit fornication with them, i will set my face against that soul, and destroy it out of the midst of its people. sanctify yourselves, and be ye holy because i am the lord your god. keep my precepts, and do them. i am the lord that sanctify you. he that curseth his father, or mother, dying let him die: he hath cursed his father, and mother, let his blood be upon him. if any man commit adultery with the wife of another, and defile his neighbour's wife, let then: be put to death, both the adulterer and the adulteress. if a man lie with his stepmother, and discover the nakedness of his father, let them both be put to death: their blood be upon them. if any man lie with his daughter in law, let both die, because they have done a heinous crime: their blood be upon them. if any one lie with a man as with a woman, both have committed an abomination, let them be put to death: their blood be upon them. if any man after marrying the daughter, marry her mother, he hath done a heinous crime: he shall be burnt alive with them:

neither shall so great an abomination remain in the midst of you. he that shall copulate with any beast or cattle, dying let him die, the beast also ye shall kill. the woman that shall lie under any beast, shall be killed together with the same: their blood be upon them. if any man take his sister, the daughter of his father, or the daughter of his mother, and see her nakedness, and she behold her brother's shame: they have committed a crime: they shall be slain, in the sight of their people, because they have discovered one another's nakedness, and they shall bear their iniquity. if any man lie with a woman in her flowers, and uncover her nakedness, and she open the fountain of her blood, both shall be destroyed out of the midst of their people. thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy aunt by thy mother, and of thy aunt by thy father: he that doth this, hath uncovered the shame of his own flesh, both shall bear their iniquity. if any man lie with the wife of his uncle by the father, or of his uncle by the mother, and uncover the shame of his near akin, both shall bear their sin: they shall die without children. he that marrieth his brother's wife, doth an unlawful thing, he hath uncovered his brother's nakedness: they shall be without children. keep my laws and my judgments, and do them: lest the land into which you are to enter to dwell therein, vomit you also out. walk not after the laws of the nations, which i will cast out before you. for they have done all these things, and therefore i abhorred them. but to you i say: possess their land which i will give you for an inheritance, a land flowing with milk and honey. i am the lord your god, who have separated you from other people. therefore do you also separate the clean beast from the unclean, and the clean fowl from the unclean: defile not your souls with beasts, or birds, or any things that move on the earth, and which i have shewn you to be unclean. you shall be holy unto me, because i the lord am holy, and i have separated you from other people, that you should be mine. a man, or woman, in whom there is a pythonical or divining spirit, dying let them die: they shall stone them: their blood be upon them.

the lord said also to mooses: speak to the priests the sons of aaron, and thou shalt say to them: let not a priest incur an uncleanness at the death of his citizens: but only for his kin, such as are near in blood, that is to say, for his father and for his mother, and for his son, and for his daughter, for his brother also, and for a maiden sister, who hath had no husband: but not even for the prince of his people shall he do any thing that may make him unclean. neither shall they shave their head, nor their beard, nor make incisions in their flesh. they shall be holy to their god, and shall not profane his name: for they offer the burnt offering of the lord, and the bread of their god, and therefore they shall be holy. they shall not take to wife a harlot or a vile prostitute, nor one that has been put away from her husband: because they are consecrated to their god, and offer the leaves of proposition. let them therefore be holy, because i also am

holy, the lord, who sanctify them. if the daughter of a priest be taken in whoredom, and dishonour the name of her father, she shall be burnt with fire. the high priest, that is to say, the priest, is the greatest among his brethren. upon whose head the oil of unction hath been poured, and whose hands have been consecrated for the priesthood, and who hath been vested with the holy vestments, shall not uncover his head, he shall not rend his garments: nor shall he go in at all to any dead person: not even for his father, or his mother, shall he be defiled: neither shall he go out of the holy places, lest he defile the sanctuary of the lord, because the oil of the holy unction of his god is upon him. i am the lord. he shall take a virgin unto his wife: but a widow or one that is divorced, or defiled, or a harlot, he shall not take, but a maid of his own people: he shall not mingle the stock of his kindred with the common people of his nation: for i am the lord who sanctify him. and the lord spoke to mooses, saying: say to aaron: whosoever of thy seed throughout their families, hath a blemish, he shall not offer bread to his god. neither shall he approach to minister to him: if he be blind, if he be lame, if he have a little, or a great, or a crooked nose, if his foot, or if his hand be broken, if he be crookbacked, or blear eyed, or have a pearl in his eye, or a continual scab, or a dry scurf in his body, or a rupture: whosoever of the seed of aaron the priest hath a blemish, he shall not approach to offer sacrifices to the lord, nor bread to his god. he shall eat nevertheless of the loaves, that are offered in the sanctuary, yet so that he enter not within the veil, nor approach to the altar, because he hath a blemish, and he must not defile my sanctuary. i am the lord who sanctify them. mooses therefore spoke to aaron, and to his sons and to all israel, all the things that had been commanded him.

and the lord spoke to mooses, saying: speak to aaron and to his sons, that they beware of those things that are consecrated of the children of israel, and defile not the name of the things sanctified to me, which they offer. i am the lord. say to them and to their posterity: every man of your race, that approacheth to those things that are consecrated, and which the children of israel have offered to the lord, in whom there is uncleanness, shall perish before the lord. i am the lord. the man of the seed of aaron, that is a leper, or that suffereth a running of the seed, shall not eat of those things that are sanctified to me, until he be healed. he that toucheth any thing unclean by occasion of the dead, and he whose seed goeth from him as in generation, and he that toucheth a creeping thing, or any unclean thing, the touching of which is defiling, shall be unclean until the evening, and shall not eat those things that are sanctified: but when he hath washed his flesh with water, and the sun is down, then being purified, he shall eat of the sanctified things, because it is his meat. that which dieth of itself, and that which was taken by a beast, they shall not eat, nor be defiled therewith, i am the lord. let them keep my precepts, that they may not

fall into sin, and die in the sanctuary, when they shall have defiled it. i am the lord who sanctify them. no stranger shall eat of the sanctified things: a sojourner of the priests, or a hired servant, shall not eat of them. but he whom the priest hath bought, and he that is his servant, born in his house, these shall eat of them. if the daughter of a priest be married to any of the people, she shall not eat of those things that are sanctified, nor of the firstfruits. but if she be a widow, or divorced, and having no children return to her father's house, she shall eat of her father's meats, as she was wont to do when she was a maid, no stranger hath leave to eat of them. he that eateth of the sanctified things through ignorance, shall add the fifth part with that which he ate, and shall give it to the priest into the sanctuary. and they shall not profane the sanctified things of the children of israel, which they offer to the lord: lest perhaps they bear the iniquity of their trespass, when they shall have eaten the sanctified things. i am the lord who sanctify them. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to aaron, and to his sons, and to all the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: the man of the house of israel, and of the strangers who dwell with you, that offereth his oblation, either paying his vows, or offering of his own accord, whatsoever it be which he presenteth for a holocaust of the lord, to be offered by you, it shall be a male without blemish of the beeves, or of the sheep, or of the goats. if it have a blemish you shall not offer it, neither shall it be acceptable. the man that offereth a victim of peace offerings to the lord, either paying his vows, or offering of his own accord, whether of beeves or of sheep, shall offer it without blemish, that it may be acceptable: there shall be no blemish in it. if it be blind, or broken, or have a scar or blisters, or a scab, or a dry scurf: you shall not offer them to the lord, nor burn any thing of them upon the lord's altar. an ox or a sheep, that hath the ear and the tail cut off, thou mayst offer voluntarily: but a vow may not be paid with them. you shall not offer to the lord any beast that hath the testicles bruised, or crushed, or cut and taken away: neither shall you do any such thing in your land. you shall not offer bread to your god, from the hand of a stranger, nor any other thing that he would give: because they are all corrupted, and defiled: you shall not receive them. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: when a bullock, or a sheep, or a goat, is brought forth, they shall be seven days under the udder of their dam: but the eighth day, and thenceforth, they may be offered to the lord. whether it be a cow, or a sheep, they shall not be sacrificed the same day with their young ones. if you immolate a victim for thanksgiving to the lord, that he may be favourable, you shall eat it the same day, there shall not any of it remain until the morning of the next day. i am the lord. keep my commandments, and do them. i am the lord. profane not my holy name, that i may be sanctified in the midst of the children of israel. i am the lord who sanctify you, and who brought you out of the land of egypt, that i might be your god: i am the lord.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: these are the feasts of the lord, which you shall call holy. six days shall ye do work: the seventh day, because it is the rest of the sabbath, shall be called holy. you shall do no work on that day: it is the sabbath of the lord in all your habitations. these also are the holy days of the lord, which you must celebrate in their seasons. the first month, the fourteenth day of the month at evening, is the phase of the lord: and the fifteenth day of the same month is the solemnity of the unleavened bread of the lord. seven days shall you eat unleavened bread. the first day shall be most solemn unto you, and holy: you shall do no servile work therein: but you shall offer sacrifice in fire to the lord seven days. and the seventh day shall be more solemn, and more holy: and you shall do no servile work therein. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: when you shall have entered into the land which i will give you, and shall reap your corn, you shall bring sheaves of ears, the firstfruits of your harvest to the priest: who shall lift up the sheaf before the lord, the next day after the sabbath, that it may be acceptable for you, and shall sanctify it. and on the same day that the sheaf is consecrated, a lamb without blemish of the first year shall be killed for a holocaust of the lord. and the libations shall be offered with it, two tenths of hour tempered with oil for a burnt offering of the lord, and a most sweet odour: libations also of wine, the fourth part of a hin. you shall not eat either bread, or parched corn, or frumenty of the harvest, until the day that you shall offer thereof to your god. it is a precept for ever throughout your generations, and all your dwellings. you shall count therefore from the morrow after the sabbath, wherein you offered the sheaf of the firstfruits, seven full weeks. even unto the morrow after the seventh week be expired, that is to say, fifty days, and so you shall offer a new sacrifice to the lord. out of all your dwellings, two leaves of the firstfruits, of two tenths of flour leavened, which you shall bake for the firstfruits of the lord. and you shall offer with the leaves seven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one calf from the herd, and two rams, and they shall be for a holocaust with their libations far a most sweet odour to the lord. you shall offer also a buck goat for sin, and two lambs of the first year for sacrifices of peace offerings. and when the priest hath lifted them up with the leaves of the firstfruits before the lord, they shall fall to his use. and you shall call this day most solemn, and most holy. you shall do no servile work therein. it shall be an everlasting ordinance in all your dwellings and generations. and when you reap the corn of your land, you shall not cut it to the very ground: neither shall you gather the ears that remain; but you shall leave them for the poor and for the strangers. i am the lord your god. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: say to the children of israel: the seventh month, on the first day of the month, you shall keep a sabbath, a memorial, with the sound of trumpets, and it shall be called holy. you shall do no servile work therein, and you shall offer a holocaust to the lord. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: upon the tenth day of this seventh month shall be the day of atonement, it shall be most solemn, and shall be called holy: and you shall afflict your souls on that day, and shall offer a holocaust to the lord. you shall do no servile work in the time of this day: because it is a day of propitiation, that the lord your god may be merciful unto you. every soul that is not afflicted on this day, shall perish from among his people: and every soul that shall do any work, the same will i destroy from among his people. you shall do no work therefore on that day: it shall be an everlasting ordinance unto you in all your generations, and dwellings. it is a sabbath of rest, and you shall afflict your souls beginning on the ninth day of the month: from evening until evening you shall celebrate your sabbaths. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: say to the children of israel: from the fifteenth day of this same seventh month, shall be kept the feast of tabernacles seven days to the lord. the first day shall be called most solemn and most holy: you shall do no servile work therein. and seven days you shall offer holocausts to the lord. the eighth day also shall be most solemn and most holy, and you shall offer holocausts to the lord: for it is the day of assembly and congregation: you shall do no servile work therein. these are the feasts of the lord, which you shall call most solemn and most holy, and shall offer on them oblations to the lord, holocausts and libations according to the rite of every day, besides the sabbaths of the lord, and your gifts, and those things that you offer by vow, or which you shall give to the lord voluntarily. so from the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when you shall have gathered in all the fruits of your land, you shall celebrate the feast of the lord seven days: on the first day and the eighth shall be a sabbath, that is a day of rest. and you shall take to you on the first day the fruits of the fairest tree, and branches of palm trees, and boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook, and you shall rejoice before the lord your god. and you shall keep the solemnity thereof seven days in the year. it shall be an everlasting ordinance in your generations. in the seventh month shall you celebrate this feast. and you shall dwell in bowers seven days: every one that is of the race of israel, shall dwell in tabernacles: that your posterity may know, that i made the children of israel to dwell in tabernacles, when i brought them out of the land of egypt. i am the lord your god. and moyses spoke concerning the feasts of the lord to the children of israel.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: command the children of israel, that they bring unto thee the finest and dearest oil of olives, to furnish the lamps continually, without the veil of the testimony in the tabernacle of the covenant. and aaron shall set them from evening until morning before the lord, by a perpetual service and rite in your generations. they shall be set upon the most pure candlestick before the lord continually. thou shalt take also fine hour, and shalt bake twelve leaves thereof, two tenths shall be in every loaf: and thou shalt set them six and six one against another upon the most clean table before the lord: and thou shalt put upon them the dearest frankincense, that the bread may be for a memorial of the oblation of the lord. every sabbath they shall be changed before the lord, being received of the children of israel by an everlasting covenant: and they shall be aaron's and his sons', that they may eat them in the holy place: because it is most holy of the sacrifices of the lord by a perpetual right. and behold there went out the son of a woman of israel, whom she had of an egyptian, among the children of israel, and fell at words in the camp with a man of israel. and when he had blasphemed the name, and had cursed it, he was brought to moyses: (now his mother was called salumith, the daughter of dabri, of the tribe of dan:) and they put him into prison, till they might know what the lord would command. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: bring forth the blasphemer without the camp, and let them that heard him, put their hands upon his head, and let all the people stone him. and thou shalt speak to the children of israel: the man that curseth his god, shall bear his sin: and he that blasphemeth the name of the lord, dying let him die: all the multitude shall stone him, whether he be a native or a stranger. he that blasphemeth the name of the lord, dying let him die. he that striketh and killeth a man, dying let him die. he that killeth a beast, shall make it good, that is to say, shall give beast for beast. he that giveth a blemish to any of his neighbours: as he hath done, so shall it be done to him: breach for breach, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, shall he restore. what blemish he gave, the like shall he be compelled to suffer. he that striketh a beast, shall render another. he that striketh a man shall be punished. let there be equal judgment among you, whether he be a stranger, or a native that offends: because i am the lord your god. and moyses spoke to the children of israel: and they brought forth him that had blasphemed, without the camp, and they stoned him. and the children of israel did as the lord had commanded moyses.

and the lord spoke to moyses in mount sinai, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: when you shall have entered into the land which i will give you, observe the rest of the sabbath to the lord. six years thou shalt sow thy field and six years thou shalt prune thy vineyard, and shalt gather the fruits thereof: but in the seventh year there shall be a sabbath to the land, of the resting of the lord: thou shalt not sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard. what the ground shall bring forth of itself, thou shalt not reap: neither shalt thou gather the grapes of the firstfruits as a vintage: for it is a year of rest to the land: but they shall be unto you for meat, to thee and to thy manservant, to thy maidservant and thy hireling, and to the strangers that sojourn with thee: all things that grow shall be meat to thy beasts and to thy cattle. thou shalt also number to thee seven weeks of years, that is to say, seven times seven, which together make forty-nine years: and thou shalt sound the trumpet in the seventh month, the tenth day of the month, in the time of the expiation in all your land. and thou shalt sanctify the fiftieth year, and shalt proclaim remission to all the inhabitants of thy land: for it is the year of jubilee. every man shall return to his possession, and every one shall go back to his former family: because it is the jubilee and the fiftieth year. you shall not sow, nor reap the things that grow in the field of their own accord, neither shall you gather the firstfruits of the vines, because of the sanctification of the jubilee: but as they grow you shall presently eat them. in the year of the jubilee all shall return to their possessions. when thou shalt sell any thing to thy neighbour, or shalt buy of him; grieve not thy brother: but thou shalt buy of him according to the number of years from the jubilee. and he shall sell to thee according to the computation of the fruits. the more years remain after the jubilee, the more shall the price increase: and the less time is counted, so much the less shall the purchase cost. for he shall sell to thee the time of the fruits. do not afflict your countrymen, but let every one fear his god: because i am the lord your god. do my precepts, and keep my judgments, and fulfil them: that you may dwell in the land without any fear, and the ground may yield you its fruits, of which you may eat your fill, fearing no man's invasion. but if you say: what shall we eat the seventh year, if we sow not, nor gather our fruits? i will give you my blessing the sixth year, and it shall yield the fruits of three years: and the eighth year you shall sow, and shall eat of the old fruits, until the ninth year: till new grow up, you shall eat the old store. the land also shall not be sold for ever: because it is mine, and you are strangers and sojourners with me. for which cause all the country of your possession shall be under the condition of redemption. if thy brother being impoverished sell his little possession, and his kinsman will, he may redeem what he had sold. but if he have no kinsman, and he himself can find the price to redeem it: the value of the fruits shall be counted from that time when he sold it: and the overplus he shall restore to the buyer, and so shall receive his possession again. but if his hands find not the means to repay the price, the buyer shall have what he bought, until the year of the jubilee. for in that year all that is sold shall return to the owner, and to the ancient possessor. he that selleth a house within the walls of a city, shall have the liberty to redeem it, until one year be expired: if he redeem it not, and the whole year be fully out, the buyer shall possess it, and his posterity for ever, and it can- not be redeemed, not even in the jubilee. but if the house be in a village, that hath no walls, it shall be sold according to the same law as the fields: if it be not redeemed before, in the jubilee it shall return to the owner. the houses of levites, which are in cities, may always be redeemed: if they be not redeemed, in the jubilee they shall all return to the owners, because the houses of the cities of the levites are for their possessions among the children of israel. but let not their suburbs be sold, because it is a perpetual possession. if thy brother be im-

perished, and weak of hand, and thou receive him as a stranger and sojourner, and he live with thee, take not usury of him nor more than thou gavest: fear thy god, that thy brother may live with thee. thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor exact of him any increase of fruits. i am the lord your god, who brought you out of the land of egypt, that i might give you the land of chanaan, and might be your god. if thy brother constrained by poverty, sell himself to thee, thou shalt not oppress him with the service of bond-servants: but he shall be as a hireling, and a sojourner: he shall work with thee until the year of the jubilee, and afterwards he shall go out with his children, and shall return to his kindred and to the possession of his fathers, for they are my servants, and i brought them out of the land of egypt: let them not be sold as bondmen: afflict him not by might, but fear thy god. let your bondmen, and your bondwomen, be of the nations that are round about you. and of the strangers that sojourn among you, or that were born of them in your land, these you shall have for servants: and by right of inheritance shall leave them to your posterity, and shall possess them for ever. but oppress not your brethren the children of israel by might. if the hand of a stranger or a sojourner grow strong among you, and thy brother being impoverished sell himself to him, or to any of his race: after the sale he may be redeemed. he that will of his brethren shall redeem him: either his uncle, or his uncle's son, or his kinsman, by blood, or by affinity. but if he himself be able also, he shall redeem himself, counting only the years from the time of his selling unto the year of the jubilee: and counting the money that he was sold for, according to the number of the years and the reckoning of a hired servant, if there be many years that remain until the jubilee, according to them shall he also repay the price. if few, he shall make the reckoning with him according to the number of the years, and shall repay to the buyer of what remaineth of the years, his wages being allowed for which he served before: he shall not afflict him violently in thy sight. and if by these means he cannot be redeemed, in the year of the jubilee he shall go out with his children. for the children of israel are my servants, whom i brought forth out of the land of egypt.

i am the lord your god: you shall not make to yourselves any idol or graven thing, neither shall you erect pillars, nor set up a remarkable stone in your land, to adore it: for i am the lord your god. keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: i am the lord. if you walk in my precepts, and keep my commandments, and do them, i will give you rein in due seasons. and the ground shall bring forth its increase, and the trees shall be filled with fruit. the threshing of your harvest shall reach unto the vintage, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing time: and you shall eat your bread to the full, and dwell in your land without fear. i will give peace in your coasts: you shall sleep, and there shall be none to make you afraid. i will take away evil beasts: and the sword shall not pass through your quarters. you shall pursue your enemies, and they shall fall before you. five of yours shall pursue a hundred others, and a hundred of you ten thousand: your enemies shall fall before you by the sword. i will look on you, and make you increase: you shall be multiplied, and i will establish my covenant with you. you shall eat the oldest of the old store, and, new coming on, you shall cast away the old. i will set my tabernacle in the midst of you, and my soul shall not cast you off. i will walk among you, and will be your god, and you shall be my people. i am the lord your god: who have brought you out of the land of the egyptians, that you should not serve them, and who have broken the chains of your necks, that you might go upright. but if you will not hear me, nor do all my commandments, if you despise my laws, and condemn my judgments so as not to do those things which are appointed by me, and to make void my covenant: i also will do these things to you: i will quickly visit you with poverty, and burning heat, which shall waste your eyes, and consume your lives. you shall sow your seed in vain, which shall be devoured by your enemies. i will set my face against you, and you shall fall down before your enemies, and shall be made subject to them that hate you, you shall flee when no man pursueth you. but if you will not yet for all this obey me: i will chastise you seven times more for your sins, and i will break the pride of your stubbornness, and i will make to you the heaven above as iron, and the earth as brass: your labour shall be spent in vain, the ground shall not bring forth her increase, nor the trees yield their fruit. if you walk contrary to me, and will not hearken to me, i will bring seven times more plagues upon you for your sins: and i will send in upon you the beasts of the held, to destroy you and your cattle, and make you few in number, and that your highways may be desolate. and if even so you will not amend, but will walk contrary to me: i also will walk contrary to you, and will strike you seven times for your sins. and i will bring in upon you the sword that shall avenge my covenant. and when you shall flee into the cities, i will send the pestilence in the midst of you, and you shall be delivered into the hands of your enemies, after i shall have broken the staff of your bread: so that ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and give it out by weight: and you shall eat, and shall not be filled. but if you will not for all this hearken to me, but will walk against me: i will also go against you with opposite fury, and i will chastise you with seven plagues for your sins, so that you shall eat the flesh of your sons and of your daughters. i will destroy your high places, and break your idols. you shall fall among the ruins of your idols, and my soul shall abhor you. inasmuch that i will bring your cities to be a wilderness, and i will make your sanctuaries desolate, and will receive no more your sweet odours. and i will destroy your land, and your enemies shall be astonished at it, when they shall be the inhabitants thereof. and i will scatter you among the gentiles, and i will draw out the sword after you, and your land shall be desert, and your cities destroyed. then shall the land enjoy her sabbaths all the days of her desolation: when you shall be in the enemy's land, she shall keep a sabbath, and rest in the sabbaths of her desolation, because she did not rest in your sabbaths when you dwelt therein. and as to them that shall remain of you i will send fear in their hearts in the countries of their enemies, the sound of a flying leaf shall terrify them, and they shall flee as it were from the sword: they shall fall, when no man pursueth them, and they shall every one fall upon their brethren as fleeing from wars, none of you shall dare to resist your enemies. you shall perish among the gentiles, and an enemy's land shall consume you. and if of them also some remain, they shall pine away in their iniquities, in the land of their enemies, and they shall be afflicted for the sins of their fathers, and their own: until they confess their iniquities and the iniquities of their ancestors, whereby they have transgressed me, and walked contrary unto me. therefore i also will walk them, and bring them into their enemies' land until their uncircumcised mind be ashamed: then shall they pray for their sins. and i will remember my covenant, that i made with jacob, and isaac, and abraham. i will remember also the land: which when she shall be left by them, shall enjoy her sabbaths, being desolate for them. but they shall pray for their sins, because they rejected my judgments, and despised my laws. and yet for all that when they were in the land of their enemies, i did not cast them off altogether, neither did i so despise them that they should be quite consumed, and i should make void my covenant with them. for i am the lord their god. and i will remember my former covenant, when i brought them out of the land of egypt, in the sight of the gentiles, to be their god. i am the lord. these are the judgments, and precepts, and laws, which the lord gave between him and the children of israel in mount sinai by the hand of moses.

and the lord spoke to moses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: the man that shall have made a vow, and promised his soul to god, shall give the price according to estimation. if it be a man from twenty years old unto sixty years old, he shall give fifty sides of silver, after the weight of the sanctuary: if a woman, thirty. but from the fifth year until the twentieth, a man shall give twenty sicles: a woman ten. from one month until the fifth year. for a male shall be given five sides: for a female three. a man that is sixty years old or upward, shall give fifteen aises: a woman ten. if he be poor, and not able to pay tile estimation, he shall stand before tile priest: and as much as he shall value him at, and see him able to pay, so much shall he give. but a beast that may be sacrificed to the lord, if ally one shall vow, shall be holy, and cannot be changed, that is to say, neither a better for a worse, nor a worse for a better. and if he shall change it: both that which was changed, and that for which it was changed, shall be consecrated to the lord. an unclean beast, which cannot be sacrificed to the lord, if my man shall vow, shall be brought before the priest: who judging whether it be good or bad, shall set the price: which if he that offereth it will give, he shall add above the estimation the fifth part. if a man shall vow his house, and sanctify it to the lord, the priest shall consider it, whether it be good or bad, and it shall be sold according to the price, which he shall appoint. but if he that vowed, will redeem it, he shall give the fifth part of the estimation over and above, and shall have the house. and if he vow the field of his possession, and consecrate it to the lord, the price shall be rated according to the measure of the seed. if the ground be sowed with thirty bushels of barley, let it be sold for fifty sicles of silver. if he vow his field immediately from the year of jubilee that is beginning, as much as it may be worth, at so much it shall be rated. but if some time after, the priest shall reckon the money according to the number of years that remain until the jubilee, and the price shall be abated. and if he that had vowed, will redeem his field, he shall add the fifth part of the money of the estimation, and shall possess it. and if he will not redeem it, but it be sold to any other man, he that vowed it, may not redeem it any more: for when the day of jubilee cometh, it shall be sanctified to the lord, and as a possession consecrated, pertaineth to the right of the priests. if a field that was bought, and not of a man's ancestors' possession, be sanctified to the lord, the priest shall reckon the price according to the number of years: unto the jubilee: and he that had vowed, shall give that to the lord. but in the jubilee, it shall return to the former owner, who had sold it, and had it in the lot of his possession. all estimation shall be made according to the side of the sanctuary. a sicle hath twenty obols. the firstborn, which belong to the lord, no man may sanctify and vow: whether it be bullock, or sheep, they are the lord's. and if it be an unclean beast, he that offereth it shall redeem it, according to thy estimation, and shall add the fifth part of the price. if he will not redeem it, it shall be sold to another for how much soever it was estimated by thee. any thing that is devoted to the lord, whether it be man, or beast, or field, shall not be sold, neither may it be redeemed. whatsoever is once consecrated shall be holy of holies to the lord. and any consecration that is offered by man, shall not be redeemed, but dying shall die. all tithes of the land, whether of corn, or of the fruits of trees, are the lord's, and are sanctified to him. and if any man will redeem his tithes, he shall add the fifth part of them. of all the tithes of oxen, and sheep, and goats, that pass under the shepherd's rod, every tenth that cometh shall be sanctified to the lord. it shall not be chosen neither good nor bad, neither shall it be changed for another. if any man change it: both that which was changed, and that for which it was changed, shall be sanctified to the lord, and shall not be redeemed. these are the precepts which the lord commanded moyses for the children of israel in mount sinai.

and the lord spoke to moyses in the desert of sinai in the tabernacle of the covenant, the first day of the second month, the second year of their going out of egypt, saying: take the sum of all the congregation of the children of israel by their families, and houses, and the names of every one, as many as are of the male sex, from twenty years old and upwards, of all the men of israel fit for war, and you shall number them by their troops, thou and aaron. and there shall be with you the princes of the tribes, and of the houses in their kindreds, whose names are these: of ruben, elisur the son of sedeur. of simeon, salamiel the son of surisaddai. of juda, nahasson the son of aminadab. of issachar, nathanael the son of suar. of zabulon, eliab the son of helon. and of the sons of joseph: of ephraim, elisama the son of ammiud: of manasses, gamaliel the son of phadassur. of benjamin, abidan the son of gedeon. of dan, ahiezer the son of ammisaddai. of aser, phegiel the son of ochran. of gad, eliasaph the son of duel. of nephtali, ahira the son of enan. these are the most noble princes of the multitude by their tribes and kindreds, and the chiefs of the army of israel: whom moyses and aaron took with all the multitude of the common people: and assembled them on the first day of the second month, reckoning them up by the kindreds, and houses, and families, and heads, and names of every one from twenty years old and upward, as the lord had commanded moyses. and they were numbered in the desert of sinai. of ruben the eldest son of israel, by their generations and families and houses and names of every head, all that were of the male sex, from twenty years old and upward, that were able to go forth to war, were forty-six thousand five hundred. of the sons of simeon by their generations and families, and houses of their kindreds, were reckoned up by the names and heads of every one, all that were of the male sex, from twenty years old and upward, that were able to go forth to war, fifty-nine thousand three hundred. of the sons of gad, by their generations and families and houses of their kindreds were reckoned up by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war, forty-five thousand six hundred and fifty. of the sons of juda, by their generations and families and houses of their kindreds, by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war, were reckoned up seventy-four thousand six hundred. of the sons of issachar, by their generations and families and houses of their kindreds, by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that could go forth to war, were reckoned up fifty-four thousand four hundred. of the sons of zabulon, by the generations and families and houses of their kindreds, were reckoned up by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war, fifty-seven thousand four hundred. of the sons of joseph, namely, of the sons of ephraim, by the generations and families and houses of their kindreds, were reckoned up by the names of every one, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war, forty thousand five hundred. moreover of the sons of manasses, by the generations and families and houses of their kindreds, were reckoned up by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that could go forth to war, thirty-two thousand two hundred. of the sons of benjamin, by their generations and families and houses of their kindreds, were reckoned up by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war, thirty-five thousand four hundred. of the sons of dan, by their generations and families and houses of their kindreds, were reckoned up by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war, sixty-two thousand seven hundred. of the sons of aser, by their generations and families and houses of their kindreds, were reckoned up by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war, forty-one thousand and five hundred. of the sons of nephtali, by their generations and families and houses of their kindreds, were reckoned up by the names of every one from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war, fifty-three thousand four hundred. these are they who were numbered by moyses and aaron, and the twelve princes of israel, every one by the houses of their kindreds. and the whole number of the children of israel by their houses and families, from twenty years old and upward, that were able to go to war, were six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty men. but the levites in the tribes of their families were not numbered with them. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: number not the tribe of levi, neither shalt thou put down the sum of them with the children of israel: but appoint them over the tabernacle of the testimony, and all the vessels thereof, and whatsoever pertaineth to the ceremonies. they shall carry the tabernacle and all the furniture thereof: and they shall minister, and shall encamp round about the tabernacle. when you are to go forward, the levites shall take down the tabernacle: when you are to camp, they shall set it up. what stranger soever cometh to it, shall be slain. and the children of israel shall camp every man by his troops and bands and army. but the levites shall pitch their tents round about the tabernacle, lest there come indignation upon the multitude of the children of israel, and they shall keep watch, and guard the tabernacle of the testimony. and the children of israel did according to all things which the lord had commanded moyses.

and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, saying: all the children of israel shall camp by their troops, ensigns, and standards, and the houses of their kindreds, round about the tabernacle of the covenant. on the east juda shall pitch his tents by the bands of his army: and the prince of his sons shall be nahasson the son of aminadab. and the whole sum of the fighting men of his stock, were seventy-four thousand six hundred. next unto him they of the tribe of issachar encamped, whose prince was nathanael, the son of suar. and the whole number of his fighting men were fifty-four thousand four hundred. in the tribe of zabulon the prince was eliab the son of helon. and all the army of fighting men of his stock, were fifty-seven thousand four hundred. all that were numbered in the camp of juda, were a hundred and eighty-six thousand four hundred: and they by their troops shall march first. in the camp of the sons of ruben, on the south side, the prince shall be elisur the son of sedeut: and the whole army of his fighting men, that were numbered, were forty-six thousand five hundred. beside him camped they of the tribe of simeon: whose prince was salamiel the son of surisaddai. and the whole army of his fighting men, that were numbered, were fifty-nine thousand three hundred. in the tribe of gad the prince was eliasaph the son of duel. and the whole army of his fighting men that were numbered, were forty-five thousand six hundred and fifty. all that were reckoned up in the camp of ruben, were a hundred and fifty-one thousand four hundred and fifty, by their troops: they shall march in the second place. and the tabernacle of the testimony shall be carried by the officers of the levites and their troops. as it shall be set up, so shall it be taken down. every one shall march according to their places, and ranks. on the west side shall be the camp of the sons of ephraim, whose prince was elisama, the son of ammiud. the whole army of his fighting men, that were numbered, were forty thousand five hundred. and with them the tribe of the sons of manasses, whose prince was gamaliel the son of phadassur. and the whole army of his fighting men, that were numbered, were thirty-two thousand two hundred. in the tribe of the sons of benjamin the prince was abidan the son of gedeon. and the whole army of his fighting men, that were reckoned up, were thirty-five thousand four hundred. all that were numbered in the camp of ephraim, were a hundred and eight thousand one hundred by their troops: they shall march in the third place. on the north side camped the sons of dan: whose prince was ahiezar the son of ammisaddai. the whole army of his fighting men, that were numbered, were sixty-two thousand seven hundred. beside him they of the tribe of aser pitched their tents: whose prince was phegiel the son of ochran. the whole army of his fighting men, that were numbered, were forty-one thousand five hundred. of the tribe of the sons of nephtali the prince was ahira the son of enan. the whole army of his fighting men, were fifty-three thousand four hundred. all that were numbered in the camp of dan, were a hundred and fifty-seven thousand six hundred: and they shall march last. this is the number of the children of israel, of their army divided according to the houses of their kindreds and their troops, six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty. and the levites were not numbered among the children of israel: for so the lord had commanded moyses. and the children of israel did according to all things that the lord had commanded. they camped by their troops, and marched by the families and houses of their fa-

these are the generations of aaron and moyses in the day that the lord spoke to moyses in mount sinai. and these the names of the sons of aaron: his firstborn nadab, then abiu, and eleazar, and ithamar. these the names of the sons of aaron the priests that were anointed, and whose hands were filled and consecrated, to do the functions of priesthood. now nadab and abiu died, without children, when they offered strange fire before the lord, in the desert of sinai: and eleazar and ithamar performed the priestly office in the presence of aaron their father. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: bring the tribe of levi, and make them stand in the sight of aaron the priest to minister to him, and let them watch, and observe whatsoever appertaineth to the service of the multitude before the tabernacle of the testimony, and let them keep the vessels of the tabernacle, serving in the ministry thereof. and thou shalt give the levites for a gift, to aaron and to his sons, to whom they are delivered by the children of israel. but thou shalt appoint aaron and his sons over the service of priesthood. the stranger that approacheth to minister, shall be put to death. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: i have taken the levites from the children of israel, for every firstborn that openeth the womb among the children of israel, and the levites shall be mine. for every firstborn is mine: since i struck the firstborn in the land of egypt: i have sanctified to myself whatsoever is firstborn in israel both of man and beast, they are mine: i am the lord. and the lord spoke to moyses in the desert of sinai, saying: number the sons of levi by the houses of their fathers and their families, every male from one month and upward. moyses numbered them as the lord had commanded. and there were found sons of levi by their names, gerson and caath and merari. the sons of gerson: lebni and semei. the sons of caath: amram, and jesaar, hebron and ozziel: the sons of merari: moholi and musi. of gerson were two families, the lebrites, and the semeites: of which were numbered, people of the male sex from one month and upward, seven thousand five hundred. these shall pitch behind the tabernacle on the west, under their prince eliasaph the son of lael. and their charge shall be in the tabernacle of the covenant: the tabernacle itself and the cover thereof, the hanging that is drawn before the doors of the tabernacle of the covenant, and the curtains of the court: the hanging also that is hanged in the entry of the court of the tabernacle, and whatsoever belongeth to the rite of the altar, the cords of the tabernacle, and all the furniture thereof. of the kindred of caath come the families of the amramites and jesaarites and hebronites and ozielites. these are the families of the caathites reckoned up by their names: all of the male sex from one month and upward, eight thousand six hundred: they shall have the guard of the sanctuary, and shall camp on the south side. and their prince shall be elisaphan the son of ozziel: and they shall keep the ark, and the table and the candlestick, the altars, and the vessels of the sanctuary, wherewith they minister, and the veil, and all the furniture of this kind. and the prince of the princes of the levites, eleazar, the son of aaron the priest, shall be over them that watch for the guard of the sanctuary. and of merari are the families of the moholites, and musites, reckoned up by their names : all of the male kind from one month and upward, six thousand two hundred. their prince suriel the son of abihaiel: they shall camp on the north side. under their custody shall be the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars, and the pillars and their sockets, and all things that pertain to this kind of service: and the pillars of the court round about with their sockets, and the pins with their cords. before the tabernacle of the covenant, that is to say on the east side, shall moyses and aaron camp, with their sons, having the custody of the sanctuary, in the midst of the children of israel. what stranger soever cometh unto it, shall be put to death. all the levites, that moyses and aaron numbered according to the precept of the lord, by their families, of the male kind from one month and upward, were twenty-two thousand. and the lord said to moyses: number the firstborn of the male sex of the children of israel, from one month and upward, and thou shalt take the sum of them. and thou shalt take the levites to me for all the firstborn of the children of israel, i am the lord: and their cattle for all the firstborn of the cattle of the children of israel: moyses reckoned up, as the lord had commanded, the firstborn of the children of israel: and the males by their names, from one month and upward, were twenty-two thousand two hundred and seventy-three. and the lord spoke to moyses, saving: take the levites for the firstborn of the children of israel, and the cattle of the levites for their cattle, and the levites shall be mine. i am the lord. but for the price of the two hundred and seventy-three, of the firstborn of the children of israel, that exceed the number of the levites, thou shalt take five sides for every head, according to the weight of the sanctuary. a sicel hath twenty obols. and then shalt give the money to aaron and his sons, the price of them that are above. moyses therefore took the money of them that were above, and whom they had redeemed from the levites, for the firstborn of the children of israel, one thousand three hundred and sixty-five sicles, according to the weight of the sanctuary, and gave it to aaron and his sons, according to the word that the lord had commanded him.

and the lord spoke to moyses, and aaron, saying: take the sum of the sons of caath from the midst of the levites, by their houses and families. from thirty years old and upward, to fifty years old, of all that go in to stand and to minister in the tabernacle of the covenant. this is the service of the sons of caath: when the camp is to set forward, aaron and his sons shall go into the tabernacle of the covenant, and the holy of holies, and shall take down the veil that hangeth before the door, and shall wrap up the ark of the testimony in it, and shall cover it again with a cover of violet skins, and shall spread over it a cloth all of violet, and shall put in the bars. they shall wrap up also the table of proposition in a cloth of violet, and shall put with it the censers and little mortars, the cups and bowls to pour out the libations: the leaves shall be always on it: and they shall spread over it a cloth of scarlet, which again they shall cover with a covering of violet skins, and shall put in the bars. they shall take also a cloth of violet wherewith they shall cover the candlestick with the lamps and tongs thereof and the snuffers and all the oil vessels, which are necessary for the dressing of the lamps : and over all they shall put a cover of violet skins and put in the bars. and they shall wrap up the golden altar also in a cloth of violet, and shall spread over it a cover of violet skins, and put in the bars. all the vessels wherewith they minister in the sanctuary, they shall wrap up in a cloth of violet, and shall spread over it a cover of violet skins, and put in the bars. they shall cleanse the altar also from the ashes, and shall wrap it up in a purple cloth, and shall put it with all the vessels that they use in the ministry thereof, that is to say, firepans, flesh-hooks and forks, pothooks and shovels. they shall cover all the vessels of the altar together with a covering of violet skins, and shall put in the bars. and when aaron and his sons have wrapped up the sanctuary and the vessels thereof at the removing of the camp, then shall the sons of caath enter in to carry the things wrapped up: and they shall not touch the vessels of the sanctuary, lest they die. these are the burdens of the sons of caath: in the tabernacle of the covenant: and over them shall be eleazar the son of aaron the priest, to whose charge pertaineth the oil to dress the lamps, and the sweet incense, and the sacrifice, that is always offered, and the oil of unction, and whatsoever pertaineth to the service of the tabernacle, and of all the vessels that are in the sanctuary. and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, saying: destroy not the people of caath from the midst of the levites: but do this to them, that they may live, and not die, by touching the holies of holies. aaron and his sons shall go in, and they shall appoint every man his work, and shall divide the burdens that every man is to carry. let not others by any curiosity see the things that are in the sanctuary before they be wrapped up, otherwise they shall die. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: take the sum of the soils of gerson also by their houses and families and kindreds. from thirty years old and upward, unto fifty years old. number them all that go in and minister in the tabernacle of the covenant. this is the office of the family of the gersonites : to carry the curtains of the tabernacle and the roof of the covenant, the other covering, and the violet covering over all, and the hanging that hangeth in the entry of the tabernacle of the covenant, the curtains of the court, and the veil in the entry that is before the tabernacle. all things that pertain to the altar, the cords and the vessels of the ministry, the sons of gerson shall carry, by the commandment of aaron and his sons: and each man shall know to what burden he must be assigned. this is the service of the family of the gersonites in the tabernacle of the covenant, and they shall be under the hand of ithamar the son of aaron the priest. thou shalt reckon up the sons of

merari also by the families and houses of their fathers, from thirty years old and upward, unto fifty years old, all that go in to the office of their ministry, and to the service of the covenant of the testimony. these are their burdens: they shall carry the boards of the tabernacle and the bars thereof, the pillars and their sockets, the pillars also of the court round about, with their sockets and pins and cords. they shall receive by account all the vessels and furniture, and so shall carry them. this is the office of the family of the merarites, and their ministry in the tabernacle of the covenant: and they shall be under the hand of ithamar the son of aaron the priest. so moyses and aaron and the princes of the synagogue reckoned up the sons of caath, by their kindreds and the houses of their fathers, from thirty years old and upward, unto fifty years old, all that go in to the ministry of the tabernacle of the covenant: and they were found two thousand seven hundred and fifty. this is the number of the people of caath that go in to the tabernacle of the covenant: these did moyses and aaron number according to the word of the lord by the hand of moyses. the sons of gerson also were numbered by the kindreds and houses of their fathers, from thirty years old and upward, unto fifty years old, all that go in to minister in the tabernacle of the covenant: and they were found two thousand six hundred and thirty. this is the people of the gersonites, whom moyses and aaron numbered according to the word of the lord. the sons of merari also were numbered by the kindreds and houses of their fathers, from thirty years old and upward, unto fifty years old, all that go in to fulfil the rites of the tabernacle of the covenant: and they were found three thousand two hundred. this is the number of the sons of merari, whom moyses and aaron reckoned up according to the commandment of the lord by the hand of moyses. all that were reckoned up of the levites, and whom moyses and aaron and the princes of israel took by name, by the kindreds and houses of their fathers, from thirty years old and upward, until fifty years old, that go into the ministry of the tabernacle, and to carry the burdens, were in all eight thousand five hundred and eighty. moyses reckoned them up according to the word of the lord, every one according to their office and burdens, as the lord had commanded him.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: command the children of israel, that they cast out of the camp every leper, and whosoever hath an issue of seed, or is defiled by the dead: whether it be man or woman, cast ye them out of the camp, lest they defile it when i shall dwell with you. and the children of israel did so, and they cast them forth without the camp, as the lord had spoken to moyses. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: say to the children of israel: when a man or woman shall have committed any of all the sins that men are wont to commit, and by negligence shall have transgressed the commandment of the lord, and offended, they shall confess their sin, and restore the principal itself, and the fifth part over and above, to him against whom they have sinned. but if there be no one to receive it, they shall give it to the lord, and it shall be the priest's, besides the ram that is offered for expiation, to be an atoning sacrifice. and the firstfruits also, which the children of israel offer, belong to the priest: and whatsoever is offered into the sanctuary by every one, and is delivered into the hands of the priest, it shall be his. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: the man whose wife shall have gone astray, and contemning her husband, shall have slept with another man, and her husband cannot discover it, but the adultery is secret, and cannot be proved by witnesses, because she was not found in the adultery: if the spirit of jealousy stir up the husband against his wife, who either is defiled, or is charged with false suspicion, he shall bring her to the priest, and shall offer an oblation for her, the tenth part of a measure of barley meal: he shall not pour oil thereon, nor put frankincense upon it: because it is a sacrifice of jealousy, and an oblation searching out adultery. the priest therefore shall offer it, and set it before the lord. and he shall take holy water in an earthen vessel, and he shall cast a little earth of the pavement of the tabernacle into it. and when the woman shall stand before the lord, he shall uncover her head, and shall, put on her hands the sacrifice of remembrance, and the oblation of jealousy: and he himself shall hold the most bitter waters, whereon he hath heaped curses with execration. and he shall adjure her, and shall say: if another man hath not slept with thee, and if thou be not defiled by forsaking thy husband's bed, these most bitter waters, on which i have heaped curses, shall not hurt thee. but if thou hast gone aside from thy husband, and art defiled, and hast lain with another man: these curses shall light upon thee: the lord make thee a curse, and an example for all among his people: may he make thy thigh to rot, and may thy belly swell and burst asunder. let the cursed waters enter into thy belly, and may thy womb swell and thy thigh rot. and the woman shall answer, amen, amen. and the priest shall write these curses in a book, and shall wash them out with the most bitter waters, upon which he hath heaped the curses, and he shall give them her to drink. and when she hath drunk them up, the priest shall take from her hand the sacrifice of jealousy, and shall elevate it before the lord, and shall put it upon the altar: yet so as first, to take a handful of the sacrifice of that which is offered, and burn it upon the altar: and so give the most bitter waters to the woman to drink. and when she hath drunk them, if she be defiled, and having despised her husband be guilty of adultery, the malediction shall go through her, and her belly swelling, her thigh shall rot: and the woman shall be a curse, and an example to all the people. but if she be not defiled, she shall not be hurt, and shall bear children. this is the law of jealousy. if a woman hath gone aside from her husband, and be defiled, and the husband stirred up by the spirit of jealousy bring her before the lord, and the priest do to her according to all things that are here written: the husband shall be blameless, and she shall bear her iniquity.

and the lord spoke to mores, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: when a man, or woman, shall make a vow to be sanctified, and will consecrate themselves to the lord: they shall abstain from wine, and from every thing that may make a man drunk. they shall not drink vinegar of wine, or of any other drink, nor any thing that is pressed out of the grape: nor shall they eat grapes either fresh or dried. all the days that they are consecrated to the lord by vow: they shall eat nothing that cometh of the vineyard, from the raisin even to the kernel. all the time of his separation no razor shall pass over his head, until the day be fulfilled of his consecration to the lord. he shall be holy, and shall let the hair of his head grow. all the time of his consecration he shall not go in to any dead, neither shall he make himself unclean, even for his father, or for his mother, or for his brother, or for his sister, when they die, because the consecration of his god is upon his head. all the days of his separation he shall be holy to the lord. but if any man die suddenly before him: the head of his consecration shall be defiled: and he shall shave it forthwith on the same day of his purification, and again on the seventh day. and on the eighth day he shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons to the priest in the entry of the covenant of the testimony. and the priest shall offer one for sin, and the other for a holocaust, and shall pray for him, for that he hath sinned by the dead: and he shall sanctify his head that day: and shall consecrate to the lord the days of his separation, offering a lamb of one year for sin: yet so that the former days be made void, because his sanctification was profaned. this is the law of consecration. when the days which he had determined by vow shall be expired, he shall bring him to the door of the tabernacle of the covenant, and shall offer his oblation to the lord: one he lamb of a year old without blemish for a holocaust, and one ewe lamb of a year old without blemish for a sin offering, and one ram without blemish for a victim of peace offering, a basket also of unleavened bread, tempered with oil, and wafers without leaven anointed with oil, and the libations of each: and the priest shall present them before the lord, and shall offer both the sin offering and the holocaust. but the ram he shall immolate for a sacrifice of peace offering to the lord, offering at the same time the basket of unleavened bread, and the libations that are due by custom. then shall the hair of the consecration of the nazirite, be shaved off before the door of the tabernacle of the covenant: and he shall take his hair, and lay it upon the fire, which is under the sacrifice of the peace offerings. and shall take the boiled shoulder of the ram, and one unleavened cake out of the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and he shall deliver them into the hands of the nazirite, after his head is shaven. and receiving them again from him, he shall elevate them in the sight of the lord: and they being sanctified shall belong to the priest, as the breast, which was commanded to be separated, and the shoulder. after this the nazirite may drink wine. this is the law of the nazirite, when he hath vowed his oblation to the lord in the time of his consecration, besides those things which his hand shall find, according to that which he had vowed in his mind, so shall he do for the fulfilling of his sanctification. and the lord spoke to mores, saying: say to aaron and his sons: thus shall you bless the children of israel, and you shall say to them: the lord bless thee, and keep thee. the lord shew his face to thee, and have mercy on thee. the lord turn his countenance to thee, and give thee peace. and they shall invoke my name upon the children of israel, and i will bless them.

and it came to pass in the day that mores had finished the tabernacle, and set it up, and had anointed and sanctified it with all its vessels, the altar likewise and all the vessels thereof, the princes of israel and the heads of the families, in every tribe, who were the rulers of them who had been numbered, offered their gifts before the lord, six wagons covered, and twelve oxen. two princes offered one wagon, and each one an ox, and they offered them before the tabernacle. and the lord said to mores: receive them from them to serve in the ministry of the tabernacle, and thou shalt deliver them to the levites according to the order of their ministry. mores therefore receiving the wagons and the oxen, delivered them to the levites. two wagons and four oxen he gave to the sons of gerson, according to their necessity. the other four wagons, and eight oxen he gave to the sons of merari, according to their offices and service, under the hand of ithamar the son of aaron the priest. but to the sons of caath he gave no wagons or oxen: because they serve in the sanctuary and carry their burdens upon their own shoulders. and the princes offered for the dedication of the altar on the day when it was anointed, their oblation before the altar. and the lord said to mores: let each of the princes one day after another offer their gifts for the dedication of the altar. the first day nahasson the son of aminadab of the tribe of juda offered his offering: and his offering was a silver dish weighing one hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides according to the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for sacrifice: a little mortar of ten sides of gold full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for the sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of nahasson the son of aminadab. the second day nathanael the son of suar, prince of the tribe of issachar, made his offering, a silver dish weighing one hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides, according to the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for the sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of nathanael the son of suar. the third day the prince of the sons of zabulon, eliab the son of helon, offered a silver dish weighing one hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides by the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for the sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this is the oblation of eliab the son of helon. the fourth day the prince of the sons of ruben, elisur the son of sedeur, offered a silver dish weighing one hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides according to the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old, for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for victims of peace offerings two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of elisur the son of sedeur. the fifth day the prince of the sons of simeon, salamiel the son of surisaddai, offered a silver dish weighing one hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides after the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for sacrifices of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of salamiel the son of surisaddai. the sixth day the prince of the sons of gad, eliasaph the son of duel, offered a silver dish weighing a hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides by the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for sacrifices of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of eliasaph the son of duel. the seventh day the prince of the sons of ephraim, elisama the son ammiud, offered a silver dish weighing a hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides according to the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense : an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for sacrifices of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of elisama the son of ammiud. the eighth day the prince of the sons of manasses, gamaliel the son of phadassur, offered a silver dish weighing a hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides, according to the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for sacrifices of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of gamaliel the son of phadassur. the ninth day the prince of the sons of benjamin, abidan the son of gedeon, offered a silver dish weighing a hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides by the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for sacrifices of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of abidan the son of gedeon. the tenth day the prince of the sons of dan, ahiezer the son of ammisaddai, offered a silver dish weighing a hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides, according to the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense : an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for sacrifices of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of ahiezer the son of ammisaddai. the eleventh day the prince of the sons of aser, phegiel the son of ochran, offered a silver dish weighing a hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides, according to the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for sacrifices of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of phegiel the son of ochran. the twelfth day the prince of the sons of nephtali, ahira the son of enan, offered a silver dish weighing a hundred and thirty sides, a silver bowl of seventy sides, according to the weight of the sanctuary, both full of flour tempered with oil for a sacrifice: a little mortar of gold weighing ten sides full of incense: an ox of the herd, and a ram, and a lamb of a year old for a holocaust: and a buck goat for sin: and for sacrifices of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five buck goats, five lambs of a year old. this was the offering of ahira the son of enan. these were the offerings made by the princes of israel in the dedication of the altar, in the day wherein it was consecrated. twelve dishes of silver: twelve silver bowls: twelve little mortars of gold: each dish weighing a hundred and thirty sides of silver, and each bowl seventy sides: that is, putting all the vessels of silver together, two thousand four hundred sides, by the weight of the sanctuary. twelve little mortars of gold full of incense, weighing ten sides apiece, by the weight of the sanctuary: that is, in all a hundred and twenty sides of gold. twelve oxen out of the herd for a holocaust, twelve rams, twelve lambs of a year old, and their libations: twelve buck goats for sin. and for sacrifices of peace offerings, oxen twenty-four, rams sixty, buck goats sixty, lambs of a year old sixty. these things were offered in the dedication of the altar, when it was anointed, and when moyses entered into the tabernacle of the covenant, to consult the oracle, he heard the voice of one speaking to him from the propitiatory, that was over the ark between the two cherubims, and from this place he spoke to him.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to aaron, and thou shalt say to him: when thou shalt place the seven lamps, let the candlestick be set up on the south side. give orders therefore that the lamps look over against the north, towards the table of the leaves of proposition, over against that part shall they give light, towards which the candlestick looketh. and aaron did so, and he put the lamps upon the candlestick, as the lord had commanded moyses. now this was the work of the candlestick, it was of beaten gold, both the shaft in the middle, and all that came out of both sides of the branches: according to the pattern which the lord had shewn to moyses, so he made the candlestick. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: take the levites out of the midst of the children of israel, and thou shalt purify them, according to this rite: let them be sprinkled with the water of purification, and let them shave all the hairs of their flesh. and when they shall have washed their garments, and are cleansed, they shall take an ox of the herd, and for the offering thereof fine flour tempered with oil: and thou shalt take another ox of the herd for a sin offering: and thou shalt bring the levites before the tabernacle of the covenant, calling together all the multitude of the children of israel: and when the levites are before the lord, the children of israel shall put their hands upon them: and aaron shall offer the levites, as a gift in the sight of the lord from the children of israel, that they may serve in his ministry. the levites also shall put their hands upon the heads of the oxen, of which thou shalt sacrifice one for sin, and the other for a holocaust to the lord, to pray for them. and thou shalt set the levites in the sight of aaron and of his sons, and shalt consecrate them being offered to the lord, and shalt separate them from the midst of the children of israel, to be mine. and afterwards they shall enter into the tabernacle of the covenant, to serve me. and thus shalt thou purify and consecrate them for an oblation of the lord: for as a gift they were given me by the children of israel. i have taken them instead of the firstborn that open every womb in israel, for all the firstborn of the children of israel, both of men and of beasts, are mine. from the day that i slew every firstborn in the land of egypt, have i sanctified them to myself: and i have taken the levites for all the firstborn of the children of israel: and have delivered them for a gift to aaron and his sons out of the midst of the people, to serve me for israel in the tabernacle of the covenant, and to pray for them, lest there should be a plague among the people, if they should presume to approach unto my sanctuary. and moyses and aaron and all the multitude of the children of israel did with the levites all that the lord had commanded moyses: and they were purified, and washed their garments. and aaron lifted them up in the sight of the lord, and prayed for them, that being purified they might go into the tabernacle of the covenant to do their services before aaron and his sons. as the lord had commanded moyses touching the levites, so was it done. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: this is the law of the levites: from twenty-five years old and upwards, they shall go in to minister in the tabernacle of the covenant. and when they shall have accomplished the fiftieth year of their age, they shall cease to serve: and they shall be the ministers of their brethren in the tabernacle of the covenant, to keep the things that are committed to their care, but not to do the works. thus shalt thou order the levites touching their charge.

the lord spoke to moyses in the desert of sinai, the second year after they were come out of the land of egypt, in the first month, saying: let the children of israel make the phase in its due time, the fourteenth day of this month in the evening, according to all the ceremonies and justifications thereof. and moyses commanded the children of israel that they should make the phase. and they made it in its proper time: the fourteenth day of the month at evening, in mount sinai. the children of israel did according to all things that the lord had commanded moyses. but behold some who were unclean by occasion of the soul of a man, who could not make the phase on that day, coming to moyses and aaron, said to them: we are unclean by occasion of the soul of a man. why are we kept back that we may not offer in its season the offering to the lord among the children of israel? and moyses answered them: stay that i may consult the lord what he will ordain concerning you. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: say to the children of israel: the man that shall be unclean by occasion of one that is dead, or shall be in a journey afar off in your nation, let him make the phase to the lord. in the second month, on the fourteenth day of the month in the evening, they shall eat it with unleavened bread and wild lettuce: they shall not leave any thing thereof until morning, a nor break a bone thereof, they shall observe all the ceremonies of the phase. but if any man is clean, and was not on a journey, and did not make the phase, that soul shall be cut off from among his people, because he offered not sacrifice to the lord in due season: he shall bear his sin. the sojourner also and the stranger if they be among you, shall make the phase to the lord according to the ceremonies and justifications thereof. the same ordinance shall be with you both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land. now on the day that the tabernacle was reared up, a cloud covered it. but from the evening there was over the tabernacle, as it were, the appearance of fire until the morning. so it was always: by day the cloud covered it, and by night as it were the appearance of fire. and when the cloud that covered the tabernacle was taken up, then the children of israel marched forward: and in the place where the cloud stood still, there they camped. at the commandment of the lord they marched, and at his commandment they pitched the tabernacle. all the days that the cloud abode over the tabernacle, they remained in the same place: and if it was so that it continued over it a long time, the children of israel kept the watches of the lord, and marched not, for as many days soever as the cloud stayed over the tabernacle. at the commandment of the lord they pitched their tents, and at his commandment they took them down. if the cloud tarried from evening until morning, and immediately at break of day left the tabernacle, they marched forward: and if it departed after a day and a night, they took down their tents. but if it remained over the tabernacle for two days or a month or a longer time, the children of israel remained in the same place, and marched not: but immediately as soon as it departed, they removed the camp. by the word of the lord they pitched their tents, and by his word they marched: and kept the watches of the lord according to his commandment by the hand of moyses.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: make thee two trumpets of beaten silver, wherewith thou mayest call together the multitude when the camp is to be removed. and when thou shalt sound the trumpets, all the multitude shall gather unto thee to the door of the tabernacle of the covenant. if thou sound but once, the princes and the heads of the multitude of israel shall come to thee. but if the sound of the trumpets be longer, and with interruptions, they that are on the east side, shall first go forward. and at the second sounding and like noise of the trumpet, they who lie on the south side shall take up their tents. and after this manner shall the rest do, when the trumpets shall sound for a march. but when the people is to be gathered together, the sound of the trumpets shall be plain, and they shall not make a broken sound. and the sons of aaron the priest shall sound the trumpets: and this shall be an ordinance for ever in your generations. if you go forth to war out of your land against the enemies that fight against you, you shall sound aloud with the trumpets, and there shall be a remembrance of you before the lord your god, that you may be delivered out of the hands of your enemies. if at any time you shall have a banquet, end on your festival days, and on the first days of your months, you shall sound the trumpets over the holocausts, and the sacrifices of peace offerings, that they may be to you for a remembrance of your god. i am the lord your god. the second year, in the second month, the twentieth day of the month, the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle of the covenant. and the children of israel marched by their troops from the desert of sinai, and the cloud rested in the wilderness of pharan. and the first went forward according to the commandment of the lord by the hand of moyses. the sons of juda by their troops: whose prince was nahasson the son of aminadab. in the tribe of the sons of issachar, the prince was nathanael the son of suar. in the tribe of zabulon, the prince was eliab the son of helon. and the tabernacle was taken down, and the sons of gerson and merari set forward, bearing it. and the sons of ruben also marched, by their troops and ranks, whose prince was helisur the son of sedeur. and in the tribe of simeon, the prince was salamiel the son of surisaddai. and in the tribe of cad, the prince was eliasaph the son of duel. then the caathites also marched carrying the sanctuary. so long was the tabernacle carried, till they came to the place of setting it up. the sons of ephraim also moved their camp by their troops, in whose army the prince was elisama the son of ammiud. and in the tribe of the sons of manasses, the prince was gamaliel the son of phadassur. and in the tribe of benjamin, the prince was abidan the son of gedeon. the last of all the camp marched the sons of dan by their troops, in whose army the prince was ahiezer the son of ammisaddai. and in the tribe of the sons of aser, the prince was phegiel the son of ochran. and in the tribe of the sons of nephtali, the prince was ahira the son of enan. this was the order of the camps, and marches of the children of israel by their troops, when they set forward. and moyses said to hobab the son of raguel the madianite, his kinsman: we are going towards the place which the lord will give us: come with us, that we may do thee good: for the lord hath promised good things to israel. but he answered him: i will not go with thee, but i will return to my country, wherein i was born. and he said: do not leave us: for thou knowest in what places we should encamp in the wilderness, and thou shalt be our guide. and if thou comest with us, we will give thee what is the best of the riches which the lord shall deliver to us. so they marched from the mount of the lord three days' journey, and the ark of the covenant of the lord went before them, for three days providing a place for the camp. the cloud also of the lord was over them by day when they marched. and when the ark was lifted up, moyses said: arise, o lord, and let thy enemies be scattered, and let them that hate thee, flee from before thy face. and when it was set down, he said: return, o lord, to the multitude of the host of israel.

in the mean time there arose a murmuring of the people against the lord, as it were repining at their fatigue. and when the lord heard it he was angry. and the fire of the lord being kindled against them, devoured them that were at the uttermost part of the camp. and when the people cried to moyses, moyses prayed to the lord, and the fire was swallowed up. and he called the name of that place, the burning: for that the fire of the lord had been kindled against them. for a mixt multitude of people, that came up with them, burned with desire, sitting and weeping, the children of israel also being joined with them, and said: who shall give us flesh to eat? we remember the ash that we ate in egypt free cost: the cucumbers come into our mind, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlic. our soul is dry, our eyes behold nothing else but manna. a now the manna was like coriander seed, of the colour of bdellium. and the people went about, and gathering it, ground it in a mill, or beat it in a mortar, and boiled it in a pot, and made cakes thereof of the taste of bread tempered with oil. and when the dew fell in the night upon the camp, the manna also fell with it. now moyses heard the people weeping by their families, every one at the door of his tent. and the wrath of the lord was exceedingly enkindled: to moyses also the thing seemed insupportable. and he said to the lord: why hast thou afflicted thy servant? wherefore do i not find favour before thee? and why hast thou laid the weight of all this people upon me? have i conceived all this multitude, or begotten them, that thou shouldst say to me: carry them in thy bosom as the nurse is wont to carry the little infant, and bear them into the land, for which thou hast sworn to their fathers? whence should i have flesh to give to so great a multitude? they weep against me, saying: give us flesh that we may eat. i am not able alone to bear all this people, because it is too heavy for me. but if it seem unto thee otherwise, i beseech thee to kill me, and let me find grace in thy eyes, that i be not afflicted with so great evils. and the lord said to moyses: gather unto me seventy men of the ancients of israel, whom thou knowest to be ancients and masters of the people: and thou shalt bring them to the door of the tabernacle of the covenant, and shalt make them stand there with thee, that i may come down and speak with thee: and i will take of thy spirit, and will give to them, that they may bear with thee the burden of the people, and thou mayest not be burthened alone. and thou shalt say to the people: be ye sanctified: to morrow you shall eat flesh: for i have heard you say: who will give us flesh to eat? it was well with us in egypt. that the lord may give you flesh, and you may eat: not for one day, nor two, nor five, nor ten, no nor for twenty. but even for a month of days, till it come out at your nostrils, and become loathsome to you, because you have cast off the lord, who is in the midst of you, and have wept before him, saying: why came we out of egypt? and moyses said: there are six hundred thousand footmen of this people, and sayest thou: i will give them flesh to eat a whole month? shall then a multitude of sheep and oxen be killed, that it may suffice for their food? or shall the fishes of the sea be gathered together to fill them? and the lord answered him: is the hand of the lord unable? thou shalt presently see whether my word shall come to pass or no. moyses therefore came, and told the people the words of the lord, and assembled seventy men of the ancients of israel, and made them to stand about the tabernacle. and the lord came down in a cloud, and spoke to him, taking away of the spirit that was in moyses, and giving to the seventy men. and when the spirit had rested on them they prophesied, nor did they cease afterwards. now there remained in the camp two of the men, of whom one was called eldad, and the other medad, upon whom the spirit rested; for they also had been enrolled, but were not gone forth to the tabernacle. and when they prophesied in the camp, there ran a young man, and told moyses, saying: eldad and medad prophesy in the camp. forthwith josue the son of nun, the minister of moyses, and chosen out of many, said: my lord moyses forbid them. but he said: why hast thou emulation for me? o that all the people might prophesy, and that the lord would give them his spirit! and moyses returned, with the ancients of israel, into the camp, and a wind going out from the lord, taking quails up beyond the sea brought them, and cast them into the camp for the space of one day's journey, on every side of the camp round about, and they flew in the air two cubits high above the ground. the people therefore rising up all that day, and night, and the next day, gathered together of quails, he that did least, ten cores: and they dried them round about the camp. as yet the flesh was between their teeth, neither had that kind of meat failed: when behold the wrath of the lord being provoked against the people, struck them with an exceeding great plague. and that place was called, the graves of lust: for there they buried the people that had lusted. and departing from the graves of lust, they came unto haseroth, and abode there.

and mary and aaron spoke against moyses, because of his wife the ethiopian, and they said: hath the lord spoken by moyses only? hath he not also spoken to us in like manner? and when the lord heard this, (for moyses was a man exceeding meek above all men that dwelt upon earth) immediately he spoke to him, and to aaron and mary: come out you three only to the tabernacle of the covenant. and when they were come out, the lord came down in a pillar of the cloud, and stood in the entry of the tabernacle calling to aaron and mary. and when they were come, he said to them: hear my words: if there be among you a prophet of the lord, i will appear to him in a vision, or i will speak to him in a dream. but it is not so with my servant moyses a who is most faithful in all my house: for i speak to him mouth to mouth: and plainly, and not by riddles and figures doth he see the lord. why then were you not afraid to speak ill of my servant moyses? and being angry with them he went away: the cloud also that was over the tabernacle departed: and behold mary appeared white as snow with a leprosy. and when aaron had looked on her, and saw her all covered with leprosy, he said to moyses: i beseech thee, my lord, lay not upon us this sin, which we have foolishly committed: let her not be as one dead, and as an abortive that is cast forth from the mother's womb. lo, now one half of her flesh is consumed with the leprosy, and moyses cried to the lord, saying: o god, i beseech thee heal her. and the lord answered him: if her father had spitten upon her face, ought she not to have been ashamed for seven days at least? let her be separated seven days without the camp, and after wards she shall be called again. mary therefore was put out of the camp seven days: and the people moved not from that place until mary was called again. and the people marched from haseroth, and pitched their tents in the desert of pharan.

and there the lord spoke to moyses, saying: send men to view the land of chanaan, which i will give to the children of israel, one of every tribe, of the rulers. moyses did what the lord had commanded, sending from the desert of pharan, principal men, whose names are these: of the tribe of ruben, sammua the son of zechur. of the tribe of simeon, saphat the son of hurl. of the tribe of juda, caleb the son of jephone. of the tribe of issachar, igal the son of joseph. of the tribe of ephraim, osee the son of nun. of the tribe of benjamin, phalti the son of raphu. of the tribe of zablulon, geddiel the son of sodi. of the tribe of joseph, of the sceptre of manasses, gaddi the son of susi. of the tribe of dan, ammiel the son of gemalli. of the tribe of aser, sthur the son of michael. of the tribe of nephtali, nahabi the son of vapsi. of the tribe of gad, guel the son of machi. these are the names of the men, whom moyses sent to view the land: and he called osee the son of nun, josue. and moyses sent them to view the land of chanaan, and said to them: go you up by the south side. and when you shall come to the mountains, view the land, of what sort it is: and the people that are the inhabitants thereof, whether they be strong or weak: few in number or many: the land itself, whether it be good or bad: what manner of cities, walled or without walls: the ground, fat or barren, woody or without trees. be of good courage, and bring us of the fruits of the land. now it was the time when the first ripe grapes are fit to be eaten. and when they were gone up, they viewed the land from the desert of sin, unto rohob as you enter into emath. and they went up at the south side, and came to hebron, where were achiman and sisai and tholmai the sons of enac. for hebron was built seven years before tanis the city of egypt. and going forward as far as the torrent of the cluster of grapes, they cut off a branch with its cluster of grapes, which two men carried upon a lever. they took also of the pomegranates and of the figs of that place: which was called nehelescol, that is to say, the torrent of the cluster of grapes, because from thence the children of israel had carried a cluster of grapes. and they that went to spy out the land returned after forty days, having gone round all the country, and came to moyses and aaron and to all the assembly of the children of israel to the desert of pharan, which is in cades. and speaking to them and to all the multitude, they shewed them the fruits of the land: and they related and said: we came into the land to which thou sentest us, which in very deed floweth with milk and honey as may be known by these fruits: but it hath very strong inhabitants, and the cities are great and walled. we saw there the race of enac. amalec dwelleth in the south, the hethite and the jebusite and the amorrhite in the mountains: but the chanaanite abideth by the sea and near the streams of the jordan. in the mean time caleb, to still the murmuring of the people that rose against moyses, said: let us go up and possess the land, for we shall be able to conquer it. but the others, that had been with him, said: no, we are not able to go up to this people, because they are stronger than we. and they spoke ill of the land, which they had viewed, before the children of israel, saying: the land which we have viewed, devoureth its inhabitants: the people, that we beheld, are of a tall stature. there we saw certain monsters of the sons of enac, of the giant kind: in comparison of whom, we seemed like locusts.

moyses and aaron, saying: would god that we had died in egypt and would god we may die in this vast wilderness, and that the lord may not bring us into this land, lest we fall by the sword, and our wives and children be led away captives. is it not better to return into egypt? and they said one to another: let us appoint a captain, and let us return into egypt. and when moyses and aaron heard this, they fell down flat upon the ground before the multitude of the children of israel. but josue the son of nun, and caleb the son of jephone, who themselves also had viewed the land, rent their garments, and said to all the multitude of the children of israel: the land which we have gone round is very good: if the lord be favourable, he will bring us into it, and give us a land flowing with milk and honey. be not rebellious against the lord: and fear ye not the people of this land, for we are able to eat them up as bread. all aid is gone from them: the lord is with us, fear ye not. and when all the multitude cried out, and would have stoned them, the glory of the lord appeared over the tabernacle of the covenant to all the children of israel. and the lord said to moyses: how long will this people detract me? how long will they not believe me for all the signs that i have wrought before them? i will strike them therefore with pestilence, and will consume them: but thee i will make a ruler over a great nation, and a mightier than this is. and moyses said to the lord: that the egyptians, from the midst of whom thou hast brought forth this people, and the inhabitants of this land, (who have heard that thou, o lord, art among this people, and art seen face to face, and thy cloud protecteth them, and thou goest before them in a pillar of a cloud by day, and in a pillar of fire by night,) may hear that thou hast killed so great a multitude as it were one man and may say: he could not bring the people into the land for which he had sworn, therefore did he kill them in the wilderness. let their the strength of the lord be magnified, as thou hast sworn, saying: the lord is patient and full of mercy, taking away iniquity and wickedness, and leaving no man clear, who visitest the sins of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation. forgive, i beseech thee, the sins of this people, according to the greatness of thy mercy, as thou hast been merciful to them from their going out of egypt unto this place. and the lord said: i have forgiven according to thy word. as i live: and the whole earth shall be filled with the glory of the lord. but yet all the men that have seen my majesty, and the signs that i have done in egypt, and in the wilderness, and have tempted me now ten times, and have not obeyed my voice, shall not see the land for which i aware to their fathers, neither shall any one of them that hath detracted me behold it. my servant caleb, who being full of another spirit hath followed me, i will bring into this land which he hath gone round: and his seed shall possess it. for the amalecite and the chanaanite dwell in the valleys. to morrow remove the camp, and return into the wilderness by the way of the red sea. and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, saying: how long doth this wicked multitude murmur against me? i have heard the murmurings of the children of israel. say therefore to them: as i live, saith the lord: according as you have spoken in my hearing, so will i do to you. for the wilderness shall your carcases lie. all you that were numbered from twenty years old and upward, and have murmured against me, shall not enter into the land, over which i lifted up my bend to make you dwell therein, except caleb the son of jephone, and josue the son of nun. but your children, of whom you said, that they should be a prey to the enemies, will i bring in: that they may see the land which you have despised. your carcases shall lie in the wilderness. your children shall wander in the desert forty years, and shall bear your fornication, until the carcases of their fathers be consumed ill the desert, according to the number of the forty days, wherein you viewed the land: year shall be counted for a day. and forty years you shall receive your iniquities, and shall know my revenge: for as i have spoken, so will i do to all this wicked multitude, that hath risen up together against me: in this wilderness shall it faint away and die. therefore all the men, whom moyses had sent to view the land, and who at their return had made the whole multitude to murmur against him, speaking ill of the land that it was naught, died and were struck in the sight of the lord. but josue .the son of nun. and caleb the son of jephone lived, of all them that had gone to view the land. and moyses spoke all these words to all the children of israel, and the people mourned exceedingly. and behold rising up very early in the morning, they went up to the top of the mountain, and said: we are ready to go up to the place, of which the lord hath spoken: for we have sinned. and moyses said to them: why transgress you the word of the lord, which shall not succeed prosperously with you? go not up, for the lord is not with you: lest you fall before your enemies. the amalecite and the chanaanite are before you, and by their sword you shall fall, because you would not consent to the lord, neither will the lord be with you. but they being blinded went up to the top of the mountain. but the ark of the testament of the lord and moyses departed not from the camp. and the amalecite came down, and the chanaanite that dwelt in the mountain: and smiting and slaying them pursued them as far as horma.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel and thou shalt say to them: when you shall be come into the land of your habitation, which i will give you, and shall make an offering to the lord, for a holocaust, or a victim, paying your vows, or voluntarily offering gifts, or in your solemnities burning a sweet savour unto the lord, of oxen or of sheep: whosoever immolatheth the victim, shall offer a sacrifice of fine flour, the tenth part of an ephi, tempered with the fourth part of a hin of oil: and he shall give the same measure of wine to pour out in libations for the holocaust or for the victim. for every lamb, and for every ram there shall be a sacrifice of hour of two tenths, which shall be tempered with the third part of a hin of oil: and he shall offer the third part of the same measure of wine for the libation, for a sweet savour to the lord. but when thou offerest a holocaust or sacrifice of oxen, to fulfil thy vow or for victims of peace offerings, thou shalt give for every ox three tenths of flour tempered with half a hin of oil, and wine for libations of the same measure, for an offering of most sweet savour to the lord. thus shalt thou do for every ox and ram and lamb and kid. both they that are born in the land, and the strangers shall offer sacrifices after the same rite. there shall be all one law and judgment both for you and for them who are strangers in the land. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: when you are come into the land which i will give you, and shall eat of the bread of that country, you shall separate firstfruits to the lord, of the things you eat. as you separate firstfruits of your barnfloors: so also shall you give firstfruits of your dough to the lord. and if through ignorance you omit any of these things, which the lord hath spoken to moyses, and by him hath commanded you, from the day that he began to command and thenceforward, and the multitude have forgotten to do it: they shall offer a calf out of the herd, a holocaust for a most sweet savour to the lord, and the sacrifice and libations thereof, as the ceremonies require, and a buck goat for sin: and the priest shall pray for all the multitude of the children of israel: and it shall be forgiven them, because they sinned ignorantly, offering notwithstanding a burnt offering to the lord for themselves and for their sin and their ignorance: and it shall be forgiven all the people of the children of israel: and the strangers that sojourn among them: because it is the fault of all the people through ignorance. but if one soul shall sin ignorantly, he shall offer a she goat of a year old for his sin. and the priest shall pray for him, because he sinned ignorantly before the lord: and he shall obtain his pardon, and it shall be forgiven him. the same law shall be for all that sin by ignorance, whether they be natives or strangers. but the soul that committeth any thing through pride, whether he be born in the land or a stranger (because he hath been rebellious against the lord) shall be cut off from among his people: for he hath contemned the word the lord, and made void his precept: therefore shall he be destroyed, and shall bear his iniquity. and it came to pass, when the children of israel were in the wilderness, and had found a man gathering sticks on the sabbath day, that they brought him to moyses and aaron and the whole multitude. and they put him into prison, not knowing what they should do with him. and the lord said to moyses: let that man die, let all the multitude stone him without the camp. and when they had brought him out, they stoned him, and he died as the lord had commanded. the lord also said to moyses: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt tell them i to make to themselves fringes in the corners of their garments, putting in them ribands of blue: that when they shall see them, they may remember all the commandments of the lord, and not follow their own thoughts and eyes going astray after divers things, but rather being mindful of the precepts of the lord, may do them and be holy to their cod. i am the lord your god, who brought you out of the land of egypt, that i might be your god.

and behold core the son of isaar, the son of caath, the son of levi, and dathan and abiron the sons of eliab, and hon the son of pheleth of the children of ruben, rose lap against moyses, and with them two hundred and fifty others of the children of israel, leading men of the synagogue, and who in the time of assembly were called by name. and when they had stood up against moyses and aaron, they said: let it be enough for you, that all the multitude consisteth of holy ones, and the lord is among them: why lift you up yourselves above the people of the lord? when moyses heard this, he fell flat on his face: and speaking to core and all the multitude, he said: in the morning the lord will make known who belong to him, and the holy he will join to himself: and whom he shall choose, they shall approach to him. do this therefore: take every man of you your censers, thou core, and all thy company. and putting fire in them to morrow, put incense upon it before the lord: and whomsoever he shall choose, the same shall be holy: you take too much upon you, ye sons of levi. and he said again to core: hear ye sons of levi. is it a small thing unto you, that the god of israel hath spared you from all the people, and joined you to himself, that you should serve him in the service of the tabernacle, and should stand before the congregation of the people, and should minister to him? did he therefore make thee and all thy brethren the sons of levi to approach unto him, that you should challenge to yourselves the priesthood also, and that all thy company should stand against the lord? for what is aaron that you murmur against him? then moyses sent to call dathan and abiron the sons of eliab. but they answered: we will not come. is it a small matter to thee, that thou hast brought us out of a land that flowed with milk and honey, to kill us in the desert, except thou rule also like a lord over us? thou hast brought us indeed into a land that floweth with rivers of milk and honey, and hast given us possessions of fields and vineyards; wilt thou also pull out our eyes? we will not come. moyses therefore being very angry, said to the lord: respect not their sacrifices: thou knowest that i have not taken of them so much as a young ass at any time, nor have injured any of them. and he said to core: do thou and thy congregation stand apart before the lord to morrow, and aaron apart. take every one of you censers, and put incense upon them, offering to the lord two hundred and fifty censers: let aaron also hold his censer. when they had done this, moyses and aaron standing, and had drawn up all the multitude against them to the door of the tabernacle, the glory of the lord appeared to them all. and the lord speaking to moyses and aaron, said: separate yourselves from among this congregation, that i may presently destroy them. they fell flat on their face, and said: o most mighty, the god of the spirits of all flesh, for one man's sin shall thy wrath rage against all? and the lord said to moyses:

command the whole people to separate themselves from the tents of core and dathan and abiron. and moyses arose, and went to dathan and abiron: and the ancients of israel following him, he said to the multitude: depart from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest you be involved in their sins. and when they were departed from their tents round about, dathan and abiron coming out stood in the entry of their pavilions with their wives and children, and all the people. and moyses said: by this you shall know that the lord hath sent me to do all things that you see, and that i have not forged them of my own head: if these men die the common death of men, and if they be visited with a plague, wherewith others also are wont to be visited, the lord did not send me. but if the lord do a new thing, and the earth opening her mouth swallow them down, and all things that belong to them, and they go down alive into hell, you shall know that they have blasphemed the lord. and immediately as he had made an end of speaking, the earth broke asunder under their feet: and opening her mouth, devoured them with their tents and all their substance. and they went down alive into hell the ground closing upon them, and they perished from among the people. but all israel, that was standing round about, fled at the cry of them that were perishing: saying: lest perhaps the earth swallow us up also. and a fire coming out from the lord, destroyed the two hundred and fifty men that offered the incense. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: command eleazar the son of aaron the priest to take up the censers that lie in the burning, and to scatter the fire of one side and the other: because they are sanctified in the deaths of the sinners: and let him beat them into plates, and fasten them to the altar, because incense hath been offered in them to the lord, and they are sanctified, that the children of israel may see them for a sign and a memorial. then eleazar the priest took the brazen censers, wherein they had offered, whom the burning fire had devoured, and beat them into plates, fastening them to the altar: that the children of israel might have for the time to come where-with they should be admonished, that no stranger or any one that is not of seed of aaron should come near to offer incense to the lord, lest he should suffer as core suffered, and all his congregation, according as the lord spoke to moyses. the following day all the multitude of the children of israel murmured against moyses and aaron, saying: you have killed the people of the lord. and when there arose a sedition, and the tumult increased, moyses and aaron fled to the tabernacle of the covenant. and when they were gone into it, the cloud covered it, and the glory of the lord appeared. and the lord said to moyses: get you out from the midst of this multitude, this moment will i destroy them. and as they were lying on the ground, moyses said to aaron: take the censer, and putting fire in it from the altar, put incense upon it, and go quickly to the people to pray for them: for already wrath is gone out from the lord, and the plague rageth. when aaron had done this, and had run to the midst of the multitude which the burning fire was now destroying, he offered the incense: and standing between the dead and the living, he prayed for the people, and the plague ceased. and the number of them that were slain was fourteen thousand and seven hundred men, besides them that had perished in the sedition of core. and aaron returned to moyses to the door of the tabernacle of the covenant after the destruction was over.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: speak to the children of israel, and take of every one of them a rod by their kindreds, of all the princes of the tribes, twelve rods, and write the name of every man upon his rod. and the name of aaron shall be for the tribe of levi, and one rod shall contain all their families: and thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the covenant before the testimony, where i will speak to thee. whomsoever of these i shall choose, his rod shall blossom: and i will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of israel, wherewith they murmur against you. and moyses spoke to the children of israel: and all the princes gave him rods one for every tribe: and there were twelve rods besides the rod of aaron. and when moyses had laid them up before the lord in the tabernacle of the testimony: he returned on the following day, and found that the rod of aaron for the house of levi, was budded: and that the buds swelling it had bloomed blossoms, which spreading the leaves, were formed into almonds. moyses therefore brought out all the rods from before the lord to all the children of israel: and they saw, and every one received their rods. and the lord said to moyses: carry back the rod of aaron into the tabernacle of the testimony, that it may be kept there for a token of the rebellious children of israel, and that their complaints may cease from me lest they die. and moyses did as the lord had commanded. and the children of israel said to moyses: behold we are consumed, we all perish. whosoever approacheth to the tabernacle of the lord, he dieth. are we all to a man to be utterly destroyed?

and the lord said to aaron: thou, and thy sons, and thy father's house with thee shall bear the iniquity of the sanctuary: and thou and thy sons with thee shall bear the sins of your priesthood. and take with thee thy brethren also of the tribe of levi, and the sceptre of thy father, and let them be ready in hand, and minister to thee: but thou and thy sons shall minister in the tabernacle of the testimony. and the levites shall watch to do thy commands, and about all the works of the tabernacle: only they shall not come nigh the vessels of the sanctuary nor the altar, lest both they die, and you also perish with them. but let them be with thee, and watch in the charge of the tabernacle, and in all the ceremonies thereof. a stranger shall not join himself with you. watch ye in the charge of the sanctuary, and in the ministry of the altar: lest indignation rise upon the children of israel. i have given you your brethren the levites from among the children of israel, and have delivered them for a gift to the lord, to serve in the ministries of the tabernacle. but thou and thy sons look ye to the priesthood: and all things that pertain to the service of the altar, and that are within the veil, shall be executed by the priests. if any stranger shall approach, he shall be slain. and the lord said to aaron: behold i have given thee the charge of my firstfruits. all things that are sanctified by the children of israel, i have delivered to thee and to thy sons for the priestly office, by everlasting ordinances. these therefore shalt thou take of the things that are sanctified, and are offered to the lord. every offering, and sacrifice, and whatsoever is rendered to me for sin and for trespass, and cometh holy of holies, shall be for thee and thy sons. thou shalt eat it in the sanctuary: the males only shall eat thereof, because it is a consecrated thing to thee. but the firstfruits, which the children of israel shall vow and offer, i have given to thee, and to thy sons, and to thy daughters, by a perpetual law. he that is clean in thy house, shall eat them. all the best of the oil, and of the wine, and of the corn, whatsoever firstfruits they offer to the lord, i have given them to thee. all the firstripe of the fruits, that the ground bringeth forth, and which are brought to the lord, shall be for thy use: he that is clean in thy house, shall eat them. every thing that the children of israel shall give by vow, shall be thine. whatsoever is firstborn of all flesh, which they offer to the lord, whether it be of men, or of beasts, shall belong to thee: only for the firstborn of man thou shalt take a price, and every beast that is unclean thou shalt cause to be redeemed, and the redemption of it shall be after one month, for five sicles of silver, by the weight of the sanctuary. a sicle hath twenty obols. but the firstling of a cow and of a sheep and of a goat thou shalt not cause to be redeemed, because they are sanctified to the lord. their blood only thou shalt pour upon the altar, and their fat thou shalt burn for a most sweet odour to the lord. but the flesh shall fall to thy use, as the consecrated breast, and the right shoulder shall be thine. all the firstfruits of the sanctuary which the children of israel offer to the lord, i have given to thee and to thy sons and daughters, by a perpetual ordinance. it is a covenant of salt for ever before the lord, to thee and to thy sons. and the lord said to aaron: you shall possess nothing in their land, neither shall you have a portion among them: i am thy portion and inheritance in the midst of the children of israel. and i have given to the sons of levi all the tithes of israel for a possession for the ministry wherewith they serve me in the tabernacle of the covenant: that the children of israel may not approach any more to the tabernacle, nor commit deadly sin, but only the sons of levi may serve me in the tabernacle, and bear the sins of the people. it shall be an everlasting ordinance in your generations. they shall not possess any other thing, but be content with the oblation or tithes, which i have separated for their uses and necessities. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: command the levites, and declare unto them: when you shall receive of the children of israel the tithes, which i have given you, offer the firstfruits of them to the lord, that is to say, the tenth part of the tenth: that it may be reckoned to you as an oblation of firstfruits, as well of the barnfloors as of the winepresses: and of all the things of which you receive tithes, offer the firstfruits to the lord, and give them to aaron the priest. all the things that you shall offer of the tithes, and shall separate for the gifts of the lord, shall be the best and choicest things. and thou shalt say to them: if you offer all the goodly and the better things of the tithes, it shall be reckoned to you as if you had given the firstfruits of the barnfloor and the winepress: and you shall eat them in all your places, both you and your families: because it is your reward for the ministry, wherewith you serve in the tabernacle of the testimony. and you shall not sin in this point, by reserving the choicest and fat things to yourselves, lest you profane the oblations of the children of israel, and die.

and the lord spoke to moyses and aaron, saying: this is the observance of the victim, which the lord hath ordained. command the children of israel, that they bring unto thee a red cow of full age, in which there is no blemish, and which hath not carried the yoke: and you shall deliver her to eleazar the priest, who shall bring her forth without the camp, and shall immolate her in the sight of all: and dipping his finger in her blood, shall sprinkle it over against the door of the tabernacle seven times, and shall burn her in the sight of all, delivering up to the fire her skin, and her flesh, and her blood, and her dung. the priest shall also take cedar wood, and hyssop, and scarlet twice dyed, and cast it into the flame, with which the cow is consumed. and then after washing his garments, and body, he shall enter into the camp, and shall be unclean until the evening. he also that hath burned her, shall wash his garments, and his body, and shall be unclean until the evening. and a man that is clean shall gather up the ashes of the cow, and shall pour them forth without the camp in a most clean place, that they may be reserved for the multitude of the children of israel, and for a water of aspersion: because the cow was burnt for sin. and when he that carried the ashes of the cow, hath washed his garments, he shall be unclean until the evening. the children of israel, and the strangers that dwell among them, shall observe this for a holy thing by a perpetual ordinance. he that toucheth the corpse of a man, and is therefore unclean seven days, shall be sprinkled with this water on the third day, and on the seventh, and so shall be cleansed. if he were not sprinkled on the third day, he cannot be cleansed on the seventh. every one that toucheth the corpse of a man, and is not sprinkled with mixture, shall profane the tabernacle of the lord, and shall perish out of israel: because he was not sprinkled with the water of expiation, he shall be unclean, and his uncleanness shall remain upon him. this is the law of a man that dieth in a tent: all that go into his tent and all the vessels that are there, shall be unclean seven days. the vessel that hath no cover, nor binding over it, shall be unclean. if any man in the field touch the corpse of a man that was slain, or that died of himself, or his bone, or his grave, he shall be unclean seven days. and they shall take of the ashes of the burning and of the sin offering, and shall pour living waters upon them into a vessel. and a man that is clean shall dip hyssop in them, and shall sprinkle therewith all the tent, and all the furniture, and the men that are defiled with touching any such thing: and in this manner he that is clean shall purify the unclean on the third and on the seventh day. and being expiated the seventh day, he shall wash both himself and his garments, and be unclean until the evening. if any man be not expiated after this rite, his soul shall perish out of the midst of the church: because he hath profaned the sanctuary of the lord, and was not sprinkled with the water of purification. this precept shall be an ordinance for ever. he also that sprinkled the water, shall wash his garments. every one that shall touch the waters of expiation, shall be unclean until the evening. whatsoever a person toucheth who is unclean, he shall make it unclean: and the person that toucheth any of these things, shall be unclean until the evening.

and the children of israel, and all the multitude came into the desert of sin, in the first month: and the people abode in cades. and mary died there, and was buried in the same place. and the people wanting water, came together against moyses and aaron: and making a sedition, they said: would god we had perished among our brethren before the lord. why have you brought out the church of the lord into the wilderness, that both we and our cattle should die? why have you made us come up out of egypt, and have brought us into this wretched place which cannot be sowed, nor bringeth forth figs, nor vines, nor pomegranates, neither is there any water to drink? and moyses and aaron leaving the multitude, went into the tabernacle of the covenant, and fell flat upon the ground, and cried to the lord, and said: o lord god, hear the cry of this people, and open to them thy treasure, a fountain of living water, that being satisfied, they may cease to murmur. and the glory of the lord appeared over them. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: take the rod, and assemble the people together, thou and aaron thy brother, and speak to the rock before them, and it shall yield waters. and when thou hast brought forth water out of the rock, all the multitude and their cattle shall drink. moyses therefore took the rod, which was before the lord, as he had commanded him, and having gathered together the multitude before the rock, he said to them: hear, ye rebellious and incredulous: can we bring you forth water out of this rock? and when moyses had lifted up his hand, and struck the rock twice with the rod, there came forth water in great abundance, so that the people and their cattle drank, and the lord said to moyses and aaron: because you have not believed me, to sanctify me before the children of israel, you shall not bring these people into the land, which i will give them. this is the water of contradiction, where the children of israel strove with words against the lord, and he was sanctified in them. in the mean time moyses sent messengers from cades to the king of edom, to say: thus saith thy brother israel: thou knowest all the labour that hath come upon us: in what manner our fathers went down into egypt, and there we dwelt a long time, and the egyptians afflicted us and our fathers. and how we cried to the lord, and he heard us, and sent an angel, who hath brought us out of egypt. lo, we are now in the city of cades, which is in the uttermost of thy borders, and we beseech thee that we may have leave to pass through thy country. we will not go through the fields, nor through the vineyards, we will not drink the waters of thy wells, but we will go by the common highway, neither turning aside to the right hand, nor to the left, till we are past thy borders. and edom answered them: thou shalt not pass by me: if thou dost i will come out armed against thee. and the children of israel said: we will go by the beaten way: and if we and our cattle drink of thy waters, we will give thee what is just: there shall be no difficulty in the price, only let us pass speedily. but he answered: thou shalt not pass. and immediately he came forth to meet them with an infinite multitude, and a strong hand, neither would he condescend to their desire to grant them passage through his borders. wherefore israel turned another way from him. and when they had removed the camp from cades, they came to mount her, which is in the borders of the land of edom: where the lord spoke to moyses: let aaron, saith he, go to his people: for he shall not go into the land which i have given the children of israel, because he was incredulous to my words, at the waters of contradiction. take aaron and his son with him, and bring them up into mount hor: and when thou hast stripped the father of his vesture, thou shalt vest therewith eleazar his son: aaron shall be gathered to his people, and die there. moyses did as the lord had commanded: and they went up into mount hor before all the multitude. and when he had stripped aaron of his vestments, he vested eleazar his son with them. and aaron being dead in the top of the mountain, he came down with eleazar. and all the multitude seeing that aaron was dead, mourned for him thirty days throughout all their families.

and when king arad the chanaanite, who dwelt towards the south, had heard this, to wit, that israel was come by the way of the spies, he fought against them, and overcoming them carried off their spoils. but israel binding himself by vow to the lord, said: it thou wilt deliver this people unto my hand, i will utterly destroy their cities. and the lord heard the prayers of israel, and delivered up the chanaanite, and they cut them off and destroyed their cities: and they called the name of that place horma, that is to say, anathema. and they marched from mount hor, by the way that leadeth to the red sea, to compass the land of edom. and the people began to be weary of their journey and labour: and speaking against god end moyses, they said: why didst thou bring us out of egypt, to die in the wilderness? there is no bread, nor have we any waters: our soul now loatheth this very light food. wherefore the lord sent among the people fiery serpents, which bit them and killed many of them. upon which they came to moyses, and said: we have sinned, because we have spoken against the lord and thee: pray that he may take away these serpents from us. and moyses prayed for the people. and the lord said to him: make a brazen serpent, and set it up for a sign: whosoever being struck shall look on it, shall live. moyses therefore made a brazen serpent, and set it up for a sign: which when they that were bitten looked upon, they were healed. and the children of israel setting forwards camped in oboth. and departing thence they pitched their tents in jeabarim, in the wilderness, that faceth moab toward the east. and removing from thence, they came to the torrent zared: which they left and encamped over against arnon, which is in the desert and standeth out on the borders of the amorrhite. for arnon is the border of moab, dividing the moabites and the amorrhites. wherefore it is said in the book of the wars of the lord: as he did in the red sea, so will he do in the streams of amen. the rocks of the torrents were bowed down that they might rest in ar, and lie down in the borders of the moabites. when they went from that place, the well appeared whereof the lord said to moyses: gather the people together, and i will give them water. then israel sung this song: let the well spring up. they sung thereto: the well, which the princes dug, and the chiefs of the people prepared by the direction of the lawgiver, and with their staves. and they marched from the wilderness to mathana. from mathana unto nahaliel: from nahaliel unto bamoth. from bamoth, is a valley in the country of moab, to the top of phasga, which looked towards the desert. and israel sent messengers to sehon king of the amorrhites, saying: i beseech thee that i may have leave to pass through thy land: we will not go aside into the fields or the vineyards, we will not drink waters of the wells, we will go the king's highway, till we be past thy borders. and he would not grant that israel should pass by his borders: but rather gathering an army, went forth to meet them in the desert, and came to jasa, and fought against them. and he was slain by them with the edge of the sword, and they possessed his land from the arnon unto the jeboc, and to the confines of the children of ammon: for the borders of the ammonites, were kept with a strong garrison. so israel took all his cities, and dwelt in the cities of the amorrhite, to wit, in hesebon, and in the villages thereof. hesebon was the city of sehon the king of the amorrhites, who fought against the king of moab: and took all the land, that had been of his dominions, as far as the arnon. therefore it is said in the proverb: come into hesebon, let the city of sehon be built and set up: a fire is gone out of hesebon, a flame from the city of sehon, and hath consumed ar of the moabites, and the inhabitants of the high places of the arnon. woe to thee moab: thou art undone, o people of chamos. he hath given his sons to flight, and his daughters into captivity to sehon the king of the amorrhites. their yoke is perished from hesebon unto dibon, they came weary to nophe, and unto medaba. so israel dwelt in the land of the amorrhite. and moyses sent some to take a view of jazer:

and they took the villages of it, and conquered the inhabitants. and they turned themselves, and went up by the way of basan, and og the king of basan came against them with all his people, to fight in edrai. and the lord said to mooses: fear him not, for i have delivered him and all his people, and his country into thy hand: and thou shalt do to him as thou didst to sehon the king of the amorrites, the inhabitant of hesebon. so they slew him also with his sons, and all his people, not letting any one escape, and they possessed his land.

and they went forward and encamped in the plains of moab, over against where jericho is situate beyond the jordan. and balac the son of sephor, seeing all that israel had done to the amorrite, and that the moabites were in great fear of him, and were not able to sustain his assault, he said to the elders of madian: so will this people destroy all that dwell in our borders, as the ox is wont to eat the grass to the very roots. now he was at that time king in moab. he sent therefore messengers to balaam the son of beer, a soothsayer, who dwelt by the river of the land of the children of ammon, to call him, and to say: behold a people is come out of egypt, that hath covered the face of the earth, sitting over against me. come therefore, and curse this people, because it is mightier than i: if by any means i may beat them and drive them out of my land: for i know that he whom thou shalt bless is blessed, and he whom thou shalt curse is cursed. and the ancients of moab, and the elders of madian, went with the price of divination in their hands. and when they were come to balaam, and had told him all the words of balac: he answered: tarry here this night, and i will answer whatsoever the lord shall say to me. and while they stayed with balaam, god came and said to him: what mean these men that are with thee? he answered: balac the son of sephor king of the moabites hath sent to me, saying: behold a people that is come out of egypt, hath covered the face of the land: come and curse them, if by any means i may fight with them and drive them away. and god said to balaam: thou shalt not go with them, nor shalt thou curse the people: because it is blessed. and he rose in the morning and said to the princes: go into your country, because the lord hath forbid me to come with you. the princes returning, said to balac: balaam would not come with us. then he sent many more and more noble than he had sent before: who, when they were come to balaam, said: thus saith balac the son of sephor, delay not to come to me: for i am ready to honour thee, and will give thee whatsoever thou wilt: come and curse this people. balaam answered: if balac would give me his house full of silver and gold, i cannot alter the word of the lord my god, to speak either more or less. i pray you to stay here this night also, that i may know what the lord will answer me once more. god therefore came to balaam in the night, and said to him: it these men be come to call thee, arise and go with them: yet so, that thou do what i shall command thee. balaam arose in the morning, and saddling his ass went with them. and god was angry. and an angel of the lord stood in the way against balaam, who sat on the ass, and had two servants with him. the ass seeing the angel standing in the way, with a drawn sword, turned herself out of the way, and went into the field. and when balaam beat her, and had a mind to bring her again to the way, the angel stood in a narrow place between two walls, wherewith the vineyards were enclosed. and the ass seeing him, thrust herself close to the wall, and bruised the foot of the rider. but he beat her again: and nevertheless the angel going on to a narrow place, where there was no way to turn aside either to the right hand or to the left, stood to meet him. and when the ass saw the angel standing, she fell under the feet of the rider: who being angry beat her sides more vehemently with a staff. and the lord opened the mouth of the ass, and she said: what have i done to thee? why strikest thou me, lo, now this third time? balaam answered: because thou hast deserved it, and hast served me ill: i would i had a sword that i might kill thee. . the ass said: am not i thy beast, on which thou hast been always accustomed to ride until this present day? tell me if i ever did the like thing to thee. but he said: never. . forthwith the lord opened the eyes of balaam, and he saw the angel standing in the way with a drawn sword, and he worshipped him falling flat on the ground. . and the angel said to him: why beatest thou thy ass these three times? i am come to withstand thee, because thy way is perverse, and contrary to me: . and unless the ass had turned out of the way, giving place to me who stood against thee, i had slain thee, and she should have lived. . balaam said: i have sinned, not knowing that thou didst stand against me: and now if it displease thee that i go, i will return. . the angel said: go with these men, and see thou speak no other thing than what i shall command thee. he went therefore with the princes. . and when balac heard it he came forth to meet him in a town of the moabites, that is situate in the uttermost borders of arnon. . and he said to balaam: i sent messengers to call thee, why didst thou not come immediately to me? was it because i am not able to reward thy coming? . he answered him: lo, here i am: shall i have power to speak any other thing but that which god shall put in my mouth? . so they went on together, and came into a city, that was in the uttermost borders of his kingdom. . and when balac had killed oxen and sheep, he sent presents to balaam, and to the princes that were with him. . and when morning was come, he brought him to the high places of baal, and he beheld the uttermost part of the people.

and balaam said to balac: build me here seven altars, and prepare as many calves, and the same number of rams. and when he had done according to the word of balaam, they laid together a calf and a ram upon every altar. and balaam said to balac: stand a while by thy burnt offering, until i go, to see if perhaps the lord will meet me, and whatsoever he shall command, i will speak to thee. and when he was gone with speed, god met him. and balaam speaking to him, said: i have erected seven altars, and have laid on everyone a calf and a ram. and the lord put the word in his mouth, and said: return to balac, and thus shalt thou speak. returning he found balac standing by his burnt offering, with all the princes of the moabites: and taking up his parable, he said: balac king of the moabites hath brought me from aram, from the mountains of the east: come, said he, and curse jacob: make haste and detest israel. how shall i curse him, whom god hath not cursed? by what means should i detest him, whom the lord detesteth not? i shall see him from the tops of the rocks, and shall consider him from the hills. this people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations. who can count the dust of jacob, and know the number of the stock of israel? let my soul die the death of the just, and my last end be like to them. and balac said to balaam: what is this that thou dost? i sent for thee to curse my enemies: and thou contrariwise blessest them. he answered him: call i speak any thing else but what the lord commandeth? balac therefore said: come with me to another place from whence thou mayest see part of israel, and canst not see them all: curse them from thence. and when he had brought him to a high place, upon the top of mount phasga, balaam built seven altars, and laying on every one a calf and a ram, he said to balac: stand here by thy burnt offering while i go to meet him. and when the lord had met him, and had put the word in his mouth, he said: return to balac, and thus shalt thou say to him. returning he found him standing by his burnt sacrifice, and the princes of the moabites with him. and balac said to him: what hath the lord spoken? but he taking up his parable, said: stand, o balac, and give ear: hear, thou son of sephor: god is not a man, that he should lie, nor as the son of man, that he should be changed. hath he said then, and will he not do? hath he spoken, and will he not fulfil? i was brought to bless, the blessing i am not able to hinder. there is no idol in jacob, neither is there an image god to be seen in israel. the lord his god is with him, and the sound of the victory of the king in him. god hath brought him out of egypt, whose strength is like to the rhinoceros. there is no soothsaying in jacob, nor divination in israel. in their times it shall be told to jacob and to israel what god hath wrought. behold the people shall rise up as a lioness, and shall lift itself up as a lion: it shall not lie down till it devour the prey, and drink the blood of the slain. and balac said to balaam: neither curse, nor bless him. and he said: did i not tell thee, that whatsoever god should command me, that i would do? and balac said to him: come and i will bring thee to another place; if peradventure it please god that thou mayest curse them from thence. and when he had brought him upon the top of mount phogor, which looketh towards the wilderness, balaam said to him: build me here seven altars, and prepare as many calves, and the same number of rams. balac did as balaam had said: and he laid on every altar, a calf and a ram.

and when balaam saw that it pleased the lord that he should bless israel. he went not as he had gone before, to seek divination: but setting his face towards the desert, and lifting up his eyes, he saw israel abiding in their tents by their tribes: and the spirit of god rushing upon him, he took up his parable and said: balaam the son of beor hath said: the man hath said, whose eye ire stopped up: the hearer of the words of god hath said, he that hath beheld the vision of the almighty, he that falleth, and so his eyes are opened: how beautiful are thy tabernacles, o jacob, and thy tents, o israel! as woody valleys, as watered gardens near the rivers, as tabernacles which the lord hath pitched, as cedars by the waterside. water shall flow out of his bucket, and his seed shall be in many waters. for agag his king shall be removed, and his kingdom shall be taken awry. god hath brought him out of egypt, whose strength is like to the rhinoceros. they shall devour the nations that are his enemies, and break their bones, and pierce them with arrows. lying down he hath slept as a lion, and as a lioness, whom none shall dare to rouse. he that blesseth thee, shall also himself be blessed: he that curseth thee shall be reckoned accursed. and balac being angry against balaam, clapped his hands together and said: i called thee to curse my enemies, and thou on the contrary hast blessed them three times. return to thy place. i had determined indeed greatly to honour thee, but the lord hath deprived thee of the honour designed for thee. balaam made answer to balac: did i not say to thy messengers, whom thou sentest to me: if balac would give me his house full of silver and gold, i cannot go beyond the word of the lord my god, to utter any thing of my own head either good or evil: but whatsoever the lord shall say, that i will speak? but yet going to my people, i will give thee counsel, what this people shall do to thy people in the latter days. therefore taking up his parable, again he said: balaam the son of beor hath said: the man whose eye is stopped up, hath said: the hearer of the words of god hath said, who knoweth the doctrine of the highest, and seeth the visions of the almighty, who falling hath his eyes opened: i shall see him, but not now: i shall behold him, but not near. a star shall rise out of jacob and a sceptre shall spring up from israel: and shall strike the chiefs of moab, and shall waste all the children of seth. and he shall possess idumea: the inheritance of seir shall come to their enemies, but israel shall do manfully out of jacob shall he come that shall rule, and shall destroy the remains of the city. and when he saw amalec, he took up his parable, and said: amalec the beginning of nations, whose latter ends shall be destroyed. he saw also the cinite: and took up his parable, and said: thy habitation in- deed is strong: but though thou build thy nest in a rock, and thou be chosen of the stock of cin, how long shalt thou be able to continue? for assur shall take thee captive. and taking up his parable, again he said: alas, who shall live when god shall do these things? they shall come in galleys from italy, they shall overcome the assyrians, and shall waste the hebrews, and at the last they themselves also shall perish. and balaam rose, and returned to his place: balac also returned the way that he came.

and israel at that time abode in settim, and the people committed fornication with the daughters of moab, who called them to their sacrifices. and they ate of them, and adored their gods. and israel was initiated to beelphegor: upon which the lord being angry, said to moses: take all the princes of the people, and hang them up on gibbets against the sun: that my fury may be turned away from israel. and moses said to the judges of israel: let every man kill his neighbours, that have been initiated to beelphegor. and behold one of the children of israel went in before his brethren to a harlot of madian, in the sight of moses, and of all the children of israel, who were weeping before the door of the tabernacle. and when phinees the son of eleazar the son of aaron the priest saw it, he rose up from the midst; of the multitude, and taking a dagger, went in after the israelite into the brothel house, and thrust both of them through together, to wit, the man and the woman in the genital parts. and the scourge ceased from the children of israel: and there were slain four and twenty thousand men. and the lord said to moses: phinees the son of eleazar the son of aaron the priest, hath turned away my wrath from the children of israel: because he was moved with my zeal against them, that i myself might not destroy the children of israel in my zeal. therefore say to him: behold i give him the peace of my covenant, and the covenant of the priesthood for ever shall be both to him and his seed, because he hath been zealous for his god, and hath made atonement for the wickedness of the children of israel. and the name of the israelite, was slain with the woman of madian, was zambri the son of salu, a prince the kindred and tribe of simeon. and the madianite woman, that was slain with him, was called cozbi the daughter of sur, a most noble prince among the madianites. and the lord spoke to moses, saying: let the madianites find you enemies, and slay you them: because they also have acted like enemies against you, and have guilefully deceived you by the idol phogor, and cozbi their sister, a daughter of a prince of madian, who was slain in the day the plague for the sacrilege of phogor.

after the blood of the guilty was shed, the lord said to moses and to eleazar the son of aaron, the priest: number the whole sum of the children of israel from twenty years old and upward, by their houses and kindreds, all that are able to go forth to war. moses therefore and eleazar the priest, being in the plains of moab upon the jordan over against jericho, spoke to them that were from twenty years old and upward, as the lord had commanded: and this is the number of them: ruben the firstborn of israel. his sons were hench, of whom is the family of the henchites:

and phallu, of whom is the family of the phalluites: and hesron, of whom is the family of the hesronites: and charmi, of whom is the family of the charmites. these are the families of the stock of ruben: whose number was found to be forty-three thousand seven hundred and thirty. the son of phallu was eliab. his sons, were namuel and dathan and abiron. these are dathan and abiron the princes of the people, that rose against moses and aaron in the sedition of core, when they rebelled against the lord: and the earth opening her mouth swallowed up core, many others dying, when the fire burned two hundred and fifty men. and there was a great miracle wrought, that when core perished, his sons did not perish. the sons of simeon by their kindreds: namuel, of him is the family of the namuelites: jamin, of him is the family of the jaminites: jachin, of him is the family of the jachinites: zare, of him is the family of the zarites: saul, of him is the family of the saulites. these are the families of the stock of simeon, of which the whole number was twenty-two thousand two hundred. the sons of gad by their kindreds: sephon, of him; is the family of the sephonites: aggi, of him is the family of the aggites: suni, of him is the family of the sunites: ozni, of him is the family of the oznites: her, of him is the family of the herites: arod, of him is the family of the arodites: ariel, of him is the family of the arielites. these are the families of gad, of which the whole number was forty thousand five hundred. the sons of juda, her and onan, who both died in the land of chanaan. and the sons of juda by their kindreds were: sela, of whom is the family of the selaites: phares, of whom is the family of the pharesites: zare, of whom is the family of the zarites. moreover the sons of phares were: hesron, of whom is the family of the hesronites: and hamul, of whom is the family of the hamulites. these are the families of juda, of which the whole number was seventy-six thousand five hundred. the sons of issachar, by their kindreds: thola, of whom is the family of the tholaites: phua, of whom is the family of the phuaites: jasub, of whom is the family of the jasubites: semran, of whom is the family of the semranites. these are the kindreds of issachar, whose number was sixty-four thousand three hundred. the sons of zabulon by their kindreds: sared, of whom is the family of the saredites: elon, of whom is the family of the elonites: jalel, of whom is the family of the jalelites. these are the kindreds of zabulon, whose number was sixty thousand five hundred. the sons of joseph by their kindred, manasses and ephraim. of manasses was born machir, of whom is the family of the machirites. machir beget galaad, of whom is the family of the galaadites. galaad had sons: jezer, of whom is the family of the jezerites: and helec, of whom is the family of the helecites: and asriel, of whom is the family of the asrielites: and sechem, of whom is the family of the sechemites: and semida, of whom is the family of the semidaites: and hepher, of whom is the family of the hepherites. and hepher was the father of salphaad, who had no sons, but only daughters, whose names are these: maala, and noa, and hegla, and melcha, and thersa. these are the families of manasses, and the number of them fifty-two thousand seven hundred. and the sons of ephraim by their kindreds were these: suthala, of whom is the family of the suthalaites: becher, of whom is the family of the becherites: thehen, of whom is the family of the thehenites. now the son of suthala was heran, of whom is the family of the heranites. these are the kindreds of the sons of ephraim: whose number was thirty-two thousand five hundred. these are the sons of joseph by their families. the sons of benjamin in their kindreds: bela, of whom is the family of the belaites: asbel, of whom is the family of the asbelites: ahiram, of whom is the family of the ahiramites: supham, of whom is the family of the suphamites: hupham, of whom is the family of the huphamites. the sons of bela: hered, and noeman. of hered, is the family of the heredites: of noeman, the family of tile noemanites. these are the sons of benjamin by their kindreds, whose number was forty-five thousand six hundred. the sons of dan by their kindreds: suham, of whom is the family of the suhamites: these are the kindreds of dan by their families. all were suhamites, whose number was sixty-four thousand four hundred. the sons of aser by their kindreds: jemna, of whom is the family of the jennaites: jessui, of whom is the family of the jessuites: brie, of whom is the family of the brieites, the sons of brie: heber, of whom is the family of the heberites: and melchiel, of whom is the family of the melchielites. and the name of the daughter of aser, was sara. these are the kindreds of the sons of aser, and their number fifty-three thousand four hundred. the sons of nephtali by their kindreds: jesiel, of whom is the family of the jesielites: guni, of whom is the family of the gunites: jeser, of whom is the family of the jeserites: sellem, of whom is the family of the sellemites. these are the kindreds of the sons of nephtali by their families: whose number was forty-five thousand four hundred. this is the sum of the children of israel, that were reckoned up, six hundred and one thousand seven hundred and thirty. and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: to these shall the land be divided for their possessions according to the number of names. to the greater number thou shalt give a greater portion, and to the fewer a less: to every one, as they have now been reckoned up, shall a possession be delivered: yet so that by lot the land be divided to the tribe and families. whatsoever shall fall by lot, that shall be taken by the more, or the fewer. this also is the number of the sons of levi by their families: gerson, of whom is the family of the gersonites: caath, of whom is the family of the caathites: merari, of whom is the family of the merarites. these are the families of levi: the family of lobni, the family of hebroni, the family of moholi, the family of musi, the family of core. now caath beget amram: who had to wife jochabed the daughter of levi, who was horn to him in egypt. she bore to her husband amram sons, aaron and moyses, and mary their sister. of aaron were born nadab and abiu, and eleazar and ithamar: of whom nadab and abiu died, when they had offered the strange fire before the lord. and all that were numbered, were twenty-three thousand males from one month old and upward: for they were not reckoned up among the children of israel, neither was a possession given to them with the rest. this is the number of the children of israel, that were enrolled by moyses and eleazar the priest, in the plains of moab upon the jordan, over against jericho. among whom there was not one of them that were numbered before by moyses and aaron in the desert of sinai. for the lord had foretold that they should die in the wilderness. and none remained of them, but caleb the son of jephone, and josue the son of nun.

then came the daughters of salphaad, the son of hepher, the son of galaad, the son of machir, the son of manasses, who was the son of joseph: and their names are maala, and noa, and heglā, and melcha, and thersa. and they stood before moyses and eleazar the priest, and all the princes of the people at the door of the tabernacle of the covenant, and said: our father died in the desert, and was not in the sedition, that was raised against the lord under core, but he died in his own sin: and he had no male children. why is his name taken away out of his family, because he had no son? give us a possession among the kinsmen of our father. and moyses referred their cause to the judgment of the lord. and the lord said to him: the daughters of salphaad demand a just thing: give them a possession among their father's kindred, and let them succeed him in his inheritance. and to the children of israel thou shalt speak these things: when a man dieth without a son, his inheritance shall pass to his daughter. if he have no daughter, his brethren shall succeed him. and if he have no brethren, you shall give the inheritance to his father's brethren. but if he have no uncles by the father, the inheritance shall be given to them that are the next akin. and this shall be to the children of israel sacred by a perpetual law, as the lord hath commanded moyses. the lord also said to moyses: go up into this mountain abarim, and view from thence the land which i will give to the children of israel. and when thou shalt have seen it, thou also shalt go to thy people, as thy brother aaron is gone: because you offended me in the desert of sin in the contradiction of the multitude, neither would you sanctify me before them at the waters. these are the waters of contradiction in cades of the desert of sin. and moyses answered him: may the lord the god of the spirits of all flesh provide a man, that may be over this multitude: and may go out and in before them, and may lead them out, or bring them in: lest the people of the lord be as sheep without a shepherd. and the lord said to him: take josue the son of nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and put thy hand upon him. and he shall stand before eleazar the priest and all the multitude: and thou shalt give him precepts in the sight of all, and part of thy glory, that all the congregation of the children of israel may hear him. if any thing be to be done, eleazar the priest shall consult the lord for him. he and all the children of israel with him, and the rest of the multitude shall go out and go in at his word. moyses did as the lord had commanded. and when he had taken josue, he set him before eleazar the priest, and all the assembly of the people, and laying his hands on his head, he repeated all things that the lord had commanded.

the lord also said to moyses: command the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: offer ye my oblation and my bread, and burnt sacrifice of most sweet odour, in their due seasons. these are the sacrifices which you shall offer: two lambs of a year old without blemish every day for the perpetual holocaust: one you shall offer in the morning, and the other in the evening: and the tenth part of an ephi of flour, which shall be tempered with the purest oil, of the measure of the fourth part of a hin. it is the continual holocaust which you offered in mount sinai for a most sweet odour of a sacrifice by fire to the lord. and for a libation you shall offer of wine the fourth part of a hin for every lamb in the sanctuary of the lord. and you shall offer the other lamb in like manner ill the evening according to all the rites of the morning sacrifice, and of the libations thereof, an oblation of most sweet odour to the lord. and on the sabbath day you shall offer two lambs of a year old without blemish, and two tenths of flour tempered with oil in sacrifice, and the libations, which regularly are poured out every sabbath for the perpetual holocaust. and on the first day of the month you shall offer a holocaust to the lord, two calves of the herd, one ram, and seven lambs of a year old, without blemish, and three tenths of flour tempered with oil in sacrifice for every calf: and two tenths of flour tempered with oil for every ram: and the tenth of a tenth of flour tempered with oil in sacrifice for every lamb. it is a holocaust of most sweet odour and an offering by fire to the lord. and these shall be the libations of wine that are to be poured out for every victim: half a hin for every calf, a third for a ram, and a fourth for a lamb. this shall be the holocaust for every month, as they succeed one another in the course of the year. a buck goat also shall be offered to the lord for a sin offering over and above the perpetual holocaust with its libations. and in the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, shall be the phase of the lord, and on the fifteenth day the solemn feast: seven days shall they eat unleavened bread. and the first day of them shall be venerable and holy: you shall not do any servile work therein. and you shall offer a burnt sacrifice a holocaust to the lord, two calves of the herd, one ram, seven lambs of a year old, without blemish: and for the sacrifices of every one three tenths of flour which shall be tempered with oil to every calf, and two tenths to every ram, and the tenth of a tenth, to every lamb, that is to say, to all the seven lambs: and one buck goat for sin, to make atonement for you, besides the morning holocaust which you shall always offer. so shall you do every day of the seven days for the food of the fire, and for a most sweet odour to the lord, which shall rise from the holocaust, and from the libations of each. the seventh day also shall be most solemn and holy unto you: you shall do no servile work therein. the day also of firstfruits, when after the weeks are accomplished, you shall offer new fruits to the lord, shall be venerable and holy: you shall do no servile work therein. and you shall offer a holocaust for a most sweet odour to the lord, two calves of the herd, one ram, and seven lambs of a year old, without blemish: and in the sacrifices of them three tenths of flour tempered with oil to every calf, two to every ram, the tenth of a tenth to every lamb, which in all are seven lambs: a buck goat also, which is slain for expiation: besides the perpetual holocaust and the libations thereof. ou shall offer them all without blemish with their libations.

the first day also of the seventh month shall be venerable and holy unto you; you shall do no servile work therein, because it is the day of the sounding and of trumpets. and you shall offer a holocaust for a most sweet odour to the lord, one calf of the herd, one ram and seven lambs of a year old, without blemish. and for their sacrifices, three tenths of flour tempered with oil to every calf, two tenths to a ram, one tenth to a lamb, which in all are seven lambs: and a buck goat for sin, which is offered for the expiation of the people, besides the holocaust of the first day of the month with the sacrifices thereof, and the perpetual holocaust with the accustomed libations. with the same ceremonies you shall offer a burnt sacrifice for a most sweet odour to the lord. the tenth day also of this seventh month shall be holy and venerable unto you, and you shall afflict your souls: you shall do no servile work therein. and you shall offer a holocaust to the lord for a most sweet odour, one calf of the herd, one ram, and seven lambs of a year old, without blemish: and for their sacrifices, three tenths of flour tempered with oil to every calf, two tenths to a ram, the tenth of a tenth to every lamb, which are in all seven lambs: and a buck goat for sin, besides the things that are wont to be offered for sin, for expiation, and for the perpetual holocaust with their sacrifice and libations. and on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, which shall be unto you holy and venerable, you shall do no servile work, but shall celebrate a solemnity to the lord seven days. and you shall offer a holocaust for a most sweet odour to the lord, thirteen calves of the herd, two rams, and fourteen lambs of a year old, without blemish: and for their libations three tenths of flour tempered with oil to every calf, being in all thirteen calves: and two tenths to each ram, being two rams, and the tenth of a tenth to every lamb, being in all fourteen lambs: and a buck goat for sin, besides the perpetual holocaust, and the sacrifice and the libation thereof. on the second day you shall offer twelve calves of the herd, two rams and fourteen lambs of a year old, without blemish: and the sacrifices and the libations for every one, for the calves and for the rams and for the lambs you shall duly celebrate: and a buck goat for a sin offering besides the perpetual holocaust, and the sacrifice and the libation thereof. the third day you shall offer eleven calves, two rams, and fourteen lambs of a year old, without blemish: and the sacrifices and the libations of every one for the calves and for the rams and for the lambs

you shall offer according to the rite: and a buck goat for sin, besides the perpetual holocaust, and the sacrifice, and the libation thereof. the fourth day you shall offer tell calves, two rams, and fourteen lambs of a year old, without blemish: and the sacrifices and the libations of every one for the calves and for the rams and for the lambs you shall celebrate in right manner: and a buck goat for sin, besides the perpetual holocaust, and the sacrifice and the libation thereof. the fifth day you shall offer nine calves, two rams, and fourteen lambs of a year old, without blemish: and the sacrifices and the libations of every one for the calves and for the rams and for the lambs you shall celebrate according to the rite: and a buck goat for sin, besides the perpetual holocaust, and the sacrifice and the libation thereof. the sixth day you shall offer eight calves, two rams, and fourteen lambs of a year old, without blemish: and the sacrifices and the libations of every one for the calves and for the rams and for the lambs you shall celebrate according to the rite: and a buck goat for sin, besides the perpetual holocaust, and the sacrifice and the libation thereof. the seventh day you shall offer seven calves and two rams, and fourteen lambs of a year old, without blemish: and the sacrifices and the libations of every one for the calves and for the rams and for the lambs you shall celebrate according to the rite: and a buck goat for sin, besides the perpetual holocaust, and the sacrifice and the libation thereof. on the eighth day, which is moat solemn, you shall do no servile work: but you shall offer a holocaust for a most sweet odour to the lord, one calf, one ram, and seven lambs of a year old, without blemish: and the sacrifices and the libations of every one for the calves and for the rams and for the lambs you shall celebrate according to the rite: and a buck goat for sin, besides the perpetual holocaust, and the sacrifice and the libation thereof. these things shall you offer to the lord in your solemnities: besides your vows and voluntary oblations for holocaust, for sacrifice, for libation, and for victims of peace offerings. and moyses told the children of israel all that the lord had commanded him :

and he said to the princes of the tribes of the children of israel: this is the word that the lord hath commanded: if any man make a vow to the lord, or bind himself by an oath: he shall not make his word void but shall fulfil all that he promised. if a woman vow any thing, and bind herself by an oath, being in her father's house, and but yet a girl in age: if her father knew the vow that she hath promised, and the oath wherewith she hath bound her soul, and held his peace, she shall be bound by the vow: whatsoever she promised and swore, she shall fulfil in deed. but if her father, immediately as soon as he heard it, gainsaid it, both her vows and her oaths shall be void, neither shall she be bound to what she promised, because her father hath gainsaid it. if she have a husband, and shall vow any thing, and the word once going out of her mouth shall bind her soul by an oath: the day that her husband shall hear it, and not gainsay it, she shall be bound to the vow, and shall give whatsoever she promised. but if as soon as he heareth he gainsay it, and make her promises and the words wherewith she had bound her soul of no effect : the lord will forgive her. the widow, and she that is divorced, shall fulfil whatsoever they vow. if the wife in the house of her husband, hath bound herself by vow and by oath, if her husband hear, and hold his peace, and doth not disallow the promise, she shall accomplish whatsoever she had promised. but if forthwith he gainsay it, she shall not be bound by the promise: because her husband gainsaid it, and the lord will be merciful to her. if she vow and bind herself by oath, to afflict her soul by fasting, or abstinence from other things, it shall depend on the will of her husband, whether she shall do it, or not do it. but if the husband hearing it hold his peace, and defer the declaring his mind till another day: whatsoever she had vowed and promised, she shall fulfil: because immediately as he heard it, he held his peace. but if he gainsay it after that he knew it, he shall bear her iniquity. these are the laws which the lord appointed to moyses between the husband and the wife, between the father and the daughter that is as yet but a girl in age, or that abideth in her father's house.

and the lord spoke to moyses, saying: revenge first the children of israel on the madianites, and so thou shalt be gathered to thy people. and moyses forthwith said: arm of you men to fight, who may take the revenge of the lord on the madianites. let a thousand men be chosen out of every tribe of israel to be sent to the war. and they gave a thousand of every tribe, that is to say, twelve thousand men well appointed for battle. and moyses sent them with phinees the son of eleazar the priest, and he delivered to him the holy vessels, and the trumpets to sound. and when they had fought against the madianites and had overcome them, they slew all the men. and their kings evi, and rechem, and sur, and hur, and rebe, five princes of the nation: balaam also the son of beer they killed with the sword. and they took their women, and their children captives, and all their cattle, and all their goods: and all their possessions they plundered: and all their cities, and their villages, and castles, they burned. and they carried away the booty, and all that they had taken both of men and of beasts. and they brought them to moyses, and eleazar the priest, and to all the multitude of the children of israel. but the rest of the things for use they carried to the camp on the plains of moab, beside the jordan over against jericho. and moyses and eleazar the priest and all the princes of the synagogue went forth to meet them without the camp. and moyses being angry with the chief officers of the army, the tribes, and the centurions that were come from the battle, said: why have you saved the women? are not these they, that deceived the children of israel by the counsel of balaam, and made you transgress against the lord by the sin of phogor, for which also the people was punished? therefore kill all that are of the male sex, even of the children: and put to death the women, that have carnally known men. but the girls, and all the women that are virgins save for yourselves: and stay without the camp seven days. he that hath killed a man, or touched one that is killed, shall be purified the third day and the seventh day. and of all the spoil, every garment, or vessel, or any thing made for use, of the skins, or hair of goats, or of wood, shall be purified. eleazar also the priest spoke to the men of the army, that had fought, in this manner: this is the ordinance of the law, which the lord hath commanded moyses: gold, and silver, and brass, and iron, and lend, and tin, and all that may pass through the fire, shall be purified by fire, but whatsoever cannot abide the fire, shall be sanctified with the water of expiation: and you shall wash your garments the seventh day, and being purified, you shall afterwards enter into the camp. and the lord said to moyses: take the sum of the things that were taken both of man and beast, thou and eleazar the priest and the princes of the multitude: and thou shalt divide the spoil equally, between them that fought and went out to the war, and between the rest of the multitude. and thou shalt separate a portion to the lord from them that fought and were in the battle, one soul of five hundred as well of persons as of oxen and asses and sheep. and thou shalt give it to eleazar the priest, because they are the firstfruits of the lord. out of the moiety also of the children of israel thou shalt take the fiftieth head of persons, and of oxen, and asses, and sheep, and of all beasts, and thou shalt give them to the levites that watch in the charge of the tabernacle of the lord. and moyses and eleazar did as the lord had commanded. and the spoil which the army had taken, was six hundred seventy-five thousand sheep, seventy-two thousand oxen, sixty-one thousand asses: and thirty-two thousand persons of the female sex, that had not known men. and one half was given to them that had been in the battle, to wit, three hundred thirty-seven thousand five hundred sheep: out of which, for the portion of the lord, were reckoned six hundred seventy-five sheep. and out of the thirty-six thousand oxen, seventy-two oxen: out of the thirty thousand five hundred asses, sixty-one asses: out of the sixteen thousand persons, there fell to the portion of the lord, thirty-two souls. and moyses delivered the number of the firstfruits of the lord to eleazar the priest, as had been commanded him, out of the half of the children of israel, which he had separated for them that had been in the battle. but out of the half that fell to the rest of the multitude, that is to say, out of the three hundred thirty-seven thousand five hundred sheep, and out of the thirty-six thousand oxen, and out of the thirty thousand five hundred asses, and out of the sixteen thousand persons, moyses took the fiftieth head, and gave it to the levites that watched in the tabernacle of the lord, as the lord had commanded. and when the commanders of the army, and the tribunes and centurions were come to moyses, they said: we thy servants have reckoned up the number of the fighting men, whom we had under our hand, and not so much as one was wanting. therefore we offer as gifts to the lord what gold every one of us could find in the booty, in garters and tablets, rings and bracelets, and chains, that thou mayst pray to the lord for us. and moyses and eleazar the priest received all the gold in divers kinds, in weight sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty sicles, from the tribunes and from the centurions. for that which every one had taken in the booty was his own. and that which was received they brought into the tabernacle of the testimony, for a memorial of the children of israel before the lord.

and the sons of ruben and gad had many flocks of cattle, and their substance in beasts was infinite. and when they saw the lands of jazer and galaad fit for feeding cattle, they came to moyses and eleazar the priest, and the princes of the multitude, and said: ataroth, and dibon, and jazer, and nemra, hesebon, and eleale, and saban, and nebo, and beon, the land, which the lord hath conquered in the sight of the children of israel, is a very fertile soil for the feeding of beasts: and we thy servants have very much cattle: and we pray thee, if we have found favour in thy sight, that thou give it to us thy servants in possession, and make us not pass over the jordan. and moyses answered them: what, shall your brethren go to fight, and will you sit here? why do ye overturn the minds of the children of israel, that they may not dare to pass into the place which the lord hath given them? was it not thus your fathers did, when i sent from cadesbarne to view the land? and when they were come as far as the valley of the cluster, having viewed all the country, they overturned the hearts of the children of israel, that they should not enter into the coasts, which the lord gave them. and he swore in his anger, saying: if these men, that came up out of egypt, from twenty years old and upward, shall see the land, which i promised with an oath to abraham, isaac, and jacob: because they would not follow me, except caleb the son of jephone the cenezite, and josue the son of nun: these have fulfilled my will. and the lord being angry against israel, led them about through the desert forty years, until the whole generation, that had done evil in his sight, was consumed. and behold, said he, you are risen up instead of your fathers, the increase and offspring of sinful men, to augment the fury of the lord against israel. for if you will not follow him, he will leave the people in the wilderness, and you shall be the cause of the destruction of all. but they coming near, said: we will make sheepfolds, and stalls for our cattle, and strong cities for our children: and we ourselves will go armed and ready for battle before the children of israel, until we bring them in unto their places. our little ones, and all we have, shall be in walled cities, for fear of the ambushes of the inhabitants. we will not return into our houses until the children of israel possess their inheritance: neither will we seek any thing beyond the jordan, because we have already our possession on the east side thereof, and moyses said to them: if you do what you promise, go on well appointed for war before the lord: and let every fighting man pass over the jordan, until the lord overthrow

his enemies : and all the land be brought under him, then shall you be blameless before the lord and before israel, and you shall obtain the countries that you desire, before the lord. but if you do not what you say, no man can doubt but you sin against god: and know ye, that your sin shall overtake you. build therefore cities for your children, and folds and stalls for your sheep and beasts, and accomplish what you have promised. and the children of gad and ruben said to mores: we are thy servants, we will do what my lord commandeth. we will leave our children, and our wives and sheep and cattle, in the cities of galaad: and we thy servants all well appointed will march on to the war, as thou, my lord, speakest. mores therefore commanded eleazar the priest, and josue the son of nun, and the princes of the families of all the tribes of israel, and said to them: if the children of gad, and the children of ruben pass with you over the jordan, all armed for war before the lord, and the land be made subject to you: give them galaad in possession. but if they will not pass armed with you into the land of chanaan, let them receive places to dwell in among you. and the children of gad, and the children of ruben answered: as the lord hath spoken to his servants, so will we do: we will go armed before the lord into the land of chanaan, and we confess that we have already received our possession beyond the jordan. mores therefore gave to the children of cad and of ruben, and to the half tribe of manasses the son of joseph, the kingdom of sehon king of the amorrhites, and the kingdom of og king of basan, and their land and the cities thereof round about. and the sons of cad built dibon, and ataroth, and aroer, and etroth, and sophan, and jazer, and jegbaa, and bethnemra, and betharan, fenced cities, and folds for their cattle. but the children of ruben built hesebon, and eleale, and carithaim, and nabo, and baalmeon (their names being changed) and sabama: giving names to the cities which they had built. moreover the children of machir, the son of manasses, went into galaad, and wasted it, cutting off the amorrhites, the inhabitants thereof. and mores gave the land of galaad to machir the son of manasses, and he dwelt in it. and jair the son of manasses went, and took the villages thereof, and he called them havoth jair, that is to say, the villages of jair. nobe also went, and took canath with the villages thereof: and he called it by his own name, nobe.

these are the mansions of the children of israel, who went out of egypt by their troops under the conduct of mores and aaron, which mores wrote down according to the places of their encamping, which they changed by the commandment of the lord. now the children of israel departed from rameses the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month, the day after the phase, with a mighty hand, in the eight of all the egyptians, who were burying their first-born, whom the lord had slain (upon their gods also he had executed vengeance,) and they camped in socoth. and from socoth they came into etham, which is in the uttermost borders of the wilderness. departing from thence they came over against phihairoth, which looketh towards beelsephon, and they camped before magdalum. and departing from phihairoth, they passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness: and having marched three days through the desert of etham, they camped in mara. and departing from mara, they came into elim, where there were twelve fountains of waters, and seventy palm trees: and there they camped. but departing from thence also, they pitched their tents by the red sea. and departing from the red sea, they camped in the desert of sin. and they removed from thence, and came to daphca. and departing from daphca, they camped in alus. and departing from alus, they pitched their tents in raphidim, where the people wanted water to drink. and departing from raphidim, they camped in the desert of sinai. but departing also from the desert of sinai, they came to the graves of lust. and departing from the graves of lust, they camped in haseroth. and from haseroth they came to rethma. and departing from rethma, they camped in remmophares. and they departed from thence and came to lebna. removing from lebna they camped in ressa. and departing from ressa, they came to cee-latha. and they removed from thence and camped in the mountain sepher. departing from the mountain sepher, they came to arada. from thence they went and camped in maceloth. and departing from maceloth, they came to thahath. removing from thahath they camped in thare. and they departed from thence, and pitched their tents in methca. and removing from methca, they camped in hesmona. and departing from hesmona, they came to moseroth. and removing from moseroth, they camped in benejaacan. and departing from benejaacan, they came to mount gadgad. from thence they went and camped in jetebatha. and from jetebatha they came to hebrona. and departing from hebrona, they camped in asiongaber. they removed from thence and came into the desert of sin, which is cades. and departing from cades, they camped in mount her, in the uttermost borders of the land of edom. and aaron the priest went up into mount hor at the commandment of the lord: and there he died in the fortieth year of the coming forth of the children of israel out of egypt, w the fifth month, the first day of the month, when he was a hundred and twenty-three years old. and king arad the chanaanite, who dwelt towards the south, heard that the children of israel were come to the land of chanaan. and they departed from mount her, and camped in salmona. from whence they removed and came to phunon. and departing from phunon, they camped in oboth. and from oboth they came to ijeabarim, which is in the borders of the moabites. and departing from ijeabarim they pitched their tents in dibongab. from thence they went and camped in helmondeblathaim. and departing from helmondeblathaim, they came to the mountains of abarim over against nabo. and departing from the mountains of abarim, they passed to the plains of moab, by the jordan, over against jericho. and there they camped from bethsi moth even to ablesatim in the plains of the moabites, where the lord said to moses: command the children of israel, and say to them: when you shall have passed over the jordan, entering into the land of chanaan, destroy all the inhabitants of that land: beat down their pillars, and break in pieces their statues, and waste all their high places, cleansing the land, and dwelling in it. for i have given it you for a possession. and you shall divide it among you by lot. to the more you shall give a larger part, and to the fewer a lesser. to every one as the lot shall fall, so shall the inheritance be given. the possession shall be divided by the tribes and the families. but if you will not kill the inhabitants of the land: they that remain, shall be unto you as nails in your eyes, and spears in your sides, and they shall be your adversaries in the land of your habitation. and whatsoever i had thought to do to them, i will do to you.

and the lord spoke to moses, saying: command the children of israel, and then shalt say to them: when you are entered into the land of chanaan, and it shall be fallen into your possession by lot, it shall be bounded by these limits: the south side shall begin from the wilderness of sin, which is by edom: and shall have the most salt sea for its furthest limits eastward: which limits shall go round on the south side by the ascent of the scorpion and so into senna, and reach toward the south as far as cadesbarne, from whence the frontiers shall go out to the town called adar, and shall reach as far as asemona. and the limits shall fetch a compass from asemona to the torrent of egypt, and shall end in the shore of the great sea. and the west side shall begin from the great sea, and the same shall be the end thereof. but toward the north side the borders shall begin from the great sea, reaching to the most high mountain, from which they shall come to emath, as far as the borders of sedada: nod the limits shall go as far as zephrona, and the village of enan. these shall be the borders on the north side. from thence they shall mark out the bounds towards the east side from the village of enan unto sephama. and from sephama the bounds shall go down to rebla over against the fountain of daphnis: from thence they shall come eastward to the sea of cenereth, and shall reach as far as the jordan, and at the last shall be closed in by the most salt sea. this shall be your land with its borders round about. and moses commanded the children of israel, saying: this shall be the land which you shall possess by lot, and which the lord hath commanded to be given to the nine tribes, and to the half tribe. for the tribe of the children of ruben by their families, and the tribe of the children of gad according to the number of their kindreds, and half of the tribe of manasses, that is, two tribes and a half, have received their portion beyond the jordan over against jericho at the east side. and the lord said to moses: these are the names of the men, that shall divide the land unto you: eleazar the priest, and josue the son of nun, and one prince of every tribe, whose names are these: of the tribe of juda, caleb the son of jephone. of the tribe of simeon, samuel the son of

ammiud. of the tribe of benjamin, elidad the son of chaselon. of the tribe of the children of dan, bocci the son of jogli. of the children of joseph of the tribe of manasses, hannel the son of ephod. of the tribe of ephraim, camuel the son of sephtan. of the tribe of zabulon, elisaphan the son of pharnach. of the tribe of issachar, phaltiel the prince, the son of ozan. of the tribe of aser, ahuid the son of salomi. of the tribe of nephtali: phedael the son of ammiud. these are they whom the lord hath commanded to divide the land of chanaan to the children of israel,.

and the lord spoke these things also to moses in the plains of moab by the jordan, over against jericho: command the children of israel that they give to the levites out of their possessions, cities to dwell in, and their suburbs round about: that they may abide in the towns, and the suburbs may be for their cattle and beasts: which suburbs shall reach from the walls of the cities outward, a thousand paces on every side: toward the east shall be two thousand cubits: and toward the south in like manner shall be two thousand cubits: toward the sea also, which looketh to the west, shall be the same extent: and the north side shall be bounded with the like limits. and the cities shall be in the midst, and the suburbs without. and among the cities, which you shall give to the levites, six shall be separated for refuge to fugitives, that he who hath shed blood may flee to them: and besides these there shall be other forty-two cities, that is, in all forty-eight with their suburbs. and of these cities which shall be given out of the possessions of the children of israel, from them that have more, more shall be taken: and from them that have less, fewer. each shall give towns to the levites according to the extent of their inheritance. the lord said to moses: speak to the children of israel, and thou shalt say to them: when you shall have passed over the jordan into the land of chanaan, determine what cities shall be for the refuge of fugitives, who have shed blood against their will. and when the fugitive shall be in them, the kinsman of him that is slain may not have power to kill him, until he stand before the multitude, and his cause be judged. and of those cities, that are separated for the refuge of fugitives, three shall be beyond the jordan, and three in the land of chanaan, as well for the children of israel as for strangers and sojourners, that he may flee to them, who hath shed blood against his will. if any man strike with iron, and he die that was struck: he shall be guilty of murder, and he himself shall die. if he throw a stone, and he that is struck die: he shall be punished in the same manner. if he that is struck with wood die: he shall be revenged by the blood of him that struck him. the kinsman of him that was slain, shall kill the murderer: as soon as he apprehendeth him, he shall kill him. if through hatred any one push a man, or fling any thing- at him with ill design: or being his enemy, strike; him with his hand, and he die: the striker shall be guilty of murder: the kinsman of him that was slain as soon as he findeth him, shall kill him. but if by chance medley, and without hatred, and enmity, he do any of these things, and this be proved in the hearing of the people, and the cause be debated between him that struck, and the next of kin: the innocent shall be delivered from the hand of the revenger, and shall be brought back by sentence into the city, to which he had fled, and he shall abide there until the death of the high priest, that is anointed with the holy oil. if the murderer be found without the limits of the cities that are appointed for the banished, and be struck by him that is the avenger of blood: he shall not be guilty that killed him. for the fugitive ought to have stayed in the city until the death of the high priest: and after he is dead, then shall the manslayer return to his own country. these things shall be perpetual, and for an ordinance in all your dwellings. the murderer shall be punished by witnesses: none shall be condemned upon the evidence of one man. you shall not take money of him that is guilty of blood, but he shall die forthwith. the banished and fugitives before the death of the high priest may by no means return into their own cities. defile not the land of your habitation, which is stained with the blood of the innocent: neither can it otherwise be expiated, but by his blood that hath shed the blood of another. and thus shall your possession be cleansed, myself abiding with you. for i am the lord that dwell among the children of israel.

ments and judgments, which the lord commanded by the hand of moyses to the children of israel, in the plains of moab upon the jordan over against jericho.

and the princes of the families of galaad, the son of machir, the son of manasses, of the stock of the children of joseph, came and spoke to moyses before the princes of israel, and said: the lord hath commanded thee, my lord, that thou shouldst divide the land by lot to the children of israel, and that thou shouldst give to the daughters of salphaad our brother the possession due to their father: now if men of another tribe take them to wives, their possession will follow them, and being transferred to another tribe, will be a diminishing of our inheritance. and so it shall come to pass, that when the jubilee, that is, the fiftieth year of remission, is come, the distribution made by the lots shall be confounded, and the possession of the one shall pass to the others. moyses answered the children of israel, and said by the command of the lord: the tribe of the children of joseph hath spoken rightly. and this is the law promulgated by the lord touching the daughters of salphaad: let them marry to whom they will, only so that it be to men of their own tribe. lest the possession of the children of israel be mingled from tribe to tribe. for all men shall marry wives of their own tribe and kindred: and all women shall take husbands of the same tribe: that the inheritance may remain in the families, and that the tribes be not mingled one with another, but remain so as they were separated by the lord. and the daughters of salphaad did as was commanded: and maala, and thersa, and hegla, and melcha, and noa were married to the sons of their uncle by their father of the family of manasses, who was the son of joseph: and the possession that had been allotted to them, remained in the tribe and family of their father. these are the command-

these are the words, which moyses spoke to all israel beyond the jordan, in the plain wilderness, over against the red sea, between pharan and thophel and laban and haseroth, where there is very much gold: eleven days' journey from horeb by the way of mount seir to cadesbarne. in the fortieth year, the eleventh month, the first day of the month, moyses spoke to the children of israel all that the lord had commanded him to say to them: after that he had slain sehon king of the amorrites, who dwelt in hesebon: and og king of basan who abode in astaroth, and in edrai, beyond the jordan in the land of moab. and moyses began to expound the law, and to say: the lord our god spoke to us in horeb, saying: you have stayed long enough in this mountain: turn you, and come to the mountain of the amorrites, and to the other places that are next to it, the plains and the hills and the vales towards the south, and by the sea shore, the land of the chanaanites, and of libanus, as far as the great river euphrates. behold, said he, i have delivered it to you: go in and possess it, concerning which the lord swore to your fathers abraham, isaac, and jacob, that he would give it to them, and to their seed after them. and i said to you at that time: i alone am not able to bear you: for the lord your god hath multiplied you, and you are this day as the stars of heaven, for multitude. (the lord god of your fathers add to this number many thousands, and bless you as he hath spoken.) i alone am not able to bear your business, and the charge of you and your differences. let me have from among you wise and understanding men, and such whose conversation is approved among your tribes, that i may appoint them your rulers. then you answered me: the thing is good which thou meanest to do. and i took out of your tribes men wise and honourable, and appointed them rulers, tribunes, and centurions, and officers over fifties, and over tens, who might teach you all things. and i commanded them, saying: hear them, and judge that which is just: whether he be one of your country, or a stranger. there shall be no difference of persons, you shall hear the little as well as the great: neither shall you respect any man's person, because it is the judgment of god. and if any thing seem hard to you, refer it to me, and i will hear it. and i commanded you all things that you were to do. and departing from horeb, we passed through the terrible and vast wilderness, which you saw, by the way of the mountain of the amorrite, as the lord our god had commanded us. and when we were come into cadesbarne, i said to you: you are come to the mountain of the amorrite, which the lord our god will give to us. see the land which the lord thy god giveth thee: go up and possess it, as the lord our god hath spoken to thy fathers: fear not, nor be any way discouraged. and you came all to me, and said: let us send men who may view the land, and bring us word what way we shall go up, and to what cities we shall go. and because the saying pleased me, i sent of you twelve men, one of every tribe: who, when they had set forward and had gone up to the mountains, came as far as the valley of the cluster: and having viewed the land, taking of the fruits thereof, to shew its fertility, they brought them to us, and said: the land is good, which the lord our god will give us. and you would not go up, but being incredulous to the word of the lord our god, you murmured in your tents, and said: the lord hateth us, and therefore he hath brought us out of the land of egypt, that he might deliver us into the hand of the amorrite, and destroy us. whither shall we go up? the messengers have terrified our hearts, saying: the multitude is very great, and taller than we: the cities are great, and walled up to the sky, we have seen the sons of the enacims there. and i said to you: fear not, neither be ye afraid of them: the lord god, who is your leader, himself will fight for you, as he did in egypt in the sight of all. and in the wilderness (as thou hast seen) the lord thy god hath carried thee, as a man is wont to carry his little son, all the way that you have come, until you came to this place. and yet for all this you did not believe the lord your god, who went before you in the way, and marked out the place, wherein you should pitch your tents, in the night shewing you the way by fire, and in the day by the pillar of a cloud. and when the lord had heard the voice of your words, he was angry and swore, and said: not one of the men of this wicked generation shall see the good land, which i promised with an oath to your fathers: except caleb the son of jephone: for he shall see it, and to him i will give the land that he hath trodden upon, and to his children, because he hath followed the lord. neither is his indignation against the people to be wondered at, since the lord was angry with me also on your account, and said: neither shalt thou go in thither. but josue the son of nun, thy minister, he shall go in for thee: exhort and encourage him, and he shall divide the land by lot to israel. your children, of whom you said that they should be led away captives, and your sons who know not this day the difference of good and evil, they shall go in: and to them i will give the land, and they shall possess it. but return you and go into the wilderness by the way of the red sea. and you answered me: we have sinned against the lord: we will go up and fight, as the lord our god hath commanded. and when you went ready armed unto the mountain, the lord said to me: say to them: go not up, and fight not, for i am not with you: lest you fall before your enemies. i spoke, and you hearkened not: but resisting the commandment of the lord, and swelling with pride, you went up into the mountain. and the amorrite that dwelt in the mountains coming out, and meeting you, chased you, as bees do: and made slaughter of you from seir as far as horma. and when you returned and wept before the lord, he heard you not, neither would he yield to your voice. so you abode in cadesbarne a long time.

and departing from thence we came into the wilderness that leadeth to the red sea, as the lord had spoken to me: and we compassed mount seir a long time. and the lord said to me: you have compassed this mountain long enough: go toward the north: and command thou the people, saying: you shall pass by the borders of your brethren the children of esau, who dwell in seir, and they will be afraid of you. take ye then good heed that you stir not against them. for i will not give you of their land so much as the step of one foot can tread upon, because i have given mount seir to esau, for a possession. you shall buy meats of them for money and shall eat: you shall draw waters for money, and shall drink. the lord thy god hath blessed thee in every work of thy hands: the lord thy god dwelling with thee, knoweth thy journey, how thou hast passed through this great wilderness, for forty years, and thou hast wanted nothing. and when we had passed by our brethren the children of esau, that dwelt in seir, by the way of the plain from elath and from asiongaber, we came to the way that leadeth to the desert of moab. and the lord said to me: fight not against the moabites, neither go to battle against them: for i will not give thee any of their land, because i have given ar to the children of lot in possession. the emims first were the inhabitants thereof, a people great, and strong, and so tall, that like the race of the enacims, they were esteemed as giants, and were like the sons of the enacims. but the moabites call them emims. the horrrhites also formerly dwelt in seir: who being driven out and destroyed, the children of esau dwelt there, as israel did in the land of his possession, which the lord gave him. then rising up to pass the torrent zared, we came to it. and the time that we journeyed from cadesbarne till we passed over the torrent zared, was thirty-eight years: until all the generation of the men that were fit for war was consumed out of the camp, as the lord had sworn: for his hand was against them, that they should perish from the midst of the camp. and after all the fighting men were dead, the lord spoke to me, saying: thou shalt pass this day the borders of moab, the city named ar: and when thou comest nigh the frontiers of the children of ammon, take heed thou fight not against them, nor once move to battle: for i will not give thee of the land of the children of ammon, because i have given it to the children of lot for a possession. it was accounted a land of giants: and giants formerly dwelt in it, whom the ammonites call zomzommims, a people great and many, and of tall stature, like the enacims whom the lord destroyed before their face: and he made them to dwell in their stead, as he had done in favour of the children of esau, that dwell in seir, destroying the horrrhites, and delivering their land to them, which they possess to this day. the hevites also, that dwelt in haserim as far as gaza, were expelled by the cappadocians: who came out of cappadocia, and destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead. arise ye, and pass the torrent arnon: behold i have delivered into thy hand sehon king of hesebon the amorrhite, and begin thou to possess his land and make war against him. this day will i begin to send the dread and fear of thee upon the nations that dwell under the whole heaven: that when they hear thy name they may fear and tremble, and be in pain like women in travail. so i sent messengers from the wilderness of cademoth to sehon the king of hesebon with peaceable words, saying: we will pass through thy land, we will go along by the highway: we will not turn aside neither to the right hand nor to the left. sell us meat for money, that we may eat: give us water for money and so we will drink. we only ask that thou wilt let us pass through, as the children of esau have done, that dwell in seir, and the moabites, that abide in ar: until we come to the jordan, and pass to the land which the lord our god will give us. and sehon the king of hesebon would not let us pass: because the lord thy god had hardened his spirit, and fixed his heart, that he might be delivered into thy hands, as now thou seest. and the lord said to me: behold i have begun to deliver unto thee sehon and his land, begin to possess it. and sehon came out to meet us with all his people to fight at jasa. and the lord our god delivered him to us: and we slew him with his sons and all his people. and we took all his cities at that time, killing the inhabitants of them, men and women and children. we left nothing of them: except the cattle which came to the share of them that took them: and the spoils of the cities, which we took: from aroer, which is upon the bank of the torrent amen, a town that is situate in a valley, as far as galaad. there was not a village or city, that escaped our hands: the lord our god delivered all unto us: except the land of the children of ammon, to which we approached not: and all that border upon the torrent jeboc, and the cities in the mountains, and all the places which the lord our god forbade us.

then we turned and went by the way of basan: and og the king of basan came out to meet us with his people to fight in edrai. and the lord said to me: fear him not: because he is delivered into thy hand, with all his people and his land: and thou shalt do to him as thou hast done to sehon king of the amorrhites, that dwelt in hesebon. so the lord our god delivered into our hands, og also the king of basan, and all his people: and we utterly destroyed them, wasting all his cities at one time, there was not a town that escaped us: sixty cities, all the country of argob the kingdom of og in basan. all the cities were fenced with very high walls, and with gates and bars, besides innumerable towns that had no walls. and we utterly destroyed them, as we had done to sehon the king of hesebon, destroying every city, men and women and children: but the cattle and the spoils of the cities we took for our prey. and we took at that time the land out of the hand of the two kings of the amorrhites, that were beyond the jordan: from the torrent amen unto the mount hermon, which the sidonians call sariion, and the amorrhites sanir: all the cities that are situate in the plain, and all the land of galaad and basan as far as selcha and edrai, cities of the kingdom of og in basan. for only og king of basan remained of the race of the giants. his bed of iron is shewn, which is in rabbath of the children of ammon, being nine cubits long, and four broad after the measure of the cubit of a man's hand. and we possessed the land at that time from aroer, which is upon the bank of the torrent amen, unto the half of mount galaad: and i gave

the cities thereof to ruben and gad. and i delivered the other part of galaad, and all basan the kingdom of og to the half tribe of manasses, all the country of argob: and all basan is called the land of giants. jair the son of manasses possessed all the country of d argob unto the borders of gessuri, and machati. and he called basan by his own name, havoth jair, that is to say, the towns of jair, until this present day. to machir also i gave galaad. and to the tribes of ruben and cad i gave of the land of galaad as far as the torrent amen, half the torrent, and the confines even unto the torrent jeboc, which is the border of the children of amon: and the plain of the wilderness, and the jordan, and the borders of cenereth unto the sea of the desert, which is the most salt sea, to the foot of mount phasga eastward. and i commanded you at that time, saying: the lord your god giveth you this land for an inheritance, go ye well appointed before your brethren the children of israel, all the strong men of you, leaving your wives and children and cattle. for i know you have much cattle, and they must remain in the cities, which i have delivered to you. until the lord give rest to your brethren, as he hath given to you: and they also possess the land, which he will give them beyond the jordan: then shall every man return to his possession, which i have given you. i commanded josue also at that time, saying: thy eyes have seen what the lord your god hath done to these two kings: so will he do to all the king- dome to which thou shalt pass. fear them not: for the lord your god will fight for you. and i besought the lord at that time, saying: lord god, thou hast begun to shew unto thy servant thy greatness, and most mighty hand, for there is no other god either in heaven or earth, that is able to do thy works, or to be compared to thy strength. i will pass over therefore, and will see this excellent land beyond the jordan, and this goodly mountain, and libanus. and the lord was angry with me on your account and heard me not, but said to me: it is enough: speak no more to me of this matter. go up to the top of phasga, and cast thy eyes round about to the west, and to the north, and to the south, and to the east, and behold it, for thou shalt not pass this jordan. command josue, and encourage and strengthen him: for he shall go before this people, and shall divide unto them the land which thou shalt see. and we abode in the valley over against the temple of phogor.

and now, o israel, hear the commandments and judgments which i teach thee: that doing them, thou mayst live, and entering in mayst possess the land which the lord the god of your fathers will give you. you shall not add to the word that i speak to you, neither shall you take away from it: keep the commandments of the lord your god which i command you. your eyes have seen all that the lord hath done against beelphegor, how he hath destroyed all his worshippers from among you. but you that adhere to the lord your god, are all alive until this present day. you know that i have taught you statutes and justices, as the lord my god hath commanded me: so shall you do them in the land which you shall possess: and you shall observe, and fulfil them in practice. for this is your wisdom, and understanding in the sight of nations, that hearing all these precepts, they may say: behold a wise and understanding people, a great nation. neither is there any other nation so great, that hath gods so nigh them, as our god is present to all our petitions. for what other nation is there so renowned that hath ceremonies, and just judgments, and all the law, which i will set forth this day before your eyes? keep thyself therefore, and thy soul carefully. forget not the words that thy eyes have seen, and let them not go out of thy heart all the days of thy life. thou shalt teach them to thy sons and to thy grandsons, from the day in which thou didst stand before the lord thy god in horeb, when the lord spoke to me, saying: call together the people unto me, that they may hear my words, and may learn to fear me all the time that they live on the earth, and may teach their children. and you came to the foot of the mount, which burned even unto heaven: and there was darkness, and a cloud and obscurity in it. and the lord spoke to you from the midst of the fire. you heard the voice of his words, but you saw not any form at all. and he shewed you his covenant, which he commanded you to do, and the ten words that he wrote in two tables of stone. and he commanded me at that time that i should teach you the ceremonies and judgments which you shall do in the land, that you shall possess. keep therefore your souls carefully. you saw not any similitude in the day that the lord god spoke to you in horeb from the midst of the fire: lest perhaps being deceived you might make you a graven similitude, or image of male or female, the similitude of any beasts, that are upon the earth, or of birds, that fly under heaven, or of creeping things, that move on the earth, or of fishes, that abide in the waters under the earth: lest perhaps lifting up thy eyes to heaven, thou see the sun and the moon, and all the stars of heaven, and being deceived by error thou adore and serve them, which the lord thy god created for the service of all the nations, that are under heaven. but the lord hath taken you and brought you out of the iron furnace of egypt, to make you his people of inheritance, as it is this present day. and the lord was angry with me for your words, and he swore that i should not pass over the jordan, nor enter into the excellent land, which he will give you. behold i die in this land, i shall not pass over the jordan: you shall pass, and possess the goodly land. beware lest thou ever forget the covenant of the lord thy god, which he hath made with thee: and make to thyself a graven likeness of those things which the lord hath forbid to be made: because the lord thy god is a consuming fire, a jealous god. if you shall beget sons and grandsons, and abide in the land, and being deceived, make to yourselves any similitude, committing evil before the lord your god, to provoke him to wrath: i call this day heaven and earth to witness, that you shall quickly perish out of the land, which, when you have passed over the jordan, you shall possess. you shall not dwell therein long, but the lord will destroy you, and scatter you among all nations, and you shall remain a few among the nations, to which the lord shall lead you. and there you shah serve gods, that were framed with men's hands: wood and stone, that neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell. and when thou shalt seek there the lord thy god, thou shalt find him: yet so, if thou seek him with all thy heart, and all the affliction of thy soul. after all the things aforesaid shall and thee, in the latter time thou shalt return to the lord thy god, and shalt hear his voice. because the lord thy god is a merciful god: he will not leave thee, nor altogether destroy thee, nor forget the covenant, by which he swore to thy fathers. ask of the days of old, that have been before thy time from the day that god created man upon the earth, from one end of heaven to the other end thereof, if ever there was done the like thing, or it hath been known at any time, that a people should hear the voice of god speaking out of the midst of fire, as thou hast heard, and lived: if god ever did so as to go, and take to himself a nation out of the midst of nations by temptations, signs, and wonders, by fight, and a strong hand, and stretched out arm, and horrible visions according to all the things that the lord your god did for you in egypt, before thy eyes. that thou mightest know that the lord he is god, and there is no other besides him. from heaven he made thee to hear his voice, that he might teach thee. and upon earth he shewed thee his exceeding great fire, and thou didst hear his words out of the midst of the fire, because he loved thy fathers, and chose their seed after them. and he brought thee out of egypt, going before thee with his great power, to destroy at thy coming very great nations, and stronger than thou art, and to bring thee in, and give thee their land for a possession, as thou seest at this present day. know therefore this day, and think in thy heart that the lord he is god in heaven above, and in the earth beneath, and there is no other. keep his precepts and commandments, which i command thee: that it may be well with thee, and thy children after thee, and thou mayst remain a long time upon the land, which the lord thy god will give thee. then moyses set aside three cities beyond the jordan at the east side, that any one might flee to them who should kill his neighbour unwillingly, and was not his enemy a day or two before, and that he might escape to some one of these cities: bosor in the wilderness, which is situate in the plains of the tribe of ruben: and ramoth in galaad, which is in the tribe of gad: and golan in basan, which is in the tribe of manasses. this is the law, that moyses set before the children of israel, and these are the testimonies and ceremonies and judgments, which he spoke to the children of israel, when they came out of egypt, beyond the jordan in the valley over against the temple of phogor, in the land of sehon king of the amorrites, that dwelt in hesebon, whom moyses slew. and the children of israel coming out of egypt, possessed his land, and the land of og king of basan, of the two kings of the amorrites, who were beyond the jordan towards the rising of the sun: from aroer, which is situate upon the bank of the torrent amen, unto mount sion, which is also called hermon, all the plain beyond the jordan at the east side, unto the see of the wilderness, and unto the foot

and moyses called all israel, and said to them: hear, o israel, the ceremonies and judgments, which i speak in your ears this day: learn them, and fulfil them in work. the lord our god made a covenant with us in horeb. he made not the covenant with our fathers, but with us, who are now present and living. he spoke to us face to face in the mount out of the midst of fire. i was the mediator and stood between the lord and you at that time, to shew you his words, for you feared the fire, and went not up into the mountain, and he said: i am the lord thy god, who brought thee out of the land of egypt, out of the house of bondage thou shalt not have strange gods in my sight. thou shalt not make to thyself a graven thing, nor the likeness of any things, that are in heaven above, or that are in the earth beneath, or that abide in the waters under the earth. thou shalt not adore them, and thou shalt not serve them. for i am the lord thy god, a jealous god, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon their children unto the third and fourth generation, to them that hate me, and shewing mercy unto many thousands, to them that love me, and keep my commandments. thou shalt not take the name of the lord thy god in vain: for he shall not be unpunished that taketh his name upon a vain thing. observe the day of the sabbath, to sanctify it, as the lord thy god hath commanded thee. six days shalt thou labour, and shalt do all thy works. the seventh is the day of the sabbath, that is, the rest of the lord thy god. thou shalt not do any work therein, thou nor thy son nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant nor thy maidservant, nor thy ox, nor thy ass, nor any of thy beasts, nor the stranger that is within thy gates: that thy manservant and thy maidservant may rest, even as thyself. remember that thou also didst serve in egypt, and the lord thy god brought thee out from thence with a strong hand, and a stretched out arm. therefore hath he commanded thee that thou shouldst observe the sabbath day. honour thy father and mother, as the lord thy god hath commanded thee, that thou mayst live a long time, and it may be well with thee in the land, which the lord thy god will give thee. thou shalt not kill. neither shalt thou commit adultery. and thou shalt not steal. neither shalt thou bear false witness against thy neighbour. thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife: nor his house, nor his field, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is his. these words the lord spoke to all the multitude of you in the mountain, out of the midst of the fire and the cloud, and the darkness, with a loud voice, adding nothing more: and he wrote them in two tables of stone, which he delivered unto me. but you, after you heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, and saw the mountain burn, came to me, all the princes of the tribes and the elders, and you said: behold the lord our god hath shewn us his majesty and his greatness, we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire, and have proved this day that god speaking with man, man hath lived. why shall we die therefore, and why shall this exceeding great are consume us: for if we hear the voice of the lord our god any more, we shall die. what is all flesh, that it should hear the voice of the living god, who speaketh out of the midst of the fire, as we have heard, and be able to live? approach thou rather: and hear all things that the lord our god shall say to thee, and thou shalt speak to us, and we will hear and will do them. and when the lord had heard this, he said to me: i have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they spoke to thee: they have spoken all things well. who shall give them to have such a mind, to fear me, and to keep all my commandments at all times, that it may be well with them and with their children for ever? go and say to them: return into your tents. but stand thou here with me, and i will speak to thee all my commandments, and ceremonies and judgments: which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the land, which i will give them for a possession. keep therefore and do the things which the lord god hath commanded you: you shall not go aside neither to the right hand, nor to the left. but you shall walk in the way that the lord your god hath commanded, that you may live, and it may be well with you, and your days may be long in the land of your possession.

these are the precepts, and ceremonies, and judgments, which the lord your god commanded that i should teach you, and that you should do them in the land into which you pass over to possess it: that thou mayst fear the lord thy god, and keep all his commandments and precepts, which i command thee, and thy sons, and thy grandsons, all the days of thy life, that thy days may be prolonged. hear, o israel, and observe to do the things which the lord hath commanded thee, that it may be well with thee, and thou mayst be greatly multiplied, as the lord the god of thy fathers hath promised thee a land flowing with milk and honey. hear, o israel, the lord our god is one lord. thou shalt love the lord thy god with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole strength. and these words which i command thee this day, shall be in thy heart: and thou shalt tell them to thy children, and thou shalt meditate upon them sitting in thy house, and walking on thy journey, sleeping and rising. and thou shalt bind them as a sign on thy hand, and they shall be and shall move between thy eyes. and thou shalt write them in the entry, and on the doors of thy house. and when the lord thy god shall have brought thee into the land, for which he swore to thy fathers abraham, isaac, and jacob: and shall have given thee great and goodly cities, which thou didst not build, houses full of riches, which thou didst not set up, cisterns which thou didst not dig, vineyards and oliveyards, which thou didst not plant, and thou shalt have eaten and be full: take heed diligently lest thou forget the lord, who brought thee out of the land of egypt, out of the house of bondage. thou shalt fear the lord thy god, and shalt serve him only, and thou shalt swear by his name. you shall not go after the strange gods of all the nations, that are round about

you: because the lord thy god is a jealous god in the midst of thee: lest at any time the wrath of the lord thy god be kindled against thee, and take thee away from the face of the earth. thou shalt not tempt the lord thy god, as thou temptedst him in the place of temptation. keep the precepts of the lord thy god, and the testimonies and ceremonies which he hath commanded thee. and do that which is pleasing and good in the sight of the lord, that it may be well with thee: and going in thou mayst possess the goodly land, concerning which the lord swore to thy fathers, that he would destroy all thy enemies before thee, as he hath spoken. and when thy son shall ask thee to morrow, saying: what mean these testimonies, and ceremonies and judgments, which the lord our god hath commanded us? thou shalt say to him: we were bondmen of pharao in egypt, and the lord brought us out of egypt with a strong hand. and he wrought signs and wonders great and very grievous in egypt against pharao, and all his house, in our sight, and he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in and give us the land, concerning which he swore to our fathers. and the lord commanded that we should do all these ordinances, and should fear the lord our god, that it might be well with us all the days of our life, as it is at this day. and he will be merciful to us, if we keep and do all his precepts before the lord our god, as he hath commanded us.

when the lord thy god shall have brought thee into the land, which thou art going in to possess, and shall have destroyed many nations before thee, the hethite, and the gergezite, and the amorrite, and the chanaanite, and the pherezite, and the hevite, and the jebusite, seven nations much more numerous than thou art, and stronger than thou: and the lord thy god shall have delivered them to thee, thou shalt utterly destroy them. thou shalt make no league with them, nor shew mercy to them: neither shalt thou make marriages with them. thou shalt not give thy daughter to his son, nor take his daughter for thy son: for she will turn away thy son from following me, that he may rather serve strange gods, and the wrath of the lord will be kindled, and will quickly destroy thee. but thus rather shall you deal with them: destroy their altars, and break their statues, and cut down their groves, and burn their graven things. because thou art a holy people to the lord thy god. the lord thy god hath chosen thee, to be his peculiar people of all peoples that are upon the earth. not because you surpass all nations in number, is the lord joined unto you, and hath chosen you, for you are the fewest of any people: but because the lord hath loved you, and hath kept his oath, which he swore to your fathers: and hath brought you out with a strong hand, and redeemed you from the house of bondage, out of the hand of pharao the king of egypt. and thou shalt know that the lord thy god, he is a strong and faithful god, keeping his covenant and mercy to them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments, unto a thousand generations: and repaying forthwith them that hate him, so as to destroy them, without further delay immediately rendering to them what they deserve. eep therefore the precepts and ceremonies and judgments, which i command thee this day to do. if after thou hast heard these judgments, thou keep and do them, the lord thy god will also keep his covenant to thee, and the mercy which he swore to thy fathers: and he will love thee and multiply thee, and will bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land, thy corn, and thy vintage, thy oil, and thy herds, and the flocks of thy sheep upon the land, for which he swore to thy fathers that he would give it thee. blessed shalt thou be among all people. no one shall be barren among you of either sex, neither of men nor cattle. the lord will take away from thee all sickness: and the grievous infirmities of egypt, which thou knowest, he will not bring upon thee, but upon thy enemies. thou shalt consume all the people, which the lord thy god will deliver to thee. thy eye shall not spare them, neither shalt thou serve their gods, lest they be thy ruin. if thou say in thy heart: these nations are more than i, how shall i be able to destroy them? fear not, but remember what the lord thy god did to pharao and to all the egyptians, the exceeding great plagues, which thy eyes saw, and the signs and wonders, and the strong hand, and the stretched out arm, with which the lord thy god brought thee out: so will he do to all the people, whom thou fearest. moreover the lord thy god will send also hornets among them, until he destroy and consume all that have escaped thee, and could hide themselves. thou shalt not fear them, because the lord thy god is in the midst of thee, a god mighty and terrible: he will consume these nations in thy sight by little and little and by degrees. thou wilt not be able to destroy them altogether: lest perhaps the beasts of the earth should increase upon thee. but the lord thy god shall deliver them in thy sight: and shall slay them until they be utterly destroyed. and he shall deliver their kings into thy hands, and thou shalt destroy their names from under heaven: no man shall be able to resist thee, until thou destroy them. their graven things thou shalt burn with fire: thou shalt not covet the silver and gold of which they are made, neither shalt thou take to thee any thing thereof, lest thou offend, because it is an abomination to the lord thy god. neither shalt thou bring any thing of the idol into thy house, lest thou become an anathema, like it. thou shalt detest it as dung, and shalt utterly abhor it as uncleanness and filth, because it is an anathema.

all the commandments, that i command thee this day, take great care to observe: that you may live, and be multiplied, and going in may possess the land, for which the lord swore to your fathers. and thou shalt remember all the way through which the lord thy god hath brought thee for forty years through the desert, to afflict thee and to prove thee, and that the things that were in thy heart might be made known, whether thou wouldst keep his commandments or no. he afflicted thee with want, and gave thee manna for thy food, which neither thou nor thy fathers knew: to shew that m not in bread alone doth man live, but in every word that proceedeth from the mouth of god. thy raiment, with which thou wast covered, hath not decayed for age, and thy foot is not worn, lo this is the fortieth year, that thou mayst consider in thy heart, that as a man traineth up his son, so the lord thy god hath trained thee up. that thou shouldst keep the commandments of the lord thy god, and walk in his ways, and fear him. for the lord thy god will bring thee into a good land, of brooks and of waters, and of fountains: in the plains of which and the hills deep rivers break out: a land of wheat, and barley, and vineyards, wherein fig trees and pomegranates, and oliveyards grow: a land of oil and honey. where without any want thou shalt eat thy bread, and enjoy abundance of all things: where the stones are iron, and out of its hills are dug mines of brass: that when thou hast eaten, and art full, thou mayst bless the lord thy god for the excellent land which he hath given thee. take heed, and beware lest at any time thou forget the lord thy god, and neglect his commandments and judgments and ceremonies, which i command thee this day: lest after thou hast eaten and art filled, hast built goodly houses, and dwelt in them, and shalt have herds of oxen and flocks of sheep, and plenty of gold and of silver, and of all things, thy heart be lifted up, and thou remember not the lord thy god, who brought thee out of the land of egypt, out of the house of bondage: and was thy leader in the great and terrible wilderness, wherein there was the serpent burning with his breath, and the scorpion and the dipsas, and no waters at all: who brought forth streams out of the hardest rock, and fed thee in the wilderness with manna which thy fathers knew not. and after he had afflicted and proved thee, at the last he had mercy on thee, lest thou shouldst say in thy heart: my own might, and the strength of my own hand have achieved all these things for me. but remember the lord thy god, that he hath given thee strength, that he might fulfil his covenant, concerning which he swore to thy fathers, as this present day sheweth. but if thou forget the lord thy god, and follow strange gods, and serve and adore them: behold now i foretell thee that thou shalt utterly perish. as the nations, which the lord destroyed at thy entrance, so shall you also perish, if you be disobedient to the voice of the lord your god.

hear, o israel: thou shalt go over the jordan this day; to possess nations very great, and stronger than thyself, cities great, and walled up to the sky, a people great and tall, the sons of the enacims, whom thou hast seen, and heard of, against whom no man is able to stand. thou shalt know therefore this day that the lord thy god himself will pass over before thee, a devouring and consuming fire, to destroy and extirpate and bring them to nothing before thy face quickly, as he hath spoken to thee. say not in thy heart, when the lord thy god shall have destroyed them in thy sight: for my justice hath the lord brought me in to possess this land, whereas these nations are destroyed for their wickedness. for it is not for thy justices, and the uprightness of thy heart that thou shalt go in to possess their lands: but because they have done wickedly, they are destroyed at thy coming in: and that the lord might accomplish his word, which he promised by oath to thy fathers abraham, isaac, and jacob. know therefore that the lord thy god giveth thee not this excellent land in possession for thy justices, for thou art a very stiffnecked people. remember, and forget not how then provokedst the lord thy god to wrath in the wilderness. from the day that thou camest out of egypt unto this place, thou hast always strove against the lord. for in horeb also thou didst provoke him, and he was angry, and would have destroyed thee, when i went up into the mount to receive the tables of stone, the tables of the covenant which the lord made with you: and i continued in the mount forty days and nights, neither eating bread, nor drinking water. and the lord gave me two tables of stone written with the finger of god, and containing all the words that he spoke to you in the mount from the midst of the are, when the people were assembled together. and when forty days were passed, and as many nights, the lord gave me the two tables of stone, the tables of the covenant, and said to me: arise, and go down from hence quickly: for thy people, which thou hast brought out of egypt, have quickly forsaken the way that thou hast shewn them, and have made to themselves a molten idol. and again the lord said to me: i see that this people is stiffnecked: let me alone that i may destroy them, and abolish their name from under heaven, and set thee over a nation, that is greater and stronger than this. and when i came down from the burning mount, and held the two tables of the covenant with both hands, and saw that you had sinned against the lord your god, and had made to yourselves a molten calf, and had quickly forsaken his way, which he had shewn you: i cast the tables out of my hands, and broke them in your sight. and i fell down before the lord as before, forty days and nights neither eating bread, nor drinking water, for all your sins, which you had committed against the lord, and had provoked him to wrath: for i feared his indignation and anger, wherewith being moved against you, he would have destroyed you. and the lord heard me this time also. and he was exceeding angry against aaron also, and would have destroyed him, and i prayed in like manner for him. and your sin that you had committed, that is, the calf, i took, and burned it with fire, and breaking it into pieces, until it was as small as dust, i threw it into the torrent, which cometh down from the mountain. at the burning also, and at the place of temptation, and at the graves of lust you provoked the lord: and when he sent you from cadesbarne, saying: go up, and possess the land that i have given you, and you slighted the commandment of the lord your god, and did not believe him, neither would you hearken to his voice: but were always rebellious from the day that i began to know you. and i lay prostrate before the lord forty days and nights, in which i humbly besought him, that he would not destroy you as he had threatened:

and praying, i said: O lord god, destroy not thy people, and thy inheritance, which thou hast redeemed in thy greatness, whom thou hast brought out of egypt with a strong hand. remember thy servants abraham, isaac, and jacob: look not on the stubbornness of this people, nor on their wickedness and sin: lest perhaps the inhabitants of the land, out of which thou hast brought us, say: the lord could not bring them into the land that he promised them, and he hated them: therefore he brought them out, that he might kill them in the wilderness, who are thy people and thy inheritance, whom thou hast brought out by thy great strength, and in thy stretched out arm.

at that time the lord said to me: hew thee two tables of stone like the former, and come up to me into the mount: and thou shalt make an ark of mood, and i will write on the tables the words that were in them, which thou brokest before, and thou shalt put them in the ark. and i made an ark of setim wood and when i had hewn two tables of stone like the former, i went up into the mount, having them in my hands. and he wrote in the tables, according as he had written before, the ten words, which the lord spoke to you in the mount from the midst of the fire, when the people were assembled: and he gave them to me. and returning from the mount, i came down, and put the tables into the ark, that i had made, and they are there till this present, as the lord commanded me. and the children of israel removed their camp from beroth of the children of jacan into mosera, where aaron died and was buried, and eleazar his son succeeded him in the priestly office. from thence they came to gadgad, from which place they departed, and camped in jete-batha, in a land of waters and torrents. at that time he separated the tribe of levi, to carry the ark of the covenant of the lord, and to stand before him in the ministry, and to bless in his name until this present day. wherefore levi hath no part nor possession with his brethren: because the lord himself is his possession, as the lord thy god promised him. and i stood in the mount, as before, forty days and nights: and the lord heard me this time also, and would not destroy thee. and he said to me: go, and walk before the people, that they may enter, and possess the land, which i swore to their fathers that i would give them. and now, israel, what doth the lord thy god require of thee, but that thou fear the lord thy god, and walk in his ways, and love him, and serve the lord thy god, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul: and keep the commandments of the lord, and his ceremonies, which i command thee this day, that it may be well with thee? behold heaven is the lord's thy god, and the heaven of heaven, the earth and all things that are therein. and yet the lord hath been closely joined to thy fathers, and loved them and chose their seed after them, that is to say, you, out of all nations, as this day it is proved. circumsise therefore the foreskin of your heart, and stiffen your neck no more. because the lord your god he is the god of gods, and the lord of lords, a great god and mighty and terrible, a

who accepteth no person nor taketh bribes. he doth judgment to the fatherless and the widow, loveth the stranger, and giveth him food and raiment. and do you therefore love strangers, because you also were strangers in the land of egypt. thou shalt fear the lord thy god, and serve him only: to him thou shalt adhere, and shalt swear by his name. he is thy praise, and thy god, that hath done for thee these great and terrible things, which thy eyes have seen. in seventy souls thy fathers went down into egypt: and behold now the lord thy god hath multiplied thee as the stars of heaven.

therefore love the lord thy god and observe his precepts and ceremonies, his judgments and commandments at all times. know this day the things that your children know not, who saw not the chastisements of the lord your god. his great doings and strong hand, and stretched out arm, the signs and works which he did in the midst of egypt to king pharao, and to all his land, and to all the host of the egyptians, and to their horses and chariots: how the waters of the red sea covered them, when they pursued you, and how the lord destroyed them until this present day: and what he hath done to you in the wilderness, till you came to this place: and to dathan and abiron the sons of eliab, who was the son of ruben: whom the earth, opening her mouth swallowed up with their households and tents, and all their substance, which they had in the midst of israel. your eyes have seen all the greet works of the lord, that he hath done, that you may keep all his commandments, which i command you this day, and may go in, and possess the land, to which you are entering, and may live in it a long time: which the lord promised by oath to your fathers, and to their seed, a land which floweth with milk and honey. for the land, which thou goest to possess, is not like the land of egypt, from whence thou camest out, where, when the seed is sown, waters are brought in to water it after the manner of gardens. but it is a land of hills and plains, expecting rain from heaven. and the lord thy god doth always visit it, and his eyes are on it from the beginning of the year unto the end thereof. if then you obey my commandments, which i command you this day, that you love the lord your god, and serve him with all your heart, and with all your soul: he will give to your land the early rain and the latter rain, that you may gather in your corn, and your wine, and your oil, and your hay out of the fields to feed your cattle, and that you may eat and be filled. beware lest perhaps your heart be deceived, and you depart from the lord, and serve strange gods, and adore them: and the lord being angry shut up heaven, that the rain come not down, nor the earth yield her fruit, and you perish quickly from the excellent land, which the lord will give you. lay up these my words in your hearts and minds, and hang them for a sign on your hands, and place them between your eyes. teach your children that they meditate on them, when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest on the way, end when thou liest down and risest up. thou shalt write them upon the posts and the doors of thy house: that thy days may be multiplied, and the days of thy children in the land which the lord swore to thy fathers, that he would give them as long as the heaven hangeth over the earth. for if you keep the commandments which i command you, and do them, to love the lord your god, and walk in all his ways, cleaving unto him, the lord will destroy all these nations before your face, and you shall possess them, which are greater and stronger than you. every place, that your foot shall tread upon, shall be yours. from the desert, and from libanus, from the great river euphrates unto the western sea shall be your borders. none shall stand against you: the lord your god shall lay the dread and fear of you upon all the land that you shall tread upon, as he hath spoken to you. behold i set forth in your sight this day a blessing and a curse: a blessing, if you obey the commandments of the lord your god, which i command you this day: a curse, if you obey not the commandments of the lord your god, but revolt from the way which now i shew you, and walk after strange gods which you know not. and when the lord thy god shall have brought thee into the land, whither thou goest to dwell, thou shalt put the blessing upon mount garizim, the curse upon mount hebal: which are beyond the jordan, behind the way that goeth to the setting of the sun, in the land of the chanaanite who dwelleth in the plain country over against galgala, which is near the valley that reacheth and entereth far. for you shall pass over the jordan, to possess the land, which the lord your god will give you, that you may have it and possess it. see therefore that you fulfil the ceremonies and judgments, which i shall set this day before you.

these are the precepts and judgments, that you must do in the land, which the lord the god of thy fathers will give thee, to possess it all the days that thou shalt walk upon the earth. destroy all the places in which the nations, that you shall possess, worshipped their gods upon high mountains, and hills, and under every shady tree: overthrow their altars, and break down their statues, burn their groves with fire, and break their idols in pieces: destroy their names out of those places. you shall not do so to the lord your god: but you shall come to the place, which the lord your god shall choose out of all your tribes, to put his name there, and to dwell in it: and you shall offer in that place your holocausts and victims, the tithes and firstfruits of your hands and your vows and gifts, the firstborn of your herds and your sheep. and you shall eat there in the sight of the lord your god: and you shall rejoice in all things, whereunto you shall put your hand, you and your houses wherein the lord your god hath blessed you. you shall not do there the things we do here this day, every man that which seemeth good to himself. for until this present time you are not come to refit, and to the possession, which the lord your god will give you. you shall pass over the jordan, and shall dwell in the land which the lord your god will give you, that you may have rest from all enemies round about: and may dwell without any fear, in the place, which the lord your god shall choose, that his name may be therein. thither shall you bring all the things that i command you, holocausts, and victims, and tithes, and the firstfruits of your hands: and whatsoever is the choicest in the gifts which you shall vow to the lord. there shall you feast before the lord your god, you and your sons and your daughters, your menservants and maid-servants, and the levite that dwelleth in your cities. for he hath no other part and possession among you. beware lest thou offer thy holocausts in every place that thou shalt see: but in the place which the lord shall choose in one of thy tribes shalt thou offer sacrifices. and shalt do all that i command thee. but if thou desirest to eat, and the eating of flesh delight thee, kill, and eat according to the blessing of the lord thy god, which he hath given thee, in thy cities: whether it be unclean, that is to say, having blemish or defect: or clean, that is to say, sound and without blemish, such as may be offered, as the roe, and the hart, shalt thou eat it: only the blood thou shalt not eat, but thou shalt pour it out upon the earth as water. thou mayst not eat in thy towns the tithes of thy corn, and thy wine, and thy oil, the firstborn of thy herds and thy cattle, nor any thing that thou vowest, and that thou wilt offer voluntarily, and the firstfruits of thy hands: but thou shalt eat them before the lord thy god in the place which the lord thy god shall choose, thou and thy son and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and maidservant, and the levite that dwelleth in thy cities: and thou shalt rejoice and be refreshed before the lord thy god in all things, whereunto thou shalt put thy hand. take heed thou forsake not the levite all the time that thou livest in the land. when the lord thy god shall have enlarged thy borders, as he hath spoken to thee, and thou wilt eat the flesh that thy soul desireth: and if the place which the lord thy god shall choose, that his name should be there, be far off, thou shalt kill of thy herds and of thy docks, as i have commanded thee, and shalt eat in thy towns, as it pleaseth thee. even as the roe and the hart is eaten, so shalt thou eat them: both the clean and unclean shall eat of them alike. only beware of this, that thou eat not the blood, for the blood is for the soul: and therefore thou must not eat the soul with the flesh: but thou shalt pour it upon the earth as water, that it may be well with thee and thy children after thee, when thou shalt do that which is pleasing in the sight of the lord. but the things which thou hast sanctified and vowed to the lord, thou shalt take, and shalt come to the place which the lord shall choose: and shalt offer thy oblations the flesh and the blood upon the altar of the lord thy god: the blood of thy victims thou shalt pour on the altar: and the flesh thou thyself shalt eat. observe and hear all the things that i command thee, that it may be well with thee and thy children after thee for ever, when thou shalt do what is good and pleasing in the sight of the lord thy god. when the lord thy god shall have destroyed before thy face the nations, which then shalt go in to possess, and when thou shalt possess them, and dwell in their land: beware lest thou imitate them, after they are destroyed at thy coming in, and lest thou seek after their ceremonies, saying: as these nations have worshipped their gods, so will i also worship. thou shalt not do in like manner to the lord thy god. for they have done to their gods all the abominations which the lord abhorreth, offering their sons and daughters, and burning them with fire. what i command thee, that only do thou to the lord: neither add any thing, nor diminish.

if there rise in the midst of thee a prophet or one that saith he hath dreamed a dream, and he foretell a sign and a wonder, and that come to pass which he spoke, and he say to thee: let us go and follow strange gods, which thou knowest not, and let us serve them: thou shalt not hear the words of that prophet or dreamer: for the lord your god trieth you, that it may appear whether you love him with all your heart, and with all your soul, or not. follow the lord your god, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and hear his voice: him you shall serve, and to him you shall cleave. and that prophet or forger of dreams shall be slain: because he spoke to draw you away from the lord your god, who brought you out of the land of egypt, and redeemed you from the house of bondage: to make thee go out of the way, which the lord thy god commanded thee: and thou shalt take away the evil out of the midst of thee. if thy brother the son of thy mother, or thy son, or daughter, or thy wife that is in thy bosom, or thy friend, whom thou lovest as thy own soul, would persuade thee secretly, saying: let us go, and serve strange gods, which thou knowest not, nor thy fathers, of all the nations round about, that are near or afar off, from one end of the earth to the other, consent not to him, hear him not, neither let thy eye spare him to pity and conceal him, but thou shalt presently put him to death. it let thy hand be first upon him, and afterwards the hands of all the people. with stones shall he be stoned to death: because he would have withdrawn thee from the lord thy god, who brought thee out of the land of egypt, from the house of bondage: that all israel hearing may fear, and may do no more any thing like this. if in one of thy cities, which the lord thy god shall give thee to dwell in, thou hear some say: children of belial are gone out of the midst of thee, and have withdrawn the inhabitants of their city, and have said: let us go, and serve strange gods which you know not: inquire carefully and diligently, the truth of the thing by looking well into it, and if thou find that which is said to be certain, and that this abomination hath been really committed, thou shalt forthwith kill the inhabitants of that city with the edge of the sword, and shalt destroy it and all things that are in it, even the cattle. and all the household goods that are there, thou shalt gather together in the midst of the streets thereof, and shalt burn them with the city itself, so as to consume all for the lord thy god, and that it be a heap for ever: it shall be built no more. and there shall nothing of that anathema stick to thy hand: that the lord may turn from the wrath of his fury, and may have mercy on thee, and multiply thee as he swore to thy fathers, when thou shalt hear the voice of the lord thy god, keeping all his precepts, which i command thee this day, that thou mayst do what is pleasing in the sight of the lord thy god.

be ye children of the lord your god: you shall not cut yourselves, no, make any baldness for the dead; because thou art a holy people to the lord thy god: and he chose thee to be his peculiar people of all nations that are upon the earth. eat not the things that are unclean. these are the beasts that you shall eat, the ox, and the sheep, and the goat, the hart and the roe, the buffle, the chamois, the pygarg, the wild goat, the camelopardalus. every beast that divideth the hoof in two parts, and cheweth the cud, you shall eat. but of them that chew the cud, but divide not the hoof, you shall not eat, such as the camel, the hare, and the chergiril: because they chew the cud, but divide not the hoof, they shall be unclean to you. the swine also, because it divideth the hoof, but cheweth not the cud, shall be unclean, their flesh you shall not eat, and their carcasses you shall not touch. these shall you eat of all that abide in the waters: all that have fins and scales, you shall eat. such as are without fins and scales, you shall not eat, because they are unclean. all birds that are clean you shall eat. the unclean eat not: to wit, the eagle, and the grype, and the osprey, the ringtail, and the vulture, and the kite according to their kind: and all of the raven's kind: and the ostrich, and the owl, and the larus, and the hawk according to its kind: the heron, and the swan, and the stork, and the cormorant, the porphirion, and the night crow, the bittern, and the charadriion, every one in their kind: the hoop also and the bat. every thing that creepeth, and hath little wings, shall be unclean, and shall not be eaten. all that is clean, you shall eat. but whatsoever is dead of itself, eat not thereof. give it to the stranger, that is within thy gates, to eat, or sell it to him: because thou art the holy people of the lord thy god. thou shalt not boil a kid in the milk of his dam. every year thou shalt set aside the tithes of all thy fruits that the earth bringeth forth, and thou shalt eat before the lord thy god in the place which he shall choose, that his name may be called upon therein, the tithe of thy corn, and thy wine, and thy oil, and the firstborn of thy herds and thy sheep: that thou mayst learn to fear the lord thy god at all times. but when the way and the place which the lord thy god shall choose, are far off, and he hath blessed thee, and thou canst not carry all these things thither, thou shalt sell them all, and turn them into money, and shalt carry it in thy hand, and shalt go to the place which the lord shall choose: and thou shalt buy with the same money whatsoever pleaseth thee, either of the herds or of sheep, wine also and strong drink, and all that thy soul desireth: and thou shalt eat before the lord thy god, and shalt feast, thou and thy house: and the levite that is within thy gates, beware thou forsake him not, because he hath no other part in thy possession. the third year thou shalt separate another tithe of all things that grow to thee at that time, and shalt lay it up within thy gates. and the levite that hath no other part nor possession with thee, and the stranger and the fatherless and the widow, that are within thy gates, shall come and shall eat and be filled: that the lord thy god may bless thee in all the works of thy hands that thou shalt do.

in the seventh year thou shalt make a remission, which shall be celebrated in this order. he to whom any thing is owing from his friend or neighbour or brother, cannot demand it again, because it is the year of remission of the lord, of the foreigner or stranger thou mayst exact it: of thy countryman and neighbour thou shalt not have power to demand it again. and there shall be no poor nor beggar among you: that the lord thy god may bless thee in the land which he will give thee in possession. yet so if thou hear the voice of the lord thy god, and keep all things that he hath ordained, and which i command thee this day, he will bless thee, as he hath promised. thou shalt lend to many nations, and thou shalt borrow of no man. thou shalt have dominion over very many nations, and no one shall have dominion over thee. if one of thy brethren that dwelleth within the gates of thy city in the land which the lord thy god will give thee, come to poverty: thou shalt not harden thy heart, nor close thy hand, but shalt open it to the poor man, thou shalt lend him, that which thou perceivest he hath need of. beware lest perhaps a wicked thought steal in upon thee, and thou say in thy heart: the seventh year of remission draweth nigh; and thou turn away thy eyes from thy poor brother, denying to lend him that which he asketh: lest he cry against thee to the lord, and it become a sin unto thee. but thou shalt give to him: neither shalt thou do any thing craftily in relieving his necessities: that the lord thy god may bless thee at all times, and in all things to which thou shalt put thy hand. there will not be wanting poor in the land of thy habitation: therefore i command thee to open thy hand to thy needy and poor brother, that liveth in the land. when thy brother a hebrew man, or hebrew woman is sold to thee, and hath served thee six years, in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free: and when thou sendest him out free, thou shalt not let him go away empty: but shalt give him for his way out of thy flocks, and out of thy barnfloor, and thy winepress, wherewith the lord thy god shall bless thee. remember that thou also wast a bondservant in the land of egypt, and the lord thy god made thee free, and therefore i now command thee this. but if he say: i will not depart: because he loveth thee, and thy house, and findeth that he is well with thee: thou shalt take an awl, and bore through his ear in the door of thy house, and he shall serve thee for ever: thou shalt do in like manner to thy womanservant also. turn not away thy eyes from them when thou makest them free: because he hath served thee six years according to the wages of a hireling: that the lord thy god may bless thee in all the works that thou dost. of the firstlings, that come of thy herds and thy sheep, thou shalt sanctify to the lord thy god whatsoever is of the male sex. thou shalt not work with the firstling of a bullock, and thou shalt not shear the firstlings of thy sheep. in the sight of the lord thy god shalt thou eat them every year, in the place that the lord shall choose, thou and thy house. but if it have a blemish, or be lame, or blind, or in any part disfigured or feeble, it shall not be sacrificed to the lord thy god. but thou shalt eat it within the gates of thy city: the clean and the unclean shall eat them alike, as the roe and as the hart. only thou shalt take heed not to eat their blood, but pour it out on the earth as water.

observe the month of new corn, which is the first of the spring, that thou mayst celebrate the phase to the lord thy god: because in this month the lord thy god brought thee out of egypt by night. and thou shalt sacrifice the phase to the lord thy god, of sheep, and of oxen, in the place which the lord thy god shall choose, that his name may dwell there. thou shalt not eat with it leavened bread: seven days shalt thou eat without leaven, the bread of affliction, because thou camest out of egypt in fear: that thou mayst remember the day of thy coming out of egypt, all the days of thy life. no leaven shall be seen in all thy coasts for seven days, neither shall any of the flesh of that which was sacrificed the first day in the evening remain until morning. thou mayst not immolate the phase in any one of thy cities, which the lord thy god will give thee: but in the place which the lord thy god shall choose, that his name may dwell there: thou shalt immolate the phase in the evening, at the going down of the sun, at which time thou camest out of egypt. and thou shalt dress, and eat it in the place which the lord thy god shall choose, and in the morning rising up thou shalt go into thy dwellings. six days shalt thou eat unleavened bread: and on the seventh day, because it is the assembly of the lord thy god, thou shalt do no work. thou shalt number unto thee seven weeks from that day, wherein thou didst put the sickle to the corn. and thou shalt celebrate the festival of weeks to the lord thy god, a voluntary oblation of thy hand, which thou shalt offer according to the blessing of the lord thy god. and thou shalt feast before the lord thy god, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the levite that is within thy gates, and the stranger and the fatherless, and the widow, who abide with you: in the place which the lord thy god shall choose, that his name may dwell there: and thou shalt remember that thou wast a servant in egypt: and thou shalt keep and do the things that are commanded. thou shalt celebrate the solemnity also of tabernacles seven days, when thou hast gathered in thy fruit of the barnfloor and of the winepress. and thou shalt make merry in thy festival time, thou, thy son, and thy daughter, thy manservant, and thy maidservant, the levite also and the stranger, and the fatherless and the widow that are within thy gates. seven days shalt thou celebrate feasts to the lord thy god in the place which the lord shall choose: and the lord thy god will bless thee in all thy fruits, and in every work of thy hands, and thou shalt be in joy. three times in a year shall all thy males appear before the lord thy god in the place which he hath, according to the feast of unleavened bread, in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles. no one shall appear with his hands empty before the lord: but every one shall offer according to what he hath, according to the blessing of the lord his god, which he shall give him. thou shalt appoint judges and magistrates in all thy gates, which the lord thy god shall give thee, in all thy tribes: that they may judge the people with just judgment, and not go aside to either part. thou shalt not accept person nor gifts: for gifts blind the eyes of the wise, and change the words of the just. thou shalt follow justly after that which is just: that thou mayst live and possess the land, which the lord thy god shall give thee. thou shalt plant no grove, nor any tree near the altar of the lord thy god: neither shalt thou make nor set up to thyself a statue: which things the lord thy god hateth.

thou shalt not sacrifice to the lord thy god a sheep, or an ox, wherein there is blemish, or any fault: for that is an abomination to the lord thy god. when there shall be found among you within any of thy gates, which the lord thy god shall give thee, man or woman that do evil in the sight of the lord thy god, and transgress his covenant, so as to go and serve strange gods, and adore them, the sun and the moon. and all the host of heaven, which i have not commanded: and this is told thee, and hearing it thou hast inquired diligently, and found it to be true, and that the abomination is committed in israel: thou shalt bring forth the man or the woman, who have committed that most wicked thing, to the gates of thy city, and they shall be stoned. by the mouth of two or three witnesses shall he die that is to be slain. let no man be put to death, when only one beareth witness against him. the hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to kill him, and afterwards the hands of the rest of the people: that thou mayst take away the evil out of the midst of thee. if thou perceive that there be among you a hard and doubtful matter in judgment between blood and blood, cause and cause, leprosy and leprosy: and thou see that the words of the judges within thy gates do vary: arise, and go up to the place, which the lord thy god shall choose. and thou shalt come to the priests of the levitical race, and to the judge, that shall be at that time: and thou shalt ask of them, and they shall shew thee the truth of the judgment. and thou shalt do whatsoever they shall say, that preside in the place, which the lord shall choose, and what they shall teach thee, according to his law; and thou shalt follow their sentence: neither shalt thou decline to the right hand nor to the left hand. but he that will be proud, and refuse to obey the commandment of the priest, who ministereth at that time to the lord thy god, and the decree of the judge, that man shall die, and thou shalt take away the evil from israel: and all the people hearing it shall fear, that no one afterwards swell with pride. when thou art come into the land, which the lord thy god will give thee, and possess it, and shalt say: i will set a king over me, as all nations have that are round about: thou shalt set him whom the lord thy god shall choose out of the number of thy brethren. thou mayst not make a man of another nation king, that is not thy brother. and when he is made king, he shall not multiply horses to himself, nor lead back the people into egypt, being lifted up with the number of his horsemen, especially since the lord hath commanded you to return no more the same way. he shall not have many wives, that may allure his mind, nor immense sums of silver and gold. but after he is raised to the throne of his kingdom, he shall copy out to himself the deuteronomy of this law in a volume, taking the copy of the priests of the levitical tribe, and he shall have it with him, and shall read it all the days of his life, that he may learn to fear the lord his god, and keep his words and ceremonies, that are commanded in the law; and that his heart be not lifted up with pride over his brethren, nor decline to the right or to the left, that he and his sons may reign a long time over israel.

the priests and levites, and all that are of the same tribe, shall have no part nor inheritance with the rest of israel, because they shall eat the sacrifices of the lord, and his oblations, and they shall receive nothing else. of the possession of their brethren: for the lord himself is their inheritance, as he hath said to them. this shall be the priest's due from the people, and from them that offer victims: whether they sacrifice an ox, or a sheep, they shall give to the priest the shoulder and the breast: the firstfruits also of corn, of wine, and of oil, and a part of the wool from the shearing of their sheep. for the lord thy god hath chosen him of all thy tribes, to stand and to minister to the name of the lord, him and his sons for ever. if a levite go out of any one of the cities throughout all israel, in which he dwelleth, and have a longing mind to come to the place which the lord shall choose, he shall minister in the name of the lord his god, as all his brethren the levites do, that shall stand at that time before the lord. he shall receive the same portion of food that the rest do: besides that which is due to him in his own city, by succession from his fathers. when thou art come into the land which the lord thy god shall give thee, beware lest thou have a mind to imitate the abominations of those nations. neither let there be found among you any one that shall expiate his son or daughter, making them to pass through the fire: or that consulteth soothsayers, or observeth dreams and omens, neither let there be any wizard, nor charmer, nor any one that consulteth pythonic spirits, or fortune tellers, or that seeketh the truth from the dead. for the lord abhorreth all these things, and for these abominations he will destroy them at thy coming. thou shalt be perfect, and without spot before the lord thy god. these nations, whose land thou shalt possess, hearken to soothsayers and diviners: but thou art otherwise instructed by the lord thy god. the lord thy god will raise up to thee a prophet of thy nation and of thy brethren like unto me: him thou shalt hear: as thou desiredst of the lord thy god in horeb, when the assembly was gathered together, and saidst: let me not hear any more the voice of the lord my god, neither let me see any more this exceeding great fire, lest i die. and the lord said to me: they have spoken all things well. m i will raise them up a prophet out of the midst of their brethren like to thee: and i will put my words in his mouth, and he shall speak to them all that i shall command him. and he that will not hear his words, which he shall speak in my name, i will be the revenger. but the prophet, who being corrupted with pride, shall speak in my name things that i did not command him to say, or in the name of strange gods, shall be slain. and if in silent thought thou answer: how shall i know the word that the lord hath not spoken? thou shalt have this sign: whatsoever that same prophet foretellet in the name of the lord, and it cometh not to pass: that thing the lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath forged it by the pride of his mind: and therefore thou shalt not fear him.

when the lord thy god hath destroyed the nations, whose land he will deliver to thee, and thou shalt possess it, and shalt dwell in the cities and houses thereof: thou shalt separate to thee three cities in the midst of the land, which the lord will give thee in possession, paving diligently the way: and thou shalt divide the whole province of thy land equally into three parts: that he who is forced to flee for manslaughter, may have near at hand whither to escape. this shall be the law of the slayer that fleeth, whose life is to be saved: he that killeth his neighbour ignorantly, and who is proved to have had no hatred against him yesterday and the day before: but to have gone with him to the wood to hew wood, and in cutting down the tree the axe slipped out of his hand, and the iron slipping from the handle struck his friend, and killed him: he shall flee to one of the cities aforesaid, and live: lest perhaps the next kinsman of him whose blood was shed, pushed on by his grief should pursue, and apprehend him. if the way be too long, and take away the life of him who is not guilty of death, because he is proved to have had no hatred before against him that was slain. therefore i command thee, that thou separate three cities at equal distance one from another. and when the lord thy god shall have enlarged thy borders, as he swore to thy fathers, and shall give thee all the land that he promised them, (yet so, if thou keep his commandments, and do the things which i command thee this day, that thou love the lord thy god, and walk in his ways at all times) thou shalt add to thee other three cities, and shalt double the number of the three cities aforesaid: that innocent blood may not be shed in the midst of the land which the lord thy god will give thee to possess, lest thou be guilty of blood. but if any man hating his neighbour, lie in wait for his life, and rise and strike him, and he die, and he flee to one of the cities aforesaid, the ancients of his city shall send, and take him out of the place of refuge, and shall deliver him into the hand of the kinsman of him whose blood was shed, and he shall die. thou shalt not pity him, and thou shalt take away the guilt of innocent blood out of israel, that it may be well with thee. thou shalt not take nor remove thy neighbour's landmark, which thy predecessors have set in thy possession. which the lord thy god will give thee in the land that thou shalt receive to possess. one witness shall not rise up against any man, whatsoever the sin or wickedness be: but in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall stand. if a lying witness stand against a man, accusing him of transgression, both of them, between whom the controversy is, shall stand before the lord in the sight of the priests and the judges that shall be in those days. and when after most diligent inquisition, they shall find that the false witness hath told a lie against his brother: they shall render to him as he meant to do to his brother, and thou shalt take away the evil out of the midst of thee: that others hearing may fear, and may not dare to do such things. thou shalt not pity him, but shalt require life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

if thou go out to war against thy enemies, and see horsemen and chariots, and the numbers of the enemy's army greater than thine, thou shalt not fear them: because the lord thy god is with thee, who brought thee out of the land of egypt. and when the battle is now at hand, the priest shall stand before the army, and shall speak to the people in this manner: hear, o israel, you join battle this day against your enemies, let not your heart be dismayed, be not afraid, do not give back, fear ye them not: because the lord your god is in the midst of you, and will fight for you against your enemies, to deliver you from danger. and the captains shall proclaim through every band in the hearing of the army: what man is there, that hath built a new house, and hath not dedicated it? let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man dedicate it. what man is there, that hath planted a vineyard, and hath not as yet made it to be common, whereof all men may eat? let him go, and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man execute his office. what man is there, that hath espoused a wife, and not taken her? let him go, and return to his house, lest he die in the war, and another man take her. after these things are declared they shall add the rest, and shall speak to the people: what man is there that is fearful, and faint hearted? let him go, and return to his house, lest he make the hearts of his brethren to fear, as he himself is possessed with fear. and when the captains of the army shall hold their peace, and have made an end of speaking, every man shall prepare their bands to fight. if at any time thou come to fight against a city, thou shalt first offer it peace. if they receive it, and open the gates to thee, all the people that are therein, shall be saved, and shall serve thee paying tribute. but if they will not make peace, and shall begin war against thee, thou shalt besiege it. and when the lord thy god shall deliver it into thy bands, thou shalt slay all that are therein of the male sex, with the edge of the sword, excepting women and children, cattle and other things, that are in the city. and thou shalt divide all the prey to the army, and thou shalt eat the spoils of thy enemies, which the lord thy god shall give thee. so shalt thou do to all cities that are at a great distance from thee, and are not of these cities which thou shalt receive in possession. but of those cities that shall be given thee, thou shalt suffer none at all to live: but shalt kill them with the edge of the sword, to wit, the hethite, and the amorrite, and the chanaanite, the pherezite, and the hevite, and the jebusite, as the lord thy god hath commanded thee: lest they teach you to do all the abominations which they have done to their gods: and you should sin against the lord your god. when thou hast besieged a city a long time, and hath compassed it with bulwarks to take it, thou shalt not cut down the trees that may be eaten of, neither shalt thou spoil the country round about with axes: for it is a tree, and not a man, neither can it increase the number of them that fight against thee. but if there be any trees that are not fruitful, but wild, and fit for other uses, cut them down, and make engines, until thou take the city, which fighteth against thee.

then there shall be found in the land, which the lord thy god will give thee, the corpse of a man slain, and it is not known who is guilty of the murder, thy ancients and judges shall go out, and shall measure from the place where the body lieth the distance of every city round about: and the ancients of that city which they shall perceive to be nearer than the rest, shall take a heifer of the herd, that hath not drawn in the yoke, nor ploughed the ground, and they shall bring her into a rough and stony valley, that never was ploughed, nor sown: and there they shall strike off the head of the heifer: and the priests the sons of levi shall come, whom the lord thy god hath chosen to minister to him, and to bless in his name, and that by their word every matter should be decided, and whatsoever is clean or unclean should be judged. and the ancients of that city shall come to the person slain, and shall wash their hands over the heifer that was killed in the valley, and shall say: our hands did not shed this blood, nor did our eyes see it. be merciful to thy people israel, whom thou hast redeemed, o lord, and lay not innocent blood to their charge, in the midst of thy people israel. and the guilt of blood shall be taken from them: and thou shalt be free from the innocent's blood, that was shed, when thou shalt have done what the lord hath commanded thee. if thou go out to fight against thy enemies, and the lord thy god deliver them into thy hand, and thou lead them away captives, and seest in the number of the captives a beautiful woman, and lovest her, and wilt have her to wife, thou shalt bring her into thy house: and she shall shave her hair, and pare her nails, and shall put off the raiment, wherein she was taken: and shall remain in thy house, and mourn for her father and mother one month: and after that thou shalt go in unto her, and shalt sleep with her, and she shall be thy wife. but if afterwards she please thee not, thou shalt let her go free, but thou mayst not sell her for money nor oppress her by might because thou hast humbled her. if a man have two wives, one beloved, and the other hated, and they have had children by him, and the son of the hated be the firstborn, and he meaneth to divide his substance among his sons: he may not make the son of the beloved the firstborn, and prefer him before the son of the hated. but he shall acknowledge the son of the hated for the firstborn, and shall give him a double portion of all he hath: for this is the first of his children, and to him are due the first birthrights. if a man have a stubborn and unruly son, who will not hear the commandments of his father or mother, and being corrected, slighteth obedience: they shall take him and bring him to the ancients of his city, and to the gate of judgment, and shall say to them: this our son is rebellious and stubborn, he slighteth hearing our admonitions, he giveth himself to revelling, and to debauchery and banquetings: the people of the city shall stone him: and he shall die, that you may take away the evil out of the midst of you, and all israel hearing it may be afraid. when a man hath committed a crime for which he is to be punished with death, and being condemned to die is hanged on a gibbet: his body shall not remain upon the tree, but shall be buried the same day: for he is accursed of god that hangeth on a tree: and thou shalt not defile thy land, which the lord thy god shall give thee in possession.

thou shalt not pass by if thou seest thy brother's ox, or his sheep go astray: but thou shalt bring them back to thy brother. and if thy brother be not nigh, or thou know him not: thou shalt bring them to thy house, and they shall be with thee until thy brother seek them, and receive them. thou shalt do in like manner with his ass, and with his raiment, and with every thing that is thy brother's, which is lost: if thou find it, neglect it not as pertaining to another. if thou see thy brother's ass or his ox to be fallen down in the way, thou shalt not slight it, but shalt lift it up with him. a woman shall not be clothed with man's apparel, neither shall a man use woman's apparel: for he that doeth these things is abominable before god. if thou find as thou walkest by the way, a bird's nest in a tree, or on the ground, and the dam sitting upon the young or upon the eggs: thou shalt not take her with her young: but shalt let her go, keeping the young which thou hast caught: that it may be well with thee, and thou mayst live a long time. when thou buildest a new house, thou shalt make a battlement to the roof round about: lest blood be shed in thy house, and thou be guilty, if any one slip, and fall down headlong. thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest both the seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of the vineyard, be sanctified together. thou shalt not plough with an ox and an ass together. thou shalt not wear a garment that is woven of woollen and linen together. thou shalt make strings in the hem at the four corners of thy cloak, wherewith thou shalt be covered. if a man marry a wife, and afterwards hate her, and seek occasions to put her away, laying to her charge a very ill name, and say: i took this woman to wife, and going in to her, i found her not a virgin: her father and mother shall take her, and shall bring with them the tokens of her virginity to the ancients of the city that are in the gate: and the father shall say: i gave my daughter unto this man to wife: and because he hateth her, he layeth to her charge a very ill name, so as to say: i found not thy daughter a virgin: and behold these are the tokens of my daughter's virginity. and they shall spread the cloth before the ancients of the city: and the ancients of that city shall take that man, and beat him, condemning him besides in a hundred sides of silver, which he shall give to the damsel's father, because he hath defamed by a very ill name a virgin of israel: and he shall have her to wife, and may not put her away all the days of his life. but if what he charged her with be true, and virginity be not found in the damsel: they shall cast her out of the doors of her father's house, and the men of the city shall stone her to death, and she shall die: because she hath done a wicked thing in israel, to play the whore in her father's house: and thou shalt take away the evil out of the midst of thee. if a man lie with another man's wife, they shall both die, that is to say, the adulterer and the adulteress: and thou shalt take away the evil out of israel. if a man have espoused a damsel that is a virgin, and some one find her in the city, and lie with her, thou shalt bring them both out to the gate of that city, and they shall be stoned: the damsel, because she cried not out, being in the city: the man, because he hath humbled his neighbour's wife. and thou shalt take away the evil from the midst of thee. but if a man find a damsel that is betrothed, in the field, and taking hold of her, lie with her, he alone shall die: the damsel shall suffer nothing, neither is she guilty of death: for as a robber riseth against his brother, and taketh away his life, so also did the damsel suffer: she was alone in the field: she cried, and there was no man to help her. if a man find a damsel that is a virgin, who is not espoused, and taking her, lie with her, and the matter come to judgment: he that lay with her shall give to the father of the maid fifty sides of silver, and shall have her to wife, because he hath humbled her: he may not put her away all the days of his life. no man shall take his father's wife, nor remove his covering.

an eunuch, whose testicles are broken or cut away, or yard cut off, shall not enter into the church of the lord. a mamzer, that is to say, one born of a prostitute, shall not enter into the church of the lord, until the tenth generation. the ammonite and the moabite, even after the tenth generation shall not enter into the church of the lord for ever: because they would not meet you with bread and water in the way, when you came out of egypt: hand because they hired against thee balaam, the son of beer, from mesopotamia in syria, to curse thee. and the lord thy god would not hear balaam, and he turned his cursing into thy blessing, because he loved thee. thou shalt not make peace with them, neither shalt thou seek their prosperity all the days of thy life for ever. thou shalt not abhor the edomite, because he is thy brother: nor the egyptian, because thou wast a stranger in his land. they that are born of them, in the third generation shall enter into the church of the lord. when thou goest out to war against thy enemies, thou shalt keep thyself from every evil thing. if there be among you any man, that is defiled in a dream by night, he shall go forth out of the camp. and shall not return, before he be washed with water in the evening: and after sunset he shall return into the camp. thou shalt have a place without the camp, to which thou mayst go for the necessities of nature, carrying a paddle at thy girdle. and when thou sittest down, thou shalt dig round about, and with the earth that is dug up thou shalt cover that which thou art eased of: (for the lord thy god walketh in the midst of thy camp, to deliver thee, and to give up thy enemies to thee;) and let thy camp be holy, and let no uncleanness appear therein, lest he go away from thee. thou shalt not deliver to his master the servant that is fled to thee. he shall dwell with thee ill the place that shall please him, and shall rest, in one of thy cities: give him no trouble. there shall be no whore among the daughters of israel, nor whoremonger among the sons of israel. thou shalt not offer the hire of a strumpet, nor the price of a dog, in the house of the lord thy god, whatsoever it be that thou hast vowed: because both these are an abomination to the lord thy god. thou shalt not lend to thy brother money to usury, nor corn, nor any other thing: but to the stranger. to thy brother thou shalt lend that which he wanteth, without usury: that the lord thy god may bless thee in all thy works in the land, which thou shalt go in to possess. when thou hast made a vow to the lord thy god, thou shalt not delay to pay it: because the lord thy god will require it. and if thou delay, it shall be imputed to thee for a sin. if thou wilt not promise, thou shalt be without sin. but that which is once gone out of thy lips, thou shalt observe, and shalt do as thou hast promised to the lord thy god, and hast spoken with thy own will and with thy own mouth. going into thy neighbour's vineyard, thou mayst eat as many grapes as thou pleasest: but must carry none out with thee: if thou go into thy friend's corn, thou mayst break the ears, and rub them in thy hand: but not reap them with a sickle.

if a man take a wife, and have her, and she find not favour in his eyes, for some uncleanness: he shall write a bill of divorce, and shall give it in her hand, and send her out of his house. and when she is departed, and marrieth another husband, and he also hateth her, and hath given her a bill of divorce, and hath sent her out of his house or is dead: the former husband cannot take her again to wife: because she is defiled, and is become abominable before the lord: lest thou cause thy land to sin, which the lord

thy god shall give thee to possess. when a man hath lately taken a wife, he shall not go out to war, neither shall any public business be enjoined him, but he shall be free at home without fault, that for one year he may rejoice with his wife. thou shalt not take the nether, nor the upper millstone to pledge: for he hath pledged his life to thee. if ally man be found soliciting his brother of the children of israel, and selling him shall take a price, he shall be put to death, and thou shalt take away the evil from the midst of thee. observe diligently that thou incur not the stroke of the leprosy, but thou shalt do whatsoever the priests of the levitical race shall teach thee, according to what i have commanded them, and fulfil thou it carefully. remember what the lord your god did to mary, in the way when you came out of egypt. when thou shalt demand of thy neighbour any thing that he oweth thee, thou shalt not go into his house to take away a pledge: but then shalt stand without, and he shall bring out to thee what he hath. but if he be poor, the pledge shall not lodge with thee that night, but thou shalt restore it to him presently before the going down of the sun: that he may sleep in his own raiment and bless thee, and thou mayst have justice before the lord thy god. thou shalt not refuse the hire of the needy, and the poor, whether he be thy brother, or a stranger that dwelleth with thee in the land, and is within thy gates: but thou shalt pay him the price of his labour the same day, before the going down of the sun, because he is poor, and with it maintaineth his life: lest he cry against thee to the lord, and it be reputed to thee for a sin. the fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor the children for the fathers, but every one shall die for his own sin. thou shalt not pervert the judgment of the stranger nor of the fatherless, neither shalt thou take away the widow's raiment for a pledge. remember that thou wast a slave in egypt, and the lord thy god delivered thee from thence. therefore i command thee to do this thing. when thou hast reaped the corn in thy field, and hast forgot and left a sheaf, thou shalt not return to take it away: but thou shalt suffer the stranger, and the fatherless and the widow to tabs it away: that the lord thy god may bless thee in all the works of thy hands. if thou have gathered the fruit of thy olive trees, thou shalt not return to gather whatsoever remaineth on the trees: but shalt leave it for the stranger, for the fatherless, and the widow. if thou make the vintage of thy vineyard, thou shalt not gather the clusters that remain, but they shall be for the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow. remember that thou also wast a bondman in egypt, and therefore i command thee to do this thing.

if there be a controversy between men, and they call upon the judges: they shall give the prize of justice to him whom they perceive to be just: and him whom they find to be wicked, they shall condemn of wickedness. and if they see that the offender be worthy of stripes: they shall lay him down, and shall cause him to be beaten before them. according to the measure of the sin shall the measure also of the stripes be: yet so, that they exceed not the number of forty: lest thy brother depart shamefully torn before thy eyes. thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out thy corn on the floor. when brethren dwell together, and one of them dieth without children, the wife of the deceased shall not marry to another: but his brother shall take her, and raise up seed for his brother: and the first son he shall have of her he shall call by his name, that his name be not abolished out of israel. but if he will not take his brother's wife, who by law belongeth to him, the woman shall go to the gate of the city, and call upon the ancients, and say: my husband's brother refuseth to raise up his brother's name in israel: and will not take me to wife. and they shall cause him to be sent for forthwith, and shall ask him. if he answer: i will not take her to wife: the woman shall come to him before the ancients, and shall take off his shoe from his foot, and spit in his face, and say: so shall it be done to the man that will not build up his brother's house: and his name shall be called in israel, the house of the unshod. if two men have words together, and one begin to fight against the other, and the other's wife willing to deliver her husband out of the hand of the stronger, shall put forth her hand, and take him by the secrets, thou shalt cut off her hand, neither shalt thou be moved with any pity in her regard. thou shalt not have divers weights in thy bag, a greater and a less: neither shall there be in thy house a greater bushel and a less. thou shalt have a just and a true weight, and thy bushel shall be equal and true: that thou mayest live a long time upon the land which the lord thy god shall give thee. for the lord thy god abhorreth him that doth these things, and he hateth all injustice. remember what amalec did to thee in the way when thou camest out of egypt: how he met thee: and slew the hindmost of the army, who sat down, being weary, when thou wast spent with hunger and labour, and he feared not god. therefore when the lord thy god shall give thee rest, and shall have subdued all the nations round about in the land which he hath promised thee: thou shalt blot out his name from under heaven. see thou forget it not.

and when thou art come into the land which the lord thy god will give thee to possess, and hast conquered it, and dwellest in it: thou shalt take the first of all thy fruits, and put them in a basket, and shalt go to the place which the lord thy god shall choose, that his name may be invoked there: and thou shalt go to the priest that shall be in those days, and say to him: i profess this day before the lord thy god, that i am come into the land, for which he swore to our fathers, that he would give it us. and the priest taking the basket at thy hand, shall set it before the altar of the lord thy god: and thou shalt speak thus in the sight of the lord thy god: the syrian pursued my father, who went down into egypt, and sojourned there in a very small number, and grew into a nation great and strong and of an infinite multitude. and the egyptians afflicted us, and persecuted us, laying on us most grievous burdens: and we cried to the lord god of our fathers: who heard us, and looked down upon our affliction, and labour, and distress: and brought us out of egypt with a strong hand, and a stretched out arm, with great terror, with signs and wonders: and brought us into this place, and gave us this land flowing with milk and honey. and therefore now i offer the firstfruits of the land which the lord hath given me. and thou shalt leave them in the sight of the lord thy god, adoring the lord thy god. and thou shalt feast in all the good things which the lord thy god hath given thee, and thy house, thou and the levite, and the stranger that is with thee. when thou hast made an end of tithing all thy fruits, in the third year of tithes thou shalt give it to the levite, and to the stranger, and to the fatherless, and to the widow, that they may eat within thy gates, and be filled: and thou shalt speak thus in the sight of the lord thy god: i have taken that which was sanctified out of my house, and i have given it to the levite, and to the stranger, and to the fatherless, and to the widow, as thou hast commanded me: i have not transgressed thy commandments nor forgotten thy precepts. i have not eaten of them is my mourning, nor separated them for any uncleanness, nor spent any thing of them in funerals. i have obeyed the voice of the lord my god, and have done all things as thou hast commanded me. look from thy sanctuary, and thy high habitation of heaven, and bless thy people israel, and the land which thou hast given us, as thou didst swear to our fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey. this day the lord thy god hath commanded thee to do these commandments and judgments: and to keep and fulfil them with all thy heart, and with all thy soul. thou hast chosen the lord this day to be thy god, and to walk in his ways and keep his ceremonies, and precepts, and judgments, and obey his command. and the lord hath chosen thee this day, to be his peculiar people, as he hath spoken to thee, and to keep all his commandments: and to make thee higher than all nations which he hath created, to his own praise, and name, and glory: that thou mayest be a holy people of the lord thy god, as he hath spoken.

and moyses with the ancients of israel commanded the people, saying: keep every commandment that i command you this day. and when you are passed over the jordan into the land which the lord thy god will give thee, thou shalt set up great stones, and shalt plaster them over with plaster, that thou mayst write on them all the words of this law, when thou art passed over the jordan: that thou mayst enter into the land which the lord thy god will give thee, a land flowing with milk and honey, as he swore to thy fathers. therefore when you are passed over the jordan, set up the stones which i command you this day, in mount hebal, and thou shalt plaster them with plaster: and thou shalt build there an altar to the lord thy god, of stones which iron hath not touched, and of stones not fashioned nor polished: and thou shalt offer upon it holocausts to the lord thy god: and shalt immolate peace victims, and eat there, and feast before the lord

thy god. and thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law plainly and clearly, and moyses and the priests of the race of levi said to all israel: attend, and hear, o israel: this day thou art made the people of the lord thy god. thou shalt hear his voice, and do the commandments and justices which i command thee. and moyses commanded the people in that day, saying: these shall stand upon mount garizim to bless the people, when you are passed the jordan: simeon, levi, juda, issachar, joseph, and benjamin. and over against them shall stand on mount hebal to curse: ruben, gad, and aser, and zabulon, dan, and nephtali. and the levites shall pronounce, and say to all the men of israel with a loud voice: cursed be the man that maketh a graven and molten thing, the abomination of the lord, the work of the hands of artificers, and shall put it in a secret place: and all the people shall answer and say: amen. cursed be he that honoureth not his father and mother: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that removeth his neighbour's landmarks: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of his way: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that perverteth the judgment of the stranger, of the fatherless and the widow: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that lieth with his father's wife, and uncovereth his bed: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that lieth with any beast: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that lieth with his sister, the daughter of his father, or of his mother: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that lieth with his mother in law: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that secretly killeth his neighbour: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that taketh gifts, to slay an innocent person: and all the people shall say: amen. cursed be he that abideth not in the words of this law, and fulfilleth them not in work: and all the people shall say: amen.

now if thou wilt hear the voice of the lord thy god, to do and keep all his commandments, which i command thee this day, the lord thy god will make thee higher than all the nations that are on the earth. and all these blessings shall come upon thee and overtake thee: yet so if thou hear his precepts, blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed in the field. blessed shall be the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle, the droves of thy herds, and the folds of thy sheep. blessed shall be thy barns and blessed thy stores. blessed shalt thou be coming in and going out. the lord shall cause thy enemies, that rise up against thee, to fall down before thy face: one way shall they come out against thee, and seven ways shall they flee before thee. the lord will send forth a blessing upon thy storehouses, and upon all the works of thy hands: and will bless thee in the land that thou shalt receive. the lord will raise thee up to be a holy people to himself, as he swore to thee: if thou keep the commandments of the lord thy god, and walk in his ways. and all the people of the earth shall see that the name of the lord is invo-

cated upon thee, and they shall fear thee. the lord will make thee abound with all goods, with the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy cattle, with the fruit of thy land, which the lord swore to thy fathers that he would give thee. the lord will open his excellent treasure, the heaven, that it may give rain in due season: and he will bless all the works of thy hands. and thou shalt lend to many nations, and shalt not borrow of any one. and the lord shall make thee the head and not the tail: and thou shalt be always above, and not beneath: yet so if thou wilt hear the commandments of the lord thy god which i command thee this day, and keep and do them, and turn not away from them neither to the right hand, nor to the left, nor follow strange gods, nor worship them. but if thou wilt not hear the voice of the lord thy god, to keep and to do all his commandments and ceremonies, which i command thee this day, all these curses shall come upon thee, and overtake thee. cursed shalt thou be in the city, cursed in the field. cursed shall be thy barn, and cursed thy stores. cursed shall be the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy ground, the herds of thy oxen, and the flocks of thy sheep. cursed shalt thou be coming in, and cursed going out. the lord shall send upon thee famine and hunger, and a rebuke upon all the works which thou shalt do: until he consume and destroy thee quickly, for thy most wicked inventions, by which thou hast forsaken me. may the lord set the pestilence upon thee, until he consume thee out of the land, which thou shalt go in to possess. may the lord afflict thee with miserable want, with the fever and with cold, with burning and with heat, and with corrupted air and with blasting, and pursue thee till thou perish. be the heaven, that is over thee, of brass: and the ground thou treadest on, of iron. the lord give thee dust for rain upon thy land, and let ashes come down from heaven upon thee, till thou be consumed. the lord make thee to fall down before thy enemies, one way mayst thou go out against them, and flee seven ways, and be scattered throughout all the kingdoms of the earth. and be thy carcass meat for all the fowls of the air, and the beasts of the earth, and be there none to drive them away. the lord strike thee with the ulcer of egypt, and the part of thy body, by which the dung is cast out, with the scab and with the itch: so that thou canst not be healed. the lord strike thee with madness and blindness and fury of mind. and mayst thou grope at midday as the blind is wont to grope in the dark, and not make straight thy ways. and mayst thou at all times suffer wrong, and be oppressed with violence, and mayst thou have no one to deliver thee. mayst thou take a wife, and another sleep with her. mayst thou build a house, and not dwell therein. mayest thou plant a vineyard and not gather the vintage thereof. may thy ox be slain before thee, and thou not eat thereof. may thy ass be taken away in thy sight, and not restored to thee. may thy sheep be given to thy enemies, and may there be none to help thee. may thy sons and thy daughters be given to another people, thy eyes looking on, and languishing at the sight of them all the day, and may there be no strength in thy hand. may a people which thou knowest not, eat the fruits of thy land, and all

thy labours: and mayst thou always suffer oppression, and be crushed at all times. and be astonished at the terror of those things which thy eyes shall see: may the lord strike thee with a very sore ulcer in the knees and in the legs, and be thou incurable from the sole of the foot to the top of the head. the lord shall bring thee, and thy king, whom thou shalt have appointed over thee, into a nation which thou and thy fathers know not: and there thou shalt serve strange gods, wood and stone. and thou shalt be lost, as a proverb and a byword to all people, among whom the lord shall bring thee in. thou shalt cast much seed into the ground, and gather little: because the locusts shall consume all. thou shalt plant a vineyard, and dig it, and shalt not drink the wine, nor gather any thing thereof: because it shall be wasted with worms. thou shalt have olive trees in all thy borders, and shalt not be anointed with the oil: for the olives shall fall off and perish. thou shalt beget sons and daughters, and shalt not enjoy them: because they shall be led into captivity. the blast shall consume all the trees and the fruits of thy ground. the stranger that liveth with thee in the land, shall rise up over thee, and shall be higher: and thou shalt go down, and be lower. he shall lend to thee, and thou shalt not lend to him. he shall be as the head, and thou shalt be the tail. and all these curses shall come upon thee, and shall pursue and overtake thee, till thou perish: because thou heardest not the voice of the lord thy god, and didst not keep his commandments and ceremonies which he commanded thee. and they shall be as signs and wonders on thee, and on thy seed for ever. because thou didst not serve the lord thy god with joy and gladness of heart, for the abundance of all things: thou shalt serve thy enemy, whom the lord will send upon thee, in hunger, and thirst, and nakedness, and in want of all things: and he shall put an iron yoke upon thy neck, till he consume thee. the lord will bring upon thee a nation from afar, and from the uttermost ends of the earth, like an eagle that flyeth swiftly, whose tongue thou canst not understand, a most insolent nation, that will shew no regard to the ancients, nor have pity on the infant, and will devour the fruit of thy cattle, and the fruits of thy land: until thou be destroyed, and will leave thee no wheat, nor wine, nor oil, nor herds of oxen, nor flocks of sheep: until he destroy thee. and consume thee in all thy cities, end thy strong and high walls be brought down, wherein thou trustedst in all thy land. thou shalt be besieged within thy gates in all thy land which the lord thy god will give thee: and thou shalt eat the fruit of thy womb, and the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters, which the lord thy god shall give thee, in the distress and extremity wherewith thy enemy shall oppress thee. the man that is nice among you, and very delicate, shall envy his own brother, and his wife, that lieth in his bosom, so that he will not give them of the flesh of his children, which he shall eat: because he hath nothing else in the siege and the want, wherewith thy enemies shall distress thee within all thy gates. the tender and delicate woman, that could not go upon the ground, nor set down her foot for over much niceness and tenderness, will envy her husband who lieth in her bosom, the flesh of her son, and of her daughter, and the filth of the afterbirths, that come forth from between her thighs, and the children that are born the same hour. for they shall eat them secretly for the want of all things, in the siege and distress, wherewith thy enemy shall oppress thee within thy gates. if thou wilt not keep, and fulfil all the words of this law, that are written in this volume, and fear his glorious and terrible name: that is, the lord thy god: the lord shall increase thy plagues, and the plagues of thy seed, plagues great and lasting, infirmities grievous and perpetual. and he shall bring back on thee all the afflictions of egypt, which thou wast afraid of, and they shall stick fast to thee. moreover the lord will bring upon thee all the diseases, and plagues, that are not written in the volume of this law till he consume thee: and you shall remain few in number, who before were as the stars of heaven for multitude, because thou heardest not the voice of the lord thy god. and as the lord rejoiced upon you before doing good to you, and multiplying you: so he shall rejoice destroying and bringing you to nought, so that you shall be taken away from the land which thou shalt go in to possess. the lord shall scatter thee among all people, from the farthest parts of the earth to the ends thereof: and there thou shalt serve strange gods, which both thou art ignorant of and thy fathers, wood and stone. neither shalt thou be quiet, even in those nations, nor shall there be any rest for the sole of thy foot. for the lord will give thee a fearful heart, and languishing eyes, and a soul consumed with pensiveness: and thy life shall be as it were hanging before thee. thou shalt fear night and day, neither shalt thou trust thy life. in the morning thou shalt say: who will grant me evening? and at evening: who will grant me morning? for the fearfulness of thy heart, wherewith thou shalt be terrified, and for those things which thou shalt see with thy eyes. the lord shall bring thee again with ships into egypt, by the way whereof he said to thee that thou shouldst see it no more. there shalt thou be set to sale to thy enemies for bondmen and bondwomen, and no man shall buy you.

these are the words of the covenant which the lord commanded moyses to make with the children of israel in the land of moab: beside that covenant which he made with them in horeb. and moyses called all israel, and said to them: you have seen all the things that the lord did before you in the land of egypt to pharao, and to all his servants, and to his whole land. the great temptations, which thy eyes have seen, those mighty signs and wonders, and the lord hath not given you a heart to understand, and eyes to see, and ears that may hear, unto this present day. he hath brought you forty years through the desert: your garments are not worn out, neither are the shoes of your feet consumed with age. you have not eaten bread, nor have you drunk wine or strong drink: that you might know that i am the lord your god. and you came to this place: sand sehon king of hesebon, and og king of basan, came out against us to fight. and we

slew them. and took their land, and delivered it for a possession to h ruben and gad, and the half tribe of manasses. keep therefore the words of this covenant, and fulfil them: that you may understand all that you do. you all stand this day before the lord your god, your princes, and tribes, and ancients, and doctors, all the people of israel, our children and your wives, and the stranger that abideth with thee in the camp, besides the hewers of wood, and them that bring water: that thou mayst pass in the covenant of the lord thy god, and in the oath which this day the lord thy god maketh with thee. that he may raise thee up a people to himself, and he may be thy god as he hath spoken to thee, and as he swore to thy fathers abraham, isaac, and jacob. neither with you only do i make this covenant, and confirm these oaths, but with all that are present and that are absent. for you know how we dwelt in the land of egypt, and how we have passed through the midst of nations, and passing through them, you have seen their abominations and filth, that is to say, their idols, wood and stone, silver and gold, which they worshipped. lest perhaps there should be among you a man or a woman, a family or a tribe, whose heart is turned away this day from the lord our god, to go and serve the gods of those nations: and there should be among you a root bringing forth gall and bitterness. and when he shall hear the words of this oath, he should bless himself in his heart saying: i shall have peace, and will walk on in the naughtiness of my heart: and the drunken may consume the thirsty, and the lord should not forgive him: but his wrath and jealousy against that man should be exceedingly enkindled at that time, and all the curses that are written in this volume should light upon him: and the lord should blot out his name from under heaven, and utterly destroy him out of all the tribes of israel, according to the curses that are contained in the book of this law and covenant: and the following generation shall say, and the children that shall be born hereafter, and the strangers that shall come from afar, seeing the plagues of that land and the evils wherewith the lord hath afflicted it, burning it with brimstone, and the heat of salt, so that it cannot be sown any more, nor any green thing grow therein, after the example of the destruction of sodom and gomorrhah, adama and seboim, which the lord destroyed in his wrath and indignation: and all the nations shall say: why hath the lord done thus to this land? what meaneth this exceeding great heat of his wrath? and they shall answer: because they forsook the covenant of the lord, which he made with their fathers, when he brought them out of the land of egypt: and they have served strange gods, and adored them, whom they knew not, and for whom they had not been assigned: therefore the wrath of the lord was kindled against this land, to bring upon it all the curses that are written in this volume: and he hath cast them out of their land, in anger and in wrath, and in very great indignation, and hath thrown them into a strange land, as it is seen this day. secret things to the lord our god: things that are manifest, to us and to our children for ever, that we may do all the words of this law.

now when all these things shall be come upon thee, the blessing or the curse, which i have set forth before thee, and thou shalt be touched with repentance of thy heart among all the nations, into which the lord thy god shall have scattered thee, and shalt return to him, and obey his commandments, as i command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul: the lord thy god will bring back again thy captivity, and will have mercy on thee, and gather thee again out of all the nations, into which he scattered thee before. if thou be driven as far as the poles of heaven, the lord thy god will fetch thee back from thence, and will take thee to himself, and bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it: and blessing thee, he will make thee more numerous than were thy fathers. the lord thy god will circumcise thy heart, and the heart of thy seed: that then mayst love the lord thy god with all thy heart and with all thy soul, that thou mayst live. and he will turn all these curses upon thy enemies, and upon them that hate and persecute thee. but thou shalt return, and hear the voice of the lord thy god, and shalt do all the commandments which i command thee this day: and the lord thy god will make thee abound in all the works of thy hands, in the fruit of thy womb, and in the fruit of thy cattle, in the fruitfulness of thy land, and in the plenty of all things. for the lord will return to rejoice over thee in all good things, as he rejoiced in thy fathers: yet so if thou hear the voice of the lord thy god, and keep his precepts and ceremonies, which are written in this law: and return to the lord thy god with all thy heart, and with all thy soul. this commandment, that i command thee this day is not above thee, nor far off from thee: nor is it in heaven, that thou shouldst say: which of us can go up to heaven to bring it unto us, and we may hear and fulfil it in work? nor is it beyond the sea: that thou mayst excuse thyself, and say: which of us can cross the sea, and bring it unto us: that we may hear, and do that which is commanded? but the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth and in thy heart, that thou mayst do it. consider that i have set before thee this day life and good, and on the other hand death and evil: that thou mayst love the lord thy god, and walk in his ways, and keep his commandments and ceremonies and judgments, and thou mayst live, and he may multiply thee, and bless thee in the land, which thou shalt go in to possess. but if thy heart be turned away, so that thou wilt not hear, and being deceived with error thou adore strange gods, and serve them: i foretell thee this day that thou shalt perish, and shalt remain but a short time in the land, to which thou shalt pass over the jordan, and shalt go in to possess it. i call heaven and earth to witness this day, that i have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing. choose therefore life, that both thou and thy seed may live: and that thou mayst love the lord thy god, and obey his voice, and adhere to him (for he is thy life, and the length of thy days,) that thou mayst dwell in the land, for which the lord swore to thy fathers abraham, isaac, and jacob that he would give it them.

and moſes went, and ſpoke all theſe words to all iſrael, and he ſaid to them: i am this day a hundred and twenty years old, i can no longer go out and come in, eſpecially as the lord alſo hath ſaid to me: o thou ſhalt not paſs over this jordan. the lord thy god then will paſs over before thee: he will deſtroy all theſe nations in thy ſight, and thou ſhalt poſſeſs them: and this joſue ſhall go over before thee, as the lord hath ſpoke. and the lord ſhall do to them as he did to ſehon and og the kings of the amorrhites, and to their land, and ſhall deſtroy them. therefore when the lord ſhall have delivered theſe alſo to you, you ſhall do in like manner to them as i have commanded you, do manfully and be of good heart: fear not, nor be ye diſmayed at their ſight: for the lord thy god he himſelf is thy leader, and will not leave thee nor forſake thee. and moſes called joſue, and ſaid to him before all iſrael: take courage, and be valiant: for thou ſhalt bring this people into the land which the lord ſwore he would give to their fathers, and thou ſhalt divide it by lot. and the lord who is your leader, he himſelf will be with thee: he will not leave thee, nor forſake thee: fear not, neither be diſmayed, and moſes wrote this law, and delivered it to the prieſts the ſons of levi, who carried the ark of the covenant of the lord, and to all the ancients of iſrael. and he commanded them, ſaying: after ſeven years, in the year of remiſſion, in the feaſt of tabernacles, when all iſrael come together, to appear in the ſight of the lord thy god in the place which the lord ſhall chooſe, thou ſhalt read the words of this law before all iſrael, in their hearing, and the people being all aſſembled together, both men and women, children and ſtrangers, that are within thy gates: that hearing they may learn, and fear the lord your god, and keep, and fulfil all the words of this law: that their children alſo, who now are ignorant, may hear, and fear the lord their god, all the days that they live in the land whither you are going over the jordan to poſſeſs it. and the lord ſaid to moſes: behold the days of thy death are nigh: call joſue, and ſtand ye in the tabernacle of the testimony, that i may give him a charge. ſo moſes and joſue went and ſtood in the tabernacle of the testimony: and the lord appeared there in the pillar of a cloud, which ſtood in the entry of the tabernacle. and the lord ſaid to moſes: behold thou ſhalt ſleep with thy fathers, and this people riſing up will go a fornicating after ſtrange gods in the land, to which it goeth in to dwell: there will they forſake me, and will make void the covenant, which i have made with them, and my wrath ſhall be kindled againſt them in that day: and i will forſake them, and will hide my face from them, and they ſhall be devoured: all evils and afflictions ſhall find them, ſo that they ſhall ſay in that day: in truth it is becauſe god is not with me, that theſe evils have found me. but i will hide, and cover my face in that day, for all the evils which they have done, becauſe they have followed ſtrange gods.. now therefore write you this canticle, and teach the children of iſrael: that they may know it by heart, and ſing it by mouth, and this ſong may be unto me for a testimony among the children of israel. for i will bring them into the land, for which i ſwore to their fathers, that floweth with milk and honey. and when they have eaten, and are full and fat, they will turn away after ſtrange gods, and will ſerve them: and will deſpiſe me, and make void my covenant. and after many evils and afflictions ſhall have come upon them, this canticle ſhall answer them for a testimony, which no oblivion ſhall take away out of the mouth of their ſeed. for i know their thoughts, and what they are about to do this day, before that i bring them into the land which i have promiſed them. moſes therefore wrote the canticle and taught it to the children of iſrael. and the lord commanded joſue the ſon of nun, and ſaid: take courage, and be valiant: for thou ſhalt bring the children of iſrael into the land which i have promiſed, and i will be with thee. therefore after moſes had wrote the words of this law in a volume, and finiſhed it: he commanded the levites, who carried the ark of the covenant of the lord. ſaying: take this book, and put it in the ſide of the ark of the covenant of the lord your god: that it may be there for a testimony againſt thee. for i know thy obſtinacy, and thy moſt ſtiff neck, while i am yet living, and going in with you, you have always been rebellious againſt the lord: how much more when i ſhall be dead? gather unto me all the ancients of your tribes, and your doctors, and i will ſpeak theſe words in their hearing, and will call heaven and earth to witneſs againſt them. for i know that, after my death, you will do wickedly, and will quickly turn aſide from the way that i have commanded you: and evils ſhall come upon you in the latter times, when you ſhall do evil in the ſight of the lord, to provoke him by the works of your hands. moſes therefore ſpoke, in the hearing of the whole aſſembly of iſrael, the words of this canticle, and finiſhed it even to the end,

hear, o ye heavens, the things i ſpeak, let the earth give ear to the words of my mouth. let my doctrine gather as the rain, let my ſpeech diſtil as the dew, as a ſhower upon the herb, and as drops upon the graſs. becauſe i will invoke the name of the lord: give ye magnificence to our god. the works of god are perfect, and all his ways are judgments: god is faithful and without any iniquity, he is juſt and right. they have ſinned againſt him, and are noſe of his children in their filth: they are a wicked and perverſe generation. is this the return thou makeſt to the lord, o fooliſh and ſenſeleſs people? is not he thy father, that hath poſſeſſed thee, and made thee, and created thee? remember the days of old, think upon every generation: ask thy father, and he will declare to thee: thy elders and they will tell thee. when the moſt high divided the nations: when he ſeparated the ſons of adam, he appointed the bounds of people according to the number of the children of iſrael. but the lord's portion is his people: jacob the lot of his inheritance. he found him in a deſert land, in a place of horror, and of vaſt wilderneſs: he led him about, and taught him: and he kept him as the apple of his eye. as the eagle enticing her young to fly, and hovering over them, he spread his wings, and hath taken him and carried him on his shoulders. the lord alone was his leader: and there was no strange god with him. he set him upon high land: that he might eat the fruits of the fields, that he might suck honey out of the rock, and oil out of the hardest stone, butter of the herd, and milk of the sheep with the fat of lambs, and of the rams of the breed of basan: and goats with the marrow of wheat, and might drink the purest blood of the grape. the beloved grew fat, and kicked: he grew fat, and thick and gross, he forsook god who made him, and departed from god his saviour. they provoked him by strange gods, and stirred him up to anger, with their abominations. they sacrificed to devils and not to god: to gods whom they knew not: that were newly come up, whom their fathers worshipped not. thou hast forsaken the god that beget thee, and hast forgotten the lord that created thee. the lord saw, and was moved to wrath: because his own sons and daughters provoked him. and he said: i will hide my face from them, and will consider what their last end shall be: for it is a perverse generation, and unfaithful children. they have provoked me with that which was no god, and have angered me with their vanities: and i will provoke them with that which is no people, and will vex them with a foolish nation. a fire is kindled in my wrath, and shall burn even to the lowest hell: and shall devour the earth with her increase, and shall burn the foundations of the mountains. i will heap evils upon them, and will spend my arrows among them. they shall be consumed with famine, and birds shall devour them with a most bitter bite: i will send the teeth of beasts upon them, with the fury of creatures that trail upon the ground, and of serpents. without, the sword shall lay them waste, and terror within, both the young man and the virgin, the sucking child with the man in years. i said: where are they? i will make the memory of them to cease from among men. but for the wrath of the enemies i have deferred it: lest perhaps their enemies might be proud, and should say: our mighty hand, and not the lord, hath done all these things. they are a nation without counsel, and without wisdom. o that they would be wise and would understand, and would provide for their last end. how should one pursue after a thousand, and two chase ten thousand? was it not, because their god had sold them, and the lord had shut them up? for our god is not as their gods: our enemies themselves are judges. their vines are of the vineyard of sodom, and of the suburbs of gomorra: their grapes are grapes of gall, and their clusters most bitter. their wine is the gall of dragons, and the venom of asps, which is incurable. are not these things stored up with me, and sealed up in my treasures? revenge is mine, and i will repay them in due time, that their foot may slide: the day of destruction is at hand, and the time makes haste to come. the lord will judge his people, and will have mercy on his servants: he shall see that their hand is weakened, and that they who were shut up have also failed, and they that remained are consumed. and he shall say: where are their gods, in whom they trusted? of whose victims they ate the fat, and drank the wine of their drink offerings: let them arise and help you, and protect you in your distress. see ye that i alone am, and there is no other god besides me: i will kill and i will make to live: i will strike, and i will heal, and there is none that can deliver out of my hand. i will lift up my hand to heaven, and i will say: i live for ever. if i shall whet my sword as the lightning, and my hand take hold on judgment: i will render vengeance to my enemies, and repay them that hate me. i will make my arrows drunk with blood, and my sword shall devour flesh, of the blood of the slain and of the captivity, of the bare head of the enemies. praise his people, ye nations, for he will revenge the blood of his servants: and will render vengeance to their enemies, and he will be merciful to the land of his people. so mooses came and spoke all the words of this canticle in the ears of the people, and josue the son of nun. and he ended all these words, speaking to all israel. and he said to them: set your hearts on all the words, which i testify to you this day: which you shall command your children to observe and to do, and to fulfil all that is written in this law: for they are not commanded you in vain, but that every one should live in them, and that doing them you may continue a long time in the land whither you are going over the jordan to possess it. and the lord spoke to mooses the same day, saying: go up into this mountain abarim, (that is to say, of passages,) unto mount nebo, which is in the land of moab over against jericho: and see the land of chanaan, which i will deliver to the children of israel to possess, and die thou in the mountain. when thou art gone up into it thou shalt be gathered to thy people, as aaron thy brother died in mount her, and was gathered to his people: because you trespassed against me in the midst of the children of israel, at the waters of contradiction in cades of the desert of sin: and you did not sanctify me among the children of israel. thou shalt see the land before thee, which i will give to the children of israel, but thou shalt not enter into it.

this is the blessing, wherewith the man of god mooses blessed the children of israel, before his death. and he said: the lord came from sinai, and from seir he rose up to us: he hath appeared from mount pharan, and with him thousands of saints. in his right hand a fiery law. he hath loved the people, all the saints are in his hand: and they that approach to his feet, shall receive of his doctrine. mooses commanded us a law, the inheritance of the multitude of jacob. he shall be king with the most right, the princes of the people being assembled with the tribes of israel. let ruben live, and not die, and be he small in number. this is the blessing of juda. hear, o lord, the voice of juda, and bring him in unto his people: his hands shall fight for him, and he shall be his helper against his enemies. to levi also he said: thy perfection, and thy doctrine be to thy holy man, whom thou hast proved in the temptation, and judged at the waters of contradiction: who hath said to his father, and to his mother: i do not know you; and to his brethren: i know you not: and their own children they have not known. these have kept thy word, and observed thy covenant, thy judgments, o jacob, and thy law, o israel: they shall put incense in thy wrath and holocaust upon thy altar. bless, o lord, his strength, and receive the works of his hands. strike the backs of his enemies, and let not them that hate him rise. and to benjamin he said: the best beloved of the lord shall dwell confidently in him: as in a bride chamber shall he abide all the day long, and between his shoulders shall be rest. to joseph also he said: of the blessing of the lord be his land, of the fruits of heaven, and of the dew, and of the deep that lieth beneath. of the fruits brought forth by the sun and by the moon. of the tops of the ancient mountains, of the fruits of the everlasting hills: and of the fruits of the earth, and of the fulness thereof. the blessing of him that appeared in the bush, come upon the head of joseph, and upon the crown of the nazarite among his brethren. his beauty as of the firstling of a bullock, his horns as the horns of a rhinoceros: with them shall he push the nations even to the ends of the earth these are the multitudes of ephraim and these the thousands of manasses. and to zabulon he said: rejoice, o zabulon, in thy going out; and issachar in thy tabernacles. they shall call the people to the mountain: there shall they sacrifice the victims of justice. who shall suck as milk the abundance of the sea, and the hidden treasures of the sands. and to gad he said: blessed be gad in his breadth: he hath rested as a lion, and hath seized upon the arm and the top of the head. and he saw his pre-eminence, that in his portion the teacher was laid up: who was with the princes of the people, and did the justices of the lord, and his judgment with israel. to dan also he said: dan is a young lion, he shall flow plentifully from basan. and to nephtali he said: nephtali shall enjoy abundance, and shall be full of the blessings of the lord: he shall possess the sea and the south. to aser also he said: let aser be blessed with children, let him be acceptable to his brethren, and let him dip his foot in oil. his shoe shall be iron and brass. as the days of thy youth, so also shall thy old age be. there is no other god like the god of the rightest: he that is mounted upon the heaven is thy helper. by his magnificence the clouds run hither and thither. his dwelling is above, and underneath are the everlasting arms: he shall cast out the enemy from before thee, and shall say: be thou brought to nought. israel shall dwell in safety, and alone. the eye of jacob in a land of corn and wine, and the heavens shall be misty with dew. blessed are thou, israel: who is like to thee, o people, that art saved by the lord? the shield of thy help, and the sword of thy glory: thy enemies shall deny thee, and thou shalt tread upon their necks.

plain of jericho the city of palm trees as far as segor. and the lord said to him: this is the land, for which i swore to abraham, isaac, and jacob, saying: i will give it to thy seed. thou hast seen it with thy eyes, and shalt not pass over to it. and moyses the servant of the lord died there, in the land of moab, by the commandment of the lord: and he buried him in the valley of the land of moab over against phogor: and no man hath known of his sepulchre until this present day. moyses was a hundred and twenty years old when he died: his eye was not dim, neither were his teeth moved. and the children of israel mourned for him in the plains of moab thirty days: and the days of their mourning in which they mourned for moyses were ended. and josue the son of nun was filled with the spirit of wisdom, because moyses had laid his hands upon him. and the children of israel obeyed him, and did as the lord commanded moyses. and there arose no more a prophet in israel like unto moyses, whom the lord knew face to face, in all the signs and wonders, which he sent by him, to do in the land of egypt to pharao, and to all his servants, and to his whole land, and all the mighty hand, and great miracles, which moyses did before all israel.

then moyses went up from the plains of moab upon mount nebo, to the top of phasga over against jericho: and the lord shewed him all the land of galaad as far as dan. and all nephtali, and the land of ephraim and manasses, and all the land of juda unto the furthestmost sea, and the south part, and the breadth of the

now it came to pass after the death of moyses the servant of the lord, that the lord spoke to josue the son of nun, the minister of moyses, and said to him: moyses my servant is dead: arise, and pass over this jordan, thou and thy people with thee, into the land which i will give to the children of israel. i will deliver to you every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, as i have said to moyses. from the desert and from libanus unto the great river euphrates, all the land of the hethites unto the great sea toward the going; down of the sun, shall be your border. no man shall be able to resist you all the days of thy life: as i have been with moyses, so will i be with thee: i will not leave thee, nor forsake thee. take courage, and be strong: for thou shalt divide by lot to this people the land, for which i swore to their fathers, that i would deliver it to them. take courage therefore, and be very valiant: that thou mayst observe and do all the law, which moyses my servant hath commanded thee: turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayst understand all things which thou dost. let not the book of this law depart from thy mouth: but thou shalt meditate on it day and night, that thou mayst observe and do all things that are written in it: then shalt thou direct thy way, and understand it. behold i command thee, take courage, and be strong. fear not and be not dismayed: because the lord thy god is with thee in all things whatsoever thou shalt go to. and josue commanded the princes of the people, saying: pass through the midst of the camp, and command the people, and say: prepare you victuals: for after the third day you shall pass over the jordan and shall go in to possess the land, which the lord your god will give you. and he said to the rubenites, and the gadites, and the half tribe of manasses: remember the word, which moyses the servant of the lord commanded you, saying: the lord your god hath given you rest, and all this land. your wives, and children, and cattle shall remain in the land which moyses gave you on this side of the jordan: but pass you over armed before your brethren, all of you that are strong of hand, and fight for them, until the lord give rest to your brethren as he hath given you, and they also possess the land which the lord your god will give them: and so you shall return into the land of your possession, and you shall dwell in it, which moyses the servant of the lord gave you beyond the jordan, toward the rising of the sun. and they made answer to josue, and said: all that thou hast commanded us we will do; and whithersoever thou shalt send us, we will go. as we obeyed moyses in all things, so will we obey thee also: only be the lord thy god with thee, as he was with moyses. he that shall gainsay thy mouth, and not obey all thy words, that thou shalt command him, let him die: only take thou courage, and do manfully.

and josue the son of nun sent from setim two men, to spy secretly: and said to them: go, and view the land and the city of jericho. n they went and entered into the house of a woman that was a harlot named rahab, and lodged with her. and it was told the king of jericho, and was said: behold there are men come in hither, by night, of the children of israel, to spy the land. and the king of jericho sent to rahab, saying: bring forth the men that came to thee, and are entered into thy house: for they are spies, and are come to view all the land. and the woman taking the men, hid them, and said: i confess they came to me, but i knew not whence they were: and at the time of shutting the gate in the dark, they also went out together. i know not whither they are gone: pursue after them quickly, and you will overtake them. but she made the men go up to the top of her house, and covered them with the stalks of flax, which was there. now they that were sent, pursued after them, by the way that leadeth to the fords of the jordan: and as soon as they were gone out, the gate was presently shut. the men that were hidden were not yet asleep, when behold the woman went up to them, and said: i know that the lord hath given this land to you: for the dread of you is fallen upon us, and all the inhabitants of the land have lost all strength. we have heard that the lord dried up the water of the red sea at your going in, when you came out of egypt: and what things you did to the two kings of the amorrites, that were beyond the jordan: sehon and og whom you slew. and hearing these things we were affrighted, and our heart fainted away, neither did there remain any spirit in us at your coming in: for the lord your god he is god in heaven above, and in the earth beneath. now therefore swear ye to me by the lord, that as i have shewn mercy to you, so you also will shew mercy to my father's house: and give me a true token, that you will save my father and mother, my brethren and sisters, and all things that are theirs, and deliver our souls from death. they answered her: be our lives for you unto death, only if thou betray us not. and when the lord shall have delivered us the land, we will shew thee mercy and truth. then she let them down with a cord out of a window: for her house joined close to the wall. and she said to them: get ye up to the mountains, lest perhaps they meet you as they return: and there lie ye hid three days, till they come back, and so you shall go on your way. and they said to her: we shall be blameless of this oath, which thou hast made us swear: if when we come into the land, this scarlet cord be a sign, and thou tie it in the window, by which thou hast let us down: and gather together thy father and mother, and brethren and all thy kindred into thy house. whosoever shall go out of the door of thy house, his blood shall be upon his own head, and we shall be quit. but the blood of all that shall be with thee in the house, shall light upon our head, if any man touch them. but if thou wilt betray us, and utter this word abroad, we shall be quit of this oath which thou hast made us swear. and she answered: as you have spoken, so be it done. and sending them on their way, she hung the scarlet cord in the window. but they went and came to the mountains, and stayed there three days till they that pursued them were returned. for having sought them through all the way, they found them not. and when they were gone back into the city, the spies returned, and came down from the mountain: and passing over the jordan, they came to josue the son of nun, and told him all that befel them. and said: the lord hath delivered all this land into our hands, and all the inhabitants thereof are overthrown with fear.

and josue rose before daylight, and removed the camp: and they departed from setim, and came to the jordan, he, and all the children of israel, and they abode there for three days. after which, the heralds went through the midst of the camp, and began to proclaim: when you shall see the ark of the covenant of the lord your god, and the priests of the race of levi carrying it, rise you up also, and follow them as they go before: and let there be between you and the ark the space of two thousand cubits: that you may see it afar off, and know which way you must go: for you have not gone this way before: and take care you come not near the ark. and josue said to the people: be ye sanctified: for to morrow the lord will do wonders among you. and he said to the priests: take up the ark of the covenant, and go before the people. and they obeyed his commands, and took it up and walked before them. and the lord said to josue: this day will i begin to exalt thee before israel: that they may know that as i was with moyses, so i am with thee also. and do thou command the priests that carry the ark of the covenant, and say to them: when you shall have entered into part of the water of the jordan, stand in it. and josue said to the children of israel: come hither and hear the word of the lord your god. and again he said: by this you shall know that the lord the living god is in the midst of you, and that he shall destroy before your sight the chanaanite and the hethite, the hevite and the pherezite, the gergesite also and the jebusite, and the amorrhite. behold the ark of the covenant of the lord of all the earth shall go before you into the jordan. prepare ye twelve men of the tribes of israel, one of every tribe. and when the priests, that carry the ark of the lord the god of the whole earth, shall set the soles of their feet in the waters of the jordan, the waters that are beneath shall run down and go off: and those that come from above, shall stand together upon a heap. so the people went out of their tents, to pass over the jordan: and the priests that carried the ark of the covenant. went on before them. and as soon as they came into the jordan, and their feet were dipped in part of the water, (now the jordan, it being harvest time, had filled the banks of its channel,) the waters that came down from above stood in one place, and swelling up like a mountain, were seen afar off from the city that is called adom, to the place of sarthan: but those that were beneath, ran down into the sea of the wilderness (which now is called the dead sea) until they wholly failed. and the people marched over against jericho: and the priests that carried the ark of the covenant of the lord, stood girded upon the dry ground in the midst of the jordan, and all the people passed over through the channel that was dried up.

and when they were passed over, the lord said to josue: choose twelve men, one of every tribe: and command them to take out of the midst of the jordan, where the feet of the priests stood, twelve very hard stones, which you shall set in the place of the camp, where you shall pitch your tents this night. and josue called twelve men, whom he had chosen out of the children of israel, one out of every tribe, and he said to them: go before the ark of the lord your god to the midst of the jordan, and carry from thence every man a stone on your shoulders, according to the number of the children of israel, that it may be a sign among you end when your children shall ask you to morrow, saying: what mean these stones? you shall answer them: the waters of the jordan ran off before the ark of the covenant of the lord, when it passed over the same: therefore were these atones set for a monument of the children of israel for ever. the children of israel therefore did as josue commanded them, carrying out of the channel of the jordan twelve stones, as the lord had commanded him, according to the number of the children of israel, unto the place wherein they camped, and there they set them. and josue put other twelve stones in the midst of the channel of the jordan, where the priests stood that carried the ark of the covenant: and they are there until this present day. now the priests that carried the ark, stood in the midst of the jordan till all things were accomplished which the lord had commanded josue to speak to the people, and moyses had said to him. and the people made haste and passed over. and when they had all passed over, the ark also of the lord passed over, and the priests went before the people. the children of ruben also and gad, and half the tribe of manasses, went armed before the children of israel as moyses had commanded them. and forty thousand fighting men by their troops, and bands, marched through the plains and fields of the city of jericho. in that day the lord magnified josue in the sight of all israel, that they should fear him, as they had feared moyses, while he lived. and he said to him: command the priests, that carry the ark of the covenant, to come up out of the jordan. and he commanded them, saying: come ye up out of the jordan. and when they that carried the ark of the covenant of the lord, were come up, and began to tread on the dry ground, the waters returned into the channel, and ran as they were wont before. and the people came up out of the jordan, the tenth day of the first month, and camped in galgal, over against the east side of the city of jericho. and the twelve stones which they had taken out of the channel of the jordan, josue pitched in galgal, and said to the children of israel: when your children shall ask their fathers, to morrow, and shall say to them: what mean these stones? you shall teach them and say: israel passed over this jordan through the dry channel. the lord your god drying up the waters thereof in your sight, until you passed over: as he had done before in the red sea, which he dried up till we passed through: that all the people of the earth may learn the most mighty hand of the lord, that you also may

now when all the kings of the amorrites, who dwelt beyond the jordan westward, and all the kings of chanaan, who possessed the places near the great sea, had heard that the lord had dried up the waters of the jordan before the children of israel, till they passed over, their heart failed them, and there remained no spirit in them, fearing the coming in of the children of israel. at that time the lord said to josue: make thee knives of stone, and circumcise the second time the children of israel. he did what the lord had commanded, and he circumcised the children of israel in the hill of the foreskins. now this is the cause of the second circumcision: all the people that came out of egypt that were males, all the men fit for war, died in the desert, during the time of the long going about in the way. now these were all circumcised. but the people that were born in the desert, luring the forty years of the journey in the wide wilderness, were uncircumcised: till all they were consumed that had not heard the voice of the lord, and to whom he had sworn before, that he would not shew them the land flowing with milk and honey. the children of these succeeded in the place of their fathers, and were circumcised by josue: for they were uncircumcised even as they were born, and no one had circumcised them in the way. now after they were all circumcised, they remained in the same place of the camp, until they were healed. and the lord said to josue: this day have i taken away from you the reproach of egypt. and the name of that place was called galgal, until this present day. and the children of israel abode in galgal, and they kept the phase on the fourteenth day of the month, at evening, in the plains of jericho: and they ate on the next day unleavened bread of the corn of the land, and frumenty of the same year. and the manna ceased after they ate of the corn of the land, neither did the children of israel use that food any more, but they ate of the corn of the present year of the land of chanaan. and when josue was in the field of the city of jericho, he lifted up his eyes, and saw a man standing over against him: holding a drawn sword, and he went to him, and said: art thou one of ours, or of our adversaries? and he answered: no: but i am prince of the host of the lord, and now i am come. josue fell on his face to the ground. and worshipping, add: what saith my lord to his servant? loose, saith he, thy shoes from off thy feet: for the place whereon thou standest is holy. and josue did as was commanded him.

now jericho was close shut up and fenced, for fear of the children of israel, and no man durst go out or come in. and the lord said to josue: behold i have given into thy hands jericho, and the king thereof, and all the valiant men. go round about the city, all ye fighting men, once a day: so shall ye do for six days.

and on the seventh day the priests shall take the seven trumpets, which are used in the jubilee, and shall go before the ark of the covenant: and you shall go about the city seven times, and the priests shall sound the trumpets. and when the voice of the trumpet shall give a longer and broken tune, and shall sound in your ears, all the people shall shout together with a very great shout, and the walls of the city shall fall to the ground, and they shall enter in every one at the place against which they shall stand. then josue the son of nun called the priests, and said to them: take the ark of the covenant: and let seven other priests take the seven trumpets of the jubilee, and march before the ark of the lord. and he said to the people: go, and compass the city, armed, marching before the ark of the lord. and when josue had ended his words, and the seven priests blew the seven trumpets before the ark of the covenant of the lord, and all the armed men went before, the rest of the common people followed the ark, and the sound of the trumpets was heard on all sides. but josue had commanded the people, saying: you shall not shout, nor shall your voice be heard, nor any word go out of your mouth: until the day come wherein i shall say to you: cry, and shout. so the ark of the lord went about the city once a day, and returning into the camp, abode there. and josue rising before day, the priests took the ark of the lord, and seven of them seven trumpets, which are used in the jubilee: and they went before the ark of the lord walking and sounding the trumpets: and the armed men went before them, and the rest of the common people followed the ark, and they blew the trumpets. and they went round about the city the second day once, and returned into the camp. so they did six days. but the seventh day, rising up early, they went about the city, as it was ordered, seven times. and when in the seventh going about the priests sounded with the trumpets, josue said to all israel: shout: for the lord hath delivered the city to you: and let this city be an anathema, and all things that are in it, to the lord. let only rahab the harlot live, with all that are with her in the house: for she hid the messengers whom we sent. but beware ye lest you touch ought of those things that are forbidden, and you be guilty of transgression, and all the camp of israel be under sin, and be troubled. but whatsoever gold or silver there shall be, or vessels of brass and iron, let it be consecrated to the lord, laid up in his treasures. so all the people making a shout, and the trumpets sounding, when the voice and the sound thundered in the ears of the multitude, the walls forth- with fell down: and every man went up by the place that was over against him: s and they took the city, and killed all that were in it, man and woman, young and old. the oxen also and the sheep, and the asses, they slew with the edge of the sword. but josue said to the two men that had been sent for spies: go into the harlot's house, and bring her out, and all things that are hers, as you assured her by oath. and the young men went in and brought out rahab, and her parents, her brethren also and all her goods and her kindred, and made them to stay without the camp. but they burned the city, and all things that were therein; except the gold and silver, and vessels of brass and iron, which they consecrated into the treasury of the lord. but josue saved rahab the harlot and her father's house, and all she had, and they dwelt in the midst of israel until this present day: because she hid the messengers whom he had sent to spy out jericho. at that time, josue made an imprecation, saying: cursed be the man before the lord, that shall raise up and build the city of jericho. in his first-born may he lay the foundation thereof, and in the last of his children set up its gates. and the lord was with josue, and his name was noised throughout all the land.

but the children of israel transgressed the commandment, and took to their own use of the anathema. for achani the son of charmi, the son of zabdi, the son of zare of the tribe of juda, took something of the anathema: and the lord was angry against the children of israel. and when josue sent men from jericho against hai, which is beside bethaven, on the east side of the town of bethel, he said to them: go up, and view the country: and they fulfilled his command, and viewed hai. and returning they said to him: let not all the people go up, but let two or three thousand men go and destroy the city: why should all the people be troubled in vain against enemies that are very few? there went up therefore three thousand fighting men: who immediately turned their backs, and were defeated by the men of the city of hai, and there fell of them six and thirty men: and the enemies pursued them from the gate as far as sabarim, and they slew them as they fled by the descent: and the heart of the people was struck with fear, and melted like water. but josue rent his garments, and fell flat on the ground before the ark of the lord until the evening, both he and all the ancients of israel: and they put dust upon their heads. and josue said: alas, o lord god, why wouldst thou bring this people over the river jordan, to deliver us into the hand of the amorrite, and to destroy us? would god, we had stayed beyond the jordan as we began. my lord god, what shall i say, seeing israel turning their backs to their enemies? the chanaanites, and all the inhabitants of the land will hear of it, and being gathered together will surround us and cut off our name from the earth: and what wilt thou do to thy great name? and the lord said to josue: arise, who liest thou flat on the ground? israel hath sinned, and transgressed my covenant: and they have taken of the anathema, and have stolen and lied, and have hidden it among their goods. neither can israel stand before his enemies, but he shall flee from them: because he is defiled with the anathema. i will be no more with you, till you destroy him that is guilty of this wickedness. arise, sanctify the people, and say to them: be ye sanctified against to morrow: for thus saith the lord god of israel: the anathema is in the midst of thee, o israel: thou canst not stand before thy enemies, till he be destroyed out of thee that is defiled with this wickedness. and you shall come in the morning every one by your tribes: and what tribe soever the lot shall find, it shall come by its kindreds and

the kindred by its houses, and the house by the men. and whosoever he be that shall be found guilty of this fact, he shall be burnt with fire with all his substance, because he hath transgressed the covenant of the lord, and hath done wickedness in israel. josue, therefore, when he rose in the morning, made israel to come by their tribes, and the tribe of juda was found, which being brought by its families, it was found to be the family of zare. bringing that also by the houses, he found it to be zabdi. and bringing his house man by man, he found achani the son of charmi, the son of zabdi, the son of zare of the tribe of juda. and josue said to achani: my son, give glory to the lord god of israel, and confess, and tell me what thou hast done, hide it not. and achani answered josue, and said to him: indeed i have sinned against the lord the god of israel, and thus and thus have i done. for i saw among the spoils a scarlet garment exceeding good, and two hundred sides of silver, and a golden rule of fifty sides: and i coveted them, and i took them away, and hid them in the ground in the midst of my tent, and the silver i covered with the earth that i dug up. josue therefore sent ministers: who running to his tent, found all hidden in the same place, together with the silver. and taking them away out of the tent, they brought them to josue, and to all the children of israel, and threw them down before the lord. then josue and all israel with him took achani the son of zare, and the silver and the garments, and the golden rule, his sons also and his daughters, his oxen and asses and sheep, the tent also, and all the goods: and brought them to the valley of achor: where josue said: because thou hast troubled us, the lord trouble thee this day. and all israel stoned him: and all things that were his, were consumed with fire. and they gathered together upon him a great heap of stones, which remaineth until this present day. and the wrath of the lord was turned away from them. and the name of that place was called the valley of achor, until this day.

and the lord said to josue: fear not, nor be thou dismayed: take with thee all the multitude of fighting men, arise and go up to the town of hai. behold i have delivered into thy hand the king thereof, and the people, and the city, and the land. and thou shalt do to the city of hai, and to the king thereof, as thou hast done to jericho, and to the king thereof: but the spoils and all the cattle you shall take for a prey to yourselves: lay an ambush for the city behind it. and josue arose, and all the army of the fighting men with him, to go up against hai: and he sent thirty thousand chosen valiant men in the night, and commanded them, saying: lay an ambush behind the city: and go not very far from it: and be ye all ready. but i and the rest of the multitude which is with me; will approach on the contrary side against the city. and when they shall come out against us, we will flee, and turn our backs, as we did before: till they pursuing us be drawn farther from the city: for they will think that we flee as before. and whilst we are fleeing, and they pursuing, you shall arise out of the ambush, and shall destroy the city: and the lord your god will deliver it into our hands. and when you shall have taken it, set it on fire, and you shall do all things so as i have commanded. and he sent them away, and they went on to the place of the ambush, and abode between bethel and hai, on the west side of the city of hai. but josue stayed that night in the midst of the people, and rising early in the morning, he mustered his soldiers, and went up with the ancients in the front of the army environed with the aid of the fighting men. and when they were come, and were gone up over against the city, they stood on the north side of the city, between which and them there was a valley in the midst. and he had chosen five thousand men, and set them to lie in ambush between bethel and hai, on the west side of the same city: but all the rest of the army went in battle array on the north side, so that the last of that multitude reached to the west side of the city. so josue went that night, and stood in the midst of the valley. and when the king of hai saw this, he made haste in the morning, and went out with all the army of the city, and set it in battle array toward the desert, not knowing that there lay an ambush behind his back. but josue, and all israel gave back, making as if they were afraid, and fleeing by the way of the wilderness. but they shouting together, and encouraging one another, pursued them. and when they were come from the city, and not one remained in the city of hai and of bethel, that did not pursue after israel, leaving the towns open as they had rushed out, the lord said to josue: lift up the shield that is in thy hand, towards the city of hai, for i will deliver it to thee. and when he had lifted up his shield towards the city, the ambush that lay hid, rose up immediately: and going to the city, took it and set it on fire. and the men of the city, that pursued after josue, looking back and seeing the smoke of the city rise up to heaven, had no more power to flee this way or that way: especially as they that had counterfeited flight, end were going toward the wilderness, turned back most valiantly against them that pursued. so josue and all israel seeing that the city was taken, and that the smoke of the city rose up, returned and slew the men of hai. and they also that had taken and set the city on fire, issuing out of the city to meet their own men, began to cut off the enemies who were surrounded by them. so that the enemies being cut off on both sides, not one of so great a multitude was saved. and they took the king of the city of hai alive, and brought him to josue. so all being slain that had pursued after israel in his flight to the wilderness, and tailing by the sword in the same place, the children of israel returned and laid waste the city. and the number of them that fell that day, both of men and women, was twelve thousand persons all of the city of hai. but josue drew not back his hand, which he had stretched out on high, holding the shield, till all the inhabitants of hai were slain. and the children of israel divided among them the cattle and the prey of the city, as the lord had commanded josue. and he burned the city, and made it a heap for ever: and he hung the king thereof on a gibbet until the evening and the going down of the sun. then josue commanded, and they took down his carcass from the gibbet: and threw it in the very entrance of the city, heaping upon it a great heap of stones, which remaineth until this present day. then josue built an altar to the lord the god of israel in mount hebal, as moyses the servant of the lord had commanded the children of israel, and it is written in the book of the law of moyses: an altar of unhewn stones which iron had not touched: and he offered upon it holocausts to the lord, and immolated victims of peace offerings. and he wrote upon stones the deuteronomy of the law of moyses, which he had ordered before the children of israel. and all the people, and the ancients, and the princes and judges stood on both sides of the ark, before the priests that carried the ark of the covenant of the lord, both the stranger and he that was born among them, half of them by mount garizim, and half by mount hebal, as moyses the servant of the lord had commanded. and first he blessed the people of israel. after this he read all the words of the blessing and the cursing and all things that were written in the book of the law. he left out nothing of those things which moyses had commanded, but he repeated all before all the people of israel, with the women and children and strangers that dwelt among them.

now when these things were heard of, all the kings beyond the jordan, that dwelt in the mountains and in the plains, in the places near the sea, and on the coasts of the great sea, they also that dwell by libanus, the hethite and the amorrhite, the chanaanite, the pherezite, and the hevite, and the jebusite, gathered themselves together, to fight against josue and israel with one mind, and one resolution. but they that dwelt in gabaon, hearing all that josue had done to jericho and hai: cunningly devising took for themselves provisions, laying old sacks upon their asses, and wine bottles rent and sewed up again, and very old shoes, which for a show of age were clouted with patches, and old garments upon them: the leaves also, which they carried for provisions by the way, were hard, and broken into pieces: and they went to josue, who then abode in the camp at galgal, and said to him, and to all israel with him: we are come from a far country, desiring to make peace with you. and the children of israel answered them, and said: perhaps you dwell in the land which falls to our lot; if so, we can make no league with you. but they said to josue: we are thy servants. josue said to them: who are you? and whence came you? they answered: from a very far country thy servants are come in the name of the lord thy god. for we have heard the fame of his power, all the things that he did in egypt. and to the two kings of the amorrhites that were beyond the jordan, sehon king of hesebon, and og king of basan, that was in astaroth: and our ancients, and all the inhabitants of our country said to us: take with you victuals for a long way, and go meet them, and say: we are your servants, make ye a league with us. behold, these leaves we took hot, when we set out from our houses to come to you, now they are become dry, and broken in pieces, by being exceeding old. these bottles of wine when we filled them were new, now they are rent and burst. these garments we have on, and the shoes we have on our feet, by reason of the very long journey are worn out, and almost consumed. they took therefore of their victuals, and consulted not the mouth of the lord. and josue made peace with them, and entering into a league promised that they should not be slain: the princes also of the multitude swore to them. now three days after the league was made, they heard that they dwelt nigh, and they should be among them. and the children of israel removed the camp, and came into their cities on the third day, the names of which are gabaon, and caphira, and beroth, and carithiarim. and they slew them not, because the princes of the multitude had sworn in the name of the lord the god of israel. then all the common people murmured against the princes. and they answered them: we have sworn to them in the name of the lord the god of israel, and therefore we may not touch them. but this we will do to them: let their lives be saved, lest the wrath of the lord be stirred up against us, if we should be forsworn. but so let them live, as to serve the whole multitude in hewing wood, and bringing in water. as they were speaking these things, josue called the gabaonites and said to them: why would you impose upon us, saying: we dwell far off from you, whereas you are in the midst of us? therefore you shall be under a curse, and your race shall always be hewers of wood, and carriers of water unto the house of my god. they answered: it was told us thy servants, that the lord thy god had promised his servant moyses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants thereof. therefore we feared exceedingly and provided for our lives. compelled by the dread we had of you and we took this counsel. and now we are in thy hand: deal with us as it seemeth good and right unto thee. so josue did as he had said, and delivered them from the hand of the children of israel, that they should not be slain. and he gave orders in that day that they should be in the service of all the people, and of the altar of the lord, hewing wood and carrying water, until this present time, in the place which the lord hath chosen.

when adonisedec king of jerusalem had heard these things, to wit, that josue had taken hai, and had destroyed it, (for as he had done to jericho and the king thereof, so did he to hai, and its king,) and that the gabaonites were gone over to israel, and were their confederates, he was exceedingly afraid. for gabaon was a great city, and one of the royal cities, and greater than the town of hai, and all its fighting men were most valiant. therefore adonisedec king of jerusalem sent to oham king of hebron, and to pharam king of jerimoth, and to japhia king of lachis, and to dabir king of eglon, saying: come up to me, and bring help, that we may take gabaon, because it hath gone over to josue, and to the children of israel. so the five kings of the amorhites being assembled together went up: the king of jerusalem, the king of hebron, the king of jerimoth, the king of lachis, the king of eglon, they and their armies, and camped about gabaon, laying siege to it. but the inhabitants of the city of gabaon which was besieged, sent to josue, who then abode in the camp at galgal, and said to him: withdraw not thy hands from helping thy servants: come up quickly and save us, and bring us succour: for all the kings of the amorhites, who dwell in the mountains, are gathered together against us. and josue went up from galgal, and all the army of the warriors with him, most valiant men. and the lord said to josue: fear them not: for i have delivered them into thy hands: none of them shall be able to stand against thee. so josue going up from galgal all the night, came upon them suddenly. and the lord troubled them at the sight of israel: and he slew them with a great slaughter in gabaon, and pursued them by the way of the ascent to beth-horon, and cut them off all the way to azeca and maceda. and when they were fleeing from the children of israel, and were in the descent of beth-horon, the lord cast down upon them great stones from heaven as far as azeca: and many more were killed with the hailstones than were slain by the swords of the children of israel. then josue spoke to the lord, in the day that he delivered the amorhite in the sight of the children of israel, and he said before them: move not, o sun, toward gabaon, nor thou, o moon, toward the valley of ajalon. and the sun and the moon stood still, till the people revenged themselves of their enemies. is not this written in the book of the just? so the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go down the space of one day. there was not before nor after so long a day, the lord obeying the voice of a man, and fighting for israel. and josue returned with all israel into the camp of galgal. for the five kings were fled, and had hidden themselves in a cave of the city of maceda. and it was told josue that the five kings were found hidden in a cave of the city of maceda. and he commanded them that were with him, saying: roll great stones to the mouth of the cave, and set careful men, to keep them shut up: and stay you not, but pursue after the enemies, and kill all the hindermost of them as they flee, and do not suffer them whom the lord god hath delivered into your hands to shelter themselves in their cities. so the enemies being slain with a great slaughter, and almost utterly consumed, they that were able to escape from israel, entered into fenced cities. and all the army returned to josue in maceda, where the camp then was, in good health and without the loss of any one: and no man durst move his tongue against the children of israel. and josue gave orders, saying: open the mouth of the cave, and bring forth to me the five kings that lie hid therein. and the ministers did as they were commanded: and they brought out to him the five kings out of the cave: the king of jerusalem, the king of hebron, the king of jerimoth, the king of lachis, the king of eglon. and when they were brought out to him, he called all the men of israel, and said to the chiefs of the army that were with him: go, and set your feet on the necks of these kings. and when they had gone, and put their feet upon the necks of them lying under them, he said again to them: fear not, neither be ye dismayed, take courage and be strong:

for so will the lord do to all your enemies, against whom you fight. and josue struck, and slew them, and hanged them upon five gibbets, and they hung until the evening. and when the sun was down, he commanded the soldiers to take them down from the gibbets. and after they were taken down, they cast them into the cave where they had lain hid, and put great stones at the mouth thereof, which remain until this day. the same day josue took maceda and destroyed it, with the edge of the sword, and killed the king and all the inhabitants thereof: he left not in it the least remains. and he did to the king of maceda, as he had done to the king of jericho. and he passed from maceda with all israel to lebna, and fought against it: and the lord delivered it with the king thereof into the hands of israel: and they destroyed the city with the edge of the sword, and all the inhabitants thereof. they left not in it any remains. and they did to the king of lebna, as they had done to the king of jericho. from lebna he passed unto lachis, with all israel: and investing it with his army, besieged it. and the lord delivered lachis into the hands of israel, and he took it the following day, and put it to the sword, and every soul that was in it, as he had done to lebna. at that time horam king of gazer, came up to succour lachis: and josue slew him with all his people, so as to leave none alive. and he passed from lachis to eglon, and surrounded it, and took it the same day: and put to the sword all the souls that were in it, according to all that he had done to lachis. he went up also with all israel from eglon to hebron, and fought against it: took it, and destroyed it with the edge of the sword: the king also thereof, and all the towns of that country, and all the souls that dwelt in it: he left not therein any remains: as he had done to eglon, so did he also to hebron, putting to the sword all that he found in it. returning from thence to dabir, he took it and destroyed it: the king also thereof and all the towns round about he destroyed with the edge of the sword: he left not in it any remains: as he had done to hebron and lebna and to their kings, so did he to dabir and to the king thereof. so josue conquered all the country of the hills and of the south and of the plain, and of asedoth, with their kings: he left not any remains therein, but slew all that breathed, as the lord the god of israel had commanded him, from cadesbarne even to gaza. all the land of gosen even to gabaon, and all their kings, and their lands he took and wasted at one onset: for the lord the god of israel fought for him. and he returned with all israel to the place of the camp in galgal.

and when jabin king of asor had heard these things, he sent to jobab king of madon, and to the king of semeron, and to the king of achsaph: and to the kings of the north, that dwelt in the mountains and in the plains over against the south side of ceneroth, and in the levels and the countries of dor by the sea side: to the chanaanites also on the ease and on the west, and the amorrhite, and the hethite, and the pherezite, and the jebusite in the mountains: to the hevite also who

dwelt at the foot of hermon in the land of maspha. and they all came out with their troops, a people exceeding numerous as the sand that is on the sea shore, their horses also and chariots a very great multitude, and all these kings assembled together at the waters of merom, to fight against israel. and the lord said to josue: fear them not: for to morrow at this same hour i will deliver all these to be slain in the sight of israel: thou shalt hamstring their horses, and thou shalt burn their chariots with fire. and josue came, and all the army with him, against them to the waters of merom on a sudden, and fell upon them. and the lord delivered them into the hands of israel. and they defeated them, and chased them as far as the great sidon, and the waters of maserophot, and the field of masphe, which is on the east side thereof. he slew them all, so as to leave no remains of them: and he did as the lord had commanded him, he hamstringed their horses and burned their chariots. and presently turning back he took asor: and slew the king thereof with the sword. now asor of old was the head of all these kingdoms. and he cut off all the souls that abode there: he left not in it any remains, but utterly destroyed all, and burned the city itself with fire. and he took and put to the sword and destroyed all the cities round about, and their kings, as moyses the servant of god had commanded him. except the cities that were on hills and high places, the rest israel burned: only asor that was very strong he consumed with fire. and the children of israel divided among themselves all the spoil of these cities and the cattle, killing all the men. as the lord had commanded moyses his servant, so did moyses command josue, and he accomplished all: he left not one thing undone of all the commandments which the lord had commanded moyses. so josue took all the country of the hills, and of the south, and the land of gosen, and the plains and the west country, and the mountain of israel, and the plains thereof: and part of the mountain that goeth up to seir as far as baalgad, by the plain of libanus under mount hermon: all their kings he took, smote and slew. josue made war a long time against these kings. there was not a city that delivered itself to the children of israel, except the hevite, who dwelt in gabaon: for he took all by fight. for it was the sentence of the lord, that their hearts should be hardened, and they should fight against israel, and fall, and should not deserve any clemency, and should be destroyed as the lord had commanded moyses. at that time josue came and cut off the enacims from the mountains, from hebron, and dabir, and anab, and from all the mountain of juda and israel, and destroyed their cities. he left not any of the stock of the enacims, in the land of the children of israel: except the cities of gaza, and geth, and azotus, in which alone they were left. so josue took all the land, as the lord spoke to moyses, and delivered it in possession to the children of israel, according to their divisions and tribes. and the land rested from wars.

these are the kings, whom the children of israel slew and possessed their land beyond the jordan towards the rising of the sun, from the torrent arnon unto mount hermon, and all the east country that looketh towards the wilderness. sehon king of the amorrites, who dwelt in hesebon, and had dominion from aroer, which is seated upon the bank of the torrent arnon, and of the middle part in the valley, and of half galaad, as far as the torrent jaboc, which is the border of the children of ammon. and from the wilderness, to the sea of ceneroth towards the east, and to the sea of the wilderness, which is the most salt sea, on the east side by the way that leadeth to bethsimoth: and on the south side that lieth under asedoth, phasga. the border of og the king of basan, of the remnant of the raphaims who dwelt in astaroth, and in edrai, and had dominion in mount hermon, and in salecha, and in all basan, unto the herders of gessuri and machati, and of half galaad: the borders of sehon the king of hesebon. mooses the servant of the lord, and the children of israel slew them, and mooses delivered their land in possession to the rubenites, and gadites, and the half tribe of manasses. these are the kings of the land, whom josue and the children of israel slew beyond the jordan on the west side from baalgad in the held of libanus, unto the mount, part of which goeth up into seir: and josue delivered it in possession to the tribes of israel, to every one their divisions, as well in the mountains as in the plains and the champaign countries. in asedoth, and in the wilderness, and in the south was the hethite and the amorrite, the chanaanite and the pherezite, the hevite and the jebusite. the king of jericho one: the king of hai, which is on the side of bethel, one: the king of jerusalem one, the king of hebron one. the king of jerimoth one, the king of lachis one, the king of eglon one, the king of gazer one, the king of dabir one, the king of gader one, the king of herma one, the king of hered one, the king of lebna one, the king of odul-lam one, the king of maceda one, the king of bethel one, the king of taphua one, the king of opher one, the king of aphec one, the king of saron one, the king of madon one, the king of asor one, the king of semeron one, the king of achsaph one, the king of thenac one, the king of megeddo one, the king of cades one, the king of jachanaan of carmel one, the king of dor, and of the province of dor one, the king of the nations of galgal one, the king of thersa one: all the kings thirty and one.

josue was old, and far advanced in years, and the lord said to him: thou art grown old, and advanced in age, and there is a very large country left, which is not yet divided by lot: to wit, all galilee, philistia, and all gessuri. from the troubled river, that wattereth egypt, unto the borders of accaron northward: the land of chanaan, which is divided among the lords of the philistines, the gazites, the azotians, the ascalonites, the gethites, and the accronites. and on the south side are the hevites, all the land of chanaan, and maara of the sidonians as far as apheca, and the borders of the amorrite, and his confines. the country also of libanus towards the east from baalgad under mount hermon to the entering into emath. of all that dwell in the mountains from libanus, to the waters of maserephoth, and all the sidonians. i am he that will cut them off from before the face of the children of israel. so let their land come in as a part of the inheritance of israel, as i have commanded thee. and now divide the land in possession to the nine tribes, and to the half tribe of manasses, with whom ruben and gad have possessed the land, which mooses the servant of the lord delivered to them beyond the river jordan, on the east side. from aroer, which is upon the bank of the torrent arnon, and in the midst of the valley and all the plains of medaba, as far as dibon: and all the cities of sehon, king of the amorrites, who reigned in hesebon, unto the borders of the children of ammon. and galaad, and the borders of gessuri and machati, and all mount hermon, and all basan as far as salecha, all the kingdom of og in basan, who reigned in astaroth and edrai, he was of the remains of the raphaims: and mooses overthrew and destroyed them. and the children of israel would not destroy gessuri and machati: and they have dwelt in the midst of israel, until this present day. but to the tribe of levi he gave no possession: but the sacrifices and victims of the lord god of israel, are his inheritance, as he spoke to him. and mooses gave a possession to the children of ruben according to their kindreds. and their border was from aroer, which is on the bank of the torrent arnon, and in the midst of the valley of the same torrent: all the plain, that leadeth to medaba, and hesebon, and all their villages, which are in the plains. dibon also, and bamoth-baal, and the town of baalmaon, and jassa, and cidimoth, and mephaath, and cariathaim, and sabama, and sarathasar in the mountain of the valley. bethphogor and asedoth, phasga and bethesimoth, and all the cities of the plain, and all the kingdoms of sehon king of the amorrites, that reigned in hesebon, whom mooses slew with the princes of madian: hevi, and recem, and sur and hur, and rebe, dukes of sehon inhabitants of the land. balaam also the son of beer the soothsayer, the children of israel slew with the sword among the rest that were slain. and the river jordan was the herder of the children of ruben. this is the possession of the rubenites, by their kindreds, of cities and villages. and mooses gave to the tribe of gad and to his children by their kindreds a possession, of which this is the division. the border of jaser, and all the cities of galaad, and half the land of the children of ammon: as far as aroer which is over against rabba: and from hesebon unto ramoth, masphe and betonim: and from manaim unto the borders of dabir. and in the valley betharan and bethnemra, and socoth, and saphon the other part of the kingdom of sehon king of hesebon: the limit of this also is the jordan, as far as the uttermost part of the sea of cenereth beyond the jordan on the east side. this is the possession of the children of gad by their families, their cities, and villages. he gave also to the half tribe of manasses and his children possession according to their kindreds, the beginning whereof is this: from manaim all basan, and all the kingdoms of og king of basan, and all the villages of jair, which are in basan, threescore towns. and half galaad, and astaroth, and edrai, cities of the kingdom of og in basan: to the children of machir, the son of manasses, to one? half of the children of machir according to their kindreds. this possession mooses divided in the plains of moab, beyond the jordan, over against jericho on the east side. but to the tribe of levi he gave no possession: because the lord the god of israel himself is their possession, as he spoke to them.

this is what the children of israel possessed in the land of chanaan, which eleazar the priest, and josue the son of nun, and the princes of the families by the tribes of israel gave to them: dividing all by lot, as the lord had commanded by the hand of mooses, to the nine tribes, and the half tribe. for to two tribes and a half mooses had given possession beyond the jordan: besides the levites, who received no land among their brethren: but in their place succeeded the children of joseph divided into two tribes, of manasses and ephraim: neither did the levites receive other portion of land, but cities to dwell in, and their suburbs to feed their beasts and flocks. as the lord had commanded mooses, so did the children of israel, and they divided the land. then the children of juda came to josue in galgal, and caleb the son of jephone the cenezite spoke to him: thou knowest what the lord spoke to mooses the man of god concerning me and thee in cadesbarne. i was forty years old when mooses the servant of the lord sent me from cadesbarne, to view the land, and i brought him word again as to me seemed true. but my brethren, that had gone up with me, discouraged the heart of the people: and i nevertheless followed the lord my god. and mooses swore in that day, saying: the land which thy foot hath trodden upon shall be thy possession, and thy children's for ever, because thou hast followed the lord my god. the lord therefore hath granted me life, as he promised until this present day. it is forty and five years since the lord spoke this word to mooses, when israel journeyed through the wilderness: this day i am eighty-five years old, as strong as i was at that time when i was sent to view the land: the strength of that time continueth in me until this day, as well to fight as to march. give me therefore this mountain, which the lord promised, in thy hearing also, wherein are the enacims, and cities great and strong: if so be the lord will be with me, and i shall be able to destroy them, as he promised me. and josue blessed him, and gave him hebron in possession. and from that time hebron belonged to caleb the son of jephone the cenezite, until this present day: because he followed the lord the god of israel. the name of hebron before was called cariath-arbe: adam the greatest among the enacims was laid there: and the land rested from wars.

now the lot of the children of juda by their kindreds was this: from the frontier of edom, to the desert of sin southward, and to the uttermost part of the south coast. its beginning was from the top of the most salt sea, and from the bay thereof, that looketh to the south. and it goeth out towards the ascent of the scorpion, and passeth on to sina: and ascendeth into cadesbarne, and reacheth into esron, going up to addar, and compassing carcaa. and from thence passing along into asemona, and reaching the torrent of egypt: and the bounds thereof shall be the great sea, this shall be the limit of the south coast. but on the east side the beginning shall be the most salt sea even to the end of the jordan: and towards the north, from the bay of the sea unto the same river jordan. and the border goeth up into beth-hagla, and passeth by the north into beth-araba: going up to the stone of boen the son of ruben. and reaching as far as the borders of debara from the valley of achor, and so northward looking towards galgal, which is opposite to the ascent of adommin, on the south side of the torrent: and the border passeth the waters that are called the fountain of the sun: and the goings out thereof shall be at the fountain rogel. and it goeth up by the valley of the son of ennom on the side of the jebusite towards the south, the same is jerusalem: and thence ascending to the top of the mountain, which is over against geennom to the west in the end of the valley of raphaim, northward. and it passeth on from the top of the mountain to the fountain of the water of nephtoa: and reacheth to the towns of mount ephron: and it bendeth towards baala, which is cariathiarim, that is to say, the city of the woods. and it compasseth from baala westward unto mount seir: and passeth by the side of mount jarim to the north into cheslon: and goeth down into bethsames, and passeth into thamna. and it reacheth northward to a part of accaron at the side: and bendeth to sechrona, and passeth mount baala: and cometh into jebneel, and is bounded westward with the great sea. these are the borders round about of the children of juda in their kindreds. but to caleb the son of jephone he gave a portion in the midst of the children of juda, as the lord had commanded him: cariath-arbe the father of enac. which is hebron. and caleb destroyed out of it the three sons of ehac, sesai and ahiman. and tholmai of the race of enac. and going up from thence he came to the inhabitants of dabir, which before was called cariath-sepher, that is to say, the city of letters. and caleb said: he that shall smite cariath-sepher, and take it, i will give him axa my daughter to wife. and othoniel the son of cenez, the younger brother of caleb, took it: and he gave him axa his daughter to wife. and as they were going together, she was moved by her husband to ask a field of her father, and she sighed as she sat on her ass. and caleb said to her: what aileth thee? but she answered: give me a blessing: thou hast given me a southern and dry land, give me also a land that is watered. and caleb gave her the upper and the nether watery ground. this is the possession of the tribe of the children of juda by their

kindreds. and the cities from the uttermost parts of the children of juda by the borders of edom to the south, were cabseel and eder and jagur, and cina and dimona and adada, and cades and asor and jethnam, ziph and telem and baloth, new asor and carioth, hesron, which is asor. amam, sama and molada, and asergadda and hassemon and bethphelet, and hasersual and bersabee and baziiothia, and baala and jim and esem, and eltholad and cesil and harma, and siceleg and medemena and sensenna, lebaoth and selim and aen and remmon: all the cities twenty-nine, and their villages. but in the plains: estaol and sarea and asena, and zanoë and engannim and taphua and enaim, and jerimoth and adullam, socho and azeca, and saraim and adithaim and gederà and gederothaim: fourteen cities, and their villages. sanan and hadassa and magdalgad, delean and masepha and jethel, lachis and bascath and eglon, chebbon and lehem and cethlis, and gideroth and bethdagon and naama and maceda: sixteen cities, and their villages. labana and ether and asan, jephtha and esna and nesib, and ceila and achzib and maresa: nine cities, and their villages. accaron with the towns and villages thereof. from accaron even to the sea: all places that lie towards azotus and the villages thereof. azotus with its towns and villages. gaza with its towns and villages, even to the torrent of egypt, and the great sea that is the border thereof. and in the mountain samir and jether and so-coth, and danna and cariath-senna, this is dabir: anab and istemo and anim, gosen and olon and gilo: eleven cities and their villages. arab and ruma and esaan, and janum and bethtaphua and apheca, athmatha and cariath-arbe, this is hebron and sior: nine cities and their villages. maon and carmel and ziph and jota, jezrael and jucadam and zanoë, accain, gabaa and thamna: ten cities and their villages. halhul, and bessur, and gedor, mareth, and bethanoth, and eltecon: six cities and their villages. cariathbaal, the same is cariathiarim, the city of woods, and arebba: two cities and their villages. in the desert betharaba, meddin and sachacha, and nebsan, and the city of salt, and engaddi: six cities and their villages. but the children of juda could not destroy the jebusite that dwelt in jerusalem: and the jebusite dwelt with the children of juda in jerusalem until this present day.

and the lot of the sons of joseph fell from the jordan over against jericho and the waters thereof, on the east: the wilderness which goeth up from jericho to the mountain of bethel: and goeth out from bethel to luzà: and passeth the border of archi, to ataroth, and goeth down westward, by the border of jephleti, unto the borders of beth-horon the nether, and to gazer: and the countries of it are ended by the great sea: and manasses and ephraim the children of joseph possessed it. and the border of the children of ephraim was according to their kindreds: and their possession towards the east was ataroth-addar unto beth-horon the upper. and the confines go out unto the sea: but machmethath looketh to the north, and it goeth round the borders eastward into thanath-selo:

and passeth along on the east side to janoe. and it goeth down from janoe into ataroth and naaratha: and it cometh to jericho, and goeth out to the jordan. from taphua it passeth on towards the sea into the valley of reeds, and the goings out thereof are at the most salt sea. this is the possession of the tribe of the children of ephraim by their families. and there were cities with their villages separated for the children of ephraim in the midst of the possession of the children of manasses. and the children of ephraim slew not the chanaanite, who dwelt in gazer: and the chanaanite dwelt in the midst of ephraim until this day, paying tribute.

and this lot fell to the tribe of manasses (for he is the firstborn of joseph) to machir the firstborn of manasses the father of galaad, who was a warlike man, and had for possession galaad and basan. and to the rest of the children of manasses according to their families: to the children of abiezer, and to the children of helec, and to the children of esriel, and to the children of sechem, and to the children of hepher, and to the children of semida: these are the male children of manasses the son of joseph, by their kindreds. but salphaad the son of hepher the son of galaad the son of machir the son of manasses had no sons, but only daughters: whose names are these, maala and noa and hegla and melcha and thersa. and they came in the presence of eleazar the priest and of josue the son of nun, and of the princes, saying: the lord commanded by the hand of moyses, that a possession should be given us in the midst of our brethren. and he gave them according to the commandment of the lord a possession amongst the brethren of their father. and there fell ten portions to manasses, beside the land of galaad and basan beyond the jordan. for the daughters of manasses possessed inheritance in the midst of his sons. and the land of galaad fell to the lot of the rest of the children of manasses. and the border of manasses was from aser, machmethath which looketh towards sichem: and it goeth out on the right hand by the inhabitants of the fountain of taphua. for the lot of manasses took in the land of taphua, which is on the borders of manasses, and belongs to the children of ephraim. and the border goeth down to the valley of the reeds, to the south of the torrent of the cities of ephraim, which are in the midst of the cities of manasses: the border of manasses is on the north side of the torrent, and the outgoings of it are at the sea: so that the possession of ephraim is on the south, and on the north that of manasses, and the sea is the border of both, and they are joined together in the tribe of aser on the north, and in the tribe of issachar on the east. and the inheritance of manasses in issachar and in aser, was bethsan and its villages, and jebllaam with its villages, and the inhabitants of dor, with the towns thereof: the inhabitants also of endor with the villages thereof: and in like manner the inhabitants of thenac with the villages thereof: and the inhabitants of mageddo with their villages, and the third part of the city of nopheth. neither could the children of manasses overthrow these cities, but the chanaanite began to dwell in his land. but after that the children of israel were grown strong, they subdued the chanaanites, and made them their tributaries, and they did not kill them. and the children of joseph spoke to josue, and said: why hast thou given me but one lot and one portion to possess, whereas i am of so great a multitude, and the lord hath blessed me? and josue said to them: if thou be a great people, go up into the woodland, and cut down room for thyself in the land of the pherezite and the raphaims: because the possession of mount ephraim is too narrow for thee. and the children of joseph answered him: we cannot go up to the mountains, for the chanaanites that dwell in the low lands, wherein are situate bethsan with its towns, and jezrael in the midst of the valley, have chariots of iron and josue said to the house of joseph, to ephraim and manasses: thou art a great people, and of great strength, thou shalt not have one lot only: but thou shalt pass to the mountain, and shalt cut down the wood, and make thyself room to dwell in: and mayst proceed farther, when thou hast destroyed the chanaanites, who as thou sayest have iron chariots, and are very strong.

and all the children of israel assembled together in silo, and there they set up the tabernacle of the testimony, and the land was subdued before them. but there remained seven tribes of the children of israel, which as yet had not received their possessions. and josue said to them: how long are you indolent and slack, and go not in to possess the land which the lord the god of your fathers hath given you? choose of every tribe three men, that i may send them, and they may go and compass the land, and mark it out according to the number of each multitude: and bring back to me what they have marked out. divide to yourselves the land into seven parts: let juda be in his bounds on the south side, and the house of joseph on the north. the land in the midst between these mark ye out into seven parts; and you shall come hither to me, that i may cast lots for you before the lord your god. for the levites have no part among you, but the priesthood of the lord is their inheritance. and gad and ruben, and the half tribe of manasses have already received their possessions beyond the jordan eastward: which moyses the servant of the lord gave them. and when the men were risen up, to go to mark out the land, josue commanded them, saying: go round the land and mark it out, and return to me: that i may cast lots for you before the lord in silo. so they went: and surveying it divided it into seven parts, writing them down in a book. and they returned to josue, to the camp in silo. and he cast lots before the lord in silo, and divided the land to the children of israel into seven parts. and first came up the lot of the children of benjamin by their families, to possess the land between the children of juda, and the children of joseph. and their border northward was from the jordan: going along by the side of jericho on the north side, and thence going up westward to the mountains, and reaching to the wilderness of bethaven, and passing along southward by luza, the same is bethel: and it goeth down into ataroth-addar to the mountain, that is on the south of the nether beth-horon. and it bendeth thence going round towards the sea, south of the mountain that looketh towards beth-horon to the southwest: and the outgoings thereof are into cariatbaal, which is called also cariatthiarim, a city of the children of juda. this is their coast towards the sea, westward. but on the south side the border goeth out from part of cariatthiarim towards the sea, and cometh to the fountain of the waters of nephtoa. and it goeth down to that part of the mountain that looketh on the valley of the children of ennom: and is over against the north quarter in the furthestmost part of the valley of raphaim, and it goeth down into geennom (that is the valley of ennom) by the side of the jebusite to the south: and cometh to the fountain of rogel, passing thence to the north, and going out to ensembles, that is to say, the fountain of the sue: and it passeth along to the hills that are over against the ascent of adommim: and it goeth down to abenboen, that is, the stone of been the son of ruben: and it passeth on the north side to the champaign countries; and goeth down into the plain, and it passeth by bethhagla northward: and the outgoings thereof are towards the north of the most salt sea at the south end of the jordan: which is the border of it on the east side. this is the possession of the children of benjamin by their borders round about, and their families. and their cities were, jericho and bethhagla and vale-casis, betharaba and samaraim and bethel, and avim and aphara and ophera, the town emona and ophni and gabee: twelve cities, and their villages. gabam and rama and beroth, and mesphe, and caphara, and amosa, and recem, jarephel and tharella, and sela, eleph and jebus, which is jerusalem, gabaath and cariath: fourteen cities, and their villages. this is the possession of the children of benjamin by their families.

and the second lot came forth for the children of simeon by their kindreds: and their inheritance was in the midst of the possession of the children of juda: bersabee and sabe and molada, and hasersual, bala and asem, and eltholad, bethul and harma, and siceleg and bethmarchaboth and hasersusa, and bethlebaoth and sarohen: thirteen cities, and their villages. ain and remmon and athor and asan: four cities, and their villages. and all the villages round about these cities to baalath beer ramath to the south quarter. this is the inheritance of the children of simeon according to their kindreds, in the possession and lot of the children of juda: because it was too great, and therefore the children of simeon had their possession in the midst of their inheritance. and the third lot fell to the children of zabulon by their kindreds: and the border of their possession was unto sarid. and it went up from the sea and from merala, and came to debbaseth: as far as the torrent, which is over against jeconam. and it returneth from sarid eastward to the borders of ceseleththabor: and it goeth out to dabereth, and ascendeth towards japhie. and it passeth along from thence to the east side of gethhepher and thacasin: and goeth out to remmon, amthar and noa. and it turneth about to the north of hanathon: and the outgoings thereof are the valley of jephtahel, and cateth and naalol and semeron and jedala and bethlehem: twelve cities and their villages. this is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of zabulon by their kindreds, the cities and their villages. the fourth lot came out to issachar by their kindreds. and his inheritance was jezrael and casaloth and sunem, and hapharaim and seen and anaharath, and rabboth and cesion, abes, and rameth and engannim and enhadda and bethpheses. and the border thereof cometh to thabor and sehesima and bethsames: and the outgoings thereof shall be at the jordan: sixteen cities, and their villages. this is the possession of the sons of issachar by their kindreds, the cities and their villages. and the fifth lot fell to the tribe of the children of aser by their kindreds: and their border was halcath and chali and beten and axaph, and elmelech and amaad and messal: and it reacheth to carmel by the sea and sihor and labanath, and it returneth towards the east to bethdagon: and passeth along to zabulon and to the valley of jephthael towards the north to bethemec and nehiel. and it goeth out to the left side of cabul, and to abaran and rohob and hamon and cana, as far as the great sidon. and it returneth to horma to the strong city of tyre, and to hosaa: and the outgoings thereof shall be at the sea from the portion of achziba: and amma and aphec and rohob: twenty-two cities, and their villages. this is the possession of the children of aser by their kindreds, and the cities and their villages. the sixth lot came out to the sons of nephtali by their families: and the border began from heleph and elon to saananim, and adami, which is neceb, and jebnael even to lecum: and their outgoings unto the jordan: and the border returneth westward to azanotthabor, and goeth out from thence to hucuca, and passeth along to zabulon southward, and to aser westward, and to juda upon the jordan towards the rising of the sun. and the strong cities are assedim, ser, and emath, and reccath and cenereth, and edema and arama, asor, and cedes and edri, enhasor, and jeron and magdalel, herem, and bethanath and bethsames: nineteen cities, and their villages. this is the possession of the tribe of the children of nephtali by their kindreds, the cities and their villages. the seventh lot came out to the tribe of the children of dan by their families: and the border of their possession was saraa and esthaol, and hirsemes, that is, the city of the sun. selebin and aialon and jethela, elon and themna and acron, elthece, gebbethon and balaath, and jud and bane and barach and gethremmon: and mejarcon and arecon, with the border that looketh towards joppe, and is terminated there. and the children of dan went up and fought against lesem, and took it: and they put it to the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt in it, calling the name of it lesem dan, by the name of dan their father. this is the possession of the tribe of the sons of dan, by their kindreds, the cities and their villages. and when he had made an end of dividing the land by lot to each one by their tribes, the children of israel gave a possession to josue the son of nun in the midst of them, according to the commandment of the lord, the city which he asked for, thamnath saraa, in mount ephraim: and he built up the city, and dwelt in it. these are the possessions which eleazar the priest, and josue the son of nun, and the princes of the families, and of the tribes of the children of israel, distributed by lot in silo, before the lord at the door of the tabernacle of the testimony, and they divided the land.

and the lord spoke to josue, saying: speak to the children of israel and say to them: appoint cities of refuge, a of which i spoke to you by the hand of moyses: that whosoever shall kill a person unawares may flee to them: and may escape the wrath of the kinsman, who is the avenger of blood: and when he shall flee to one of these cities: he shall stand before the gate of the city, and shall speak to the ancients of that city, such things as prove him innocent: and so shall they receive him, and give him a place to dwell in. and when the avenger of blood shall pursue him, they shall not deliver him into his hands, because he slew his neighbour unawares, and is not proved to have been his enemy two or three days before. and he shall dwell in that city, till he stand before judgment to give an account of his fact, and till the death of the high priest, who shall be at that time: then shall the manslayer return, and go into his own city and house from whence he fled. and they appointed cedes in galilee of mount nephtali, and sichem in mount ephraim, and cariatharbe, the same is hebron in the mountain of juda. and beyond the jordan to the east of jericho, they appointed bosor, which is upon the plain of the wilderness of the tribe of ruben, and ramoth in galaad of the tribe of cad, and gaulon in basan of the tribe of manasses. these cities were appointed for all the children of israel, and for the strangers, that dwelt among them: that whosoever had killed a person unawares might flee to them, and not die by the hand of the kinsman, coveting to revenge the blood that was shed, until he should stand before the people to lay open his cause.

then the princes of the families of levi came to eleazar the priest, and to josue the son of nun, and to the princes of the kindreds of all the tribes of the children of israel: and they spoke to them in silo in the land of chanaan, and said: the lord commanded by the hand of moyses, that cities should be given us to dwell in, and their suburbs to feed our cattle. and the children of israel gave out of their possessions according to the commandment of the lord, cities and their suburbs. and the lot came out for the family of caath of the children of aaron the priest out of the tribes of juda, and of simeon, and of benjamin, thirteen cities. and to the rest of the children of caath, that is, to the levites, who remained, out of the tribes of ephraim, and of dan, and the half tribe of manasses, ten cities. and the lot came out to the children of gerson, that they should take of the tribes of issachar and of aser and of nephtali, and of the half tribe of manasses in basan, thirteen cities. and to the sons of merari by their kindreds, of the tribes of ruben and of cad and of zabulon, twelve cities. and the children of israel gave to the levites the cities and their suburbs, as the lord commanded by the hand of moyses, giving to every one by lot. of the tribes of the children of juda and of simeon josue gave cities: whose names are these, to the sons of aaron, of the families of caath of the race of levi (for the first lot came out for them) the city of arbe the father of enac, which is called hebron, in the mountain of juda, and the suburbs thereof round about. but the fields and the villages thereof he had given to caleb the son of jephone for his possession. he gave therefore to the children of aaron the priest, hebron a city of refuge, and the suburbs thereof: and lobna with the suburbs thereof, and jether and estemo, and holon, and dabor, and ain, and jeta, and bethsames, with their suburbs: nine cities out of the two tribes, as hath been said. and out of the tribe of the children of benjamin, gabaon, and gaba, and anathoth and almon, with their suburbs: four cities. all the cities together of the children of aaron the priest, were thirteen, with their suburbs. and to the rest of the families of the children of caath of the race of levi was given this possession. of the tribe of ephraim, sicheon one of the cities of refuge, with the suburbs thereof in mount ephraim, and ceter, and cibsaim, and beth-horon, with their suburbs, four cities. and of the tribe of dan, eltheco and gabathon, and aialon and gethermon, with their suburbs, four cities. and of the half tribe of manasses, thanac and gethermon, with their suburbs, two cities. all the cities were ten, with their suburbs, which were given to the children of caath, of the inferior degree. to the children of gerson also of the race of levi out of the half tribe of manasses, gaulon in basan, one of the cities of refuge, and bosra, with their suburbs, two cities. and of the tribe of issachar, cesion, and dabereth, and jaramoth, and engannim, with their suburbs, four cities. and of the tribe of aser, masal and abdon, and helcath, and rohob, with their suburbs, four cities. of the tribe also of nephtali, cedes in galilee, one of the cities of refuge: and hammoth dor, and carthan, with their suburbs, three cities. all the cities of the families of gerson, were thirteen, with their suburbs. and to the children of merari, levites of the inferior degree, by their families were given of the tribe of zabulon, jecnam and cartha, and damna and naalol, four cities with their suburbs; of the tribe of ruben beyond the jordan over against jericho, bosor in the wilderness, one of the cities of refuge, miser and jaser and jethson and mephaath, four cities with their suburbs. of the tribe of gad, ramoth in galaad, one of the cities of refuge, and manaim and hesebon and jaser, four cities with their suburbs. all the cities of the children of merari by their families and kindreds, were twelve. so all the cities of the levites within the possession of the children of israel were forty-eight, with their suburbs, each distributed by the families. and the lord god gave to israel all the land that he had sworn to give to their fathers: and they possessed it and dwelt in it. and he gave them peace from all nations round about: and none of their enemies durst stand against them, but were brought under their dominion. not so much as one word, which he had promised to perform unto them, was made void, but all came to pass.

at the same time josue called the rubenites, and the gadites, and the half tribe of manasses, and said to them: you have done all that moyses the servant of the lord commanded you: you have also obeyed me in all things, neither have you left your brethren this long time, until this present day, keeping the commandment of the lord your god. therefore as the lord your god hath given your brethren rest and peace, as he promised: return, and go to your dwellings, and to the land of your possession, which moyses the servant of the lord gave you beyond the jordan: yet so that you observe attentively, and in work fulfil the commandment and the law which moyses the servant of the lord commanded you: that you love the lord your god, and walk in all his ways, and keep all his commandments, and cleave to him, and serve him with all your heart, and with all your soul. and josue blessed them, and sent them away, and they returned to their dwellings. now to half the tribe of manasses, moyses had given a possession in basan: and therefore to the half that remained, josue gave a lot among the rest of their brethren beyond the jordan to the west. and when he sent them away to their dwellings and had blessed them, he said to them: with much substance and riches, you return to your settlements, with silver and gold, brass and iron, and variety of raiment: divide the prey of your enemies with your brethren. so the children of ruben, and the children of gad, and the half tribe of manasses returned, and parted from the children of israel in silo, which is in chanaan, to go into galaad the land of their possession, which they had obtained according to the commandment of the lord by the hand of moyses. and when they were come to the banks of the jordan, in the land of chanaan, they built an altar immensely great near the jordan. and when the children of israel had heard of it, and certain messengers had brought them an account that the children of ruben, and of cad, and the half tribe of manasses had built an altar in the land of chanaan, upon the banks of the jordan, over against the children of israel: they all assembled in silo, to go up and fight against them. and in the mean time they sent to them into the land of galaad, phinees the son of eleazar the priest, and ten princes with him, one of every tribe. who came to the children of ruben, and of gad, and the half tribe of manasses, into the land of galaad, and said to them: thus saith all the people of the lord: what meaneth this transgression? why have you forsaken the lord the god of israel, building a sacrilegious altar, and revolting from the worship of him? is it a small thing to you that you sinned with beelphegor, and the stain of that crime remaineth in

us to this day? and many of the people perished. and you have forsaken the lord to day, and to morrow his wrath will rage against all israel. but if you think the land of your possession to be unclean, pass over to the land wherein is the tabernacle of the lord, and dwell among us: only depart not from the lord, and from our society, by building an altar beside the altar of the lord our god. did not achaz the son of zare transgress the commandment of the lord, and his wrath lay upon all the people of israel? and he was but one man, and would to god he alone had perished in his wickedness. and the children of ruben, and of gad, and of the half tribe of manasses answered the princes of the embassy of israel: the lord the most mighty god, the lord the most mighty god, he knoweth, and israel also shall understand: if with the design of transgression we have set up this altar, let him not save us, but punish us immediately: and if we did it with that mind, that we might lay upon it holocausts, and sacrifice, and victims of peace offerings, let him require and judge: and not rather with this thought and design, that we should say: to morrow your children will say to our children: what have you to do with the lord the god of israel? the lord hath put the river jordan for a border between us and you, o ye children of ruben, and ye children of gad: and therefore you have no part in the lord. and by this occasion you children shall turn away our children from the fear of the lord. we therefore thought, it best, and said: let us build us an altar, not for holocausts, nor to offer victims, but for a testimony between us and you, and our posterity and yours, that we may serve the lord, and that we may have a right to offer both holocausts, and victims and sacrifices of peace offerings: and that your children to morrow may not say to our children: you have no part in the lord. and if they will say so, they shall answer them: behold the altar of the lord, which our fathers made, not for holocausts, nor for sacrifice, but for a testimony between us and you. god keep us from any such wickedness that we should revolt from the lord, and leave off following his steps, by building an altar to offer holocausts, and sacrifices, and victims, beside the altar of the lord our god, which is erected before his tabernacle. and when phinees the priest, and the princes of the embassy, who were with him, had heard this, they were satisfied: and they admitted most willingly the words of the children of ruben, and gad, and of the half tribe of manasses. and phinees the priest the son of eleazar said to them: now we know that the lord is with us, because you are not guilty of this revolt, and you have delivered the children of israel from the hand of the lord. and he returned with the princes from the children of ruben and gad, out of the land of galaad, into the land of chanaan, to the children of israel, and brought them word again. and the saying pleased all that heard it. and the children of israel praised god, and they no longer said that they would go up against them, and fight, and destroy the land of their possession. and the children of ruben, and the children of gad called the altar which they had built, our testimony, that the lord is god.

and when a long time was passed, after that the lord had given peace to israel, all the nations round about being subdued, and josue being now old, and far advanced in years: josue called for all israel, and for the elders, and for the princes, and for the judges, and for the masters, and said to them: i am old, and far advanced in years: and you see all that the lord your god hath done to all the nations round about, how he himself hath fought for you: and now since he hath divided to you by lot all the land, from the east of the jordan unto the great sea, and many nations yet remain: the lord your god will destroy them, and take them away from before your face, and you shall possess the land as he hath promised you. only take courage, and be careful to observe all things that are written in the book of the law of moyses: and turn not aside from them neither to the right hand nor to the left: lest after that you are come in among the gentiles, who will remain among you, you should swear by the name of their gods, and serve them, and adore them: but cleave ye unto the lord your god: as you have done until this day. and then the lord god will take away before your eyes nations that are great and very strong, and no man shall be able to resist you. one of you shall chase a thousand men of the enemies: because the lord your god himself will fight for you, as he hath promised. his only take care of with all diligence, that you love the lord your god. but if you will embrace the errors of these nations that dwell among you, and make marriages with them, and join friendships: know ye for a certainty that the lord your god will not destroy them before your face, but they shall be a pit and a snare in your way, and a stumblingblock at your side, and stakes in your eyes, till he take you away and destroy you from off this excellent land, which he hath given you. behold this day i am going into the way of all the earth, and you shall know with all your mind that of all the words which the lord promised to perform for you, not one hath failed. therefore as he hath fulfilled in deed, what he promised, and all things prosperous have come: so will he bring upon you all the evils he hath threatened, till he take you away and destroy you from off this excellent land, which he hath given you, when you shall have transgressed the covenant of the lord your god, which he hath made with you, and shall have served strange gods, and adored them: then shall the indignation of the lord rise up quickly and speedily against you, and you shall be taken away from this excellent land, which he hath delivered to you.

and josue gathered together all the tribes of israel in sichem, and called for the ancients, and the princes, and the judges, and the masters: and they stood in the sight of the lord: and he spoke thus to the people: thus saith the lord the god of israel: your fathers dwelt of old on the other side of the river, thare the father of abraham, and nachor: and they served strange gods. and i took your father abraham from the borders of mesopotamia: and brought him into the land of chanaan: and i multiplied his seed, and gave him isaac: and to him again i gave jacob and esau. and i gave to esau mount seir for his possession: but jacob and his children went down into egypt. and i sent mooses and aaron, and i struck egypt with many signs and wonders. and i brought you and your fathers out of egypt, and you came to the sea: and the egyptians pursued your fathers with chariots and horsemen, as far as the red sea. and the children of israel cried to the lord: and he put darkness between you and the egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and covered them. your eyes saw all that i did in egypt, and you dwelt in the wilderness a long time: and i brought you into the land of the amorrhite, who dwelt beyond the jordan. and when they fought against you, i delivered them into your hands, and you possessed their land, and slew them. and balac son of sephor king of moab arose and fought against israel. and he sent and called for balaam son of beor, to curse you: and i would not hear him, but on the contrary i blessed you by him, and i delivered you out of his hand. and you passed over the jordan, and you came to jericho. and the men of that city fought against you, the amorrhite, and the pherezite, and the chanaanite, and the hethite, and the gergesite, and the hevite, and the jebusite: and i delivered them into your hands. and i sent before you hornets: and i drove them out from their places, the two kings of the amorrhites, not with thy sword nor with thy bow. and i gave you a land, in which you had not laboured, and cities to dwell in which you built not, vineyards and oliveyards, which you planted not. now therefore fear the lord, and serve him with a perfect and most sincere heart: and put away the gods which your fathers served in mesopotamia and in egypt, and serve the lord. but if it seem evil to you to serve the lord, you have your choice: choose this day that which pleaseth you, whom you would rather serve, whether the gods which your fathers served in mesopotamia, or the gods of the amorrhites, in whose land you dwell: but as for me and my house we will serve the lord. and the people answered, and said: god forbid we should leave the lord, and serve strange gods. the lord our god he brought us and our fathers out of the land of egypt, out of the house of bondage: and did very great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way by which we journeyed, and among all the people through whom we passed. and he hath cast out all the nations, the amorrhite the inhabitant of the land into which we are come. therefore we will serve the lord, for he is our god. and josue said to the people: you will not be able to serve the lord: for he is a holy god, and mighty and jealous, and will not forgive your wickedness and sins. if you leave the lord, and serve strange gods, he will turn, and will afflict you, and will destroy you after all the good he hath done you. and the people said to josue: no, it shall not be so as thou sayest, but we will serve the lord. and josue said to the people: you are witnesses, that you yourselves have chosen you the lord to serve him. and they answered: we are witnesses. now therefore, said he, put away strange gods from among you, and incline your hearts to the lord the god of israel. and the people said to josue: we will serve the lord our god, and we will be obedient to his commandments. josue therefore on that day made a covenant, and set before the people commandments and judgments in sichem. and he wrote all these things in the volume of the law of the lord: and he took a great stone, and set it under the oak that was in the sanctuary of the lord. and he said to all the people: behold this stone shall be a testimony unto you, that it hath heard all the words of the lord, which he hath spoken to you: lest perhaps hereafter you will deny it, and lie to the lord your god. and he sent the people away every one to their own possession. and after these things josue the son of null the servant of the lord died, being a hundred and ten years old: and they buried him in the border of his possession in thamnathsare, which is situate in mount ephraim, on the north side of mount gaas. and israel served the lord all the days of josue, and of the ancients that lived a long time after josue, and that had known all the works of the lord which he had done in israel. and the bones of joseph which the children of israel had taken out of egypt, they buried in sichem, in that part of the field which jacob had bought of the sons of hemor the father of sichem, for a hundred young ewes, and it was in the possession of the sons of joseph. eleazar also the son of aaron died: and they buried him in gabaath that belongeth to phinees his son, which was given him in mount ephraim.

after the death of josue the children of israel consulted the lord, saying: who shall go up before us against the chanaanite, and shall be the leader of the war? and the lord said: juda shall go up: behold i have delivered the land into his hands. and juda said to simeon his brother: come up with me into my lot, and fight against the chanaanite, that i also may go along with thee into thy lot. and simeon went with him. and juda went up, and the lord delivered the chanaanite, and the pherezite into their hands: and they slew of them in bezec ten thousand men. and they found adonibezec in bezec, and fought against him, and they defeated the chanaanite, and the pherezite. and adonibezec fled: and they pursued after him and took him, and cut off his fingers and toes. and adonibezec said: seventy kings having their fingers and toes cut off, gathered up the leavings of the meat under my table: as i have done, so hath god required me. and they brought him to jerusalem, and he died there. and the children of juda besieging jerusalem, took it, and put it to the sword, and set the whole city on fire. and afterwards they went down and fought against the chanaanite, who dwelt in the mountains, and in the south, and in the plains. and juda going forward against the chanaanite, that dwelt in hebron (the name whereof was in former times cariah-arbe) slew sesai, and ahiman, and tholmai: and departing from thence he went to the inhabitants of dabir, the ancient name of which was cariah-sepher, that is, the city of letters. and caleb said: he that shall take cariah-sepher, and lay it waste, to him will i give my daughter axa to wife. and othoniel the son of cenez, the younger brother of caleb, having taken it, he gave him axa his daughter to wife. and as she was going on her way her husband admonished her to ask a field of her father. and as she sighed sitting on her ass, caleb said to her: what aileth thee? but she answered: give me a blessing, for thou hast given me a dry land: give me also a watery land. so caleb gave her the upper and the nether watery ground. and the children of the cinite, the kinsman of moyses, went up from the city of palms, with the children of juda into the wilderness of his lot, which is at the south side of arad, and they dwelt with him. and juda went with simeon his brother, and they together defeated the chanaanites that dwelt in sephaath, and slew them. and the name of the city was called horma, that is, anathema. and juda took gaza with its confines, and ascalon and accaron with their confines. and the lord was with juda, and he possessed the hill country: but was not able to destroy the inhabitants of the valley, because they had many chariots armed with scythes. and they gave hebron to caleb, as moyses had said, who destroyed out of it the three sons of enac. but the sons of benjamin did not destroy the jebusites that inhabited jerusalem: and the jebusite hath dwelt with the sons of benjamin in jerusalem until this present day. the house of joseph also went up against bethel, and the lord was with them. for when they were besieging the city, which before was called luza, they saw a man coming out of the city, and they said to him: shew us the entrance into the city, and we will shew thee mercy. and when he had shewn them, they smote the city with the edge of the sword: but that man and all his kindred they let go: who being sent away, went into the land of hethim, and built there a city, and called it luza: which is so called until this day. manasses also did not destroy bethsan, and thanac with their villages, nor the inhabitants of dor, and jebalaam, and mageddo with their villages. and the chanaanite began to dwell with them. but after israel was grown strong he made them tributaries, and would not destroy them. ephraim also did not slay the chanaanite that dwelt in gazer, but dwelt with him. zabulon destroyed not the inhabitants of cetron, and naalol: but the chanaanite dwelt among them, and became their tributaries. aser also destroyed not the inhabitants of accho, and of sidon, of ahalab, and of achazib, and of helba, and of aphec, and of rohob: and he dwelt in the midst of the chanaanites the inhabitants of that land, and did not slay them. nephtali also destroyed not the inhabitants of bethsames, and of bethanath: and he dwelt in the midst of the chanaanites the inhabitants of the land, and the bethsamites and bethanites were tributaries to him. and the amorrhite straitened the children of dan in the mountain, and gave them not place to go down to the plain: and he dwelt in the mountain hares, that is, of potsherds, in aialon and salebim. and the hand of the house of joseph was heavy upon him, and he became tributary to him. and the border of the amorrhite was from the ascent of the scorpion, the rock, and the higher places.

and an angel of the lord went up from galgal to the place of weepers, and said: i made you go out of egypt, and have brought you into the land for which i swore to your fathers: and i promised that i would not make void my covenant with you for ever: on condition that you should not make a league with the inhabitants of this land, but should throw down their altars: and you would not hear my voice: why have you done this? wherefore i would not destroy them from before your face: that you may have enemies, and their gods may be your ruin. and when the angel of the lord spoke these words to all the children of israel, they lifted up their voice, and wept. and the name of that place was called, the place of weepers, or of tears: and there they offered sacrifices to the lord. and josue sent away the people, and the children of israel went every one to his own possession to hold it: and they served the lord all his days, and the days of the ancients, that lived a long time after him, and who knew all the works of the lord, which he had done for israel. and josue the son of nun, the servant of the lord, died, being a hundred and ten years old, and they buried him in the borders of his possession in thamnathsare in mount ephraim, on the north side of mount gas. and all that generation was gathered to their fathers: and there arose others that knew not the lord, and the works which he had done for israel. and the children of israel did evil in the sight of the lord, and they served baalim. and they left the lord the god of their fathers, who had brought them out of the land of egypt: and they followed strange gods, and the gods of the people that dwelt round about them, and they adored them: and they provoked the lord to anger. forsaking him, and serving baal and asarothe. and the lord being angry against israel, delivered them into the hands of plunderers: who took them and sold them to their enemies, that dwelt round about: neither could they stand against their enemies: but whithersoever they meant to go, the hand of the lord was upon them, as he had said, and as he had sworn to them: and they were greatly distressed. and the lord raised up judges, to deliver them from the hands of those that oppressed them: but they would not hearken to them, committing fornication with strange gods, and adoring them. they quickly forsook the way, in which their fathers had walked: and hearing the commandments of the lord, they did all things contrary. and when the lord raised them up judges, in their days he was moved to mercy, and heard the groanings of the afflicted, and delivered them from the slaughter of the oppressors. but after the judge was dead, they returned, and did much worse things than their fathers had done, following strange gods, serving them and adoring them. they left not their own inventions, and the stubborn way, by which they were accustomed to walk. and the wrath of the lord was kindled against israel, and he said: behold this nation hath made void my covenant, which i had made with their fathers, and hath despised to hearken to my voice: i also will not destroy the nations which josue left, when he died: that through them i may try israel, whether they will keep the way of the lord, and walk in it, as their fathers kept it, or not. the lord therefore left all these nations, and would not quickly destroy them, neither did he deliver them into the hands of josue.

these are the nations which the lord left, that by them he might instruct israel, and all that had not known the wars of the chanaanites: that afterwards their children might learn to fight with their enemies, and to be trained up to war: the five princes of the philistines, and all the chanaanites, and the sidonians, and the hevites that dwelt in mount libanus, from mount baal hermon to the entering into emath. and he left them, that he might try israel by them, whether they would hear the commandments of the lord, which he had commanded their fathers by the hand of moyses, or not. so the children of israel dwelt in the midst of the chanaanite, and the hethite, and the amorrhite, and the pherezite, and the hevite, and the jebusite: and they took their daughters to wives, and they gave their own daughters to their sons, and they served their gods. and they did evil in the sight of the lord, and they forgot their god, and served baalim and asarothe. and the lord being angry with israel, delivered them into the hands of chusan rasathaim king of mesopotamia, and they served him eight years. and they cried to the lord, who raised them up a saviour, and delivered them, to wit, othoniel the son of cenez,

the younger brother of caleb: and the spirit of the lord was in him, and he judged israel. and he went out to fight, and the lord delivered into his hands chusan rasathaim king of syria, and he overthrew him. and the land rested forty years, and othoniel the son of cenez died. and the children of israel did evil again in the sight of the lord: who strengthened against them eglon king of moab: because they did evil in his sight. and he joined to him the children of ammon, and amalec: and he went and overthrew israel, and possessed the city of palm trees. and the children of israel served eglon king of moab eighteen years: and afterwards they cried to the lord, who raised them up a saviour called aod, the son of gera, the son of jemini, who used the left hand as well as the right. and the children of israel sent presents to eglon king of moab by him. and he made himself a two-edged sword, with a haft in the midst of the length of the palm of the hand, and was girded therewith under his garment on the right thigh. and he presented the gifts to eglon king of moab. now eglon was exceeding fat. and when he had presented the gifts unto him, he followed his companions that came along with him. then returning from galgal, where the idols were, he said to the king: i have a secret message to thee, o king, and he commanded silence: and all being gone out that were about him, aod went in to him: now he was sitting in a summer parlour alone, and he said: i have a word from god to thee. and he forthwith rose up from his throne, and aod put forth his left hand, and took the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly, with such force that the haft went in after the blade into the wound, and was closed up with the abundance of fat. so that he did not draw out the dagger, but left it in his body as he had struck it in. and forthwith by the secret parts of nature the excrements of the belly came out. but aod carefully shutting the doors of the parlour and locking them, went out by a postern door. and the king's servants going in, saw the doors of the parlour shut, and they said: perhaps he is easing nature in his summer parlour. and waiting a long time till they were ashamed, and seeing that no man opened the door, they took a key: and opening, they found their lord lying dead on the ground. but aod, while they were in confusion, escaped, and passed by the place of the idols, from whence he had returned. and he came to seirath: and forthwith he sounded the trumpet in mount ephraim: and the children of israel went down with him, he himself going in the front. and he said to them: follow me: for the lord hath delivered our enemies the moabites into our hands. and they went down after him, and seized upon the fords of the jordan, which are in the way to moab: and they suffered no man to pass over. but they slew of the moabites at that time, about ten thousand, all strong and valiant men: none of them could escape. and moab was humbled that day under the hand of israel: and the land rested eighty years. after him was samgar the son of anath, who slew of the philistines six hundred men with a ploughshare: and he also defended israel.

and the children of israel again did evil in the sight of the lord after the death of aod, and the lord delivered them up into the hands of jaban king of chanaan, who reigned in asor: and he had a general of his army named sisara, and he dwelt in haroseth of the gentiles. and the children of israel cried to the lord: for he had nine hundred chariots set with scythes, and for twenty years had grievously oppressed them. and there was at that time debbora a prophetess the wife of lapidoth, who judged the people, and she sat under a palm tree, which was called by her name, between rama and bethel in mount ephraim: and the children of israel came up to her for all judgment. and she sent and called barac the son of abinoem out of cedus in nephtali: and she said to him: the lord god of israel hath commanded thee: go, and lead an army to mount thabor, and thou shalt take with thee ten thousand fighting men of the children of nephtali, and of the children of zabulon: and i will bring unto thee in the place of the torrent cison, sisara the general of jabin's army, and his chariots, and all his multitude, and will deliver them into thy hand. and barac said to her: if thou wilt come with me, i will go: if thou wilt not come with me, i will not go. she said to him: i will go indeed with thee, but at this time the victory shall not be attributed to thee, because sisara shall be delivered into the hand of a woman. debbora therefore arose, and went with barac to cedus. and he called unto him zabulon and nephtali, and went up with ten thousand fighting men, having debbora in his company. now haber the cinite had some time before departed from the rest of the cinites his brethren the sons of hobab, the kinsman of moyses: and had pitched his tents unto the valley which is called sellnim, and was near cedus. and it was told sisara, that barac the son of abinoem was gone up to mount thabor: and he gathered together his nine hundred chariots armed with scythes, and all his army from haroseth of the gentiles to the torrent cison. and debbora said to barac: arise, for this is the day wherein the lord hath delivered sisara into thy hands: behold he is thy leader. and barac went down from mount thabor, and ten thousand fighting men with him. and the lord struck a terror into sisara, and all his chariots, and all his multitude, with the edge of the sword, at the sight of barac, insomuch that sisara leaping down from off his chariot, fled away on foot. and barac pursued after the fleeing chariots and the army unto haroseth of the gentiles, and all the multitude of the enemies was utterly destroyed. but sisara fleeing came to the tent of jahel the wife of haber the cinite, for there was peace between jabin the king of asor, and the house of haber the cinite. and jahel went forth to meet sisara, and said to him: come in to me, my lord, come in, fear not. he went in to her tent, and being covered by her with a cloak, said to her: give me, i beseech thee, a little water, for i am very thirsty. she opened a bottle of milk, and gave him to drink, and covered him. and sisara said to her: stand before the door of the tent, and when any shall come and inquire of thee, saying: is there any man here? thou shalt say:

there is none. so jahel haber's wife took a nail of the tent, and taking also a hammer: and going in softly, and with silence, she put the nail upon the temples of his head, and striking it with the hammer, drove it through his brain fast into the ground: and so passing from deep sleep to death, he fainted away and died. and behold barac came pursuing after sisara: and jahel went out to meet him, and said to him: come, and i will shew thee, the man whom thou seekest. and when he came into her tent, he saw sisara lying dead, and the nail fastened in his temples. so god that day humbled jabin the king of chanaan before the children of israel: who grew daily stronger, and with a mighty hand overpowered jabin king of chanaan, till they quite destroyed him.

in that day debbora and barac son of abinoem sung, and said: o you of israel, that have willingly offered your lives to danger, bless the lord. hear, o ye kings, give ear, ye princes: it is i, it is i, that will sing to the lord, i will sing to the lord the god of israel. o lord, when thou wentest out of seir, and passedst by the regions of edom, the earth trembled, and the heavens dropped water. the mountains melted before the face of the lord, and sinai before the face of the lord the god of israel. in the days of samgar the son of anath, in the days of jahel the paths rested: and they that went by them, walked through by-ways. the valiant men ceased, and rested in israel: until debbora arose, a mother arose in israel. the lord chose new wars, and he himself overthrew the gates of the enemies: a shield and spear was not seen among forty thousand of israel. my heart loveth the princes of israel: o you that of your own good will offered yourselves to danger, bless the lord. speak, you that ride upon fair asses, and you that sit in judgment, and walk in the way. where the chariots were dashed together, and the army of the enemies was choked, there let the justices of the lord be rehearsed, and his clemency towards the brave men of israel: then the people of the lord went down to the gates, and obtained the sovereignty. arise, arise, o debbora, arise, arise, and utter a canticle. arise, barac, and take hold of thy captives, o son of abinoem. the remnants of the people are saved, the lord hath fought among the valiant ones. out of ephraim he destroyed them into amalec, and after him out of benjamin into thy people, o amalec: out of machir there came down princes, and out of zabulon they that led the army to fight. the captains of issachar were with debbora, and followed the steps of barac, who exposed himself to danger, as one going headlong, and into a pit. ruben being divided against himself, there was found a strife of courageous men. why dwellest thou between two borders, that thou mayest hear the bleatings of the flocks? ruben being divided against himself, there was found a strife of courageous men. galaad rested beyond the jordan, and dan applied himself to ships: aser dwelt on the sea shore, and abode in the havens. but zabulon and nephtali offered their lives to death in the region of merome. the kings came and fought, the kings of chanaan fought in thanach by the waters of mageddo, and yet they took no spoils. war from heaven was made against them, the stars remaining in their order and courses fought against sisara. the torrent of cison dragged their carcasses, the torrent of cadumim, the torrent of cisoi: tread thou, my soul, upon the strong ones. the hoofs of the horses were broken whilst the stoutest of the enemies fled amain, and fell headlong down. curse ye the land of meroz, said the angel of the lord: curse the inhabitants thereof, because they came not to the help of the lord, to help his most valiant men. blessed among women be jahel the wife of haber the cinite, and blessed be she in her tent. he asked her water and she gave him milk, and offered him butter in a dish fit for princes. she put her left hand to the nail, and her right hand to the workman's hammer, and she struck sisara, seeking in his head a place for the wound, and strongly piercing through his temples. at her feet he fell: he fainted, and he died: he rolled before her feet, and he lay lifeless and wretched. his mother looked out at a window, and howled: and she spoke from the dining room: why is his chariot so long in coming back? why are the feet of his horses so slow? one that was wiser than the rest of his wives, returned this answer to her mother in law: perhaps he is now dividing the spoils, and the fairest of the women is chosen out for him: garments of divers colours are given to sisara for his prey, and furniture of different kinds is heaped together to adorn the necks. so let all thy enemies perish, o lord: but let them that love thee shine, as the sun shineth in his rising. and the land rested for forty years.

and the children of israel again did evil in the sight of the lord: and he delivered them into the hand of madian seven years. and they were grievously oppressed by them. and they made themselves dens and eaves in the mountains, and strong holds to resist. and when israel had sown, madian and amalec, and the rest of the eastern nations came up: and pitching their tents among them, wasted all things as they were in the blade even to the entrance of gaza: and they left nothing at all in israel for sustenance of life, nor sheep, nor oxen, nor asses. for they and all their flocks came with their tents, and like locusts filled all places, an innumerable multitude of men, and of camels, wasting whatsoever they touched. and israel was humbled exceedingly in the sight of madian. and he cried to the lord desiring help against the madianites. and he sent unto them a prophet, and he spoke: thus saith the lord the god of israel: i made you to come up out of egypt, and brought you out of the house of bondage, and delivered you out of the hands of the egyptians, and of all the enemies that afflicted you: and i cast them out at your coming in, and gave you their land. and i said: i am the lord your god, fear not the gods of the amorrites, in whose land you dwell. and you would not hear my voice. and an angel of the lord came, and sat under an oak, that was in ephra, and belonged to joas the father of the family of ezri. and when gedeon his son was threshing and cleansing wheat by the winepress, to flee from madian, the angel of the lord appeared to him, and said: the lord is with thee, o most valiant of men. and gedeon said to him: i beseech thee, my lord, if the lord be with us, why have these evils fallen upon us? where are his miracles, which our fathers have told us of, saying: the lord brought us out of egypt? but now the lord hath forsaken us, and delivered us into the bands of madian. and the lord looked upon him, and said: go in this thy strength, and then shalt deliver israel out of the hand of madian: know that i have sent thee. he answered and said: i beseech thee, my lord, wherewith shall i deliver israel? behold my family is the meanest in manasses, and i am the least in my father's house. and the lord said to him: i will be with thee: and thou shalt cut off madian as one man. and he said: if i have found grace before thee, give me a sign that it is thou that speakest to me, and depart not hence, till i return to thee, and bring a sacrifice, and offer it to thee. and he answered: i will wait thy coming. so gedeon went in, and boiled a kid, and made unleavened loaves of a measure of flour: and putting the flesh in a basket, and the broth of the flesh into a pot, he carried all under the oak, and presented to him. and the angel of the lord said to him: take the flesh and the unleavened loaves, and lay them upon that rock, and pour out the broth thereon. and when he had done so, the angel of the lord put forth the tip of the rod, which he held in his hand, and touched the flesh and the unleavened loaves: and there arose a fire from the rock, and consumed the flesh and the unleavened loaves: and the angel of the lord vanished out of his sight. and gedeon seeing that it was the angel of the lord, said: alas, my lord god: for i have seen the angel of the lord face to face. and the lord said to him: peace be with thee: fear not, thou shalt not die. and gedeon built there an altar to the lord, and called it the lord's peace, until this present day. and when he was yet in ephra, which is of the family of ezri, that night the lord said to him: take a bullock of thy father's, and another bullock of seven years, and thou shalt destroy the altar of baal, which is thy father's: and cut down the grove that is about the altar: and thou shalt build an altar to the lord thy god in the top of this rock, whereupon thou didst lay the sacrifice before: and thou shalt take the second bullock, and shalt offer a holocaust upon a pile of the wood, which thou shalt cut down out of the grove. then gedeon taking ten men of his servants, did as the lord had commanded him. but fearing his father's house, and the men of that city, he would not do it by day, but did all by night. and when the men of that town were risen in the morning, they saw the altar of baal destroyed, and the grove cut down, and the second bullock laid upon the altar, which then was built. and they said one to another: who hath done this? and when they inquired for the author of the fact, it was said: gedeon the son of joas did all this. and they said to joas: bring out thy son hither, that he may die: because he hath destroyed the altar of baal, and hath cut down his grove. he answered them: are you the avengers of baal, that you fight for him? he that is his adversary, let him die before to morrow light appear: if he be a god, let him revenge himself on him that hath cast down his altar. from that day gedeon was called jeroabaal, because joss had said: let baal revenge himself on him that hath cast down his altar. now all madian, and amalec, and the eastern people were gathered together, and passing over the jordan, camped in the valley of jezrael. but the spirit of the lord came upon gedeon, and he sounded the trumpet and called together the house of abiezor, to follow him. and he sent messengers into all manasses, and they also followed him: and other messengers into aser and zabulon and nephtali, and they came to meet him. and gedeon said to god: if thou wilt save israel by my hand, as thou hast said, i will put this fleece of wool on the floor: if there be dew on the fleece only, and it be dry on all the ground beside, i, shall know that by my hand, as thou hast said, thou wilt deliver israel. and it was so. and rising before day wringing the fleece, he filled a vessel with the dew. and he said again to god: let not thy wrath be kindled against me if i try once more, seeking a sign in the fleece. i pray that the fleece only may be dry, and all the ground wet with dew. and god did that night as he had requested: and it was dry on the fleece only, and there was dew on all the ground.

then jeroabaal, who is the same as gedeon, rising up early and all the people with him, came to the fountain that is called harad. now the camp of madian was in the valley on the north side of the high hill. and the lord said to gedeon: the people that are with thee are many, and madian shall not be delivered into their hands: lest israel should glory against me, and say: i was delivered by my own strength. speak to the people, and proclaim in the hearing of all, i whosoever is fearful and timorous, let him return. so two and twenty thousand men went away from mount galaad and returned home, and only ten thousand remained. and the lord said to gedeon: the people are still too many, bring them to the waters, and there i will try them: and of whom i shall say to thee, this shall go with thee, let him go: whom i shall forbid to go, let him return. and when the people were come down to the waters, the lord said to gedeon: they that shall lap the water with their tongues, as dogs are wont to lap, thou shalt set apart by themselves: but they that shall drink bowing down their knees, shall be on the other side. and the number of them that had lapped water, casting it with the hand to their mouth, was three hundred men: and all the rest of the multitude had drunk kneeling. and the lord said to gedeon: by the three hundred men, that lapped water, i will save you, and deliver madian into thy hand: but let all the rest of the people return to their place. so taking victuals and trumpets according to their number, he ordered all the rest of the multitude to depart to their tents: and he with the three hundred gave himself to the battle. now the camp of madian was beneath him in the valley. the same night the lord said to him: arise, and go down into the camp: because i have delivered them into thy hand. but if thou be afraid to go alone, let phara thy servant go down with thee. and when thou shalt hear what they are saying, then shall thy hands be strengthened, and thou shalt go down more secure to the enemies' camp. and he went down with phara his servant into part of the camp, where was the watch of men in arms. but madian and amalec, and all the eastern people lay scattered in the valley, as a multitude of locusts: their camels also were innumerable as the sand that lieth on the sea shore. and when gedeon was come, one told his neighbour a dream: and in this manner related what he had seen: i dreamt a dream, and it seemed to me as if a hearth cake of barley bread rolled and came down into the camp of madian: and when it was come to a tent it struck it, and beat it down flat to the ground. he to whom he spoke, answered: this is nothing else but the sword of gedeon the son of joas a man of israel. for the lord hath delivered madian, and all their camp into his hand. and when gedeon had heard the dream, and the interpretation thereof, he adored: and returned to the camp of israel, and said: arise, for the lord hath delivered the camp of madian into our hands. and he divided the three hundred men into three parts, and gave them trumpets in their hands, and empty pitchers, and lamps within the pitchers. and he said to them: what you shall see me do, do you the same: i will go into one part of the camp, and do you as i shall do. when the trumpet shall sound in my hand, do you also blow the trumpets on every side of the camp. and gedeon, and the three hundred men that were with him, went into part of the camp, at the beginning of the midnight watch, and the watchmen being alarmed, they began to sound their trumpets, and to clap the pitchers one against another. and when they sounded their trumpets in three places round about the camp, and had broken their pitchers, they held their lamps in their left hands, and with their right hands the trumpets which they blew, and they cried out: the sword of the lord and of gedeon; standing every man in his place round about the enemies' camp. so all the camp was troubled, and crying out and howling they fled away. and the three hundred men nevertheless persisted sounding the trumpets. and the lord sent the sword into all the camp, and they killed one another, fleeing as far as bethsetta, and the border of abelmahula in tebbath. but the men of israel shouting from nephtali and aser, and from all manasses pursued after madian. and gedeon sent messengers into all mount ephraim, saying: come down to meet madian, and take the waters before them to bethbera and the jordan. and all ephraim shouted, and took the waters before them and the jordan as far as bethbera. and having taken two men of madian, oreb and zeb: oreb they slew in the rock of oreb, and zeb in the winepress of zeb. and they pursued madian, carrying the heads of oreb and zeb to gedeon beyond the waters of the jordan.

and the men of ephraim said to him: what is this that thou meanest to do, that thou wouldst not call us when thou wentest to fight against madian? and they chid him sharply and almost offered violence. and he answered them: what could i have done like to that which you have done? is not one bunch of grapes of ephraim better than the vintages of abiezer? the lord hath delivered into your hands the princes of madian, oreb and zeb: what could i have done like to what you have done? and when he had said this, their spirit was appeased, with which they swelled against him. and when gedeon was come to the jordan, he passed over it with the three hundred men, that were with him: who were so weary that they could not pursue after them that fled. and he said to the men of soccoth: give, i beseech you, bread to the people that is with me, for they are faint: that we may pursue zebec, and salmana the kings of madian. the princes of soccoth answered: peradventure the palms of the hands of zebec and salmana are in thy hand, and therefore thou demandest that we should give bread to thy army. and he said to them: when the lord therefore shall have delivered zebec and salmana into my hands, i will thresh your flesh with the thorns and briers of the desert. and going up from thence, he came to phanuel: and he spoke the like things to the men of that place. and they also answered him, as the men of soccoth had answered. he said therefore to them also: when i shall return a conqueror in peace, i will destroy this tower. but zebec and salmana were resting with all their army. for fifteen thousand men were left of all the troops of the eastern people, and one hundred and twenty thousand warriors that drew the sword, were slain. and gedeon went up by the way of them that dwelt in tents, on the east of nobe and jegbaa, and smote the camp of the enemies, who were secure, and suspected no hurt. and zebec and salmana fled, and gedeon pursued and took them, all their host being put in confusion. and returning from the battle before the sun rising, he took a boy of the men of soccoth: and he asked him the names of the princes and ancients of soccoth, and he described unto him seventy-seven men. and he came to soccoth and said to them: behold zebec and salmana, concerning whom you upbraided me, saying: peradventure the hands of zebec and salmana, are in thy hands, and therefore thou demandest that we should give bread to the men that are weary and faint. so he took the ancients of the city and thorns and briers of the desert, and tore them with the same, and cut in pieces the men of soccoth. and he demolished the tower of phanuel, and slew the men of the city. and he said to zebec and salmana: what manner of men were they whom you slew in thabor? they answered: they were like thee, and one of them as the son of a king. he answered them: they were my brethren, the sons of my mother. as the lord liveth, if you had saved them, i would not kill you. and he said to jether his eldest son: arise, and slay them. but he drew not his sword: for he was afraid, being but yet a boy. and zebec and salmana said: do thou rise, and run upon us: because the strength of a man is according to his age: gedeon rose up and slew zebec and salmana: and he took the ornaments and bosses, with which the necks of the camels of kings are wont to be adorned. and all the men of israel said to gedeon:

rule thou over us and thy son, and thy son's son: because thou hast delivered us from the hand of madian. and he said to them: i will not rule over you, neither shall my son rule over you, but the lord shall rule over you. and he said to them: i desire one request of you: give me the earlets of your spoils. for the ismaelites were accustomed to wear golden earlets. they answered: we will give them most willingly. and spreading a mantle on the ground, they cast upon it the earlets of the spoils. and the weight of the earlets that he requested, was a thousand seven hundred sicles of gold, besides the ornaments, and jewels, and purple raiment which the kings of madian were wont to use, and besides the golden chains that were about the camels' necks. and gedeon made an ephod thereof, and put it in his city ephra. and all israel committed fornication with it, and it became a ruin to gedeon and to all his house. but madian was humbled before the children of israel, neither could they any more lift up their heads: but the land rested for forty years, while gedeon presided. so jerobaal the son of joas went, and dwelt in his own house. and he had seventy sons, who came out of his thigh, for he had many wives. and his concubine, that he had in sichem, bore him a son, whose name was abimelech. and gedeon the son of joas died in a good old age, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father in ephra of the family of ezri. but after gedeon was dead, the children of israel turned again, and committed fornication with baalim. and they made a covenant with baal, that he should be their god: and they remembered not the lord their god, who delivered them out of the hands of all their enemies round about: neither did they shew mercy to the house of jerobaal gedeon, according to all the good things he had done to israel.

and abimelech the son of jerobaal went to sichem to his mother's brethren and spoke to them, and to all the kindred of his mother's father, saying: speak to all the men of sichem: whether is better for you that seventy men all the sons of jerobaal should rule over you, or that one man should rule over you? and withal consider that i am your bone, and your flesh. and his mother's brethren spoke of him to all the men of sichem, all these words, and they inclined their hearts after abimelech, saying: he is our brother: and they gave him seventy weight of silver out of the temple of baalberith: wherewith he hired to himself men that were needy, and vagabonds, and they followed him. and he came to his father's house in ephra, and slew his brethren the sons of jerobaal, seventy men, upon one stone: and there remained only joatham the youngest son of jerobaal, who was hidden. and all the men of sichem were gathered together, and all the families of the city of mello: and they went and made abimelech king, by the oak that stood in sichem. this being told to joatham, he went and stood on the top of mount garizim: and lifting up his voice, he cried, and said: hear me, ye men of sichem, so may god hear you. the trees went to anoint a king over them: and they said to the olive tree: reign thou over

us. and it answered: can i leave my fatness, which both gods and men make use of, to come to be promoted among the trees? and the trees said to the fig tree: come thou and reign over us. and it answered them: can i leave my sweetness, and my delicious fruits, and go to be promoted among the other trees? and the trees said to the vine: come thou and reign over us. and it answered them: can i forsake my wine, that cheereth god and men, and be promoted among the other trees? and all the trees said to the bramble: come thou and reign over us. and it answered them: if indeed you mean to make me king, come ye and rest under my shadow: but if you mean it not, let fire come out from the bramble, and devour the cedars of libanus. now therefore if you have done well, and without sin in appointing abimelech king over you, and have dealt well with jerobaal, and with his house, and have made a suitable return for the benefits of him, who fought for you, and exposed his life to dangers, to deliver you from the hands of madian, and you are now risen up against my father's house, and have killed his sons seventy men upon one stone, and have made abimelech the son of his handmaid king over the inhabitants of sichem, because he is your brother: if therefore you have dealt well, and without fault with jerobaal, and his house, rejoice ye this day in abimelech, and may he rejoice in you. but if unjustly: let fire come out from him, and consume the inhabitants of sichem, and the town of mello: and let fire come out from the men of sichem, and from the town of mello, and devour abimelech. and when he had said thus he fled, and went into bera: and dwelt there for fear of abimelech his brother. so abimelech reigned over israel for three years. and the lord sent a very evil spirit between abimelech and the inhabitants of sichem: who began to detest him, and to leave the crime of the murder of the seventy sons of jerobaal, and the shedding of their blood upon abimelech their brother, and upon the rest of the princes of the sichemites, who aided him. and they set an ambush against him on the top of the mountains: and while they waited for his coming, they committed robberies, taking spoils of all that passed by: and it was told abimelech. and gaal the son of obed came with his brethren, and went over to sichem. and the inhabitants of sichem taking courage at his coming, went out into the fields, wasting the vineyards, and treading down the grapes: and singing and dancing they went into the temple of their god, and in their banquets and cups they cursed abimelech. and gaal the son of obed cried: who is abimelech, and what is sichem, that we should serve him? is he not the son of jerobaal, and hath made zebul his servant ruler over the men of emor the father of sichem? why then shall we serve him? would to god that some man would put this people under my hand, that i might remove abimelech out of the way. and it was said to abimelech: gather together the multitude of an army, and come. for zebul the ruler of the city, hearing the words of gaal, the son of obed, was very angry, and sent messengers privately to abimelech, saying: behold gaal the son of obed is come into sichem with his brethren, and endeavoureth to set the city against thee. arise therefore in the night with the people that is with thee and he hid in the field: and betimes in the morning at sun rising set upon the city. and when he shall come out against thee with his people, do to him what thou shalt be able. abimelech therefore arose with all his army by night, and laid ambushes near sichem in four places. and gaal the son of obed went out, and stood in the entrance of the gate of the city. and abimelech rose up, and all his army with him from the places of the ambushes. and when gaal saw the people, he said to zebul: behold a multitude cometh down from the mountains. and he answered him: thou seest the shadows of the mountains as if they were the heads of men, and this is thy mistake. again gaal said: behold there cometh people down from the middle of the land, and one troop cometh by the way that looketh towards the oak. and zebul said to him: where is now thy mouth wherewith thou saidst? who is abimelech that we should serve him? is not this the people which thou didst despise? go out, and fight against him. so gaal went out in the sight of the people of sichem, and fought against abimelech, who chased and put him to flight, and drove him to the city: and many were slain of his people, even to the gate of the city: and abimelech sat down in ruma: but zebul drove gaal, and his companions out of the city, and would not suffer them to abide in it. so the day following the people went out into the field. and it was told abimelech. and he took his army, and divided it into three companies, and laid ambushes in the fields. and seeing that the people came out of the city, he arose and set upon them, with his own company, assaulting and besieging the city: whilst the two other companies chased the enemies that were scattered about the field. and abimelech assaulted the city all that day: and took it, and killed the inhabitants thereof, and demolished it, so that he sowed salt in it. and when they who dwelt in the tower of sichem had heard this, they went into the temple of their god berith where they had made a covenant with him, and from thence the place had taken its name, and it was exceeding strong. abimelech also hearing that the men of the tower of sichem were gathered together, went up into mount selmon he and all his people with him: and taking an axe, he cut down the bough of a tree, and laying it on his shoulder and carrying it, he said to his companions: what you see me do, do you out of hand. so they cut down boughs from the trees, every man as fast as he could, and followed their leader. and surrounding the fort they set it on fire: and so it came to pass that with the smoke and with the fire a thousand persons were killed, men and women together, of the inhabitants of the tower of sichem. then abimelech departing from thence came to the town of thebes, which he surrounded and besieged with his army. and there was in the midst of the city a high tower, to which both the men and the women were fled together, and all the princes of the city, and having shut and strongly barred the gate, they stood upon the battlements of the tower to defend themselves. and abimelech coming near the tower, fought stoutly: and approaching to the gate, endeavoured to set fire to it: and behold a certain woman casting a piece of a millstone from above, dashed it against the head of abimelech, and broke his skull. and he called hastily to his armourbearer, and said to him: draw thy sword, and kill me: lest it should be said that i was slain by a woman. he did as he was commanded, and slew him. and when he was dead, all the men of israel that were with him, returned to their homes. and god repaid the evil, that abimelech had done against his father, killing his seventy brethren. the sichemites also were rewarded for what they had done, and the curse of joatham the son of jeroabaal came upon them.

after abimelech there arose a ruler in israel, thola son of phua the uncle of abimelech, a man of issachar, who dwelt in samir of mount ephraim: and he judged israel three and twenty years, and he died and was buried in samir. to him succeeded jair the galaadite, who judged israel for two and twenty years. having thirty sons that rode on thirty ass colts, and were princes of thirty cities, which from his name were called havoth jair, that is, the towns of jair, until this present day in the land of galaad. and jair died: and was buried in the place which was called camon. but the children of israel, adding new sins to their old ones, did evil in the sight of the lord, and served idols, baalim and asaroth, and the gods of syria and of sidon and of moab and of the children of ammon and of the philistines: and they left the lord, and did not serve him. and the lord being angry with them, delivered them into the hands of the philistines and of the children of ammon. and they were afflicted, and grievously oppressed for eighteen years, all they that dwelt beyond the jordan in the land of the amorrhite, who is in galaad: insomuch that the children of ammon passing over the jordan, wasted juda and benjamin and ephraim: and israel was distressed exceedingly. and they cried to the lord, and said: we have sinned against thee, because we have forsaken the lord our god, and have served baalim. and the lord said to them: did not the egyptians and the amorrhites, and the children of ammon and the philistines, the sidonians also and amalec and chanaan oppress you, and you cried to me, and i delivered you out of their hand? and yet you have forsaken me, and have worshipped strange gods: therefore i will deliver you no more: go and call upon the gods which you have chosen: let them deliver you in the time of distress. and the children of israel said to the lord: we have sinned, do thou unto us whatsoever pleaseth thee: only deliver us this time. and saying these things, they cast away out of their coasts all the idols of strange gods and served the lord their god: and he was touched with their miseries. and the children of ammon shouting together, pitched their tents in galaad: against whom the children of israel assembled themselves together and camped in maspha. and the princes of galaad said one to another: whosoever of us shall first begin to fight against the children of ammon, he shall be the leader of the people of galaad.

there was at that time jephte the galaadite, a most valiant man and a warrior, the son of a woman that was a harlot, and his father was galaad. now galaad had a wife of whom he had sons: who after they were grown up, thrust out jephte, saying: thou canst not inherit in the house of our father, because thou art born of another mother. then he fled and avoided them and dwelt in the land of tob: and there were gathered to him needy men, and robbers, and they followed him as their prince. in those days the children of ammon made war against israel. and as they pressed hard upon them, the ancients of galaad went to fetch jephte out of the land of tob to help them: and they said to him: come thou and be our prince, and fight against the children of ammon. and he answered them: are not you the men that hated me, and cast me out of my father's house, and now you are come to me constrained by necessity? and the princes of galaad said to jephte: for this cause we are now come to thee, that thou mayst go with us, and fight against the children of ammon, and be head over all the inhabitants of galaad. jephte also said to them: if you be come to me sincerely, that i should fight for you against the children of ammon, and the lord shall deliver them into my band, shall i be your prince? they answered him: the lord who heareth these things, he himself is mediator and witness that we will do as we have promised. jephte therefore went with the princes of galaad, and all the people made him their prince. and jephte spoke all his words before the lord in maspha. and he sent messengers to the king of the children of ammon, to say in his name, what hast thou to do with me, that thou art come against me, to waste my land? and he answered them: i because israel took away my land when he came up out of egypt, from the confines of the arnon unto the jaboc and the jordan: now therefore restore the same peaceably to me. and jephte again sent word by them, and commanded them to say to the king of ammon: thus saith jephte: israel did not take away the land of moab, nor the land of the children of ammon: but when they came up out of egypt, he walked through the desert to the red sea and came into cades. and he sent messengers to the king of edom, saying: suffer me to pass through thy land. but he would not condescend to his request. he sent also to the king of moab, who likewise refused to give him passage. he abode therefore in cades, and went round the land of edom at the side, and the land of moab: and came over against the east coast of the land of moab, and camped on the other side of the arnon: and he would not enter the bounds of moab. so israel sent messengers to sehon king of the amorrhites, who dwelt in hesebon, and they said to him: suffer me to pass through thy land to the river. but he also despising the words of israel, suffered him not to pass through his borders: but gathering an infinite multitude, went out against him to jasa, and made strong opposition. and the lord delivered him with all his army into the hands of israel, and he slew him, and possessed all the land of the amorrhite the inhabitant of that country, and all the coasts thereof

from the arnon to the jacob, and from the wilderness to the jordan. so the lord the god of israel destroyed the amorrite, his people of israel fighting against him, and wilt thou now possess this land? are not those things which thy god chamos possesseth, due to thee by right? but what the lord our god hath obtained by conquest, shall be our possession: unless perhaps thou art better than balac the son of sephor king of moab: or canst shew that he strove against israel and fought against him, whereas he hath dwelt in hesebon, and the villages thereof, and in areroer, and its villages, and in all the cities near the jordan, for three hundred years. why have you for so long a time attempted nothing about this claim? therefore i do not trespass against thee, but thou wrongest me by declaring an unjust war against me. the lord be judge and decide this day between israel and the children of ammon. and the king of the children of ammon would not hearken to the words of jephte, which he sent him by the messengers. therefore the spirit of the lord came upon jephte, and going round galaad, and manasses, and maspha of galaad, and passing over from thence to the children of ammon, he made a vow to the lord, saying: if thou wilt deliver the children of ammon into my hands, whosoever shall first come forth out of the doors of my house, and shall meet me when i return in peace from the children of ammon, the same will i offer a holocaust to the lord. and jephte passed over to the children of ammon, to fight against them: and the lord delivered them into his hands. and he smote them from areroer till you come to mennith, twenty cities, and as far as abel, which is set with vineyards, with a very great slaughter: and the children of ammon were humbled by the children of israel. and when jephte returned into maspha to his house, his only daughter met him with timbrels and with dances: for he had no other children. and when he saw her, he rent his garments, and said: alas! my daughter, thou hast deceived me, and thou thyself art deceived: for i have opened my mouth to the lord, and i can do no other thing. and she answered him: my father, if thou hast opened thy mouth to the lord, do unto me whatsoever thou hast promised, since the victory hath been granted to thee, and revenge of thy enemies. and she said to her father: grant me only this which i desire: let me go, that i may go about the mountains for two months, and may bewail my virginity with my companions. and he answered her: go. and he sent her away for two months. and when she was gone with her comrades and companions, she mourned her virginity in the mountains. and the two months being expired, she returned to her father, and he did to her as he had vowed, and she knew no man. from thence came a fashion in israel, and a custom has been kept: that from year to year the daughters of israel assemble together, and lament the daughter of jephte the galaadite for four days.

but behold there arose a sedition in ephraim. and passing towards the north, they said to jephte: when thou wentest to fight against the children of ammon, why wouldst thou not call us, that we might go with thee? therefore we will burn thy house. and he answered them: i and my people were at great strife with the children of ammon: and i called you to assist me, and you would not do it. and when i saw this, i put my life in my own hands, and passed over against the children of ammon, and the lord delivered them into my hands. what have i deserved, that you should rise up to fight against me? then calling to him all the men of galaad, he fought against ephraim: and the men of galaad defeated ephraim, because he had said: galaad is a fugitive of ephraim, and dwelleth in the midst of ephraim and manasses. and the galaadites secured the fords of the jordan, by which ephraim was to return. and when any one of the number of ephraim came thither in the flight, and said: i beseech you let me pass: the galaadites said to him: art thou not an ephraimite? if he said: i am not: they asked him: say then, scibboleth, which is interpreted, an ear of corn. but he answered, sibboleth, not being able to express an ear of corn by the same letter. then presently they took him and killed him in the very passage of the jordan. and there fell at that time of ephraim two and forty thousand. and jephte the galaadite judged israel six years: and he died, and was buried in his city of galaad. after him abesam of bethlehem judged israel: he had thirty sons, and as many daughters, whom he sent abroad, and gave to husbands, and took wives for his sons of the same number, bringing them into his house. and he judged israel seven years: and he died, and was buried in bethlehem. to him succeeded ahialon a zahnlonite: and he judged israel ten years: and he died, and was buried in zahnion. after him abdon, the son of illel, a pharathonite, judged israel: and he had forty sons, and of them thirty grandsons, mounted upon seventy ass colts, and he judged israel eight years: and he died, and was buried in pharathon in the land of ephraim, in the mount of amalech.

and the children of israel did evil again in the sight of the lord: and he delivered them into the hands of the philistines forty years. now there was a certain man of saraa, and of the race of dan, whose name was manue, and his wife was barren. and an angel of the lord appeared to her, and said: thou art barren and without children: but thou shalt conceive and bear a son. now therefore beware and drink no wine nor strong drink, and eat not any unclean thing. because thou shalt conceive and bear a son, and no razor shall touch his head: for he shall be a nazirite of god, from his infancy, and from his mother's womb, and he shall begin to deliver israel from the hands of the philistines. and when she was come to her husband she said to him: a man of god came to me, having the countenance of an angel, very awful. and when i asked him who he was, and whence he came, and by what name he was called, he would not tell me. but he answered thus: behold thou shalt conceive and bear a son: beware thou drink no wine, nor strong drink, nor eat any unclean thing: for the child shall be a nazirite of god from his infancy, from his mother's womb until the day of his death. then manue prayed to the lord, and said: i beseech thee, o lord, that the mail of god, whom thou didst send, may come again, and teach us what we ought to do concerning the child that shall be born. and the lord heard the prayer of manue, and the angel of the lord appeared again to his wife as she was sitting in the field. but manue her husband was not with her. and when she saw the angel, she made haste and ran to her husband: and told him saying: behold the man hath appeared to me whom i saw before. he rose up and followed his wife: and coming to the man, said to him: art thou he that spoke to the woman? and he answered: i am. and manue said to him: when thy word shall come to pass, what wilt thou that the child should do? or from what shall he keep himself? and the angel of the lord said to manue: from all the things i have spoken of to thy wife, let her refrain herself: and let her eat nothing that cometh of the vine, neither let her drink wine or strong drink, nor eat any unclean thing: and whatsoever i have commanded her, let her fulfil and observe. and manue said to the angel of the lord: i beseech thee to consent to my request, and let us dress a kid for thee. and the angel answered him: if thou press me, i will not eat of thy bread: but if thou wilt offer a holocaust, offer it to the lord. and manue knew not it was the angel of the lord. and he said to him: what is thy name, that, if thy word shall come to pass, we may honour thee? and he answered him: why askest thou my name, which is wonderful? then manue took a kid of the flocks, and the libations, and put them upon a rock, offering to the lord, who doth wonderful things: and he and his wife looked on. and when the flame from the altar went up towards heaven, the angel of the lord ascended also in the flame. and when manue and his wife saw this, they fell flat on the ground. and the angel of the lord appeared to them no more. and forthwith manue understood that it was an angel of the lord, and he said to his wife: we shall certainly die, because we have seen god. and his wife answered him: if the lord had a mind to kill us, he would not have received a holocaust and libations at our hands, neither would he have shewed us all these things, nor have told us the things that are to come. and she bore a son, and called his name samson. and the child grew, and the lord blessed him. and the spirit of the lord began to be with him in the camp of dan, between saraa and esthaol.

then samson went down to thamnatia, and seeing there a woman of the daughters of the philistines, he came up, and told his father and his mother, saying: i saw a woman in thamnatha of the daughters of the philistines: i beseech you, take her for me to wife. and his father and mother said to him: is there no woman among the daughters of thy brethren, or among all my people, that thou wilt take a wife of the philistines, who are uncircumcised? and samson said to his father: take this woman for me, for she hath pleased my eyes. now his parents knew not that the thing was done by the lord, and that he sought an occasion against the philistines: for at that time the philistines had dominion over israel. then samson went down with his father and mother to thamnatha. and when they were come to the vineyards of the town, behold a young lion met him raging and roaring. and the spirit of the lord came upon samson, and he tore the lion as he would have torn a kid in pieces, having nothing at all in his hand: and he would not tell this to his father and mother. and he went down and spoke to the woman that had pleased his eyes. and after some days returning to take her, he went aside to see the carcass of the lion, and behold there was a swarm of bees in the mouth of the lion and a honeycomb. and when he had taken it in his hands, he went on eating: and coming to his father and mother, he gave them of it, and they ate: but he would not tell them, that he had taken the honey from the body of the lion. so his father went down to the woman, and made a feast for his son samson: for so the young men used to do. and when the citizens of that place saw him, they brought him thirty companions to be with him. and samson said to them: i will propose to you a riddle, which if you declare unto me within the seven days of the feast, i will give you thirty shirts, and as many coats: but if you shall not be able to declare it, you shall give me thirty shirts and the same number of coats. they answered him: put forth the riddle that we may hear it. and he said to them: out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness. and they could not in three days expound the riddle. and when the seventh day came, they said to the wife of samson: soothe thy husband, and persuade him to tell thee what the riddle meaneth. but if thou wilt not do it, we will burn thee, and thy father's house. have you called us to the wedding on purpose to strip us? so she wept before samson and complained, saying: thou hatest me, and dost not love me: therefore thou wilt not expound to me the riddle which thou hast proposed to the sons of my people. but he answered: i would not tell it to my father and mother, and how can i tell it to thee? so she wept before him the seven days of the feast: and at length on the seventh day as she was troublesome to him, he expounded it. and she immediately told her countrymen. and they on the seventh day before the sun went down said to him: what is sweeter than honey? and what is stronger than a lion? and he said to them: if you had not ploughed with my heifer, you had not found out my riddle. and the spirit of the lord came upon him, and he went down to ascalon, and slew there thirty men, whose garments he took away and gave to them that had declared the riddle. and being exceedingly angry he went up to his father's house: but his wife took one of his friends and bridal companions for her husband.

and a while after, when the days of the wheat harvest were at hand, samson came, meaning to visit his wife, and he brought her a kid of the flock. and when he would have gone into her chamber as usual, her father would not suffer him, saying: i thought thou hadst hated her, and therefore i gave her to thy friend: but she hath a sister, who is younger and fairer than she, take her to wife instead of her. and samson answered him: from this day i shall be blameless in what i do against the philistines: for i will do you evils. and he went and caught three hundred foxes, and coupled them tail to tail, and fastened torches between the tails. and setting them on fire he let the foxes go, that they might run about hither and thither. and they presently went into the standing corn of the philistines. which being set on fire, both the corn that was already carried together, and that which was yet standing, was all burnt, insomuch, that the flame consumed also the vineyards and the oliveyards. then the philistines said: who hath done this thing? and it was answered: samson the son in law of the thamnathite, because he took away his wife, and gave her to another, hath done these things. and the philistines went up and burnt both the woman and her father. but samson said to them: although you have done this, yet will i be revenged of you, and then i will be quiet. and he made a great slaughter of them, so that in astonishment they laid the calf of the leg upon the thigh. and going down he dwelt in a cavern of the rock etam. then the philistines going up into the land of juda, camped in the place which afterwards was called lechi, that is, the jawbone, where their army was spread. and the men of the tribe of juda said to them: why are you come up against us? they answered: we are come to bind samson, and to pay him for what he hath done against us. wherefore three thousand men of juda, went down to the cave of the rock etam, and said to samson: knowest thou not that the philistines rule over us? why wouldst thou do thus? and he said to them: as they did to me, so have i done to them. and they said to him, we are come to bind thee and to deliver thee into the hands of the philistines. and samson said to them: swear to me, and promise me, that you will not kill me. they said: we will not kill thee: but we will deliver thee up bound. and they bound him with two new cords, and brought him from the rock etam. now when he was come to the place of the jawbone, and the philistines shouting went to meet him, the spirit of the lord came strongly upon him: and as the flax is wont to be consumed at the approach of fire, so the bands with which he was bound were broken and loosed. and finding a jawbone, even the jawbone of an ass which lay there, catching it up, he slew therewith a thousand men. and he said: with the jawbone of an ass, with the jaw of the colt of asses i have destroyed them, and have slain a thousand men. and when he had ended these words singing, he threw the jawbone out of his hand, and called the name of that place ramathlechi, which is interpreted the lifting up of the jawbone. arid being very thirsty, he cried to the lord, and said: thou hast given this very great deliverance and victory into the hand of thy servant: and behold i die for thirst, and shall fall into the hands of the uncircumcised. then the lord opened a great tooth in the jaw of the ass, and waters issued out of it. and when he had drank them he refreshed his spirit, and recovered his strength. therefore the name of that place was called, the spring of him that invoked from the jawbone, until this present day. and he judged israel in the days of the philistines twenty years.

he went also into gaza, and saw there a woman a harlot, and went in unto her. and when the philistines had heard this, and it was noised about among them, that samson was come into the city, they surrounded him, setting guards at the gate of the city, and watching there all the night in silence, that in the morning they might kill him as he went out. but samson slept till midnight, and then rising he took both the doors of the gate, with the posts thereof, and the bolt, and laying them on his shoulders, carried them up to the top of the hill, which looketh towards hebron. after this he loved a woman, who dwelt in the valley of sorec, and she was called dalila. and the princes of the philistines came to her, and said: deceive him, and learn of him wherein his great strength lieth, and how we may be able to overcome him, to bind and afflict him: which if thou shalt do, we will give thee every one of us eleven hundred pieces of silver. and dalila said to samson: tell me, i beseech thee, wherein thy greatest strength lieth, and what it is wherewith if thou wert bound thou couldst not break loose. and samson answered her: if i shall be bound with seven cords made of sinews not yet dry, but still moist, i shall be weak like other men. and the princes of the philistines brought unto her seven cords, such is he spoke of, with which she bound him; men lying privately in wait with her, and in the chamber expecting the event of the thing, and she cried out to him: the philistines are upon thee, samson. and he broke the bands, as a man would break a thread of tow twined with spittle, when it smelleth the fire: so it was not known wherein his strength lay. and dalila said to him: behold thou hast mocked me, and hast told me a false thing: but now at least tell me wherewith thou mayest be bound. and he answered her: if i shall be bound with new ropes, that were never in work, i shall be weak and like other men. dalila bound him again with these, and cried out: the philistines are upon thee, samson, there being an ambush prepared for him in the chamber. but he broke the bands like threads of webs. and dalila said to him again: how long dost thou deceive me, and tell me lies? shew me wherewith thou mayest be bound. and samson answered her: if thou plattest the seven locks of my head with a lace, and tying them round about a nail fastenest it in the ground, i shall be weak. and when dalila had done this, she said to him: the philistines are upon thee, samson. and awaking out of his sleep he drew out the nail with the hairs and the lace. and dalila said to him: how dost thou say thou lovest me, when thy mind is not with me? thou hast told me lies these three times, and wouldst not tell me wherein thy great strength lieth. and when she pressed him much, and continually hung upon him for many days, giving him no time to rest, his soul fainted away, and was wearied even until death. then opening the truth of the thing, he said to her: the razor hath never come upon my head, for i am a nazirite, that is to say, consecrated to god from my mother's womb: if my head be shaven, my strength shall depart from me, and i shall become weak, and shall be like other men. then seeing that he had discovered to her all his mind, she sent to the princes of the philistines, saying: come up this once more, for now he hath opened his heart to me. and they went up taking with them the money which they had promised. but she made him sleep upon her knees, and lay his head in her bosom. and she called a barber, and shaved his seven locks, and began to drive him away, and thrust him from her: for immediately his strength departed from him. and she said: the philistines are upon thee, samson. and awaking from sleep, he said in his mind: i will go out as i did before, and shake myself, not knowing that the lord was departed from him. then the philistines seized upon him, and forthwith pulled out his eyes, and led him bound in chains to gaza, and shutting him up in prison made him grind. and now his hair began to grow again. and the princes of the philistines assembled together, to offer great sacrifices to dagon their god, and to make merry, saying: our god hath delivered our enemy samson into our hands. and the people also seeing this, praised their god, and said the same: our god hath delivered our adversary into our bands, him that destroyed our country and killed very many. and rejoicing in their feasts, when they had now taken their good cheer, they commanded that samson should be called, and should play before them. and being brought out of prison he played before them, and they made him stand between two pillars. and he said to the lad that guided his steps: suffer me to touch the pillars which support the whole house, and let me lean upon them, and rest a little. now the house was full of men and women, and all the princes of the philistines were there. moreover about three thousand persons of both sexes from the roof and the higher part of the house, were beholding samson's play. but he called upon the lord, saying: o lord god, remember me, and restore to me now my former strength, o my god, that i may revenge myself on my enemies, and for the loss of my two eyes i may take one revenge. and laying hold on both the pillars on which the house rested, and holding the one with his right hand, and the other with his left, he said: let me die with the philistines. and when he had strongly shook the pillars, the house fell upon all the princes, and the rest of the multitude that was there: and he killed many more at his death, than he had killed before in his life. and his brethren and all his kindred, going down took his body, and buried it between saraa and esthaol in the buryingplace of his father manue: and he judged israel twenty years.

there was at that time a man of mount ephraim whose name was michas, who said to his mother: the eleven hundred pieces of silver, which thou hadst put aside for thyself, and concerning which thou didst swear in my hearing, behold i have, and they are with me. and

she said to him: blessed be my son by the lord. so he restored them to his mother, who said to him: i have consecrated and vowed this silver to the lord, that my son may receive it at my hand, and make a graven and a molten god, so now i deliver it to thee. and he restored them to his mother: and she took two hundred pieces of silver and gave them to the silversmith, to make of them a graven and a molten god, which was in the house of michas. and he separated also therein a little temple for the god, and made an ephod, and theraphim, that is to say, a priestly garment, and idols: and he filled the hand of one of his sons, and he became his priest. in those days there was no king in israel, but every one did that which seemed right to himself. there was also another young man of bethlehem juda, of the kindred thereof: and he was a levite, and dwelt there. now he went out from the city of bethlehem, and desired to sojourn wheresoever he should find it convenient for him. and when he was come to mount ephraim, as he was on his journey, and had turned aside a little into the house of michas, he was asked by him whence he came. and he answered: i am a levite of bethlehem juda, and i am going to dwell where i can, and where i shall find a place to my advantage. and michas said: stay with me, and be unto me a father and a priest, and i will give thee every year ten pieces of silver, and a double suit of apparel, and thy victuals. he was content, and abode with the man, and was unto him as one of his sons. and michas filled his hand, and had the young man with him, for his priest, saying: now i know god will do me good, since i have a priest of the race of the levites.

in those days there was no king in israel, and the tribe of dan sought them an inheritance to dwell in: for unto that day they had not received their lot among the other tribes. so the children of dan sent five most valiant men of their stock and family from saraa and esthaol, to spy out the land, and to view it diligently: and they said to them: go, and view the land. they went on their way, and when they came to mount ephraim, they went into the house of michas, and rested there: and knowing the voice of the young man the levite, and lodging with him, they said to him: who brought thee hither? what dost thou here? why wouldst thou come hither? he answered them: michas hath done such and such things for me, and hath hired me to be his priest. then they desired him to consult the lord, that they might know whether their journey should be prosperous, and the thing should have effect. he answered them: go in peace, the lord looketh on your way, and the journey that you go. so the five men going on came to lais: and they saw how the people dwelt therein without any fear, according to the custom of the sidonians, secure and easy, having no man at all to oppose them, being very rich, and living separated, at a distance from sidon and from all men. and they returned to their brethren in saraa and esthaol, who asked them what they had done? to whom they answered: arise, and let us go up to them: for we have seen the land which is exceeding rich and fruitful: neglect not, lose no time: let us go and possess it, there will be no difficulty. we shall come to a people that is secure, into a spacious country, and the lord will deliver the place to us, in which there is no want of any thing that groweth on the earth. there went therefore of the kindred of dan, to wit, from saraa and esthaol, six hundred men, furnished with arms for war, and going up they lodged in cariathiarim of juda: which place from that time is called the camp of dan, and is behind cariathiarim. from thence they passed into mount ephraim. and when they were come to the house of michas, the five men, that before had been sent to view the land of lais, said to the rest of their brethren: you know that in these houses there is an ephod, and theraphim, and a graven, and a molten god: see what you are pleased to do. and when they had turned a little aside, they went into the house of the young man the levite, who was in the house of michas: and they saluted him with words of peace. and the six hundred men stood before the door, appointed with their arms. but they that were gone into the house of the young man, went about to take away the graven god, and the ephod, and the theraphim, and the molten god, and the priest stood before the door, the six hundred valiant men waiting not far off. so they that were gone in took away the graven thing, the ephod, and the idols, and the molten god. and the priest said to them: what are you doing? and they said to him: hold thy peace and put thy finger on thy mouth and come with us, that we may have thee for a father, and a priest. whether is better for thee, to be a priest in the house of one man, or in a tribe and family in israel? when he had heard this, he agreed to their words, and took the ephod, and the idols, and the graven god, and departed with them. and when they were going forward, and had put before them the children and the cattle and all that was valuable, and were now at a distance from the house of michas, the men that dwelt in the houses of michas gathering together followed them, and began to shout out after them. they looked back, and said to michas: what aileth thee? why dost thou cry? and he answered: you have taken away my gods which i have made me and the priest, and all that i have, and do you say: what aileth thee? and the children of dan said to him: see thou say no more to us, lest men enraged come upon thee, and thou perish with all thy house. and so they went on the journey they had begun. but michas seeing that they were stronger than he, returned to his house. and the six hundred men took the priest, and the things we spoke of before, and came to lais to a people that was quiet and secure, and smote them with the edge of the sword: and the city was burnt with fire, there being no man at all who brought them any succour, because they dwelt far from sidon, and had no society or business with any man. and the city was in the land of rohob: and they rebuilt it and dwelt therein. calling the name of the city dan after the name of their father, who was the son of israel, which before was called lais. and they set up to themselves the graven idol, and jonathan the son of gersam the son of moyses, he and his sons were priests in the tribe of dan, until the day of their captivity. and the idol of michas remained with them all the time that the house of god was in silo. in those days there was no king in israel.

there was a certain levite, who dwelt on the side of mount ephraim, who took a wife of bethlehem juda: and she left him and returned to her father's house in bethlehem, and abode with him four months. and her husband followed her, willing to be reconciled with her, and to speak kindly to her, and to bring her back with him, having with him a servant and two asses: and she received him, and brought him into her father's house. and when his father in law had heard this, and had seen him, he met him with joy, and embraced the man. and the son in law tarried in the house of his father in law three days, eating with him and drinking familiarly. but on the fourth day arising early in the morning he desired to depart. but his father in law kept him, and said to him: taste first a little bread, and strengthen thy stomach, and so thou shalt depart. and they sat down together, and ate and drank. and the father of the young woman said to his son in law: i beseech thee to stay here to day, and let us make merry together. but he rising up began to be for departing. and nevertheless his father in law earnestly pressed him, and made him stay with him. but when morning was come, the levite prepared to go on his journey. and his father in law said to him again: i beseech thee to take a little meat, and strengthening thyself, till the day be farther advanced, afterwards thou mayest depart. and they ate together. and the young man arose to set forward with his wife and servant. and his father in law spoke to him again: consider that the day is declining, and draweth toward evening: tarry with me to day also, and spend the day in mirth, and to morrow thou shalt depart, that thou mayest go into thy house. his son in law would not consent to his words: but forthwith went forward and came over against jebus, which by another name is called jerusalem, leading with him two asses laden, and his concubine. and now they were come near jebus, and the day was far spent: and the servant said to his master: come, i beseech thee, let us turn into the city of the jebusites, and lodge there. his master answered him: i will not go into the town of another nation, who are not of the children of israel, but i will pass over to gabaa: and when i shall come thither, we will lodge there, or at least in the city of rama. so they passed by jebus, and went on their journey, and the sun went down upon them when they were by gabaa, which is in the tribe of benjamin: and they turned into it, to lodge there. and when they were come in, they sat in the street of the city, for no man would receive them to lodge. and behold they saw an old man, returning out of the field and from his work in the evening, and he also was of mount ephraim, and dwelt as a stranger in gabaa; but the men of that country were the children of jemini. and the old man lifting up his eyes, saw the man sitting with his bundles in the street of the city, and said to him: whence comest thou? and whither goest thou? he answered him: we came out from bethlehem juda, and we are going to our home, which is on the side of mount ephraim, from whence we went to bethlehem: and now we go to the house of god, and none will receive us under his roof: we have straw and hay for provender of the asses, and bread and wine for the use of myself and of thy handmaid, and of the servant that is with me: we want nothing but lodging, and the old man answered him: peace be with thee: i will furnish all things that are necessary: only i beseech thee, stay not in the street. and he brought him into his house, and gave provender to his asses: and after they had washed their feet, he entertained them with a feast. while they were making merry, and refreshing their bodies with meat and drink, after the labour of the journey, the men of that city, sons of belial, (that is, without yoke,) came and beset the old man's house, and began to knock at the door, calling to the master of the house, and saying: bring forth the man that came into thy house, that we may abuse him. and the old man went out to them, and said: do not so, my brethren, do not so wickedly: because this man is come into my lodging, and cease i pray you from this folly. i have a maiden daughter, and this man hath a concubine, i will bring them out to you, and you may humble them, and satisfy your lust: only, i beseech you, commit not this crime against nature on the man. they would not be satisfied with his words; which the man seeing, brought out his concubine to them, and abandoned her to their wickedness: and when they had abused her all the night, they let her go in the morning. but the woman, at the dawning of the day, came to the door of the house where her lord lodged, and there fell down. and in the morning the man arose, and opened the door that he might end the journey he had begun: and behold his concubine lay before the door with her hands spread on the threshold. he thinking she was taking her rest, said to her: arise, and let us be going. but as she made no answer, perceiving she was dead, he took her up, and laid her upon his ass, and returned to his house. and when he was come home he took a sword, and divided the dead body of his wife with her bones into twelve parts, and sent the pieces into all the borders of israel. and when every one had seen this, they all cried out: there was never such a thing done in israel from the day that our fathers came up out of egypt, until this day: give sentence, and decree in common what ought to be done.

then all the children of israel went out and gathered together as one man from dan to bersabee, with the land of galaad, to the lord in maspha: and all the chiefs of the people, and all the tribes of israel met together in the assembly of the people of god, four hundred thousand footmen fit for war. (nor were the children of benjamin ignorant that the children of israel were come up to maspha.) and the levite the husband of the woman that was killed, being asked, how so great a wickedness had been committed, answered: i came into gabaa of benjamin with my wife, and there i lodged: and behold the men of that city in the night beset the house wherein i was, intending to kill me, and abused my wife with an incredible fury of lust, so that at last she died. and i took her and cut her in pieces, and sent the, parts into all the borders of your possession: because there never was so heinous a crime, and so great an abomination committed in israel. you are all here, o children of israel, determine what you ought to do. and all the people standing, answered as by the voice of one man: we will not return to our tents, neither shall any one of us go into his own house: but this we will do in common against gabaa: we will take ten men of a hundred out of all the tribes of israel, and a hundred out of a thousand, and a thousand out of ten thousand, to bring victuals for the army, that we might fight against gabaa of benjamin, and render to it for its wickedness, what it deserveth. and all israel were gathered together against the city, as one man, with one mind, and one counsel: and they sent messengers to all the tribe of benjamin to say to them: why hath so great an abomination been found among you? deliver up the men of gabaa, that have committed this heinous crime, that they may die, and the evil may be taken away out of israel. but they would not hearken to the proposition of their brethren the children of israel: but out of all the cities which were of their lot, they gathered themselves together into gabaa, to aid them, and to fight against the whole people of israel. and there were found of benjamin five and twenty thousand men that drew the sword, besides the inhabitants of gabaa, who were seven hundred most valiant men, fighting with the left hand as well as with the right: and slinging stones so sure that they could hit even a hair, and not miss by the stone's going on either side. of the men of israel also, beside the children of benjamin, were found four hundred thousand that drew swords, and were prepared to fight. and they arose and came to the house of god, that is, to silo: and they consulted god, and said: who shall be in our army the first to go to the battle against the children of benjamin? and the lord answered them: let juda be your leader. and forthwith the children of israel rising in the morning, camped by gabaa: and going out from thence to fight against benjamin, began to assault the city. and the children of benjamin coming out of gabaa, slew of the children of israel that day two and twenty thousand men. again israel trusting in their strength and their number, set their army in array in the same place, where they had fought before: yet so that they first went up and wept before the lord until night: and consulted him, and said: shall i go out any more to fight against the children of benjamin my brethren, or not? and he answered them: go up against them, and join battle. and when the children of israel went out the next day to fight against the children of benjamin, the children of benjamin sallied forth out of the gates of gabaa: and meeting them made so great a slaughter of them, as to kill eighteen thousand men that drew the sword. wherefore all the children of israel came to the house of god, and sat and wept before the lord: and they fasted that day till the evening, and offered to him holocausts, and victims of peace offerings, and inquired of him concerning their state. at that time the ark of the covenant of the lord was there, and phinees the son of eleazar the son of aaron was over the house. so they consulted the lord and said: shall we go out any more to fight against the children of benjamin our brethren, or shall we cease? and the lord said to them: go up, for to-morrow i will deliver them into your hands. and the children of israel set ambushes round about the city of gabaa: and they drew up their army against benjamin the third time, as they had done the first and second. and the children of benjamin boldly issued out of the city, and seeing their enemies flee, pursued them a long way, so as to wound and kill some of them, as they had done the first and second day, whilst they fled by two highways, whereof one goeth up to bethel, and the other to gabaa, and they slew about thirty men: for they thought to cut them off, as they did before. but they artfully feigning a flight, designed to draw them away from the city, and by their seeming to flee to bring them to the highways aforesaid. then all the children of israel rising up out of the places where they were, set their army in battle array, in the place which is called baalthamar. the ambushes also which were about the city, began by little and little to come forth, and to march from the west side of the city. and other ten thousand men chosen out of all israel attacked the inhabitants of the city. and the battle grew hot against the children of benjamin: and they understood not that present death threatened them on every side. and the lord defeated them before the children of israel, and they slew of them in that day five and twenty thousand, and one hundred, all fighting men and that drew the sword. but the children of benjamin when they saw themselves to be too weak, began to flee. which the children of israel seeing, gave them place to flee, that they might come to the ambushes that were prepared, which they had set near the city. and they that were in ambush arose on a sudden out of their coverts, and whilst benjamin turned their backs to the slayers, went into the city, and smote it with the edge of the sword. now the children of israel had given a sign to them, whom they had laid in ambushes, that after they had taken the city, they should make a fire: that by the smoke rising on high, they might shew that the city was taken. and when the children of israel saw this in the battle (for the children of benjamin thought they fled and pursued them vigorously, killing thirty men of their army) and perceived as it were a pillar of smoke rise up from the city; and benjamin looking back, saw that the city was taken, and that the flames ascended on high: they that before had made as if they fled, turning their faces stood bravely against them; which the children of benjamin seeing, turned their backs, and began to go towards the way of the desert, the enemy pursuing them thither also. and they that fired the city came also out to meet them. and so it was, that they were slain on both sides by the enemies, and there was no rest of their men dying, they fell and were beaten down on the east side of the city gabaa. and they that were slain in the same place were eighteen thousand men, all most valiant soldiers. and when they that remained of benjamin saw this, they fled into the wilderness and made towards the rock that is called remmon. in that flight, also as they were straggling and going different ways, they slew of them five thousand men. and as they went farther, they still pursued them, and slew also other two thousand. and so it came to pass, that all that were slain of benjamin in divers places, were five and twenty thousand fighting men, most valiant for war. and there remained of all the number of benjamin only six hundred men that were able to escape, and flee to the wilderness: and they abode in the rock remmon four months. but the children of israel returning, put all the remains of the city to the sword, both men and beasts, and all the cities and villages of benjamin were consumed with devouring flames.

now the children of israel had also sworn in maspha, saying: none of us shall give of his daughters to the children of benjamin to wife. and they all came to the house of god in silo, and abiding before him till the evening, lifted up their voices, and began to lament and weep, saying: o lord god of israel, why is so great an evil come to pass in thy people, that this day one tribe should be taken away from among us? and rising early the next day, they built an altar: and offered there holocausts, and victims of peace, and they said: who is there among all the tribes of israel that came not up with the army of the lord? for they had bound themselves with a great oath, when they were in maspha, that whosoever were wanting should be slain. and the children of israel being moved with repentance for their brother benjamin, began to say: one tribe is taken away from israel. whence shall they take wives? for we have all in general sworn, not to give our daughters to them. therefore they said: who is thereof all the tribes of israel, that came not up to the lord to maspha. and behold the inhabitants of jabs galaad were found not to have been in that army. (at that time also when they were in silo, no one of them was found there.) so they sent ten thousand of the most valiant men, and commanded them, saying: go and put the inhabitants of jabs galaad to the sword, with their wives and their children. and this is what you shall observe: every male, and all women that have known men, you shall kill, but the virgins you shall save. and there were found of jabs galaad four hundred virgins, that had not known the bed of a man, and they brought them to the camp silo, into the land of chanaan. and they sent messengers to the children of benjamin, that were in the rock remmon, and commanded them to receive them in peace. and the children of benjamin came at that time, and wives were given them of the daughters of jabs galaad: but they found no others, whom they might give in like manner. and all israel was very sorry, and repented for the destroying of one tribe out of israel. and the ancients said: what shall we do with the rest, that have not received wives? for all the women in benjamin are dead. and we must use all care, and provide with great diligence, that one tribe be not destroyed out of israel. for as to our own daughters we cannot give them, being bound with an oath and a curse, whereby we said: cursed be he that shall give benjamin any of his daughters to wife. so they took counsel, and said: behold there is a yearly solemnity of the lord in silo, which is situate on the north of the city of bethel, and on the east side of the way, that goeth from bethel to sichem, and on the south of the town of lebona. and they commanded the children of benjamin, and said: go, and lie hid in the vineyards, and when you shall see the daughters of silo come out, as the custom is, to dance, come ye on a sudden out of the vineyards, and catch you every man his wife among them, and go into the land of benjamin. and when their fathers and their brethren shall come, and shall begin to complain against you, and to chide, we will say to them: have pity on them for they took them not away as by the right of war or conquest, but when they asked to have them, you gave them not, and the fault was committed on your part. and the children of benjamin did, as they had been commanded: and according to their number, they carried off for themselves every man his wife of them that were dancing: and they went into their possession and built up their cities, and dwelt in them. the children of israel also returned by their tribes, and families, to their dwellings. in those days there was no king in israel: but every one did that which seemed right to himself.

there was a man of ramathaimsophim, of mount ephraim, and his name was elcana, the son of jero-ham, the son of eliu, the son of thohu, the son of suph, an ephraimite: and he had two wives, the name of one was anna, and the name of the other phenenna. phenenna had children: but anna had no children. and this man went up out of his city upon the appointed days, to adore and to offer sacrifice to the lord of hosts in silo. and the two sons of heli, ophni and phinees, were there priests of the lord. now the day came, and elcana offered sacrifice, and gave to phenenna his wife, and to all her sons and daughters, portions: but to anna he gave one portion with sorrow, because he loved anna. and the lord had shut up her womb. her rival also afflicted her, and troubled her exceedingly, insomuch that she upbraided her, that the lord had shut up her womb: and thus she did every year, when the time returned that they went up to the temple of the lord: and thus she provoked her: but anna wept, and did not eat. then elcana her husband said to her: anna, why weepest thou? and why dost thou not eat? and why dost thou afflict thy heart? am not i better to thee than ten children? so anna arose after she had eaten and drunk in silo: and heli the priest sitting upon a stool, before the door of the temple of the lord: as anna had her heart full of grief, she prayed to the lord, shedding many tears, and she made a vow, saying: o lord, of hosts, if thou wilt look down on the affliction of thy servant, and wilt be mindful of me, and not forget thy handmaid, and wilt give to thy servant a man child: i will give him to the lord all the days of his life, and no razor shall come upon his head. and it came to pass, as she multiplied prayers before the lord, that heli observed her mouth. now anna spoke in her heart, and only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard at all. heli therefore thought her to be drunk, and said to her: how long wilt thou be drunk? digest a little the wine, of which thou hast taken too much. anna answering, said: not so, my lord: for i am an exceeding unhappy woman, and have drunk neither wine nor any strong drink, but i have poured out my soul before the lord. count not thy handmaid for one of the daughters of belial: for out of the abundance of my sorrow and grief have i spoken till now. then heli said to her: go in peace: and the god of israel grant thee thy petition, which thou hast asked of him. and she said: would to god thy handmaid may find grace in thy eyes. so the woman went on her way, and ate, and her countenance was no more changed. and they rose in the morning, and worshipped before the lord: and they returned, and came into their house at ramatha. and elcana knew anna his wife: and the lord remembered her. and it came to pass when the time was come about, anna conceived and bore a son, and called his name samuel: because she had asked him of the lord. and elcana her husband went up, and all his house, to offer to the lord the solemn sacrifice, and his vow. but anna went not up: for she said to her husband: i will not go till the child be weaned, and till i may carry him, that he may appear before the lord, and may abide always there. and elcana her husband said to her: do what seemeth good to thee, and stay till thou wean him: and i pray that the lord may fulfil his word. so the woman stayed at home, and gave her son suck, till she weaned him. and after she had weaned him, she carried him with her, with three calves, and three bushels of flour, and a bottle of wine, and she brought him to the house of the lord in silo. now the child was as yet very young: and they immolated a calf, and offered the child to heli. and anna said: i beseech thee, my lord, as thy soul liveth, my lord: i am that woman who stood before thee here praying to the lord. for this child did i pray, and the lord hath granted me my petition, which i asked of him. therefore i also have lent him to the lord all the days of his life, he shall be lent to the lord. and they adored the lord there. and anna prayed, and said:

my heart hath rejoiced in the lord, and my horn is exalted in my god: my mouth is enlarged over my enemies: because i have joyed in thy salvation. there is none holy as the lord is: for there is no other beside thee, and there is none strong like our god. do not multiply to speak lofty things, boasting: let old matters depart from your mouth: for the lord is a god of all knowledge, and to him are thoughts prepared. the bow of the mighty is overcome, and the weak are girt with strength. they that were full before have hired out themselves for bread: and the hungry are filled, so that the barren hath borne many: and she that had many children is weakened. the lord killeth and maketh alive, he bringeth down to hell and bringeth back again. the lord maketh poor and maketh rich, he humbleth and he exalteth. he raiseth up the needy from the dust, and lifteth up the poor from the dunghill: that he may sit with princes, and hold the throne of glory. for the poles of the earth are the lord's, and upon them he hath set the world. he will keep the feet of his saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness, because no man shall prevail by his own strength. the adversaries of the lord shall fear him: and upon them shall he thunder in the heavens. the lord shall judge the ends of the earth, and he shall give empire to his king, and shall exalt the horn of his christ. and elcana went to ramatha, to his house: but the child ministered in the sight of the lord before the face of heli the priest. now the sons of heli were children of belial, not knowing the lord, nor the office of the priests to the people: but whosoever had offered a sacrifice, the servant of the priest came, while the flesh was in boiling, with a fleshhook of three teeth in his hand, and thrust it into the kettle, or into the caldron, or into the pot, or into the pan: and all that the fleshhook brought up, the priest took to himself. thus did they to all israel that came to silo. also before they burnt the fat, the servant of the priest came, and said to the man that sacrificed: give me flesh to boil for the priest: for i will not take of thee sodden flesh, but raw. and he that sacrificed said to him: let the fat first be burnt to day according to the custom, and then take as much as thy soul

desireth. but he answered and said to him: not so: but thou shalt give it me now, or else i will take it by force. wherefore the sin of the young men was exceeding great before the lord: because they withdrew men from the sacrifice of the lord. but samuel ministered before the face of the lord: being a child girded with a linen ephod. and his mother made him a little coat, which she brought to him on the appointed days, when she went up with her husband, to offer the solemn sacrifice. and heli blessed elcana and his wife: and he said to him: the lord give thee seed of this woman, for the loan thou hast lent to the lord. and they went to their own home. and the lord visited anna, and she conceived, and bore three sons and two daughters: and the child samuel became great before the lord. now heli was very old, and he heard all that his sons did to all israel: and how they lay with the women that waited at the door of the tabernacle: and he said to them: why do ye these kinds of things, which i hear, very wicked things, from all the people? do not so, my sons: for it is no good report that i hear, that you make the people of the lord to transgress. if one man shall sin against another, god may be appeased in his behalf: but if a man shall sin against the lord, who shall pray for him? and they hearkened not to the voice of their father, because the lord would slay them. but the child samuel advanced, and grew on, and pleased both the lord and men. and there came a man of god to heli, and said to him: thus saith the lord: did i not plainly appear to thy father's house, when they were in egypt in the house of pharao? and i chose him out of all the tribes of israel to be my priest, to go up to my sitar, and burn incense to me, and to wear the ephod before me: and i gave to thy father's house of all the sacrifices of the children of israel. why have you kicked away my victims, and my gifts which i commanded to be offered in the temple: and thou hast rather honoured thy sons than me, to eat the firstfruits of every sacrifice of my people israel? wherefore thus saith the lord the god of israel: i said indeed that thy house, and the house of thy father should minister in my sight, for ever. but now saith the lord: far be this from me: but whosoever shall glorify me, him will i glorify: but they that despise me, shall be despised. behold the days come: and i will cut off thy arm, and the arm of thy father's house, that there shall not be an old man in thy house. and thou shalt see thy rival in the temple, in all the prosperity of israel, and there shall not be an old man in thy house for ever. however i will not altogether take away a man of thee from my altar: but that thy eyes may faint and thy soul be spent: and a great part of thy house shall die when they come to man's estate. and this shall be a sign to thee, that shall come upon thy two sons, ophni and phinees: in one day they shall both of them die. and i will raise me up a faithful priest, who shall do according to my heart, and my soul, and i will build him a faithful house, and he shall walk all days before my anointed. and it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall remain in thy house, shall come that he may be prayed for, and shall offer a piece of silver, and a roll of bread, and shall say: put me, i beseech thee, to somewhat of the priestly office, that

now the child samuel ministered to the lord before heli, and the word of the lord was precious in those days, there was no manifest vision. and it came to pass one day when heli lay in his place, and his eyes were grown dim, that he could not see: before the lamp of god went out, samuel slept in the temple of the lord, where the ark of god was. and the lord called samuel. and he answered: here am i. and he ran to heli and said: here am i: for thou didst call me. he said: i did not call: go back and sleep. and he went and slept. and the lord called samuel again. and samuel arose and went to heli, and said: here am i: for thou caldest me. he answered: i did not call thee, my son: return and sleep. now samuel did not yet know the lord, neither had the word of the lord been revealed to him. and the lord called samuel again the third time. and he arose up and went to heli. and said: here am i: for thou didst call me. then heli understood that the lord called the child, and he said to samuel: go, and sleep: and if he shall call thee any more, thou shalt say: speak, lord, for thy servant heareth. so samuel went and slept in his place. and the lord came and stood: and he called, as he had called the other times: samuel, samuel. and samuel said: speak, lord, for thy servant heareth. and the lord said to samuel: behold i do a thing in israel: and whosoever shall hear it, both his ears shall tingle. in that day i will raise up against heli all the things i have spoken concerning his house: i will begin, and i will make an end. for i have foretold unto him, that i will judge his house for ever, for iniquity, because he knew that his sons did wickedly, and did not chastise them. therefore have i sworn to the house of hell, that the iniquity of his house shall not be expiated with victims nor offerings for ever. and samuel slept till morning, and opened the doors of the house of the lord. and samuel feared to tell the vision to hell. then heli called samuel, and said: samuel, my son. and he answered: here am i. and he asked him: what is the word that the lord hath spoken to thee? i beseech thee hide it not from me. may god do so and so to thee, and add so and so, if thou hide from me one word of all that were said to thee. so samuel told him all the words, and did not hide them from him. and he answered: it is the lord: let him do what is good in his sight. and samuel grew, and the lord was with him, and not one of his words fell to the ground. and all israel from dan to bersabee, knew that samuel was a faithful prophet of the lord. and the lord again appeared in silo, for the lord revealed himself to samuel in silo, according to the word of the lord. and the word of samuel came to pass to all israel.

and it came to pass in those days, that the philistines gathered themselves together to fight: and israel went out to war against the philistines, and camped by the stone of help. and the philistines came to aphec, and put their army in array against israel. and when they had joined battle, israel turned their backs to the philistines, and there was slain in that fight here and there in the fields about four thousand men. and the people returned to the camp: and the ancients of israel said: why hath the lord defeated us to day before the philistines? let us fetch unto us the ark of the covenant of the lord from silo, and let it come in the midst of us, that it may save us from the hand of our enemies. so the people sent to silo, and they brought from thence the ark of the covenant of the lord of hosts sitting upon the cherubims: and the two sons of heli, ophni and phinees, were with the ark of the covenant of god. and when the ark of the covenant of the lord was come into the camp, all israel shouted with a great shout, and the earth rang again. and the philistines heard the noise of the shout, and they said: what is this noise of a great shout in the camp of the hebrews? and they understood that the ark of the lord was come into the camp. and the philistines were afraid, saying: god is come into the camp. and sighing, they said: woe to us: for there was no such great joy yesterday and the day before: woe to us. who shall deliver us from the hand of these high gods? these are the gods that struck egypt with all the plagues in the desert. take courage and behave like men, ye philistines: lest you come to be servants to the hebrews, as they have served you: take courage and fight. so the philistines fought, and israel was overthrown, and every man fled to his own dwelling: and there was an exceeding great slaughter; for there fell of israel thirty thousand footmen. and the ark of god was taken: and the two sons of heli, ophni and phinees, were slain. and there ran a man of benjamin out of the army, and came to silo the same day, with his clothes rent, and his head strewn with dust. and when he was come, heli sat upon a stool over against the way watching. for his heart was fearful for the ark of god. and when the man was come into the city, he told it: and all the city cried out. and heli heard the noise of the cry, and he said: what meaneth the noise of this uproar? but he made haste, and came, and told heli. now heli was ninety and eight years old, and his eyes were dim, and he could not see. and he said to heli: i am he that came from the battle, and have fled out of the field this day. and he said to him: what is there done, my son? and he that brought the news answered, and said: israel has fled before the philistines, and there has been a great slaughter of the people: moreover thy two sons, ophni and phinees, are dead: and the ark of god is taken. and when he had named the ark of god, he fell from his stool backwards by the door, and broke his neck, and died. for he was an old man, and far advanced in years: and he judged israel forty years. and his daughter in law the wife of phinees, was big with child, and near her time: and hearing the news that the ark of god was taken, and her father in law, and her husband, were dead, she bowed herself and fell in labour: for her pains came upon her on a sudden. and when she was upon the point of death, they that stood about her said to her: fear not, for thou hast borne a son. she answered them not, nor gave heed to them. and she called the child ichabod, saying: the glory is gone from israel, because the ark of god was taken, and for her father in law, and her husband: and she said: the glory is departed from israel, because the ark of god was taken.

and the philistines took the ark of god, and carried it from the stone of help into azotus. and the philistines took the ark of god, and brought it into the temple of dagon, and set it by dagon. and when the azotians arose early the next day, behold dagon lay upon his face on the ground before the ark of the lord: and they took dagon, and set him again in his place. and the next day again, when they rose in the morning, they found dagon lying upon his face on the earth before the ark of the lord: and the head of dagon, and both the palms of his hands were cut off upon the threshold: and only the stump of dagon remained in its place. for this cause neither the priests of dagon, nor any that go into the temple tread on the threshold of dagon in azotus unto this day. and the hand of the lord was heavy upon the azotians, and he destroyed them, and afflicted azotus and the coasts thereof with emerods. and in the villages and fields in the midst of that country, there came forth a multitude of mice, and there was the confusion of a great mortality in the city. and the men of azotus seeing this kind of plague, said: the ark of the god of israel shall not stay with us: for his hand is heavy upon us, and upon dagon our god. and sending, they gathered together all the lords of the philistines to them, and said: what shall we do with the ark of the god of israel? and the gethrites answered: let the ark of the god of israel be carried about. and they carried the ark of the god of israel about. and while they were carrying it about, the band of the lord came upon every city with an exceeding great slaughter: and he smote the men of every city, both small and great, and they had emerods in their secret parts. and the gethrites consulted together, and made themselves seats of skins. therefore they sent the ark of god into accaron. and when the ark of god was come into accaron, the accaronites cried out, saying: they have brought the ark of the god of israel to us, to kill us and our people. they sent therefore and gathered together all the lords of the philistines: and they said: send away the ark of the god of israel, and let it return into its own place, and not kill us and our people. for there was the fear of death in every city, and the hand of god was exceeding heavy. the men also that did not die, were afflicted with the emerods: and the cry of every city went up to heaven.

now the ark of god was in the land of the philistines seven months. and the philistines called for the priests and the diviners, saying: what shall we do with the ark of the lord? tell us how we are to send it back to its place? and they said: if you send back the ark of the god of israel, send it not away empty, but render unto him what you owe for sin, and then you shall be healed: and you shall know why his hand departeth not from you. they answered: what is it we ought to render unto him for sin? and they answered: according to the number of the provinces of the philistines you shall make five golden emerods, and five golden mice: for the same plague hath been upon you all, and upon your lords. and you shall make the likeness of your emerods, and the likeness of the mice that have destroyed the land, and you shall give glory to the god of israel: to see if he will take off his hand from you, and from your gods, and from your land. why do you harden your hearts, as egypt and pharao hardened their hearts? did not he, after he was struck, then let them go, and they departed? now therefore take and make a new cart: and two kine that have calved, on which there hath come no yoke, tie to the cart, and shut up their calves at home. and you shall take the ark of the lord, and lay it on the cart, and the vessels of gold, which you have paid him for sin, you shall put into a little box, at the side thereof: and send it away that it may go. and you shall look: and if it go up by the way of his own coasts towards bethsames, then he hath done us this great evil: but if not, we shall know that it is not his hand hath touched us, but it hath happened by chance. they did therefore in this manner: and taking two kine, that had suckling calves, they yoked them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home. and they laid the ark of god upon the cart, and the little box that had in it the golden mice and the likeness of the emerods. and the kine took the straight way that leadeth to bethsames, and they went along the way, lowing as they went: and turned not aside neither to the right hand nor to the left: and the lords of the philistines followed them as far as the borders of bethsames. now the bethsamites were reaping wheat in the valley: and lifting up their eyes they saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it. and the cart came into the field of josue a bethsamite, and stood there. and there was a great stone, and they cut in pieces the wood of the cart, and laid the kine upon it a holocaust to the lord. and the levites took down the ark of god, and the little box that was at the side of it, wherein were the vessels of gold, and they put them upon the great stone. the men also of bethsames offered holocausts and sacrificed victims that day to the lord. and the five princes of the philistines saw, and they returned to accaron the same day. and these are the golden emerods, which the philistines returned for sin to the lord: for azotus one, for gaza one, for ascalon one, for geth one, for accaron one: and the golden mice according to the number of the cities of the philistines, of the five provinces, from the fenced city to the village that was without wall, and to the great abel (the stone) whereon they set down the ark of the lord, which was till that day in the field of josue the bethsamite. but he slew of the men of bethsames, because they had seen the ark of the lord: and he slew of the people seventy men, and fifty thousand of the common people. and the people lamented, because the lord had smitten the people with a great slaughter. and the men of bethsames said: who shall be able to stand before the lord this holy god? and to whom

and then men of cariathiarim came and fetched up the ark of the lord and carried it into the house of abinadab in gabaaz: and they sanctified eleazar his son, to keep the ark of the lord. and it came to pass, that from the day the ark of the lord abode in cariathiarim days were multiplied, (for it was now the twentieth year,) and all the house of israel rested following the lord. and samuel spoke to all the house of israel, saying: if you turn to the lord with all your heart, put away the strange gods from among you, baalim and astarothe: and prepare your hearts unto the lord, and serve him only, and he will deliver you out of the hand of the philistines. then the children of israel put away baalim and astarothe, and served the lord only. and samuel said: gather all israel to masphath, that i may pray to the lord for you. and they gathered together to masphath: and they drew water, and poured it out before the lord, and they fasted on that day, and they said there: we have sinned against the lord. and samuel judged the children of israel in masphath. and the philistines heard that the children of israel were gathered together to masphath, and the lords of the philistines went up against israel. and when the children of israel heard this, they were afraid of the philistines. and they said to samuel: cease not to cry to the lord our god for us, that he may save us out of the hand of the philistines. and samuel took a sucking lamb, and offered it whole for a holocaust to the lord: and samuel cried to the lord for israel, and the lord heard him. and it came to pass, when samuel was offering the holocaust, the philistines began the battle against israel: but the lord thundered with a great thunder on that day upon the philistines, and terrified them, and they were overthrown before the face of israel. and the men of israel going out of masphath pursued after the philistines, and made slaughter of them till they came under bethchar. and samuel took a stone, and laid it between masphath and sen: and he called the place, the stone of help. and he said: thus far the lord hath helped us. and the philistines were humbled, and they did not come any more into the borders of israel. and the hand of the lord was against the philistines, all the days of samuel. and the cities, which the philistines had taken from israel, were restored to israel, from accaron to geth, and their borders: and he delivered israel from the hand of the philistines, and there was peace between israel and the amorrhites. and samuel judged israel all the days of his life: and he went every year about to bethel and to galgal and to masphath, and he judged israel in the aforesaid places. and he returned to ramatha, for there was his house, and there he judged israel: he built also there an altar to the lord.

and it came to pass when samuel was old, that he appointed his sons to be judges over israel. now the name of his firstborn son was joel: and the name of the second was abia, judges in bersabee. and his sons walked not in his ways: but they turned aside after lucre, and took bribes, and perverted judgment. then all the ancients of israel being assembled, came to samuel to ramatha. and they said to him: behold thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways: make us a king, to judge us, as all nations have. and the word was displeasing in the eyes of samuel, that they should say: give us a king, to judge us. and samuel prayed to the lord. and the lord said to samuel: hearken to the voice of the people in all that they say to thee. for they have not rejected thee, but me, that i should not reign over them. according to all their works, they have done from the day that i brought them out of egypt until this day: as they have forsaken me, and served strange gods, so do they also unto thee. now therefore hearken to their voice: but yet testify to them, and foretell them the right of the king, that shall reign over them. then samuel told all the words of the lord to the people that had desired a king of him, and said: this will be the right of the king, that shall reign over you: he will take your sons, and put them in his chariots, and will make them his horsemen, and his running footmen to run before his chariots, and he will appoint of them to be his tribunes, and centurions, and to plough his fields, and to reap his corn, and to make him arms and chariots. your daughters also he will take to make him ointments, and to be his cooks, and bakers. and he will take your fields, and your vineyards, and your best oliveyards, and give them to his servants. moreover he will take the tenth of your corn, and of the revenues of your vineyards, to give his eunuchs and servants. your servants also and handmaids, and your goodliest young men, and your asses he will take away, and put them to his work. your flocks also he will tithe, and you shall be his servants. and you shall cry out in that day from the face of the king, whom you have chosen to yourselves. and the lord will not hear you in that day, because you desired unto yourselves a king. but the people would not hear the voice of samuel, and they said: nay: but there shall be a king over us. and we also will be like all nations: and our king shall judge us, and go out before us, and tight our battles for us. and samuel heard all the words of the people, and rehearsed them in the ears of the lord. and the lord said to samuel: hearken to their voice, and make them a king. and samuel said to the men of israel: let every man go to his city.

now i there was a man of benjamin whose name was cis, the son of abiel, the son of seror, the son of bechorath, the son of aphiah, the son of a man of jeminini, valiant and strong. and he had a son whose name was saul, a choice and goodly man, and there was not among the children of israel a goodlier person than he: from his shoulders and upward he appeared above all the people. and the asses of cis, sauls father, were lost: and cis said to his son saul: take one of the servants with thee, and arise, go, and seek the asses. and when they had passed through mount ephraim, and through the land of salisa, and had not found them, they passed also through the land of salim, and they were not there: and through the land of jeminini, and found them not. and when they were come to the land of suph, saul said to the servant that was with him: come, let us return, lest perhaps my father forget the asses, and be concerned for us. and he said to him: behold there is a man of god in this city, a famous man: all that he saith, cometh certainly to pass. now therefore let us go thither, perhaps he may tell us of our way, for which we are come. and saul said to his servant: behold we will go: but what shall we carry to the man of god? the bread is spent in our bags: and we have no present to make to the man of god, nor any thing at all. the servant answered saul again, and said: behold there is found in my hand the fourth part of a sicle of silver, let us give it to the man of god, that he may tell us our way. now in time past, in israel when a man went to consult god he spoke thus: come, let us go to the seer. for he that is now called a prophet, in time past was called a seer. and saul said to his servant: thy word is very good, come, let us go. and they went into the city, where the man of god was. and when they went up the ascent to the city, they found maids coming out to draw water, and they said to them: is the seer here? they answered and said to them: he is: behold he is before you, make haste now: for he came to day into the city, for there is a sacrifice of the people to day in the high place. as soon as you come into the city, you shall immediately find him, before he go up to the high place to eat: for the people will not eat till he come: because he blesseth the victim, and afterwards they eat that are invited. now therefore go up, for to day you shall find him. and they went up into the city. and when they were walking in the midst of the city, behold samuel was coming out over against them, to go up to the high place. now the lord had revealed to the ear of samuel the day before saul came, saying: to morrow about this same hour i will send thee a man of the land of benjamin, and thou shalt anoint him to be ruler over my people israel: and he shall save my people out of the hand of the philistines: for i have looked down upon my people, because their cry is come to me. and when samuel saw saul, the lord said to him: behold the man, of whom i spoke to thee, this man shall reign over my people. and saul came to samuel in the midst of the gate and said: tell me, i pray thee, where is the house of the seer? and samuel answered saul, saying: i am the seer, go up before me to the high place, that you may eat with me to day, and i will let thee go in the morning: and tell thee all that is in thy heart. and as for the asses, which were lost three days ago, be not solicitous, because they are found. and for whom shall be all the best things of israel? shall they not be for thee and for all thy father's house? and saul answering, said: am not i a son of jeminini of the least tribe of israel, and my kindred the last among all the families of the tribe of benjamin? why then hast thou spoken this word to me? then samuel taking saul and his servant, brought them into the parlour, and gave them a place at the head of them that were invited. for there were about thirty men. and samuel said to the cook: bring the portion, which i gave thee, and commanded thee to set it apart by thee. and the cook took up the shoulder, and set it before saul. and samuel said: behold what is left, set it before thee, and eat: because it was kept of purpose for thee, when i invited the people. and saul ate with samuel that day. and they went down from the high place into the town, and he spoke with saul upon the top of the house: and he prepared a bed for saul on the top of the house, and he slept. and when they were risen in the morning, and it began now to be light, samuel called saul on the top of the house, saying: arise, that i may let thee go. and saul arose: and they went out both of them, to wit, he and samuel. and as they were going down in the end of the city, samuel said to saul: speak to the servant to go before us, and pass on: but stand thou still a while, that i may tell thee the word of the lord.

and samuel took a little vial of oil and poured it upon his head, and kissed him, and said: behold, the lord hath anointed thee to be prince over his inheritance, and thou shalt deliver his people out of the hands of their enemies, that are round about them. and this shall be a sign unto thee, that god hath anointed thee to be prince. when thou shalt depart from me this day, thou shalt find two men by the sepulchre of rachel in the borders of benjamin to the south, and they shall say to thee: the asses are found which thou wentest to seek: and thy father thinking no more of the asses is concerned for you, and saith: what shall i do for my son? and when thou shalt depart from thence, and go farther on, and shalt come to the oak of thabor, there shalt meet thee three men going up to god to bethel, one carrying three kids, and another three loaves of bread, and another carrying a bottle of wine. and they will salute thee, and will give thee two loaves, and thou shalt take them at their hand. after that thou shalt come to the hill of god, where the garrison of the philistines is: and when thou shalt be come there into the city, thou shalt meet a company of prophets coming down from the high place, with a psaltery and a timbrel, and a pipe, and a harp before them, and they shall be prophesying. and the spirit of the lord shall come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them, and shalt be changed into another man. when therefore these signs shall happen to thee, do whatsoever thy hand shall find, for the lord is with thee. and thou shalt go down before me to galgal, (for i will come down to thee,) that thou mayest offer an oblation, and sacrifice victims of peace: seven days shalt thou wait, o till i come to thee, and i will shew thee what thou art to do. so when he had turned his back to go from samuel, god gave unto him another heart, and all these things came to pass that day. and they came to the foresaid hill, and behold a company of prophets met him: and the spirit of the lord came upon him, and he prophesied in the midst of them. and all that had known him yesterday and the day before, seeing that he was with the prophets, and prophesied, said to each other: what is this that hath happened to the son of cis? is saul also among the prophets? and one answered another, saying: and who is their father? therefore it became a proverb: is saul also among the prophets? and when he had made an end of prophesying, he came to the high place. and saul's uncle said to him, and to his servant: whither went you? they answered: to seek the asses: and not finding them we went to samuel. and his uncle said to him: tell me what samuel said to thee. and saul said to his uncle: he told us that the asses were found. but of the matter of the kingdom of which samuel had spoken to him, he told him not. and samuel called together the people to the lord in maspha: and he said to the children of israel: thus saith the lord the god of israel: i brought up israel out of egypt, and delivered you from the hand of the egyptians, and from the hand of all the kings who afflicted you. but you this day have rejected your god, who only hath saved you out of all your evils and your tribulations: and you have said: nay: but set a king over us. now therefore stand before the lord by your tribes, and by your families. and samuel brought to him all the tribes of israel, and the lot fell on the tribe of benjamin. and he brought the tribe of benjamin and the kindreds thereof, and the lot fell upon the kindred of metri, and it came to saul the son of cis. they sought him therefore and he was not found. and after this they consulted the lord whether he would come thither. and the lord answered: behold he is hidden at home. and they ran and fetched him thence: and he stood in the midst of the people, and he was higher than any of the people from the shoulders and upward. and samuel said to all the people: surely you see him whom the lord hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people. and all the people cried and said: god save the king. and samuel told the people the law of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the lord: and samuel sent away all the people, every one to his own house. saul also departed to his own house in gaba: and there went with him a part of the army, whose hearts god had touched. but the children of belial said: shall this fellow be able to save us? and they despised him, and brought him no presents, but he dissembled as though he heard not.

and it came to pass about a month after this that naas, the ammonite came up, and began to fight against jabes galaad. and all the men of jabes said to naas: make a covenant with us, and we will serve thee. and naas the ammonite answered them: on this condition will i make a covenant with you, that i may pluck out all your right eyes, and make you a reproach in all israel. and the ancients of jabes said to him: allow us seven days, that we may send messengers to all the coasts of israel: and if there be no one to defend us, we will come out to thee. the messengers therefore came to gaba: of saul: and they spoke these words in the hearing of the people: and all the people lifted up their voices, and wept. and behold saul came, following oxen out of the field, and he said: what aileth the people that they weep? and they told him the words of the men of jebes. and the spirit of the lord came upon saul, when he had heard these words, and his anger was exceedingly kindled. and taking both the oxen, he cut them in pieces, and sent them into all the coasts of israel by messengers, saying: whosoever shall not come forth, and follow saul and samuel, so shall it be done to his oxen. and the fear of the lord fell upon the people, and they went out as one man. and he numbered them in bezec: and there were of the children of israel three hundred thousand: and of the men of juda thirty thousand. and they said to the messengers that came: thus shall you say to the men of jebes galaad: tomorrow, when the sun shall be hot, you shall have relief. the messengers therefore came, and told the men of jebes: and they were glad. and they said: in the morning we will come out to you: and you shall do what you please with us. and it came to pass, when the morrow was come that saul put the people in three companies: and he came into the midst of the camp in the morning watch, and he slew the ammonites until the day grew hot, and the rest were scattered, so that two of them were not left together. and the people said to samuel: who is he that said: shall saul reign over us? bring the men and we will kill them. and saul said: no man shall be killed this day, because the lord this day hath wrought salvation in israel: and samuel said to the people: come and let us go to galgal, and let us renew the kingdom there. and all the people went to galgal, and there they made saul king before the lord in galgal, and they sacrificed there victims of peace before the lord. and there saul and all the men of israel rejoiced exceedingly

and samuel said to all israel: behold i have hearkened to your voice in all that you said to me, and have made a king over you. and now the king goeth before you: but i am old and greyheaded: and my sons are with you: having then conversed with you from my youth unto this day, behold here i am. speak of me before the lord, and before his anointed, whether i have taken any man's ox, or ass: if i have wronged any man, if i have oppressed any man, if i have taken a bribe at any man's hand: and i will despise it this day, and will restore it to you. and they said: thou hast not wronged us, nor oppressed us, nor taken ought at any man's hand. and he said to them: the lord is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, that you have not found any thing in my hand. and they said: he is witness. and samuel said to the people: it is the lord, who made moyses and aaron, and brought our fathers out of the land of egypt. now therefore stand up, that i may plead in judgment against you before the lord, concerning all the kindness of the lord, which he hath shewn to you, and to your fathers: how jacob went into egypt, and your fathers cried to the lord: and the lord sent moyses and aaron, and

brought your fathers out of egypt: and made them dwell in this place. and they forgot the lord their god, and he delivered them into the hands of sisara, captain of the army of hasor, and into the hands of the philistines, and into the hand of the king of moab, and they fought against them. but afterwards they cried to the lord, and said: we have sinned, because we have forsaken the lord, and have served baalim and asaroth: but now deliver us from the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee. and the lord sent jerobaal, and badan, and jephte, and samuel, and delivered you from the hand of your enemies round about, and you dwelt securely. but seeing that naas king of the children of ammon was come against you, you said to me: nay, but a king shall reign over us: whereas the lord your god was your king. now therefore your king is here, whom you have chosen and desired: behold the lord hath given you a king. if you will fear the lord, and serve him, and hearken to his voice, and not provoke the mouth of the lord: then shall both you, and the king who reigneth over you, be followers of the lord your god. but if you will not hearken to the voice of the lord, but will rebel against his words, the hand of the lord shall be upon you, and upon your fathers. now then stand, and see this great thing which the lord will do in your sight. is it not wheat harvest to day? i will call upon the lord, and he shall send thunder and rain: and you shall know and see that you yourselves have done a great evil in the sight of the lord, in desiring a king over you. and samuel cried unto the lord, and the lord sent thunder and rain that day. and all the people greatly feared the lord and samuel. and all the people said to samuel: pray for thy servants to the lord thy god, that we may not die, for we have added to all our sins this evil, to ask for a king. and samuel said to the people: fear not, you have done all this evil: but yet depart not from following the lord, but serve the lord with all your heart. and turn not aside after vain things which shall never profit you, nor deliver you, because they are vain. and the lord will not forsake his people for his great name's sake: because the lord hath sworn to make you his people. and far from me be this sin against the lord, that i should cease to pray for you, and i will teach you the good and right way. therefore fear the lord, and serve him in truth and with your whole heart, for you have seen the great works which he hath done among you. but if you will still do wickedly: both you and your king shall perish together.

saul was a child of one year when he began to reign, and he reigned two years over israel. and saul chose him three thousand men of israel: and two thousand were with saul in machmas, and in mount bethel: and a thousand with jonathan in gabaa of benjamin, and the rest of the people he sent back every man to their dwellings. and jonathan smote the garrison of the philistines which was in gabaa. and when the philistines had heard of it, saul sounded the trumpet over all the land, saying: let the hebrews hear. and all israel heard this report: saul hath smitten the garrison of the philistines: and israel took courage against the philistines. and the people were called together after saul to galgal. the philistines also were assembled to fight against israel, thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and a multitude of people besides, like the sand on the sea shore for number. and going up they camped in machmas at the east of bethaven. and when the men of israel saw that they were straitened, (for the people were distressed,) they hid themselves in caves, and in thickets, and in rocks, and in dens, and in pits. and some of the hebrews passed over the jordan into the land of gad and galaad. and when saul was yet in galgal, all the people that followed him were greatly afraid. and he waited seven days according to the appointment of samuel, i and samuel came not to galgal, and the people slipt away from him. then saul said: bring me the holocaust, and the peace offerings. and he offered the holocaust. and when he had made an end of offering the holocaust, behold samuel came: and saul went forth to meet him and salute him. and samuel said to him: what hast thou done? saul answered: because i saw that the people slipt from me, and thou wast not come according to the days appointed, and the philistines were gathered together in machmas, i said: now will the philistines come down upon me to galgal, and i have not appeased the face of the lord. forced by necessity, i offered the holocaust. and samuel said to saul: thou hast done foolishly, and hast not kept the commandments of the lord thy god, which he commanded thee. and if thou hadst not done thus, the lord would now have established thy kingdom over israel for ever. but thy kingdom shall not continue. the lord hath sought him a man according to his own heart: and him hath the lord commanded to be prince over his people, because thou hast not observed that which the lord commanded. and samuel arose and went up from galgal to gabaa of benjamin. and the rest of the people went up after saul, to meet the people who fought against them, going from galgal to gabaa in the hill of benjamin. and saul numbered the people, that were found with him, about six hundred men. and saul and jonathan his son, and the people that were present with them, were in gabaa of benjamin: but the philistines encamped in machmas. and there went out of the camp of the philistines three companies to plunder. one company went towards the way of ephra to the land of sual; and another went by the way of beth-horon, and the third turned to the way of the border, above the valley of seboim towards the desert. now there was no smith to be found in all the land of israel, for the philistines had taken this precaution, lest the hebrews should make them swords or spears. so all israel went down to the philistines, to sharpen every man his ploughshare, and his spade, and his axe, and his rake. so that their shares, and their spades, and their forks, and their axes were blunt, even to the goad, which was to be mended. and when the day of battle was come, there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any of the people that were with saul and jonathan, except saul and jonathan his son. and the army of the philistines went out in order to

now it came to pass one day that jonathan the son of saul said to the young man that bore his armour: come, and let us go over to the garrison of the philistines, which is on the other side of yonder place. but he told not this to his father. and saul abode in the uttermost part of gabaa under the pomegranate tree, which was in magron: and the people with him were about six hundred men. and achias the son of achitob brother to ichabod the son of phinees, the son of heli the priest of the lord in silo, wore the ephod. and the people knew not whither jonathan was gone. now there were between the ascents, by which jonathan sought to go over to the garrison of the philistines, rocks standing up on both sides, and steep cliffs like teeth on the one side, and on the other, the name of the one was boses, and the name of the other was sene: one rock stood out towards the north over against machmas, and the other to the south over against gabaa. and jonathan said to the young man that bore his armour: come, let us go over to the garrison of these uncircumcised, it may be the lord will do for us, because it is easy for the lord to save either by many, or by few. and his armourbearer said to him: do all that pleaseth thy mind: go whither thou wilt, and i will be with thee wheresoever thou hast a mind. and jonathan said: behold we will go over to these men. and when we shall be seen by them, if they shall speak thus to us: stay till we come to you: let us stand still in our place, and not go up to them. but if they shall say: come up to us: let us go up, because the lord hath delivered them into our hands, this shall be a sign unto us. so both of them discovered themselves to the garrison of the philistines: and the philistines said: behold the hebrews come forth out of the holes wherein they were hid. and the men of the garrison spoke to jonathan, and to his armourbearer, and said: come up to us, and we will shew you a thing. and jonathan said to his armourbearer: let us go up, follow me: for the lord hath delivered them into the hands of israel. and jonathan went up creeping on his hands and feet, and his armourbearer after him. and some fell before jonathan, others his armourbearer slew as he followed him. and the first slaughter which jonathan and his armourbearer made, was of about twenty men, within half an acre of land, which a yoke of oxen is wont to plough in a day. and there was a miracle in the camp, through the fields: yea and all the people of their garrison, who had gone out to plunder, were amazed, and the earth trembled: and it happened as a miracle from god. and the watchmen of saul, who were in gabaa of benjamin looked, and behold a multitude overthrown, and fleeing this way and that. and saul said to the people that were with him: look, and see who is gone from us. and when they had sought, it was found that jonathan and his armourbearer were not there. and saul said to achias: bring the ark of the lord. (for the ark of god was there that day with the children of israel.) and while saul spoke to the priest, there arose a great uproar in the camp of the philistines: and it increased by degrees, and was heard more clearly. and saul said to the priest: draw in thy hand. then saul and all the people that were with him, shouted together, and they came to the place of the fight: and behold every man's sword was turned upon his neighbour, and there was a very great slaughter. moreover the hebrews that had been with the philistines yesterday and the day before, and went up with them into the camp, returned to be with the israelites, who were with saul and jonathan. and all the israelites that had hid themselves in mount ephraim, hearing that the philistines fled, joined themselves with their countrymen in the fight. and there were with saul about ten thousand men. and the lord saved israel that day. and the fight went on as far as bethaven. and the men of israel were joined together that day; and saul adjured the people, saying: cursed be the man that shall eat food till evening, till i be revenged of my enemies. so none of the people tasted any food: and all the common people came into a forest, in which there was honey upon the ground. and when the people came into the forest, behold the honey dropped, but no man put his hand to his mouth. for the people feared the oath. but jonathan had not heard when his father adjured the people: and he put forth the end of the rod, which he had in his hand, and dipt it in a honeycomb: and he carried his hand to his mouth, and his eyes were enlightened. and one of the people answering, said: thy father hath bound the people with an oath, saying: cursed be the man that shall eat any food this day. (and the people were faint.) and jonathan said: my father hath troubled the land: you have seen yourselves that my eyes are enlightened, because i tasted a little of this honey: how much more if the people had eaten of the prey of their enemies, which they found? had there not been made a greater slaughter among the philistines? so they smote that day the philistines from machmas to ailon. and the people were wearied exceedingly. and falling upon the spoils, they took sheep, and oxen, and calves, and slew them on the ground: and the people ate them with the blood. and they told saul that the people had sinned against the lord, eating with the blood. and he said: you have transgressed: roll here to me now a great stone. and saul said: disperse yourselves among the people, and tell them to bring me every man his ox and his ram, and slay them upon this stone, and eat, and you shall not sin against the lord in eating with the blood. so all the people brought every man his ox with him till the night: and slew them there. and saul built an altar to the lord and he then first began to build an altar to the lord. and saul said: let us fall upon the philistines by night, and destroy them till the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. and the people said: do all that seemeth good in thy eyes. and the priest said: let us draw near hither unto god. and saul consulted the lord: shall i pursue after the philistines? wilt thou deliver them into the hands of israel? and he answered him not that day. and saul said: bring hither all the corners of the people: and know, and see by whom this sin hath happened to day. as the lord liveth who is the saviour of israel, if it was done by jonathan my son, he shall surely die. in this none of the people gainsaid him. and he said to all israel: be you on one side, and i with jonathan my son will be on the other side. and the people answered saul: do what seemeth good in thy eyes. and saul said to the lord: o lord god of israel, give a sign, by which we may know, what the meaning is, that thou answerest not thy servant to day. if this iniquity be in me, or in my son jonathan, give a proof: or if this iniquity be in thy people, give holiness. and jonathan and saul were taken, and the people escaped. and saul said: cast lots between me, and jonathan my son. and jonathan was taken. and saul said to jonathan: tell me what thou hast done. and jonathan told him, and said: i did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod, which was in my hand, and behold i must die. and saul said: may god do so and so to me, and add still more: for dying thou shalt die, o jonathan. and the people said to saul: shall jonathan then die, who hath wrought this great salvation in israel? this must not be. as the lord liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground, for he hath wrought with god this day. so the people delivered jonathan, that he should not die. and saul went back, and did not pursue after the philistines: and the philistines went to their own places. and saul having his kingdom established over israel, fought against all his enemies round about, against moab, and against the children of ammon, and edom, and the kings of soba, and the philistines; and whithersoever he turned himself, he overcame. and gathering together an army, he defeated amalec, and delivered israel from the hand of them that spoiled them. and the sons of saul, were jonathan, and jessui, and melchisua: and the names of his two daughters, the name of the firstborn was merob, and the name of the younger michol. and the name of saul's wife, was achinoam the daughter of achimaas; and the name of the captain of his army was abner, the son of ner, the cousin german of saul. for cis was the father of saul, and ner the father of abner, was son of abiel. and there was a great war against the philistines all the days of saul. for whomsoever saul saw to be a valiant man, and fit for war, he took him to himself.

and samuel said to saul: the lord sent me to anoint thee king over his people israel: now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the lord: thus saith the lord of hosts: i have reckoned up all that amalec hath done to israel: i how he opposed them in the way when they came up out of egypt. now therefore go, and smite amalec, and utterly destroy all that he hath: spare him not, nor covet any thing that is his: but slay both man and woman, child and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass. so saul commanded the people, and numbered them as lambs: two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand of the men of juda. and when saul was come to the city of amalec, he laid ambushes in the torrent. and saul said to the cinite: go, depart and get ye down from amalec: lest i destroy thee with him. for thou hast shewn kindness to all the children of israel, when they came up out of egypt. and the

cinite departed from the midst of amalec. and saul smote amalec from hevila, until thou comest to sur, which is over against egypt. and he took agag the king of amalec alive: but all the common people he slew with the edge of the sword. and saul and the people spared agag and the best of the flocks of sheep and of the herds, and the garments and the rams, and all that was beautiful, and would not destroy them: but every thing that was vile and good for nothing, that they destroyed. and the word of the lord came to samuel, saying: it repenteth me that i have made saul king: for he hath forsaken me, and hath not executed my commandments. and samuel was grieved, and he cried unto the lord all night. and when samuel rose early, to go to saul in the morning, it was told samuel, that saul was come to carmel, and had erected for himself a triumphant arch, and returning had passed on, and gone down to galgal. and samuel came to saul, and saul was offering a holocaust to the lord out of the choicest of the spoils which he had brought from amalec. and when samuel was come to saul, saul said to him: blessed be thou of the lord, i have fulfilled the word of the lord. and samuel said: what meaneth then this bleating of the flocks, which soundeth in my ears, and the lowing of the herds, which i hear? and saul said: they have brought them from amalec: for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the herds that they might be sacrificed to the lord thy god, but the rest we have slain. and samuel said to saul: suffer me, and i will tell thee what the lord hath said to me this night. and he said to him: speak. and samuel said: when thou wast a little one in thy own eyes, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of israel? and the lord anointed thee to be king over israel. and the lord sent thee on the way, and said: go, and kill the sinners of amalec, and thou shalt fight against them until thou hast utterly destroyed them. why then didst thou not hearken to the voice of the lord: but hast turned to the prey, and hast done evil in the eyes of the lord. and saul said to samuel: yea i have hearkened to the voice of the lord, and have walked in the way by which the lord sent me, and have brought agag the king of amalec, and amalec i have slain. but the people took of the spoils sheep and oxen, as the firstfruits of those things that were slain, to offer sacrifice to the lord their god in galgal. and samuel said: doth the lord desire holocausts and victims, and not rather that the voice of the lord should be obeyed? for obedience is better than sacrifices: and to hearken rather than to offer the fat of rams. because it is like the sin of witchcraft, to rebel: and like the crime of idolatry, to refuse to obey. forasmuch therefore as thou hast rejected the word of the lord, the lord hath also rejected thee from being king. and saul said to samuel: i have sinned because i have transgressed the commandment of the lord, and thy words, fearing the people, and obeying their voice. but now bear, i beseech thee, my sin, and return with me, that i may adore the lord. and samuel said to saul: i will not return with thee, because thou hast rejected the word of the lord, and the lord hath rejected thee from being king over israel. and samuel turned about to go away: but he laid hold upon the skirt of his mantle, and it rent. and samuel said to him: the lord hath rent the kingdom of israel from thee this day, and hath given it to thy neighbour who is better than thee. but the triumpher in israel will riot spare, and will not be moved to repentance: for he is not a mail that he should repent. then he said: i have sinned: yet honour me now before the ancients of my people, and before israel, and return with me, that i may adore the lord thy god. so samuel turned again after saul: and saul adored the lord. and samuel said: bring hitherto me agag the king of amalec. and agag was presented to him very fat, and trembling. and agag said: doth bitter death separate in this manner? and samuel said: as thy sword hath made women childless, so shall thy mother be childless among women. and samuel hewed him in pieces before the lord in galgal. and samuel departed to ramatha: but saul went up to his house in gaba. and samuel saw saul no more till the day of his death: nevertheless samuel mourned for saul, because the lord repented that he had made him king over israel.

and the lord said to samuel. how it long wilt thou mourn for saul, whom i have rejected from reigning over israel? fill thy horn with oil, and come, that i may send thee to isai the bethlehemite: for i have provided me a king among his sons. and samuel said: how shall i go? for saul will hear of it, and he will kill me. and the lord said: thou shalt take with thee a calf of the herd, and thou shalt say: i am come to sacrifice to the lord. and thou shalt call isai to the sacrifice, and i will shew thee what thou art to do, and thou shalt anoint him whom i shall shew to thee. then samuel did as the lord had said to him. and he came to bethlehem, and the ancients of the city wondered, and meeting him, they said: is thy coming hither peaceable? and he said: it is peaceable: i am come to offer sacrifice to the lord, be ye sanctified, and come with me to the sacrifice. and he sanctified isai and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice. and when they were come in, he saw eliab, and said: is the lord's anointed before him? and the lord said to samuel: look not on his countenance, nor on the height of his stature: because i have rejected him, nor do i judge according to the look of man: for man seeth those things that appear, but the lord beholdeth the heart. and isai called abinadab, and brought him before samuel. and he said: neither hath the lord chosen this. and isai brought samma, and he said of him: neither hath the lord chosen this. isai therefore brought his seven sons before samuel: and samuel said to isai: the lord hath not chosen any one of these. and samuel said to isai: are here all thy sons? he answered: there remaineth yet a young one, who keepeth the sheep. and samuel said to isai: send, and fetch him, for we will not sit down till he come hither. he sent therefore and brought him now he was ruddy and beautiful to behold, and of a comely face. and the lord said: arise, and anoint him, for this is he. then samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and the spirit of the lord came upon david from that day forward: and samuel rose up, and went to ramatha. but the spirit of the lord departed from saul, and an evil spirit from the lord troubled him. and the servants of saul said to him: behold now an evil spirit from god troubleth thee. let our lord give orders, and thy servants who are before thee will seek out a man skilful in playing on the harp, that when the evil spirit from the lord is upon thee, he may play with his hand, and thou mayest bear it more easily. and saul said to his servants: provide me then some man that can play well, and bring him to me. and one of the servants answering, said: behold i have seen a son of isai the bethlehemite, a skilful player, and one of great strength, and a man fit for war, and prudent in his words, and a comely person: and the lord is with him. then saul sent messengers to isai, saying: send me david thy son, who is in the pastures. and isai took an ass laden with bread, and a bottle of wine, and a kid of the flock, and sent them by the hand of david his son to saul. and david came to saul, and stood before him: and he loved him exceedingly, and made him his armourbearer. and saul sent to isai, saying: let david stand before me: for he hath found favour in my sight. so whensoever the evil spirit from the lord was upon saul, david took his harp, and played with his hand, and saul was refreshed, and was better, for the evil spirit departed from him.

now the philistines gathering together their troops to battle, assembled at socho of juda, and camped between socho and azeca in the borders of dommim. and saul and the children of israel being gathered together came to the valley of terebinth, and they set the army in array to fight against the philistines. and the philistines stood on a mountain on the one side, and israel stood on a mountain on the other side: and there was a valley between them. and there went out a man baseborn from the camp of the philistines named goliath, of geth, whose height was six cubits and a span: and he had a helmet of brass upon his head, and he was clothed with a coat of mail with scales, and the weight of his coat of mail was five thousand sicles of brass: and he had greaves of brass on his legs, and a buckler of brass covered his shoulders. and the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and the head of his spear weighed six hundred sicles of iron: and his armourbearer went before him. and standing he cried out to the bands of israel, and said to them: why are you come out prepared to fight? am not i a philistine, and you the servants of saul? choose out a man of you, and let him come down and fight hand to hand. if he be able to fight with me, and kill me, we will be servants to you: but if i prevail against him, and kill him, you shall be servants, and shall serve us. and the philistine said: i have defied the bands of israel this day: give me a man, and let him fight with me hand to hand. and saul and all the israelites hearing these words of the philistine were dismayed, and greatly afraid. now david was the son of that ephrathite of bethlehem juda before mentioned, whose name was isai, who had eight sons, and was an old man in the days of saul, and of great age among men. and his three eldest sons followed saul to the battle: and the names of his three sons that went to the battle, were eliab the firstborn, and the second abinadab, and the third samma. but david was the youngest. so the three eldest having followed saul, david went, and returned from saul, to feed his father's flock at bethlehem. now the philistine came out morning and evening, and presented himself forty days. and isai said to david his son: take for thy brethren an ephi of frumenty, and these ten loaves, and run to the camp to thy brethren. and carry these ten little cheeses to the tribune: and go see thy brethren, if they are well: and learn with whom they are placed. but saul, and they, and all the children of israel were in the valley of terebinth fighting against the philistines. david therefore arose in the morning, and gave the charge of the flock to the keeper: and went away loaded as isai had commanded him. and he came to the place of magala, and to the army, which was going out to fight, and shouted for the battle. for israel had put themselves in array, and the philistines who stood against them were prepared. and david leaving the vessels which he had brought, under the care of the keeper of the baggage, ran to the place of the battle and asked if all things went well with his brethren. and as he talked with them, that baseborn man whose name was goliath, the philistine, of geth, shewed himself coming up from the camp of the philistines: and he spoke according to the same words, and david heard them. and all the israelites when they saw the man, fled from his face, fearing him exceedingly. and some one of israel said: have you seen this man that is come up, for he is come up to defy israel. and the man that shall slay him, the king will enrich with great riches, and will give him his daughter, and will make his father's house free from tribute in israel. and david spoke to the men that stood by him, saying: what shall be given to the man that shall kill this philistine, and shall take away the reproach from israel? for who is this uncircumcised philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living god? and the people answered him the same words saying: these things shall be given to the man that shall slay him. now when eliab his eldest brother heard this, when he was speaking with others, he was angry with david, and said: why earnest thou hither? and why didst thou leave those few sheep in the desert? i know thy pride, and the wickedness of thy heart: that thou art come down to see the battle. and david said: what have i done? is there not cause to speak? and he turned a little aside from him to another: and said the same word. and the people answered him as before. and the words which david spoke were heard, and were rehearsed before saul. and when he was brought to him, he said to him: let not any man's heart be dismayed in him: i thy servant will go, and will fight against the philistine. and saul said to david: thou art not able to withstand this philistine, nor to fight against him: for thou art but a boy, but he is a warrior from his youth. and david said to saul: thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion, or a bear, and took a ram out of the midst of the flock: and i pursued after them, and struck them, and delivered it out of their mouth: and they rose up against me, and i caught them by the throat, and i strangled and killed them. for i thy servant have killed both a lion and a bear: and this uncircumcised philistine shall be also as one of them. i will go now, and take away the reproach of the people: for who is this uncircumcised philistine, who hath dared to curse the army of the living god? and david said: the lord who delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this philistine. and saul said to david: go, and the lord be with thee. and saul clothed david with his garments, and put a helmet of brass upon his head, and armed him with a coat of mail. and david having girded his sword upon his armour, began to try if he could walk in armour: for he was not accustomed to it. and david said to saul: i cannot go thus, for i am not used to it. and he laid them off, and he took his staff, which he had always in his hands: and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them into the shepherd's scrip, which he had with him, and he took a sling in his hand, and went forth against the philistine. and the philistine came on, and drew nigh against david, and his armourbearer before him. and when the philistine looked, and beheld david, he despised him. for he was a young man, ruddy, and of a comely countenance. and the philistine said to david: am i a dog, that thou comest to me with a staff? and the philistine cursed david by his gods. and he said to david: come to me, and i will give thy flesh to the birds of the air, and to the beasts of the earth. and david said to the philistine: thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: but i come to thee in the name of the lord of hosts, the god of the armies of israel, which thou hast defied. this day, and the lord will deliver thee into my hand, and i will slay thee, and take away thy head from thee: and i will give the carcasses of the army of the philistines this day to the birds of the air, and to the beasts of the earth: that all the earth may know that there is a god in israel. and all this assembly shall know, that the lord saveth not with sword and spear: for it is his battle, and he will deliver you into our hands. and when the philistine arose and was coming, and drew nigh to meet david, david made haste, and ran to the fight to meet the philistine. and he put his hand into his scrip, and took a stone, and cast it with the sling, and fetching it about struck the philistine in the forehead: and the stone was fixed in his forehead, and he fell on his face upon the earth. and david prevailed over the philistine, with a sling and a stone, and he struck, and slew the philistine. and as david had no sword in his hand, he ran, and stood over the philistine, and took his sword, and drew it out of the sheath, and slew him, and cut off his head. and the philistines seeing that their champion was dead, fled away. and the men of israel and juda rising up shouted, and pursued after the philistines till they came to the valley and to the gates of accaron, and there fell many wounded of the philistines in the way of saraim, and as far as geth, and as far as accaron. and the children of israel returning, after they had pursued the philistines, fell upon their camp. and david taking the head of the philistine brought it to jerusalem: but his armour he put in his tent. now at the time that saul saw david going out against the philistines, he said to abner the captain of the army: of what family is this young man descended, abner? and abner said: as thy soul liveth, o king, i know not. and the king said: inquire thou, whose son this man is. and when david was returned, after the philistine was slain, abner took him, and brought him in before saul, with the head of the philistine in his hand. and saul said to him: young man, of what family art thou? and david said: i am the son of thy servant isai the bethlehemite.

and it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking to saul, the soul of jonathan was knit with the soul of david, and jonathan loved him as his own soul. and saul took him that day, and would not let him return to his father's house. and david and jonathan made a covenant, for he loved him as his own soul. and jonathan stripped himself of the coat with which he was clothed, and gave it to david, and the rest of his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle. and david went out to whatsoever business saul sent him, and he behaved himself prudently: and saul set him over the soldiers, and he was acceptable in the eyes of all the people, and especially in the eyes of saul's servants. now when david returned, after he slew the philistine, the women came out of all the cities of israel, singing and dancing, to meet king saul, with timbrels of joy, and cornets. and the women sung as they played, and they said: i saul slew his thousands, and david his ten thousands. and saul was exceeding angry, and this word was displeasing in his eyes, and he said: they have given david ten thousands, and to me they have given but a thousand; what can he have more but the kingdom? and saul did not look on david with a good eye from that day and forward. and the day after the evil spirit from god came upon saul, and he prophesied in the midst of his house. and david played with his hand as at other times. and saul held a spear in his hand, and threw it, thinking to nail david to the wall: and david stept aside out of his presence twice. and saul feared david, because the lord was with him, and was departed from himself. therefore saul removed him from him, and made him a captain over a thousand men, and he went out and came in before the people. and david behaved wisely in all his ways, and the lord was with him. and saul saw that he was exceeding prudent, and began to beware of him. but all israel and juda loved david, for he came in and went out before them. and saul said to david: behold my elder daughter merob, her will i give thee to wife: only be a valiant man, and fight the battles of the lord. now saul said within himself: let not my hand be upon him, but let the hands of the philistines be upon him. and david said to saul: who am i, or what is my life, or my father's family in israel, that i should be son in law of the king? and it came to pass at the time when merob the daughter of saul should have been given to david, that she was given to hadriel the molathite to wife. but michol the other daughter of saul loved david. and it was told saul, and it pleased him. and saul said: i will give her to him, that she may be a stumblingblock to him, and that the band of the philistines may be upon him. and saul said to david: in two things thou shalt be my son in law this day. and saul commanded his servants to speak to david privately, saying: behold thou pleasest the king, and all his servants love thee. now therefore be the king's son in law. and the servants of saul spoke all these words in the ears of david. and david said: doth it seem to you a small matter to be the king's son in law? but i am a poor man, and of small ability. and the servants of saul told him, saying: such words as these hath david spoken. and saul said: speak thus to david: the king desireth not any dowry, but only a hundred foreskins of the philistines, to be avenged of the king's enemies. now saul thought to deliver david into the hands of the philistines. and when his servants had told david the words that saul had said, the word was pleasing in the eyes of david to be the king's son in law. and after a few days david rose up, and went with the men that were under him, and he slew of the philistines two hundred men, and brought their foreskins and numbered them out to the king, that he might be his son in law. saul therefore gave him michol his daughter to wife. and saul saw, and understood that the lord was with david. and michol the daughter of saul loved him. and saul began to fear david more: and saul became david's enemy continually. and the princes of the philistines went forth: and from the beginning of their going forth, david behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of saul, and his name became very famous.

and saul spoke to jonathan his son and to all his servants, that they should kill david. but jonathan the son of saul loved david exceedingly. and jonathan told david, saying: saul my father seeketh to kill thee: wherefore look to thyself, i beseech thee, in the morning, and thou shalt abide in a secret place and shalt be hid. and i will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art: and i will speak of thee to my father, and whatsoever i shall see, i will tell thee. and jonathan spoke good things of david to saul his father: and said to him: sin not, o king, against thy servant, david, because he hath not sinned against thee, and his works are very good towards thee. and he put his life in his hand, and slew the philistine, and the lord wrought great salvation for all israel. thou sawest it and didst rejoice. why therefore wilt thou sin against innocent blood by killing david, who is without fault? and when saul heard this he was appeased with the words of jonathan, and swore: as the lord liveth he shall not be slain. then jonathan called david and told him all these words: and jonathan brought in david to saul, and he was before him, as he had been yesterday and the day before. and the war began again, and david went out and fought against the philistines, and defeated them with a great slaughter, and they

fled from his face. and the evil spirit from the lord came upon saul, and he sat in his house, and held a spear in his hand: and david played with his hand. and saul endeavoured to nail david to the wall with his spear. and david slipped away out of the presence of saul: and the spear missed him, and was fastened in the wall, and david fled and escaped that night. saul therefore sent his guards to david's house to watch him, that he might be killed in the morning. and when michol david's wife had told him this, saying: unless thou save thyself this night, to morrow thou wilt die, she let him down through a window. and he went and fled away and escaped. and michol took an image and laid it on the bed, and put a goat's skin with the hair at the head of it, and covered it with clothes. and saul sent officers to seize david: and it was answered that he was sick. and again saul sent to see david, saying: bring him to me in the bed, that he may be slain. and when the messengers were come in, they found an image upon the bed, and a goat's skin at its head. and saul said to michol: why hast thou deceived me so, and let my enemy go and flee away? and michol answered saul: because he said to me: let me go, or else i will kill thee. but david fled and escaped, and came to samuel in ramatha, and told him all that saul had done to him: and he and samuel went and dwelt in najoth. and it was told saul by some, saying: behold david is in najoth in ramatha. so saul sent officers to take david: and when they saw a company of prophets prophesying, and samuel presiding over them, the spirit of the lord came also upon them, and they likewise began to prophesy. and when this was told saul, he sent other messengers: but they also prophesied. and again saul sent messengers the third time: and they prophesied also. and saul being exceedingly angry, went also himself to ramatha, and came as far as the great cistern, which is in socho, and he asked, and said: in what place are samuel and david? and it was told him: behold they are in najoth in ramatha. and he went to najoth in ramatha, and the spirit of the lord came upon him also, and he went on, and prophesied till he came to najoth in ramatha, and he stripped himself also of his garments, and prophesied with the rest before samuel, and lay down naked all that day and night. this gave occasion to a proverb: what! is saul too among the prophets?

but david fled from najoth, which is in ramatha, and came and said to jonathan: what have i done? what is my iniquity, and what is my sin against thy father, that he seeketh my life? and he said to him: god forbid, thou shalt not die: for my father will do nothing great or little, without first telling me: hath then my father hid this word only from me? no, this shall not be. and he swore again to david. and david said: thy father certainly knoweth that i have found grace in thy sight, and he will say: let not jonathan know this, lest he be grieved. but truly as the lord liveth, and thy soul liveth, there is but one step (as i may say) between me and death. and jonathan said to david: whatsoever thy soul shall say to me, i will do for thee. and david said to jonathan: behold to morrow is the new moon, and i according to custom am wont to sit beside the king to eat: let me go then that i may be hid in the field till the evening of the third day. if thy father look and inquire for me, thou shalt answer him: david asked me that he might run to bethlehem his own city: because there are solemn sacrifices there for all his tribe. if he shall say, it is well: thy servant shall have peace: but if he be angry, know that his malice is come to its height. deal mercifully then with thy servant: for thou hast brought me thy servant into a covenant of the lord with thee. but if there be any iniquity in me, do thou kill me, and bring me not in to thy father. and jonathan said: far be this from thee: for if i should certainly know that evil is determined by my father against thee, i could do no otherwise than tell thee. and david answered jonathan: who shall bring me word, if thy father should answer thee harshly concerning me? and jonathan said to david: come and let us go out into the field. and when they were both of them gone out into the field, jonathan said to david: o lord god of israel, if i shall discover my father's mind, to morrow or the day after, and there be any thing good for david, and i send not immediately to thee, and make it known to thee, may the lord do so and so to jonathan and add still more. but if my father shall continue in malice against thee, i will discover it to thy ear, and will send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace, and the lord be with thee, as he hath been with my father. and if i live, thou shalt shew me the kindness of the lord: but if i die, thou shalt not take away thy kindness from my house for ever, when the lord shall have rooted out the enemies of david, every one of them from the earth, may he take away jonathan from his house, and may the lord require it at the hands of david's enemies. jonathan therefore made a covenant with the house of david: and the lord required it at the hands of david's enemies. and jonathan swore again to david, because he loved him: for he loved him as his own soul. and jonathan said to him: to morrow is the new moon, and thou wilt be missed: for thy seat will be empty till after to-morrow. so thou shalt go down quickly, and come to the place, where thou must be hid on the day when it is lawful to work, and thou shalt remain beside the stone, which is called ezel. and i will shoot three arrows near it, and will shoot as if i were exercising myself at a mark. and i will send a boy, saying to him: go and fetch me the arrows. if i shall say to the boy: behold the arrows are on this side of thee, take them up: come thou to me, because, there is peace to thee, and there is no evil, as the lord liveth. but if i shall speak thus to the boy: behold the arrows are beyond thee: go in peace, for the lord hath sent thee away. and concerning the word which i and thou have spoken, the lord be between thee and me for ever. so david was hid in the field, and the new moon came, and the king sat down to eat bread. and when the king sat down upon his chair (according to custom) which was beside the wall, jonathan arose, and abner sat by saul's side, and david's place appeared empty. and saul said nothing that day, for he thought it might have happened to him, that he was not clean, nor purified. and when the second day after the new moon was come, david's place appeared empty again. and saul said to jonathan his son: why cometh not the son of isai to meat neither yesterday nor to day? and jonathan answered saul: he asked leave of me earnestly to go to bethlehem, and he said: let me go, for there is a solemn sacrifice in the city, one of my brethren hath sent for me: and now if i have found favour in thy eyes, i will go quickly, and see my brethren. for this cause he came not to the king's table. then saul being angry against jonathan said to him: thou son of a woman that is the ravisher of a man, do i not know that thou lovest the son of isai to thy own confusion and to the confusion of thy shameless mother? for as long as the son of isai liveth upon earth, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom. therefore now presently send, and fetch him to me: for he is the son of death. and jonathan answering saul his father, said: why shall he die: what hath he done? and saul caught up a spear to strike him. and jonathan understood that it was determined by his father to kill david. so jonathan rose from the table in great anger, and did not eat bread on the second day after the new moon. for he was grieved for david, because his father had put him to confusion. and when the morning came, jonathan went into the field, according to the appointment with david, and a little boy with him. and he said to his boy: go, and fetch me the arrows which i shoot. and when the boy ran, he shot another arrow beyond the boy. the boy therefore came to the place of the arrow which jonathan had shot: and jonathan cried after the boy, and said: behold the arrow is there further beyond thee. and jonathan cried again after the boy, saying: make haste speedily, stand not. and jonathan's boy gathered up the arrows, and brought them to his master: and he knew not at all what was doing: for only jonathan and david knew the matter. jonathan therefore gave his arms to the boy, and said to him: go, and carry them into the city. and when the boy was gone, david rose out of his place, which was towards the south, and falling on his face to the ground, adored thrice: and kissing one another, they wept together, but david more. and jonathan said to david: go in peace: and let all stand that we have sworn both of us in the name of the lord, saying: the lord be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed for ever. and david arose, and departed: and jonathan went into the city.

and david came to nobe to achimelech the priest: and achimelech was astonished at david's coming. and he said to him: why art thou alone, and no man with thee? and david said to achimelech the priest: the king hath commanded me a business, and said: let no man know the thing for which thou art sent by me, and what manner of commands i have given thee: and i have appointed my servants to such and such a place. now therefore if thou have any thing at hand, though it were but five loaves, give me, or whatsoever thou canst find. and the priest answered david, saying: i have no common bread at hand, but only

holy bread, if the young men be clean, especially from women? and david answered the priest, and said to him: truly, as to what concerneth women, we have refrained ourselves from yesterday and the day before, when we came out, and the vessels of the young men were holy. now this way is defiled, but it shall also be sanctified this day in the vessels. the priest therefore gave him hallowed bread: for there was no bread there, but only the loaves of proposition, which had been taken away from before the face of the lord, that hot loaves might be set up. now a certain man of the servants of saul was there that day, within the tabernacle of the lord: and his name was doeg, an edomite, the chiefest of saul's herdsman. and david said to achimelech: hast thou here at hand a spear, or a sword? for i brought not my own sword, nor my own weapons with me, for the king's business required haste. and the priest said: lo, here is the sword of goliath the philistine whom thou slewest in the valley of terebinth, wrapped up in a cloth behind the ephod: if thou wilt take this, take it, for here is no other but this. and david said: there is none like that, give it me. and david arose and fled that day from the face of saul: and came to achis the king of gath: and the servants of achis, when they saw david, said to him: is not this david the king of the land? did they not sing to him in their dances, saying: saul hath slain his thousands, and david his ten thousands? but david laid up these words in his heart, and was exceedingly afraid at the face of achis the king of gath. and he changed his countenance before them, and slipt down between their hands: and he stumbled against the doors of the gate, and his spittle ran down upon his beard. and achis said to his servants: you saw the man was mad: why have you brought him to me? have we need of madmen, that you have brought in this fellow, to play the madman in my presence? shall this fellow come into my house?

david therefore went from thence and fled to the cave of odollam. and when his brethren, and all his father's house had heard of it, they went down to him thither; and all that were in distress and oppressed with debt, and under affliction of mind gathered themselves unto him: and he became their prince, and there were with him about four hundred men. and david departed from thence into maspha of moab: and he said to the king of moab: let my father and my mother tarry with you, i beseech thee, till i know what god will do for me. and he left them under the eyes of the king of moab, and they abode with him all the days that david was in the hold. and gad the prophet said to david: abide not in the hold, depart, and go into the land of juda. and david departed, and came into the forest of haret. and saul heard that david was seen, and the men that were with him. now whilst saul abode in gabaa, and was in the wood, which is by rama, having his spear in his hand, and all his servants were standing about him, he said to his servants that stood about him: hear me now, ye sons of jemin: will the son of isai give everyone of you fields, and

vineyards, and make you all tribunes, and centurions: that all of you have conspired against me, and there is no one to inform me, especially when even my son hath entered into league with the soil of isai? there is not one of you that pitieth my case, nor that giveth me any information: because my son hath raised up my servant against me, plotting against me to this day. and doeg the edomite who stood by, and was the chief among the servants of saul, answering, said: i saw the son of isai, in nobe with achimelech the son of achitob the priest. and he consulted the lord for him, and gave him victuals, and gave him the sword of goliath the philistine. then the king sent to call for achimelech the priest the son of achitob, and all his father's house, the priests that were in nobe, and they came all of them to the king. and saul said to achimelech: hear, thou son of achitob. he answered: here i am, my lord. and saul said to him: why have you conspired against me, thou, and the son of isai, and thou hast given him bread and a sword, and hast consulted the lord for him, that he should rise up against me, continuing a traitor to this day. and achimelech answering the king, said: and who amongst all thy servants is so faithful as david, who is the king's son in law, and goeth forth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thy house? did i begin to day to consult the lord for him? far be this from me: let not the king suspect such a thing against his servant, or any one in all my father's house: for thy servant knew nothing of this matter, either little or great. and the king said: dying thou shalt die, achimelech, thou and all thy father's house. and the king said to the messengers that stood about him: turn, and kill the priests of the lord, for their hand is with david, because they knew that he was fled, and they told it not to me. and the king's servants would not put forth their hands against the priests of the lord. and the king said to doeg: turn thou, and fall upon the priests. and doeg the edomite turned, and fell upon the priests and slew in that day eighty-five men that wore the linen ephod. and nobe the city of the priests he smote with the edge of his sword, both men and women, children, and sucklings, and ox and ass, and sheep with the edge of the sword. but one of the sons of achimelech the son of achitob, whose name was abiathar, escaped, and fled to david, and told him that saul had slain the priests of the lord. and david said to abiathar: i knew that day when doeg the edomite was there, that without doubt he would tell saul: i have been the occasion of the death of all the souls of thy father's house. abide thou with me, fear not: for he that seeketh my life, seeketh thy life also, and with me thou shalt be saved.

and they told david, saying: behold the philistines fight against ceila, and they rob the barns. therefore david consulted the lord, saying: shall i go and smite these philistines? and the lord said to david: go, and thou shalt smite the philistines, and shalt save ceila. and the men that were with david, said to him: behold we are in fear here in juda, how much more if we go to ceila against the hands of the philistines? therefore david consulted the lord again. and he answered and said to him: arise, and go to ceila: for i will deliver the philistines into thy hand. david therefore, and his men, went to ceila, and fought against the philistines, and brought away their cattle, and made a great slaughter of them: and david saved the inhabitants of ceila. now at that time, when abiathar the son of achimelech fled to david to ceila, he came down having an ephod with him. and it was told saul that david was come to ceila: and saul said: the lord hath delivered him into my hands, and he is shut up, being come into a city, that hath gates and bars. and saul commanded all the people to go down to fight against ceila, and to besiege david, and his men. now when david understood, that saul secretly prepared evil against him, he said to abiathar the priest: bring hither the ephod. and david said: o lord god of israel, thy servant hath heard a report, that saul designeth to come to ceila, to destroy the city for my sake: will the men of ceila deliver me into his hands? and will saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? o lord god of israel, tell thy servant. and the lord said: he will come down. and david said: will the men of ceila deliver me, and my men, into the hands of saul? and the lord said: they will deliver thee up. then david and his men, who were about six hundred, arose, and departing from ceila, wandered up and down uncertain where they should stay: and it was told saul that david was fled from ceila, and had escaped: wherefore he forbore to go out. but david abode in the desert in strong holds, and he remained in a mountain of the desert of ziph, in a woody hill. and saul sought him always: but the lord delivered him not into his hands. and david saw that saul was come out to seek his life. and david was in the desert of ziph, in a wood. and jonathan the son of saul arose, and went to david into the wood, and strengthened his hands in god: and he said to him: fear not: for the hand of my father saul shall not find thee, and thou shalt reign over israel, and i shall be next to thee, yea, and my father knoweth this. and the two made a covenant before the lord: and david abode in the wood: but jonathan returned to his house. and the ziphites went up to saul in gabaa, saying: lo, doth not david lie hid with us in the strong holds of the wood, in mount hachila, which is on the right hand of the desert. now therefore come down, as thy soul hath desired to come down: and it shall be our business to deliver him into the king's hands. and saul said: blessed be ye of the lord, for you have pitied my case. go therefore, i pray you, and use all diligence, and curiously inquire, and consider the place where his foot is, and who hath seen him there: for he thinketh of me, that i lie craftily in wait for him. consider and see all his lurking holes, wherein he is hid, and return to me with the certainty of the thing, that i may go with you. and if he should even go down into the earth to hide himself, i will search him out in all the thousands of juda. and they arose and went to ziph before saul: and david and his men were in the desert of maon, in the plain at the right hand of jesimon. then saul and his men went to seek him: and it was told david, and forthwith he went down to the rock, and abode in the wilderness of maon: and when saul had heard of it he pursued after david in the wilderness of maon. and saul went on this side of the mountain: and david and his men were on the other side of the mountain: and david despaired of being able to escape from the face of saul: and saul and his men encompassed david and his men round about to take them. and a messenger came to saul, saying: make haste to come, for the philistines have poured in themselves upon the land. wherefore saul returned, leaving the pursuit of david, and went to meet the philistines. for this cause they called that place, the rock of division. then david went up from thence, and dwelt in strong holds of engaddi.

and when saul was returned from following the philistines, they told him, saying: behold, david is in the desert of engaddi. saul therefore took three thousand chosen men out of all israel, and went out to seek after david, and his men, even upon the most craggy rocks, which are accessible only to wild goats. and he came to the sheepcotes, which were in his way. and there was a cave, into which saul went, to ease nature: now david and his men lay hid in the inner part of the cave. and the servants of david said to him: behold the day, of which the lord said to thee: i will deliver thy enemy unto thee, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good in thy eyes. then david arose, and secretly cut off the hem of saul's robe. after which david's heart struck him, because he had cut off the hem of saul's robe. and he said to his men: the lord be merciful unto me, that i may do no such thing to my master the lord's anointed, as to lay my hand upon him, because he is the lord's anointed. and david stopped his men with his words, and suffered them not to rise against saul. but saul rising up out of the cave, went on his way. and david also rose up after him: and going out of the cave cried after saul, saying: my lord the king. and saul looked behind him: and david bowing himself down to the ground, worshipped, and said to saul: why dost thou hear the words of men that say david seeketh thy hurt? behold this day thy eyes have seen, that the lord hath delivered thee into my hand, in the cave, and i had a thought to kill thee, but my eye hath spared thee. for i said: i will not put out my hand against my lord, because he is the lord's anointed. moreover see and know, o my father, the hem of thy robe in my hand, that when i cut, off the hem of thy robe, i would not put out my hand against thee. reflect, and see, that there is no evil in my hand, nor iniquity, neither have i sinned against thee: but thou liest in wait for my life, to take it away. the lord judge between me and thee, and the lord revenge me of thee: but my hand shall not be upon thee. as also it is said in the old proverb: from the wicked shall wickedness come forth: therefore my hand shall not be upon thee. after whom dost thou come out, o king of israel? after whom dost thou pursue? after a dead dog, after a flea. be the lord judge, and judge between me and thee, and see, and judge my cause, and deliver me out of thy hand. and when david had made an end of speaking these words to saul, saul said: is this thy voice, my son david? and saul lifted up his voice, and wept. and he said to david: thou hast more just than i: for thou hast done good to me, and i have rewarded thee with evil. and thou hast shewn this day what good things thou hast done to me: how the lord delivered me into thy hand, and thou hast not killed me. for who when he hath found his enemy, will let him go well away? but the lord reward thee for this good turn, for what thou hast done to me this day. and now as i know that thou shalt surely be king, and have the kingdom of israel in thy hand: swear to me by the lord, that thou wilt not destroy my seed after me, nor take away my name from the house of my father. and david swore to saul. so saul went home: and david and his men went up into safer places.

and samuel died, and all israel was gathered together, and they mourned for him, and buried him in his house in ramatha. and david rose and went down into the wilderness of pharan. now there was a certain man in the wilderness of maon, and his possessions were in carmel, and the man was very great: and he had three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats: and it happened that he was shearing his sheep in carmel. now the name of the man was nabal: and the name of his wife was abigail. and she was a prudent and very comely woman, but her husband was churlish, and very bad and ill natured: and he was of the house of caleb. and when david heard in the wilderness that nabal was shearing his sheep, he sent ten young men, and said to them: go up to carmel, and go to nabal, and salute him in my name with peace. and you shall say: peace be to my brethren, and to thee, and peace to thy house, and peace to all that thou hast. i heard that thy shepherds that were with us in the desert were shearing: we never molested them, neither was there ought missing to them of the flock at any time, all the while they were with us in carmel. ask thy servants, and they will tell thee. now therefore let thy servants find favour in thy eyes: for we are come in a good day, whatsoever thy hand shall find give to thy servants, and to thy son david. and when david's servants came, they spoke to nabal all these words in david's name: and then held their peace. but nabal answering the servants of david, said: who is david? and what is the son of isai? servants are multiplied now a days who flee from their masters. shall i then take my bread, and my water, and the flesh of my cattle, which i have killed for my shearers, and give to men whom i know not whence they are? so the servants of david went back their way, and returning came and told him all the words that he said. then david said to his young men: let every man gird on his sword. and they girded on every man his sword. and david also girded on his sword: and there followed david about four hundred men: and two hundred remained with the baggage. but one of the servants told abigail the wife of nabal, saying: behold david sent messengers out of the wilderness, to salute our master: and he rejected them. these men were very good to us, and gave us no trouble: neither did we ever lose any thing all the time that we conversed with them in the desert. they were a wall unto us both by night and day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep. wherefore consider, and think what thou hast to do: for evil is determined against thy husband, and against thy house, and he is a son of belial, so that no man can speak to him. then abigail made haste and took two hundred loaves, and two vessels of wine, and five sheep ready dressed, and five measures of parched corn, and a hundred clusters of raisins, and two hundred cakes of dry figs, and laid them upon asses: and she said to her servants: go before me: behold i will follow after you: but she told not her husband nabal. and when she had gotten upon an ass, and was coming down to the foot of the mountain, david and his men came down over against her, and she met them. and david said: truly in vain have i kept all that belonged to this man in the wilderness, and nothing was lost of all that pertained unto him: and he hath returned me evil for good. may god do so and so, and add more to the foes of david, if i leave of all that belong to him till the morning, any that pisseth against the wall. and when abigail saw david she made haste and lighted off the ass, and fell before david, on her face, and adored upon the ground. and she fell at his feet, and said: upon me let this iniquity be, my lord: let thy handmaid speak, i beseech thee, in thy ears: and hear the words of thy servant. let not my lord the king, i pray, regard this naughty man nabal: for according to his name, he is a fool, and folly is with him: but i thy handmaid did not see thy servants, my lord, whom thou sentest. now therefore, my lord, the lord liveth, and thy soul liveth, who hath withholden thee from coming to blood, and hath saved thy hand to thee: and now let thy enemies be as nabal, and all they that seek evil to my lord. wherefore receive this blessing, which thy handmaid hath brought to thee, my lord: and give it to the young men that follow thee, my lord. forgive the iniquity of thy handmaid: for the lord will surely make for my lord a faithful house, because thou, my lord, fightest the battles of the lord: let not evil therefore be found in thee all the days of thy life. for if a man at any time shall rise, and persecute thee, and seek thy life, the soul of my lord shall be kept, as in the bundle of the living, with the lord thy god: but the souls of thy enemies shall be whirled, as with the violence and whirling of a sling. and when the lord shall have done to thee, my lord, all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have made thee prince over israel, this shall not be an occasion of grief to thee, and a scruple of heart to my lord, that thou hast shed innocent blood, or hast revenged thyself: and when the lord shall have done well by my lord, thou shalt remember thy handmaid. and david said to abigail: blessed be the lord the god of israel, who sent thee this day to meet me, and blessed be thy speech: and blessed be thou, who hast kept me to day, from coming to blood, and revenging me with my own hand. otherwise as the lord liveth the god of israel, who hath withholden me from doing thee any evil: if thou hadst not quickly come to meet me, there had not been left to nabal by the morning light any that pisseth against the wall. and david received at her hand all that she had brought him, and said to her: go in peace into thy house, behold i have heard thy voice, and have honoured thy face. and abigail came to nabal: and behold he had a feast in his house, like the feast of a king, and nabal's heart was merry: for he was very drunk: and she told him nothing less or more until morning. but early in the morning when nabal had digested his wine, his wife told him these words, and his heart died within him, and he became as a stone. and after ten days had passed, the lord struck nabal, and he died. and when david had heard that nabal was dead, he said: blessed be the lord, who hath judged the cause of my reproach at the hand of nabal, and hath kept his servant from evil, and the lord hath returned the wickedness of nabal upon his head. the n david sent and treated with abigail, that he might take her to himself for a wife. and david's servants came to abigail to carmel, and spoke to her, saying: david hath sent us to thee, to take thee to himself for a wife. and she arose and bowed herself down with her face to the earth, and said: behold, let thy servant be a handmaid, to wash the feet of the servants of my lord. and abigail arose, and made haste, and got upon an ass, and five damsels went with her, her waiting maids, and she followed the messengers of david, and became his wife. moreover david took also achinoam of jezrahel: and they were both of them his wives. but saul gave michol his daughter, david's wife, to phalti, the son of lais, who was of gallium.

and the men of ziph came to saul in gabaa, saying: behold david is hid in the hill of hachila, which is over against the wilderness. and saul arose, and went down to the wilderness of ziph, having with him three thousand chosen men of israel, to seek david in the wilderness of ziph. and saul encamped in gabaa hachila, which was over against the wilderness in the way: and david abode in the wilderness. and seeing that saul was come after him into the wilderness, he sent spies, and learned that he was most certainly come thither. and david arose secretly, and came to the place where saul was: and when he had beheld the place, wherein saul slept, and abner the son of ner, the captain of his army, and saul sleeping in a tent, and the rest of the multitude round about him, david spoke to achimelech the hethite, and abisai the son of sarvia the brother of joab, saying: who will go down with me to saul into the camp? and abisai said: i will go with thee. so david and abisai came to the people by night, and found saul lying and sleeping in the tent, and his spear fixed in the ground at his head: and abner and the people sleeping round about him. and abisai said to david: god hath shut up thy enemy this day into thy hands: now then i will run him through with my spear even to the earth at once, and there shall be no need of a second time. and david said to abisai: kill him not: for who shall put forth his hand against the lord's anointed, and shall be guiltless? and david said: as the lord liveth, unless the lord shall strike him, or his day shall come to die, or he shall go down to battle and perish: the lord be merciful unto me, that i extend not my hand upon the lord's anointed. but now take the spear, which is at his head, and the cup of water, and let us go. so david took the spear, and the cup of water which was at saul's head, and they went away: and no man saw it, or knew it, or awaked, but they were all asleep, for a deep sleep from the lord was fallen upon them. and when david was gone over to the other side. and stood on the top of the hill afar off, and a good space was between them, david cried to the people, and to abner the son of ner, saying: wilt thou not answer, abner? and abner answering, said: who art thou, that criest, and disturbest the king? and david said to abner: art not thou a man? and who is like thee in israel? why then hast thou not kept thy lord the king? for there came one of the people in to kill the king thy lord. this thing is not good, that thou hast done: as the lord liveth, you are the sons of death, who have not kept your master, the lord's anointed. and now where is the king's spear, and the cup of water, which was at his head? and saul knew david's voice, and said: is this thy voice, my son david? and david said: it is my voice, my lord the king. and he said: wherefore doth my lord persecute his servant? what have i done? or what evil is there in my hand? now therefore hear, i pray thee, my lord the king, the words of thy servant: if the lord stir thee up against me, let him accept of sacrifice: but if the sons of men, they are cursed in the sight of the lord, who have cast me out this day, that i should not dwell in the inheritance of the lord, saying: go, serve strange gods. and now let not my blood be shed upon the earth before the lord: for the king of israel is come out to seek a flea, as the partridge is hunted in the mountains. and saul said: i have sinned, return, my son david, for i will no more do thee harm, because my life hath been precious in thy eyes this day: for it appeareth that i have done foolishly, and have been ignorant in very many things. and david answering, said: behold the king's spear: let one of the king's servants come over and fetch it. and the lord will reward every one according to his justice, and his faithfulness: for the lord hath delivered thee this day into my hand, and i would not put forth my hand against the lord's anointed. and as thy life hath been much set by this day in my eyes, so let my life be much set by in the eyes of the lord, and let him deliver me from all distress. then saul said to david: blessed art thou, my son david: and truly doing thou shalt do, and prevailing thou shalt prevail. and david went on his way, and saul returned to his place.

and david said in his heart: i shall gone day or other fall into the hands of saul: is it not better for me to flee, and to be saved in the land of the philistines, that saul may despair of me, and cease to seek me in all the coasts of israel? i will flee then out of his hands. and david arose and went away, both he and the six hundred men that were with him, to achis the son of maoch, king of geth. and david dwelt with achis at

geth, he and his men: every man with his household, and david with his two wives, achinoam the jezrahelites, and abigail the wife of nabal of carmel. and it was told saul that david was fled to geth, and he sought no more after him. and david said to achis: if i have found favour in thy sight, let a place be given me in one of the cities of this country, that i may dwell there: for why should thy servant dwell in the royal city with thee? then achis gave him siceleg that day: for which reason siceleg belongeth to the kings of juda unto this day. and the time that david dwelt in the country of the philistines, was four months. and david and his men went up, and pillaged gessuri, and gerzi, and the amalecites: for these were of old the inhabitants of the countries, as men go to sur, even to the land of egypt. and david wasted all the land, and left neither man nor woman alive: and took away the sheep and the oxen, and the asses, and the camels, and the apparel, and returned and came to achis. and achis said to him: whom hast thou gone against to day? david answered: against the south of juda, and against the south of jerameel, and against the south of ceni. and david saved neither man nor woman, neither brought he any of them to geth, saying: lest they should speak against us. so did david, and such was his proceeding all the days that he dwelt in the country of the philistines. and achis believed david, saying: he hath done much harm to his people israel: therefore he shall be my servant for ever.

and it came to pass in those days, that the philistines gathered together their armies to be prepared for war against israel: and achis said to david: know thou now assuredly, that thou shalt go out with me to the war, thou, and thy men. and david said to achis: now thou shalt know what thy servant will do. and achis said to david: and i will appoint thee to guard my life for ever. now samuel was dead, and all israel mourned for him, and buried him in ramatha his city. and saul had put away all the magicians and soothsayers out of the land. and the philistines were gathered together, and came and camped in sunam: and saul also gathered together all israel, and came to gelboe. and saul saw the army of the philistines, and was afraid, and his heart was very much dismayed. and he consulted the lord, and he answered him not, neither by dreams, nor by priests, nor by prophets. and saul said to his servants: seek me a woman that hath a divining spirit, and i will go to her, and inquire by her. and his servants said to him: there is a woman that hath a divining spirit at endor. then he disguised himself: and put on other clothes, and he went, and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night, and he said to her: divine to me by thy divining spirit, and bring me up him whom i shall tell thee. and the woman said to him: behold thou knowest all that saul hath done, and how he hath rooted out the magicians and soothsayers from the land: why then dost thou lay a snare for my life, to cause me to be put to death? and saul swore unto her by the lord, saying: as the lord liveth there shall no evil happen to thee for this thing. and the woman said to him: whom shall i bring up to thee? and he said, bring me up samuel. and when the woman saw samuel, she cried out with a loud voice, and said to saul: why hast thou deceived me? for thou art saul. and the king said to her: fear not: what hast thou seen? and the woman said to saul: i saw gods ascending out of the earth. and he said to her: what form is he of? and she said: an old man cometh up, and he is covered with a mantle. and saul understood that it was samuel, and he bowed himself with his face to the ground, and adored. and samuel said to saul: why hast thou disturbed my rest, that i should be brought up? and saul said, i am in great distress: for the philistines fight against me, and god is departed from me, and would not hear me, neither by the hand of prophets, nor by dreams: therefore i have called thee, that thou mayest shew me what i shall do. and samuel said: why askest thou me, seeing the lord has departed from thee, and is gone over to thy rival: for the lord will do to thee as he spoke by me, and he will rend thy kingdom out of thy hand, and will give it to thy neighbour david: because thou didst not obey the voice of the lord, neither didst thou execute the wrath of his indignation upon amalec. therefore hath the lord done to thee what thou sufferest this day. and the lord also will deliver israel with thee into the hands of the philistines: and to morrow thou and thy sons shall be with me: and the lord will also deliver the army of israel into the hands of the philistines. and forthwith saul fell all along on the ground, for he was frightened with the words of samuel, and there was no strength in him, for he had eaten no bread all that day. and the woman came to saul (for he was very much troubled) and said to him: behold thy handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and i have put my life in my hand: and i hearkened unto the words which thou spoked to me. now therefore hear thou also the voice of thy handmaid, and let me set before thee a morsel of bread, that thou mayest eat and recover strength, and be able to go on thy journey. but he refused, and said: i will not eat. but his servants and the woman forced him, and at length hearkening to their voice, he arose from the ground and sat upon the bed. now the woman had a fatted calf in the house, and she made haste and killed it: and taking meal kneaded it, and baked some unleavened bread, and set it before saul, and before his servants. and when they had eaten they rose up, and walked all that night.

now all the troops of the philistines were gathered together to aphec: and israel also camped by the fountain which is in jezrahel. and the lords of the philistines marched with their hundreds and their thousands: but david and his men were in the rear with achis. and the princes of the philistines said to achis: what mean these hebrews? and achis said to the princes of the philistines: do you not know david, who was the servant of saul the king of israel, and hath been with me many days, or years, and i have found no fault in him, since the day that he fled over to me until this day? but the princes of the philistines

were angry with him, and they said to him: let this man return, and abide in his place, which thou hast appointed him, and let him not go down with us to battle, lest he be an adversary to us, when we shall begin to fight: for how can he otherwise appease his master, but with our heads? is not this david, to whom they sung in their dances, saying: saul slew his thousands, and david his ten thousands? then achis called david, and said to him: as the lord liveth, thou art upright and good in my sight: and so is thy going out, and thy coming in with me in the army: and i have not found my evil in thee, since the day that thou camest to me unto this day: but thou pleasest not the lords. return therefore, and go in peace, and offend not the eyes of the princes of the philistines. and david said to achis: but what have i done, and what hast thou found in me thy servant, from the day that i have been in thy sight until this day, that i may not go and fight against the enemies of my lord the king? and achis answering said to david: i know that thou art good in my sight, as an angel of god: but the princes of the philistines have said: he shall not go up with us to the battle. therefore arise in the morning, thou, and the servants of thy lord, who came with thee: and when you are up before day, and it shall begin to be light, go on your way. so david and his men arose in the night, that they might set forward in the morning, and returned to the land of the philistines: and the philistines went up to jezrahel.

now when david and his men were come to siceleg on the third day, the amalecites had made an invasion on the south side upon siceleg, and had smitten siceleg, and burnt it with fire. and had taken the women captives that were in it, both little and great: and they had not killed any person, but had carried them with them, and went on their way. so when david and his men came to the city, and found it burnt with fire, and that their wives and their sons, and their daughters were taken captives, david and the people that were with him, lifted up their voices, and wept till they had no more tears. for the two wives also of david were taken captives, achinoam the jezrahelitess, and abigail the wife of nabal of carmel. and david was greatly afflicted: for the people had a mind to stone him, for the soul of every man was bitterly grieved for his sons, and daughters: but david took courage in the lord his god. and he said to abiathar the priest the son of achimelech: bring me hither the ephod. and abiathar brought the ephod to david. and david consulted the lord, saying: shall i pursue after these robbers, and shall i overtake them, or not? and the lord said to him: pursue after them: for thou shalt surely overtake them and recover the prey. so david went, he and the six hundred men that were with him, and they came to the torrent besor: and some being weary stayed there. but david pursued, he and four hundred men: for two hundred stayed, who being weary could not go over the torrent besor. and they found an egyptian in the field, and brought him to david: and they gave him bread to eat, and water to drink, as also a piece of a cake of figs, and two bunches of raisins. and when he had eaten them his spirit returned, and he was refreshed: for he had not eaten bread, nor drunk water three days, and three nights. and david said to him: to whom dost thou belong? or whence dost thou come? and whither art thou going? he said: i am a young man of egypt, the servant of an amalecite, and my master left me, because i began to be sick three days ago. for we made an invasion on the south side of cerethi, and upon juda, and upon the south of caleb, and we burnt siceleg with fire. and david said to him: canst thou bring me to this company? and he said: swear to me by god, that thou wilt not kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master, and i will bring thee to this company. and david swore to him. and when he had brought him, behold they were lying spread upon all the ground, eating and drinking, and as it were keeping a festival day, for all the prey, and the spoils which they had taken out of the land of the philistines, and out of the land of juda. and david slew them from the evening unto the evening of the next day, and there escaped not a man of them, but four hundred young men, who had gotten upon camels, and fled. so david recovered all that the amalecites had taken, and he rescued his two wives. and there was nothing missing small or great, neither of their sons or their daughters, nor of the spoils, and whatsoever they had taken: david recovered all. and he took all the flocks and the herds, and made them go before him: and they said: this is the prey of david. and david came to the two hundred men, who being weary had stayed, and were not able to follow david, and he had ordered them to abide at the torrent besor: and they came out to meet david, and the people that were with him. and david coming to the people saluted them peaceably. then all the wicked and unjust men that had gone with david answering, said: because they came not with us, we will not give them any thing of the prey which we have recovered: but let every man take his wife and his children, and be contented with them, and go his way. but david said: you shall not do so, my brethren, with these things, which the lord hath given us, who hath kept us, and hath delivered the robbers that invaded us into our hands. and no man shall hearken to you in this matter. but equal shall be the portion of him that went down to battle and of him that abode at the baggage, and they shall divide alike. and this hath been done from that day forward, and since was made a statute, and an ordinance, and as a law in israel. then david came to siceleg, and sent presents of the prey to the ancients of juda his neighbours, saying: receive a blessing of the prey of the enemies of the lord. to them that were in bethel, and that were in ramoth to the south, and to them that were in jether, and to them that were in aror and that were in sephamoth, and that were in esthamo, and that were in rachal, and that were in the cities of jerameel, and that were in the cities of ceni, and that were in arama, and that were in the lake asan, and that were in atach, and that were in hebron, and to the rest that were in those places, in which david had abode with his men.

and the philistines fought against israel, and the men of israel fled from before the philistines, and fell down slain in mount gelboe. and the philistines fell upon saul, and upon his sons, and they slew jonathan, and abinadab and melchisua the sons of saul. and the whole weight of the battle was turned upon saul: and the archers overtook him, and he was grievously wounded by the archers. then saul said to his armourbearer: draw thy sword, and kill me: lest these uncircumcised come, and slay me, and mock at me. and his armourbearer would not: for he was struck with exceeding great fear. then saul took his sword, and fell upon it. and when his armourbearer saw this, to wit, that saul was dead, he also fell upon his sword and died with him. so saul died, and his three sons, and his armourbearer, and all his men that same day together. and the men of israel, that were beyond the valley, and beyond the jordan, seeing that the israelites were fled, and that saul was dead, and his sons, forsook their cities, and fled: and the philistines came, and dwelt there. and on the morrow the philistines came to strip the slain, and they found saul and his three sons lying in mount gelboe. and they cut off saul's head, and stripped him of his armour, and sent into the land of the philistines round about, to publish it in the temples of their idols, and among their people. and they put his armour in the temple of asaroth, but his body they hung on the wall of bethsan. now when the inhabitants of jabel galaad had heard all that the philistines had done to saul, all the most valiant men arose, and walked all the night, and took the body of saul, and the bodies of his sons, from the wall of bethsan: and they came to jabel galaad, and burnt them there: and they took their bones and buried them in the wood of jabel: and fasted seven days.

now it came to pass, after saul was dead, that david returned from the slaughter of the amalecites, and abode two days in siceleg. and on the third day, there appeared a man who came out of saul's camp, with his garments rent, and dust strewed on his head: and when he came to david, he fell upon his face, and adored. and david said to him: from whence comest thou? and he said to him: i am fled out of the camp of israel. and david said unto him: what is the matter that is come to pass? tell me. he said: the people are fled from the battle, and many of the people are fallen and dead: moreover saul and jonathan his son are slain. and david said to the young man that told him: how knowest thou that saul and jonathan his son, are dead? and the young man that told him, said: i came by chance upon mount gelboe, and saul leaned upon his spear: and the chariots and horsemen drew nigh unto him, and looking behind him, and seeing me, he called me. and i answered, here am i. and he said to me: who art thou? and i said to him: i am an amalecite. and he said to me: stand over me, and kill me: for anguish is come upon me, and as yet my whole life is in me. so standing over him, i killed him: for i knew that he could not live after the fall: and i took the diadem that was on his head, and the bracelet that was on his arm and have brought them hither to thee, my lord. then david took hold of his garments and rent them, and likewise all the men that were with him. and they mourned, and wept, and fasted until evening for saul, and for jonathan his son, and for the people of the lord, and for the house of israel, because they were fallen by the sword. and david said to the young man that told him: whence art thou? he answered: i am the son of a stranger of amalee. david said to him: why didst thou not fear to put out thy hand to kill the lord's anointed? and david calling one of his servants, said: go near and fall upon him. and he struck him so that he died. and david said to him: thy blood be upon thy own head: for thy own mouth hath spoken against thee, saying: i have slain the lord's anointed. and david made this kind of lamentation over saul, and over jonathan his son. (also he commanded that they should teach the children of juda the use of the bow, as it is written in the book of the just.) and he said: consider, o israel, for them that are dead, wounded on thy high places. the illustrious of israel are slain upon thy mountains: how are the valiant fallen? tell it not in geth, publish it not in the streets of ascalon: lest the daughters of the philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph, ye mountains of gelboe, let neither dew, nor rain come upon you, neither be they fields of firstfruits: for there was cast away the shield of the valiant, the shield of saul as though he had not been anointed with oil. from the blood of the slain, from the fat of the valiant, the arrow of jonathan never turned back, and the sword of saul did not return empty. saul and jonathan, lovely, and comely in their life, even in death they were not divided: they were swifter than eagles, stronger than lions. ye daughters of israel, weep over saul, who clothed you with scarlet in delights, who gave ornaments of gold for your attire. how are the valiant fallen in battle? jonathan slain in the high places? i grieve for thee, my brother jonathan: exceeding beautiful, and amiable to me above the love of women. as the mother loveth her only son, so did i love thee. how are the valiant fallen, and the weapons of war perished?

and after these things david consulted the lord, saying: shall i go up into one of the cities of juda? and the lord said to him: go up. and david said: whither shall i go up? and he answered him: into hebron. so david went up, and his two wives, achinoam the jezrahelites, and abigail the wife of nabal of carmel: and the men also that were with him, david brought up every man with his household: and they abode in the towns of hebron. and the men of juda came, and anointed david there, to be king over the house of juda. and it was told david, that the men of jabel galaad had buried saul. david therefore sent messengers to the men of jabel galaad, and said to them: blessed be you to the lord, who have shewn this mercy to your master saul, and have buried him. and now the lord surely will render you mercy and truth, and i also will, requite you for this good turn, because you have done this thing. let your hands be strengthened, and be ye men of valour: for although your master saul be dead, yet the house of juda hath anointed me to be their king. but abner the son of ner, general of saul's army, took isboseth the son of saul, and led him about through the camp? and made him king over galaad, and, over gessuri, and over jezrahel, and over ephraim, and over benjamin, and over all israel. isboseth the son of saul was forty years old when he began to reign over israel, and he reigned two years: and only the house of juda followed david. and the number of the days that david abode, reigning in hebron over the house of juda, was seven years and six months. and abner the son of ner, and the servants of isboseth the son of saul, went out from the camp to gabaon and joab the son of sarvia, and the servants of david went out, and met them by the pool of gabaon. and when they were come together, they sat down over against one another: the one on the one side of the pool, and the other on the other side. and abner said to joab: let the young men rise, and play before us. and joab answered: let them rise, then there arose and went over twelve in number of benjamin, of the part of isboseth the son of saul, and twelve of the servants of david. and every one catching his fellow, by the head, thrust his sword into the side of his adversary, and they fell down together: and the name of the place was called: the field of the valiant, in gabaon. and there was a very fierce battle that day: and abner was put to flight, with the men of israel, by the servants of david. and there were the three sons of sarvia there, joab, and abisai, and asael: now asael was a most swift runner, like one of the roes that abide in the woods. and asael pursued after abner, and turned not to the right hand nor to the left from following abner. and abner looked behind him, and said: art thou asael? and he answered: i am. and abner said to him: go to the right hand or to the left, and lay hold on one of the young men and take thee his spoils. but asael would not leave off following him close. and again abner said to asael: go off, and do not follow me, lest i be obliged to stab thee to the ground, and i shall not be able to hold up my face to joab thy brother. but he refused to hearken to him, and would not turn aside: wherefore abner struck him with his spear with a back stroke in the groin, and thrust him through, and he died upon the spot: and all that came to the place where asael fell down and died stood still. now while joab and abisai pursued after abner, the sun went down: and they came as far as the hill of the aqueduct, that lieth over against the valley by the way of the wilderness in gabaon. and the children of benjamin gathered themselves together to abner: and being joined in one body, they stood on the top of a hill. and abner cried out to joab, and said: shall thy sword rage unto utter destruction? knowest thou not that it is dangerous to drive people to despair? how long dost thou defer to bid the people cease from pursuing after their brethren? and joab said: as the lord liveth, if thou hadst spoke sooner, even in the morning the people should have retired from pursuing after their brethren. then joab sounded the trumpet, and all the army stood still, and did not pursue after israel any farther, nor fight any more. and abner and his men walked all that night through the plains: and they passed the jordan, and having gone through all beth-horon, came to the camp. and joab returning, after he had left abner, assembled all the people: and there were wanting of david's servants nineteen men, beside asael. but the servants of david had killed of benjamin, and of the men that were with abner, three hundred and sixty, who all died. and they took asael, and buried him in the sepulchre of his father in bethlehem, and joab, and the men that were with him, marched all the night, and they came to hebron at break of day.

now there was a long war between the house of saul and the house of david: david prospering and growing always stronger and stronger, but the house of saul decaying daily. and sons were born to david in hebron: and his firstborn was amnon of achinoam the jezrahelitess: and his second cheleab of abigail the wife of nabal of carmel: and the third absalom the son of maacha the daughter of tholmai king of gessur: and the fourth adonias, the son of haggith: and the fifth saphathia the son of abital: and the sixth jethraam of egla the wife of david: these were born to david in hebron. now while there was war between the house of saul and the house of david, abner the son of ner ruled the house of saul. and saul had a concubine named respha, the daughter of aia. and isboseth said to abner: why didst thou go in to my father's concubine? and he was exceedingly angry for the words of isboseth, and said: am i a dog's head against juda this day, who have shewn mercy to the house of saul thy father, and to his brethren and friends, and have not delivered thee into the hands of david, and hast thou sought this day against me to charge me with a matter concerning a woman? so do god to abner, and more also, unless as the lord hath sworn to david, so i do to him, that the kingdom be translated from the house of saul, and the throne of david be set up over israel, and over juda from dan to bersabee. and he could not answer him a word, because he feared him. abner therefore sent messengers to david for himself, saying: whose is the land? and that they should say: make a league with me, and my hand shall be with thee: and i will bring all israel to thee. and he said: very well: i will make a league with thee: but one thing i require of thee, saying: thou shalt not see my face before thou bring michol the daughter of saul: and so thou shalt come, and see me. and david sent messengers to isboseth the son of saul, saying: restore my wife michol, whom i espoused to me for a hundred foreskins of the philistines. and isboseth sent, and took her from her husband phaltiel, the son of lais. and her husband followed her, weeping as far as bahurim: and abner said to him: go and return. and he returned. abner also spoke to the ancients of israel, saying: both yesterday and the day before you sought for david that he might reign over you. now then do it: because the lord hath spoken to david, saying: by the hand of my servant david i will save my people israel from the hands of the philistines, and of all their enemies. and abner spoke also to benjamin. and he went to speak to david in hebron all that seemed good to israel, and to all benjamin. and he came to david in hebron with twenty men: and david made a feast for abner, and his men that came with him. and abner said to david: i will rise, that i may gather all israel unto thee my lord the king, and may enter into a league with thee, and that thou mayst reign over all as thy soul desireth. now when david had brought abner on his way, and he was gone in peace, immediately david's servants and joab came, after having slain the robbers, with an exceeding great booty: and abner, was not with david in hebron, for he had now sent him away, and he was gone in peace. and joab and all the army that was with him, came afterwards: and it was told joab, that abner the son of ner came to the king, and he hath sent him away, and he is gone in peace. and joab went in to the king, and said: what hast thou done? behold abner came to thee: why didst thou send him away, and he is gone and departed? knowest thou not abner the son of ner, that to this end he came to thee, that he might deceive thee, and to know thy going out, and thy coming in, and to know all thou dost? then joab going out from david, sent messengers after abner, and brought him back from the cis-tern of sirra, david knowing nothing of it. and when abner was returned to hebron, joab took him aside to the middle of the gate, to speak to him treacherously: and he stabbed him there in the groin, and he died, in revenge of the blood of asael his brother. and when david heard of it, after the thing was now done, he said: i, and my kingdom are innocent before the lord for ever of the blood of abner the son of ner: and may it come upon the head of joab, and upon all his father's house: and let there not fail from the house of joab one that hath an issue of seed, or that is a leper, or that holdeth the distaff, or that falleth by the sword, or that wanteth bread. so joab and abisai his brother slew abner, because he had killed their brother asael at gabaon in the battle. and david said to joab, and to all the people that were with him: rend your garments, and gird yourselves with sackcloths, and mourn before the funeral of abner. and king david himself followed the bier. and when they had buried abner in hebron, king david lifted up his voice, and wept at the grave of abner: and all the people also wept. and the king mourning and lamenting over abner, said: not as cowards are wont to die, hath abner died. thy hands were not bound, nor thy feet laden with fetters: but as men fall before the children of iniquity, so didst thou fall. and all the people repeating it wept over him. and when all the people came to take meat with david, while it was yet broad day, david swore, saying: so do god to me, and more also, if i taste bread or any thing else before sunset. and all the people heard, and they were pleased, and all that the king did seemed good in the sight of all the people. and all the people, and all israel understood that day that it was not the king's doing, that abner the son of ner was slain. the king also said to his servants: do you not know that a prince and great man is slain this day in israel? but i as yet am tender, though anointed king. and these men the sons of sarvia are too hard for me: the lord reward him that doth evil according to his wickedness.

and isboseth the son of saul heard that abner was slain in hebron: and his hands were weakened, and all israel was troubled. now the son of saul had two men captains of his bands, the name of the one was baana, and the name of the other rechab, the sons of remmon a berothite of the children of benjamin: for beroth also was reckoned in benjamin. and the berothites fled into gethaim, and were sojourners there until that time. and jonathan the son of saul had a son that was lame of his feet: for he was five years old when the tidings came of saul and jonathan from jezrahel. and his nurse took him up and fled: and as she made haste to flee, he fell and became lame: and his name was miphiboseth. and the sons of remmon the berothite, rechab and baana coming, went into the house of isboseth in the heat of the day: and he was sleeping upon his bed at noon. and the doorkeeper of the house, who was cleansing wheat, was fallen asleep. and they entered into the house secretly taking ears of corn, and rechab and baana his brother stabbed him in the groin, and fled away. for when they came into the house, he was sleeping upon his bed in a parlour, and they struck him and killed him: and taking away his head they went off by the way of the wilderness, walking all night. and they brought the head of isboseth to david to hebron: and they said to the king: behold the head of isboseth the son of saul thy enemy who sought thy life: and the lord hath revenged my lord the king this day of saul, and of his seed. but david answered rechab, and baana his brother, the sons of remmon the berothite, and said to them: as the lord liveth, who hath delivered my soul out of all distress, the man that told me, and said: saul is dead, who thought he brought good tidings, i apprehended, and slew him in siceleg, who should have been rewarded for his news. how much more now when wicked men have slain an innocent man in his own house, upon his bed, shall i not require his blood at your hand, and take you away from the earth? and david commanded his servants and they slew them: and cutting off their hands and feet, hanged them up over the pool in hebron: but the head of isboseth they took and buried in the sepulchre of abner in hebron.

then all the tribes of israel came to david in hebron, saying: behold we are thy bone and thy flesh. moreover yesterday also and the day before, when saul was king over us, thou wast he that did lead out and bring in israel: and the lord said to thee: thou shalt feed my people israel, and thou shalt be prince over israel. the ancients also of israel came to the king to hebron, and king david made a league with them in hebron before the lord: and they anointed david to be king over israel. david was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years. in hebron he reigned over juda seven years and six months: and in jerusalem he reigned three and thirty years over all israel and juda. and the king and all the men that were with him went to jerusalem to the jebusites the inhabitants of the land: and they said to david: thou shalt not come in hither unless thou take away the blind and the lame that say: david shall not come in hither. but david took the castle of sion, the same is the city of david. for david had offered that day a reward to whosoever should strike the jebusites and get up to the gutters of the tops of the houses, and take away the blind and the lame that hated the soul of david: therefore it is said in the proverb: the blind and the lame shall not come into the temple. and david dwelt in the castle, and called it, the city of david: and built round about from mello and inwards. and he went on prospering and growing up, and the lord god of hosts was with him. and hiram the king of tyre sent messengers to david, and cedar trees, and carpenters, and masons for walls: and they built a house for david. and david knew that the lord had confirmed him king over israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom over his people israel. and david took more concubines and wives of jerusalem, after he was come from hebron: and there were born to david other sons also and daughters: and these are the names of them, that were born to him in jerusalem, samua, and sobab, and nathan, and solomon, and jebahar, and elisua, and nepheg, and japhia, and elisama, and elioda, and eliphaleth. and the philistines heard that they had anointed david to be king over israel: and they all came to seek david: and when david heard of it, he went down to a strong hold. and the philistines coming spread themselves in the valley of raphaim. and david consulted the lord, saying: shall i go up to the philistines? and wilt thou deliver them into my hand? and the lord said to david: go up, for i will surely deliver the philistines into thy hand. and david came to baal pharisim: and defeated them there, and he said: the lord hath divided my enemies before me, as waters are divided. therefore the name of the place was called baal pharisim. and they left there their idols: which david and his men took away. and the philistines came up again and spread themselves in the valley of raphaim. and david consulted the lord: shall i go up against the philistines, and wilt thou deliver them into my hands? he answered: go not up against them, but fetch a compass behind them, and thou shalt come upon them over against the pear trees. and when thou shalt hear the sound of one going in the tops of the pear trees, then shalt thou join battle: for then will the lord go out before thy face to strike the army of the philistines. and david did as the lord had commanded him, and he smote the philistines from gabaa until thou come to gezer.

and david again gathered together all the chosen men of israel, thirty thousand. and david arose and went, with all the people that were with him of the men of juda to fetch the ark of god, upon which the name of the lord of hosts is invoked, who sitteth over it upon the cherubims. and they laid the ark of god upon a new cart: and took it out of the house of abinadab, who was in gabaa: and oza, and ahio, the sons of abinadab, drove the new cart. and when they had taken it out of the house of abinadab, who was in gabaa, ahio having care of the ark of god went before the ark. but david and all israel played before the lord on all manner of instruments made of wood, on harps and lutes and timbrels and cornets and cymbals. and when they came to the floor of nachon, oza put forth his hand to the ark of god, and took hold of it: because the oxen kicked and made it lean aside. and the indignation of the lord was enkindled against oza, and he struck him for his rashness: and he died there before the ark of god. and david was grieved because the lord had struck oza, and the name of that place was called: the striking of oza, to this day. and david was afraid of the lord that day, saying: how shall the ark of the lord come to me? and he would not have the ark of the lord brought in to himself into the city of david: but he caused it to be carried into the house of obedom the gethite. and the ark of the lord abode in the house of obedom the gethite three months: and the lord blessed obedom, and all his household. and it was told king david, that the lord had blessed obedom, and all that he had, because of the ark of god. so david went, and brought away the ark of god out of the house of obedom into the city of david with joy. and there were with david seven choirs, and calves for victims. and when they that carried the ark of the lord had gone six paces, he sacrificed an ox and a ram: and david danced with all his might before the lord: and david was girded with a linen ephod. and david and all the house of israel brought the ark of the covenant of the lord with joyful shouting, and with sound of trumpet. and when the ark of the lord was come into the city of david, michol the daughter of saul, looking out through a window, saw king david leaping and dancing before the lord: and she despised him in her heart. and they brought the ark of the lord, and set it in its place in the midst of the tabernacle, which david had pitched for it: and david offered holocausts, and peace offerings before the lord. and when he had made an end of offering holocausts and peace offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the lord of hosts. and he distributed to all the multitude of israel both men and women, to every one, a cake of bread, and a piece of roasted beef, and fine flour fried with oil: and all the people departed every one to his house. and david returned to bless his own house: and michol the daughter of saul coming out to meet david, said: how glorious was the king of israel to day, uncovering himself before the handmaids of his servants, and was naked, as if one of the buffoons should be naked. and david said to michol: before the lord, who chose me rather than thy father, and than all his house, and commanded me to be ruler over the people of the lord in israel, i will both play and make myself meaner than i have done: and i will be little in my own eyes: and with the handmaid of whom thou speakest, i shall appear more glorious. therefore michol the daughter of saul had no child to the day of her death.

and it came to pass when the king sat in his house, and the lord had given him rest on every side from all his enemies, he said to nathan the prophet: dost thou see that i dwell in a house of cedar, and the ark of god is lodged within skins? and nathan said to the king: go, do all that is in thy heart: because the lord is with thee. but it came to pass that night, that the word of the lord came to nathan, saying: go, and say to my servant david: thus saith the lord: shalt thou build me a house to dwell in? whereas i have not dwelt in a house from the day that i brought the children of israel out of the land of egypt even to this day: but have walked in a tabernacle, and in a tent. in all the places that i have gone through with all the children of israel, did ever i speak a word to any one of the tribes of israel, whom i commanded to feed my people israel, saying: why have you not built me a house of cedar? and now thus shalt thou speak to my servant david: thus saith the lord of hosts: a i took thee out of the pastures from following the sheep to be ruler over my people israel: and i have been with thee wheresoever thou hast walked, and have slain all thy enemies from before thy face: and i have made thee a great man, like unto the name of the great ones that are on the earth. and i will appoint a place for my people israel, and i will plant them, and they shall dwell therein, and shall be disturbed no more: neither shall the children of iniquity afflict them any more as they did before, from the day that i appointed judges over my people israel: and i will give thee rest from all thy enemies. and the lord foretelleth to thee, that the lord will make thee a house. and when thy days shall be fulfilled, and

thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, i will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and i will establish his kingdom. he shall build a house to my name, and i will establish the throne of his kingdom for ever. i will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son: and if he commit any iniquity, i will correct him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men. but my mercy i will not take away from him, as i took it from saul, whom i removed from before my face. and thy house shall be faithful, and thy kingdom for ever before thy face, and thy throne shall be firm for ever. according to all these words and according to all this vision, so did nathan speak to david. and david went in, and sat before the lord, and said: who am i, o lord god, and what is my house, that thou hast brought me thus far? but yet this hath seemed little in thy sight, o lord god, unless thou didst also speak of the house of thy servant for a long time to come: for this is the law of adam, o lord god. and what can david say more unto thee? for thou knowest thy servant, o lord god: for thy word's sake, and according to thy own heart thou hast done all these great things, so that thou wouldst make it known to thy servant. therefore thou art magnified, o lord god, because there is none like to thee, neither is there any god besides thee, in all the things that we have heard with our ears. and what nation is there upon earth, as thy people israel, whom god went to redeem for a people to himself, and to make him a name, and to do for them great and terrible things, upon the earth, before the face of thy people, whom thou redeemedst to thyself out of egypt, from the nations and their gods. for thou hast confirmed to thyself thy people israel to be an everlasting people: and thou, o lord god, art become their god. and now, o lord god, raise up for ever the word that thou hast spoken, concerning thy servant and concerning his house: and do as thou hast spoken, that thy name may be magnified for ever, and it may be said: the lord of hosts is god over israel. and the house of thy servant david shall be established before the lord. because thou, o lord of hosts, god of israel, hast revealed to the ear of thy servant, saying: i will build thee a house: therefore hath thy servant found in his heart to pray this prayer to thee. and now, o lord god, thou art god, and thy words shall be true: for thou hast spoken to thy servant these good things. and now begin, and bless the house of thy servant, that it may endure for ever before thee: because thou, o lord god, hast spoken it, and with thy blessing let the house of thy servant be blessed for ever.

and it came to pass after this that david defeated the philistines, and brought them down, and david took the bridle of tribute out of the hand of the philistines. and he defeated moab, and measured them with a line, casting them down to the earth: and he measured with two lines, one to put to death, and one to save alive: and moab was made to serve david under tribute. david defeated also adarezer the son of rohob king of soba, when he went to extend his dominion over the river euphrates. and david took from him a thousand and seven hundred horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen, and houghed all the chariot horses: and only reserved of them for one hundred chariots. and the syrians of damascus came to succour adarezer the king of soba: and david slew of the syrians two and twenty thousand men. and david put garrisons in syria of damascus: and syria served david under tribute: and the lord preserved david in all his enterprises, whithersoever he went. and david took the arms of gold, which the servants of adarezer wore, and brought them to jerusalem. and out of bete, and out of beroth, cities of adarezer, king david took an exceeding great quantity of brass. and thou the king of emath heard that david had defeated all the forces of adarezer. and thou sent joram his son to king david, to salute him, and to congratulate with him, and to return him thanks: because he had fought against adarezer, and had defeated him. for thou was an enemy to adarezer, and in his hand were vessels of gold, and vessels of silver, and vessels of brass: and king david dedicated them to the lord, together with the silver and gold that he had dedicated of all the nations, which he had subdued: of syria, and of moab, and of the children of ammon, and of the philistines, and of amalec, and of the spoils of adarezer the son of rohob king of soba. david also made himself a name, when he returned after taking syria in the valley of the saltpits, killing eighteen thousand: and he put guards in edom, and placed there a garrison: and all edom was made to serve david: and the lord preserved david in all enterprises he went about. and david reigned over all israel: and david did judgment and justice to all his people. and joab the son of sarvia was over the army: and josaphat the son of ahilud was recorder: and sadoc the son of achitob, and achimelech the son of abiah, were the priests: and saraia was the scribe: and banaias the son of joiada was over the cerethi and phelethi: and the sons of david were the princes.

and david said: is there any one, think you, left of the house of saul, that i may shew kindness to him for jonathan's sake? now there was of the house of saul, a servant named siba: and when the king had called him to him, he said to him: art thou siba? and he answered: i am siba thy servant. and the king said: is there any one left of the house of saul, that i may shew the mercy of god unto him? and siba said to the king: there is a son of jonathan left, who is lame of his feet. where is he? said he. and siba said to the king: behold he is in the house of machir the son of ammiel in lodabar. then king david sent, and brought him out of the house of machir the son of ammiel of lodabar. and when miphiboseh the son of jonathan the son of saul was come to david, he fell on his face and worshipped. and david said: miphiboseh? and he answered: behold thy servant. and david said to him: fear not, for i will surely shew thee mercy for jonathan thy father's sake, and i will restore the lands of saul thy father, and thou shalt eat bread at my table always. he bowed down to him, and said: who am i thy servant, that thou shouldst look upon such a dead dog as i am? then the king called siba the servant of saul, and said to him: all that belonged to saul, and all his house, i have given to thy master's son. thou therefore and thy sons and thy servants shall till the land for him: and thou shalt bring in food for thy master's son, that he may be maintained: and miphiboseth the son of thy master shall always eat bread at my table. and siba had fifteen sons and twenty servants. and siba said to the king: as thou my lord the king hast commanded thy servant, so will thy servant do: and miphiboseth shall eat at my table, as one of the sons of the king, and miphiboseth had a young son whose name was micha: and all the kindred of the house of siba served miphiboseth. but miphiboseth dwelt in jerusalem: because he ate always of the king's table: and he was lame of both feet.

and it came to pass after this, that the king of the children of ammon died, and hanon his son reigned in his stead. and david said: i will shew kindness to hanon the son of daas, as his father shewed kindness to me. so david sent his servants to comfort him for the death of his father. but when the servants of david were come into the land of the children of ammon, the princes of the children of ammon said to hanon their lord: thinkest thou that for the honour of thy father, david hath sent comforters to thee, and hath not david rather sent his servants to thee to search, and spy into the city, and overthrow it? wherefore hanon took the servants of david, and shaved off the one half of their beards, and cut away half of their garments even to the buttocks, and sent them away. when this was told david, he sent to meet them: for the men were sadly put to confusion, and david commanded them, saying: stay at jericho, till your beards be grown, and then return. and the children of ammon seeing that they had done an injury to david, bent and hired the syrians of rohob, and the syrians of soba, twenty thousand footmen, and of the king of maacha a thousand men, and of istob twelve thousand men. and when david heard this, he sent joab and the whole army of warriors. and the children of ammon came out, and set their men in array at the entering in of the gate: but the syrians of soba, and of rohob, and of istob, and of maacha were by themselves in the field. then joab seeing that the battle was prepared against him, both before and behind, chose of all the choice men of israel, and put them in array against the syrians: and the rest of the people he delivered to abisai his brother, who set them in array against the children of ammon. and joab said: if the syrians are too strong for me, then thou shalt help me: but if the children of ammon are too strong for thee, then i will help thee. be of good courage, and let us fight for our people, and for the city of our god: and the lord will do what is good in his sight. and joab and the people that were with him, began to fight against the syrians: and they immediately fled before him. and the children of ammon seeing that the syrians were fled, they fled also before abisai, and entered into the city: and joab returned from the children of ammon, and came to jerusalem. then the syrians seeing that they had fallen before israel, gathered themselves together. and adarezer sent and fetched the syrians, that were beyond the river, and brought over their army: and sobach, the captain of the host of adarezer, was their general. and when this was told david, he gathered all israel together, and passed over the jordan, and came to helam: and the syrians set themselves in array against david, and fought against him. and the syrians fled before israel, and david slew of the syrians the men of seven hundred chariots, and forty thousand horsemen: and smote sobach the captain of the army, who presently died. and all the kings that were auxiliaries of adarezer, seeing themselves overcome by israel, were afraid and fled away, eight and fifty thousand men before israel. and they made peace with israel: and served them, and all the syrians were afraid to help the children of ammon any more.

and it came to pass at the return of the year, at the time when kings go forth to war, that david sent joab and his servants with him, and all israel, and they spoiled the children of ammon, and besieged rabba: but david remained in jerusalem. in the mean time it happened that david arose from his bed after noon, and walked upon the roof of the king's house: and he saw from the roof of his house a woman washing herself, over against him: and the woman was very beautiful. and the king sent, and inquired who the woman was. and it was told him, that she was bethsabée the daughter of eliam, the wife of urias the hethite. and david sent messengers, and took her, and she came in to him, and he slept with her: and presently she was purified from her uncleanness: and she returned to her house having conceived. and she sent and told david, and said: i have conceived. and david sent to joab, saying: send me urias the hethite. and joab sent urias to david. and urias came to david. and david asked how joab did, and the people, and how the war was carried on. and david said to urias: go into thy house, and wash thy feet. and urias went out from the king's house, and there went out after him a mess of meat from the king. but urias slept before the gate of the king's house, with the other servants of his lord, and went not down to his own house. and it was told david by some that said: urias went not to his house. and david said to urias: didst thou not come from thy journey? why didst thou not go down to thy house? and urias said to david: the ark of god and israel and juda dwell in tents, and my lord joab and the servants of my lord abide upon the face of the earth: and shall i go into my house, to eat and to drink, and to sleep with my wife? by thy welfare and by the welfare of thy soul i will not do this thing. then david said to urias: tarry here to day, and to morrow i will send thee away. urias tarried in jerusalem that day and the next. and david called him to eat and to drink before him, and he made him drunk: and he went out in the evening, and slept on his couch with the servants of his lord, and went not down into his house. and when the morning was come, david wrote a letter to joab: and sent it by the hand of urias, writing in the letter: set ye urias in the front of the battle, where the fight is strongest: and leave ye him, that he may be wounded and die. wherefore as joab was besieging the city, he put urias in the place where he knew the bravest men were. and the men coming out of the city, fought against joab, and there fell some of the people of the servants of david, and urias the hethite was killed also. then joab sent, and told david all things concerning the battle. and he charged the messenger, saying: when thou hast told all the words of the battle to the king, if thou see him to be angry, and he shall say: why did you approach so near to the wall to fight? knew you not that many darts are thrown from above off the wall? who killed abimelech the son of jeroabaal? did not a woman cast a piece of a millstone upon him from the wall, and slew him in thebes? why did you go near the wall? thou shalt say: thy servant urias the hethite is also slain. so the messenger departed, and came and told david all that joab had commanded him. and the messenger said to david: the men prevailed against us, and they came out to us into the field: and we vigorously charged and pursued them even to the gate of the city. and the archers shot their arrows at thy servants from off the wall above: and some of the king's servants are slain, and thy servant urias the hethite is also dead. and david said to the messenger: thus shalt thou say to joab: let not this thing discourage thee: for various is the event of war: and sometimes one, sometimes another is consumed by the sword: encourage thy warriors against the city, and exhort them that thou mayest overthrow it. and the wife of urias heard that urias her husband was dead, and she mourned for him. and the mourning being over, david sent and brought her into his house, and she became his wife, and she bore him a son: and this thing which david had done, was displeasing to the lord.

and the lord sent nathan to david: and when he was come to him, he said to him: there were two men in one city, the one rich, and the other poor. the rich man had exceeding many sheep and oxen. but the poor man had nothing at all but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up, and which had grown up in his house together with his children, eating of his bread, and drinking of his cup, and sleeping in his bosom: and it was unto him as a daughter. and when a certain stranger was come to the rich man, he spared to take of his own sheep and oxen, to make a feast for that stranger, who was come to him, but took the poor man's ewe, and dressed it for the man that was come to him. and david's anger being exceedingly kindled against that man, he said to nathan: as the lord liveth, the man that hath done this is a child of death. he shall restore the ewe fourfold, because he did this thing, and had no pity. and nathan said to david: thou art the man. thus saith the lord the god of israel: i anointed thee king over israel, and i delivered thee from the hand of saul, and gave thee thy master's house and thy master's wives into thy bosom, and gave thee the house of israel and juda: and if these things be little, i shall add far greater things unto thee. why therefore hast thou despised the word of the lord, to do evil in my sight? thou hast killed urias the hethite with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the children of ammon. therefore the sword shall never depart from thy house, because thou hast despised me, and hast taken the wife of urias the hethite to be thy wife. thus saith the lord: behold, i will raise up evil against thee out of thy own house, and i will take thy wives before thy eyes i and give them to thy neighbour, and he shall lie with thy wives in the sight of this sun. for thou didst it secretly: but i will do this thing in the sight of all israel, and in the sight of the sun. and david said to nathan: i have sinned against the lord. and nathan said to david: the lord also hath taken away thy sin: thou shalt not die. nevertheless, because thou hast given occasion to the enemies of the lord to blaspheme, for this thing, the child that is born to thee, shall surely die. and nathan returned to his house. the lord also struck the child which the wife of urias had borne to david, and his life was despaired of. and david besought the lord for the child: and david kept a fast, and going in by himself lay upon the ground. and the ancients of his house came, to make him rise from the ground: but he would not, neither did he eat meat with them. and it came to pass on the seventh day that the child died: and the servants of david feared to tell him, that the child was dead. for they said: behold when the child was yet alive, we spoke to him, and he would not hearken to our voice: how much more will he afflict himself if we tell him that the child is dead? but when david saw his servants whispering, he understood that the child was dead: and he said to his servants: is the child dead? they answered him: he is dead. then david arose from the ground, and washed and anointed himself: and when he had changed his apparel, he went into the house of the lord: and worshipped, and then he came into his own house, and he called for bread, and ate. and his servants said to him: what thing is this that thou hast done? thou didst fast and weep for the child, while it was alive, but when the child was dead, thou didst rise up, and eat bread. and he said: while the child was yet alive, i fasted and wept for him: for i said: who knoweth whether the lord may not give him to me, and the child may live? but now that he is dead, why should i fast? shall i be able to bring him back any more? i shall go to him rather: but he shall not return to me. and david comforted bethsabee his wife, and went in unto her, and slept with her: i and she bore a son, and he called his name solomon, and the lord loved him. and he sent by the hand of nathan the prophet, and called his name, amiable to the lord, because the lord loved him. and joab fought against rabbath of the children of ammon, and laid close siege to the royal city. and joab sent messengers to david, saying: i have fought against rabbath, and the city of waters is about to be taken. now therefore gather thou the rest of the people together, and besiege the city and take it: lest when the city shall be wasted by me, the victory be ascribed to my name. then david gathered all the people together, and went out against rabbath: and after fighting, he took it. and he took the crown of their king from his head, the weight of which was a talent of gold, set with most precious stones, and it was put upon david's head, and the spoils of the city which were very great he carried away. and bringing forth the people thereof he sawed them, and drove over them chariots armed with iron: and divided them with knives, and made them pass through brickkilns: so did he to all the cities of the children of ammon: and david returned, with all the army to jerusalem.

and it came to pass after this, that ammon the son of david loved the sister of absalom the son of david, who was very beautiful, and her name was thamar. and he was exceedingly fond of her, so that he fell sick for the love of her: for as she was a virgin, he thought it hard to do any thing dishonestly with her. now ammon had a friend, named jonadab the son of semmaa the brother of david, a very wise man: and he said to him: why dost thou grow so lean from day to day, o son of the king? why dost thou not tell me the reason of it? and ammon said to him: i am in love with thamar the sister of my brother absalom. and jonadab said to him: lie down upon thy bed, and feign thyself sick: and when thy father shall come to visit thee, say to him: let my sister thamar, i pray thee, come to me, to give me to eat, and to make me a mess, that i may eat it at her hand. so ammon lay down, and made as if he were sick: and when the king came to visit him, ammon said to the king: i pray thee let my sister thamar come, and make in my sight two little messes, that i may eat at her hand. then david sent home to thamar, saying: come to the house of thy brother ammon, and make him a mess. and thamar came to the house of ammon her brother: but he was laid down: and she took meal and tempered it: and dissolving it in his sight she made little messes. and taking what she had boiled, she poured it out, and set it before him, but he would not eat: and ammon said: put out all persons from me. and when they had put all persons out, ammon said to thamar: bring the mess into the chamber, that i may eat at thy hand. and thamar took the little messes which she had made, and brought them in to her brother ammon in the chamber. and when she had presented him the meat, he took hold of her, and said: come lie with me, my sister. she answered him: do not so, my brother, do not force me: for no such thing must be done in israel. do not thou this folly. for i shall not be able to bear my shame, and thou shalt be as one of the fools in israel: but rather speak to the king, and he will not deny me to thee. but he would not hearken to her prayers, but being stronger overpowered her and lay with her. then ammon hated her with an exceeding great hatred: so that the hatred wherewith he hated her was greater than the love with which he had loved her before, and ammon said to her: arise, and get thee gone. she answered him:

this evil which now thou dost against me, in driving me away, is greater than that which thou didst before. and he would not hearken to her: but calling the servants that ministered to him, he said: thrust this woman out from me: and shut the door after her. and she was clothed with along robe: for the king's daughters that were virgins, used such kind of garments. then his servant thrust her out: and shut the door after her. and she put ashes on her head, and rent her long robe and laid her hands upon her head, and went on crying. and absalom her brother said to her: hath thy brother ammon lain with thee? but now, sister, hold thy peace, he is thy brother: and afflict not thy heart for this thing. so thamar remained pining away in the house of absalom her brother. and when king david heard of these things he was exceedingly grieved: and he would not afflict the spirit of his son ammon, for he loved him, because he was his firstborn. but absalom spoke not to ammon neither good nor evil: for absalom hated ammon because he had ravished his sister thamar. and it came to pass after two years, that the sheep of absalom were shorn in baalhasor, which is near ephraim: and absalom invited all the king's sons: and he came to the king, and said to him: behold thy servant's sheep are shorn. let the king, i pray, with his servants come to his servant. and the king said to absalom: nay, my son, do not ask that we should all come, and be chargeable to thee. and when he pressed him, and he would not go, he blessed him. and absalom said: if thou wilt not come, at least let my brother ammon, i beseech thee, come with us. and the king said to him: it is not necessary that he should go with thee. but absalom pressed him, so that he let ammon and all the king's sons go with him. and absalom made a feast as it were the feast of a king. and absalom had commanded his servants, saying: take notice when ammon shall be drunk with wine, and when i shall say to you: strike him, and kill him, fear not: for it is i that command you: take courage, and be valiant men. and the servants of absalom did to ammon as absalom had commanded them. and all the king's sons arose and got up every man upon his mule, and fled. and while they were yet in the way, a rumour came to david, saying: absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is not one of them left. then the king rose up, and rent his garments: and fell upon the ground, and all his servants, that stood about him, rent their garments. but jonadab the son of semmaa david's brother answering, said: let not my lord the king think that all the king's sons are slain: ammon only is dead, for he was appointed by the mouth of absalom from the day that he ravished his sister thamar. now therefore let not my lord the king take this thing into his heart, saying: all the king's sons are slain: for ammon only is dead. but absalom fled away: and the young man that kept the watch, lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold there came much people by a by-way on the side of the mountain. and jonadab said to the king: behold the king's sons are come: as thy servant said, so it is. and when he made an end of speaking, the king's sons also appeared: and coming in they lifted up their voice, and wept: and the king also and all his servants wept very much. but absalom fled, and went to tholomai the son of ammiud the king of gessur. and david mourned for his son every day. and absalom after he was fled, and come into gessur, was there three years. and king david ceased to pursue after absalom, because he was comforted concerning the death of amnon.

and joab the son of sarvia, understanding that the king's heart was turned to absalom, sent to thecua, and fetched from thence a wise woman: and said to her: feign thyself to be a mourner, and put on mourning apparel, and be not anointed with oil, that thou mayest be as a woman that had a long time been mourning for one dead. and thou shalt go in to the king, and shalt speak to him in this manner. and joab put the words in her mouth. and when the woman of thecua was come in to the king, she fell before him upon the ground, and worshipped, and said: save me, o king. and the king said to her: what is the matter with thee? she answered: alas, i am a widow woman: for my husband is dead. and thy handmaid had two sons: and they quarrelled with each other in the field, and there was none to part them: and the one struck the other, and slew him. and behold the whole kindred rising against thy handmaid, saith: deliver him that hath slain his brother, that we may kill him for the life of his brother, whom he slew, and that we may destroy the heir: and they seek to quench my spark which is left, and will leave my husband no name, nor remainder upon the earth. and the king said to the woman: go to thy house, and i will give charge concerning thee. and the woman of thecua said to the king: upon me, my lord, be the iniquity, and upon the house of my father: but may the king and his throne be guiltless. and the king said: if any one shall say ought against thee, bring him to me, and be shall not touch thee any more. and she said: let the king remember the lord his god, that the next of kin be not multiplied to take revenge, and that they may not kill my son. and he said: as the lord liveth, there shall not one hair of thy son fall to the earth. then the woman said: let thy handmaid speak one word to my lord the king. and he said: speak. and the woman said: why hast thou thought such a thing against the people of god, and why hath the king spoken this word, to sin, and not bring home again his own exile? we all die, and like waters that return no more, we fall down into the earth: neither will god have a soul to perish, but recalleth, meaning that he that is cast off should not altogether perish. now therefore i am come, to speak this word to my lord the king before the people. and thy handmaid said: i will speak to the king, it maybe the king will perform the request of his handmaid. and the king hath hearkened to me to deliver his handmaid out of the hand of all that would destroy me and my son together out of the inheritance of god. then let thy handmaid say, that the word of the lord the king be made as a sacrifice. for even as an angel of god, so is my lord the king, that he is neither moved with blessing nor cursing: wherefore the lord thy god is also with thee. and the king answering, said to the woman: hide not from me the thing that i ask thee. and the woman said to him: speak, my lord the king. and the king said: is not the hand of joab with thee in all this? the woman answered, and said: by the health of thy soul, my lord, o king, it is neither on the left hand, nor on the right, in all these things which my lord the king hath spoken: for thy servant joab, he commanded me, and he put all these words into the mouth of thy handmaid. that i should come about with this form of speech, thy servant joab, commanded this: but thou, my lord, o king, art wise, according to the wisdom of ail angel of god, to understand all things upon earth. and the king said to joab: behold i am appeased and have granted thy request: go therefore and fetch back the boy absalom. and joab falling down to the ground upon his face, adored, and blessed the king: and joab said: this day thy servant hath understood, that i have found grace in thy sight, my lord, o king: for thou hast fulfilled the request of thy servant. then joab arose and went to gessur, and brought absalom to jerusalem. but the king said: let him return into his house, and let him not see my face. so absalom returned into his house, and saw not the king's face. but in all israel there was not a man so comely, and so exceedingly beautiful as absalom: from the sole of the foot to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him. and when he polled his hair (now he was polled once a year, because his hair was burdensome to him) he weighed the hair of his head at two hundred sicles, according to the common weight. and there were born to absalom three sons: and one daughter, whose name was thamar, and she was very beautiful. and absalom dwelt two years in jerusalem, and saw not the king's face. he sent therefore to joab, to send him to the king: but he would not come to him. and when he had sent the second time, and he would not come to him, he said to his servants: you know the field of joab near my field, that hath a crop of barley: go now and set it on fire. so the servants of absalom set the corn on fire. and joab's servants coming with their garments rent, said: the servants of absalom have set part of the field on fire. then joab arose, and came to absalom to his house, and said: why have thy servants set my corn on fire? and absalom answered joab: i sent to thee beseeching thee to come to me, that i might send thee to the king, to say to him: wherefore am i come from gessur? it had been better for me to be there: i beseech thee therefore that i may see the face of the king: and if he be mindful of my iniquity, let him kill me. so joab going in to the king, told him all: and absalom was called for, and he went in to the king: and prostrated himself on the ground before him: and the king kissed absalom.

now after these things absalom made himself chariots, and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. and absalom rising up early stood by the entrance of the gate, and when any man had business to come to the king's judgment, absalom called him to him, and said: of what city art thou? he answered, and said: thy servant is of such a tribe of israel. and absalom answered him: thy words seem to me good and just. but there is no man appointed by the king to hear thee. and absalom said: o that they would make me judge over the land, that all that have business might come to me, that i might do them justice. moreover when any man came to him to salute him, he put forth his hand, and took him, and kissed him. and this he did to all israel that came for judgment, to be heard by the king, and he enticed the hearts of the men of israel. and after forty years, absalom said to king david: let me go, and pay my vows which i have vowed to the lord in hebron. for thy servant made avow, when he was in gessur of syria, saying: if the lord shall bring me again into jerusalem i will offer sacrifice to the lord. and king david said to him: go in peace. and he arose, and went to hebron. and absalom sent spies into all the tribes of israel, saying: as soon as you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, say ye: absalom reigneth in hebron. now there went with absalom two hundred men out of jerusalem that were called, going with simplicity of heart, and knowing nothing of the design. absalom also sent for achitophel the gilomite, david's counsellor, from his city gilo. and while he was offering sacrifices, there was a strong conspiracy, and the people running together increased with absalom. and there came a messenger to david, saying: all israel with their whole heart followeth absalom. and david said to his servants, that were with him in jerusalem: arise and let us flee: for we shall not escape else from the face of absalom: make haste to go out, lest he come and overtake us, and bring ruin upon us, and smite the city with the edge of the sword. and the king's servants said to him: whatsoever our lord the king shall command, we thy servants will willingly execute. and the king went forth, and all his household on foot: and the king left ten women his concubines to keep the house: and the king going forth and all israel on foot, stood afar off from the house: and all his servants walked by him, and the bands of the cerethi, and the phelethi, and all the gethites, valiant warriors, six hundred men who had followed him from geth on foot, went before the king. and the king said to ethai the gethite: why comest thou with us? return and dwell with the king, for thou art a stranger, and art come out of thy own place. yesterday thou camest, and to day shalt thou be forced to go forth with us? but i shall go whither i am going: return thou, and take back thy brethren with thee, and the lord will shew thee mercy, and truth, because thou hast shewn grace and fidelity. and ethai answered the king, saying: as the lord liveth, and as my lord the king liveth: in what place soever thou shalt be, my lord, o king, either in death, or in life, there will thy servant be. and david said to ethai: come, and pass over. and ethai the gethite passed, and all the men that were with him, and the rest of the people. and they all wept with a loud voice, and all the people passed over: the king also himself went over the brook cedron, and all the people marched towards the way that looketh to the desert. and sadoc the priest also came, and all the levites with him carrying the ark of the covenant of god, and they set down the ark of god: and abiathar went up, till all the people that was come out of the city had done passing. and the king said to sadoc: carry back the ark of god into the city: if i shall find grace in the sight of the lord, he will bring me again, and he will shew me it, and his tabernacle. but if he shall say to me: thou pleasest me not: i am ready, let him do that which is good before him. and the king said to sadoc the priest: o seer, return into the city in peace: and let achimaas thy son, and jonathan the son of abiathar, your two sons, be with you. behold i will lie hid in the plains of the wilderness, till there come word from you to certify me. so sadoc and abiathar carried back the ark of god into jerusalem: and they tarried there. but david went up by the ascent of mount olivet, going up and weeping, walking barefoot, and with his head covered, and all the people that were with them, went up with their heads covered weeping. and it was told david that achitophel also was in the conspiracy with absalom, and david said: infatuate, o lord, i beseech thee, the counsel of achitophel. and when david was come to the top of the mountain, where he was about to adore the lord, behold chusai the arachite, came to meet him with his garment rent and his head covered with earth. and david said to him: if thou come with me, thou wilt be a burden to me: but if thou return into the city, and wilt say to absalom: i am thy servant, o king: as i have been thy father's servant, so i will be thy servant: thou shalt defeat the counsel of achitophel. and thou hast with thee sadoc, and abiathar the priests: and what thing soever thou shalt hear out of the king's house, thou shalt tell it to sadoc and abiathar the priests. and there are with them their two sons achimaas the son of sadoc, and jonathan the son of abiathar: and you shall send by them to me every thing that you shall hear. then chusai the friend of david went into the city, and absalom came into jerusalem.

and when david was a little past the top of the hill, behold siba the servant of miphiboseth came to meet him with two asses, laden with two hundred loaves of bread, and a hundred bunches of raisins, a hundred cakes of figs, and a vessel of wine. and the king said to siba: what mean these things? and siba answered: the asses are for the king's household to sit on: and the loaves and the figs for thy servants to eat, and the wine to drink if any man be faint in the desert. and the king said: where is thy master's son? and siba answered the king: he remained in jerusalem, saying: to day will the house of israel restore me the kingdom of my father. and the king said to siba: i give thee all that belonged to miphiboseth. and siba said: i beseech thee let me find grace before thee, my lord, o king. and king david came as far as bahurim: and behold there came out from thence a man of the kindred of the house of saul named semei, the son of gera, and coming out he cursed as he went on, and he threw stones at david, and at all the servants of king david: and all the people, and all the warriors walked on the right, and on the left side of the king. and thus said semei when he cursed the king: come out, come out, thou man of blood, and thou man of belial. the lord hath repaid thee for all the blood of the house of saul: because thou hast usurped the kingdom in his stead, and the lord hath given the kingdom into the hand of absalom thy son: and behold thy evils press upon thee, because thou art a man of blood. and abisai the son of sarvia said to the king: why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? i will go, and cut off his head. and the king said: what have i to do with you, ye sons of sarvia? let him alone and let him curse: for the lord hath bid him curse david: and who is he that shall dare say, why hath he done so? and the king said to abisai, and to all his servants: behold my son, who came forth from my bowels, seeketh my life: how much more now a son of jemini? let him alone that he may curse as the lord hath bidden him. perhaps the lord may look upon my affliction, and the lord may render me good for the cursing of this day. and david and his men with him went by the way. and semei by the hill's side went over against him, cursing, and casting stones at him, and scattering earth. and the king and all the people with him came weary, and refreshed themselves there. but absalom and all his people came into jerusalem, and achitophel was with him. and when chusai the arachite, david's friend, was come to absalom, he said to him: god save thee, o king, god save thee, o king. and absalom said to him: is this thy kindness to thy friend? why wentest thou not with thy friend? and chusai answered absalom: nay: for i will be his, whom the lord hath chosen, and all this people, and all israel, and with him will i abide. besides this, whom shall i serve? is it not the king's son? as i have served thy father, so will i serve thee also. and absalom said to achitophel: consult with we are to do. and achitophel said to absalom: go in to the concubines of thy father, whom he hath left to keep the house: that when all israel shall hear that thou hast disgraced thy father, their hands may be strengthened with thee. so they spread a tent for absalom on the top of the house, and he went in to his father's concubines before all israel. now the counsel of achitophel, which he gave in those days, was as if a man should consult god: so was all the counsel of achitophel, both when he was with david, and when he was with absalom.

and achitophel said to absalom: i will choose me twelve thousand men, and i will arise and pursue me after david this night. and coming upon him (for he is now weary, and weak handed) i will defeat him: and when all the people is put to flight that is with him, i will kill the king who will be left alone. and i will bring back all the people, as if they were but one man: for thou seekest but one man: and all the people shall be in peace. and his saying pleased absalom, and all the ancients of israel. but absalom said: call chusai the arachite, and let us hear what he also saith. and when chusai was come to absalom, absalom said to him: achitophel hath spoken after this manner: shall we do it or not? what counsel dost thou give? and chusai said to absalom: the counsel that achitophel hath given this time is not good. and again chusai said: thou knowest thy father, and the men that are with him, that they are very valiant, and bitter in their mind, as a bear raging in the wood when her whelps are taken away: and thy father is a warrior, and will not lodge with the people. perhaps he now lieth hid in pits, or in some other place where he list: and when any one shall fall at the first, every one that heareth it shall say: there is a slaughter among the people that followed absalom. and the most valiant man whose heart is as the heart of a lion, shall melt for fear: for all the people of israel know thy father to be a valiant man, and that all who are with him are valiant. but this seemeth to me to be good counsel: let all israel be gathered to thee, from dan to bersabee, as the sand of the sea which cannot be numbered: and thou shalt be in the midst of them. and we shall come upon him in what place soever he shall be found: and we shall cover him, as the dew falleth upon the ground, and we shall not leave of the men that are with him, not so much as one. and if he shall enter into any city, all israel shall cast ropes round about that city, and we will draw it into the river, so that there shall not be found so much as one small stone thereof. and absalom, and all the men of israel said: the counsel of chusai the arachite is better than the counsel of achitophel: and by the will of the lord the profitable counsel of achitophel was defeated, that the lord might bring evil upon absalom. and chusai said to sadoc and abiathar the priests: thus and thus did achitophel counsel absalom, and the ancients of israel: and thus and thus did i counsel them. now therefore send quickly, and tell david, saying: tarry not this night in the plains of the wilderness, but without delay pass over: lest the king be swallowed up, and all the people that is with him. and jonathan and achimaas stayed by the fountain rogel: and there went a maid and told them: and they went forward, to carry the message to king david, for they might not be seen, nor enter into the city. but a certain boy saw them, and told absalom: but they making haste went into the house of a certain man in bahurim, who had a well in his court, and they went down into it. and a woman took, and spread a covering over the mouth of the well, as it were to dry sodden barley: and so the thing was not known. and when absalom's servants were come into the house, they said to the woman: where is achimaas and jonathan? and the woman answered them: they passed on in haste, after they had tasted a little water. but they that sought them, when they found them not, returned into jerusalem. and when they were gone, they came up out of the well, and going on told king david, and said: arise, and pass quickly over the river: for this manner of counsel has achitophel given against you. so david arose, and all the people that were with him, and they passed over the jordan, until it grew light, and not one of them was left that was not gone over the river. but achitophel seeing that his counsel was not followed, saddled his ass, and arose and went home to his house and to his city, and putting his house in order, hanged himself, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father. but david came to the camp, and absalom passed over the jordan, be and all the men of israel with him. now absalom appointed amasa in joab's stead over the army: and amasa was the son of a man who was called jethra of jezrael, who went in to abigail the daughter of naas, the sister of sarvia who was the mother of joab. and israel camped with absalom in the land of galaad. and when david was come to the camp, sobi the son of naas of rabbath of the children of ammon, and machir the son of ammi-hel of lodabar, and berzellai the galaadite of rogelim, brought him beds, and tapestry, and earthen vessels, and wheat, and barley, and meal, and parched corn, and beans, and lentils, and fried pulse, and honey, and butter, and sheep, and fat calves, and they gave to david and the people that were with him, to eat: for they suspected that the people were faint with hunger and thirst in the wilderness.

and david having reviewed his people, appointed over them captains of thousands and of hundreds, and sent forth a third part of the people under the hand of joab, and a third part under the hand of abisai the son of sarvia joab's brother, and a third part under the hand of ethai, who was of geth: and the king said to the people: i also will go forth with you. and the people answered: thou shalt not go forth: for if we flee away, they will not much mind us: or if half of us should fall, they will not greatly care: for thou alone art accounted for ten thousand: it is better therefore that thou shouldst be in the city to succour us. and the king said to them: what seemeth good to you, that will i do. and the king stood by the gate: and all the people went forth by their troops, by hundreds and by thousands. and the king commanded joab, and abisai, and ethai, saying: save me the boy absalom. and all the people heard the king giving charge to all the princes concerning absalom. so the people went out into the field against israel and the battle was fought in the forest of ephraim. and the people of israel were defeated there by david's army, and a great slaughter was made that day of twenty thousand men. and the battle there was scattered over the face of all the country, and there were many more of the people whom the forest consumed, than whom the sword devoured that day. and it happened that absalom met his servants of david, riding on a mule: and as the mule went under a thick and large oak, his head stuck in the oak: and while he hung between the heaven and the earth, the mule on which he rode passed on. and one saw this and told joab, saying: i saw absalom hanging upon an oak. and joab said to the man that told him: if thou sawest him, why didst thou not stab him to the ground, and i would have given thee ten sicles of silver, and belt? and he said to joab: if thou wouldst have paid down in my hands a thousand pieces of silver, i would not lay my hands upon the king's son: for in our hearing he king charged thee, and abisai, and ethai, saying: save me the boy absalom. yea and if i should have acted boldly against my own life, this could not have been hid from the king, and wouldst thou have stood by me? and joab said: not as thou wilt, but will set upon him in thy sight. so he took three lances in his hand, and thrust them into the heart of absalom: and whilst he yet panted for life, sticking on the oak, ten young men, armourbearers of joab, ran up, and striking him slew him. and joab sounded the trumpet, and kept back the people from pursuing after israel in their flight, being willing to spare his multitude. and they took absalom, and cast him into a great pit in the forest, and they laid an exceeding great heap of stones upon him: but all israel fled to their own dwellings. now absalom had reared up for himself, in his lifetime, a pillar, which is in the king's valley: for he said: i have no son, and this shall be the monument of my name. and he called the pillar by its own name, and it is called the hand of absalom, to this day. and achimaas the son of sadoc said: i will run and tell the king, that the lord hath done judgment for him from the hand of his enemies. and joab said to him: thou shalt not be the messenger this day, but shalt bear tidings another day: this day i will not have thee bear tidings, because the king's son is dead. and joab said to chusai: go, and tell the king what thou hast seen. chusai bowed down to joab, and ran. then achimaas the son of sadoc said to joab again: why might not i also run after chusai? and joab said to him: why wilt thou run, my son? thou wilt not be the bearer of good tidings. he answered: but what if i run? and he said to him: run. then achimaas running by a nearer way passed chusai. and david sat between the two gates: and the watchman that was on the top of the gate upon the wall, lifting up his eyes, saw a man running alone. and crying out he told the king: and the king said: if he be alone, there are good tidings in his mouth. and as he was coming apace, and drawing nearer, the watchman saw another man running, and crying aloud from above, he said: i see another man running alone. and the king said: he also is a good messenger. and the watchman said: the running of the foremost seemeth to me like the running of achimaas the son of sadoc. and the king said: he is a good man: and cometh with good news. and achimaas crying out, said to the king: god save thee, o king. and falling down before the king with his face to the ground, he said: blessed be the lord thy god, who hath shut up the men that have lifted up their hands against the lord my king. and the king said: is the young man absalom safe? and achimaas said: i saw a great tumult, o king, when thy servant joab sent me thy servant: i know nothing else. and the king said to him: pass, and stand here. and when he had passed, and stood still, chusai appeared: and coming up he said: i bring good tidings, my lord, the king, for the lord hath judged for thee this day from the hand of all that have risen up against thee. and the king said to chusai: is the young man absalom safe? and chusai answering him, said: let the enemies of my lord, the king, and all that rise against him unto evil, be as the young man is. the king therefore being much moved, went up to the high chamber over the gate, and wept. and as he went he spoke in this manner: my son absalom, absalom my son: would to god that i might die

and it was told joab, that the king wept and mourned for his son: and the victory that day was turned into mourning unto all the people: for the people heard say that day: the king grieveth for his son. and the people shunned the going into the city that day as a people would do that hath turned their backs, and fled away from the battle. and the king covered his head, and cried with a loud voice: o my son absalom, o absalom my son, o my son. then joab going into the house to the king, said: thou hast shamed this day the faces of all thy servants, that have saved thy life, and the lives of thy sons, and of thy daughters, and the lives of thy wives, and the lives of thy concubines. thou lovest them that hate thee, and thou hatest them that love thee: and thou hast shewn this day that thou carest not for thy nobles, nor for thy servants: and i now plainly perceive that if absalom had lived, and all we had been slain, then it would have pleased thee. now therefore arise, and go out, and speak to the satisfaction of thy servants: for i swear to thee by the lord, that if thou wilt not go forth, there will not tarry with thee so much as one this night: and that will be worse to thee, than all the evils that have befallen thee from thy youth until now. then the king arose and sat in the gate: and it was told to all the people that the king sat in the gate: and all the people came before the king, but israel fled to their own dwellings. and all the people were at strife in all the tribes of israel, saying: the king delivered us out of the hand of our enemies, and he saved us out of the hand of the philistines: and now he is fled out of the land for absalom. but absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in the battle: how long are you silent, and bring not back the king? and king david sent to sadoc, and abiathar the priests, saying: speak to the ancients of juda, saying: why are you the last to bring the king back to his house? (for the talk of all israel was come to the king in his house.) you are my brethren, you are my bone, and my flesh, why are you the last to bring back the king? and say ye to amasa: art not thou my bone, and my flesh? so do god to me and add more, if thou be not the chief captain of the army before me always in the place of joab. and be inclined the heart of all the men of juda, as it were of one man: and they sent to the king, saying: return thou, and all thy servants. and the king returned and came as far as the jordan, and all juda came as far as galgal to meet the king, and to bring him over the jordan. and semei the son of gera the son of jemini of bahurim, made haste and went down with the men of juda to meet king david, with a thousand men of benjamin, and siba the servant of the house of saul: and his fifteen sons, and twenty servants were with him: and going over the jordan, they passed the fords before the king, that they might help over the king's household, and do according to his commandment. and semei the son of gera falling down before the king, when he was come over the jordan, said to him: impute not to me, my lord, the iniquity, nor remember the injuries of thy servant on the day that thou, my lord, the king, wentest out of jerusalem, nor lay it up in thy heart, o king. for i thy servant acknowledge my sin: and therefore i am come this day the first of all the house of joseph, and am come down to meet my lord the king. but abisai the son of sarvia answering, said: shall semei for these words not be put to death, because he cursed the lord's anointed? and david said: what have i to do with you, ye sons of sarvia? why are you a satan this day to me? shall there any man be killed this day in israel? do not i know that this day i am made king over israel? and the king said to semei: thou shalt not die. and he swore unto him. and miphiboseth the son of saul came down to meet the king, and he had neither washed his feet, nor trimmed his beard: nor washed his garments from the day that the king went out, until the day of his return in peace. and when he met the king at jerusalem, the king said to him: why camest thou not with me, miphiboseth? and he answering, said: my lord, o king, my servant despised me: for i thy servant spoke to him to saddle me an ass, that i might get on and go with the king: for i thy servant am lame. moreover he hath also accused me thy servant to thee, my lord the king: but thou my lord the king art as an angel of god, do what pleaseth thee. for all of my father's house were no better than worthy of death before my lord the king; and thou hast set me thy servant among the guests of thy table: what just complaint therefore have i? or what right to cry any more to the king? then the king said to him: why speakest thou any more? what i have said is determined: thou and siba divide the possessions. and miphiboseth answered the king: yea, let him take all, for as much as my lord the king is returned peaceably into his house. berzellai also the galaadite coming down from rogelim, brought the king over the jordan, being ready also to wait on him beyond the river. now berzellai the galaadite was of a great age, that is to say, fourscore years old, and he provided the king with sustenance when he abode in the camp: for he was a man exceeding rich. and the king said to berzellai: come with me that thou mayest rest secure with me in jerusalem. and berzellai said to the king: how many are the days of the years of my life, that i should go up with the king to jerusalem? i am this day fourscore years old, are my senses quick to discern sweet and bitter? or can meat or drink delight thy servant? or can i hear any more the voice of singing men and singing women? why should thy servant be a burden to my lord, the king? i thy servant will go on a little way from the jordan with thee: i need not this recompense. but i beseech thee let thy servant return, and die in my own city, and be buried by the sepulchre of my father, and of my mother. but there is thy servant chamaam, let him go with thee, my lord, the king, and do to him whatsoever seemeth good to thee. then the king said to him: let chamaam go over with me, and i will do for him whatsoever shall please thee, and all that thou shalt ask of me, thou shalt obtain. and when all the people and the king had passed over the jordan, the king kissed berzellai, and blessed him: and he returned to his own place. so the king went on to galgal, and chamaam with him. now all the people of juda had brought the king over, and only half of the people of israel were there. therefore all the men of israel running together to the king, said to him: why have our brethren the men of juda stolen thee away, and have brought the king and his household over the jordan, and all the men of david with him? and all the men of juda answered the men of israel: because the king is nearer to me: why art thou angry for this matter? have we eaten any thing of the king's, or have any gifts been given us? and the men of israel answered the men of juda, and said: i have ten parts in the king more than thou, and david belongeth to me more than to thee: why hast thou done me a wrong, and why was it not told me first, that i might bring back my king? and the men of juda answered more harshly than the men of israel.

and there happened to be there a man of belial, whose name was seba, the son of bochri, a man of jemini: and he sounded the trumpet, and said: we have no part in david, nor inheritance in the son of isaï: return to thy dwellings, o israel. and all israel departed from david, and followed seba the son of bochri: but the men of juda stuck to their king from the jordan unto jerusalem. and when the king was come into his house at jerusalem, he took the ten women his concubines, whom he had left to keep the house, and put them in ward, allowing them provisions: and he went not in unto them, but they were shut up unto the day of their death living in widowhood. and the king said to amasa: assemble to me all the men of juda against the third day, and be thou here present. so amasa went to assemble the men of juda, but he tarried beyond the set time which the king had appointed him. and david said to abisai: now will seba the son of bochri do us more harm than did absalom: take thou therefore the servants of thy lord, and pursue after him, lest he find fenced cities, and escape us. so joab's men went out with him, and the cerethi and the phelethi: and all the valiant men went out of jerusalem to pursue after seba the son of bochri. and when they were at the great stone which is in gabaon, amasa coming met them. and joab had on a close coat of equal length with his habit, and over it was girded with a sword hanging down to his flank, in a scabbard, made in such manner as to come out with the least motion and strike. and joab said to amasa: god save thee, my brother. and he took amasa by the chin with his right hand to kiss him. but amasa did not take notice of the sword, which joab had, and he struck him in the side, and shed out his bowels to the ground, and gave him not a second wound, and he died. and joab, and abisai his brother pursued after seba the son of bochri. in the mean time some men of joab's company stopping at the dead body of amasa, said: behold he that would have been in joab's stead the companion of david. and amasa imbrued with blood, lay in the midst of the way. a certain man saw this that all the people stood still to look upon him, so he removed amasa out of the highway into the field, and covered him with a garment, that they who passed

might not stop on his account. and when he was removed out of the way, all the people went on following joab to pursue after seba the son of bochri. now he had passed through all the tribes of israel unto abela and bethmaacha: and all the chosen men were gathered together unto him. and they came, and besieged him in abela, and in bethmaacha, and they cast up works round the city, and the city was besieged: and all the people that were with joab, laboured to throw down the walls. and a wise woman cried out from the city: hear, hear, and say to joab: come near hither, and i will speak with thee. and when he was come near to her, she said to him: art thou joab? and he answered: i am. and she spoke thus to him: hear the words of thy handmaid. he answered: i do hear. and she again said: a saying was used in the old proverb: they that inquire, let them inquire in abela: and so they made an end. am not i she that answer truth in israel, and thou seekest to destroy the city, and to overthrow a mother in israel? why wilt thou throw down the inheritance of the lord? and joab answering said: god forbid, god forbid that i should, i do not throw down, nor destroy. the matter is not so, but a man of mount ephraim, seba the son of bochri by name, hath lifted up his hand against king david: deliver him only, and we will depart from the city. and the woman said to joab: behold his head shall be thrown to thee from the wall. so she went to all the people, and spoke to them wisely: and they cut off the head of seba the son of bochri, and cast it out to joab. and he sounded the trumpet, and they departed from the city, every one to their home: and joab returned to jerusalem to the king. so joab was over all the army of israel: and banaias the son of joiada was over the cerethites and phelethites, but aduram over the tributes: and josaphat the son of ahilud was recorder. and siva was scribe: and sadoc and abiahar, priests. and ira the jairite was the priest of david.

and there was a famine in the days of david for three years successively: and david consulted the oracle of the lord. and the lord said: it is for saul, and his bloody house, because he slew the gabaonites. then the king, calling for the gabaonites, said to them: (now the gabaonites were not of the children of israel, but the remains of the amorrites: i and the children of israel had sworn to them, and saul sought to slay them out of zeal, as it were for the children of israel and juda:) david therefore said to the gabaonites: what shall i do for you? and what shall be the atonement for you, that you may bless the inheritance of the lord? and the gabaonites said to him: we have no contest about silver and gold, but against saul and against his house: neither do we desire that any man be slain of israel. and the king said to them: what will you then that i should do for you? and they said to the king: the man that crushed us and oppressed us unjustly, we must destroy in such manner that there be not so much as one left of his stock in all the coasts of israel. let seven men of his children be delivered unto us, that we may crucify them to the lord in gabaon

saul, once the chosen of the lord. and the king said: i will give them. and the king spared miphiboseth the son of jonathan the son of saul, because of the oath of the lord, that had been between david and jonathan the son of saul. so the king took the two sons of respha the daughter of aia, whom she bore to saul, armoni, and miphiboseth: and the five sons of michol the daughter of saul, whom she bore to hadriel the son of berzellai, that was of molathi: and gave them into the hands of the gabaonites: and they crucified them on a hill before the lord: and these seven died together in the first days of the harvest, when the barley began to be reaped. and respha the daughter of aia took haircloth, and spread it under her upon the rock from the beginning of the harvest, till water dropped upon them out of heaven: and suffered neither the birds to tear them by day, nor the beasts by night. and it was told david, what respha the daughter of aia, the concubine of saul, had done. and david went, and took the bones of saul, and the bones of jonathan his son from the men of jebes galaad, who had stolen them from the street of bethsan, where the philistines had hanged them when they had slain saul in gelboe. and he brought from thence the bones of saul, and the bones of jonathan his son, and they gathered up the bones of them that were crucified, and they buried them with the bones of saul, and of jonathan his son in the land of benjamin, in the side, in the sepulchre of cis his father: and they did all that the king had commanded, and god shewed mercy again to the land after these things. and the philistines made war again against israel, and david went down, and his servants with him, and fought against the philistines. and david growing faint, jesbibenob, who was of the race of arapha, the iron of whose spear weighed three hundred ounces, being girded with a new sword, attempted to kill david. and abisai the son of sarvia rescued him, and striking the philistine killed him. then david's men swore unto him, saying: thou shalt go no more out with us to battle, lest thou put out the lamp of israel. there was also a second battle in gob against the philistines: then sobochai of husathi slew saph of the race of arapha of the family of the giants. and there was a third battle in gob against the philistines, in which adeodatus the son of the forrest an embroiderer of bethlehem slew goliath the gethite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. a fourth battle was in geth. where there was a man of great stature, that had six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot, four and twenty in all, and he was of the race of arapha. and he reproached israel: and jonathan the son of samae the brother of david slew him. these four were born of arapha in geth, and they fell by the hand of david, and of his servants.

and david spoke to the lord the words of this canticle, in the day that the lord delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of saul, and he said: the lord is my rock, and my strength, and my saviour. god is my strong one, in him will i trust: my shield, and the horn of my salvation: he lifeth me up, and is my refuge: my saviour, thou wilt deliver me from iniquity. i will call on the lord who is worthy to be praised: and i shall be saved from my enemies. for the pangs of death have surrounded me: the floods of belial have made me afraid. the cords of hell compassed me: the snares of death prevented me. in my distress i will call upon the lord, and i will cry to my god: and he will hear my voice out of his temple, and my cry shall come to his ears. the earth shook and trembled, the foundations of the mountains were moved, and shaken, because he was angry with them. a smoke went up from his nostrils, and a devouring fire out of his mouth: coals were kindled by it. he bowed the heavens, and came down: and darkness was under his feet. and he rode upon the cherubims, and flew: and slid upon the wings of the wind. he made darkness a covering round about him: dropping waters out of the clouds of the heavens. by the brightness before him, the coals of fire were kindled. the lord shall thunder from heaven: and the most high shall give forth his voice. he shot arrows and scattered them: lightning, and consumed them. and the overflowings of the sea appeared, and the foundations of the world were laid open at the rebuke of the lord, at the blast of the spirit of his wrath. he sent from on high, and took me, and drew me out of many waters. he delivered me from my most mighty enemy, and from them that hated me: for they were too strong for me. he prevented me in the day of my affliction, and the lord became my stay. and he brought me forth into a large place, he delivered me, because i pleased him. the lord will reward me according to my justice: and according to the cleanness of my hands he will render to me. because i have kept the ways of the lord, and have not wickedly departed from my god. for all his judgments are in my sight: and his precepts i have not removed from me. and i shall be perfect with him: and shall keep myself from my iniquity. and the lord will recompense me according to my justice: and according to the cleanness of my hands in the sight of his eyes. with the holy one thou wilt be holy: and with the valiant perfect. with the elect thou wilt be elect: and with the perverse thou wilt be perverted. and the poor people thou wilt save: and with thy eyes thou wilt humble the haughty. for thou art my lamp, o lord: and thou, o lord, wilt enlighten my darkness. for in thee i will run girded: in my god i will leap over the wall. god, his way is immaculate, the word of the lord is tried by fire: he is the shield of all that trust in him. who is god but the lord: and who is strong but our god? god who hath girded me with strength, and made my way perfect. making my feet like the feet of harts, and setting me upon my high places. he teacheth my bands to war: and maketh my arms like a bow of brass. thou hast given me the shield of my salvation: and thy mildness hath multiplied me. thou shalt enlarge my steps under me: and my ankles shall not fail. i will pursue after my enemies, and crush them: and will not return again till i consume them. i will consume them and break them in pieces, so that they shall not rise: they shall fall under my feet. thou hast girded me with strength to battle: thou hast made them that resisted me to bow under me. my enemies thou hast made to turn their back to me: them that hated me, and i shall destroy them. they shall cry, and there shall be none to save: to the lord, and he shall not hear them. i shall beat them as small as the dust of the earth: i shall crush them and spread them abroad like the mire of the streets. thou wilt save me from the contradictions of my people: thou wilt keep me to be the head of the gentiles: the people which i know not, shall serve me, the sons of the stranger will resist me, at the hearing of the ear they will obey me. the strangers are melted away, and shall be straitened in their distresses. the lord liveth, and my god is blessed: and the strong god of my salvation shall be exalted: god who giveth me revenge, and bringest down people under me, who bringest me forth from my enemies, and liftest me up from them that resist me: from the wicked man thou shalt deliver me. therefore will i give thanks to thee. o lord, among the gentiles, and will sing to thy name. giving great salvation to his king, and shewing mercy to david his anointed, and to his seed for ever.

now these are david's last words. david the son of isai said: the man to whom it was appointed concerning the christ of the god of jacob, the excellent psalmist of israel said: the spirit of the lord hath spoken by me and his word by my tongue. the god of israel said to me, the strong one of israel spoke, the ruler of men, the just ruler in the fear of god. as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, shineth in the morning without clouds, and as the grass springeth out of the earth by rain. neither is my house so great with god, that he should make with me an eternal covenant, firm in all things and assured. for he is all my salvation, and all my will: neither is there ought thereof that springeth not up. but transgressors shall all of them be plucked up as thorns: which are not taken away with hands. and if a man will touch them, he must be armed with iron and with the staff of a lance: but they shall be set on fire and burnt to nothing. these are the names of the valiant men of david. jesbaham sitting in the chair was the wisest chief among the three, he was like the most tender little worm of the wood, who killed eight hundred men at one onset. after him was eleazar the son of dodo the ahohite, one of the three valiant men that were with david when they defied the philistines, and they were there gathered together to battle. and when the men of israel were gone away, he stood and smote the philistines till his hand was weary, and grew stiff with the sword: and the lord wrought a great victory that day: and the people that were fled away, returned to take spoils of them that were slain. and after him was semma the son of age of arari. and the philistines were gathered together in a troop: for there was a field full of lentils. and when the people were fled from the face of the philistines, he stood in the midst of the field, and defended it, and defeated the philistines: and the lord gave a great victory. moreover also before this the three who were princes among the thirty, went down and came to david in the harvest time into the cave of

odollam: and the camp of the philistines was in the valley of the giants. and david was then in a hold. and there was a garrison of the philistines then in bethlehem. and david longed, and said: o that some man would get me a drink of the water out of the cistern, that is in bethlehem, by the gate. and the three valiant men broke through the camp of the philistines, and drew water out of the cistern of bethlehem, that was by the gate, and brought it to david: but he would not drink, but offered it to the lord, saying: the lord be merciful to me, that i may not do this: shall i drink the blood of these men that went, and the peril of their lives? therefore he would not drink. these things did these three mighty men. abisai also the brother of joab, the son of sarvia, was chief among three: and he lifted up his spear against three hundred whom he slew, and he was renowned among the three, and the noblest of three, and was their chief, but to the three first he attained not. and banaias the son of joiada a most valiant man, of great deeds, of cabseel: he slew the two lions of moab, and he went down, and slew a lion in the midst of a pit, in the time of snow. he also slew an egyptian, a man worthy to be a sight, having a spear in his hand: but he went down to him with a rod, and forced the spear out of the hand of the egyptian, and slew him with his own spear. these things did banaias the son of joiada. and he was renowned among the three valiant men, who were the most honourable among the thirty: but he attained riot to the first three: and david made him of his privy council. asael the brother of joab was one of the thirty, elehanan the son of dodo of bethlehem. semma of harodi, elica of harodi, heles of phalti, hira the son of acces of thecua, abiezor of anathoth, metonnai of husati, selmon the ahohite, maharai the netophathite, heled the son of baana, also a netophathite, ithai the son of ribai of gabaath of the children of benjamin, banaia the pharathonite, heddai of the torrent gaas, abialbon the arbathite, azmaveth of beromi, eliaba of salaboni. the sons of jassen, jonathan, semma of orori, aliam the son of sarar the arorite, eliphelet the son of aasbai the son of machati, eliam the son of achitophel the gelonite, hesrai of carmel, pharai of arbi, igaal the son of nathan of soba, bonni of gadi, selec of ammoni, naharai the berothite, armourbearer of joab the son of sarvia, ira the jethrite, gareb also a jethrite: urias the hethite, thirty and seven in all.

and the anger of the lord was again kindled against israel, and stirred up david among them, saying: go, number israel and juda. and the king said to joab the general of his army: go through all the tribes of israel from dan to bersabee, and number ye the people that i may know the number of them. and joab said to the king: the lord thy god increase thy people, and make them as many more as they are now, and again multiply them a hundredfold in the sight of my lord the king: but what meaneth my lord the king by this kind of thing? but the king's words prevailed over the words of joab, and of the captains of the army: and joab, and the captains of the soldiers went out from the presence of the king, to number the people of israel. and when they had passed the jordan, they came to aroer to the right side of the city, which is in the vale of gad. and by jazer they passed into galaad, and to the lower land of hodsi, and they came into the woodlands of dan. and going about by sidon, they passed near the walls of tyre, and all the land of the hevite, and the chanaanite, and they came to the south of juda into bersabee: and having gone through the whole land, after nine months and twenty days, they came to jerusalem. and joab gave up the sum of the number of the people to the king, and there were found of israel eight hundred thousand valiant men that drew the sword: and of juda five hundred thousand fighting men. but david's heart struck him, after the people were numbered: and david said to the lord: i have sinned very much in what i have done: but i pray thee, o lord, to take away the iniquity of thy servant, because i have done exceeding foolishly. and david arose in the morning, and the word of the lord came to gad the prophet and the seer of david, saying: go, and say to david: thus saith the lord: i give thee thy choice of three things, choose one of them which thou wilt, that i may do it to thee. and when gad was come to david, he told him, saying: either seven years of famine shall come to thee in thy land: or thou shalt flee three months before thy adversaries, and they shall pursue thee: or for three days there shall be a pestilence in thy land. now therefore deliberate, and see what answer i shall return to him that sent me. and david said to gad: i am in a great strait: but it is better that i should fall into the hands of the lord (for his mercies are many) than into the hands of men. and the lord sent a pestilence upon israel, from the morning unto the time appointed, and there died of the people from dan to bersabee seventy thousand men. and when the angel of the lord had stretched out his hand over jerusalem to destroy it, the lord had pity on the affliction, and said to the angel that slew the people: it is enough: now hold thy hand. and the angel of the lord was by the thrashingfloor of areuna the jebusite. and david said to the lord, when he saw the angel striking the people: it is i; i am he that have sinned, i have done wickedly: these that are the sheep, what have they done? let thy hand, i beseech thee, be turned against me, and against my father's house. and gad came to david that day, and said: go up, and build an altar to the lord in the thrashingfloor of areuna the jebusite. and david went up according to the word of gad which the lord had commanded him. and areuna looked, and saw the king and his servants coming towards him: an going out he worshipped the king, bowing with his face to the earth, and said: wherefore is my lord the king come to his servant? and david said to him: to buy the thrashingfloor of thee, and build an altar to the lord, that the plague, which rageth among the people, may cease. and areuna said to david: let my lord the king take, and offer, as it seemeth good to him: thou hast here oxen for a holocaust, and the wain, and the yokes of the oxen for wood. all these things areuna as a king gave to the king: and areuna said to the king: the lord thy god receive thy vow. and the king answered him, and said: nay, but i will buy it of thee at a price, and i will not offer to the lord my god holocausts free cost. so david bought the floor, and the oxen, for fifty sicles of silver: and david built there an altar to the lord, and offered holocausts and peace offerings: and the lord became merciful to the land, and the plague was stayed from israel.

now king david was old, and advanced in years: and when he was covered with clothes, he was not warm. his servants therefore said to him: let us seek for our lord the king, a young virgin, and let her stand before the king, and cherish him, and sleep in his bosom, and warm our lord the king. so they sought a beautiful young woman in all the coasts of israel, and they found abisag a sunamitess, and brought her to the king. and the damsel was exceeding beautiful, and she slept with the king: and served him, but the king did not know her. and adonias the son of haggith exalted himself, saying: i will be king. and he made himself chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. neither did his father rebuke him at any time, saying: why hast thou done this? and he also was very beautiful, the next in birth after absalom. and he conferred with joab the son of sarvia, and with abiathar the priest, who furthered adonias's side. but sadoc the priest, and banaias the son of joiada, and nathan the prophet, and semei, and rei, and the strength of david's army was not with adonias. and adonias having slain rams and calves, and all fat cattle by the stone of zoheleth, which was near the fountain rogel, invited all his brethren the king's sons, and all the men of juda, the king's servants: but nathan the prophet, and banaias, and all the valiant men, and solomon his brother, he invited not. and nathan said to bethsabee the mother of solomon: hast thou not heard that adonias the son of haggith reigneth, and our lord david knoweth it not? now then come, take my counsel and save thy life, and the life of thy son solomon. go, and get thee in to king david, and say to him: didst not thou, my lord o king, swear to me thy handmaid, saying: solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne? why then doth adonias reign? and while thou art yet speaking there with the king, i will come in after thee, and will fill up thy words. so bethsabee went in to the king into the chamber: now the king was very old, and abisag the sunamitess ministered to him. bethsabee bowed herself, and worshipped the king. and the king said to her: what is thy will? she answered and said: my lord, thou didst swear to thy handmaid by the lord thy god, saying: solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne. and behold now adonias reigneth, and thou, my lord the king, knowest nothing of it. he hath killed oxen, and all fat cattle, and many rams, and invited all the king's sons, and abiathar the priest, and joab the general of the army: but solomon thy servant he invited not. and now, my lord o king, the eyes of all israel are upon thee, that thou shouldst tell them, who shall sit on thy throne, my lord the king, after thee. otherwise it shall come to pass, when my lord the king sleepest with his fathers, that i and my son solomon shall be counted offenders. as she was yet speaking with the king, nathan the prophet came. and they told the king, saying: nathan the prophet is here. and when he was come in before the king, and had worshipped, bowing down to the ground, nathan said: my lord o king, hast thou said: let adonias reign after me, and

let him sit upon my throne? because he is gone down to day, and hath killed oxen, and fatlings, and many rams, and invited all the king's sons, and the captains of the army, and abiathar the priest: and they are eating and drinking before him, and saying: god save king adonias: but me thy servant, and sadoc the priest, and banaias the son of joiada, and solomon thy servant he hath not invited. is this word come out from my lord the king, and hast thou not told me thy servant who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him? and king david answered and said: call to me bethsabee. and when she was come in to the king, and stood before him, the king swore and said: as the lord liveth, who hath delivered my soul out of all distress, even as i swore to thee by the lord the god of israel, saying: solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead, so will i do this day. and bethsabee bowing with her face to the earth worshipped the king, saying: may my lord david live for ever. king david also said: call me sadoc the priest, and nathan the prophet, and banaias the son of joiada. and when they were come in before the king, he said to them: take with you the servants of your lord, and set my son solomon upon my mule: and bring him to gihon. and let sadoc the priest, and nathan the prophet anoint him there king over israel: and you shall sound the trumpet, and shall say: god save king solomon. and you shall come up after him, and he shall come, and shall sit upon my throne, and he shall reign in my stead: and i will appoint him to be ruler over israel, and over juda. and banaias the son of joiada answered the king, saying: amen: so say the lord the god of my lord the king. as the lord hath been with my lord the king, so be he with solomon, and make his throne higher than the throne of my lord king david. so sadoc the priest, and nathan the prophet went down, and banaias the son of joiada, and the cerethi, and phelethi: and they set solomon upon the mule of king david, and brought him to gihon. and sadoc the priest took a horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed solomon: and they sounded the trumpet, and all the people said: god save king solomon. and all the multitude went up after him, and the people played with pipes, and rejoiced with a great joy, and the earth rang with the noise of their cry. and adonias, and all that were invited by him, heard it, and now the feast was at an end: joab also hearing the sound of the trumpet, said: what meaneth this noise of the city in an uproar? while he yet spoke, jonathan the son of abiathar the priest came: and adonias said to him: come in, because thou art a valiant man, and bringest good news. and jonathan answered adonias: not so: for our lord king david hath appointed solomon king. and hath sent with him sadoc the priest, and nathan the prophet, and banaias the son of joiada, and the cerethi, and phelethi, and they have set him upon the king's mule. and sadoc the priest, and nathan the prophet have anointed him king in gihon: and they are gone up from thence rejoicing, so that the city rang again: this is the noise that you have heard. moreover solomon sitteth upon the throne of the kingdom, and the king's servants going in have blessed our lord king david, saying: may god make the name of solomon greater than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne. and the king adored in his bed: and he said: blessed be the lord the god of israel, who hath given this day one to sit on my throne, my eyes seeing then all the guests of adonias were afraid, and they all arose and every man went his way. and adonias fearing solomon, arose, and went, and took hold on the horn of the altar. and they told solomon, saying: behold adonias, fearing king solomon, hath taken hold of the horn of the altar, saying: let king solomon swear to me this day, that he will not kill his servant with the sword. and solomon said: if he be a good man, there shall not so much as one hair of his head fall to the ground: but if evil be found in him, he shall die. then king solomon sent, and brought him out from the altar: and going in he worshipped king solomon: and solomon said to him: go to thy house.

and the days of david drew nigh that he should die, and he charged his son solomon, saying: i am going the way of all flesh: take thou courage, and shew thyself a man. and keep the charge of the lord thy god, to walk in his ways, and observe his ceremonies, and his precepts, and judgments, and testimonies, as it is written in the law of moyses: that thou mayest understand all thou dost, and whithersoever thou shalt turn thyself: that the lord may confirm his words, which he hath spoken of me, saying: if thy children shall take heed to their ways, and shall walk before me in truth, with all their heart, and with all their soul, there shall not be taken away from thee a man on the throne of israel. thou knowest also what joab the son of sarvia hath done to me, what he did to the two captains of the army of israel, to abner the son of ner, and to amasa the son of jether: whom he slew, and shed the blood of war in peace, and put the blood of war on his girdle that was about his loins, and in his shoes that were on his feet. do therefore according to thy wisdom, and let not his hoary head go down to hell in peace. but shew kindness to the sons of berzellai the galaadite, and let them eat at thy table: for they met me when i fled from the face of absalom thy brother. thou hast also with thee semei the son of gera the son of jemini of bahurim, who cursed me with a grievous curse, when i went to the camp: but because he came down to meet me when i passed over the jordan, and i swore to him by the lord, saying: i will not kill thee with a sword: do not thou hold him guiltless. but thou art a wise man, and knowest what to do with him, and thou shalt bring down his grey hairs with blood to hell. so david slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of david. and the days that david reigned in israel, were forty years: in hebron he reigned seven years, in jerusalem thirty-three. and solomon sat upon the throne of his father david, and his kingdom was strengthened exceedingly. and adonias the son of haggith came to bethsabee the mother of solomon. and she said to him: is thy coming peaceable? he answered: peaceable. and he added: i have a word to speak with thee.

she said to him: speak. and he said: thou knowest that the kingdom was mine, and all israel had preferred me to be their king: but the kingdom is transferred, and is become my brother's: for it was appointed him by the lord. now therefore i ask one petition of thee: turn not away my face. and she said to him: say on. and he said: i pray thee speak to king solomon (for he cannot deny thee any thing) to give me abisag the sunamitess to wife. and bethsabee said: well, i will speak for thee to the king. then bethsabee came to king solomon, to speak to him for adonias: and the king arose to meet her, and bowed to her, and sat down upon his throne: and a throne was set for the king's mother, and she sat on his right hand. and she said to him: i desire one small petition of thee, do not put me to confusion. and the king said to her: my mother, ask: for i must not turn away thy face. and she said: let abisag the sunamitess be given to adonias thy brother to wife. and king solomon answered, and said to his mother: why dost thou ask abisag the sunamitess for adonias? ask for him also the kingdom: for he is my elder brother, and hath abiathar the priest, and joab the son of sarvia. then king solomon swore by the lord, saying: so and so may god do to me, and add more, if adonias hath not spoken this word against his own life. and now as the lord liveth, who hath established me, and placed me upon the throne of david my father, and who hath made me a house, as he promised, adonias shall be put to death this day. and king solomon sent by the hand of banaias the son of joiada, who slew him, and he died. and the king said also to abiathar the priest: go to anathoth to thy lands, for indeed thou art worthy of death: but i will not at this time put thee to death, because thou didst carry the ark of the lord god before david my father, and hast endured trouble in all the troubles my father endured. so solomon cast out abiathar, from being the priest of the lord, that the word of the lord might be fulfilled, which he spoke concerning the house of deli in silo. and the news came to joab, because joab had turned after adonias, and had not turned after solomon: and joab fled into the tabernacle of the lord and laid hold on the horn of the altar. and it was told king solomon, that joab was fled into the tabernacle of the lord, and was by the altar: and solomon sent banaias the son of joiada, saying: go, kill him. and banaias came to the tabernacle of the lord, and said to him: thus saith the king: come forth. and he said: i will not come forth, but here i will die. banaias brought word back to the king, saying: thus saith joab, and thus he answered me. and the king said to him: do as he hath said: and kill him, and bury him, and thou shalt remove the innocent blood which hath been shed by joab, from me, and from the house of my father. and the lord shall return his blood upon his own head, because he murdered two men, just and better than himself: and slew them with the sword, my father david not knowing it, abner the son of ner, general of the army of israel, and amasa the son of jether, general of the army of juda. and their blood shall return the head of joab, and upon the head of his seed for ever. but to david and his seed and his house, and to his throne be peace for ever from the lord. so banaias the son of joiada went up, and setting upon him slew him, and he was buried in his house in the desert. and the king appointed banaias the son of joiada in his room over the army, and sadoc the priest he put in the place of abiathar. the king also sent, and called for semei, and said to him: build thee a house in jerusalem, and dwell there: and go not out from thence any whither. for on what day soever thou shalt go out, and shalt pass over the brook cedron, know that thou shalt be put to death: thy blood shall be upon thy own head: and semei said to the king: the saying is good: as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do. and semei dwelt in jerusalem, many days. and it came to pass after three years, that the servants of semei ran away to achis the son of maacha the king of geth: and it was told semei that his servants were gone to geth. and semei arose, and saddled his ass, and went to achis to geth to seek his servants, and he brought them out of geth. and it was told solomon that semei had gone from jerusalem to geth, and was come back. and sending he called for him, and said to him: did i not protest to thee by the lord, and tell thee before: on what day soever thou shalt go out and walk abroad any whither, know that thou shalt die? and thou answeredst me: the word that i have heard is good. why then hast thou not kept the oath of the lord, and the commandment that i laid upon thee? and the king said to semei: thou knowest all the evil, of which thy heart is conscious, which thou didst to david my father: the lord hath returned thy wickedness upon thy own head: and king solomon shall be blessed, and the throne of david shall be established before the lord for ever. so the king commanded banaias the son of joiada: and he went out and struck him, and he died.

and the kingdom was established in the hand of solomon, and he made affinity with pharao the king of egypt: for he took his daughter, and brought her into the city of david, until he had made an end of building his own house, and the house of the lord, and the wall of jerusalem round about. but yet the people sacrificed in the high places: far there was no temple built to the name of the lord until that day. and solomon loved the lord, walking in the precepts of david his father, only he sacrificed in the high places: and burnt incense. he went therefore to gabaon, to sacrifice there: for that was the great high place: a thousand victims for holocausts did solomon offer upon that altar in gabaon. and the lord appeared to solomon in a dream by night, saying: ask what thou wilt that i should give thee. and solomon said: thou hast shewn great mercy to thy servant david my father, even at, he walked before thee in truth, and justice, and an upright heart with thee: and thou hast kept thy great mercy for him, and hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. and now, o lord god, thou hast made thy servant king instead of david my father: and i am but a child, and know not how to go out and come in. and thy servant is in the midst of the people which thou hast chosen, an immense people, which cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude. give therefore to thy servant an understanding heart, to judge thy people, and discern between good and evil. for who shall be able to judge this people, thy people which is so numerous? and the word was pleasing to the lord that solomon had asked such a thing. and the lord said to solomon: because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life or riches, nor the lives of thy enemies, but hast asked for thyself wisdom to discern judgment, behold i have done for thee according to thy words, and have given thee a wise and understanding heart, insomuch that there hath been no one like thee before thee, nor shall arise after thee. yea and the things also which thou didst not ask, i have given thee: to wit riches and glory, as that no one hath been like thee among the kings in all days heretofore. and if thou wilt walk in my ways, and heep my precepts, and my commandments, as thy father walked, i will lengthen thy days. and solomon awaked, and perceived that it was a dream: and when he was come to jerusalem, he stood before the ark of the covenant of the lord, and offered holocausts, and sacrificed victims of peace offerings, and made a great feast for all his servants. then there came two women that were harlots, to the king, and stood before him: and one of them said: i beseech thee, my lord, i and this woman dwelt in one house, and i was delivered of a child with her in the chamber. and the third day, after that i was delivered, she also was delivered, and we were together, and no other person with us in the house, only we two. and this woman's child died in the night: for in her sleep she overlaid him. and rising in the dead time of the night, she took my child from my side, while i thy handmaid was asleep, and laid it in her bosom: and laid her dead child in my bosom. and when i rose in the morning to give my child suck, behold it was dead: but considering him more diligently when it was clear day, i found that it was not mine which i bore. and the other woman answered: it is not so as thou sayest, but thy child is dead, and mine is alive. on the contrary she said: thou liest: for my child liveth, and thy child is dead. and in this manner they strove before the king. then said the king: the one saith, my child is alive, and thy child is dead. and the other answereth: nay, but thy child is dead, and mine liveth. the king therefore said: bring me a sword. and when they had brought a sword before the king, divide, said he, the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other. but the woman whose child was alive, said to the king, (for her bowels were moved upon her child,) i beseech thee, my lord, give her the child alive, and do not kill it. but the other said: let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it. the king answered, and said: give the living child to this woman, and let it not be killed, for she is the mother thereof. and all israel heard the judgment which the king had judged, and they feared the king, seeing that the wisdom of god was in him to do judgment.

and king solomon reigned over all israel: and these were the princes which he had: azarias the son of

sadoc the priest: elihoreph, and ahia, the sons of sisa, scribes: josaphat the son of ahilud, recorder: banaias the son of joiada, over the army: and sadoc and abiathar priests. azarias the son of nathan, over them that were about the king: zabud, the son of nathan the priest, the king's friend: and ahisar governor of the house: and adoniram the son of abda over the tribute. and solomon had twelve governors over all israel, who provided victuals for the king and for his household: for every one provided necessities, each man his month in the year. and these are their names: benhur, in mount ephraim, bendecar, in maces, and in salebim, and in bethsames, and in elon, and in bethanan. benhesed in aruboth: his was socho, and all the land of epher. enabinadab, to whom belonged all nephath-dor, he had tapheth the daughter of solomon to wife. bana the son of ahilud, who governed thanac and mageddo, and all bethsan, which is by sarthana beneath jezrael, from bethsan unto abelmehula over against jecmaan. bengaber in ramoth galaad: he had the towns of jair the son of manasses in galaad, he was chief in all the country of argob, which is in basan, threescore great cities with walls, and brazen bolts. abinadab the son of addo was chief in manaim. achimaas in nephtali: he also had basemath the daughter of solomon to wife. baana the son of husi, in aser and in baloth. josaphat the son of pharue, in issachar. semei the son of ela in benjamin. gaber the son of uri, in the land of galaad, in the land of sehon the king of the amorrites and of og the king of basan, over all that were in that land. juda and israel were innumerable, as the sand of the sea in multitude: eating and drinking, and rejoicing. and solomon had under him all the kingdoms from the river to the land of the philistines,. even to the border of egypt: and they brought him presents, and served him, all the days of his life. and the provision of solomon for each day was thirty measures of fine flour, and threescore measures of meal, ten fat oxen and twenty out of the pastures, and a hundred rams, besides venison of harts, roes, and buffles, and fatted fowls. for he had all the country which was beyond the river, from thaphsa to gazan, and all the kings of those countries: and he had peace on every side round about. and juda and israel dwelt without any fear, every one under his vine, and under his fig tree, from dan to bersabee, all the days of solomon. and solomon had forty thousand stalls of chariot horses, and twelve thousand for the saddle. and the foresaid governors of the king fed them: and they furnished the necessities also for king solomon's table, with great care in their time. they brought barley also and straw for the horses, and beasts, to the place where the king was, according as it was appointed them. and god gave to solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart as the sand that is on the sea shore. and the wisdom of solomon surpassed the wisdom of all the orientals, and of the egyptians, and he was wiser than all men: wiser than ethan the ezrahite, and heman, and chalcol, and dorda the sons of mahol, and he was renowned in all nations round about. solomon also spoke three thousand parables: and his poems were a thousand and five. and he treated about trees from the cedar that is in libanus, unto the hyssop that cometh out of the wall: and he discoursed of beasts, and of fowls, and of creeping things, and of fishes. and they came from all nations to hear the wisdom of solomon, and from all the kings of the earth, who heard of his wisdom.

and hiram king of tyre sent his servants to solomon: for he heard that they had anointed him king in the room of his father: for hiram had always been david's friend. and solomon sent to hiram, saying: thou knowest the will of david my father, and that he could not build a house to the name of the lord his god, because of the wars that were round about him, until the lord put them under the soles of his feet. but now the lord my god hath given me rest round about: and there is no adversary nor evil occurrence. wherefore i purpose to build a temple to the name of the lord my god, as the lord spoke to david my father, saying: my son, whom i will set upon the throne in thy piece, he shall build a house to my name. give orders therefore that thy servants cut me down cedar trees out of libanus, and let my servants be with thy servants: and i will give thee the hire of thy servants whatsoever thou wilt ask, for thou knowest how there is not among my people a man that has skill to hew wood like to the sidonians. now when hiram had heard the words of solomon, he rejoiced exceedingly, and said: blessed be the lord god this day, who hath given to david a very wise son over this numerous people. and hiram sent to solomon, saying: i have heard all thou hast desired of me: and i will do all thy desire concerning cedar trees, and fir trees. my servants shall bring them down from libanus to the sea: and i will put them together in floats in the sea, and convey them to the place, which thou shalt signify to me; and will land them there, and thou shalt receive them: and thou shalt allow me necessities, to furnish food for my household. so hiram gave solomon cedar trees, and fir trees, according to all his desire. and solomon allowed hiram twenty thousand measures of wheat, for provision for his house, and twenty measures of the purest oil: thus gave solomon to hiram every year. and the lord gave wisdom to solomon, as he promised him: and there was peace between hiram and solomon, and they two made a league together. and king solomon chose workmen cut of all israel, and the levy was of thirty thousand men. and he sent them to libanus, ten thousand every month by turns, so that two months they were at home: and adoniram was over this levy. and solomon had seventy thousand to carry burdens, and eighty thousand to hew stones in the mountain: besides the overseers who were over every work, in number three thousand, and three hundred that ruled over the people, and them that did the work. and the king commanded, that they should bring great stones, costly stones, for the foundation of the temple, and should square them: and the masons of solomon, and the masons of hiram hewed them: and the giblions prepared timber and stones to build the house.

and it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of israel came out of the land of egypt, in the fourth year of the reign of solomon over israel, in the month zio (the same is the second month), he began to build a house to the lord. and the house, which king solomon built to the lord, was threescore cubits in length, and twenty cubits in breadth, and thirty cubits in height. and there was a porch before the temple of twenty cubits in length, according to the measure of the breadth of the temple: and it was ten cubits in breadth before the face of the temple. and he made in the temple oblique windows. and upon the wall of the temple he built floors round about, in the walls of the house round about the temple and the oracle, and he made sides round about. the floor that was underneath, was five cubits in breadth, and the middle floor was six cubits in breadth, and the third door was seven cubits in breadth. and he put beams in the house round about on the outside, that they might not be fastened in the walls of the temple. and the house, when it was in building, was built of stones hewed and made ready: so that there was neither hammer nor axe nor any tool of iron heard in the house when it was in building. the door for the middle side was on the right hand of the house: and by winding stairs they went up to the middle room, and from the middle to the third. so he built the house, and finished it: end he covered the house with roofs of cedar. and he built a floor over all the house five cubits in height, and he covered the house with timber of cedar. and the word of the lord came to solomon, saying: this house, which thou buildest, if thou wilt walk in my statutes, and execute my judgments, and keep all my commandments, walking in them, i will fulfil my word to thee which i spoke to david thy father. and i will dwell in the midst of the children of israel, and will not forsake my people israel. so solomon built the house and finished it. and he built the walls of the house on the inside, with boards of cedar, from the floor of the house to the top of the walls, and to the roots, he covered it with boards of cedar on the inside: and he covered the floor of the house with planks of fir. and he built up twenty cubits with boards of cedar at the hinder part of the temple, from the floor to the top: and made the inner house of the oracle to be the holy of holies. and the temple itself before the doors of the oracle was forty cubits long. and all the house was covered within with cedar, having the turnings, and the joints thereof artfully wrought and carvings projecting out: all was covered with boards of cedar: and no stone could be seen in the wall at all. and he made the oracle in the midst of the house, in the inner part, to set there the ark of the covenant of the lord. now the oracle was twenty cubits in length, and twenty cubits in breadth, and twenty cubits in height. and he covered and overlaid it with most pure gold. and the altar also he covered with cedar. and the house before the oracle he overlaid with most pure gold, and fastened on the plates with nails of gold. and there was nothing in the temple that was not covered with gold: the whole altar of the oracle he covered also with gold. and he made in the oracle two cherubims of olive tree, of ten cubits in height. one wing of the cherub was five cubits, and the other wing of the cherub was five cubits: that is, in all ten cubits, from the extremity of one wing to the extremity of the other wing. the second cherub also was ten cubits: and the measure, and the work was the same in both the cherubims: that is to say, one cherub was ten cubits high, and in like manner the other cherub. and he set the cherubims in the midst of the inner temple: and the cherubims stretched forth their wings, and the wing of the one touched one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall: and the other wings in the midst of the temple touched one another. and he overlaid the cherubims with gold. and all the walls of the temple round about he carved with divers figures and carvings: and he made in them cherubims and palm trees, and divers representations, as it were standing out, and coming forth from the wall. and the floor of the house he also overlaid with gold within and without. and in the entrance of the oracle he made little doors of olive tree, and posts of five corners, and two doors of olive tree: and he carved upon them figures of cherubims, and figures of palm trees, and carvings very much projecting: and he overlaid them with gold: and he covered both the cherubims and the palm trees, and the other things with gold. and he made in the entrance of the temple posts of olive tree foursquare: and two doors of fir tree, one of each side: and each door was double, and so opened with folding leaves. and he carved cherubims, and palm trees, and carved work standing very much out: and he overlaid all with golden plates in square work by rule. and he built the inner court with three rows of polished stones, and one row of beams of cedar. in the fourth year was the house of the lord founded in the month zio: and in the eleventh year in the month bul (which is the eighth month) the house was finished in all the works thereof, and in all the appurtenances thereof: and he was seven years in building it.

and solomon built his own house in thirteen years, and brought it to perfection. he built also the house of the forest of libanus, the length of it was a hundred cubits, and the breadth fifty cubits, and the height thirty cubits: and four galleries between pillars of cedar: for he had cut cedar trees into pillars. and he covered the whole vault with boards of cedar, and it was held up with five and forty pillars. and one row had fifteen pillars, set one against another, and looking one upon another, with equal space between the pillars, and over the pillars were square beams in all things equal. and he made a porch of pillars of fifty cubits in length, and thirty cubits in breadth: and another porch before the greater porch: and pillars, and chapters upon the pillars. he made also the porch of the throne, wherein is the seat of judgment: and covered it with cedar wood from the floor to the top. and in the midst of the porch, was a small house where he sat in judgment, of the like work. he made also a house for the daughter of pharao (whom solomon had taken to wife) of the same work, as this porch, all of costly stones, which were sawed by a certain rule and measure both within and without: from the foundation to the top of the walls, and without unto the great court. and the foundations were of costly stones, great stones of ten cubits or eight cubits: and above there were costly stones, or equal measure, hewed; and, in like manner, planks of cedar: and the greater court was made round with three rows of hewed stones, and one row of planks of cedar, moreover also in the inner court of the house of the lord, and in the porch of the house. and king solomon sent, and brought hiram from tyre, the son of a widow woman of the tribe of nephtali, whose father was a tyrian, an artificer in brass, and full of wisdom, and understanding, and skill to work all work in brass. and when he was come to king solomon, he wrought all his work. and he cast two pillars in brass, each pillar was eighteen cubits high: and a line of twelve cubits compassed both the pillars. he made also two chapters of molten brass, to be set upon the tops of the pillars: the height of one chapter was five cubits, and the height of the other chapter was five cubits: and a kind of network, and chain work wreathed together with wonderful art. both the chapters of the pillars were cast: seven rows of nets were on one chapter, and seven nets on the other chapter. and he made the pillars, and two rows round about each network to cover the chapters, that were upon the top, with pomegranates: and in like manner did he to the other chapter. and the chapters that were upon the top of the pillars, were of lily work in the porch, of four cubits. and again other chapters in the top of the pillars above, according to the measure of the pillar over against the network: and of pomegranates there were two hundred in rows round about the other chapter. and he set up the two pillars in the porch of the temple: and when he had set up the pillar on the right hand, he called the name thereof jachin: in like manner he set up the second pillar, and called the name thereof booz. and upon the tops of the pillars he made lily work: so the work of the pillars was finished. he made also a molten sea of ten cubits from brim to brim, round all about; the height of it was five cubits, and a line of thirty cubits compassed it round about. and a graven work under the brim of it compassed it, for ten cubits going about the sea: there were two rows cast of chamfered sculptures. and it stood upon twelve oxen, of which three looked towards the north, and three towards the west, and three towards the south, and three towards the east, and the sea was above upon them, and their hinder parts were all hid within. and the laver was a handbreadth thick: and the brim thereof was like the brim of a cup, or the leaf of a crisped lily: it contained two thousand bates, and he made ten bases of brass, every base was four cubits in length, and four cubits in breadth, and three cubits high. and the work itself of the bases, was intergraven: and there were gravings between the joinings. and between the little crowns and the ledges were lions, and oxen, and

cherubims: and in the joinings likewise above: and under the lions and oxen, as it were bands of brass hanging down. and every base had four wheels, and axletrees of brass: and at the four sides were undersetters under the laver molten, looking one against another. the mouth also of the laver within, was in the top of the chapter: and that which appeared without, was of one cubit all round, and together it was one cubit and a half: and in the corners of the pillars were divers engravings: and the spaces between the pillars were square, not round. and the four wheels, which were at the four corners of the base, were joined one to another under the base: the height of a wheel was a cubit and a half. and they were such wheels as are used to be made in a chariot: and their axletrees, and spokes, and strakes, and naves, were all east. and the four undersetters that were at every corner of each base, were of the base itself cast and joined together. and in the top of the base there was a round compass of half a cubit, so wrought that the laver might be set thereon, having its gravings, and divers sculptures of itself. he engraved also in those plates, which were of brass. and in the corners, cherubims, and lions, and palm trees, in likeness of a man standing, so that they seemed not to be engraven, but added round about. after this manner he made ten bases, of one casting and measure, and the like graving. he made also ten lavers of brass: one laver contained four bases, and was of four cubits: and upon every base, in all ten, he put as many lavers. and he set the ten bases, five on the right side of the temple, and five on the left: and the sea he put on the right side of the temple over against the east southward. and hiram made caldrons, and shovels, and basins, and finished all the work of king solomon in the temple of the lord. the two pillars and the two cords of the chapters, upon the chapters of the pillars: and the two networks, to cover the two cords, that were upon the top of the pillars. and four hundred pomegranates for the two networks: two rows of pomegranates for each network, to cover the cords of the chapters, which were upon the tops of the pillars. and the ten bases, and the ten lavers on the bases. and one sea, and twelve oxen under the sea. and the caldrons, and the shovels, and the basins. all the vessels that hiram made for king solomon for the house of the lord, were of fine brass. in the plains of the jordan did the king cast them in a clay ground, between socoth and sartham. and solomon placed all the vessels: but for exceeding great multitude the brass could not be weighed. and solomon made all the vessels for the house of the lord: the altar of gold, and the table of gold, upon which the leaves of proposition should be set: and the golden candlesticks, five on the right hand, and five on the left, over against the oracle, of pure gold: and the flowers like lilies, and the lamps over them of gold: and golden snuffers, and pots, and fleshhooks, and bowls, and mortars, and censers, of most pure gold: and the hinges for the doors of the inner house of the holy of holies, and for the doors of the house of the temple were of gold. and solomon finished all the work that he made in the house of the lord, and brought in the things that david his father had dedicated, the silver and the gold, and the vessels, and laid them up in the treasures of the house of the lord.

then all the ancients of israel with the princes of the tribes, and the heads of the families of the children of israel were assembled to king solomon in jerusalem: that they might carry the ark of the covenant of the lord out of the city of david, that is, out of sion. and all israel assembled themselves to king solomon on the festival day in the month of ethanim, the same is the seventh month. and all the ancients of israel came, and the priests took up the ark, and carried the ark of the lord, and the tabernacle of the covenant, and all the vessels of the sanctuary, that were in the tabernacle: and the priests and the levites carried them. and king solomon, and all the multitude of israel, that were assembled unto him went with him before the ark, and they sacrificed sheep and oxen that could not be counted or numbered. and the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the lord into its place, into the oracle of the temple, into the holy of holies under the wings of the cherubims. for the cherubims spread forth their wings over the place of the ark, and covered the ark, and the staves thereof above. and whereas the staves stood out, the ends of them were seen without in the sanctuary before the oracle, but were not seen farther out, and there they have been unto this day. now in the ark there was nothing else but the two tables of stone, which moyses put there at horeb, when the lord made a covenant with the children of israel, when they came out of the land of egypt. and it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the sanctuary, that a cloud filled the house of the lord, and the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of the lord had filled the house of the lord. then solomon said: the lord said that he would dwell in a cloud. building i have built a house for thy dwelling, to be thy most firm throne for ever. and the king turned his face, and blessed all the assembly of israel: for all the assembly of israel stood. and solomon said: blessed be the lord the god of israel, who spoke with his mouth to david my father, and with his own hands hath accomplished it, saying: since the day that i brought my people israel out of egypt, i chose no city out of all the tribes of israel, for a house to be built, that my name might be there: but i chose david to be over my people israel. and david my father would have built a house to the name of the lord the god of israel: and the lord said to david my father: whereas thou hast thought in thy heart to build a house to my name, thou hast done well in having this same thing in thy mind. nevertheless thou shalt not build me a house, but thy son, that shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build a house to my name. the lord hath performed his word which he spoke: and i stand in the room of david my father, and sit upon the throne of israel, as the lord promised: and have built a house to the name of the lord the god of israel. and i have set there a place for the ark, wherein is the covenant of the lord, which he made with our fathers, when they came out of the land of

egypt. and solomon stood before the altar of the lord in the sight of the assembly of israel, and spread forth his hands towards heaven; and said: lord god of israel, there is no god like thee in heaven above, or on earth beneath: who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that have walked before thee with all their heart. who hast kept with thy servant david my father what thou hast promised him: with thy mouth thou didst speak, and with thy hands thou hast performed, as this day proveth. now therefore, o lord god of israel, keep with thy servant david my father what thou hast spoken to him, saying: there shall not be taken away of thee a man in my sight, to sit on the throne of israel: yet so that thy children take heed to their way, that they walk before me as thou hast walked in my sight. and now, lord god of israel, let thy words be established, which thou hast spoken to thy servant david my father is it then to be thought that god should indeed dwell upon earth? for if heaven, and the heavens of heavens cannot contain thee, how much less this house which i have built? but have regard to the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplications, o lord my god: hear the hymn and the prayer, which thy servant prayeth before thee this day: that thy eyes may be open upon this house night and day: upon the house of which thou hast said: my name shall be there: that thou mayest hearken to the prayer, which thy servant prayeth in this place to thee. that thou mayest hearken to the supplication of thy servant and of thy people israel, whatsoever they shall pray for in this place, and hear them in the place of thy dwelling in heaven; and when thou hearest, shew them mercy. if any man trespass against his neighbour, and have an oath upon him, wherewith he is bound: and come because of the oath before thy altar to thy house, then hear thou in heaven: and do, and judge thy servants, condemning the wicked, and bringing his way upon his own head, and justifying the just, and rewarding him according to his justice. if thy people israel shall fly before their enemies, (because they will sin against thee,) and doing penance, and confessing to thy name, shall come, and pray, and make supplications to thee in this house: then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy people israel, and bring them back to the land which thou gavest to their fathers. if heaven shall be shut up, and there shall be no rain, because of their sins, and they praying in this place, shall do penance to thy name, and shall be converted from their sins, by occasion of their afflictions: then hear thou them in heaven, and forgive the sins of thy servants, and of thy people israel: and shew them the good way wherein they should walk, and give rain upon thy land, which thou hast given to thy people in possession. if a famine arise in the land, or a pestilence, or corrupt air, or blasting, or locust, or mildew, if their enemy afflict them besieging the gates, whatsoever plague, whatsoever infirmity, whatsoever curse or imprecation shall happen to any man of thy people israel: when a man shall know the wound of his own heart, and shall spread forth his hands in this house, then hear thou in heaven, in the place of thy dwelling, and forgive, and do so as to give to every one according to his ways, as thou shalt see his heart (for thou only knowest the heart of all the children of men) that they may fear thee all the days that they live upon the face of the land, which thou hast given to our fathers. moreover also the stranger, who is not of thy people israel, when he shall come out of a far country for thy name's sake, (for they shall hear every where of thy great name and thy mighty hand, and thy stretched out arm,) so when he shall come, and shall pray in this place, then hear thou in heaven, in the firmament of thy dwelling place, and do all those things, for which that stranger shall call upon thee: that all the people of the earth may learn to fear thy name, as do thy people israel, and may prove that thy name is called upon on this house, which i have built. if thy people go out to war against their enemies, by what way soever thou shalt send them, they shall pray to thee towards the way of the city, which thou hast chosen, and towards the house, which i have built to thy name: and then hear thou in heaven their prayers, and their supplications, and do judgment for them. but if they sin against thee (for there is no man who sinneth not) and thou being angry deliver them up to their enemies, so that they be led away captives into the land of their enemies far or near; then if they do penance in their heart in the place of captivity, and being converted make supplication to thee in their captivity, saying: we have sinned, we have done unjustly, we have committed wickedness: and return to thee with all their heart, and all their soul, in the land of their enemies, to which they had been led captives: and pray to thee towards the way of their land, which thou gavest to their fathers, and of the city which thou hast chosen, and of the temple which i have built to thy name: then hear thou in heaven, in the firmament of thy throne, their prayers, and their supplications, and do judgment for them: and forgive thy people, that have sinned against thee, and all their iniquities, by which they have transgressed against thee: and give them mercy before them that have made them captives, that they may have compassion on them. for they are thy people, and thy inheritance, whom thou hast brought out of the land of egypt, from the midst of the furnace of iron. that thy eyes may be open to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people israel, to hear them in all things for which they shall call upon thee. for thou hast separated them to thyself for an inheritance from among all the people of the earth, as thou hast spoken by moyses thy servant, when thou broughtest our fathers out of egypt, o lord god. and it came to pass, when solomon had made an end of praying all this prayer and supplication to the lord, that he rose from before the altar of the lord: for he had fixed both knees on the ground, and had spread his hands towards heaven. and he stood and blessed all the assembly of israel with a, loud voice, saying: blessed be the lord, who hath given rest to his people israel, according to all that he promised: there hath not failed so much as one word of all the good things that he promised by his servant moyses. the lord our god be with us, as he was with our fathers, and not leave us, nor cast us off: but may he incline our hearts to himself, that we may walk in all his ways, and keep his commandments, and his ceremonies, and all his judgments which he commanded our fathers. and let these my words, wherewith i have prayed before the lord, he nigh unto the lord our god day and night, that he may do judgment for his servant, and for his people israel day by day: that all the people of the earth may know, that the lord he is god, and there is no other besides him. let our hearts also be perfect with the lord our god, that we may walk in his statutes, and keep his commandments, as at this day. and the king, and all israel him, offered victims before the lord. and solomon slew victims of peace offerings, which he sacrificed to the lord, two and twenty thousand oxen, and hundred and twenty thousand sheep: so the king, and the children of israel dedicated the temple of the lord. in that day the king sanctified the middle of the court that was before the house of the lord: for there he offered the holocaust, and sacrifice, and fat of the peace offerings: because the brazen altar that was before the lord, was too little to receive the holocaust, and sacrifice, and fat of the peace offerings. and solomon made at the same time a solemn feast, and all israel with him, a great multitude from the entrance of emath to the river of egypt, before the lord our god, seven days and seven days, that is, fourteen days. and on the eighth day he sent away the people: and they blessed the king, and went to their dwellings rejoicing, and glad in heart for all the good things that the lord had done for david his servant, and for israel his people.

and it came to pass when solomon had finished the building of the house of the lord, and the king's house, and all that he desired, and was pleased to do, that the lord appeared to him the second time, as he had appeared to him in gabaon. and the lord said to him: i have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, which thou hast made before me: i have sanctified this house, which thou hast built, to put my name there for ever, and my eyes and my heart shall be there always. and if thou wilt walk before me, as thy father walked, in simplicity of heart, and in uprightness: and wilt do all that i have commanded thee, and wilt keep my ordinances and my judgments, i will establish the throne of thy kingdom over israel for ever, as i promised david thy father, saying: there shall not fail a man of thy race upon the throne of israel. but if you and your children revolting shall turn away from following me, and will not keep my commandments, and my ceremonies, which i have set before you, but will go and worship strange gods, and adore them: i will take away israel from the face of the land which i have given them; and the temple which i have sanctified to my name, i will cast out of my sight; and israel shall be a proverb, and a byword among all people. and this house shall be made an example of: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, and shall hiss, and say: why hath the lord done thus to this land, and to this house: and they shall answer: because they forsook the lord their god, who brought their fathers out of the land of egypt, and

followed strange gods, and adored them, and worshipped them: therefore hath the lord brought upon them all this evil. and when twenty years were ended after solomon had built the two houses, that is, the house of the lord, and the house of the king, hiram the king of tyre furnishing solomon with cedar trees and fir trees, and gold according to all he had need of,) then solomon gave hiram twenty cities in the land of galilee. and hiram came out of tyre, to see the towns which solomon had given him, and they pleased him not, and he said: are these the cities which thou hast given me, brother? and he called them the land of chabul, unto this day. and hiram sent to king solomon a hundred and twenty talents of gold. this is the sum of the expenses, which king solomon offered to build the house of the lord, and his own house, and mello, and the wall of jerusalem, and heser, and mageddo, and gazer. pharao the king of egypt came up and took gazer, and burnt it with fire: and slew the chanaanite that dwelt in the city, and gave it for a dowry to his daughter, solomon's wife. so solomon built: gazer, and beth-horon the nether, and baalath, and palmira in the land of the wilderness. and all the towns that belonged to himself, and were not walled, he fortified, the cities also of the chariots, and the cities of the horsemen, and whatsoever he had a mind to build in jerusalem, and in libanus, and in all the land of his dominion. all the people that were left of the amor-rites, and hethites, and pherezites, and hevites, and jebusites, that are not of the children of israel: their children, that were left in the land, to wit, such as the children of israel had not been able to destroy, solomon made tributary unto this day. but of the children of israel solomon made not any to be bondmen, but they were men of war, and his servants, and his princes, and captains, and overseers of the chariots and horses. and there were five hundred and fifty chief officers set over all the works of solomon, and they had people under them, and had charge over the appointed works. and the daughter of pharao came up out of the city of david to her house, which solomon had built for her: then did he build mello. solomon also offered three times every year holocausts, and victims of peace offerings upon the altar which he had built to the lord, and he burnt incense before the lord: and the temple was finished. and king solomon made a fleet in asiongaber, which is by ailath on the shore of the red sea in the land of edom. and hiram sent his servants in the fleet, sailors that had knowledge of the sea, with the servants of solomon. and they came to ophir, and they brought from thence to king solomon four hundred and twenty talents of gold.

and the queen of saba, having heard of the fame of solomon in the name of the lord, came to try him with hard questions. and entering into jerusalem with a great train, and riches, and camels that carried spices, and an immense quantity of gold, and precious stones, she came to king solomon, and spoke to him all that she had in her heart. and solomon informed her of all the things she proposed to him: there was not any word the king was ignorant of, and which he could not answer her. and when the queen of saba saw all the wisdom of solomon, and the house which he had built, and the meat of his table, and the apartments of his servants, and the order of his ministers, and their apparel, and the cup-bearers, and the holocausts, which he offered in the house of the lord: she had no longer any spirit in her, and she said to the king: the report is true, which i heard in my own country, concerning thy words, and concerning thy wisdom. and i did not believe them that told me, till i came myself, and saw with my own eyes, and have found that the half hath not been told me: thy wisdom and thy works, exceed the fame which i heard. blessed are thy men, and blessed are thy servants, who stand before thee always, and hear thy wisdom. blessed be the lord thy god, whom thou hast pleased, and who hath set thee upon the throne of israel, because the lord hath loved israel for ever, and hath appointed thee king, to do judgment and justice. and she gave the king a hundred and twenty talents of gold, and of spices a very great store, and precious stones: there was brought no more such abundance of spices as these which the queen of saba gave to king solomon. (the navy also of hiram, which brought gold from ophir, brought from ophir great plenty of thyine trees, and precious stones. and the king made of the thyine trees the rails of the house of the lord, and of the king's house, and cisterns and harps for singers: there were no such thyine trees as these brought, nor seen unto this day.) and king solomon gave the queen of saba all that she desired, and asked of him: besides what he offered he himself of his royal bounty. and she returned, and went to her own country with her servants. and the weight of the gold that was brought to solomon every year, was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold: besides that which the men brought him that were over the tributes, and the merchants, and they that sold by retail, and all the kings of arabia, and the governors of the country. and solomon made two hundred shields of the purest gold: he allowed six hundred sides of gold for the plates of one shield. and three hundred targets of fine gold: three hundred pounds of gold covered one target: and the king put them in the house of the forest of libanus. king solomon also made a great throne of ivory: and overlaid it with the finest gold. it had six steps: and the top of the throne was round behind: and there were two hands on either side holding the seat: and two lions stood, one at each hand. and twelve little lions stood upon the six steps on the one side and on the other: there was no such work made in any kingdom. moreover all the vessels, out of which king solomon drank, were of gold: and all the furniture of the house of the forest of libanus was of most pure gold: there was no silver, nor was any account made of it in the days of solomon: for the king's navy, once in three years, went with the navy of hiram by sea to tharsis, and brought from thence gold, and silver, and elephants' teeth, and apes, and peacocks. and king solomon exceeded all the kings of the earth in riches, and wisdom. and all the earth desired to see solomon's face, to hear his wisdom, which god had given in his heart. and every one brought him presents, vessels of silver and of gold, garments and armour, and spices, and horses and mules every year. and solomon gathered together chariots and horsemen, and he had a thousand four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horseman: and he bestowed them in fenced cities, and with the king in jerusalem. and he made silver to be as plentiful in jerusalem as stones: and cedars to be as common as sycamores which grow in the plains. and horses were brought for solomon out of egypt, and coa: for the king's merchants brought them out of coa, and bought them at a set price. and a chariot of four horses came out of egypt, for six hundred sides of silver, and a horse for a hundred and fifty. and after this manner did all the kings of the hethites, and of syria, sell horses.

and king solomon loved many strange women besides the daughter of pharao, and women of moab, and of ammon, and of edom, and of sidon, and of the hethites: of the nations concerning which the lord said to the children of israel: you shall not go in unto them, neither shall any of them come in to yours: for they will most certainly turn away your heart to follow their gods. and to these was solomon joined with a most ardent love. and he had seven hundred wives as queens, and three hundred concubines: and the women turned away his heart. and when he was now old, his heart was turned away by women to follow strange gods: and his heart was not perfect with the lord his god, as was the heart of david his father. but solomon worshipped astarthe the goddess of the sidonians, and moloch the idol of the ammonites. and solomon did that which was net pleasing before the lord, and did not fully follow the lord, as david his father. then solomon built a temple for chamos the idol of moab, on the hill that is over against jerusalem, and for moloch the idol of the children of ammon. and he did in this manner for all his wives that were strangers, who burnt incense, and offered sacrifice to their gods. and the lord was angry with solomon, because his mind was turned away from the lord the god of israel, who had appeared to him twice, and had commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not follow strange gods: but he kept not the things which the lord commanded him. the lord therefore said to solomon: because thou hast done this, and hast not kept my covenant, and my precepts, which i have commanded thee, i will divide and rend thy kingdom, and will give it to thy servant. nevertheless in thy days i will not do it, for david thy father's sake: but i will rend it out of the hand of thy son. neither will i take away the whole kingdom, but i will give one tribe to thy son for the sake of david my servant, and jerusalem which i have chosen. and the lord raised up an adversary to solomon, adad the edomite of the king's seed, in edom. for when david was in edom, and joab the general of the army was gone up to bury them that were slain, and had killed every male in edom, (for joab remained there six months with all israel, till he had slain every male in edom,) then adad fled, he and certain edomites, of his father's servants with him, to go into egypt: and adad was then a little boy. and they arose out of madian, and came into pharan, and they took men with them from pharan, and went into egypt to pharao the king of egypt: who gave him a house, and appointed him victuals, and assigned him land. and adad found great favour before pharao, insomuch that he gave him to wife, the own sister of his wife taphnes the queen. and the sister of taphnes bore him his son genubath, and taphnes brought him up in the house of pharao: and genubath dwelt with pharao among his children. and when adad heard in egypt that david slept with his fathers, and that joab the general of the army was dead, he add to pharao: let me depart, that i may go to my own country. and pharao said to him: why, what is wanting to thee with me, that thou seekest to go to thy own country? but he answered: nothing: yet i beseech thee to let me go. god also raised up against him an adversary, razon the son of eliada, 'who had fled from his master adarezer the king of soba: and he gathered men against him, and he became a captain of robbers, when david slew them of soba: and they went to damascus, and dwelt there, and they made him king in damascus. and he was an adversary to israel, all the days of solomon: and this is the evil of adad, and his hatred against israel, and he reigned in syria. jeroboam also the son of nabat an ephrathite of sareda, a servant of solomon, whose mother was named sarua, a widow woman, lifted up his hand against the king. and this is the cause of his rebellion against him, for solomon built mello, and filled up the breach of the city of david his father. and jeroboam was a valiant and mighty man: and solomon seeing him a young man ingenious and industrious, made him chief over the tributes of all the house of joseph. so it came to paste at that time, that jeroboam went out of jerusalem, and the prophet ahias the silonite, clad with a new garment, found him in the way: and they two were alone in the held. and ahias taking his new garment, wherewith he was clad, divided it into twelve parts: and he said to jeroboam: take to thee ten pieces: for thus saith the lord the god of israel: behold i will rend the kingdom out of the hand of solomon, and will give thee ten tribes. but one tribe shall remain to him for the sake of my servant david, and jerusalem the city, which i have chosen out of all the tribes of israel: because he hath forsaken me, and hath adored astarthe the goddess of the sidonians, and chamos the god of moab, and moloch the god of the children of ammon: and hath not walked in my ways, to do justice before me, and to keep my precepts, and judgments as did david his father. yet i will not take away all the kingdom out of his hand, but i will make him prince all the days of his life, for david my servant's sake, whom i chose, who kept my commandments and my precepts. but i will take away the kingdom out of his son's hand and will give thee ten tribes: and to his son i will give one tribe, that there may remain a lamp for my servant david before me always in jerusalem the city which i have chosen, that my name might be there. and i will take thee, and thou shalt reign over all that thy soul desireth, and thou shalt be king over israel. if then thou wilt hearken to all that i shall command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, and do what is right before me, keeping my commandments and my precepts, as david my servant did: i will be with thee, and will build thee up a faithful house, as i built a house for david, and i will deliver israel to thee: and i will for this afflict the seed of david, but yet not for ever. solomon therefore sought to kill jeroboam: but he arose, and fled into egypt to sesac the king of egypt, and was in egypt till the death of solomon. and the rest of the words of solomon, and all that he did, and his wisdom: behold they are all written in the book of the words of the days of solomon. and the days that solomon reigned in jerusalem over all israel, were forty years. and solomon slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of david his father, and roboam his son reigned in his stead.

and roboam went to sicheim: for thither were all israel come together to make him king. but jeroboam the son of nabat, who was yet in egypt, a fugitive from the face of king solomon, hearing of his death, returned out of egypt. and they sent and called him: and jeroboam came, and all the multitude of israel, and they spoke to roboam, saying: thy father laid a grievous yoke upon us: now therefore do thou take off a little of the grievous service of thy father, and of his most heavy yoke, which he put upon us, and we will serve thee. and he said to them: go till the third day, and come to me again. and when the people was gone, king roboam took counsel with the old men, that stood before solomon his father while he yet lived, and he said: what counsel do you give me, that i may answer this people? they said to him: if thou wilt yield to this people to day, and condescend to them, and grant their petition, and wilt speak gentle words to them, they will be thy servants always. but he left the counsel of the old men, which they had given him, and consulted with the young men, that had been brought up with him, and stood before him. and he said to them: what counsel do you give me, that i may answer this people, who have said to me: make the yoke which thy father put upon us lighter? and the young men that had been brought up with him, said: thus shalt thou speak to this people, who have spoken to thee, saying: thy father made our yoke heavy, do thou ease us. thou shalt say to them: my little finger is thicker than the back of my father. and now my father put a heavy yoke upon you, but i will add to your yoke: my father beat you with whips, but i will beat you with scorpions. so jeroboam and all the people came to roboam the third day, as the king had appointed, saying: come to me again the third day. and the king answered the people roughly, leaving the counsel of the old men, which they had given him, and he spoke to them according to the counsel of the young men, saying: my father made your yoke heavy, but i will add to your yoke: my father beat you with whips, but i will beat you with scorpions. and the king condescended not to the people: for the lord was turned away from him, to make good his word, which he had spoken in the hand of ahias the silonite, to jerooboam the son of nabat. then the people seeing that the king would not hearken to them, answered him, saying: what portion have we in david? or what inheritance in the son of isai? go home to thy dwellings, o israel, now david look to thy own house. so israel departed to their dwellings. but as for all the children of israel that dwelt in the cities of juda, roboam reigned over them. then king roboam sent aduram, who was over the tribute: and all israel stoned him, and he died. wherefore king roboam made haste to get him up into his chariot, and he fled to jerusalem: and israel revolted from the house of david, unto this day. and it came to pass when all israel heard that jerooboam was come again, that they gathered an assembly, and sent and called him, and made him king over all israel, and there was none that followed the house of david but the tribe of juda only. and roboam came to jerusalem, and gathered together all the house of juda, and the tribe of benjamin, a hundred four-score thousand chosen men for war, to fight against the house of israel and to bring the kingdom again under roboam the son of solomon. but the word of the lord came to semeias the man of god, saying: speak to roboam the son of solomon, the king of juda, and to all the house of juda, and benjamin, and the rest of the people, saying: thus saith the lord: you shall not go up nor fight against your brethren the children of israel: let every man return to his house, for this thing is from me. they hearkened to the word of the lord, and returned from their journey, as the lord had commanded them. and jeroboam built sicheim in mount ephraim, and dwelt there, and going out from thence he built phanuel. and jeroboam said in his heart: now shall the kingdom return to the house of david, if this people go up to offer sacrifices in the house of the lord at jerusalem: and the heart of this people will turn to their lord roboam the king of juda, and they will kill me, and return to him. and finding out a device he made two golden calves, and said to them: go ye up no more to jerusalem: behold thy gods, o israel, who brought thee out of the land of egypt. and he set the one in bethel, and the other in dan: and this thing became an occasion of sin: for the people went to adore the calf as far as dan. and he made temples in the high places, and priests of the lowest of the people, who were not of the sons of levi. and he appointed a feast in the eighth month, on the fifteenth day of the month, after the manner of the feast that was celebrated in juda. and going up to the altar, he did in like manner in bethel, to sacrifice to the calves, which he had made: and he placed in bethel priests of the high places, which he had made. and he went up to the altar, which he had built in bethel, on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, which he had devised of his own heart: and he ordained a feast to the children of israel, and went upon the altar to burn incense.

and behold there came a man of god out of juda, by the word of the lord to bethel, when jeroboam was standing upon the altar, and burning incense. and he cried out against the altar in the word of the lord, and said: o altar, altar, thus saith the lord: behold a child shall be born to the house of david, josias by name, and he shall immolate upon thee the priests of the high places, who now burn incense upon thee, and he shall burn men's bones upon thee. and he gave a sign the same day, saying: this shall be the sign, that the lord hath spoken: behold the altar shall be rent, and the ashes that are upon it shall be poured out. and when the king had heard the word of the man of god, which he had cried out against the altar in bethel, he stretched forth his hand from the altar, saying: lay hold on him. and his hand which he stretched forth against him withered: and he was not able to draw it back again to him. the altar also was rent, and the ashes were poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of god had given before in the word of the lord. and the king said to the man of god: entreat the face of the lord thy god, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored to me. and the man of god besought the face of the lord, and the king's hand was restored to him, and it became as it was before. and the king said to the man of god: come home with me to dine, and i will make thee presents. and the man of god answered the king: if thou wouldst give me half thy house i will not go with thee, nor eat bread, nor drink water in this place: for so it was enjoined me by the word of the lord commanding me: thou shalt not eat bread nor drink water, nor return by the same way that thou camest. so he departed by another way, and returned not by the way that he came into bethel. now a certain old prophet dwelt in bethel, and his sons came to him and told him all the works that the man of god had done that day in bethel: and they told their father the words which he had spoken to the king, and their father said to them: what way went he? his sons shewed him the way by which the man of god went, who came out of juda. and he said to his sons: saddle me the ass. and when they had saddled him, he got up, and went after the man of god, and found him sitting under a turpentine tree: and he said to him: art thou the man of god that camest from juda? he answered: i am. and he said to him: come home with me, to eat bread. but he said: i must not return, nor go with thee, neither will i eat bread, nor drink water in this place: because the lord spoke to me in the word of the lord, saying: thou shalt not eat bread, and thou shalt not drink water there, nor return by the way thou wentest. he said to him: i also am a prophet like unto thee: and an angel spoke to me in the word of the lord, saying: bring him back with thee into thy house, that he may eat bread, and drink water. he deceived him, and brought him back with him: so he ate bread and drank water in his house. and as they sat at table, the word of the lord came to the prophet that brought him back: and he cried out to the man of god who came out of juda, saying: thus saith the lord: because thou hast not been obedient to the lord, and hast not kept the commandment which the lord thy god commanded thee, and hast returned and eaten bread, and drunk water in the place wherein he commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat bread, nor drink water, thy dead body shall not be brought into the sepulchre of thy fathers. and when he had eaten and drunk, he saddled his ass for the prophet, whom he had brought back. and when he was gone, a lion found him in the way, and killed him, and his body was cast in the way: and the ass stood by him, and the lion stood by the dead body. and behold, men passing by saw the dead body cast in the way, and the lion standing by the body. and they came and told it in the city, wherein that old prophet dwelt. and when that prophet, who had brought him back out of the way, heard of it, he said: it is the man of god, that was disobedient to the mouth of the lord, and the lord hath delivered him to the lion, and he hath torn him, and killed him according to the word of the lord, which he spoke to him. and he said to his sons: saddle me an ass. and when they had saddled it, and he was gone, he found the dead body cast in the way, and the ass and the lion standing by the carcass: the lion had not eaten of the dead body, nor hurt the ass. and the prophet took up the body of the man of god, and laid it upon the ass, and going back brought it into the city of the old prophet, to mourn for him. and he laid his dead body in his own sepulchre: and they mourned over him, saying: alas! alas! my brother. and when they had mourned over him, he said to his sons: when i am dead, bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of god is buried: lay my bones beside his bones. for assuredly the word shall come to pass which he hath foretold in the word of the lord against the altar that is in bethel: and against all the temples of the high places, that are in the cities of samaria. after these words jeroboam came not back from his wicked way: but on the contrary he made of the meanest of the people priests of the high places: whosoever would, he filled his hand, and he was made a priest of the high places. and for this cause did the house of jeroboam sin, and was cut off and destroyed from the face of the earth.

at that time abia the son of jeroboam fell sick. and jeroboam said to his wife: arise, and change thy dress, that thou be not known to be the wife of jeroboam, and go to silo, where ahias the prophet is, who told me, that i should reign over this people. take also with thee ten leaves, and cracknels, and a pot of honey, and go to him: for he will tell thee what shall become of this child. jeroboam's wife did as he told her: and rising up went to silo, and came to the house of ahias: but he could not see, for his eyes were dim by reason of his age. and the lord said to ahias: behold the wife of jeroboam cometh in, to consult thee concerning her son that is sick: thus and thus shalt thou speak to her. so when she was coming in, and made as if she were another woman, ahias heard the sound of her feet coming in at the door, and said: come in, thou wife of jeroboam: why dost thou feign thyself

to be another? but i am sent to thee with heavy tidings. go, and tell jeroboam: thus saith the lord the god of israel: forasmuch as i exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people israel: and rent the kingdom away from the house of david, and gave it to thee, and thou hast not been as my servant david, who kept my commandments, and followed me with all his heart, doing that which was well pleasing in my sight: but hast done evil above all that were before thee, and hast made thee strange gods and molten gods, to provoke me to anger, and hast cast me behind thy back: therefore behold i will bring evils upon the house of jeroboam, and will cut off from jeroboam him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the last in israel: and i will sweep away the remnant of the house of jeroboam, as dung is swept away till all be clean. them that shall die of jeroboam in the city, the dogs shall eat: and them that shall die in the field, the birds of the air shall devour: for the lord hath spoken it. arise thou therefore, and go to thy house: and when thy feet shall be entering into the city, the child shall die, and all israel shall mourn for him, and shall bury him: for he only of jeroboam shall be laid in a sepulchre, because in his regard there is found a good word from the lord the god of israel, in the house of jeroboam. and the lord hath appointed himself a king over israel, who shall cut off the house of jeroboam in this day, and in this time: and the lord god shall strike israel as a reed is shaken in the water: and he shall root up israel out of this good land, which he gave to their fathers, and shall scatter them beyond the river: because they have made to themselves groves, to provoke the lord. and the lord shall give up israel for the sins of jeroboam, who hath sinned, and made israel to sin. and the wife of jeroboam arose, and departed, and came to thersa: and when she was coming in to the threshold of the house, the child died; and they buried him. and all israel mourned for him according to the word of the lord, which he spoke by the hand of his servant ahias the prophet. and the rest of the acts of jeroboam, how he fought, and how he reigned, behold they are written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel. and the days that jeroboam reigned, were two and twenty years: and he slept with his fathers: and nadab his son reigned in his stead. and roboam the son of solomon reigned in juda: roboam was one and forty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned seventeen years in jerusalem the city, which the lord chose out of all the tribes of israel to put his name there. and his mother's name wee naama an ammonitess. and juda did evil in the sight of the lord, and provoked him above all that their fathers had done, in their sins which they committed. for they also built them altars, and statues, and groves upon every high hill and under every green tree: there were also the effeminate in the land, and they did according to all the abominations of the people whom the lord had destroyed before the face of the children of israel. and in the fifth year of the reign of roboam, sesac king of egypt came up against jerusalem. and he took away the treasures of the house of the lord, and the king's treasures, and carried all off: as also the shields of gold which solomon had made. and roboam made shields of brass instead of them, and delivered them into the hand of the captains of the shieldbearers, and of them that kept watch before the gate of the king's house. and when the king went into the house of the lord, they whose office it was to go before him, carried them: and afterwards they brought them back to the armoury of the shieldbearers. now the rest of the sets of roboam, end all that he did, behold they are written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda. and there was war between roboam and jeroboam always. and roboam slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of david: and his mother's name was naama an ammonitess: and abiam his son reigned in his stead.

now in the eighteenth year of the reign of jeroboam the son of nabat, abiam reigned over juda. he reigned three years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was maacha the daughter of abessalom. and he walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him: end his heart was not perfect with the lord his god, as was the heart of david his father. but for david's sake the lord his god gave him a lamp in jerusalem, to set up his son after him, and to establish jerusalem: because david had done that which was right in the eyes of the lord, and had not turned aside from any thing that he commanded him, all the days of his life, except the matter of urias the hethite. but there was war between roboam and jeroboam all the time of his life. and the rest of the words of abiam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and there was war between abiam and jeroboam. and abiam slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of david, and asa his son reigned in his stead. so in the twentieth year of jeroboam king of israel, reigned asa king of juda, and he reigned one end forty years in jerusalem. his mother's name was maacha, the daughter of abessalom. and asa did that which was right in the sight of the lord, as did david his father: and he took away the effeminate out of the land, and he removed all the filth of the idols, which his fathers had made. moreover he also removed his mother maacha, from being the princess in the sacrifices of priapus, and in the grove which she had consecrated to him: and he destroyed her den, and broke in pieces the filthy idol, and burnt it by the torrent cedron: but the high places he did not take away. nevertheless the heart of asa was perfect with the lord all his days: and he brought in the things which his father had dedicated, and he had vowed, into the house of the lord, silver and gold, and vessels. and there was war between asa, and baasa king of israel all their days. and baasa king of israel went up against juda, and built rama, that no man might go out or come in, of the side of asa king of juda. then asa took all the silver and gold that remained in the treasures of the house of the lord, and in the treasures of the king's house, and delivered it into the hands of his servants: and sent them to benadad son of tabremon the son of

hezion, king of syria, who dwelt in damascus, saying: there is a league between me and thee, and between my father and thy father: therefore i have sent thee presents of silver and gold: and i desire thee to come, and break thy league with baasa king of israel, that he may depart from me. benadad hearkening to king asa, sent the captains of his army against the cities of israel, and they smote ahion, and dan, and abeldomum maacha, and all cenneroth, that is all the land of nephtali. and when baasa had heard this, he left off building rama, and returned into thersa. but king asa sent word into all juda, saying: let no man be excused: and they took away the stones from rama, and the timber thereof wherewith baasa had been building, and with them asa built gabaa of benjamin, and maspha. but the rest of all the acts of asa, and all his strength, and all that he did and the cities that he built, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? but in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet. and he slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of david his father. and josaphat his son reigned in his place. but nadab the son of jeroboam reigned over israel the second year of asa king of juda: and he reigned over israel two years. and he did evil in the sight of the lord, and walked in the ways of his father, and in his sins, wherewith he made israel to sin. and baasa the son of ahias of the house of issachar, conspired against him, and slew him in gebbethon, which is a city of the philistines: for nadab and all israel besieged gebbethon. so baasa slew him in the third year of asa king of juda, and reigned in his place. and when he was king he cut off all the house of jeroboam: he left not so much as one soul of his seed, till he had utterly destroyed him, according to the word of the lord, which he had spoken in the hand of ahias the silonite: because of the sin of jeroboam, which he had sinned, and wherewith he had made israel to sin, and for the offence, wherewith he provoked the lord the god of israel. but the rest of the acts of nadab, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? and there was war between asa and baasa the king of israel all their days. in the third year of asa king of juda, baasa the son of ahias reigned over all israel, in thersa, four and twenty years. and he did evil before the lord, and walked in the ways of jeroboam, and in his sins, wherewith he made israel to sin.

then the word of the lord came to jehu the son of hanani against baasa, saying : forasmuch as i have exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince over my people israel, and thou hast walked in the way of jeroboam, and hast made my people israel to sin, to provoke me to anger with their sins: behold, i will cut down the posterity of baasa, and the posterity of his house, and i will make thy house as the house of jeroboam the son of nabat. him that dieth of baasa in the city, the dogs shall eat: and him that dieth of his in the country, the fowls of the air shall devour. but the rest of the acts of baasa and all that he did,

and his battles, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? so baasa slept with his fathers, and was buried in thersa: and ela his son reigned in his stead. and when the word of the lord came in the hand of jehu the son of hanani the prophet, against baasa, and against his house, and against all the evil that he had done before the lord, to provoke him to anger by the works of his hands, to become as the house of jeroboam: for this cause he slew him, that is to say, jehu the son of hanani, the prophet. in the six and twentieth year of asa king of juda, ela the son of baasa reigned over israel in thersa two years. and his servant zambri, who was captain of half the horsemen, rebelled against him: now ela was drinking in thersa, and drunk in the house of arsa the governor of thersa. and zambri rushing in, struck him and slew him in the seven and twentieth year of asa king of juda, and he reigned in his stead. and when he was king and sat upon his throne, he slew all the house of baasa, and he left not one thereof to piss against a wall, and all his kinsfolks and friends. and zambri destroyed all the house of baasa, according to the word of the lord, that he had spoken to baasa in the hand of jehu the prophet, for all the sins of baasa, and the sins of ela his son, who sinned, and made israel to sin, provoking the lord the god of israel with their vanities. but the rest of the acts of ela, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? in the seven and twentieth year of asa king of juda, zambri reigned seven days in thersa: now the army was besieging gebbethon a city of the philistines. and when they heard that zambri had rebelled, and slain the king, all israel made amri their king, who was general over israel in the camp that day. and amri went up, and all israel with him from gebbethon, and they besieged thersa. and zambri seeing that the city was about to be taken, went into the palace and burnt himself with the king's house: and he died in his sins, which he had sinned, doing evil before the lord, and walking in the way of jeroboam, and in his sin, wherewith he made israel to sin. but the rest of the acts of zambri, and of his conspiracy and tyranny, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? then were the people of israel divided into two parts: one half of the people followed thebni the son of gineth, to make him king: and one half followed amri. but the people that were with amri, prevailed over the people that followed thebni the son of gineth: and thebni died, and amri reigned. in the one and thirtieth year of asa king of juda, amri reigned over israel twelve years: in thersa he reigned six years. and he bought the hill of samaria of semer for two talents of silver: and he built upon it, and he called the city which he built samaria, after the name of semer the owner of the hill. and amri did evil in the sight of the lord, and acted wickedly above all that were before him. and he walked in all the way of jeroboam the son of nabat, and in his sins wherewith he made israel to sin: to provoke the lord the god of israel to anger with their vanities. now the rest of the acts of amri, and the battles he fought, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel?

and d amri slept with his fathers, and was buried in samaria, and achab his son reigned in his stead. now achab the son of amri reigned over israel in the eight and thirtieth year of asa king of juda. and achab the son of amri reigned over israel in samaria two and twenty years. and achab the son of amri did evil in the sight of the lord above all that were before him. nor was it enough for him to walk in the sins of jeroboam the son of nabat: but he also took to wife jezebel daughter of ethbaal king of the sidonians. and he went, and served baal, and adored him. and he set up an altar for baal in the temple of baal, which he had built in samaria, and he planted a grove: and achab did more to provoke the lord the god of israel, than all the kings of israel that were before him. in his days hiel of bethel built jericho: in abiram his firstborn he laid its foundations: and in his youngest son segub he set up the gates thereof: according to the word of the lord, which he spoke in the hand of josue the son of nun.

and elias the thesbite of the inhabitants of galaad said to achab: as the lord liveth the god of israel, in whose sight i stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to the words of my mouth. and the word of the lord came to him, saying: get thee hence, and go towards the east and hide thyself by the torrent of carith, which is over against the jordan, and there thou shalt drink of the torrent: and i have commanded the ravens to feed thee there. so he went, and did according to the word of the lord: and going, he dwelt by the torrent carith, which is over against the jordan. and the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening, and he drank of tile torrent. but after some time the torrent was dried up, for it had not rained upon the earth. then the word of the lord came to him, saying: arise, and go to sarephta of the sidonians, and dwell there: for i have commanded a widow woman there to feed thee. he arose, and went to sarephta. and when he was come to the gate of the city, he saw the widow woman gathering sticks, and he called her, and said to her: give me a little water in a vessel, that i may drink. and when she was going to fetch it he called after her, saying: bring me also, i beseech thee, a morsel of bread in thy hand. and she answered: as the lord thy god liveth, i have no bread, but only a handful of meal in a pot, and a little oil in a cruse: behold i am gathering two sticks that i may go in and dress it, for me and my son, that we may eat it, and die. and elias said to her: fear not, but go, and do as thou hast said: but first make for me of the same meal a little hearth cake, and bring it to me: and after make for thyself and thy son. for thus saith the lord the god of israel: the pot of meal shall not waste, nor the cruse of oil be diminished, until the day wherein the lord will give rain upon the face of the earth. she went and did according to the word of elias: and he ate, and she, and her house: and from that day the pot of meal wasted not, and the cruse of oil was not diminished, according to the word of the lord, which he spoke in the hand of elias. and it came to pass after this that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick, and the sickness was very grievous, so that there was no breath left in him. and she said to elias: what have i to do with thee, thou man of god? art thou come to me that my iniquities should be remembered, and that thou shouldst kill my son? and elias said to her: give me thy son. and he took him out of her bosom, and carried him into the upper chamber where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed. and he cried to the lord, and said: o lord my god, hast thou afflicted also the widow, with whom i am after a so maintained, so as to kill her son? and he stretched, and measured himself upon the child three times, and cried to the lord, and said: O lord my god, let the soul of this child, i beseech thee, return into his body. and the lord heard the voice of elias: and the soul of the child returned into him, and he revived. and elias took the child, and brought him down from the upper chamber to the house below, and delivered him to his mother, and said to her: behold thy son liveth. and the woman said to elias: now, by this i know that thou art a man of god, and the word of the lord in thy mouth is true.

after many days the word of the lord came to elias, in the third year, saying: go and shew thyself to achab, that i may give rain upon the face of the earth. and elias went to shew himself to achab, and there was a grievous famine in samaria. and achab called abdias the governor of his house: now abdias feared the lord very much. for when jezebel killed the prophets of the lord, he took a hundred prophets and hid them by fifty and fifty in caves, and fed them with bread and water. and achab said to abdias: go into the land unto all fountains of waters, and into all valleys, to see if we can find grass, and save the horses and mules, that the beasts may not utterly perish. and they divided the countries between them, that they might go round about them: achab went one way, and abdias another way by himself. and as abdias was in the way, elias met him: and he knew him, and fell on his face, and said: art thou my lord elias? and he answered: i am. go, and tell thy master: elias is here. and he said: what have i sinned, that thou wouldst deliver me thy servant into the hand of achab, that he should kill me? as the lord thy god liveth, there is no nation or kingdom, whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee: and when all answered: he is not here: he took an oath of every kingdom and nation, because thou wast not found. and now thou sayest to me: go, and tell thy master: elias is here. and when i am gone from thee, the spirit of the lord will carry thee into a place that i know not: and i shall go in and tell achab, and he not finding thee, will kill me: but thy servant feareth the lord from his infancy. hath it not been told thee, my lord, what i did when jezebel killed the prophets of the lord, how i hid a hundred men of the prophets of the lord, by fifty and fifty in caves, and fed them with bread and water? and now thou sayest: go, and tell thy master: elias is here: that he may kill

me. and elias said: as the lord of hosts liveth, before whose face i stand, this day i will shew myself unto him. abdias therefore went to meet achab, and told him: and achab came to meet elias. and when he had seen him, he said: art thou he that troublest israel? and he said: i have not troubled israel, but thou and thy father's house, who have forsaken the commandments of the lord, and have followed baalim. nevertheless send now, and gather unto me all israel, unto mount carmel, and the prophets of baal four hundred and fifty, and the prophets of the groves four hundred, who eat at jezebel's table. achab sent to all the children of israel, and gathered together the prophets unto mount carmel. and elias coming to all the people, said: how long do you halt between two sides? if the lord be god, follow him: but if baal, then follow him. and the people did not answer him a word. and elias said again to the people: i only remain a prophet of the lord: but the prophets of baal are four hundred and fifty men. let two bullocks be given us, and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces and lay it upon wood, but put no fire under: and i will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under it. call ye on the names of your gods, and i will call on the name of my lord: and the god that shall answer by fire, let him be god. and all the people answering said: a very good proposal. then elias said to the prophets of baal: choose you one bullock and dress it first, because you are many: and call on the names of your gods, but put no fire under. and they took the bullock which he gave them, and dressed it: and they called on the name of baal from morning even till noon, saying: o baal, hear us. but there was no voice, nor any that answered: and they leaped over the altar that they had made. and when it was now noon, elias jested at them, saying: cry with a louder voice: for he is a god, and perhaps he is talking, or is in an inn, or on a journey, or perhaps he is asleep, and must be awaked. so they cried with a loud voice, and cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till they were all covered with blood. and after midday was past, and while they were prophesying, the time was come of offering sacrifice, and there was no voice heard, nor did any one answer, nor regard them as they prayed: elias said to all the people: come ye unto me. and the people coming near unto him, he repaired the altar of the lord, that was broken down: and he took twelve stones according to the number of the tribes of the sons of jacob, to whom the word of the lord came, saying: israel shall be thy name. and he built with the stones an altar to the name of the lord: and he made a trench for water, of the breadth of two furrows round about the altar. and he laid the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid it upon the wood. and he said: fill four buckets with water, and pour it upon the burnt offering, and upon the wood. and again he said: do the same the second time. and when they had done it the second time, he said: do the same also the third time. and they did so the third time. and the water run round about the altar, and the trench was filled with water. and when it was now time to offer the holocaust, elias the prophet came near and said: o lord god of abraham, and isaac, and israel, shew this day that thou art the god of israel, and i thy servant, and that according to thy commandment i have done all these things. hear me, o lord, hear me: that this people may learn, that thou art the lord god, and that thou hast turned their heart again. then the fire of the lord fell, and consumed the holocaust, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench. and when all the people saw this, they fell on their faces, and they said: the lord he is god, the lord he is god. and elias said to them: take the prophets of baal, and let not one of them escape. and when they had taken them, elias brought them down to the torrent cison, and killed them there. and elias said to achab: go up, eat, and drink: for there is a sound of abundance of rain. achab went up to eat and drink: and elias went up to the top of carmel, and casting himself down upon the earth put his face between his knees, and he said to his servant: go up, and look toward the sea. and he went up, and looked, and said: there is nothing. and again he said to him: return seven times. and at the seventh time, behold, a little cloud arose out of the sea like a man's foot. and he said: go up and say to achab: prepare thy chariot and go down, lest the rain prevent thee. and while he turned himself this way and that way, behold the heavens grew dark, with clouds, and wind, and there fell a great rain. and achab getting up went away to jezebel: and the hand of the lord was upon elias, and he girded up his loins and ran before achab, till he came to jezebel.

and achab told jezebel all that elias had done, and how he had slain all the prophets with the sword. and jezebel sent a messenger to elias, saying: such and such things may the gods do to me, and add still more, if by this hour to morrow i make not thy life as the life of one of them. then elias was afraid, and rising up he went whithersoever he had a mind: and he came to bersabee of juda, and left his servant there, and he went forward, one day's journey into the desert. and when he was there, and sat under a juniper tree, he requested for his soul that he might die, and said: it is enough for me, lord, take away my soul: for i am no better than my fathers. and he cast himself down, and slept in the shadow of the juniper tree: and behold an angel of the lord touched him, and said to him: arise and eat. he looked, and behold there was at his head a hearth cake, and a vessel of water: and he ate and drank, and he fell asleep again. and the angel of the lord came again the second time, and touched him, and said to him: arise, eat: for thou hast yet a great way to go. and he arose, and ate, and drank, and walked in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights, unto the mount of god, horeb. and when he was come thither, he abode in a cave: and behold the word of the lord came unto him, and he said to him: what dost thou here, elias? and he answered: with zeal have i been zealous for the lord god of hosts: for the children of israel have forsaken thy covenant: they have thrown down thy altars, they have slain thy prophets with the sword, and i alone am left, and they seek my life to take it away. and he said to him: go forth, and stand upon the mount before the lord: and behold the lord passeth, and a great and strong wind before the lord over throwing the mountains, and breaking the rocks in pieces: the lord is not in the wind, and after the wind an earthquake: the lord is not in the earthquake. and after the earthquake a fire: the lord is not in the fire, and after the fire a whistling of a gentle air. and when elias heard it, he covered his face with his mantle, and coming forth stood in the entering in of the cave, and behold a voice unto him, saying: what dost thou here, elias? and he answered: with zeal have i been zealous for the lord god of hosts: because the children of israel have forsaken thy covenant: they have destroyed thy altars, they have slain thy prophets with the sword, and i alone am left, and they seek my life to take it away. and the lord said to him: go, and return on thy way through the desert to damascus: and when thou art come thither, thou shalt anoint hazael to be king over syria. and thou shalt anoint jehu the son of namsi to be king over israel: and eliseus the son of saphat, of abelmeula, thou shalt anoint to be prophet in thy room. and it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall escape the sword of hazael, shall be slain by jehu: and whosoever shall escape the sword of jehu, shall be slain by eliseus. and i will leave me seven thousand men in israel, whose knees have not been bowed before baal, and every mouth that hath not worshipped him kissing the hands. and elias departing from thence, found eliseus the son of saphat, ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen: and he was one of them that were ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen: and when elias came up to him, he cast his mantle upon him. and he forthwith left the oxen and ran after elias, and said: let me, i pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and then i will follow thee. and he said to him: go, and return back: for that which was my part, i have done to thee. and returning back from him, he took a yoke of oxen, and killed them, and boiled the flesh with the plough of the oxen, and gave to the people, and they ate: and rising up he went away, and followed elias, and ministered to him.

and benadad, king of syria, gathered together all his host, and there were two and thirty kings with him, and horses, and chariots: and going up, he fought against samaria, and besieged it. and, sending messengers to achab king of israel into the city, he said: thus saith benadad: thy silver, and thy gold is mine: and thy wives, and thy goodliest children are mine. and the king of israel answered: according to thy word, my lord o king, i am thine, and all that i have. and the messengers came again, and said: thus saith benadad, who sent us unto thee: thy silver, and thy gold, and thy wives, and thy children thou shalt deliver up to me. to morrow therefore at this same hour i will send my servants to thee, and they shall search thy house, and the houses of thy servants: and all that pleaseth them, they shall put in their hands, and take away. and the king of israel called all the ancients of the land, and said: mark, and see that he layeth snares for us. for he sent to me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver and gold: and i said not nay. and all the ancients, and all the people said to him: hearken not to him, nor consent to him. wherefore he answered the messengers of benadad: tell my lord the king: all that thou didst send for to me thy servant at first, i will do: but this thing i cannot do. and the messengers returning brought him word. and he sent again and said: such and such things may the gods do to me, and more may they add, if the dust of samaria shall suffice for handfuls for all the people that follow me. and the king of israel answering, said: tell him: let not the girded boast himself as the ungirded. and it came to pass, when benadad heard this word, that he and the kings were drinking in pavilions, and he said to his servants: beset the city. and they beset it. and behold a prophet coming to achab king of israel, said to him: thus saith the lord: hast thou seen all this exceeding great multitude, behold i will deliver them into thy hand this day: that thou mayest know that i am the lord. and achab said: by whom? and he said to him: thus saith the lord: by the servants of the princes of the provinces. and he said: who shall begin to fight? and he said: thou. so he mustered the servants of the princes of the provinces, and he found the number of two hundred and thirty-two: and he mustered after them the people, all the children of israel, seven thousand: and they went out at noon. but benadad was drinking himself drunk in his pavilion, and the two and thirty kings with him, who were come to help him. and the servants of the princes of the provinces went out first. and benadad sent. and they told him, saying: there are men come out of samaria. and he said: whether they come for peace, take them alive: or whether they come to fight, take them alive. so the servants of the princes of the provinces went out, and the rest of the army followed: and every one slew the man that came against him: and the syrians fled, and israel pursued after them. and benadad king of syria fled away on horseback with his horsemen. but the king of israel going out overthrew the horses and chariots, and slew the syrians with a great slaughter. (and a prophet coming to the king of israel, said to him: go, and strengthen thyself, and know, and see what thou dost: for the next year the king of syria will come up against thee.) but the servants of the king of syria said to him: their gods are gods of the hills, therefore they have overcome us: but it is better that we should fight against them in the plains, and we shall overcome them. do thou therefore this thing: remove all the kings from thy army, and put captains in their stead: and make up the number of soldiers that have been slain of thine, and horses according to the former horses, and chariots according to the chariots which thou hadst before: and we will fight against them in the plains, and thou shalt see that we shall overcome them. he believed their counsel and did so. wherefore at the return of the year, p benadad mustered the syrians, ancient up to aphec, to fight against israel. and the children of israel were mustered, and taking victuals

went out on the other side, and camped over against them, like two little hocks of goats: but the syrians filled the land. (and a man of god coming, said to the king of israel: thus saith the lord: because the syrians have said: the lord is god of the hills, but is not god of the valleys: i will deliver all this great multitude into thy hand, and you shall know that i am the lord.) and both sides set their armies in array one against the other seven days, and on the seventh day the battle was fought: and the children of israel slew of the syrians a hundred thousand footmen in one day. and they that remained fled to aphec, into the city: and the wall fell upon seven and twenty thousand men, that were left. and benadad fleeing went into the city, into a chamber that was within a chamber. and his servants said to him: behold, we have heard that the kings of the house of israel are merciful: so let us put sackcloth on our loins, and ropes on our heads, and go out to the king of israel: perhaps he will save our lives. so they girded sackcloth on their loins, and put ropes on their heads, and came to the king of israel, and said to him: thy servant benadad saith: i beseech thee let me have my life. and he said: if he be yet alive he is my brother. the men took this for a sign: and in haste caught the word out of his mouth, and said: thy brother benadad. and he said to them: go, and bring him to me. then benadad came out to him, and he lifted him up into his chariot. and he said to him: the cities which my father took from thy father, i will restore: and do thou make thee streets in damascus, as my father made in samaria, and having made a league i will depart from thee. so he made a league with him, and let him go. then a certain man of the sons of the prophets said to his companion in the word of the lord: strike me. but he would not strike. then he said to him: because thou wouldst not hearken to the word of the lord, behold then shalt depart from me, and a lion shall slay thee. and when he was gone a little from him, a lion found him, and slew him. then he found another man, and said to him: strike me. and he struck him, and wounded him. so the prophet went, and met the king in the way, and disguised himself by sprinkling dust on his face and his eyes. and as the king passed by, he cried to the king, and said: thy servant went out to fight hand to hand: and when a certain man was run away, one brought him to me, and said: keep this man: and if he shall slip away, thy life shall be for his life, or thou shalt pay a talent of silver. and whilst i in a hurry turned this way and that, on a sudden he was not to be seen. and the king of israel said to him: this is thy judgment, which thyself hast decreed. but he forthwith wiped off the dust from his face, and the king of israel knew him, that he was one of the prophets. and he said to him: thus saith the lord: because thou hast let go out of thy hand a mall worthy of death, thy life shall be for his life, and thy people for his people. and the king of israel returned to his house, slighting to hear, and raging came into samaria.

and after these things, naboth the jezhrahelite, who was in jezhrahel, had at that time a vineyard near the palace of achab king of samaria. and achab spoke to naboth, saying: give me thy vineyard, that i may make me a garden of herbs, because it is nigh, and adjoining to my house, and i will give thee for it a better vineyard: or if thou think it more convenient for thee, i will give thee the worth of it in money. naboth answered him: the lord be merciful to me, and not let me give thee the inheritance of my fathers. and achab came into his house angry and fretting, because of the word that naboth the jezhrahelite had spoken to him, saying: i will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers. and casting himself upon his bed, he turned away his face to the wall, and would eat no bread. and jezebel his wife went in to him, and said to him: what is the matter that thy soul is so grieved? and why eatest thou no bread? and he answered her: i spoke to naboth the jezhrahelite, and said to him: give me thy vineyard, and take money for it: or if it please thee, i will give thee a better vineyard for it. and he said: i will not give thee my vineyard. then jezebel his wife said to him: thou art of great authority indeed, and governest well the kingdom of israel. arise, and eat bread, and be of good cheer, i will give thee the vineyard of naboth the jezhrahelite. so she wrote letter's in achab's name, and sealed them with his ring, and sent them to the ancients, and the chief men that were in his city, and that dwelt with naboth. and this was the tenor of the letters: proclaim a fast, and make naboth sit among the chief of the people, and suborn two men, sons of belial against him, and let them bear false witness: that he hath blasphemed god and the king: and then carry him out, and stone him, and so let him die. and the men of his city, the ancients and nobles, that dwelt with him in the city, did as jezebel had commanded them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent to them: they proclaimed a fast, and made naboth sit among the chief of the people. and bringing two men, sons of the devil, they made them sit against him: and they, like men of the devil, bore witness against him before the people, saying: naboth hath blasphemed god and the king: wherefore they brought him forth without the city, and stoned him to death. and they sent to jezebel, saying: naboth is stoned, and is dead. and it came to pass when jezebel heard that naboth was stoned, and dead, that she said to achab: arise and take possession of the vineyard of naboth the jezhrahelite, who would not agree with thee, and give it thee for money: for naboth is not alive, but dead. and when achab heard this, to wit, that naboth was dead, he arose, and went down to the vineyard of naboth the jezhrahelite, to take possession of it. and the word of the lord came to elias the thesbite, saying: arise, and go down to meet achab king of israel, who is in samaria: behold he is going down to the vineyard of naboth, to take possession of it: and thou shalt speak to him, saying: thus saith the lord: thou hast slain, moreover also thou hast taken possession. and after these words thou shalt add: thus saith the lord: in this place, wherein the dogs have licked the blood of naboth, they shall lick thy blood also. and achab said to elias: hast thou found me thy enemy? he said: i have found thee, because thou art sold, to do evil in the sight of the lord. behold i will bring evil upon thee, and i will cut down thy posterity, and i will kill of achab him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the last in israel. and i will make thy house like the t house of jeroboam the son of nabat, and like the house of baasa the son of ahias: for what thou hast done, to provoke me to anger, and for making israel to sin. and of jezebel also the lord spoke, saying: the dogs shall eat jezebel in the field of jezebel. if achab die in the city, the dogs shall eat him: but if he die in the field, the birds of the air shall eat him. now there was not such another as achab, who was sold to do evil in the sight of the lord: for his wife jezebel set him on, and he became abominable, inasmuch that he followed the idols which the amorrites had made, whom the lord destroyed before the face of the children of israel. and when achab had heard these words, he rent his garments, and put haircloth upon his flesh, and fasted and slept in sackcloth, and walked with his head cast down. and the word of the lord came to elias the thes-bite, saying: hast thou not seen achab humbled before me? therefore, because he hath humbled himself for my sake, i will not bring the evil in his days, but in his son's days will i bring the evil upon his house.

and there passed three years without war between syria and israel. and in the third year, josaphat king of juda came down to the king of israel. (and the king of israel said to his servants: know ye not-that ramoth galaad is ours, and we neglect to take it out of the hand of the king of syria?) and he said to josaphat: wilt thou come with me to battle to ramoth galaad? and josaphat said to the king of israel: as i am, so art thou: my people and thy people are one: and my horsemen, thy horsemen. and josaphat said to the king of israel: inquire, i beseech thee, this day, the word of the lord. then the king of israel assembled the prophets, about four hundred men, and he said to them: shall i go to ramoth galaad to fight, or shall i forbear? they answered: go up, and the lord will deliver it into the hand of the king. and josaphat said: is there not here some prophet of the lord, that we may inquire by him? and the king of israel said to josaphat: there is one man left, by whom we may inquire of the lord: micheas the son of jemla; but i hate him, for he doth not prophesy good to me, but evil. and josaphat said: speak not so, o king. then the king of israel called an eunuch, and said to him: make haste, and bring hither micheas the son of jemla. then the king of israel, and josaphat king of juda, sat each on his throne clothed with royal robes, in a court by the entrance of the gate of samaria, and all the prophets prophesied before them. and sedecias the son of chanaana made himself horns of iron, and said: thus saith the lord: with these shalt thou push syria, till thou destroy it. and all the prophets prophesied in like manner, saying: go up to ramoth galaad, and prosper, for the lord will deliver it into the king's hands. and the messenger, that went to call micheas, spoke to him, saying: behold the words of the prophets with one month declare good things to the king: let thy word therefore be like to theirs, and speak that which is good. but micheas said to him: as the lord liveth, whatsoever the lord shall say to me, that will i speak. so he came to the king, and the king said to him: micheas, shall we go to ramoth galaad to battle, or shall we forbear? he answered him: go up, and prosper, and the lord shall deliver it into the king's hands. but the king said to him: i adjure thee again and again, that thou tell me nothing but that which is true in the name of the lord. and he said: i saw all israel scattered upon the hills, like sheep that have no shepherd: and the lord said: these have no master: let every man of them return to his house in peace. (then the king of israel said to josaphat: did i not tell thee, that he prophesieth no good to me, but always evil?) and he added and said: hear thou therefore the word of the lord: i saw the lord sitting on his throne, and all the army of heaven standing by him on the right hand and on the left: and the lord said: who shall deceive achab king of israel, that he may go up, and fall at ramoth galaad? and one spoke words of this manner, and another otherwise. and there came forth a spirit, and stood before the lord, and said: i will deceive him. and the lord said to him: by what means? and he said: i will go forth, and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. and the lord said: thou shalt deceive him, and shalt prevail: a go forth, and do so. now therefore behold the lord hath given a lying spirit in the mouth of all thy prophets that are here, and the lord hath spoken evil against thee. and sedecias the son of chanaana came, and struck micheas on the cheek, and said: hath then the spirit of the lord left me, and spoken to thee? and micheas said: thou shalt see in the day when thou shalt go into a chamber within a chamber to hide thyself. and the king of israel said: take micheas, and let him abide with ammon the governor of the city, and with joas the son of amalech. and tell them: thus saith the king: put this man in prison, and feed him with bread of affliction, and water of distress, till i return in peace. and micheas said: if thou return in peace, the lord hath not spoken by me. and he said: hear, all ye people. so the king of israel, and josaphat king of juda went up to ramoth galaad. and the king of israel said to josaphat: take armour, and go into the battle, and put on thy own garments. but the king of israel changed his dress, and went into the battle. and the king of syria had commanded the two and thirty captains of the chariots, saying: you shall not fight against any, small or great, but against the king of israel only. so when the captains of the chariots saw josaphat, they suspected that he was the king of israel, and making a violent assault they fought against him: and josaphat cried out. and the captains of the chariots perceived that he was not the king of israel and they turned away from him. and a certain man bent his bow, shooting at a venture, and chanced to strike the king of israel between the lungs and the stomach. but he said to the driver of his chariot: turn thy hand, and carry me out of the army, for i am grievously wounded. and the battle was fought that day, and the king of israel stood in his chariot against the syrians, and he died in the evening: and the blood ran out of the wound into the midst of the chariot. and the herald proclaimed through all the army before the sun set, saying: let every man return to his own city, and to his own country. and the king died, b and was carried into samaria: and they buried the king in samaria. and they washed his chariot in the pool of samaria, and the dogs licked up his blood, and they washed the reins, according to the word of the lord which he had spoken. but the rest of the acts of achab, and all that he did, and the house of ivory that he made, and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? so achab slept with his fathers, and ochozias his son reigned in his stead. but josaphat the son of asa began to reign over juda in the fourth year of achab king of israel. he was five and thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned five and twenty years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was azuba the daughter of salai. and he walked in all the way of asa his father, and he declined not from it: and he did that which was right in the sight of the lord. nevertheless he took not away the high places: for as set the people offered sacrifices and burnt incense in the high places. and josaphat had peace with the king of israel. but the rest of the acts of josaphat, and his works which he did, and his bat- ties, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and the remnant also of the effeminate, who remained in the days of asa his father, he took out of the land. and there was then no king appointed in edom. but king josaphat made navies on the sea, to sail into ophir for gold: but they could not go, for the ships were broken in asiongaber. then ochozias the son of achab said to josaphat: let my servants go with thy servants in the ships. and josaphat would not. and josaphat slept with his fathers. and was buried with them in the city of david his father: and joram his son reigned in his stead. and ochozias the son of achab began to reign over israel in samaria, in the seventeenth year of josaphat king of juda, and he reigned over israel two years, and he did evil in the sight of the lord, and walked in the way of his father and his mother, and in the way of jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin. he served also baal, and worshipped him, and provoked the lord the god of israel, according to all that his father had done.

and moab rebelled against israel, after the death of achab. and ochozias fell through the lattices of his upper chamber which he had in samaria, and was sick: and he sent messengers, saying to them: go, consult beelzebub, the god of accaron, whether i shall recover of this my illness. and an angel of the lord spoke to elias the thesbite, saying: arise, and go up to meet the messengers of the king of samaria, and say to them: is there not a god in israel, that ye go to consult beelzebub the god of accaron? wherefore thus saith the lord: from the bed, on which thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down, but thou shalt surely die. and elias went away, and the messengers turned back to ochozias. and he said to them: why are you come back? but they answered him: a man met us, and said to us: go, and return to the king, that sent you, and you shall say to him: thus saith the lord: is it because there was no god in israel that thou sendest to beelzebub the god of accaron? therefore thou shalt not come down from the bed, on which thou art gone up, but then shalt surely die. and he said to them: what manner of man was he who met you, and spoke these words? but they said: a hairy man with a girdle of leather about his loins. and he said: it is elias the thesbite. and he sent to him a captain of fifty, and the fifty men that were under him. and he went up to him, and as he was sitting on the top of a hill, said to him: man of god, the king hath commanded that thou come down. and elias answering, said to the captain of fifty: if i be a man of god, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee, and thy fifty. and there came down fire from heaven, and consumed him, and the fifty that were with him. and again he sent to him another captain of fifty men, and his fifty with him. and he said to him: man of god, thus saith the king: make haste and come down. elias answering, said: if i be a man of god, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. and fire came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty. again he sent a third captain of fifty men, and the fifty that were with him. and when he was come, he fell upon his knees, before elias, and besought him and said: man of god, despise not my life, and the lives of thy servants that are with me. behold fire came down from heaven, and consumed the two first captains of fifty men, and the fifties that were with them: but now i beseech thee to spare my life. and the angel of the lord spoke to elias, saying: go down with him, fear not. he arose therefore, and went down with him to the king, and said to him: thus saith the lord: because thou hast sent messengers to consult beelzebub the god of accaron, as though there were not a god in israel, of whom thou mightest inquire the word; therefore from the bed on which thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down, but thou shalt surely die. so he died according to the word of the lord which elias spoke, and joram his brother reigned in his stead, in the second year of joram the son of josaphat king of juda: because he had no son. but the rest of the acts of ochozias which he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel?

and it came to pass, when the lord would take up elias into heaven by a whirlwind, that elias and eliseus were going from galgal. and elias said to eliseus: stay thou here, because the lord hath sent me as far as bethel. and eliseus said to him: as the lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, i will not leave thee. and when they were come down to bethel, the sons of the prophets, that were at bethel, came forth to eliseus, and said to him: dost thou know that this day the lord will take away thy master from thee? and he answered: i also know it: hold your peace. and elias said to eliseus: stay here because the lord hath sent me to jericho. and he said: as the lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, i will not leave thee. and when they were come to jericho, the sons of the prophets that were at jericho, came to eliseus, and said to him: dost thou know that this day the lord will take away thy master from thee? and he said: i also know it: hold your peace. and elias said to him: stay here, because the lord hath sent me as far as the jordan. and he said: as the lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, i will not leave thee; and they two went on together, and fifty men of the sons of the prophets followed them, and stood in sight at a distance: but they two stood by the jordan. and elias took his mantle and folded it together, and struck the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, and they both passed over on dry ground. and when they were gone over, elias said to eliseus: ask what thou wilt have me to do for thee, before i be taken away from thee. and eliseus said: i beseech thee that in me may be thy double spirit. and he answered: thou hast asked a hard thing: nevertheless if thou see me when i am taken from thee, thou shalt have what thou hast asked: but if thou see me not, thou shalt not have it. and as they went on, walking and talking together, behold a fiery chariot, and fiery horses parted them both asunder: and elias went up by a whirlwind into heaven. and eliseus saw him, and cried: my father, my father, the chariot of israel, and the driver thereof. and he saw him no more: and he took hold of his own garments, and rent them in two pieces. and he took up the mantle of elias, that fell from him: and going back, he stood upon the bank of the jordan, and he struck the waters with the mantle of elias, that had fallen from him, and they were not divided. and he said: where is now the god of elias? and he struck the waters, and they were divided, hither and thither, and eliseus passed over. and the sons of the prophets at jericho, who were over against him, seeing it said: the spirit of elias hath rested upon eliseus. and coming to meet him, they worshipped him, falling to the ground, and they said to him: behold, there are with thy servants fifty strong men, that can go, and seek thy master, lest perhaps the spirit of the lord hath taken him up and cast him upon some mountain or into some valley. and he said: do not send. but they pressed him, till he consented, and said: send. and they sent fifty men: and they sought three days but found him not. and they came back to him: for he abode at jericho, and he said to them: did i not say to you: do not send? and the men of the city said to eliseus: behold the situation of this city is very good, as thou, my lord, seest: but the waters are very bad, and the ground barren. and he said: bring me a new vessel, and put salt into it. and when they had brought it, he went out to the spring of the waters, and cast the salt into it, and said: thus saith the lord: i have healed these waters, and there shall be no more in them death or barrenness. and the waters were healed unto this day, according to the word of eliseus, which he spoke. and he went up from thence to bethel: and as he was going up by the way, little boys came out of the city and mocked him, saying: go up, thou bald head; go up, thou bald head. and looking back, he saw them, and cursed them in the name of the lord: and there came forth two bears out of the forest, and tore of them two and forty boys. and from thence he went to mount carmel, and from thence he returned to samaria.

and joram the son of achab reigned over israel in samaria in the eighteenth year of m josaphat king of juda. and he reigned twelve years. and he did evil before the lord, but not like his father and his mother: for he took away the statues of baal, which his father had made. nevertheless he stuck to the sins of jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin, nor did he depart from them. now mesa, king of moab, nourished many sheep, and he paid to the king of israel a hundred thousand lambs, and a hundred thousand rams with their fleeces. and when achab was dead, he broke the league which he had made with the king of israel. and king joram went out that day from samaria, and mustered all israel. and he sent to josaphat king of juda, saying: the king of moab is revolted from me, come with me against him to battle. and he answered: i will come up: he that is mine, is thine: my people, thy people: and my horses, thy horses. and he said: which way shall we go up? but he answered: by the desert of edom. so the king of israel, and the king of juda, and the king of edom went, and they fetched a compass of seven days' journey, and there was no water for the army, and for the beasts, that followed them. and the king of israel said: alas, alas, alas, the lord hath gathered us three kings together, to deliver us into the hands of moab! and josaphat said: is there not here a prophet of the lord, that we may beseech the lord by him? and one of the servants of the king of israel answered: here is eliseus the son of saphat, who poured water on the hands of elias. and josaphat said: the word of the lord is with him. and the king of israel, and josaphat king of juda, and the king of edom went down to him. and eliseus said to the king of israel: what have i to do with thee? go to the prophets of thy father, and thy mother. and the king of israel said to him: why hath the lord gathered together these three kings, to deliver them into the hands of moab? and eliseus said to him: as the lord of hosts liveth, in whose sight i stand, if i did not reverence the face of josaphat king of juda, i would not have hearkened to thee, nor looked on thee. but now bring me hither a minstrel. and when the minstrel played, the hand of the lord came upon him, and he said: thus saith the lord: make the channel of this torrent full of ditches. for thus saith the lord: you shall not see wind, nor rain: and yet this channel shall be filled with waters, and you shall drink, you and your families, and your beasts. and this is a small thing in the sight of the lord: moreover he will deliver also moab into your hands. and you shall destroy every fenced city, and every choice city, and shall cut down every fruitful tree, and shall stop up all the springs of waters, and every goodly field you shall cover with stones. and it came to pass in the morning, when the sacrifices used to be offered, that behold, water came by the way of edom, and the country was filled with water. and all the moabites hearing that the kings were come up to fight against them, gathered together all that were girded with a belt upon them, and stood in the borders. and they rose early in the morning, and the sun being now up, and shining upon the waters, the moabites saw the waters over against them red, like blood, and they said: it is the blood of the sword: the kings have fought among themselves, and they have killed one another: go now, moab, to the spoils. and they went into the camp of israel: but israel rising up defeated moab, who fled before them. and they being conquerors, went and smote moab. and they destroyed the cities: and they filled every goodly field, every man casting his stone: and they stopt up all the springs of waters: and cut down all the trees that bore fruit, so that brick walls only remained: and the city was beset by the slingers, and a great part thereof destroyed. and when the king of moab saw this, to wit, that the enemies had prevailed, he took with him seven hundred men that drew the sword, to break in upon the king of edom: but they could not. then he took his eldest son that should have reigned in his stead, and offered him for a burnt offering upon the wall: and there was great indignation in israel, and presently they departed from him, and returned into their own country.

now a certain woman of the wives of the prophets cried to eliseus, saying: thy servant my husband is dead, and thou knowest that thy servant was one that feared god, and behold the creditor is come to take away my two sons to serve him. and eliseus said to her: what wilt thou have me to do for thee? tell me, what hast thou in thy house? and she answered: i thy handmaid have nothing in my house but a little oil, to anoint me. and he said to her: go, borrow of all thy neighbours empty vessels not a few, and go in, and shut thy door, when thou art within, and thy sons: and pour out thereof into all those vessels: and when they are full take them away. so the woman went, and shut the door upon her, and upon her sons: they brought her the vessels, and she poured in. and when the vessels were full, she said to her son: bring me yet a vessel. and he answered: i have no more. and the oil stood. and she came, and told the man of god. and he said: go, sell the oil, and pay thy creditor: and thou and thy sons live of the rest. and there was a day when eliseus passed by sunam: now there was a great woman there, who detained him to eat bread; and as he passed often that way, he turned into her house to eat bread. and she said to her husband: i perceive that this is a holy man of god, who often passeth by us. let us therefore make him a little chamber, and put a little bed in it for him, and a table, and a stool, and a candlestick, that when he cometh to us, he may abide there. now there was a certain day when he came and turned in to the chamber, and rested there. and he said to giezi his servant call this sunamitess. and when he had called her, and she stood before him, he said to his servant: say to her behold thou hast diligently served us in all things, what wilt thou have me to de for thee? hast thou any business, and wilt thou that i speak to the king, or to the general of the army? and she answered: i dwell in the midst of my own people. and he said : what will she then that i do for her? and giezi said: do not ask, for she hath no son, and her husband is old. then he bid him call her: and when she was called, and stood before the door. he said to her: at this time, and this same hour, if life accompany, thou shalt have a son in thy womb. but she answered: do not, i beseech thee, my lord, thou man of god, do not lie to thy handmaid. and the woman conceived, and brought forth a son in the time, and at the same hour, that eliseus had said. and the child grew. and on a certain day, when he went out to his father to the reapers, he said to his father: my head acheth, my head acheth. but he said to his servant: take him, and carry him to his mother. and when he had taken him, and brought him to his mother, she set him on her knees until noon, and then he died. and she went up and laid him upon the bed of the man of god, and shut the door: and going out, she called her husband, and said: send with me, i beseech thee, one of thy servants, and an ass that i may run to the man of god, and come again. and he said to her: why dost thou go to him? to day is neither new moon nor sabbath. she answered: i will go. and she saddled an ass, and commanded her servant: drive, and make haste, make no stay in going. and do that which i bid thee. so she went forward, and came to the man of god to mount carmel: and when the mall of god saw her coming towards, he said to giezi his servant : behold that sunamitess. go therefore to meet her, and say to her: is all well with thee, and with thy husband, and with thy son? and she answered: well. and when she came to the man of god to the mount, she caught hold on his feet: and giezi came to remove her. and the man of god said: let her alone for her soul is in anguish, and the lord hath hid it from me, and hath not told me. and she said to him: did i ask a son of my lord? did i not say to thee: do not deceive me? then he said to giezi: gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thy hand, and go. if any man meet thee, salute him not: and if any man salute thee, answer him not: and lay my staff upon the face of the child. but the mother of the child said: as the lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, i will not leave thee. he arose, therefore, and followed her. but giezi was gone before them, and laid the staff upon the face of the child, and there was no voice nor sense: and he returned to meet him, and told him, saying: the child is not risen. eliseus therefore went into the house, and behold the child lay dead on his bed. and going in he shut the door upon him, and upon the child, and prayed to the lord. and he went up, and lay upon the child: and he put his mouth upon his mouth, and his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands: and he bowed himself upon him, and the child's flesh grew warm. then he returned and walked in the house, once to and fro: and he went up, and lay upon him: and the child gaped seven times, and opened his eyes. and he called giezi, and said to him: call this sunamitess. and she being called, went in to him: and he said: take up thy son. she came and fell at his feet, and worshipped upon the ground: and took up her son, and went out. and eliseus returned to galgal, and there was a famine in the land, and the sons of the prophets dwelt before him. and he said to one of his servants: set on the great pot, and boil pottage for the sons of the prophets. and one went out into the field to gather wild herbs: and he found something like a wild vine, and gathered of it wild gourds of the field, and filled his mantle, and coming back he shred them into the pot of pottage, for he knew not what it was. and they poured it out for their companions to eat: and when they had tasted of the pottage, they cried out, saying: death is in the pot, o man of god. and they could not eat thereof. but he said: bring some meal. and when they had brought it, he cast it into the pot, and said: pour out for the people, that they may eat. and there was now no bitterness in the pot. and a certain man came from baalsalisa bringing to the man of god bread of the firstfruits, twenty leaves of barley, and new corn in his scrip. and he said: give to the people, that they may eat. and his servant answered him: how much is this, that i should set it before a hundred men? he said again: give to the people, that they may eat: for thus saith the lord: they shall eat, and there shall be left. so he fief it before them: and they ate, and there was left according to the word of the lord.

naaman, general of the army of the king of syria, was a great man with his master, and honourable: for by him the lord gave deliverance to syria: and he was a valiant man and rich, but a leper. now there had gone out robbers from syria, and had led away captive out of the land of israel a little maid, and she waited upon naaman's wife. and she said to her mistress: i wish my master had been with the prophet, that is in samaria: he would certainly have healed him of the leprosy which he hath. then naaman went in to his lord, and told him, saying: thus and thus said tile girl from the land of israel. and the king of syria sad to him: go, and i will send a letter to the king of israel. and he departed, and took with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand pieces of gold, and tell changes of raiment, and brought the letter to the king of israel, in these words: when thou shalt receive this letter, know that i have sent to thee naaman my servant, that thou mayest heal him of his leprosy. and when the king of israel had read the letter, he rent his garments, and said: am i god, to be able to kill and give life, that this man hath sent to me, to heal a man of his leprosy? mark, and see how he seeketh occasions against me. and when eliseus the man of god had heard this, to wit, that the king of israel had rent his garments, he sent to him, saying: why hast thou rent thy garments? let him come to me, and let him know that there is a prophet in israel. so naaman came with iris horses and chariots, and stood at the door of the house of eliseus: and eliseus sent a messenger to him, saying: go, and wash seven times in the jordan, and thy flesh shall recover health, and thee shalt be clean. naaman was angry and went away, saying: i thought he would hare come out to me, and standing would hare invoked the name of the lord his god, and touched with his hand the place of the leprosy, and healed me. are not the abana, and the pharphar, rivers of damascus, better than all the waters of israel, that i may wash in them, and be made clean? so as he turned, and was going away with indignation, his servants came to him, and said to him: father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, surely thou shouldst have done it: how much rather what he now hath said to thee: wash, and thou shalt be clean? then he went down, and washed in the jordan seven times: according to the word of the man of god, and his flesh was restored, like the flesh of a little child, and he was made clean. and returning to the man of god with all his train, he came, and stood before him, and said: in truth, i know there is no other god in all the earth, but only in israel: i beseech thee therefore take a blessing of thy servant. but he answered: as the lord liveth, before whom i stand, i will receive none. and when he pressed him, he still refused. and naaman said: as thou wilt: but i beseech thee, grant to me thy servant, to take from hence two mules' burden of earth: for thy servant will not henceforth offer holocaust, or victim, to other gods, but to the lord. but there is only this, for which thou shalt entreat the lord for thy servant, when my master goeth into the temple of remmon, to worship: and he leaneeth upon my hand, if i bow down in the temple of remmon, when he boweth down in the same place, that the lord pardon me thy servant for this thing. and he said to him: go in peace. so he departed from him in the springtime of the earth. but giezti the servant of the man of god said: my master hath spared naaman this syrian, in not receiving of him that which he brought: as the lord liveth, i will run after him, and take some thing of him: nd giezti followed after naaman: and when he saw him running after him, he leapt down from his chariot to meet him, and said: is all well? and he said: well: my master hath sent me to thee, saying: just now there are come to me from mount ephraim, two young men of the sons of the prophets: give them a talent of silver, and two changes of garments. and naaman said: it is better that thou take two talents. and he forced him, and bound two talents of silver in two bags, and two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants, and they carried them before him. and when he was come, and now it was the evening, he took them from their hands, and laid them up in the house, and sent the men away, and they departed. but he went in, and stood before his master. and eliseus said: whence comest thou, giezti? he answered: thy servant went no whither. but he said: was not my heart present, when the man turned back from his chariot to meet thee? so now thou hast received money, and received garments, to buy oliveyards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and menservants, and maidservants. but the leprosy of naaman shall also stick to thee, and to thy seed for ever. and he went out from him a leper as white as snow.

and the sons of the prophets said to eliseus: behold the place where we dwell with thee is too strait for us. let us go as far as the jordan and take out of the wood every man a piece of timber, that we may build us there a place to dwell in. and he said: go. and one of them said: but come thou also with thy servants. he answered: i will come. so he went with them. and when they were come to the jordan they cut down wood. and it happened, as one was felling some timber, that the head of the axe fell into the water: and he cried out, and said: alas, alas, alas, my lord, for this same was borrowed. and the man of god said: where did it fall? and he shewed him the place. then he cut off a piece of wood, and cast it in thither: and the iron swam. and he said: take it up. and he put out his hand and took it. and the king of syria warred against israel, and took counsel with his servants, saying: in such and such a place let us lay ambushes. and the man of god sent to the king of israel, saying: beware that thou pass not to such a place: for the syrians are there in ambush. and the king of israel sent to the place which the man of god had told him, and prevented him, and looked well to himself there not once nor twice. and the heart of the king of syria was troubled for this thing. and calling together his servants, he said: why do you not tell me who it is that betrays me to the king of israel? and one of his servants said: no one, my lord o king: but eliseus the prophet, that is in israel, telleth the king of israel all the words, that thou speakest in thy privy chamber. and he said to them: go, and see where he is: that i may send, and take him. and they told him, saying: behold he is in dothan. therefore he sent thither horses and chariots, and the strength of an army: and they came by night, and beset the city. and the servant of the man of god rising early, went out, and saw an army round about the city, and horses and chariots: and he told him, saying: alas, alas, alas, my lord, what shall we do? but he answered: fear not: for there are more with us than with them. and eliseus prayed, and said: lord, open his eyes, that he may see. and the lord opened the eyes of the servant, and he saw: and behold the mountain was full of horses, and chariots of fire round about eliseus. and the enemies came down to him, but eliseus prayed to the lord, saying: strike, i beseech thee, this people with blindness. and the lord struck them with blindness, according to the word of eliseus. and eliseus said to them: this is not the way, neither is this the city: follow me, and i will shew you the man whom you seek. so he led them into samaria.

and when they were come into samaria, eliseus said: lord, open the eyes of these men, that they may see. and the lord opened their eyes, and they saw themselves to be in the midst of samaria. and the king of israel said to eliseus, when he saw them: my father, shall i kill them? and he said: thou shalt not kill them: for thou didst not take them with thy sword, or thy bow, that thou mayst kill them: but set bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and go to their master. and a great provision of meats was set before them, and they ate and drank, and he let them go, and they went away to their master, and the robbers of syria came no more into the land of israel. and tit came to pass after these things, that benadad king of syria gathered together all his army, and went up, and besieged samaria. and there was a great famine in samaria: and so long did the siege continue, till the head of an ass was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of pigeon's dung, for five pieces of silver. and as the king of israel was passing by the wall, a certain woman cried out to him, saying: save me, my lord o king. and he said: if the lord doth not save thee, how can i save thee? out of the barn-floor, or out of the winepress? and the king said to her: what aileth thee? and she answered: this woman said to me: give thy son, that we may eat him to day, and we will eat my son to morrow. so we boiled my son, and ate him. and i said to her on the next day: give thy son that we may eat him. and she hath hid her son. when the king heard this, he rent his garments, and passed by upon the wall. and all the people saw the haircloth which he wore within next to his flesh. and the king said: may god do so and so to me, and may he add more, if the head of eliseus the son of saphat shall stand on him this day. but eliseus sat in his house, and the ancients sat with him. so he sent a man before: and before that messenger came, he said to the ancients: do you know that this son of a murderer hath sent to cut off my head? look then, when the messenger shall come, shut the door, and suffer him not to come in: for behold the sound of his master's feet is behind him. while he was yet speaking to them, the messenger appeared who was coming to him. and he said: behold, so great an evil is from the lord: what shall i look for more from the lord?

and eliseus said: hear ye the word of the lord: thus saith the lord: to morrow about this time a bushel of fine flour shall be sold for a stater, and two bushels of barley for a stater, in the gate of samaria. then one of the lords, upon whose hand the king leaned, answering the man of god, said: if the lord should make hood-gates in heaven, can that possibly be which thou sayest? and he said: thou shalt see it with thy eyes, but shalt not eat thereof. now there were four lepers, at the entering in of the gate: and they said one to another: what mean we to stay here till we die? if we will enter into the city, we shall die with the famine: and if we will remain here, we must also die: come, therefore, and let us run over to the camp of the syrians. if they spare us, we shall live: but if they

kill us, we shall but die. so they arose in the evening, to go to the syrian camp, and when they were come to the first part of the camp of the syrians, they found no man there. for the lord had made them hear, in the camp of syria, the noise of chariots, and of horses, and of a very great army, and they said one to another: behold the king of israel hath hired against us the kings of the hethites, and of the egyptians, and they are come upon us. wherefore they arose, and fled away in the dark, and left their tents, and their horses and asses in the camp, and fled, desiring to save their lives. so when these lepers were come to the beginning of the camp, they went into one tent, and ate and drank: and they took from thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went, and hid it: and they came again, and went into another tent, and carried from thence in like manner, and hid it. then they said one to another: we do not well: for this is a day of good tidings. if we hold our peace, and do not tell it till the morning, we shall be charged with a crime: come, let us go and tell it in the king's court. so they came to the gate of the city, and told them, saying: we went to the camp of the syrians, and we found no man there, but horses, and asses tied, and the tents standing. then the guards of the gate went, and told it within the king's palace. and he arose in the night and said to his servants: i tell you what the syrians have done to us: they know that we suffer great famine, and therefore they are gone out of the camp, and lie hid in the fields, saying: when they come out of the city we shall take them alive, and then we may get into the city. and one of his servants answered: let us take the five horses that are remaining in the city (because there are no more in the whole multitude of israel, for the rest are consumed,) and let us send and see. they brought therefore two horses, and the king sent into the camp of the syrians, saying: go, and see. and they went after them as far as the jordan: and behold all the way was full of garments, and vessels, which the syrians had cast away in their fright, and the messengers returned and told the king. and the people going out pillaged the camp of the syrians: and a bushel of fine flour was sold for a stater, and two bushels of barley for a stater, according to the word of the lord. and the king appointed that lord on whose hand he leaned, to stand at the gate: and the people trod upon him in the entrance of the gate; and he died, as the man of god had said, when the king came down to him. and it came to pass according to the word of the man of god, which he spoke to the king, when he said: two bushels of barley shall be for a stater, and a bushel of fine flour for a stater, at this very time to morrow in the gate of samaria. when that lord answered the man of god, and said: although the lord should make flood-gates in heaven, could this come to pass which thou sayest? and he said to him: thou shalt see with thy eyes, and shalt not eat thereof. and so it fell out to him as it was foretold, and the people trod upon him in the gate, and he died.

and eliseus spoke to the woman, whose son he had restored to life, saying: arise, and go thou and thy household, and sojourn wheresoever thou canst find: for the lord hath exiled a famine, and it shall come upon the land seven years. and she arose, and did according to the word of the man of god: and going with her household, she sojourned in the land of the philistines many days. and when the seven years were ended, the woman returned out of the land of the philistines, and she went forth to speak to the king for her house, and for her lands. and the king talked with giezi, the servant of the man of god, saying: tell me all the great things that eliseus hath done. and when he was telling the king how he had raised one dead to life, the woman appeared, whose son he had restored to life, crying to the king for her house, and her lands. and giezi said: my lord o king, this is the woman, and this is her son, whom eliseus raised to life. and the king asked the woman: and she told him. and the king appointed her an eunuch, saying: restore her all that is hers, and all the revenues of the lands, from the day that she left the land, to this present. eliseus also came to damascus, and benadad king of syria was sick: and they told him, saying: the man of god is come hither. and the king said to hazael: take with thee presents, and go to meet the man of god, and consult the lord by him, saying: can i recover of this my illness? and hazael went to meet him, taking with him presents, and all the good things of damascus, the burdens of forty camels. and when he stood before him, he said: thy son benadad the king of syria hath sent me to thee, saying: can i recover of this my illness? and eliseus said to him: go tell him: thou shalt recover: but the lord hath shewn me that he shall surely die. and he stood with him, and was troubled so far as to blush: and the man of god wept. and hazael said to him: why doth my lord weep? and he said: because i know the evil that thou wilt do to the children of israel. their strong cities then wilt burn with fire, and their young men thou wilt kill with the sword, and thou wilt dash their children, and rip up their pregnant women. and hazael said: but what am i thy servant a dog, that i should do this great thing? and eliseus said: the lord hath shewn me that thou shalt be king of syria. and when he was departed from eliseus, he came to his master, who said to him: what saith eliseus to thee? and he answered: he told me: thou shalt recover. and on the next day he took a blanket, and pouted water on it, and spread it upon his face: and he died, and hazael reigned in his stead. in the fifth year of joram son of achab king of israel, and of josaphat king of juda, reigned joram son of josaphat king of juda. he was two and thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years in jerusalem. and he walked in the ways of the kings of israel, as the house of achab had walked: for the daughter of achab was his wife: and he did that which was evil in the sight of the lord. but the lord would not destroy juda, for david his servant's sake, as he had promised him, to give him a light, and to his children always. in his days edom revolted, from being under juda, and made themselves a king. and joram came to seira, and all the chariots with him: and he arose in the night, and defeated the edomites that had surrounded him, and the captains of the chariots, but the people fled into their tents. so edom revolted from being under juda, unto this day. then lobna also revolted at the same time. but the rest of the acts of joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and joram slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of david, and ochozias his son reigned in iris stead. in the twelfth year of joram son of achab king of israel, reigned ochozias son of joram king of juda. ochozias was two and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in jerusalem: the name of his mother was athalia the daughter of amri king of israel. and he walked in the ways of the house of achab: and he did evil before the lord, as did the house of achab: for he was the son in law of the house of achab. he went also with joram son of achab, to fight against hazael king of syria in ramoth galaad, and the syrians wounded joram: and he went back to be healed, in jezrahel: because the syrians had wounded him in ramoth when he fought against hazael king of syria. and ochozias the son of joram king of juda, went down to visit joram the son of achab in jezrahel, because he was sick there.

and eliseus the prophet called one of the sons of the prophets, slid said to him: gird up thy loins, and take this little bottle of oil in thy hand, and go to ramoth galaad. and when thou art come thither, thou shalt see jehu the son of josaphat the son of namsi: and going in thou shalt make him rise up from amongst his brethren, and carry him into an inner chamber. then taking the little bottle of oil, thou shalt pour it on his head, and shalt say: thus saith the lord: i have anointed thee king over israel. and thou shalt open the door and flee, and shalt not stay there. so the young man, the servant of the prophet, went awry to ramoth galaad, and went in thither: and behold the captains of the army were sitting: and he said: i have a word to thee, o prince. and jehu said: unto whom of us all? and he said: to thee, o prince. and he arose, and went into the chamber: and he poured the oil upon his head, and said: thus saith the lord god of israel: i have anointed thee king over israel, the people of the lord. and thou shalt cut off the house of achab thy master, and i will revenge the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the lord at the hand of jezabel. and i will destroy all the house of achab, and i will cut off from achab him that pisseth against the well, and him that is shut up, and the meanest in israel. and i will make the house of achab like the house of jeroboam the son of nabat, and like the house of baasa the son of ahias. and the dogs shall eat jezabel in the field of jezrahel, and there shall be no one to bury her. and he opened the door and fled. then jehu went forth to the servants of his lord: and they said to him: are all things well? why came this mad man to thee? and he said to them: you know the man, and what he said. but they answered: it is false, but rather do thou tell us. and he said to them: thus and thus did he speak to me: and he said: thus saith the lord: i have anointed thee king over israel. then they made haste and taking every man his garment laid it under his feet, after the manner of a judgment seat, and they sounded the trumpet, and said: jehu is king. so jehu the son of josphat the son of namsi conspired against joram. now joram had besieged ramoth galaad, he and all israel fighting with hazael king of syria: and was returned to be healed in jezrahel of his wounds, for the syrians had wounded him, when he fought with hazael king of syria. and jehu said: if it please you, let no mall go forth or flee out of the city, lest he go, and tell in jezrahel. and he got up, and went into jezrahel: for joram was sick there, and ochozias king of juda was come down to visit joram. the watchmen therefore, that stood upon the tower of jezrahel, saw the troop of jehu coming, and said: i see a troop. and joram said: take a chariot, and send to meet them, and let him that goeth say: is all well? so there went one in a chariot to meet him, and said: thus saith the king: are all things peaceable? and jehu said: what hast thou to do with peace? go behind and follow me. and the watchman told, saying: the messenger came to them, but he returneth not. and he sent a second chariot of horses: and he came to them, and said: thus saith the king: is there peace? and jehu said: what hast thou to do with peace? pass, and follow me. and the watchman told, saying: he came even to them, but returneth not: and the driving is like the driving of jehu the son of namsi, for he drives furiously. and joram said: make ready the chariot, and they made ready his chariot, and joram king of israel, and ochozias king of juda went out, each in his chariot, and they went out to meet jehu, and met him in the field of naboth the jezrahelite. and when joram saw jehu, he said: is there peace, jehu? and he answered: what peace? so long as the fornications of jezebel thy mother, and her many sorceries are in their vigour. and joram turned his hand, and fleeing, said to ochozias: there is treachery, ochozias. but jehu bent his bow with his hand, and shot joram between the shoulders: and the arrow went out through his heart, and immediately he fell in his chariot. and jehu said to badacer his captain: take him, and cast him into the field of naboth the jezrahelite: for i remember when i and thou sitting in a chariot followed achab this man's father, that the lord laid this burden upon him, saying: if i do not requite thee in this field, saith the lord, for the blood of naboth, and for the blood of his children, which i saw yesterday, saith the lord. so now take him, and cast him into the field, according to the word of the lord. but ochozias king of juda seeing this, fled by the way of the garden house: and jehu pursued him, and said: strike him also in his chariot. and they struck him in the going up to gaver, which is by jebblaam: and he fled into mageddo, and died there. and his servants laid him upon his chariot, and carried him to jerusalem: and they buried him in his sepulchre with his fathers in the city of david. in the eleventh year of joram the son of achab, ochozias reigned over juda, and jehu came into jezrahel. but jezebel hearing of his coming in, painted her face with stibic stone, and adorned her head, and looked out of a window at jehu coming in at the gate, and said: can there be peace for zambri, that hath killed his master? and jehu lifted up his face to the window, and said: who is this? and two or three eunuchs bowed down to him. and he said to them: throw her down headlong: and they threw her down, and the wall was sprinkled with her blood, and the hoofs of the horses trod upon her. and when he was come in, to eat, and to drink, he said: go, and see after that cursed woman, and bury her: because she is a king's daughter. and when they went to bury her, they found nothing but the skull, and the feet, and the extremities of her hands. and coming back they told him. and jehu said: it is the word of the lord, which he spoke by his servant elias the thesbite, saying: in the field of jezrahel the dogs shall eat the flesh of jezebel, and the flesh of jezebel shall be as dung upon the face of the earth in the field of jezrahel, so that they who pass by shall say: is this that same jezebel?

and achab had seventy sons in samaria: so jehu wrote letters, and sent to samaria, to the chief men of the city, and to the ancients, and to them that brought up achab's children, saying: as soon as you receive these letters, ye that have your master's sons, and chariots, and horses, and fenced cities, and armour, choose the best, and him that shall please you most of your master's sons, and set him on his father's throne, and fight for the house of your master. but they were exceedingly afraid, and said: behold two kings could not stand before him, and how shall we be able to resist? therefore the overseers of the house, and the rulers of the city, and the ancients, and the tutors sent to jehu, saying: we are thy servants, whatsoever thou shalt command us we will do, neither will we make us a king: do thou all that pleaseth thee. and he wrote letters the second time to them, saying: if you be mine, and will obey me, take the heads of the sons of your master, and come to me to jezrahel by to morrow this time. now the king's sons, being seventy men, were brought up with the chief men of the city. and when the letters came to them, they took the king's sons, and slew seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets, and sent them to him to jezrahel. and a messenger came, and told him, saying: they have brought the heads of the king's sons. and he said: lay ye them in two heaps by the entering in of the gate until the morning. and when it was light, he went out, and standing said to all the people: you are just: if i conspired against my master, and slew him, who hath slain all these? see therefore now that there hath not fallen to the ground any of the words of the lord, which the lord spoke concerning the house of achab, and the lord hath done that which he spoke in the hand of his servant elias. so jehu slew all that were left of the house of achab in jezrahel, and all his chief men, and his friends, and his priests, till there were no remains left of him. and he arose, and went to samaria: and when he was come to the shepherds' cabin in the way, he met with the brethren of ochozias king of juda, and he said to them: who are you? and they answered: we are the brethren of ochozias, and are come down to salute the sons of the king, and the sons of the queen. and he said: take them alive. and they took them alive, and killed them at the pit by the cabin, two and forty men, and he left not any of them. and when he was departed thence, he found jonadab the son of rechab coming to meet him, and he blessed him. and he said to him: is thy heart right as my heart is with thy heart? and jonadab said: it is. if it be, said he, give me thy hand. he gave him his hand. and he lifted him up to him into the chariot, and he said to him: come with me, and see my zeal for the lord. so he made him ride in his chariot, and brought him into samaria. and he slew all that were left of achab in samaria, to a man, according to the word of the lord, which he spoke by elias. and jehu gathered together all the people, and said to them: achab worshipped baal a little, but i will worship him more. now therefore call to me all the prophets of baal, and all his servants, and all his priests: let none be wanting, for i have a great sacrifice to offer to baal: whosoever shall be wanting shall not live. now jehu did this craftily, that he might destroy the worshippers of baal. and he said: proclaim a festival for baal. and he called, and he sent into all the borders of israel, and all the servants of baal came: there was not one left that did not come. and they went into the temple of baal: and the house of baal was filled, from one end to the other. and he said to them that were over the wardrobe: bring forth garments for all the servants of baal. and they brought them forth garments. and jehu and jonadab the son of rechab went to the temple of baal, and said to the worshippers of baal: search, and see that there be not any with you of the servants of the lord, but that there be the servants of baal only. and they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings: but jehu had prepared him fourscore men without, and said to them: if any of the men escape, whom i have brought into your hands, he that letteth him go shall answer life for life. and it came to pass, when the burnt offering was ended, that jehu commanded his soldiers and captains, saying: go in, and kill them, let none escape. and the soldiers and captains slew them with the edge of the sword, and cast them out: and they went into the city of the temple of baal, and brought the statue out of baal's temple, and burnt it, and broke it in pieces. they destroyed also the temple of baal, and made a jakes in its place unto this day. so jehu destroyed baal out of israel: but yet he departed not from the sills of jero-boam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin, nor did he forsake the golden calves that were in bethel and dan. and the lord said to jehu: because thou hast diligently executed that which was right and pleasing in my eyes, and hast done to the house of achab according to all that was in my heart: thy children shall sit upon the throne of israel to the fourth generation. but jehu took no heed to walk in the law of the lord the god of israel with all his heart: for he departed not from the sins of jero-boam, who had made israel to sin. in those days the lord began to be weary of israel: and

hazael ravaged them in all the coasts of israel, from the jordan eastward, all the land of galaad, and gad, and ruben, and manasses, from aroer, which is upon the torrent amen, and galaad, and basan. but the rest of the acts of jehu, and all that he did, and his strength, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? and jehu slept with his fathers, and they buried him in samaria: and joachaz his son reigned in his stead. and the time that jehu reigned over israel, in samaria, was eight and twenty years.

and athalia the mother of ochozias seeing that her son was dead, arose, and slew all the royal seed. but josaba the daughter of king joram, sister of ochozias, took joas the son of ochozias, and stole him from among the king's sons that were slain, out of the bedchamber with his nurse: and hid him from the face of athalia, so that he was not slain. and he was with her six years hid in the house of the lord. and athalia reigned over the land. and in the seventh year joia da seat, and taking the centurions and the soldiers, brought them in to him into the temple of the lord, and made a covenant with them: and taking an oath of them in the house of the lord, shewed them the king's son: and he commanded them, saying: this is the thing that you must do: let a third part of you go in on the sabbath, and keep the watch of the king's house. and let a third part be at the gate of sur: and let a third part be at the gate behind the dwelling of the shieldbearers: and you shall keep the watch of the house of messa. but let two parts of you, all that go forth on the sabbath, keep the watch of the house of the lord about the king. and you shall compass him round about, having weapons in your hands: and if any man shall enter the precinct of the temple, let him be slain: and you shall be with the king coming in and going out. and the centurions did according to all things that joia da the priest had commanded them: and taking every one their men, that went in on the sabbath, with them that went out on the sabbath, came to joia da the priest. and he gave them the spears, and the arms of king david, which were in the house of the lord. and they stood having every one their weapons in their hands, from the right side of the temple, unto the left side of the altar, and of the temple, about the king. and he brought forth the king's son, and put the diadem upon him, and the testimony: and they made him king, and anointed him: and clapping their hands. they said, god save the king. and athalia heard the noise of the people running: and going in to the people into the temple of the lord, she saw the king standing upon a tribunal, as the manner was, and the singers, and the trumpets near him, and all the people of the land rejoicing, and sounding the trumpets: and she rent her garments, and cried: a conspiracy, a conspiracy. but joia da commended the centurions that were over the army, and said to them: have her forth without the precinct of the temple, and whosoever shall follow her, let him be slain with the sword. for the priest had said: let her not be slain in the temple of the lord. and they laid hands on her: and thrust her out by the way by which the horses go in, by the palace, and she was slain there. and joiada made a covenant between the lord, and the king, and the people, that they should be the people of the lord, and between the king and the people. and all the people of the land went into the temple of baal, and broke down his altars, and his images they broke in pieces thoroughly: they slew also mathan the priest of baal before the altar. and the priest set guards in the house of the lord. and he took the centurions, and the bands of the cerethi and the phelethi, and all the people of the land, and they brought the king from the house of the lord: and they came by the way of the gate of the shieldbearers into the palace. and he sat on the throne of the kings. and all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet: but athalia was slain with the sword in the king's house. now joas was seven years old, when he began to reign.

in the seventh year of jehu joas began to reign: and he reigned forty years in jerusalem. the name of his mother was sebia of bersabee. and joas did that which was right before the lord all the days that joiada the priest taught him. but yet he took not away the high places: for the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places. and joas said to the priests: o all the money of the sanctified things, which is brought into the temple of the lord by those that pass, which is offered for the price of a soul, and which of their own accord, and of their own free heart they bring into the temple of the lord: let the priests take it according to their order, and repair the house, whosoever they shall see any thing that wanteth repairing. now till the three and twentieth year of king joas, the priests did not make the repairs of the temple. and king joas called joiada the high priest and the priests, saying to them: why do you not repair the temple? take you therefore money no more according to your order, but restore it for the repairing of the temple. and the priests were forbidden to take any more money of the people, and to make the repairs of the house. and joiada the high priest took a chest and bored a hole in the top, and set it by the altar at the right hand of them that came into the house of the lord, and the priests that kept the doors put therein all the money that was brought to the temple of the lord. and when they saw that there was very much money in the chest, the king's scribe and the high priest came up, and poured it out, and counted the money that was found in the house of the lord: and they gave it out by number and measure into the hands of them that were over the builders of the house of the lord: and they laid it out to the carpenters, and the masons that wrought in the house of the lord, and made the repairs: and to them that cut stones, and to buy timber, and stones, to be hewed, that the repairs of the house of the lord might be completely finished, and whosoever there was need of expenses to uphold the house but there were not made of the same money for the temple of the lord, bowls, or fleshhooks, or censers, or trumpets, or any vessel of gold and silver, of the money that was brought into the temple of the lord. for it was given to them that did the work, that the temple of the lord might be repaired. and they reckoned not with the men that received the money to distribute it to the workmen, but they bestowed it faithfully. but the money for trespass, and the money for sine, they brought not into the temple of the lord, because it was for the priests. then hazael king of syria went up and fought against geth, and took it and set his face to go up to jerusalem. wherefore joas king of juda took all the sanctified things, which josaphat, and joram, and ochozias his fathers the kings of juda had dedicated to holy uses, and which he himself had offered: and all the silver that could be found in the treasures of the temple of the lord, and in the king's palace: and sent it to hazael king of syria, and he went off from jerusalem. and the rest of the acts of joas, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and his servants arose, and conspired among themselves, and slew joas in the house of mello in the descent of sella. for josachar the son of semaath, and jozabad the son of somer his servant struck him, and he died: and they buried him with his fathers in the city of david, and amasias his son reigned in his stead.

in the three and twentieth year of joas son of ochozias king of juda, joachaz the son of jehu reigned over israel in samaria, seventeen years. and he did evil before the lord, and followed the sins of jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin, and he departed not from them. and the wrath of the lord was kindled against israel, and he delivered them into the hand of hazael the king of syria, and into the hand of benadad the son of hazael all days. but joachaz besought the face of the lord, and the lord heard him: for he saw the distress of israel, because the king of syria had oppressed them: and the lord gave israel a saviour, and they were delivered out of the hand of the king of syria: and the children of israel dwelt in their pavilions as yesterday and the day before. but yet they departed not from the sins of jeroboam, who made israel to sin, but walked in them: and there still remained a grove also in samaria. and joachaz had no more left of the people than fifty horsemen, and ten chariots, and ten thousand footmen: for the king of syria had slain them, and had brought them low as dust by thrashing in the barnfloor. but the rest of the acts of joachaz, and all that he did, and his valour, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? and joachaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in samaria: and joas his son reigned in his stead. in the seven and thirtieth year of joas king of juda, joas the son of joachaz reigned over israel in samaria sixteen years. and he did that which is evil in the sight of the lord: he departed not from all the sine of jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin, but he walked in them. but the rest of the acts of joas, and all that he did, and his valour wherewith he fought against amasias

king of juda, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? and joas slept with his fathers: and jeroboam sat upon his throne. but joas was buried in samaria with the kings of israel. now eliseus was sick of the illness whereof he died: and joas king of israel went down to him, and wept before him, and said: o my father, my father, the chariot of israel and the guider thereof. and eliseus said to him: bring a bow and arrows. and when he had brought him a bow, and arrows, he said to the king of israel: put thy hand upon the bow. and when he had put his hand, eliseus put his hands over the king's hands, and said: open the window to the east. and when he had opened it, eliseus said: shoot an arrow. and he shot. and eliseus said: the arrow of the lord's deliverance, and the arrow of the deliverance from syria: and thou shalt strike the syrians in aphec, till thou consume them. and he said: take the arrows. and when he had taken them, he said to him : strike with an arrow upon the ground. and he struck three times and stood still. and the man of god was angry with him, and said: if thou hadst smitten five or six or seven times, thou hadst smitten syria even to utter destruction: but now three times shalt thou smite it. and eliseus died, and they buried him. and the rovers from moab came into the land the same year. and some that were burying a man, saw the rovers, and cast the body into the sepulchre of eliseus. and when it had touched the bones of eliseus, the man came to life, and stood upon his feet. now hazael king of syria afflicted israel all the days of joachaz: and the lord had mercy on them, and returned to them because of his covenant, which he had made with abraham and isaac and jacob: and he would not destroy them, nor utterly cast them away, unto this present time. and hazael king of syria died, and benadad his son reigned in his stead. now joas d the son of joachaz, took the cities out of the hand of benadad, the son of hazael, which he had taken out of the hand of joachaz his father by war, three times did joas beat him, and he restored the cities to israel.

in the second year of joas son of joachaz, king of israel, reigned amasias son of joas king of juda. he was five and twenty years old when he began to reign: and nine and twenty years he reigned in jerusalem: the name of his mother was joadan of jerusalem. and he did that which was right before the lord, but yet not like david his father. he did according to all things that joas his father did: but this only, that he took not away the high places: for yet the people sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places. and when he had possession of the kingdom, he put his servants to death that had slain the king his father: but the children of the murderers he did not put to death, according to that which is written in the book of the law of mooses, wherein the lord commanded, saying: the fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers: but every man shall die for his own sins. he slew of edom h in the valley of the salt pits ten thousand men, and took the rock by war, and called the name thereof jectehel, unto this day. then amasias sent messengers to joas son of joachaz, son of jehu king of israel, saying: come let us see one another. and joas king of israel sent again to amasias king of juda, saying: a thistle of libanus sent to a cedar tree, which is in libanus, saying: give thy daughter to my son to wife. and the beasts of the forest, that are in libanus, passed and trod down the thistle. thou hast beaten and prevailed over edom, and thy heart hath lifted thee up: be content with the glory, and sit at home: why provokest thou evil, that thou shouldst fall, and juda with thee? but amasias did not rest satisfied. so joas king of israel went up, and he and amasias king of juda saw one another in bethsames a town in juda. and juda was put to the worst before israel, and they fled every man to their dwellings. but joas king of israel took amasias, king of juda the son of joas, the son of ochozias, in bethsames, and brought him into jerusalem: and he broke down the wall of jerusalem, from the gate of ephraim to the gate of the corner, four hundred cubits. and he took all the gold, and silver, and all the vessels, that were found in the house of the lord, and in the king's treasures, and hostages, and returned to samaria. but the rest of the acts of joas, which he did, and his valour, wherewith he fought against amasias king of juda, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? and joas slept with his fathers, and was buried in samaria, with the kings of israel: and jeroboam his son reigned in his stead. and amasias the son of joas king of juda lived, after the death of joas son of joachaz king of israel fifteen years. and the rest of the acts of amasias, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? now they made a conspiracy against him in jerusalem: and he fled to lachis. and they sent after him to lachis, and killed him there. and they brought him away upon horses, and he was buried in jerusalem with his fathers in the city of david. and all the people of juda took azarias, who was sixteen years old, and made him king instead of his father amasias. he built elath, and restored it to juda, after that the king slept with his fathers. in the fifteenth year of amasias k son of joas king of juda, reigned jeroboam the son of joas king of israel in samaria, one and forty years : and he did that which was evil before the lord. he departed not from all the sins of jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin. he restored the borders of israel from the entrance of emath, unto the sea of the wilderness, according to the word of the lord the god of israel, which he spoke by his servant jonas the son of amathi, the prophet, who was of geth, which is in opher. for the lord saw the affliction of israel that it was exceeding bitter, and that they were consumed even to them that were shut up in prison, and the lowest persons, and that there was no one to help israel. and the lord did not say that he would blot out the name of israel from under heaven, but he saved them by the hand of jeroboam the son of joas. but the rest of the acts of jeroboam, and all that he did, and his valour, where- with he fought, and how he restored damascus, and emath to juda in israel, are they not written in the book of the words of the days

in the seven and twentieth year of jeroboam king of israel reigned azarias son of amasias, king of juda. he was sixteen years old, when he began to reign, and he reigned two and fifty years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was jechelia of jerusalem. and he did that which was pleasing before the lord, according to all that his father amasias had done. but the high places he did not destroy: for the people sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places. and the lord struck the king, so that he was a leper unto the day of his death, and he dwelt in a free house apart: but joatham the king's son governed the palace, and judged the people of the land. and the rest of the acts of azarias, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and azarias slept with his fathers: and they buried him with his ancestors in the city of david, and joatham his son reigned in his stead. in the eight and thirtieth year of azarias king of juda, reigned zacharias son of jeroboam over israel in samaria six months: and he did that which is evil before the lord, as his fathers had done: he departed not from the sins of jeroboam the son of nabat who made israel to sin. and sellum the son of jebes conspired against him: and struck him publicly and killed him, and reigned in his place. now the rest of the acts of zacharias, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? this was the word of the lord, which he spoke to jehu, saying: thy children to the fourth generation shall sit upon the throne of israel. and so it came to pass. sellum the son of jebes began to reign in the nine and thirtieth year of azarias king of juda: and reigned one month in samaria. and manahem the son of gadi went up from thersa: and he came into samaria, and struck sellum the son of jebes in samaria, and slew him, and reigned in his stead. and the rest of the acts of sellum, and his conspiracy, which he made, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? then manahem destroyed thapsa and all that were in it and the borders thereof from thersa, because they would not open to him: and he slew all the women thereof that were with child, and ripped them up. in the nine and thirtieth year of azarias king of juda, reigned manahem son of gadi over israel ten years in samaria. and he did that which was evil before the lord: he departed not from the sins of jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin all his days. and phul king of the assyrians came into the land, and manahem gave phul a thousand talents of silver, to aid him and to establish him in the kingdom. and manahem laid a tax upon israel, on all that were mighty and rich, to give the king of the assyrians, each man fifty sides of silver: so the king of the assyrians turned back, and did not stay in the land. and the rest of the acts of manahem, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? and manahem slept with his fathers: and phaceia his son reigned in his stead. in the fiftieth year of azarias king of juda reigned phaceia the son of manahem over israel in samaria two years. and he did that which was evil before the lord: he departed not from the sins of jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin. and phacee the son of romelia, his captain conspired against him, and smote him in samaria, in the tower of the king's house, near argob, and near arie, and with him fifty men of the sons of the galaadites, and he slew him and reigned in his stead. and the rest of the acts of phaceia, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? in the two and fiftieth year of azarias king of juda reigned phacee the son of romelia over israel in samaria twenty years. and he did that which was evil before the lord: he departed not from the sins of jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin. in the days of phacee king of israel came theglathphalasar king of assyria, and took aion, and abel domum maacha and janoe, and cedes, and asor, and galaad, and galilee, and all the land of nephtali: and carried them captives into assyria. now osee son of ela conspired, and formed a plot against phacee, the son of romelia, and struck him, and slew him: and reigned in his stead in the twentieth year of joatham the son of ozias. but the rest of the acts of phaces, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of israel? in the second year of phacee the son of romelia king of israel reigned joatham son of ozias king of juda. he was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was jerusa, the daughter of sadoc, and he did that which was right before the lord: according to all that his father ozias had done, so did he. but the high places he took not away: the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places: he built the highest gate of the house of the lord. but the rest of the acts of joatham, end all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? in those days the lord began to send into juda basin king of syria, and phacee the son of romelia. and joatham slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of david his father, and achaz his son reigned in his stead.

in the seventeenth year of phacee the son of romelia reigned achaz the son of joatham king of juda. achaz was twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in jerusalem: he did not that which was pleasing in the sight of the lord his cod, as david his father. but he walked in the way of the kings of israel: moreover he consecrated also his son, making him pass through the fire according to the idols of the nations: which the lord destroyed before the children of israel. he sacrificed also and burnt incense in the high places and on the hills, and under every green tree. then basin king of syria, and phacee son of romelia king of israel came up to jerusalem to fight: and they besieged achaz, but were not able to overcome him. at that time rasin king of syria restored aila to syria, and drove the men of juda out of aila: and the edomites came into aila, and dwelt there unto this day. and achaz sent messengers to theglathphalasar king of the assyrians, saying: i am thy servant, and thy son: come up, and save me out of the hand of the king of syria, and out of the hand of the king of israel, who are risen up together against me. and when he had gathered together the silver and gold that could be found in the house of the lord, and in the king's treasures, he sent it for a present to the king of the assyrians. and he agreed to his desire: for the king of the assyrians went up against damascus, and laid it waste: and he carried away the inhabitants thereof to cyrene, but basin he slew. and king achaz went to damascus to meet theglathphalasar king of the assyrians, end when he had seen the altar of damascus, king achaz sent to urias the priest a pattern of it, and its likeness according to all the work thereof. and urias the priest built an altar according to all that king achaz had commanded from damascus, so did urias the priest, until king achaz came from damascus. and when the king was come from damascus, he saw the altar and worshipped it: and went up and offered holocausts, and his own sacrifice. and offered libations and poured the blood of the peace offerings, which he had offered upon the altar. but the altar of brass that was before the lord, he removed from the face of the temple, and from the place of the altar, and from the place of the temple of the lord: and he set it at the side of the altar toward the north. and king achaz commanded urias the priest saying: upon the great altar offer the morning holocaust, and the evening sacrifice, and the king's holocaust, and his sacrifice, and the holocaust of the whole people of the land, and their sacrifices, and their libations: and all the blood of the holocaust, and all the blood of the victim thou shalt pour out upon it: but the altar of brass shall be ready at my pleasure. so urias the priest did according to all that king achaz had commanded him. and king achaz took away the graven bases, and the laver that was upon them: and he took down the sea from the brazen oxen that held it up, and put it upon a pavement of stone. the musach also for the sabbath, which he had built in the temple: and the king's entry from without he turned into the temple of the lord, because of the king of the assyrians. now the rest of the acts of achaz, which he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and achaz slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of david, and ezechias his son reigned in his stead.

in the twelfth year of achaz king of juda, osee the son of ela reigned in samaria over israel nine years. and he did evil before the lord: but not as the kings of israel that had been before him. against him came up salmanasar king of the assyrians, and osee became his servant, and paid him tribute. and when the king of the assyrians found that osee endeavouring to rebel had sent messengers to sua the king of egypt, that he might not pay tribute to the king of the assyrians, as he had done every year, he besieged him, bound him, and cast him into prison, and he went through all the land: and going up to samaria, he besieged it three years. and in the ninth year of osee, the king of the assyrians took samaria, and carried israel away to assyria: and he placed them in hala and habar by the river of gozan, in the cities of the medes. for so it was that the children of israel had sinned against the lord their god, who brought them out of the land of egypt, from under the hand of pharao king of egypt, and they worshipped strange gods. and they walked according to the way of the nations which the lord had destroyed in the sight of the children of israel and of the kings of israel: because they had done in like manner. and the children of israel offended the lord their god with things that were not right: and built them high places in all their cities from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city. and they made them statues and groves on every high hill, and under every shady tree: and they burnt incense there upon altars after the manner of the nations which the lord had removed from their face: and they did wicked things, provoking the lord. and they worshipped abominations, concerning which the lord had commanded them that they should not do this thing. and the lord testified to them in israel and in juda by the hand of all the prophets and seers, saying: return from your wicked ways, and keep my precepts, and ceremonies, according to all the law which i commanded your fathers: and as i have sent to you in the hand of my servants the prophets. and they hearkened not, but hardened their necks like to the neck of their fathers, who would not obey the lord their god. and they rejected his ordinances and the covenant that he made with their fathers, and the testimonies which he testified against them: and they followed vanities, and acted vainly: and they followed the nations that were round about them, concerning which the lord had commanded them that they should not do as they did. and they forsook all the precepts of the lord their god: and made to themselves two molten calves, and groves, and adored all the host of heaven: and they served baal. and consecrated their sons, and their daughters through fire: and they gave themselves to divinations, and soothsayings: and they delivered themselves up to do evil before the lord, to provoke him. and the lord was very angry with israel, and removed them from his sight, and there remained only the tribe of juda. but neither did juda itself keep the commandments of the lord their god: but they walked in the errors of israel, which they had wrought. and the lord cast off all the seed of israel, and afflicted them and delivered them into the hand of spoilers, till he cast them away from his face: even from that time, when israel was rent from the house of david, and made jeroboam son of nabat their king: for jeroboam separated israel from the lord, and made them commit a great sin. and the children of israel walked in all the sins of jeroboam, which he had done: and they departed not from them, till the lord removed israel from his face, as he had spoken in the hand of all his servants the prophets: and israel was carried away out of their land to assyria, unto this day. and the king of the assyrians brought people from babylon, and from cutha, and from avah, and from emath, and from sepharvaim: and placed them in the cities of samaria instead of the children of israel: and they possessed samaria, and dwelt in the cities thereof. and when they began to dwell there, they feared not the lord: and the lord sent lions among them, which killed them. and it was told the king of the assyrians, and it was said: the nations which thou hast removed, and made to dwell in the cities of samaria, know not the ordinances of the god of the land: and the lord hath sent lions among them: and behold they kill them, because they know not the manner of the god of the land. and the king of the assyrians commanded, saying: carry thither one of the priests whom you brought from thence captive, and let him go, and dwell with them: and let him teach them the ordinances of the god of the land. so one of the priests who had been carried away captive from samaria, came and dwelt in bethel, and taught them how they should worship the lord. and every nation made gods of their own, and put them in the temples of the high places, which the samaritans had made, every nation in their cities where they dwelt. for the men of babylon made sochothbenoth: and the cuthites made nergel: and the men of emath made asima. and the hevites made nebahaz and tharthac. and they that were of sepharvaim burnt their children in fire, to adramelech and anamelech the gods of sepharvaim. and nevertheless they worshipped the lord. and they made to themselves, of the lowest of the people, priests of the high places, and they placed them in the temples of the high places. and when they worshipped the lord, they served also their own gods according to the custom of the nations out of which they were brought to samaria: unto this day they followed the old manner: they fear not the lord, neither do they keep his ceremonies, and judgments, and law, and the commandment, which the lord commanded the children of jacob, whom he surnamed israel: with whom he made a covenant, and charged them, saying: you shall not fear strange gods, nor shall you adore them, nor worship them, nor sacrifice to them. but the lord your god, who brought you out of the land of egypt with great power, and a stretched out arm, him shall you fear, and him shall you adore, and to him shall you sacrifice. and the ceremonies, and judgments, and law, and the commandment, which he wrote for you, you shall observe to do them always: and you shall not fear strange gods. and the covenant that he made with you, you shall not forget: neither shall ye worship strange gods, but fear the lord your god, and he shall deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies. but they did not hearken, but did according to their old custom. so these nations feared the lord, but nevertheless served also their idols: their children also and grandchildren, as their fathers did, so do they unto this day.

in the third year of osee the son of ela king of israel, reigned m ezechias the son of achaz king of juda. he was five and twenty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned nine and twenty years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was abi the daughter of zacharias. and he did that which was good before the lord, according to all that david his father had done. he destroyed the n high places, and broke the statues in pieces, and cut down the groves, and broke the brazen serpent, which moyses had made: for till that time the children of israel burnt incense to it: and he called its name nohestan. he trusted in the lord the god of israel: so that after him there was none like him among all the kings of juda, nor any of them that were before him: and he stuck to the lord, and departed not from his steps, but kept his commandments, which the lord commanded moyses. wherefore the lord also was with him, and in all things, to which he went forth, he behaved himself wisely. and he rebelled against the king of the assyrians, and served him not. he smote the philistines as far as gaza, and all their borders, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city. in the fourth year of king ezechias, which was the seventh year of osee the son of ela king of israel, salmanasar king of the assyrians came up to samaria, and besieged it, and took it. for after three years, in the sixth year of ezechias, that is, in the ninth year of osee king of israel, samaria was taken: and the king of the assyrians carried away israel into assyria, and placed them in hale, and in habor by the rivers of gozan in the cities of the medes: because they hearkened not to the voice of the lord their god, but transgressed his covenant: all that moyses the servant of the lord commanded, they would not hear nor do. in the fourteenth year of king ezechias, sennacherib king of the assyrians came up against the fenced cities of juda: and took them. then ezechias king of juda sent messengers to the king of the assyrians to lachis, saying: i have offended, depart from me: and all that thou shalt put upon me, i will bear. and the king of the assyrians put a tax upon ezechias king of juda, of three hundred talents of silver, and thirty talents of gold. and ezechias gave all the silver that was found in the house of the lord, and in the king's treasures. at that time ezechias broke the doors of the temple of the lord, and the plates of gold which he had fastened on them, and gave them to the king of the assyrians. and the king of the assyrians sent tharthan and rabsaris, and rabsaces from lachis to king ezechias with a strong army to jerusalem: and they went up and came to jerusalem, and they stood by the conduit of the upper pool, which is in the way of the fuller's field. and they called for the king: and there went out to them eliacim the son of helcias who was over the house, and sobna the scribe, and joahe the son of asaph the recorder. and rabsaces said to them: speak to ezechias: thus saith the great king, the king of the assyrians: what is this confidence, wherein thou trustest? perhaps thou hast taken counsel, to prepare thyself for battle. on whom dost thou trust, that thou darest to rebel? dost thou trust in egypt a staff of a broken reed, upon which if a man lean, it will break and go into his hand, and pierce it? so is pharao king of egypt, to all that trust in him. but if you say to me: we trust in the lord our god: is it not he, whose high places and altars ezechias hath taken away: and hath commanded juda and jerusalem: you shall worship before this altar in jerusalem? now therefore come over to my master the king of the assyrians, and i will give you two thousand horses, and see whether you be able to have riders for them. and how can you stand against one lord of the least of my master's servants? dost thou trust in egypt for chariots and for horsemen? is it without the will of the lord that i am come up to this place to destroy it? the lord said to me: go up to this land and destroy it. then eliacim the son of helcias, and sobna, and joahe said to rabsaces: we pray thee speak to us thy servants in syriac: for we understand that tongue: and speak not to us in the jews' language, in the hearing of the people that are upon the wall. and rabsaces answered them, saying: hath my master sent me to thy master and to thee, to speak these words, and not rather to the men that sit upon the wall, that they may eat their own dung, and drink their urine with you? then rabsaces stood, and cried out with a loud voice in the jews' language, and said: hear the words of the great king, the king of the assyrians. thus saith the king: let not ezechias deceive you: for he shall not be able to deliver you out of my hand. neither let him make you trust in the lord, saying: the lord will surely deliver us, and this city shall not be given into the hand of the king of the assyrians. do not hearken to ezechias. for thus saith the king of the assyrians: do with me that which is for your advantage, and come out to me: and every man of you shall eat of his own vineyard, and of his own fig tree: and you shall drink water of your own cisterns, till i come, and take you away to a land, like to your own land, a fruitful land, and plentiful in wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olives, and oil and honey, and you shall live, and not die. hearken not to ezechias, who deceiveth you, saying: the lord will deliver us. have any of the gods of the nations delivered their land from the hand of the king of assyria? where is the god of emath, end of arphad? where is the god of sepharvaim, of ana, and of ava? have they delivered samaria out of my hand? who are they among all the gods of the nations, that have delivered their country out of my hand, that the lord may deliver jerusalem out of my hand? but the people held their peace, and answered him not a word: for they had received commandment from the king that they should not answer him. and eliacim the son of helcias, who was over the house, and sobna the scribe, and joahe the son of asaph the recorder, came to ezechias, with their garments rent, and told him the words of rabsaces.

and when king ezechias heard these words, he rent his garments, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the lord. and he sent eliacim, who was over the house, and sobna the scribe, and the ancients of the priests covered with sackcloths, to isaias the prophet the son of amos, and they said to him: thus saith ezechias: this day is a day of tribulation, and of rebuke, and of blasphemy: the children are come to the birth, and the woman in travail hath not strength. it may be the lord thy god will hear all the words of rabsaces, whom the king of the assyrians his master hath sent to reproach the living god, and to reprove with words, which the lord thy god hath heard: and do thou offer prayer for the remnants that are found. so the servants of king ezechias came to isaias. and isaias said to them: thus shall you say to your master: thus saith the lord: be not afraid for the words which thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of the assyrians have blasphemed me. behold i will send a spirit upon him, and he shall hear a message, and shall return into his own country, and i will make him fall by the sword in his own country. and rabsaces returned, and found the king of the assyrians besieging lobna: for he had heard that he was departed from lachis. and when he heard of theraca king of ethiopia: behold, he is come out to fight with thee: and was going against him, he sent messengers to ezechias, saying: thus shall you say to ezechias king of juda: let not thy god deceive thee, in whom thou trustest: and do not say: jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hands of the king of the assyrians. behold thou hast heard what the kings of the assyrians have done to all countries, how they have laid them waste: and canst thou alone be delivered? have the gods of the nations delivered any of them, whom my fathers have destroyed, to wit, gozan, and haran, and reseph, and the children of eden that were in the assar? where is the king of emath, and the king of arphad, and the king of the city of sepharvaim, of ana and of ava? and when ezechias had received the letter of the hand of the messengers, and had read it, he went up to the house of the lord, and spread it before the lord, and he prayed in his sight, saying: o lord god of israel, who sitteth upon the cherubims, thou alone art the god of all the kings of the earth: thou madest heaven and earth: incline thy ear, and hear: open, o lord, thy eyes, and see: and hear all the words of sennacherib, who hath sent to upbraid unto us the living god. of a truth, o lord, the kings of the assyrians have destroyed nations, and the lands of them all. and they have cast their gods into the fire: for they were not gods, but the works of men's hands of wood and stone, and they destroyed them. now therefore, o lord our god, save us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know, that thou art the lord the only god. and isaias the son of amos sent to ezechias, saying: thus saith the lord the god of israel: i have heard the prayer thou hast made to me concerning sennacherib king of the assyrians. this is the word, that the lord hath spoken of him: the virgin the daughter of sion hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn: the daughter of jerusalem hath wagged her head behind thy back. whom hast thou reproached, and whom hast thou blasphemed? against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thy eyes on high? against the holy one of israel. by the hand of thy servants thou hast reproached the lord, and hast said: with the multitude of my chariots i have gone up to the height of the mountains, to the top of libanus, and have cut down its tall cedars, and its choice fir trees. and i have entered into the furthest parts thereof, and the forest of its carmel. i have cut down, and i have drunk strange waters, and have dried up with the soles of my feet all the shut up waters. hast thou not heard what i have done from the beginning? from the days of old i have formed it, and now i have brought it to effect: that fenced cities of fighting men should be turned to heaps of ruin: and the inhabitants of them, were weak of hand, they trembled and were confounded, they became like the grass of the field, and the green herb on the tops of houses, which withered before it came to maturity. thy dwelling and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy way i knew before, and thy rage against me. thou hast been mad against me, and thy pride hath come up to my ears: therefore i will put a ring in thy nose, and a bit between thy lips, and i will turn thee back by the way, by which thou camest. and to thee, o ezechias, this shall be a sign: eat this year what thou shalt find: and in the second year, such things as spring of themselves: but in the third year sow and reap: plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. and whatsoever shall be left of the house of juda, shall take root downward, and bear fruit upward. for out of jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and that which shall be saved out of mount sion: the zeal of the lord of hosts shall do this. wherefore thus saith the lord concerning the king of the assyrians: he shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow into it, nor come before it with shield, nor cast a trench about it. by the way that he came, he shall return: and into this city he shall not come, saith the lord. and i will protect this city, and will save it for my own sake, and for david my servant's sake. and it came to pass that night, that an angel of the lord came, and slew in the camp of the assyrians a hundred and eighty-five thousand. and when he arose early in the morning, he saw all the bodies of the dead. and sennacherib king of the assyrians departing went away, and he re- turned and abode in ninive. and as he was worshipping in the temple of nesroch his god, adramelech and sarasar his sons slew him with the sword, and they fled into the land of the armenians, and asarhaddon his son reigned in his stead.

in those days ezechias was sick unto death: and isaias the son of amos the prophet came and said to him: thus saith the lord god: give charge concerning thy house, for thou shalt die, and not live. and he turned his face to the wall, and prayed to the lord, saying: i beseech thee, o lord, remember how i have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is pleasing before thee. and ezechias wept with much weeping. and before isaias was gone out of the middle of the court, the word of the lord came to him, saying: go back, and tell ezechias the captain of my people: thus saith the lord the god of david thy father: i have heard thy prayer, and i have seen thy tears: and behold i have healed thee; on the third day thou shalt go up to the temple of the lord.

and i will add to thy days fifteen years: and i will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of the assyrians, and i will protect this city for my own sake, and for david my servant's sake. and isaias said: bring me a lump of figs. and when they had brought it, and laid it upon his boil. he was healed. and ezechias had said to isaias: what shall be the sign that the lord will heal me, and that i shall go up to the temple of the lord the third day? and isaias said to him: this shall be the sign from the lord, that the lord will do the word which he hath spoken: wilt thou that the shadow go forward ten lines, or that it go back so many degrees? and ezechias said: it is an easy matter for the shadow to go forward ten lines: and i do not desire that this be done, but let it return back ten degrees. and isaias the prophet called upon the lord, and he brought the shadow ten degrees backwards by the lines, by which it had already gone down in the dial of achaz. at that time berodach baladan, the son of baladan, king of the babylonians, sent letters and presents to ezechias: for he had heard that ezechias had been sick. and ezechias rejoiced at their coming, and he showed them the house of his aromatical spices, and the gold and the silver, and divers precious odours, and ointments, and the house of his vessels, and all that he had in his treasures. there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominions that ezechias shewed them not. and isaias the prophet came to king ezechias, and said to him: what said these men? or from whence came they to thee? and ezechias said to him: from a far country they came to me out of babylon. and he said: what did they see in thy house? ezechias said: they saw all the things that are in my house: there is nothing among my treasures that i have not shewn them. and isaias said to ezechias: hear the word of the lord. behold the days shall come, that all that is in thy house, and that thy fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried into babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the lord. and of thy sons also that shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of babylon. ezechias said to isaias: the word of the lord, which thou hast spoken, is good: let peace and truth be in my days. and the rest of the acts of ezechias and all his might, and how he made a pool, and a conduit, and brought waters into the city, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and ezechias slept with his fathers, and manasses his son reigned in his stead.

manasses was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned five and fifty years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was haphsiba. and he did evil in the sight of the lord, according to the idols of the nations, which the lord destroyed from before the face of the children of israel. and he turned, and built up the high places which ezechias his father had destroyed: and he set up altars to baal, and made groves, as achab the king of israel had done: and he adored all the host of heaven, and served them. and he built altars in the house of the lord, of which the lord said: in jerusalem i will put my name. and he built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the temple of the lord. and he made his son pass through fire: and he used divination, and observed omens, and appointed pythons, and multiplied soothsayers to do evil before the lord, and to provoke him. he set also an idol of the grove, which he had made, in the temple of the lord: concerning which the lord said to david, and to solomon his son: in this temple, and in jerusalem, which i have chosen out of all the tribes of israel, i will put my name for ever. and i will no more make the feet of israel to be moved out of the land, which i gave to their fathers: only if they will observe to do all that i have commanded them according to the law which my servant moyses commanded them. but they hearkened not: but were seduced by manasses, to do evil more than the nations which the lord destroyed before the children of israel. and the lord spoke in the hand of his servants, the prophets, saying: because manasses king of juda hath done these most wicked abominations, beyond all that the amorrites did before him, and hath made juda also to sin with his filthy doings: therefore thus saith the lord the god of israel: behold i will bring on evils upon jerusalem and juda: that whosoever shall hear of them, both his ears shall tingle. and i will stretch over jerusalem the line of samaria, and the weight of the house of achab: and i will efface jerusalem, as tables are wont to be effaced, and i will erase and turn it, and draw the pencil often over the face thereof. and i will leave the remnants of my inheritance, and will deliver them into the hands of their enemies: and they shall become a prey, and a spoil to all their enemies. because they have done evil before me, and have continued to provoke me, from the day that their fathers came out of egypt, even unto this day. moreover manasses shed also very much innocent blood, till he filled jerusalem up to the mouth: besides his sins, wherewith he made juda to sin, to do evil before the lord. now the rest of the acts of manasses, and all that he did, end his sin which he sinned, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and manasses slept with his fathers, and was buried in the garden of his own house, in the garden of oza: and amen his son reigned in his stead. two and twenty years old was amen when he began to reign, and he reigned two years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was mesalemeth the daughter of harus of jetebea. and he did evil in the sight, of the lord, as manasses his father had done. and he walked in all the way in which his father had walked: and he served the abominations which his father had served, and he adored them; and forsook the lord the god of his fathers, and walked not in the way of the lord. and his servants plotted against him, and slew the king in his own house. but the people of the land slew all them that had conspired against king amen: and made josias his son their king in his stead. but the rest of the acts of amen which he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and they buried him in his sepulchre in the garden of oza: and his son josias reigned in his stead.

josias was eight years old when he began to reign: he reigned one and thirty years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was idida, the daughter of hadaia, of besecath. and he did that which was right in the sight of the lord, and walked in all the ways of david his father: he turned not aside to the right hand, or to the left. and in the eighteenth year of b king josias, the king sent saphan the son of assia, the son of mesulam, the scribe of the temple of the lord, saying to him: go to helcias the high priest, that the money may be put together which is brought into the temple of the lord, which the doorkeepers of the temple have gathered of the people. and let it be given to the workmen by the overseers of the house of the lord: and lot them distribute it to those that work in the temple of the lord, to repair the temple: that is, to carpenters and masons, and to such as mend breaches: and that timber may be bought, and stones out of the quarries, to repair the temple of the lord. but let there be no reckoning made with them of the money which they receive, but let them have it in their power, and in their trust. and helcias the high priest said to saphan the scribe: i have found the book of the law in the house of the lord: and helcias gave the book to saphan, and he read it. and saphan the scribe came to the king, and brought him word again concerning that which he had commanded, and said: thy servants have gathered together the money that was found in the house of the lord, and they have given it to be distributed to the workmen, by the overseers of the works of the temple of the lord. and saphan the scribe told the king, saying: helcias the priest hath delivered to me a book. and when saphan had read it before the king, and the king had heard the words of the law of the lord, he rent his garments. and he commanded helcias the priest, and ahicam the son of saphan, and achobor the son of micha, and saphan the scribe, and asaia the king's servant, saying: go and consult the lord for me, and for the people, and for all juda, concerning the words of this book which is found: for the great wrath of the lord is kindled against us, because our fathers have not hearkened to the words of this book, to do all that is written for us. so helcias the priest, and ahicam, and achobor, and saphan, and asaia went to holda the prophetess the wife of selum the son of thecua, the son of araas keeper of the wardrobe, who dwelt in jerusalem in the second: and they spoke to her. and she said to them: thus saith the lord the god of israel: tell the man that sent you to me: thus saith the lord: behold, i will bring evils upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, all the words of the law which the king of juda hath read: because they have forsaken me, and have sacrificed to strange gods, provoking me by all the works of their hands: therefore my indignation shall be kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched. but to the king of juda, who sent you to consult the lord, thus shall you say: thus saith the lord the god of israel: forasmuch as thou hast heard the words of the book, and thy heart hath been moved to fear, and thou hast humbled thyself before the lord, hearing the words against this place, and the inhabitants thereof, to wit, that they should become a wonder and a curse: and thou hast rent thy garments, and wept before me, i also have heard thee, saith the lord: therefore i will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy sepulchre in peace, that thy eyes may not see all the evils which i will bring; upon this place.

and they brought the king word again what she had said. and he sent: and all the ancients of juda and jerusalem were assembled to him. and the king went up to the temple of the lord, and all the men of juda, and all the inhabitants of jerusalem with him, the priests and the prophets, and all the people both little and great: and in the hearing of them all he read all the words of the book of the covenant, which was found in the house of the lord. and the king stood upon the step: and made a covenant with the lord, to walk after the lord, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies and his ceremonies, with all their heart, and with all their soul, and to perform the words of this covenant, which were written in that book: and the people agreed to the covenant. and the king commanded helcias the high priest, and the priests of the second order, and the doorkeepers, to cast out of the temple of the lord all the vessels that had been made for baal, and for the grove, and for all the host of heaven: and he burnt them without jerusalem in the valley of cedron, and he carried the ashes of them to bethel. and he destroyed the soothsayers, whom the kings of juda had appointed to sacrifice in the high places in the cities of juda, and round about jerusalem: them also that burnt incense to baal, and to the sun, and to the moon, and to the twelve signs, and to all the host of heaven. and he caused the grove to be carried out from the house of the lord without jerusalem to the valley of cedron, and he burnt it there, and reduced it to dust, and cast the dust upon the graves of the common people. he destroyed also the pavilions of the effeminate, which were in the house of the lord, for which the women wove as it were little dwellings for the grove. and he gathered together all the priests out of the cities of juda: and he defiled the high places, where the priests offered sacrifice, from gabaa to bersabee: and he broke down the altars of the gates that were in the entering in of the gate of josue governor of tile city, which was on the left hand of the gate of the city. however the priests of the high places came not up to the altar of the lord in jerusalem: but only ate of the unleavened bread among their brethren. and he defiled topheth, which is in the valley of the son of ennom: that no man should consecrate there his son or his daughter through fire to moloch. and he took away the horses which the kings of juda had given to the sun, at the entering in of the temple of the lord, near the chamber of nathanmelech the eunuch, who was in pharurim: and he burnt the chariots of the sun with fire. and the altars that were upon the top of the upper chamber of achaz, which the kings of juda had made, and the altars which manasses had made in the two courts of the temple of the lord, the king broke down: and he ran from thence, and cast the ashes of them into the torrent cedron. the high places also that were at jerusalem on the right side of the mount of offence, o which solomon king of israel had built to astarothe idol of the sidonians, and to chamos the scandal of moab, and to melchom the abomination of the children of ammon, the king defiled. and he broke in pieces the statues, and cut down the groves: and he filled their places with the bones of dead men. moreover the altar also that was at bethel, and the high place, which jeroboam the son of nabat, who made israel to sin, had made: both the altar, and the high place he broke down and burnt, and reduced to powder, and burnt the grove. and as josias turned himself, he saw there the sepulchres that were in the mount: and he sent and took the bones out of the sepulchres, and burnt them upon the altar, and defiled it according to the word of the lord, which the man of god spoke, who had foretold these things. and he said: what is that monument which i see? and the men of that city answered: it is the sepulchre of the man of god, who came from juda, and foretold these things which thou hast done upon the altar of bethel. and he said: let him alone, let no man move his bones. so his bones were left untouched with the bones of the prophet that came out of samaria. moreover all the temples of the high places, which were in the cities of samaria, which the kings of israel had made to provoke the lord, josias took away: and he did to them according to all the acts that he had done in bethel. and he slew all the priests of the high places, that were there, upon the altars: and he burnt men's bones upon them: and returned to jerusalem. and he commanded all the people, saying: keep the phase to the lord your god, according as it is written in the book of this covenant. now there was no such a phase kept from the days of the judges, who judged israel, nor in all the days of the kings of israel, and of the kings of juda, as was this phase that was kept to the lord in jerusalem, in the eighteenth year of king josias. moreover the diviners by spirits, and soothsayers, and the figures of idols, and the uncleannesses, and the abominations, that had been in the land of juda, and jerusalem, josias took away: that he might perform the words of the law, that were written in the book which helcias the priest had found in the temple of the lord. there was no king before him like unto him, that returned to the lord with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his strength, according to all the law of moyses: neither after him did there arise any like him. but yet the lord turned not away from the wrath of his great indignation, wherewith his anger was kindled against juda: because of the provocations, wherewith manasses had provoked him. and the lord said: i will remove juda also from before my face, as i have removed israel: and i will cast off this city jerusalem, which i chose, and the house, of which i said: my name shall be there. now the rest of the acts of josias, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? in his days pharao nechao king of egypt went up against the king of assyria to the river euphrates: and king josias went to meet him: and was slain at mageddo, when he had seen him. and his servants carried him dead from mageddo: and they brought him to jerusalem, and buried him in iris own sepulchre. and the people of the land took joachaz the son of josias: and they anointed him, and made him king in his father's stead. joachaz was three and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in jerusalem: the name of his mother was amital, the daughter of jeremias of lobna. and he did evil before the lord, according to all that his fathers had done. and pharao nechao bound him at rebela, which is in the land of emath, that he should not reign in jerusalem: and he set a fine upon the land, of a hundred talents of silver, and a talent of gold. and pharao nechao made eliacim the son of josias king in the room of josias his father: and turned his name to joakim. and he took joachaz away and carried him into egypt, and he died there. and joakim gave the silver and the gold to pharao, after he had taxed the land for every man, to contribute according to the commandment of pharao: and he exacted both the silver and the gold of the people of the land, of every man according to his ability: to give to pharao nechao. joakim was five and twenty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned eleven years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was zebida the daughter of phadaia of ruma. and he did evil before the lord according to all that his fathers had done.

in his days nabuchodonosor king of babylon came up, and joakim became his servant three years: then again he rebelled against him. and the lord sent against him the rovers of the chaldees, and the rovers of syria, and the rovers of moab, and the rovers of the children of ammon: and he sent them against juda, to destroy it, according to the word of the lord, which he had spoken by his servants the prophets. and this came by the word of the lord against juda, to remove them from before him for all the sins of manasses which he did. and for the innocent blood that he shed, filling jerusalem with innocent blood: and therefore the lord would not be appeased. but the rest of the acts of joakim, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of juda? and joakim slept with his fathers: and joachin his son reigned in his stead. and the king of egypt came not again any more out of his own country: for the king of babylon had taken all that had belonged to the king of egypt, from the river of egypt, unto the river euphrates. joachin was eighteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in jerusalem: the name of his mother was nohesta the daughter of elnathan of jerusalem. and he did evil before the lord, according to all that his father had done. at that time the servants of nabuchodonosor king of babylon came up against jerusalem, and the city was surrounded with their forts. and nabuchodonosor king of babylon came to the city with his servants to assault it. and joachin king of juda went out to the king of babylon, he end his mother, and his servants, and his nobles, and his eunuchs: and the king of babylon received him in the eighth year of his reign. and he brought out from thence all the treasures of the house of the lord, and the treasures of the king's house: and he cut in pieces all the vessels of gold which solomon king of israel had made in the temple of the lord, according to the word of the lord. and he carried away all jerusalem, and all the princes, and all the valiant men of the army, to the number of ten thousand into captivity: and every artificer and smith: and none were left, but the poor sort of the people of the land. and he carried away joachin into babylon, and the king's mother, and the king's wives, and his eunuchs: and the judges of the land he carried into captivity from jerusalem into babylon. and all the strong men, seven thousand, and the artificers, and the smiths a thousand, all that were valiant men and fit for war: and the king of babylon led them captives into babylon. and he appointed matthanias his uncle in his stead: and called his name sedecias. sedecias was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in jerusalem: the name of his mother was amital, the daughter of jeremias of lobna. and he did evil before the lord, according to all that joakim had done. for the lord was angry against jerusalem and against juda, till he cast them out from his face: and sedecias revolted from the king of babylon.

and it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, that nabuchodonosor king of babylon came, he and all his army against jerusalem: and they surrounded it: end raised works round about it. and the city was shut up and besieged till the eleventh year of king sedecias, the ninth day of the month: and a famine prevailed in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land. and a breach was made into the city: and all the men of war fled in the night between the two walls by the king's garden, (now the chaldees besieged the city round about,) and sedecias fled by the way that leadeth to the plains of the wilderness. and the army of the chaldees pursued after the king, and overtook him in the plains of jericho: and all the warriors that were with him were scattered, and left him: so they took the king, and brought him to the king of babylon to rebela, and he gave judgment upon him. and he slew the sons of sedecias before his face, and he put out his eyes, and bound him with chains, and brought him to babylon. in the fifth month, the seventh day of the month, that is, the nineteenth year of the king of babylon, came nabuzardan commander of the army, a servant of the king of babylon, into jerusalem. and he burnt the house of the lord, and the king's house, and the houses of jerusalem, and every house he burnt with fire. and all the army of the chaldees, which was with the commander of the troops, broke down the walls of jerusalem round about. and nabuzardan the commander of the army, carried away the rest of the people that remained in the city, and the fugitives that had gone over to the king of babylon, and the remnant of the common people. but of the poor of the land he left some dressers of vines and husbandmen. and the pillars of brass that were in the temple of the lord, and the bases, and the sea of brass which was in the house of the lord, the chaldees broke in pieces, and carried all the brass of them to babylon. they took away also the pots of brass, and the mazers, and the forks, and the cups, and the mortars, and all the vessels of brass with which they ministered. moreover also the censers, and the bowls, such as were of gold in gold, and such as were of silver in silver, the general of the army took away. that is, two pillars, one sea, and the bases which solomon had made in the temple of the lord: the brass of all these vessels was without weight. one pillar was eighteen cubits high, and the chapter of brass which was upon it was three cubits high: and the network, and the pomegranates that were upon the chapter of the pillar, were all of brass: and the second pillar had the like adorning. and the general of the army took seraia the chief priest, and sophonias the second priest, and three doorkeepers. and out of the city one eunuch, who was captain over the men of war: and five men of them that had stood before the king, whom he found in the city, and sopher the captain of the army who exercised the young soldiers of the people of the land: and threescore men of the common people, who were found in the city. these nabuzardan the general of the army took away, and carried them to the king of babylon to reblatha. and the king of babylon smote them, and slew them at reblatha in the land of emath: so juda was carried away out of their land. but over the people that remained in the land of juda, which nabuchodonosor king of babylon had left, he gave the government to godolias the son of ahicam the son of saphan. and when all the captains of the soldiers had heard this, they and the men that were with them, to wit, that the king of babylon had made godolias governor, they came to godolias to maspha, ismael the son of nathanias, and johanen the son of caree, and saraia the son of thanhumeth the netophathite, and jezonias the son of maachathi, they and their men. and godolias swore to them and to their men, saying: be not afraid to serve the chaldees: stay in the land, and serve the king of babylon, and it shall be well with you. but it came to pass in the seventh month, that ismael the son of nathanias, the son of elisama of the seed royal came, and ten men with him: and smote godolias so that he died: and also the jews and the chaldees that were with him in maspha. and all the people both little and great, and the captains of the soldiers, rising up went to egypt, fearing the chaldees. and it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of joachin king of juda, in the twelfth month the seven and twentieth day of the month: evilmerodach king of babylon, in the year that he began to reign, lifted up the head of joachin king of juda out of prison. and he spoke kindly to him: and he set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in babylon. and he changed his garments which he had in prison, and he ate bread always before him, all the days of his life. and he appointed him a continual allowance, which was also given him by the king day by day, all

the vision of isaiahs the son of amos i which he saw concerning juda and jerusalem in the days of ozias, joathan, achaz, and ezechias, kings of juda hear, o ye heavens, and give ear, o earth, for the lord hath spoken. i have brought up children, and exalted them: but they have despised me. the ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but israel hath not known me, and my people hath not understood. woe to the sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, a wicked seed, ungracious children: they have forsaken the lord, they have blasphemed the holy one of israel, they are gone away backwards. for what shall i strike you any more, you that increase transgression? the whole head is sick, and the whole heart is sad. from the sole of the foot unto the top of the head, there is no soundness therein: wounds and bruises and swelling sores: they are not bound up, nor dressed, nor fomented with oil. your land is desolate, your cities are burnt with fire: your country strangers devour before your face, and it shall be desolate as when wasted by enemies. and the daughter of sion shall be left as a covert in a vineyard, and as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, and as a city that is laid waste. except the lord of hosts had left us seed, we had been as sodom, and we should have been like to gomor-rha. hear the word of the lord, ye rulers of sodom, give ear to the law of our god, ye people of gomor-rha. to what purpose do you offer me the multitude of your victims, saith the lord? i am full, i desire not holocausts of rams, and fat of fatlings, and blood of calves, and lambs, and buck goats. when you came to appear before me, who required these things at your hands, that you should walk in my courts? offer sacrifice no more in vain: incense is an abomination to me. the new moons, and the sabbaths, and other festivals i will not abide, your assemblies are wicked. my soul hateth your new moons, and your solemnities: they are become troublesome to me, i am weary of bearing them. and when you stretch forth your hands, i will turn away my eyes from you: and when you multiply prayer, i will not hear: for your hands are full of blood. wash yourselves, be clean, take away the evil of your devices from my eyes: cease to do perversely, learn to do well: seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge for the fatherless, defend the widow. and then come, and accuse me, saith the lord: if your sins be as scarlet, they shall be made as white as snow: and if they be red as crimson, they shall be white as wool. if you be willing, and will hearken to me, you shall eat the good things of the land. but if you will not, and will provoke me to wrath: the sword shall devour you because the mouth of the lord hath spoken it. how is the faithful city, that was full of judgment, become a harlot? justice dwelt in it, but now murderers. thy silver is turned into dress: thy wine is mingled with water. thy princes are faithless, companions of thieves: they all love bribes, the run after rewards. they judge not for the fatherless: and the widow's cometh not in to them. therefore saith the lord the god of hosts, the mighty one of israel: ah! i will comfort myself over my adversaries: and i will be

revenged of my enemies. and i will turn my hand to thee, and i will clean purge away thy dress, and i will take away all thy tin. and i will restore thy judges as they were before, and thy counsellors as of old. after this thou shalt be called the city of the just, a faithful city. sion shall be redeemed in judgment, and they shall bring her back in justice. and he shall destroy the wicked, and the sinners together: and they that have forsaken the lord, shall be consumed. for they shall be confounded for the idols, to which they have sacrificed: and you shall be ashamed of the gardens which you have chosen. when you shall be as an oak with the leaves falling off, and as a garden without water. and your strength shall be as the ashes of tow, and your work as a spark: and both shall burn together, and there shall be none to quench it.

the word that isaiahs the son of amos saw, concerning juda and jerusalem. and in the last days the mountain of the house of the lord shall be prepared on the top of mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills, and all nations shall flow unto it. and many people shall go, and say: come and let us go up to the mountain of the lord, and to the house of the god of jacob, and he will teach us his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall come forth from sion, and the word of the lord from jerusalem. and he shall judge the gentiles, and rebuke many people: and they shall turn their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into sickles: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they be exercised any more to war. o house of jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the lord. for thou hast cast off thy people, the house of jacob: because they are filled as in times past, and have had soothsayers as the philistines, and have adhered to strange children. their land is filled with silver and gold: and there is no end of their treasures. and their land is filled with horses: and their chariots are innumerable. their land also is full of idols: they have adored the work of their own hands, which their own fingers have made. and man hath bowed himself down, and man hath been debased: therefore forgive them not. enter thou into the rock, and hide thee in the pit from the face of the fear of the lord, and from the glory of his majesty. the lofty eyes of man are humbled, and the haughtiness of men shall be made to stoop: and the lord alone shall be exalted in that day. because the day of the lord of hosts shall be upon every one that is proud and highminded, and upon every one that is arrogant, and he shall be humbled. and upon all the tall and lofty cedars of libanus, and upon all the oaks of basan. and upon all the high mountains, and upon all the elevated hills. and upon every high tower, and every fenced wall. and upon all the ships of tharsis, and upon all that is fair to behold. and the loftiness of men shall be bowed down, and the haughtiness of men shall be humbled, and the lord alone shall be exalted in that day. and idols shall be utterly destroyed. and they shall go into the holes of rocks, and into the caves of the earth from the face of the fear of the lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he shall rise up to strike the earth. in that day a man shall cast away his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which he had made for himself to adore, moles and bats. and he shall go into the clefts of rocks, and into the holes of stones from the face of the fear of the lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he shall rise up to strike the earth. cease ye therefore from the man, whose breath is in his nostrils, for he is reputed high.

for behold the sovereign the lord of hosts shall take away from jerusalem, and from juda the valiant and the strong, the whole strength of bread, and the whole strength of water. the strong man, and the man of war, the judge, and the prophet, and the cunning man, and the ancient. the captain over fifty, and the honourable in countenance, and the counsellor, and the architect, and the skilful in eloquent speech. and i will give children to be their princes, and the effeminate shall rule over them. and the people shall rush one upon another, and every man against his neighbour: the child shall make it tumult against the ancient, and the base against the honourable. for a man shall take hold of his brother, one of the house of his father, saying: thou hast a garment, be thou our ruler, and let this ruin be under thy hand. in that day he shall answer, saying: i am no healer, and in my house there is no bread, nor clothing: make me not ruler of the people. for jerusalem is ruined, and juda is fallen: because their tongue, and their devices are against the lord, to provoke the eyes of his majesty. the shew of their countenance hath answered them: and they have proclaimed abroad their sin as sodom, and they have not hid it: woe to their souls, for evils are rendered to them. say to the just man that it is well, for he shall eat the fruit of his doings. woe to the wicked unto evil: for the reward of his hands shall be given him. as for my people, their oppressors have stripped them, and women have ruled over them. o my people, they that call thee blessed, the same deceive thee, and destroy the way of thy steps. the lord standeth up to judge, and he standeth to judge the people. the lord will enter into judgment with the ancients of his people, and its princes: for you have devoured the vineyard, and the spoil of the poor is in your house. why do you consume my people, and grind the faces of the poor? saith the lord the god of hosts. and the lord said: because the daughters of sion are haughty, and have walked with stretched out necks, and wanton glances of their eyes, and made a noise as they walked with their feet and moved in a set pace: the lord will make bald the crown of the head of the daughters of sion, and the lord will discover their hair. in that day the lord will take away the ornaments of shoes, end little moons, and chains and necklaces, and bracelets, and bonnets, and bodkins, and ornaments of the legs, and tablets, and sweet balls, and earrings, and rings, and jewels hanging on the forehead, and changes of apparel, and short cloaks, and fine linen, and crisping pins, and looking-glasses, and lawns, and headbands, and fine veils. and instead of a sweet smell

there shall be stench, and instead of a girdle, a cord, and instead of curled hair, baldness, and instead of a stomacher, haircloth. thy fairest men also shall fall by the sword, and thy valiant ones in battle. and her gates shall lament and mourn, and she shall sit desolate on the ground.

and in that day seven women shall take hold of one man, saying: we will eat our own bread, and wear our own apparel: only let us be called by thy name, take away our reproach. in that day the bud of the lord shall be in magnificence and glory, and the fruit of the earth shall be high, and a great joy to them that shall have escaped of israel. and it shall come to pass, that every one that shall be left in sion, and that shall remain in jerusalem, shall be called holy, every one that is written in life in jerusalem. if the lord shall wash away the filth of the daughters of sion, and shall wash away the blood of jerusalem out of the midst thereof, by the spirit of judgment, and by the spirit of burning. and the lord will create upon every place of mount sion, and where he is called upon, a cloud by day, and a smoke and the brightness of a flaming fire in the night: for over all the glory shall be a protection. and there shall be a tabernacle for a shade in the daytime from the heat, and for a security and covert from the whirlwind, and from rain.

will sing to my beloved the canticle of my cousin concerning his vineyard. my beloved had a vineyard on a hill in a fruitful place. and he fenced it in, and picked the stones out of it, and planted it with the choicest vines, and built a tower in the midst thereof, and set up a winepress therein: and he looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes. and now, o ye inhabitants of jerusalem, and ye men of juda, judge between me and my vineyard. what is there that i ought to do more to my vineyard, that i have not done to it? was it that i looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it hath brought forth wild grapes? and now i will shew you what i will do to my vineyard. i will take away the hedge thereof, and it shall be wasted: i will break down the wall thereof, and it shall be trodden down. and i will make it desolate: it shall not be pruned, and it shall not be digged: but briers and thorns shall come up: and i will command the clouds to rain no rain upon it. for the vineyard of the lord of hosts is the house of israel: and the man of juda, his pleasant plant: and i looked that he should do judgment, and behold iniquity: and do justice, and behold a cry. woe to you that join house to house and lay field to field, even to the end of the place: shall you alone dwell in the midst of the earth? these things are in my ears, saith the lord of hosts: unless many great and fair houses shall become desolate, without an inhabitant. for ten acres of vineyard shall yield one little measure, and thirty bushels of seed shall yield three bushels. woe to you that rise up early in the morning to follow drunkenness, and to drink till the evening, to be inflamed with wine. the harp, and the lyre, and the timbrel, and the pipe, and wine are in your feasts: and the work of the lord you regard not, nor do you consider the works of his hands. therefore is my people led away captive, because they had not knowledge, and their nobles have perished with famine, and their multitude were dried up with thirst. therefore hath hell enlarged her soul, and opened her mouth without any bounds, and their strong ones, and their people, and their high and glorious ones shall go down into it. and man shall be brought down, and man shall be humbled, and the eyes of the lofty shall be brought low. and the lord of hosts shall be exalted in judgment, and the holy god shall be sanctified in justice. and the lambs shall feed according to their order, and strangers shall eat the deserts turned into fruitfulness. woe to you that draw iniquity with cords of vanity, and sin as the rope of a cart. that say: let him make haste, and let his work come quickly, that we may see it: and let the counsel of the holy one of israel come, that we may know it. woe to you that call evil good, and good evil: that put darkness for light, and light for darkness: that put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter. woe to you that rue wise in your own eyes, and prudent in your own conceits. woe to you that are mighty to drink wine, and stout men at drunkenness. that justify the wicked for gifts, and take away the justice of the just from him. therefore as the tongue of the fire devoureth the stubble, and the heat of the dame consumeth it: so shall their root be as ashes, and their bud shall go up as dust: for they have cast away the law of the lord of hosts, and have blasphemed the word of the holy one of israel. therefore is the wrath of the lord kindled against his people, and he hath stretched out his hand upon them, and struck them: and the mountains were troubled, and their carcasses became as dung in the midst of the streets. for all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still. and he will lift up a sign to the nations afar off, and will whistle to them from the ends of the earth: and behold they shall come with speed swiftly. there is none that shall faint, nor labour among them: they shall not slumber nor sleep, neither shall the girdle of their loins be loosed, nor the latchet of their shoes be broken. their arrows are sharp, and all their bows are bent. the hoofs of their horses shall be like the hint, and their wheels like the violence of a tempest. their roaring like that of a lion, they shall roar like young lions: yea they shall roar, and take hold of the prey, and they shall keep fast hold of it, and there shall be none to deliver it. and they shall make a noise against them that day, like the roaring of the sea; we shall look towards the land, and behold darkness of tribulation, and the light is darkened with the mist thereof.

in the year that king ozias died, i saw the lord sitting upon a throne high and elevated: and his train filled the temple. upon it stood the seraphims: the one had six wings, and the other had six wings: with two they covered his face, and with two they covered his feet, and with two they hew. and they cried one to another, and said: holy, holy, holy, the lord god of hosts, all the earth is full of his glory. and the lintels of the doors were moved at the voice of him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke. and i said: woe is me, because i have held my peace; because i am a man of unclean lips, and i dwell in the midst of a people that hath unclean lips, and i have seen with my eyes the king the lord of hosts. and one of the seraphims flew to me, and in his hand was a live coal, which he had taken with the tongs off the altar. and he touched my mouth, and said: behold this hath touched thy lips, and thy iniquities shall be taken away, and thy sin shall be cleansed. and i heard the voice of the lord, saying: whom shall i send? and who shall go for us? and i said: lo, here am i, send me. and he said: go, and thou shalt say to this people: hearing, hear, and understand not: see the vision, and know it not. blind the heart of this people, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes: lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted and i heal them. and i said: how long, o lord? and he said: until the cities be wasted without inhabitant, and the houses without man, and the land shall be left desolate. and the lord shall remove men far away, and she shall be multiplied that was left in the midst of the earth. and there shall be still a tithing therein, and she shall turn, and shall be made a show as a turpentine tree, and as an oak that spreadeth its branches: that which shall stand therein, shall be a holy seed.

and it came to pass in the days of achaz the son of joathan, the son of ozias, king of juda, that basin king of syria, and phacee the son of romelia king of israel, came up to jerusalem, to fight against it: but they could not prevail over it. and they told the house of david, saying: syria hath rested upon ephraim, and his heart was moved, and the heart of his people, as the trees of the woods are moved with the wind. and the lord said to isaia: go forth to meet achaz, thou and jasub thy son that is left, to the conduit of the upper pool, a in the way of the fuller's held. and thou shalt say to him: see thou be quiet: fear not, and let not thy heart be afraid of the two tails of these fire brands, smoking with the wrath of the fury of rasin king of syria, end of the son of romelia. because syria hath taken counsel against thee, unto the evil of ephraim and the son of romelia, saying: let us go up to juda, and rouse it up, and draw it away to us, and make the son of tabel king in the midst thereof. thus saith the lord god: it shall not stand, and this shall not be. but the head of syria is damascus, and the head of damascus is basin: and within threescore and five years, ephraim shall cease to be a people: and the head of ephraim is samaria and the head of samaria the son of romelia. if you will not believe, you shall not continue. and the lord spoke again to achaz, saying: ask thee a sign of the lord thy god either unto the depth of hell, or unto the height above. and achaz said: i will not ask, and i will not tempt the lord. and he said: hear ye therefore, o house of david: is it a small thing for you to be grievous to men, that you are grievous to my god also? therefore the lord himself shall give you a sign. behold a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and his name shall be called emmanuel. he shall eat butter and honey, that he may know to refuse the evil, and to choose the good. for before the child know to refuse the evil, and to choose the good, the land which thou abhorrest shall be forsaken of the face of her two kings. the lord shall bring upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon the house of thy father, days that have not come since the time of the separation of ephraim from juda with the king of the assyrians. and it shall come to pass in that day, that the lord shall hiss for the fly, that is in the uttermost parts of the rivers of egypt, and for the bee that is in the land of assyria. and they shall come, and shall all of them rest in the torrents of the valleys, and in the holes of the rocks, and upon all places set with shrubs, and in all hollow places. in that day the lord shall shave with a razor that is hired by them that are beyond the river, by the king of the assyrians, the head and the hairs of the feet, and the whole beard. and it shall come to pass in that day, that a man shall nourish a young cow, and two sheep. and for the abundance of milk he shall eat butter: for butter and honey shall every one eat that shall be left in the midst of the land. and it shall come to pass in that day, that every place where there were a thousand vines, at a thousand pieces of silver, shall become thorns and briers. with arrows and with bows they shall go in thither: for briers and thorns shall be in all the land. and as for all the hills that shall be raked with a rake, the fear of thorns and briers shall not come thither, but they shall be for the ox to feed on, and the lesser cattle to tread upon.

and the lord said to me: take thee a great book, and write in it with a man's pen. take sway the spoils with speed, quickly take the prey. and i took unto me faithful witnesses, urias the priest, and zacharias the son of barachias. and i went to the prophetess, and she conceived, and bore a son. and the lord said to me: call his name, hasten to take away the spoils: make haste to take away the prey. for before the child know to call his father and his mother, the strength of damascus, and the spoils of samaria shall be taken away before the king of the assyrians. and the lord spoke to me again, saying: forasmuch as this people hath cast away the waters of siloe, that go with silence, and hath rather taken basin, and the son of romelia: therefore behold the lord will bring upon them the waters of the river strong and many, the king of the assyrians, and all his glory: and he shall come up over all his channels, and shall overflow all his banks, and shall pass through juda, overflowing, and going over shall reach even to the neck. and the stretching out of his wings shall fill the breadth of thy land, o emmanuel. gather yourselves together, o ye people, and be overcome, and give ear, all ye lands afar off: strengthen yourselves, end be overcome, gird yourselves, and be overcome. take counsel together, and it shall be defeated: speak a word, and it shall not be done: because god is with us. for thus saith the lord to me: as he hath taught me, with a strong arm, that i should not walk in the way of this people, saying: say ye not: a conspiracy: for all that this people speaketh, is a conspiracy: neither fear ye their fear, nor be afraid. sanctify the lord of hosts himself: and let him be your fear, and let him be your dread. and he shall be a sanctification to you. but for a stone or stumbling, and for a rock of offence to the two houses of israel, for a snare and a ruin to the inhabitants of jerusalem. and very many of them shall stumble and fall, and shall be broken in pieces, and shall be snared, and taken. bind up the testimony, seal the law among my disciples. and i will wait for the lord, who hath hid his face from the house of jacob, and i will look for him. behold i and my children, whom the lord hath given me for a sign, and for a wonder in israel from the lord of hosts, who dwelleth in mount sion. and when they shall say to you: seek of pythons, and of diviners, who mutter in their enchantments: should not the people seek of their god, for the living of the dead? to the law rather, and to the testimony. and if they speak not according to this word, they shall not have the morning light. and they shall pass by it, they shall fall, and be hungry: and when they shall be hungry, they will be angry, and curse their king, and their god, and look upwards. and they shall look to the earth, and behold trouble and darkness, weakness and distress, and a mist following them, and they cannot fly away from their distress.

at the first time the land of zabulon, and the land of nephtali was lightly touched: and at the last the way of the sea beyond the jordan of the galilee of the gentiles was heavily loaded. the people that walked in darkness, have seen a great light: to them that dwelt in the region of the shadow of death, light is risen. thou hast multiplied the nation, and hast not increased the joy. they shall rejoice before thee, as they that rejoice in the harvest, as conquerors rejoice after taking a prey, when they divide the spoils. for the yoke of their burden, and the rod of their shoulder, and the sceptre of their oppressor thou best overcome, as in the day of median. for every violent taking of spoils, with tumult, and garment mingled with blood, shall be burnt, and be fuel for the fire. for a child is born to us, and a son is given to us, and the government is upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called, wonderful, counsellor, god the mighty, the father of the world to come, the prince of peace. his empire shall be multiplied, and there shall be no end of peace: he shall sit upon the throne of david, and upon his kingdom: to establish it and strengthen it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth and for ever: the zeal of the lord of hosts will perform this. the lord sent a word unto jacob, and it hath lighted upon israel. and all the people of ephraim shall know, and the inhabitants of samaria that say in the pride and haughtiness of their heart: the bricks are fallen down, but we will build with square stones: they have cut down the sycamores, but we will change them for cedars. and the lord shall set up the enemies of sion over him, and shall bring on his enemies in a crowd: the syrians from the east, and the philistines from the west: and they shall devour israel with open mouth, for all this his indignation is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still. and the people are not returned to him who hath struck them, and have not sought after the lord of hosts. and the lord shall destroy out of israel the head and the tail, him that bendeth down, and him that holdeth back, in one day. the aged and honourable, he is the head: and the prophet that teacheth lies, he is the tail. and they that call this people blessed, shall cause them to err: and they that are called blessed, shall be thrown down headlong. therefore the lord shall have no joy in their young men: neither shall he have mercy on their fatherless, and widows: for every one is a hypocrite and wicked, and every mouth hath spoken folly. for all this his indignation is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still. for wickedness is kindled as a fire, it shall devour the brier and the thorn: and shall kindle in the thicket of the forest, and it shall be wrapped up in smoke ascending on high. by the wrath of the lord of hosts the land is troubled, and the people shall be as fuel for the fire: no man shall spare his brother. and he shall turn to the right hand, and shall be hungry: and shall eat on the left hand, and shall not be filled: every one shall eat the flesh of his own arm: manasses ephraim, and ephraim manasses, and they together shall be against juda. after all these things his indignation is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still.

woe to them that make wicked laws: and when they write, write injustice: to oppress the poor in judgment, and do violence to the cause of the humble of my people: that widows might be their prey, and that they might rob the fatherless. what will you do in the day of visitation, and of the calamity which cometh from afar? to whom will ye flee for help? and where will ye leave your glory? that you be not bowed down under the bond, and fall with the slain? in all these things his anger is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still. woe to the assyrian, he is the rod and the staff of my anger, and my indignation is in their hands. i will send him to a deceitful nation, and i will give him a charge against the people of my wrath, to take away the spoils, and to lay hold on the prey, and to tread them down like the mire of the streets. but he shall not take it so, and his heart shall not think so: but his heart shall be set to destroy, and to cut off nations not a few. for he shall say: are not my princes as so many kings? is not calno as charcamis: and emath as arphad? is not samaria as damascus? as my hand hath found the king- dome of the idol, so also their idols of jerusalem, and of samaria. shall i not, as i have done to samaria and her idols, so do to jerusalem and her idols? and it shall come to pass, that when the lord shall have performed all his works in mount sion, and in jerusalem, i will visit the fruit of the proud heart of the king of assyria, and the glory of the haughtiness of his eyes. for he hath said: by the strength of my own hand i have done it, and by my own wisdom i have understood: and i have removed the bounds of the people, and have taken the spoils of the princes, and as a mighty man hath pulled down them that sat on high. and my hand hath found the strength of the people as a nest; and as eggs are gathered, that are left, so have i gathered all the earth: and there was none that moved the wing, or opened the mouth, or made the least noise. shall the axe boast itself against him that cutteth with it? or shall the saw exalt itself against him by whom it is drawn? as if a rod should lift itself up against him that lifeth it up, and a staff exalt itself, which is but wood. therefore the sovereign lord, the lord of hosts, shall send leanness among his fat ones: and under his glory shall be kindled a burning, as it were the burning of a fire. and the light of israel shall be as a fire, and the holy one thereof as a flame: and his thorns and his briers shall be set on fire, and shall be devoured in one day. and the glory of his forest, and of his beautiful hill, shall be consumed from the soul even to the flesh, and he shall run away through fear. and they that remain of the trees of his forest shall be so few, that they shall easily be numbered, and a child shall write them down. and it shall come to pass in that day, that the remnant of israel, and they that shall escape of the house of jacob, shall lean no more upon him that striketh them: but they shall lean upon the lord the holy one of israel, in truth. the remnant shall be converted, the remnant, i say, of jacob, to the mighty god. for if thy people, o israel, shall be as the sand of the sea, a remnant of them shall be converted, the consumption abridged shall overflow with justice. for the lord god of hosts shall make a consumption, and an abridgment in the midst of all the land. therefore, thus saith the lord the god of hosts: o my people that dwellest in sion, be not afraid of the assyrian: he shall strike thee with his rod, and he shall lift up his staff over thee in the way of egypt. for yet a little and a very little while, and my indignation shall cease, and my wrath shall be upon their wickedness. and the lord of hosts shall raise up a scourge against him, according to the slaughter of madian in the rock of oreb, and his rod over the sea, and he shall lift it up in the way of egypt. and it shall come to pass in that day, that his burden shall be taken away from off thy shoulder, and his yoke from off thy neck, and the yoke shall putrify at the presence of the oil. he shall come into aiath, he shall pass into magron: at machmas he shall lay up his carriages. they have passed in haste, gaba is our lodging: rama was astonished, gabaath of saul fled away. lift up thy voice, o daughter of gallim, attend, o laisa, poor anathoth. medemena is removed: ye inhabitants of gabim, take courage. it is yet day enough, to remain in nobe: he shall shake his hand against the mountain of the daughter of sion, the hill of jerusalem. behold the sovereign lord of hosts shall break the earthen vessel with terror, and the tall of stature shall be cut down, and the lofty shall be humbled. and the thickets of the forest shall be cut down with iron, and libanus with its high ones shall fall.

and there shall come forth a rod out of the root of jesse, and a flower shall rise up out of his root. and the spirit of the lord shall rest upon him: the spirit of wisdom, and of understanding, the spirit of counsel, and of fortitude, the spirit of knowledge, and of godliness. and he shall be filled with the spirit of the fear of the lord. he shall not judge according to the sight of the eyes, nor reprove according to the hearing of the ears, but he shall judge the poor with justice, and shall reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: land he shall strike the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips he shall slay the wicked. and justice shall be the girdle of his loins: and faith the girdle of his reins. the wolf shall dwell with the lamb: and the leopard shall lie down with the kid: the calf and the lion, and the sheep shall abide together, and a little child shall lead them. the calf and the bear shall feed: their young ones shall rest together: and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. and the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp: and the weaned child shall thrust his hand into the den of the basilisk. they shall not hurt, nor shall they kill in all my holy mountain, for the earth is filled with the knowledge of the lord, as the covering waters of the sea. in that day the root of jesse, who standeth for an ensign of the people, him the gentiles shall beseech, and his sepulchre shall be glorious. and it shall come to pass in that day, that the lord shall set his hand the second time to possess the remnant of his people, which shall be left from the assyrians, and from egypt, and from phetros, and from ethiopia, and from elam, and from sennaar, and from emath, and from the islands of the sea. and he shall set up a standard unto the nations, and shall assemble the fugitives of israel, and shall gather together the dispersed of juda from the four quarters of the earth. and the envy of ephraim shall be taken away, and the enemies of juda shall perish: ephraim shall not envy juda, and juda shall not fight against ephraim. but they shall fly upon the shoulders of the philistines by the sea, they together shall spoil the children of the east: edom, and moab shall be under the rule of their hand, and the children of ammon shall be obedient. and the lord shall lay waste the tongue of the sea of egypt, and shall lift up his hand over the river in the strength of his spirit: and he shall strike it in the seven streams, so that men may pass through it in their shoes. and there shall be a highway for the remnant of my people, which shall be left from the assyrians: as there was for israel in the day that he came up out of the land of egypt.

and thou shalt say in that day: i will give thanks to thee, o lord, for thou wast angry with me: thy wrath is turned away, and thou hast comforted me. behold, god is my saviour, i will deal confidently, and will not fear: o because the lord is my strength, and my praise, and he is become my salvation. you shall draw waters with joy out of the saviour's fountains: and you shall say in that day: praise ye the lord, and call upon his name: make his works known among the people: remember that his name is high. sing ye to the lord, for he hath done great things: shew this forth in all the earth. rejoice, and praise, o thou habitation of sion: for great is he that is in the midst of thee, the holy one of israel.

the burden of babylon, which isaias the son of amos saw. upon the dark mountain lift ye up a banner, exalt the voice, lift up the hand, and let the rulers go into the gates. i have commanded my sanctified ones, and have called my strong ones in my wrath, them that rejoice in my glory. the noise of a multitude in the mountains, as it were of many people, the noise of the sound of kings, of nations gathered together: the lord of hosts hath given charge to the troops of war. to them that come from a country afar off, from the end of heaven: tile lord and the instruments of his wrath, to destroy the whole land. howl ye, for the day of the lord is near: it shall come as a destruction from the lord. therefore shall all hands be faint, and every heart of man shall melt, and shall be broken. gripings and pains shall take hold of them, they shall be in pain as a woman in labour. every one shall be amazed at his neighbour, their countenances shall be as faces burnt. behold, the day of the lord shall come, a cruel day, and full of indignation, and of wrath, and fury, to lay the land desolate, and to destroy the sinners thereof out of it. for the stars of heaven, and their brightness shall not display their light: the sun shall be darkened in his rising, and the moon shall not shine with her light. and i will visit the evils of the world, and against the wicked for their iniquity: and i will make the pride of infidels to cease, and will bring down the arrogance of the mighty. a man shall be more precious than gold, yea a man than the finest of gold. for this i will trouble the heaven: and the earth shall be moved out of her place, for the indignation of the lord of hosts, and for the day of his tierce wrath. and they shall be as a doe fleeing away, and as a sheep: and there shall be none to gather them together: every man shall turn to his own people, and every one shall flee to his own land. every one that shall be found, shall be slain: and every one that shall come to their aid, shall fall by the sword. their infants shall be dashed in pieces before their eyes: their houses shall be pillaged, and their wives shall be ravished. behold i will stir up the medes against them, who shall not seek silver, nor desire gold: but with their arrows they shall kill the children, and shall have no pity upon the sucklings of the womb, and their eye shall not spare their sons. and that babylon, glorious among kingdoms, the famous pride of the chaldeans, shall be even as the lord destroyed sodom and gomorrhah. it shall no more be inhabited for ever, and it shall not be founded unto generation and generation: neither shall the arabian pitch his tents there, nor shall shepherds rest there. but wild beasts shall rest there, and their houses shall be filled with serpents, and ostriches shall dwell there, and the hairy ones shall dance there: and owls shall answer one another there, in the houses thereof, and sirens in the temples of pleasure.

her time is near at hand, and her days shall not be prolonged. for the lord will have mercy on jacob, and will yet choose out of israel, and will make them rest upon their own ground: and the stranger shall be joined with them, and shall adhere to the house of jacob. and the people shall take them, and bring them into their place: and the house of israel shall possess them in the land of the lord for servants and handmaids: and they shall make them captives that had taken them, and shall subdue their oppressors. and it shall come to pass in that day, that when god shall give thee rest from thy labour, and from thy vexation, and from the hard bondage, wherewith thou didst serve before, thou shalt take up this parable against the king of babylon, and shalt say: how is the oppressor come to nothing, the tribute hath ceased? the lord hath broken the staff of the wicked, the rod of the rulers, that struck the people in wrath with an incurable wound, that brought nations under in fury, that persecuted in a cruel manner. the whole earth is quiet and still, it is glad and hath rejoiced. the fir trees also have rejoiced over thee, and the cedars of libanus, saying: since thou hast slept, there hath none come up to cut us down. hell below was in an uproar to meet thee at thy coming, it stirred up the giants for thee. all the princes of the earth are risen up from their thrones, all the princes of nations. all shall answer, and say to thee: thou also art wounded as well as we, thou art become like unto us. hy pride is brought down to hell, thy carcass is fallen down: under thee shall the moth be strewed, and worms shall be thy covering. how art thou fallen from heaven, o lucifer, who didst rise in the morning? how art thou fallen to the earth, that didst wound the nations? and thou saidst in thy heart: i will ascend into heaven, i will exalt my throne above the stars of god, i will sit in the mountain of the covenant, in the sides of the north. i will ascend above the height of the clouds, i will be like the most high. but yet thou shalt be brought down to hell, into the depth of the pit. they that shall see thee, shall turn toward thee, and behold thee. is this the man that troubled the earth, that shook kingdoms, that made the world a wilderness, and destroyed the cities thereof, that opened not the prison to his prisoners? all the kings of the nations have all of them slept in glory, every one in his own house. but thou art cast out of thy grave, as an unprofitable branch defiled, and wrapped up among them that were slain by the sword, and art gone down to the bottom of the pit, as a rotten carcass. thou shalt not keep company with them, even in burial: for thou hast destroyed thy land, thou hast slain thy people: the seed of the wicked shall not be named for ever. prepare his children for slaughter for the iniquity of their fathers: they shall not rise up, nor inherit the land, nor fill the face of the world with cities. and i will rise up against them, saith the lord of hosts: and i will destroy the name of babylon, and the remains, and the bud, and the offspring, saith the lord. and i will make it a possession for the ericuis and pools of waters, and i will sweep it and wear it out with a besom, saith the lord of hosts. the lord of hosts hath sworn, saying: surely as i have thought, so shall it be: and as i have purposed, so shall it fall out: that i will destroy the assyrian in my land, and upon my mountains tread him under foot: and his yoke shall be taken away from them, and his burden shall be taken off their shoulder. this is the counsel, that i have purposed upon all the earth, and this is the hand that is stretched out upon all nations. for the lord of hosts hath decreed, and who can disannul it? and his hand is stretched out: and who shall turn it away? in the year that king achaz died, was this burden: rejoice not thou, whole philistia, that the rod of him that struck thee is broken in pieces: for out of the root of the serpent shall come forth a basilisk, and his seed shall swallow the bird. and the firstborn of the poor shall be fed, and the poor shall rest with confidence: and i will make thy root perish with famine, and i will kill thy remnant. howl, o gate; cry, o city: all philistia is thrown down: for a smoke shall come from the north, and there is none that shall escape his troop. and what shall be answered to the messengers of the nations? that the lord hath founded sion, and the poor of his people shall hope in him.

the burden of moab. because in the night ar of moab is laid waste, it is silent: because the wall of moab is destroyed in the night, it is silent. the house is gone up, and dibon to the high places to mourn over nabo, and over medaba, moab hath howled: ton all their heads shall be baldness, and every beard shall be shaven. in their streets they are girded with sackcloth: on the tops of their houses, and in their streets all shall howl and come down weeping. hesebon shall cry, and eleale, their voice is heard even to jasa. for this shall the well appointed men of moab howl, his soul shall howl to itself. my heart shall cry to moab, the bars thereof shall flee unto segor a heifer of three years old: for by the ascent of luith they shall go up weeping: and in the way of oronaim they shall lift up a cry of destruction. for the waters of nemrim shall be desolate, for the grass is withered away, the spring is faded, all the greenness is perished. according to the greatness of their work, is their visitation also: they shall lead them to the torrent of the willows. for the cry is gone round about the border of moab: the howling thereof unto gallim, and unto the well of elim the cry thereof. for the waters of dibon are filled with blood: for i will bring more upon dibon: the lion upon them that shall flee of moab, and upon the remnant of the land.

send forth, o lord, the lamb, the ruler of the earth, from petra of the desert, to the mount of the daughter of sion. and it shall come to pass, that as a bird fleeing away, and as young ones flying out of the nest, so shall the daughters of moab be in the passage of arnon. take counsel, gather a council: make thy shadow as the night in the midday: hide them that flee, and betray not them that wander about. my fugitives shall dwell with thee: o moab, be thou a covert to them from the face of the destroyer: for the dust is at an end, the wretch is consumed: he hath failed, that trod the earth under foot. and a throne shall be prepared in mercy, and one shall sit upon it in truth in the tabernacle of david, judging and seeking judgment and quickly rendering that which is just. we have heard of the pride of moab, he is exceeding proud: his pride and his arrogancy, and his indignation is more than his strength. therefore shall moab howl to moab, every one shall howl: to them that rejoice upon the brick walls, tell ye their stripes. for the suburbs of hesebon are desolate, and the lords of the nations have destroyed the vineyard of sabama: the branches thereof have reached even to jazer: they have wandered in the wilderness, the branches thereof are left, they are gone over the sea. therefore i will lament with the weeping of jazer the vineyard of sabama: i will water thee with my tears, o hesebon, and eleale: for the voice of the treaders hath rushed in upon thy vintage, and upon thy harvest. and gladness and joy shall be taken away from carmel, and there shall be no rejoicing nor shouting in the vineyards. he shall not tread out wine in the press that was wont to tread it out: the voice of the treaders i have taken away. wherefore my bowels shall sound like a harp for moab, and my inward parts for the brick wall. and it shall come to pass, when it is seen that moab is wearied on his high places, that he shall go in to his sanctuaries to pray, and shall not prevail. this is the word, that the lord spoke to moab from that time: and now the lord hath spoken, saying: in three years, as the years of a hireling, the glory of moab shall be taken away for all the multitude of the people, and it shall be left small and feeble, not many.

the burden of damascus. behold damascus shall cease to be a city, and shall be as a ruinous heap of stones. the cities of aroer shall be left for flocks, and they shall rest there, and there shall be none to make them afraid. and aid shall cease from ephraim, and the kingdom from damascus: and the remnant of syria shall be as the glory of the children of israel: saith the lord of hosts. and it shall come to pass in that day, that the glory of jacob shall be made thin, and the fatness of his flesh shall grow lean. and it shall be as when one gathereth in the harvest that which remaineth, and his arm shall gather the ears of corn: and it shall be as he that seeketh ears in the vale of raphaim. and the fruit thereof that shall be left upon it, shall be as one cluster of grapes, and as the shaking of the olive tree, two or three berries in the top of a bough, or four or five upon the top of the tree, saith the lord the god of israel. in that day man shall bow down himself to his maker, and his eyes shall look to the holy one of israel. and he shall not look to the altars which his hands made: and he shall not have respect to the things that his fingers wrought, such as groves and temples. in that day his strong cities shall be forsaken, as the ploughs, and the corn that were left before the face of the children of israel, and thou shalt be desolate. because thou hast forgotten god thy saviour, and hast not remembered thy strong helper: therefore shalt thou plant good plants, and shalt sow strange seed. in the day of thy planting shall be the wild grape, and in the morning thy seed shall flourish: the harvest is taken away in the day of inheritance, and shall grieve thee much. woe to the multitude of many people, like the multitude of the roaring sea: and the tumult of crowds, like the noise of many waters. nations shall make a noise like the noise of waters overflowing, but he shall rebuke him, and he shall flee far off: and he shall be carried away as the dust of the mountains before the wind, and as a whirlwind before a tempest. in the time of the evening, behold there shall be trouble: the morning shall come, and he shall not be: this is the portion of them that have wasted us, and the lot of them that spoiled us.

woe to the land, the winged cymbal, which is beyond the rivers of ethiopia, that sendeth ambassadors by the sea, and in vessels of bulrushes upon the waters. go, ye swift angels, to a nation rent and torn in pieces: to a terrible people, after which there is no other: to a nation expecting and trodden under foot, whose land the rivers have spoiled. all ye inhabitants of the world, who dwell on the earth, when the sign shall be lifted up on the mountains, you shall see, and you shall hear the sound of the trumpet. for thus saith the lord to me: i will take my rest, and consider in my place, as the noon light is clear, and as a cloud of dew in the day of harvest. for before the harvest it was all flourishing, and it shall bud without perfect ripeness, and the sprigs thereof shall be cut off with pruning hooks: and what is left shall be cut away and shaken out. and they shall be left together to the birds of the mountains, and the beasts of the earth: and the fowls shall be upon them all the summer, and all the beasts of the earth shall winter upon them. at that time shall a present be brought to the lord of hosts, from a people rent and torn in pieces: from a terrible people, after which there hath been no other: from a nation expecting, expecting and trodden under foot, whose land the rivers have spoiled, to the place of the name of the lord of hosts, to mount sion.

the burden of egypt. behold the lord will ascend upon a swift cloud, and will enter into egypt, and the idols of egypt shall be moved at his presence, and the heart of egypt shall melt in the midst thereof. and i will set the egyptians to fight against the egyptians: and they shall fight brother against brother, and friend against friend, city against city, kingdom against kingdom. and the spirit of egypt shall be broken in the bowels thereof, and i will cast down their counsel: and they shall consult their idols, and their diviners, and their wizards, and soothsayers. and i will deliver egypt into the hand of cruel masters, and a strong king shall rule over them, saith the lord the god of hosts. and the water of the sea shall be dried up, and the river shall be wasted and dry. and the rivers shall fail: the streams of the banks shall be diminished, and be dried up. the reed and the bulrush shall wither away. the channel of the river shall be laid bare from its fountain, and every thing sown by the water shall be dried up, it shall wither away, and shall be no more. the fishers also shall mourn, and all that cast a hook into the river shall lament, and they that spread nets upon the waters shall languish away. they shall be confounded that wrought in flax, combing and weaving fine linen. and its watery places shall be dry, all they shall mourn that made pools to take fishes. the princes of tanis are become fools, the wise counselors of pharao have given foolish counsel: how will you say to pharao: i am the son of the wise, the son of ancient kings? where are now thy wise men? let them tell thee, and shew what the lord of hosts hath purposed upon egypt. the princes of tanis are become fools, the princes of memphis are gone astray, they have deceived egypt, the stay of the people thereof. the lord hath mingled in the midst thereof the spirit of giddiness: and they have caused egypt to err in all its works, as a drunken man staggereth and vomiteth. and there shall be no work for egypt, to make head or tail, him that bendeth down, or that holdeth back. in that day egypt shall be like unto women, and they shall be amazed, and afraid, because of the moving of the hand of the lord of hosts, which he shall move over it. and the land of juda shall be a terror to egypt: every one that shall remember it shall tremble because of the counsel of the lord of hosts, which he hath determined concerning it. in that day there shall be five cities in the land of egypt, speaking the language of chanaan, and swearing by the lord of hosts: one shall be called the city of the sun. in that day there shall be an altar of the lord in the midst of the land of egypt, and a monument of the lord at the borders thereof: it shall be for a sign, and for a testimony to the lord of hosts in the land of egypt. for they shall cry to the lord because of the oppressor, and he shall send them a saviour and a defender to deliver them. and the lord shall be known by egypt, and the egyptians shall know the lord in that day, and shall worship him with sacrifices and offerings: and they shall make vows to the lord, and perform them. and the lord shall strike egypt with a scourge, and shall heal it, and they shall return to the lord, and he shall be pacified towards them, and heal them. in that day there shall be a way from egypt to the assyrians, and the assyrian shall enter into egypt, and the egyptian to the assyrians, and the egyptians shall serve the assyrian. in that day shall israel be the third to the egyptian and the assyrian: a blessing in the midst of the land, which the lord of hosts hath blessed, saying: blessed be my people of egypt, and the work of my hands to the assyrian: but israel is my inheritance.

in the year that tharthan entered into azotus, when sargon the king of the assyrians had sent him, and he had fought against azotus, and had taken it: at that same time the lord spoke by the hand of isaias the son of amos, saying: go, and loose the sackcloth from off thy loins, and take off thy shoes from thy feet. and he did so, and went naked, and barefoot. and the lord said: as my servant isaias hath walked, naked and barefoot, it shall be a sign and a wonder of three years upon egypt, and upon ethiopia, so shall the king of the assyrians lead away the prisoners of egypt, and the captivity of ethiopia, young and old. naked and barefoot, with their buttocks uncovered to the shame of egypt. and they shall be afraid, and ashamed of ethiopia their hope, and of egypt their glory. and the inhabitants of this isle shall say in that day: lo this was our hope, to whom we fled for help, to deliver up from the face of the king of the assyrians: and how shall we be able to escape?

the burden of the desert of the sea. as whirlwinds come from the south, it cometh from the desert from a terrible land. a grievous vision is told me: he that is unfaithful dealeth unfaithfully: and he that is a spoiler, spoileth. go up, o elam, besiege, o mede: i have made all the mourning thereof to cease. therefore are my loins filled with pain, anguish hath taken hold of me, as the anguish of a woman in labour: i fell down at the hearing of it, i was troubled at the seeing of it. my heart failed, darkness amazed me: babylon my beloved is become a wonder to me. prepare the table, behold in the watchtower them that eat and drink: arise, ye princes, take up the shield. for thus hath the lord said to me: go, and set a watchman: and whatsoever he shall see, let him tell. and he saw a chariot with two horsemen, a rider upon an ass, and a rider upon a camel: and he beheld them diligently with much heed. and a lion cried out: i am upon the watchtower of the lord, standing continually by day: and i am upon my ward, standing whole nights. behold this man cometh, the rider upon the chariot with two horsemen, and he answered, and said: babylon is fallen, she is fallen, and all the graven gods thereof are broken unto the ground. o my thrashing and the children of my door, that which i have heard of the lord of hosts, the god of israel, i have declared unto you. the burden of duma calleth to me out of seir: watchman, what of the eight? watchman, what of the night? the watchman said: the morning cometh, also the night: if you seek, seek: return, come. the burden in arabia. in the forest at evening you shall sleep, in the paths of dedanim. meeting the thirsty bring him water, you that inhabit the land of the south, meet with bread him that fleeth. for they are fled from before the swords, from the sword that hung over them, from the bent bow, from the face of a grievous battle. for thus saith the lord to me: within a year, according to the years of a hireling, all the glory of cedar shall be taken away. and the residue of the number of strong archers of the children of cedar shall be diminished: for the lord the god of israel hath spoken it.

the burden of the valley of vision. what aileth thee also, that thou too art wholly gone up to the house-tops? full of clamour, a populous city, a joyous city: thy slain are not slain by the sword, nor dead in battle. all the princes are fled together, and are bound hard: all that were found, are bound together, they are fled far off. therefore have i said: depart from me, i will weep bitterly: labour not to comfort me, for the devastation of the daughter of my people. for it is a day of slaughter and of treading down, and of weeping to the lord the god of hosts in the valley of vision, searching the wall, and magnificent upon the mountain. and elam took the quiver, the chariot of the horseman, and the shield was taken down from the wall. and thy choice valleys shall be full of chariots, and the horseman shall place themselves in the gate. and the covering of juda shall be discovered, and thou shalt see in that day the armoury of the house of the forest. and you shall see the breaches of the city of david, that they are many: and you have gathered together the waters of the lower pool, and have numbered the houses of jerusalem, and broken down houses to fortify the wall. and you made a ditch between the two walls for the water of the old pool: and you have not looked up to the maker thereof, nor regarded him even at a distance, that wrought it long ago. and the lord, the god of hosts, in that day shall call to weeping, and to mourning, to baldness, and to girding with sackcloth: and behold joy and gladness, killing calves, and slaying rams, eating flesh, and drinking wine: let us eat and drink; for to morrow we shall die. and the voice of the lord of hosts was revealed in my ears: surely this iniquity shall not be forgiven you till you die, saith the lord god of hosts. thus saith the lord god of hosts: go, get thee in to him that dwelleth in the tabernacle, to sobna who is over the temple: and thou shalt say to him: what dost thou here, or as if thou wert somebody here? for thou hast hewed thee out a sepulchre here, thou hast hewed out a monument carefully in a high place, a dwelling for thyself in a rock. behold the lord will cause thee to be carried away, as a cock is carried away, and he will lift thee up as a garment. he will crown thee with a crown of tribulation, he will toss thee like a ball into a large and spacious country: there shalt thou die, and there shall the chariot of thy glory be, the shame of the house of thy lord. and i will drive thee out from thy station, and depose thee from thy ministry. and it shall come to pass in that day, that i will call my servant eliacim the son of helcias, and i will clothe him with thy robe, and will strengthen him with thy girdle, and will give thy power into his hand: and he shall be as a father to the inhabitants of jerusalem, and to the house of juda. and i will lay the key of the house of david upon his shoulder: and he shall open, and none shall shut: and he shall shut, and none shall open. and i will fasten him as a peg in a sure place, and he shall be for a throne of glory to the house of his father. and they shall hang upon him all the glory of his father's house, divers kinds of vessels, every little vessel, from the vessels of cups even to every instrument of music. in that day, saith the lord of hosts, shall the peg be removed, that was fastened in the sure place: and it shall be broken and shall fall: and that which hung thereon, shall perish, because the lord hath spoken it.

the burden of tyre. howl, ye ships of the sea, for the house is destroyed, from whence they were wont to come: from the land of cethim it is revealed to them. be silent, you that dwell in the island: the merchants of sidon passing over the sea, have filled thee. the seed of the Nile in many waters, the harvest of the river is her revenue: and she is become the mart of the nations. be thou ashamed, o sidon: for the sea speaketh, even the strength of the sea, saying: i have not been in labour, nor have i brought forth, nor have i nourished up young men, nor brought up virgins. when it shall be heard in egypt, they will be sorry when they shall hear of tyre: pass over the seas, howl, ye inhabitants of the island. is not this your city, which gloried from of old in her antiquity? her feet shall carry her afar off to sojourn. who hath taken this counsel against tyre, that was formerly crowned, whose merchants were princes, and her traders the nobles of the earth? the lord of hosts hath designed it, to pull down the pride of all glory, and bring to disgrace all the glorious ones of the earth. pass thy land as a river, o daughter of the sea, thou hast a girdle no more. he stretched out his hand over the sea, he troubled kingdoms: the lord hath given a charge against chanaan, to destroy the strong ones thereof. and he said: thou shalt glory no more, o virgin daughter of sidon, who art oppressed: arise and sail over to cethim, there also thou shalt have no rest. behold the land of the chaldeans, there was not such a people, the assyrian founded it: they have led away the strong ones thereof into captivity, they have destroyed the houses thereof, they have brought it to ruin. howl, o ye ships of the sea, for your strength is laid waste. and it shall come to pass in that day that thou, o tyre, shalt be forgotten, seventy years, according to the days of one king: but after seventy years, there shall be unto tyre as the song of a harlot. take a harp, go about the city, thou harlot that hast been forgotten: sing well, sing many a song, that thou mayst be remembered. and it shall come to pass after seventy years, that the lord will visit tyre, and will bring her back again to her traffic: and she shall commit fornication again with all the kingdoms of the world upon the face of the earth. and her merchandise and her hire shall be sanctified to the lord: they shall not be kept in store, nor laid up: for her merchandise shall be for them that shall dwell before the lord, that they may eat unto fulness, and be

behold the lord shall lay waste the earth, and shall strip it, and shall afflict the face thereof, and scatter abroad the inhabitants thereof. and it shall be as with the people, so with the priest: and as with the servant, so with his master: as with the handmaid, so with her mistress: as with the buyer, so with the seller: as with the lender, so with the borrower: as with him that calleth for his money, so with him that oweth. with desolation shall the earth be laid waste, and it shall be utterly spoiled: for the lord hath spoken this word. the earth mourned, and faded away, and is weakened: the world faded away, the height of the people of the earth is weakened. and the earth is infected by the inhabitants thereof: because they have transgressed the laws, they have changed the ordinance, they have broken the everlasting covenant. therefore shall a curse devour the earth, and the inhabitants thereof shall sin: and therefore they that dwell therein shall be mad, and few men shall be left. the vintage hath mourned, the vine hath languished away, all the merryhearted have sighed. the mirth of timbrels hath ceased, the noise of them that rejoice is ended, the melody of the harp is silent. they shall not drink wine with a song: the drink shall be bitter to them that drink it. the city of vanity is broken down, every house is shut up, no man cometh in. there shall be a crying for wine in the streets: all mirth is forsaken: the joy of the earth is gone away. desolation is left in the city, and calamity shall oppress the gates. for it shall be thus in the midst of the earth, in the midst of the people, as if a few olives, that remain, should be shaken out of the olive tree: or grapes, when the vintage is ended. these shall lift up their voice, and shall give praise: when the lord shall be glorified, they shall make a joyful noise from the sea. therefore glorify ye the lord in instruction: the name of the lord god of israel in the islands of the sea. from the ends of the earth we have heard praises, the glory of the just one. and i said: my secret to myself, my secret to myself, woe is me: the prevaricators have prevaricated, and with the prevarication of transgressors they have prevaricated. fear, and the pit, and the snare are upon thee, o thou inhabitant of the earth. and it shall come to pass, that he that shall flee from the noise of the fear, shall fall into the pit: and he that shall rid himself out of the pit, shall be taken in the snare: for the flood-gates from on high are opened, and the foundations of the earth shall be shaken. with breaking shall the earth be broken, with crushing shall the earth be crushed, with trembling shall the earth be moved. with shaking shall the earth be shaken as a drunken man, and shall be removed as the tent of one night: and the iniquity thereof shall be heavy upon it, and it shall fell, and not rise again. and it shall come to pass, that in that day the lord shall visit upon the host of heaven on high, and upon the kings of the earth, on the earth. and they shall be gathered together as in the gathering of one bundle into the pit, and they shall be shut up there in prison: and after many days they shall be visited. fend the moon shall blush, and the sun shall be ashamed, when the lord of hosts shall reign in mount sion, and in jerusalem, and shall be glorified in the sight of his ancients.

o lord, thou art my god, i will exalt thee, and give glory to thy name: for thou hast done wonderful things, thy designs of old faithful, amen. for thou hast reduced the city to a heap, the strong city to ruin, the house of strangers, to be no city, and to be no more built up for ever. therefore shall a strong people praise thee, the city of mighty nations shall fear thee. because thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress: a refuge from the whirlwind, a shadow from the heat. for the blast of the mighty is like a whirlwind beating against a wall. thou shalt bring down the tumult of strangers, as heat in thirst: and as with heat under a burning cloud, thou shalt make the branch of the mighty to wither away. and the lord of hosts shall make unto all people in this mountain, a feast of fat things, a feast of wine, of fat things full of marrow, of wine purified from the lees. and he shall destroy in this mountain the face of the bond with which all pie were tied, and the web that he over all nations. he shall cast death down headlong forever: and the lord god shall wipe away tears from every face, and the reproach of his people he shall take away from off the whole earth: for the lord hath spoken it. and they shall say in that day: lo, this is our god, we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the lord, we have patiently waited for him, we shall rejoice and be joyful in his salvation. for the hand of the lord shall rest in this mountain: and moab shall be trodden down under him, as straw is broken in pieces with the wain. and he shall stretch forth his hands under him, as he that swimmeth stretcheth forth his hands to swim: and he shall bring down his glory with the dashing of his hands. and the bulwarks of thy high walls shall fall, and be brought low, and shall be pulled down to the ground, even to the dust.

in that day shall this canticle be sung the land of juda. sion the city of our strength a saviour, a wall and a bulwark shall be set therein. open ye the gates, and let the just nation, that keepeth the truth, enter in. the old error is passed away: thou wilt keep peace: peace, because we have hoped in thee. you have hoped in the lord for evermore, in the lord god mighty for ever. for he shall bring down them that dwell on high, the high city he shall lay low. he shall bring it down even to the ground, he shall pull it down even to the dust. the foot shall tread it down, the feet of the poor, the steps of the needy. the way of the just is right, the path of the just is right to walk in. and in the way of thy judgments, o lord, we have patiently waited for thee: thy name, and thy remembrance are the desire of the soul. my soul hath desired thee in the night:

yea, and with my spirit within me in the morning early i will watch to thee. when thou shalt do thy judgments on the earth, the inhabitants of the world shall learn justice. let us have pity on the wicked, but he will not learn justice: in the land of the saints he hath done wicked things, and he shall not see the glory of the lord. lord, let thy hand be exalted, and let them not see: let the envious people see, and be confounded: and let fire devour thy enemies. lord, thou wilt give us peace: for thou hast wrought all our works for us. o lord our god, other lords besides thee have had dominion over us, only in thee let us remember thy name. let not the dead live, let not the giants rise again: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and best destroyed all their memory. thou hast been favourable to the nation, o lord, thou hast been favourable to the nation: art thou glorified? thou hast removed all the ends of the earth far off. lord, they have sought after thee in distress, in the tribulation of murmuring thy instruction was with them. as a woman with child, when she draweth near the time of her delivery, is in pain, and crieth out in her pangs: so are we become in thy presence, o lord. we have conceived, and been as it were in labour, and have brought forth wind: we have not wrought salvation on the earth, therefore the inhabitants of the earth have not fallen. thy dead men shall live, my slain shall rise again: awake, and give praise, ye that dwell in the dust: for thy dew is the dew of the light: and the land of the giants thou shalt pull down into ruin. go, my people, enter into thy chambers, shut thy doors upon thee, hide thyself a little for a moment, until the indignation pass away. for behold the lord will come out of his place, to visit the iniquity of the inhabitant of the earth against him: and the earth shall disclose her blood, and shall cover her slain no more.

in that day the lord with his hard, and great, and strong sword shall visit leviathan the bar serpent, and leviathan the crooked serpent, and shall slay the whale that is in the see. in that day there shall be singing to the vineyard of pure wine. i am the lord that keep it, i will suddenly give it drink: lest any hurt come to it, i keep it night and day. there is no indignation in me: who shall make me a thorn and a brier in battle: shall march against it, shall i set it on fire together? or rather shall it take hold of my strength, shall it make peace with me, shall it make peace with me? when they shall rush in unto jacob, israel shall blossom and bud, and they shall fill the face of the world with seed. hath he struck him according to the stroke of him that struck him? or is he slain, as he killed them that were slain by him? in measure against measure, when it shall be cast off, thou shalt judge it. he hath meditated with his severe spirit in the day of heat. therefore upon this shall the iniquity of the house of jacob be forgiven: and this is all the fruit, that the sin thereof should be taken away, when he shall have made all the stones of the altar, as burnt stones broken in pieces, the groves and temples shall not stand. for the strong city shall be desolate, the beautiful city shall be forsaken, and shall be left as a wilderness: there the calf shall feed, and there shall he lie down, and shall consume its branches. its harvest shall be destroyed with drought, women shall come and teach it: for it is not a wise people, therefore he that made it, shall not have mercy on it: and he that formed it, shall not spare it. and it shall come to pass, that in that day the lord will strike from the channel of the river even to the torrent of egypt, and you shall be gathered together one by one, o ye children of israel. and it shall come to pass, that in that day a noise shall be made with a great trumpet, and they that were lost, shall come from the land of the assyrians, and they that were outcasts in the land of egypt, and they shall adore the lord in the holy mount in jerusalem.

woe to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of ephraim, and to the fading flower the glory of his joy, who were on the head of the fat valley, staggering with wine. behold the lord is mighty and strong, as a storm of hail: a destroying whirlwind, as the violence of many waters overflowing, and sent forth upon a spacious land. the crown of pride of the drunkards of ephraim shall be trodden under feet. and the fading flower the glory of his joy, who is on the head of the fat valley, shall be as a hasty fruit before the ripeness of autumn: which when he that seeth it shall behold, as soon as he taketh it in his hand, he will eat it up. in that day the lord of hosts shall be a crown of glory, and a garland of joy to the residue of his people: and a spirit of judgment to him that sitteth in judgment, and strength to them that return out of the battle to the gate. but these also have been ignorant through wine, and through drunkenness have erred: the priest and the prophet have been ignorant through drunkenness, they are swallowed up with wine, they have gone astray in drunkenness, they have not known him that seeth, they have been ignorant of judgment. for all tables were full of vomit and filth, so that there was no more place. whom shall he teach knowledge? and whom shall he make to understand the hearing? them that are weaned from the milk, that are drawn away from the breasts. for command, command again; command, command again; expect, expect again; expect, expect again: a little there, a little there. for with the speech of lips, and with another tongue he will speak to this people. to whom he said: this is my rest, refresh the weary, and this is my refreshing: and they would not hear. and the word of the lord shall be to them: command, command again; command, command again: expect, expect again; expect, expect again: a little there, a little there: that they may go, and fall backward, and be broken, and snared, and taken. wherefore hear the word of the lord, ye scornful men, who rule over my people that is in jerusalem. for you have said: we have entered into a league with death, and we have made a covenant with hell. when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come upon us: for we have placed our hope in lies, and by falsehood we are protected. therefore thus saith the lord god: behold i will lay a stone in the foundations of sion, a tried stone, a corner stone, a precious stone, founded in the foundation. he that believeth, let him not hasten. and i will set judgment in weight, and justice in measure: and hail shall overturn the hope of falsehood: and waters shall overflow its protection. and sour league with death shall be abolished, and your covenant with hell shall not stand: when the overflowing scourge shall pass, you shall be trodden down by it. whensoever it shall pass through, it shall take you away: because in the morning early it shall pass through, in the day and in the night, and vexation alone shall make you understand what you hear. for the bed is straitened, so that one must fall out, and a short covering can- not cover both. for the lord shall stand up as in the mountain of divisions: he shall be angry as in the valley which is in gabaon: that he may do his work, his strange work: that he may perform his work, his work is strange to him. and now do not mock, lest your bonds be tied strait. for i have heard of the lord the god of hosts a consumption and a cutting short upon all the earth. give ear, and hear my voice, hearken, and hear my speech. shall the ploughman plough all the day to sow, shall he open and harrow his ground? will he not, when he hath made plain the surface thereof, sow gith, and scatter cummin, and put wheat in order, and barley, and millet, and vetches in their bounds? for he will instruct him in judgment : his god will teach him. for gith shall not be thrashed with saws, neither shall the cart wheel turn about upon cummin: but gith shall be beaten out with a rod, and cummin with a staff. but bread corn shall be broken small: but the thrasher shall not thrash it for ever, neither shall the cart wheel hurt it, nor break it with its teeth. this also is come forth from the lord god of hosts, to make his counsel wonderful, and magnify justice.

woe to ariel, to ariel the city which david took: year is added to year: the solemnities are at an end. and i will make a trench about ariel, and it shall be in sorrow and mourning, and it shall be to me as ariel, and i will make a circle round about thee, and will cast up a rampart against thee, and raise up bulwarks to besiege thee. thou shalt be brought down, thou shalt speak out of the earth, and thy speech shall be heard out of the ground: and thy voice shall be from the earth like that of the python, and out of the ground thy speech shall mutter. and the multitude of them that fan thee, shall be like small dust: and as ashes passing away, the multitude of them that have prevailed against thee. and it shall be at an instant suddenly. a visitation shall come from the lord of hosts in thunder, and with earthquake, and with a great noise of whirlwind and tempest, and with the flame of devouring fire. and the multitude of all nations that have fought against ariel, shall be as the dream of a vision by night, and all that have fought, and besieged and prevailed against it. and as he that is hungry dreameth, and eateth, but when he is awake, his soul

is empty: and as he that is thirsty dreameth, and drinketh, and after he is awake, is yet faint with thirst, and his soul is empty: so shall be the multitude of all the gentiles, that have fought against mount sion. be astonished, and wander, waver, and stagger: be drunk, and not with wine: stagger, and not with drunkenness. for the lord hath mingled for you the spirit of a deep sleep, he will shut up your eyes, he will cover your prophets and princes, that see visions. and the vision of all shall be unto you as the words of a book that is sealed, which when they shall deliver to one that is learned, they shall say: read this: and he shall answer: i cannot, for it is sealed. and the book shall be given to one that knoweth no letters, and it shall be said to him: read: and he shall answer: i know no letters. and the lord said: forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips glorify me, but their heart is far from me, and they have feared me with the commandment and doctrines of men: therefore behold i will proceed to cause an admiration in this people, by a great and wonderful miracle: for wisdom shall perish from their wise men, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid. woe to you that are deep of heart, to hide your counsel from the lord: and their works are in the dark, and they say: who seeth us, and who knoweth us? this thought of yours is perverse: as if the clay should think against the potter, and the work should say to the maker thereof: thou madest me not: or the thing framed should say to him that fashioned it: thou understandest not. is it not yet a very little while, and libanus shall be turned into charmel, and charmel shall be esteemed as a forest? and in that day the deaf shall hear the words of the book, and out of darkness and obscurity the eyes of the blind shall see. and the meek shall increase their joy in the lord, and the poor men shall rejoice in the holy one of israel. for he that did prevail hath failed, the scorner is consumed, and they are all cut off that watched for iniquity: that made men sin by word, and supplanted him that reproveth them in the gate, and declined in vain from the just. therefore thus saith the lord to the house of jacob, he that redeemed abraham: jacob shall not now be confounded, neither shall his countenance now be ashamed: but when he shall see his children, the work of my hands in the midst of him sanctifying my name, and they shall sanctify the holy one of jacob, and shall glorify the god of israel: and they that erred in spirit, shall know understanding, and they that murmured, shall learn the law.

woe to you, apostate children, saith the lord, that you would take counsel, and not of me: and would begin a web, and not by my spirit, that you might add sin upon sill: who walk to go down into egypt, and have not asked at my mouth, hoping for help in the strength of pharao, and trusting in the shadow of egypt. and the- strength of pharao shall be to your confusion, and the confidence of the shadow of egypt to your shame. for thy princes were in tanis, and thy messengers came even to hanes. they were all con-

founded at a people that could not profit them: they were no help, nor to any profit, but to confusion and to reproach. the burden of the beasts of the south. in a land of trouble and distress, from whence come the lioness, and the lion, the viper and the flying basilisk, they carry their riches upon the shoulders of beasts, and their treasures upon the bunches of camels to a people that shall not be able to profit them. for egypt shall help in vain, and to no purpose: therefore have i cried concerning this: it is pride only, sit still. now therefore go in and write for them upon box, and note it diligently in a book, and it shall be in the latter days for a testimony for ever. for it is a people that provoketh to wrath, and lying children, children that will not hear the law of god. who say to the seers: see not: and to them that behold: behold not for us those things that are right: speak unto us pleasant things, see errors for us. take away from me the way, turn away the path from me, let the holy one of israel cease from before us. therefore thus saith the holy one of israel: because you have rejected this word, and have trusted in oppression and tumult, and have leaned upon it: therefore shall this iniquity be to you as a breach that falleth, and is found wanting in a high wall, for the destruction thereof shall come on a sudden, when it is not looked for. and it shall be broken small, as the potter's vessel is broken all to pieces with mighty breaking, and there shall not a sherd be found of the pieces thereof, wherein a little fire may be carried from the hearth, or a, little water be drawn out of the pit. for thus saith the lord god the holy one of israel: if you return and be quiet, you shall be saved: in silence and in hope shall your strength be. and you would not: but have said: no, but we will flee to horses: therefore shall you flee. and we will mount upon swift ones: therefore shall they be swifter that shall pursue after you. a thousand men shall flee for fear of one: and for fear of five shall you flee, till you be left as the mast of a ship on the top of a mountain, and as an ensign upon a hill. therefore the lord waiteth that he may have mercy on you: and therefore shall he be exalted sparing you: because the lord is the god of judgment: blessed are all they that wait for him. for the people of sion shall dwell in jerusalem: weeping thou shalt not weep, he will surely have pity on thee: at the voice of thy cry, as soon as he shall hear, he will answer thee. and the lord will give you spare bread, and short water: and will not cause thy teacher to flee away from thee any more, and thy eyes shall see thy teacher. and thy ears shall hear the word of one admonishing thee behind thy back: this is the way, walk ye in it: and go not aside neither to the right hand, nor to the left. and thou shalt defile the plates of thy graven things of silver, and the garment of thy molten things of gold, and shalt cast them away as the uncleanness of a menstruous woman. thou shalt say to it: get thee hence. and rain shall be given to thy seed, wheresoever thou shalt sow in the land: and the bread of the corn of the land shall be most plentiful, and fat. the lamb in that day shall feed at large in thy possession: and thy oxen, and the ass colts that till the ground, shall eat mingled provender as it was winnowed in the floor. and there shall be upon every high mountain, and upon every elevated hill rivers of running waters in the day of the slaughter of many, when the tower shall fall. and the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days: in the day when the lord shall bind up the wound of his people, and shall heal the stroke of their wound. behold the name of the lord cometh from afar, his wrath burneth, and is heavy to bear: his lips are filled with indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire. his breath as a torrent overflowing even to the midst of the neck, to destroy the nations unto nothing, and the bridle of error that was in the jaws of the people. you shall have a song as in the night of the sanctified solemnity, and joy of heart, as when one goeth with a pipe, to come into the mountain of the lord, to the mighty one of israel. and the lord shall make the glory of his voice to be heard, and shall shew the terror of his arm, in the threatening of wrath, and the dame of devouring fire: he shall crush to pieces with whirlwind, and hailstones. for at the voice of the lord the assyrian shall fear being struck with the rod. and the passage of the rod shall be strongly grounded, which the lord shall make to rest upon him with timbrels and harps, and in great battles he shall overthrow them. for topheth is prepared from yesterday, prepared by the king, deep, and wide. the nourishment thereof is fire and much wood: the breath of the lord as a torrent of brimstone kindling it.

woe to them that go down to egypt for help, trusting in horses, and putting their confidence in chariots, because they me many: and in horsemen, because they me very strong: and have not trusted in the holy one of israel, and have not sought after the lord. but he that is the wise one hath brought evil, and hath not removed his words: and he will rise up against the house of the wicked, and against the aid of them that work iniquity. egypt is man, and not god: and their horses, flesh, and not spirit: and the lord shall put down his hand, and the helper shall fall, and he that is helped shall fall, and they shall al be confounded together. for thus saith the lord to me: like as the lion roareth, and the lion's whelp upon his prey, and when a multitude of shepherds shall come against him, he will not fear at their voice, nor be afraid of their multitude: so shall the lord of hosts come down to fight upon mount sion, and upon the hill thereof. as birds dying, so will the lord of hosts protect jerusalem, protecting and delivering, passing over and saving. return as you had deeply revolted, o children of israel. for in that day a man shall cast away his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which your hands have made for you to sin. and the assyrian shall fall by the sword not of a man, and the sword not of a man shall devour him, and he shall flee not at the face of the sword: and his young men shall be tributaries. and his strength shall pass away with dread, and his princes fleeing shall be afraid: the lord hath said it, whose die is in sion, and his furnace in jerusalem.

behold a king shall reign in justice, and princes shall rule in judgment. and a man shall be as when one is hid from the wind, and hideth himself from a storm, as rivers of waters in drought, and the shadow of a rock that standeth out in a desert land. the eyes of them that see shall not be dim, and the ears of them that hear shall hearken diligently. and the heart of fools shall understand knowledge, and the tongue of stammerers shall speak readily and plain. the fool shall no more be called prince: neither shall the deceitful be called great: for the fool will speak foolish things, and his heart will work iniquity, to practise hypocrisy, and speak to the lord deceitfully, and to make empty the soul of the hungry, and take away drink from the thirsty. the vessels of the deceitful are most wicked: for he hath framed devices to destroy the meek, with lying words, when the poor man speaketh judgment. but the prince will devise such things as are worthy of a prince, and he shah stand above the rulers. rise up, ye rich women, and hear my voice: ye confident daughters, give ear to my speech. for after days and a year, you that are confident shall be troubled: for the vintage is at an end, the gathering shall come no more. be astonished, ye rich women, be troubled, ye confident ones: strip yen, and be confounded, gird your loins. mourn for your breasts, for the delightful country, for the fruitful vineyard. upon the land of my people shall thorns and briers come up: how much more upon all the houses of joy, of the city that rejoiced? for the house is forsaken, the multitude of the city is left, darkness and obscurity are come upon its dens for ever. a joy of wild asses, the pastures of docks, until the spirit be poured upon us from on high: and the desert shall be as a charmel, and charmel shall be counted for a forest. and judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, and justice shall sit in charmel. and the work of justice shall be peace, and the service of justice quietness, and security for ever. and my people shall sit in the beauty of peace, and in the tabernacles of confidence, and in wealthy rest. but hail shall be in the descent of the forest, and the city shall be made very low. blessed are ye that sow upon all waters, sending thither the foot of the ox and the ass.

woe to thee that spoilest, shalt not thou thyself also be spoiled? and thou that despisest, shalt not thyself also be despised? when thou shalt have made an end of spoiling, thou shalt be spoiled: when being wearied thou shalt cease to despise, thou shalt be despised. o lord, have mercy on us: for we have waited for thee: be thou our arm in the morning, and our salvation in the time of trouble. at the voice of the angel the people fled, and at the lifting up thyself the nations are scattered. and your spoils shall be gathered together as the locusts are gathered, as when the ditches are full of them. the lord is magnified, for he hath dwelt on high: he hath filled sion with judgment and justice. and there shall be faith in thy times: riches of salvation, wisdom and knowledge: the fear of the lord is his treasure. behold they that see shall cry without, the angels of peace shall weep bitterly. the ways are made desolate, no one passeth by the road, the covenant is made void, he hath rejected the cities, he hath not regarded the men. the land hath mourned, and languished: libanus is confounded and become foul, and saron is become as a desert: and basan and carmel are shaken. now will i rise up, saith the lord: now will i be exalted, now will i lift up myself. you shall conceive heat, you shall bring forth stubble: your breath as fire shall devour you. and the people shall be as ashes after a fire, as a bundle of thorns they shall be burnt with fire. hear, you that are far off, what i have done, and you that are near know my strength. the sinners in sion are afraid, trembling hath seized upon the hypocrites. which of you can dwell with devouring fire? which of you shall dwell with everlasting burnings? he that walketh in justices, and speaketh truth, that casteth away avarice by oppression, and shaketh his hands from all bribes, that stoppeth his ears lest he hear blood, and shutteth his eyes that he may see no evil. he shall dwell on high, the fortifications of rocks shall be his highness: bread is given him, his waters are sure. his eyes shall see the king in his beauty, they shall see the land far off. thy heart shall meditate fear: where is the learned? where is he that pondereth the words of the law? where is the teacher of little ones? the shameless people thou shalt not see, the people of profound speech: so that thou canst not understand the eloquence of his tongue, in whom there is no wisdom. look upon sion the city of our solemnity: thy eyes shall see jerusalem, a rich habitation, a tabernacle that cannot be removed: neither shall the nails thereof be taken away for ever, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken: because only there our lord is magnificent: it place of rivers, very broad and spacious streams: no ship with oars shall pass by it, neither shall the great galley pass through it. for the lord is our judge, the lord is our lawgiver, the lord is our king: he will save us. thy tacklings are loosed, and they shall be of no strength: thy mast shall be in such condition, that thou shalt not be able to spread the flag. then shall the spoils of much prey be divided: the lame shall take the spoil. neither shall he that is near, say: i am feeble. the people that dwell therein, shall have their iniquity taken away from them.

come near, ye gentiles, and hear, and hearken, ye people: let the earth hear, and all that is therein, the world, and every thing that cometh forth of it. for the indignation of the lord if upon all nations, and his fury upon all their armies: he hath killed them, and delivered them to slaughter. their slain shall be cast forth, and out of their carcasses shall rise a slink: the mountains shall be melted with their blood, and all the host of the heavens shall pine away, and the heavens shall be folded together as a book: and all their host shall fall down as the leaf falleth from the vine, and from the fig tree. for my sword is inebriated in heaven: behold it shall come down upon idumea, and upon the people of my slaughter unto judgment. the sword of the lord is filled with blood, it is made thick with the blood of lambs and buck goats, with the blood of rams full of marrow: for there is a victim of the lord in bosra and a great slaughter in the land of edom. and the unicorns shall go down with them, and the bulls with the mighty: their land shall be soaked with blood, and their ground with the fat of fat ones. for it is the day of the vengeance of the lord, the year of recompenses of the judgment of sion. and the streams thereof shall be turned into pitch, and the ground thereof into brimstone: and the land thereof shall become burning pitch. night and day it shall not be quenched, the smoke thereof shall go up for ever: from generation to generation it shall lie waste, none shall pass through it for ever and ever. the bittern and ericurus shall possess it: and the ibis and the raven shall dwell in it: and a line shall be stretched out upon it, to bring it to nothing, and a plummet, unto desolation. the nobles thereof shall not be there: they shall call rather upon the king, and all the princes thereof shall be nothing. and thorns and nettles shall grow up in its houses, and the thistle in the fortresses thereof: and it shall be the habitation of dragons, and the pasture of ostriches. and demons and monsters shall meet, and the hairy ones shall cry out one to another, there hath the lamia lain down, and found rest for herself. there hath the ericurus had its hole, and brought up its young ones, and hath dug round about, and cherished them in the shadow thereof: thither are the kites gathered together one to another. search ye diligently in the book of the lord, and read: not one of them was wanting, one hath not sought for the other: for that which proceedeth out of my mouth, he hath commanded, and his spirit it hath gathered them. and he hath cast the lot for them, and his hand hath divided it to them by line: they shall possess it for ever, from generation to generation they shall dwell therein.

the land that was desolate and impassable shall be glad, and the wilderness shall rejoice, and shall flourish like the lily. it shall bud forth and blossom, and shall rejoice with joy and praise: the glory of libanus is given to it: the beauty of carmel, and saron, they shall see the glory of the lord, and the beauty of our god. strengthen ye the feeble hands, and confirm the weak knees. say to the fainthearted: take courage, and fear not: behold your god will bring the revenge of recompense: god himself will come and will save you. then shall the eyes of the blind be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. then shall the lame man leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall be free: for waters are broken out in the desert, and streams in the wilderness. and that which was dry land, shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water. in the dens where dragons dwell before, shall rise up the verdure of the reed and the bulrush. and a path and a way shall be there, and it shall be called the holy way: the unclean shall not pass over it, and this shall be unto you a straight way, so that fools shall not err therein. no lion shall be there, nor shall any mischievous beast go up by it, nor be found there: but they shall walk there that shall be delivered. and the redeemed of the lord shall return, and shall come into sion with praise, and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and mourning shall flee away.

and it came to pass in the fourteenth year of king ezechias, that sennacherib king of the assyrians came up against all the fenced cities of juda, and took them. and the king of the assyrians sent rabsaces from lachis to jerusalem, to king ezechias with a great army, and he stood by the conduit of the upper pool in the way of the fuller's held. and there went out to him eliacim the son of helcias, who was over the house, and sobna the scribe, and joahe the son of asaph the recorder. and rabsaces said to them: tell ezechias: thus saith the great king, the king of the assyrians: what is this confidence wherein thou trustest? or with what counsel or strength dost thou prepare for war? on whom dost thou trust, that thou art revolted from me? lo thou trustest upon this broken staff of a reed, upon egypt: upon which if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it: so is pharao king or egypt to all that trust in him. but if thou wilt answer me: we trust in the lord our god: is it not he whose high places and altars ezechias hath taken away, and hath said to juda and jerusalem: you shall worship before this altar? and now deliver thyself up to my lord the king of the assyrians, and i will give thee two thousand horses, and thou wilt not be able on thy part to find riders for them. and how wilt thou stand against the face of the judge of one place, of the least of my master's servants? but if thou trust in egypt, in chariots and in horsemen: and am i now come up without the lord against this land to destroy it? the lord said to me: go up against this land, and destroy it. and eliacim, and sobna, and joahe said to rabsaces: speak to thy servants in the syrian tongue: for we understand it: speak not to us in the jews' language in the hearing of the people, that are upon the wall. and rabsaces said to them: hath my master sent me to thy master and to thee, to speak all these words; and not rather to the men that sit on the wall; that they may eat their own dung, and drink their urine with you? then rabsaces stood, and cried out with a loud voice in the jews' language, and said: hear the words of the great king, the king of the assyrians. thus saith the king: let not ezechias deceive you, for he shall not be able to deliver you. and let not ezechias make you trust in the lord, saying: the lord will surely deliver us, and this city shall not be given into the hands of the king of the assyrians. do not hearken to ezechias: for thus said the king of the assyrians: do with me that which is for your advantage, and come out to me, and eat ye every one of his vine, and every one of his dg tree, and drink ye every one the water of his cistern, till i come and take you away to a land, like to your own, a land of corn and of wine, a land of bread and vineyards. neither let ezechias trouble you, saying: the lord will deliver us. have any of the gods of the nations delivered their land out of the hand of the king of the assyrians? where is the god of emath and of arphad? where is the god of sepharvaim? have they delivered samaria out of my hand? who is there among all the gods of these lands, that hath delivered his country out of my hand, that the lord may deliver jerusalem out of my hand? and they held their peace, and answered him not a word. for the king had commanded, saying: answer him not. and eliacim the son of helcias, that was over the house, and sobna the scribe, and joahe the son of asaph the recorder, went in to ezechias with their garments rent, and told him the words of rabsaces.

and it came to pass, when king ezechias had heard it, that he rent his garments and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the lord. and he sent eliacim who was over the house, and sobna the scribe, and the ancients of the priests covered with sackcloth, to isaias the son of amos the prophet. and they said to him: thus saith ezechias: this day is a day of tribulation, and of rebuke, and of blasphemy: for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth. it may be the lord thy god will hear the words of rabsaces, whom the king of the assyrians his master hath sent to blaspheme the living god, and to reproach with words which the lord thy god hath heard: wherefore lift up thy prayer for the remnant that is left. and the servants of ezechias came to isaias. and isaias said to them: thus shall you say to your master: thus saith the lord: be not afraid of the words that thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of the assyrians have blasphemed me. behold, i will send a spirit upon him, and he shall hear a message, and shall return to his own country, and i will cause him to fall by the sword in his own country. and rabsaces returned, end found the king of the assyrians besieging lobna. w for he had heard that he was departed from lachis. and he heard say about tharaca the king of ethiopia: he is come forth to fight against thee. and when he heard it, he sent messengers to ezechias, saying: thus shall you speak to ezechias the king of juda, saying: let not thy god deceive thee, in whom thou trustest, saying: jerusalem shall not be given into the hands of the king of the assyrians. behold thou hast heard all that the kings of the assyrians hare done to all countries which they have destroyed, and canst thou be delivered? have the gods of the nations delivered them whom my fathers have destroyed, gozam, and haram, and reseph, and the children of eden, that were in thalassar? where is the king of emath, and the king of arphad, and the king of the city of sepharvaim, of ana, and of ava? and ezechias took the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it, and went up to the house of the lord, and ezechias spread it before the lord. and ezechias prayed to the lord, saying: o lord of hosts, god of israel, who sittest upon the cherubims, thou alone art the god of all the kingdoms of the earth, thou hast made heaven and earth. incline, o lord, thy ear, and hear: open, o lord, thy eyes, and see, and hear all the words of sennacherib, which he hath sent to blaspheme the living god. for of a truth, o lord, the kings of the assyrians have laid waste lands, and their countries. and they have cast their gods into the fire, for they were not gods, but the works of men's hands, of wood and stone: and they broke them in pieces. and now, o lord our god, save us out of his hand: and let all the kingdoms of the earth know, that thou only art the lord. and isaias the son of amos sent to ezechias, saying: thus saith the lord the god of israel: for the prayer thou hast made to me concerning sennacherib the king of the assyrians: this is the word which the lord hath spoken of him: the virgin the daughter of sion hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn: the daughter of jerusalem hath wagged the head after thee. whom hast thou reproached, and whom hast thou blasphemed, and against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thy eyes on high? against the holy one of israel. by the hand of thy servants thou hast reproached the lord: and hast said: with the multitude of my chariots i have gone up to the height of the mountains, to the top of libanus: and i will cut down its tall cedars, and its choice fir trees, end will enter to the top of its height, to the forest of its carmel. i have digged, and drunk water, and have dried up with the sole of my foot, all the rivers shut up in banks. hast thou not heard what i have done to him of old? from the days of old i have formed it: and now i have brought it to effect: and it hath come to pass that hills fighting together, and fenced cities should be destroyed. the inhabitants of them were weak of hand, they trembled, and were confounded: they became like the grass of the field, and the herb of the pasture, and like the grass of the housetops, which withered before it was ripe. i know thy dwelling, and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy rage against me. when thou wast mad against me, thy pride came up to my ears: therefore i will put a ring in thy nose, and a bit between thy lips, and i will turn thee back by the way by which thou camest. but to thee this shall be a sign: eat this year the things that spring of themselves, and in the second year eat fruits: but in the third year sow and reap, and giant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. and that which shall be saved of the house of juda, and which is left, shall take root downward, and shall bear fruit upward: for out of jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and salvation from mount sion: the zeal of the lord of hosts shall do this. wherefore thus saith the lord concerning the king of the assyrians: he shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow into it, nor come before it with shield, nor cast a trench about it. by the way that he came, he shall return, and into this city he shall not come, saith the lord. and i will protect this city, and will save it for my own sake, and for the sake of david my servant. and the angel of the lord went out, and slew in the camp of the assyrians a hundred and eighty-five thousand. and they arose in the morning, and behold they were all dead corpses. and sennacherib the king of the assyrians went out and departed, and returned, and dwelt in ninive. and it came to pass, as he was worshipping in the temple of nesroch his god, that adramelech and

in those days ezechias was sick even to death, and isaias the son of amos the prophet came unto him, and said to him: thus saith the lord: take order with thy house, for thou shalt die, and not live. and ezechias turned his face toward the wall, and prayed to the lord, and said: i beseech thee, o lord, remember how i have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight. and ezechias wept with great weeping. and the word of the lord came to isaias, saying: go and say to ezechias: thus saith the lord the god of david thy father: i have heard thy prayer, and i have seen thy tears: behold i will add to thy days fifteen years: and i will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of the assyrians, and i will protect it. and this shall be a sign to thee from the lord, that the lord will do this word which he hath spoken: behold i will bring again the shadow of the lines, by which it is now gone down in the sun dial of achaz with the sun, ten lines backward. and the sun returned ten lines by the degrees by which it was gone down. the writing of ezechias king of juda, when he had been sick, and was recovered of his sickness. i said: in the midst of my days i shall go to the gates of hell: i sought for the residue of my years. i said: i shall not see the lord god in the land of the living. i shall behold man no more, nor the inhabitant of rest. my generation is at an end, and it is rolled away from me, as a shepherd's tent. my life is cut off, as by a weaver: whilst i was yet but beginning, he cut me off: from morning even to night thou wilt make an end of me. i hoped till morning, as a lion so hath he broken all my bones: from morning even to night thou wilt make an end of me. i will cry like a young swallow, i will meditate like a dove: my eyes are weakened looking upward: lord, i suffer violence, answer thou for me. what shall i say, or what shall he answer for me, whereas he himself hath done it? i will recount to thee all my years in the bitterness of my soul. o lord, if man's life be such, and the life of my spirit be in such things as these, thou shalt correct me, and make me to live. behold in peace is my bitterness most bitter: but thou hast delivered my soul that it should not perish, thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back. for hell shall not confess to thee, neither shall death praise thee: nor shall they that go down into the pit, look for thy truth. the living, the living, he shall give praise to thee, as i do this day: the father shall make thy truth known to the children. o lord, save me, and we will sing our psalms all the days of our life in the house of the lord. now isaias had ordered that they should take a lump of figs, and lay it as it plaster upon the wound, and that he should be healed. and ezechias bed said: what shall be the sign that i shall go up to the house of the lord?

at that time merodach baladan, the son of baladan king of babylon, sent letters and presents to ezechias: for he had heard that he had been sick and was recovered. and ezechias rejoiced at their coming, and he shewed them the storehouses of his aromatical spices, and of the silver, and of the gold, and of the sweet odours, and of the precious ointment, and all the storehouses of his furniture, and all things that were found in his treasures. there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion that ezechias shewed them not. then isaias the prophet came to king ezechias, and said to him: what said these men, and from whence came they to thee? and ezechias said: from a far country they came to me, from babylon and he said: what saw they in thy house? and ezechias said: all things that are in my house have they seen, there was not any thing which i have not shewn them in my treasures. and isaias said to ezechias: rear the word of the lord of hosts. behold the days shall come, that all that is in thy house, and that thy fathers have laid up in store until this day, shall be carried away into babylon: there shall not any thing be left, saith the lord. and of thy children, that shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of babylon. and ezechias said to isaias: the word of the lord, which he hath spoken, is good. and he said: only let peace and truth be in my days.

be comforted, be comforted, my people, saith your god. speak ye to the heart of jerusalem, and call to her: for her evil is come to an end, her iniquity is forgiven: she hath received of the hand of the lord double for all her sins. the voice of one crying in the desert: prepare ye the way of the lord, make straight in the wilderness the paths of our god. every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low, and the crooked shall become straight, and the rough ways plain. and the glory of the lord shall be revealed, and all flesh together shall see, that the mouth of the lord hath spoken. the voice of one, saying: cry. and i said: what shall i cry? all flesh is grass, and all the glory thereof as the flower of the held. the grass is withered, and the dower is fallen, because the spirit of the lord hath blown upon it. indeed the people is grass: the grass is withered, and the flower is fallen: but the word of our lord endureth for ever. get thee up upon a high mountain, thou that bringest good tidings to sion: lift up thy voice with strength, thou that bringest good tidings to jerusalem: lift it up, fear not. say to the cities of juda: behold your god: behold the lord god shall come with strength, and his arm shall rule: behold his reward is with him and his work is before him. he shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather together the lambs with his arm, and shall take them up in his bosom, and he himself shall carry them that are with young. who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand, and weighed the heavens with his palm? who hath poised with three fingers the bulk of the earth, and weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance? who hath forwarded the spirit of the lord? or who hath been his counsellor, and hath taught him? with whom hath he consulted, and who hath instructed him, and taught him the path of justice, and taught him knowledge, and shewed him the way of understanding? behold the gentiles are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the smallest grain of a balance: behold the islands are as a little dust. and libanus shall not be enough to burn, nor the beasts thereof sufficient for a burnt offering. all nations are before him as if they had no being at all, and are counted to him as nothing, and vanity. to whom then have you likened god? or what image will you make for him? hath the workman cast a graven statue? or hath the goldsmith formed it with gold, or the silversmith with plates of silver? he hath chosen strong wood, and that will not rot: the skillful workman seeketh how he may set up an idol that may not be moved. do you not know? hath it not been heard? hath it not been told you from the beginning? have you not understood the foundations of the earth? it is he that sitteth upon the globe of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as locusts: he that stretcheth out the heavens as nothing, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in. he that bringeth the searchers of secrets to nothing, that hath made the judges of the earth as vanity. and surely their stock was neither planted, nor sown, nor rooted in the earth: suddenly he hath blown upon them, and they are withered, and a whirlwind shall take them away as stubble. and to whom have ye likened me, or made me equal, saith the holy one? lift up your eyes on high, and see who hath created these things: who bringeth out their host by number, and calleth them all by their names: by the greatness of his might, and strength, and power, not one of them was missing. why sayest thou, o jacob, and speakest, o israel: my way is hid from the lord, and my judgment is passed over from my god? knowest thou not, or hast thou not heard? the lord is the everlasting god, who hath created the ends of the earth: he shall not faint, nor labour, neither is there any searching out of his wisdom. it is he that giveth strength to the weary, and increaseth force and might to them that are not. youths shall faint, and labour, and young men shall fall by infirmity. but they that hope in the lord shall renew their strength, they shall take wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint.

let the islands keep silence before me, and the nations take new strength: let them come near, and then speak, let us come near to judgment together. who hath raised up the just one from the east, hath called him to follow him? he shall give the nations in his sight, and he shall rule over kings: he shall give them as the dust to his sword, as stubble driven by the wind, to his bow. he shall pursue them, he shall pass in peace, no path shall appear after his feet. who hath wrought and done these things, calling the generations from the beginning? i the lord, i am the first and the last. the islands saw it, and feared, the ends of the earth were astonished, they drew near, and came. every one shall help his neighbour, and shall say to his brother: be of good courage. the copersmith striking with the hammer encouraged him that forged at that time, saying: it is ready for soldering: and he strengthened it with nails, that it should not be moved. but thou israel, art my servant, jacob whom i have chosen, the seed of abraham my friend: in whom i have taken thee from the ends of the earth, and from the remote parts thereof have called thee, and said to thee: thou art my servant, i have chosen thee, and have not cast thee away. fear not, for i am with thee: turn not aside, for i am thy god: i have strengthened thee, and have helped thee, and the right hand of my just one hath upheld thee. behold all that fight against thee shall be confounded and ashamed, they shall be as nothing, and the men shall perish that strive against thee. thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find the men that resist thee: they shall be as nothing: and as a thing consumed the men that war against thee. for i am the lord thy god, who take thee by the hand, and say to thee: fear not, i have helped thee. fear not, thou worm of jacob, you that are dead of israel: i have helped thee, saith the lord: and thy redeemer the holy one of israel. i have made thee as a new thrashing wain, with teeth like a saw: thou shalt thrash the mountains, and break them in pieces: and shalt make the hills as chaff. thou shalt fan them, and the wind shall carry them away, and the whirlwind shall scatter them: and thou shalt rejoice in the lord, in the holy one of israel thou shalt be joyful. the needy and the poor seek for waters, and there are none: their tongue hath been dry with thirst. i the lord will hear them, i the god of israel will not forsake them. i will open rivers in the high bills, and fountains in the midst of the plains: i will turn the desert into pools of waters, and the impassable land into streams of waters. i will plant in the wilderness the cedar, and the thorn, and the myrtle, and the olive tree: i will set in the desert the fir tree, the elm, and the box tree together: that they may see and know, and consider, and understand together that the hand of the lord hath done this, and the holy one of israel hath created it. bring your cause near, saith the lord: bring hither, if you have any thing to allege, saith the king of jacob. let them come, and tell us all things that are to come: tell us the former things what they were: and we will set our heart upon them, and shall know the latter end of them, and tell us the things that are to come. shew the things that are to come hereafter, and we shall know that ye are gods. do ye also good or evil, if you can: and let us speak, and see together. behold, you are of nothing, and your work of that which hath no being: he that hath chosen you is an abomination. i have raised up one from the north, and he shall come from the rising of the sun: he shall call upon my name, and he shall make princes to be as dirt, and as the potter treading clay. who hath declared from the beginning, that we may know: and from time of old, that we may say: thou art just. there is none that sheweth, nor that foretelleth, nor that heareth your words. the first shall say to sion: behold they are here, and to jerusalem i will give an evangelist. and i saw, and there was no one even among them to consult, or who, when i asked, could answer a word. behold they are all in the wrong, and their works are vain: their idols are wind and vanity.

behold my servant, i will uphold him: my elect, my soul delighteth in him: i have given my spirit upon him, he shall bring forth judgment to the gentiles. he shall not cry, nor have respect to person, neither shall his voice be heard abroad. the bruised reed he shall not break, and smoking flax he shall not quench: he shall bring forth judgment unto truth. he shall not be sad, nor troublesome, till he set judgment in the earth: and the islands shall wait for his law. thus saith the lord god that created the heavens, and stretched them out: that established the earth, and the things that spring out of it: that giveth breath to the people upon it, and spirit to them that tread thereon. i the lord have called thee in justice, and taken thee by the hand, and preserved thee. and i have given thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the gentiles: that thou mightest open the eyes of the blind, and bring forth the prisoner out of prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house. i the lord, this is my name: i will not give my glory to another, nor my praise to graven things. the things that were first, behold they are come: and new things do i declare: before they spring forth, i will make you head them. sing ye to the lora a new song, his praise is from the ends of the earth: you that go down to the sea, and all that are therein: ye islands, and ye inhabitants of them. let the desert and the cities thereof be exalted: cedar shall dwell in houses: ye inhabitants of petra, give praise, they shall cry from the top of the mountains. they shall give glory to the lord, and shall declare his praise in the islands. the lord shall go forth as a mighty man, as a man of war shall he stir up zeal: he shall shout and cry: he shall prevail against his enemies. i have always held my peace, i have i kept silence, i have been patient, i will speak now as a woman in labour: i will destroy, and swallow up at once. i will lay waste the mountains and hills, and will make all their grass to wither: and i will turn rivers into islands, and will dry up the standing pools. and i will lead the blind into the way which they know not: and in the paths which they were ignorant of i will make them walk: i will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight: these things have i done to them, and have not forsaken them. they are turned back: let them be greatly confounded, that trust in a graven thing, that say to a molten thing: you are our god. hear, ye deaf, and, ye blind, behold that you may see. who is blind, but my servant? or deaf, but he to whom i have sent my messengers? who is blind, but he that is sold? or who is blind, but the servant of the lord? thou that seest many things, wilt thou not observe them? thou that hast ears open, wilt thou not hear? and the lord was willing to sanctify him, and to magnify the law, and exalt it. but this is a people that is robbed and wasted: they are all the snare of young men, and they are hid in the houses of prisons: they are made a prey, and there is none to deliver them: a spoil, and there is none that saith: restore. who is there among you that will give ear to this, that will attend and hearken for times to come? who hath given jacob for a spoil, and israel to robbers? hath not the lord himself, against whom we have sinned? and they would not walk in his ways, and they have not hearkened to his law. and he hath poured out upon him the indignation of his fury, and a strong battle, and hath burnt him round about, and he knew not: and set him on fire, and he understood not.

and now thus saith the lord that created thee, o jacob, and formed thee, o israel: fear not, for i have redeemed thee, and called thee by thy name: thou art mine. when thou shalt pass through the waters, i will be with thee, and the rivers shall not cover thee: when thou shalt walk in the fire, thou shalt not be burnt, and the flames shall not burn in thee: for i am the lord thy god, the holy one of israel, thy saviour: i have given egypt for thy atonement, ethiopia and saba for thee. since thou becamest honourable in my eyes, thou art glorious: i have loved thee, and i will give men for thee, and people for thy life. fear not, for i am with thee: i will. bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west. i will say to the north: give up: and to the south: keep not back: bring my sons from afar, and my daughters from the ends of the earth. and every one that calleth upon my name, i have created him for my glory, i have formed him, and made him. bring forth the people that are blind, and have eyes: that are deaf, and have ears. all the nations are assembled together, and the tribes are gathered: who among you can declare this, and shall make us hear the former things? let them bring forth their witnesses, let them be justified, and hear, and say: it is truth. you are my witnesses, saith the lord, and my servant whom i have chosen: that you may know, and believe me, and understand that i myself am. before me there was no god formed, and after me there shall be none. i am, i am the lord: and there is no saviour besides me. i have declared, and have saved. i have made it heard, and there was no strange one among you. you are my witnesses, saith the lord, and i am god. and from the beginning i am the same, and there is none that can deliver out of my hand: i will work, and who shall turn it away? thus saith the lord your redeemer, the holy one of israel: for your sake i sent to babylon, and have brought down all their bars, and the chaldeans glorying in their ships. i am the lord your holy one, the creator of israel, your king. thus saith the lord, who made a way in the sea, and a path in the mighty waters. who brought forth the chariot and the horse, the army and the strong: they lay down to sleep together, and they shall not rise again: they are broken as flax, and are extinct. remember not former things, and look not on things of old. behold i do new things, and now they shall spring forth, verily you shall know them: i will make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert. the beast of the field

shall glorify me, the dragons and the ostriches: because i have given waters in the wilderness, rivers in the desert, to give drink to my people, to my chosen. this people have i formed for my- self, they shall shew forth my praise. but thou hast not called upon me, o jacob, neither hast thou laboured about me, o israel. thou hast not offered me the ram of thy holocaust, nor hast thou glorified me with thy victims: i have not caused thee to serve with oblations, nor wearied thee with incense. thou hast bought me no sweet cane with money, neither hast thou filled me with the fat of thy victims. but thou hast made me to serve with thy sins, thou hast wearied me with thy iniquities. i am, i am he that blot out thy iniquities for my own sake, and i will not remember thy sins. put me in remembrance, and let us plead together: tell if thou hast any thing to justify thyself. thy brat father sinned, and thy teachers have transgressed against me. and i have profaned the holy princes, i have given jacob to slaughter, and israel to reproach.

and now hear, o jacob, my servant, and israel whom i have chosen. thus saith the lord that made and formed thee, thy helper from the womb: fear not, o my servant jacob, and thou most righteous whom i have chosen. for i will pour out waters upon the thirsty ground, and streams upon the dry land: i will pour out my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thy stock. and they shall spring up among the herbs, as willows beside the running waters. one shall say: i am the lord's, and another shall call himself by the name of jacob, and another shall subscribe with his hand, to the lord, and surname himself by the name of israel. thus saith the lord the king of israel, and his redeemer the lord of hosts: i am the brat, and i am the last, and besides me there is no god. who is like to me? let him call and declare: and let him set before me the order, since i appointed the ancient people: and the things to come, and that shall be hereafter, let them shew unto them. fear ye not, neither be ye troubled, from that time i have made thee to hear, and have declared: you are my witnesses. is there a god besides me, a maker, whom i have not known? the makers of idols are all of them nothing, and their best beloved things shall not profit them. they are their witnesses, that they do not see, nor understand, that they may be ashamed. who hath formed a god, and made a graven thing that is profitable for nothing? behold, all the partakers thereof shall be confounded: for the makers are men: they shall all assemble together, they shall stand and fear, and shall be confounded together. the smith hath wrought with his file, with coals, and with hammers he hath formed it, and hath wrought with the strength of his arm: he shall hunger and faint, he shall drink no water, and shall be weary. the carpenter hath stretched out his rule, he hath formed it with a plane: he hath made it with corners, and hath fashioned it round with the compass: and he hath made the image of a man as it were a beautiful man dwelling in a house. he hath cut down cedars, taken the holm, and the oak that stood among the trees of the forest: he hath planted the pine tree, which the rain hath nourished. and it hath served men for fuel: he took thereof, and warmed himself: and he kindled it, and baked bread: but of the rest he made a god, and adored it: he made a graven thing, and bowed down before it. part of it he burnt with fire, and with part of it he dressed his meat: he boiled pottage, and was filled, and was warmed, and said: aha, i am warm, i have seen the fire. but the residue thereof he made a god, and a graven thing for himself: he boweth down before it, and adoreth it, and prayeth unto it, saying: deliver me, for thou art my god. they have not known, nor understood: for their eyes are covered that they may not see, and that they may not understand with their heart. they do not consider in their mind, nor know, nor have the thought to say: i have burnt part of it in the fire, and i have baked bread upon the coals thereof: i have broiled flesh and have eaten, and of the residue thereof shall i make an idol? shall i fall down before the stock of a tree? part thereof is ashes: his foolish heart adoreth it, and he will not save his soul, nor say: perhaps there is a lie in my right hand. remember these things, o jacob, and israel, for thou art my servant. i have formed thee, thou art my servant, o israel, forget me not. i have blotted out thy iniquities as a cloud, and thy sins as a mist: return to me, for i have redeemed thee. give praise, o ye heavens, for the lord hath shewn mercy: shout with joy, ye ends of the earth: ye mountains, resound with praise, thou, o forest, and every tree therein: for the lord hath redeemed jacob, and israel shall be glorified. thus saith the lord thy redeemer, and thy maker, from the womb: i am the lord, that make all things, that alone stretch out the heavens, that establish the earth, and there is none with me. that make void the tokens of diviners, and make the soothsayers mad. that turn the wise backward, and that, make their knowledge foolish. that raise up the word of my servant and perform the counsel of my messengers, who say to jerusalem: thou shalt be inhabited: and to the cities of juda: you shall be built, and i will raise up the wastes thereof. who say to the deep: be thou desolate, and i will dry up thy rivers. who say to cyrus: thou art my shepherd, and thou shalt perform all my pleasure. who say to jerusalem: thou shalt be built: and to the temple: thy foundations shall be laid.

thus saith the lord to my anointed cyrus, whose right hand i have taken hold of, to subdue nations before his face, and to turn the backs of kings, and to open the doors before him, and the gates shall not be shut. i will go before thee, and will humble the great ones of the earth: i will break in pieces the gates of brass, and will burst the bars of iron. and i will give thee hidden treasures, and the concealed riches of secret places: that thou mayest know that i am the lord who call thee by thy name, the god of israel. for the sake of my servant jacob, and israel my elect, i have even called thee by thy name: i have made a likeness of thee, and thou hast not known me. i am the lord, and there is

none else: there is no god, besides me: i girded thee, and thou hast not known me: that they may know who are from the rising of the sun, and they who are from the west, that there is none besides me. i am the lord, and there is none else: i form the light, and create darkness, i make peace, and create evil: i the lord that do all these things. drop down dew, ye heavens, from above, and let the clouds rain the just: let the earth be opened, and bud forth a saviour: and let justice spring up together: i the lord have created him. woe to him that gainsayeth his maker, a sherd of the earthen pots: shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it: what art thou making, and thy work is without hands? woe to him that saith to his father: why begettest thou? and to the woman: why dost thou bring forth? thus saith the lord the holy one of israel, his maker: ask me of things to come, concerning my children, and concerning the work of my hands give ye charge to me. i made the earth: and i created man upon it: my hand stretched forth the heavens, and i have commanded all their host. i have raised him up to justice, and i will direct all his ways: he shall build my city, and let go my captives, not for ransom, nor for presents, saith the lord the god of hosts. thus saith the lord: the labour of egypt, and the merchandise of ethiopia, and of sabaim, men of stature shall come over to thee, and shall be thins: they shall walk after thee, they shall go bound with manacles: and they shall worship thee, and shall make supplication to thee: only in thee is god, and there is no god besides thee. verily thou art a hidden god, the god of israel the saviour. they are all confounded and ashamed: the forgers of errors are gone together into confusion. israel is saved in the lord with as eternal salvation: you shall not be confounded, and you shall not be ashamed for ever and ever. for thus saith the lord that created the heavens, god himself that formed the earth, and made it, the very maker thereof: he did not create it in vain: he formed it to be inhabited. i am the lord, and there is no other. i have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth: i have not said to the seed of jacob: seek me in vain. i am the lord that speak justice, that declare right things. assemble yourselves, and come, and draw near together, ye that are saved of the gentiles: they have no knowledge that set up the wood of their graven work, and pray to a god that cannot save. tell ye, and come, and consult together: who hath declared this from the beginning, who hath foretold this from that time? have not i the lord, and there is no god else besides me? a just god and a saviour, there is none besides me. be converted to me, and you shall be saved, all ye ends of the earth: for i am god, and there is no other. i have sworn by myself, the word of justice shall go out of my mouth, and shall not return: for every knee shall be bowed to me, and every tongue shall swear. therefore shall he say: in the lord are my justices and empire: they shall come to him, and all that resist him shall be confounded. in the lord shall all the seed of israel be justified and praised.

bel is broken, nebo is destroyed: their idols are put upon beasts and cattle, your burdens of heavy weight even unto weariness. they are consumed, and are broken together: they could not save him that carried them, and they themselves shall go into captivity. hearken unto me, o house of jacob, all the remnant of the house of israel, who are carried by my bowels, are borne up by my womb. even to your old age i am the same, and to your grey hairs i will carry you: i have made you, and i will bear: i will carry and will save. to whom have you likened me, and made me equal, and compared me, and made me like? you that contribute gold out of the bag, and weigh out silver in the scales: and hire a goldsmith to make a god: and they fall down and worship. they bear him on their shoulders and carry him, and set him in his piece, and he shall stand, and shall not stir out of his place. yea, when they shall cry also unto him, he shall not hear: he shall not save them from tribulation. remember this, and be ashamed: return, ye transgressors, to the heart. remember the former age, for i am god, and there is no god beside, neither is there the like to me: who shew from the beginning the things that shall be at last, and from ancient times the things that as yet are not done, saying: my counsel shall stand, and all my will shall be done: who call a bird from the east, and from a far country the man of my own will, and i have spoken, and will bring it to pass: i have created, and i will do it. hear me, o ye hardhearted, who are far from justice. i have brought my justice near, it shall not be afar off: and my salvation shall not tarry. i will give salvation in sion, and my glory in israel.

come down, sit in the dust, o virgin daughter of babilon, sit on the ground: there is no throne for the daughter of the chaldeans, for thou shalt no more be called delicate and tender. take a millstone and grind meal: uncover thy shame, strip thy shoulder, make bare thy legs, pass over the rivers. thy nakedness shall be discovered, and thy shame shall be seen: i will take vengeance, and no man shall resist me. our redeemer, the lord of hosts is his name, the holy one of israel. sit thou silent, and get thee into darkness, o daughter of the chaldeans: for thou shalt no more be called the lady of kingdoms. i was angry with my people, i have polluted my inheritance, and have given them into thy bend: thou hast shewn no mercy to them: upon the ancient thou hast laid thy yoke exceeding heavy. and thou hast said: i shall be a lady for ever: thou hast not laid these things to thy heart, neither hast thou remembered thy latter end. and now hear these things, thou that art delicate, and dwellest confidently, that sayest in thy heart: i am, and there is none else besides me: i shall not sit as a widow, and i shall not know barrenness. these two things shall come upon thee suddenly in one day, barrenness and widowhood. all things are come upon thee, because of the multitude of thy sorceries, and for the great hardness of thy enchanters. and thou best trusted in thy wickedness, and hast said: there is none that seeth me. thy wisdom, and thy knowledge, this hath deceived thee. and thou best said in thy heart: i am, and besides me there is no other. evil shall come upon thee, and then shalt not know the rising thereof: and calamity shall fall violently upon thee, which thou canst not keep off: misery shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know. stand now with thy enchanters, and with the multitude of thy sorceries, in which thou hast laboured from thy youth, if so be it may profit thee any thing, or if thou mayst become stronger. thou hast failed in the multitude or thy counsels: let now the astrologers stand and save thee, they that gazed at the stars, and counted the months, that from them they might tell the things that shall come to thee. behold they are as stubble, fire hath burnt them, they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the dames: there are no coals wherewith they may be warmed, nor fire, that they may sit thereat. such are all the things become to thee, in which thou best laboured: thy merchants from thy youth, every one hath erred in his own way, there is none that can save thee.

hear ye these things, o house of jacob, you that are called by the name of israel, and are come forth out of the waters of juda, you who swear by the name of the lord, and make mention of the god of israel, but not in truth, nor in justice. for they are called of the holy city, and are established upon the god of israel: the lord of hosts is his name. the former things of old i have declared, and they went forth out of my mouth, and i have made them to be heard: i did them suddenly and they came to pass. for i knew that thou art stubborn, and thy neck is as an iron sinew, and thy forehead as brass. i foretold thee of old, before they came to pass i told thee, lest thou shouldst say: my idols have done these things, and my graven and molten things have commanded them. see now all the things which thou hast heard: but have you declared them? i have shewn thee new things from that time, and things are kept which thou knowest not: they are created now, and not of old: and before the day, when thou heardest them not, lest thou shouldst say: behold i knew them. thou hast neither heard, nor known, neither was thy ear opened of old. for i know that transgressing thou wilt transgress, and i have called thee a transgressor from the womb. for my name's sake i will remove my wrath far off: and for my praise i will bridle thee, lest thou shouldst perish. behold i have refined thee, but not as silver, i have chosen thee in the furnace of poverty. for my own sake, for my own sake will i do it, that i may not be blasphemed: and i will not give my glory to another. hearken to me, o jacob, and thou israel whom i call: i am he, i am the first, and i am the last. my hand also hath founded the earth, and my right hand hath measured the heavens: i shall call them, and they shall stand together. assemble yourselves together, all you, and hear: who among them hath declared these things? the lord hath loved him, he will do his pleasure in babylon, and his arm shall be on the chaldeans. i, even i have spoken and called him: i have brought him, and his way is made prosperous. come ye near unto me, and hear this: i have not spoken in secret from the beginning: from the time before it was done, i was there, and now the lord god hath sent me, and his spirit. thus saith the lord thy redeemer, the holy one of israel: i am the lord thy god that teach thee profitable things, that govern thee in the way that thou walkest. o that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments: thy peace had been as a river, and thy justice as the waves of the sea, and thy seed had been as the sand, and the offspring of thy bowels like the gravel thereof: his name should not have perished, nor have been destroyed from before my face. come forth out of babylon, flee ye from the chaldeans, declare it with the voice of joy: make this to be heard, and speak it out even to the ends of the earth. say: the lord hath redeemed his servant jacob. they thirsted not in the desert, when he led them out: he brought forth water out of the rock for them, and he clove the rock, and the waters gushed out. there is no peace to the wicked, saith the lord.

give ear, ye islands, and hearken, ye people from afar. the lord hath called me from the womb, from the bowels of my mother he hath been mindful of my name. and he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword: in the shadow of his hand he hath protected me, and hath made me as a chosen arrow: in his quiver he hath hidden me. and he said to me: thou art my servant israel, for in thee will i glory. and i said: i have laboured in vain, i have spent my strength without cause and in vain: therefore my judgment is with the lord, and my work with my god. and now saith the lord, that formed me from the womb to be his servant, that i may bring back jacob unto him, and israel will not be gathered together: and i am glorified in the eyes of the lord, and my god is made my strength. and he said: it is a small thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of jacob, and to convert the dregs of israel. behold, i have given thee to be the light of the gentiles, that thou mayst be my salvation even to the farthest part of the earth. thus saith the lord the redeemer of israel, his holy one, to the soul that is despised, to the nation that is abhorred, to the servant of rulers: kings shall see, and princes shall rise up, and adore for the lord's sake, because he is faithful, and for the holy one of israel, who hath chosen thee. thus saith the lord: in an acceptable time i have heard thee, and in the day of salvation i have helped thee: and i have preserved thee, and given thee to be a covenant of the people, that thou mightest raise up the earth, and possess the inheritances that were destroyed: that thou mightest say to them that are bound: come forth: and to them that are in darkness: shew yourselves. they shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in every plain. they shall not hunger, nor thirst, neither shall the heat nor the sun strike them: for he that is merciful to them, shall be their shepherd, and at the fountains of waters he shall give them drink. and i will make all my mountains a way, and my paths shall be exalted. behold these shall come from afar, and behold these from the north and from the sea, and these from the south country. give praise, o ye heavens, and rejoice, o earth, ye mountains, give praise with jubilation: because the lord hath comforted his people, and will have mercy on his poor ones. and sion said: the lord hath forsaken me, and the lord hath forgotten me. can a woman forget her infant, so as not to have pity on the son of her womb? and if she should forget, yet will not i forget thee. behold, i have graven thee in my hands: thy walls are always before my eyes. thy builders are come: they that destroy thee and make thee waste shall go out of thee. lift up thy eyes round about, and see all these are gathered together, they are come to thee: i live, saith the lord, thou shalt be clothed with all these as with an ornament, and as a bride thou shalt put them about thee. for thy deserts, and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction shall now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that swallowed thee up shall be chased far away. the children of thy barrenness shall still say in thy ears: the place is too strait for me, make me room to dwell in. and thou shalt say in thy heart: who hath begotten these? i was barren and brought not forth, led away, and captive: and who hath brought up these? i was destitute and alone: and these, where were they? thus saith the lord god: behold i will lift up my hand to the gentiles, and will set up my standard to the people. and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and carry thy daughters upon their shoulders. and kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and queens thy nurses: they shall worship thee with their face toward the earth, and they shall lick up the dust of thy feet. and thou shalt know that i am the lord, for they shall not be confounded that wait for him. shall the prey be taken from the strong? or can that which was taken by the mighty be delivered? for thus saith the lord: yea verily, even the captivity shall be taken away from the strong: and that which was taken by the mighty, shall be delivered. but i will judge those that have judged thee, and thy children i will save. and i will feed thy enemies with their own flesh: and they shall be made drunk with their own blood, as with new wine: and all flesh shall know, that i am the lord that save thee, and thy redeemer the mighty one of jacob.

thus saith the lord: what is this bill of the divorce of your mother, with which i have put her away? or who is my creditor, to whom i sold you: behold you are sold for your iniquities, and for your wicked deeds have i put your mother away. because i came, and there was not a man: i called, and there was none that would hear. is my hand shortened and become little, that i cannot redeem? or is there no strength in me to deliver? behold at my rebuke i will make the sea a desert, i will turn the rivers into dry land: the fishes shall rot for want of water, and shall die for thirst. i will clothe the heavens with darkness, and will make sackcloth their covering. the lord hath given me a learned tongue, that i should know how to uphold by word him that is weary: he wakeneth in the morning, in the morning he wakeneth my ear, that i may hear him as a master. the lord god hath opened my ear, and i do not resist: i have not gone back. i have given my body to the strikers, and my cheeks to them that plucked them: i have not turned away my face from them that rebuked me, and spit upon me. the lord god is my helper, therefore am i not confounded: therefore have i set my face as a most hard rock, and i know that i shall not be confounded. he is near that justifieth me, who will contend with me? let us stand together, who is my adversary? let him come near to me. behold the lord god is my helper: who is he that shall condemn me? lo, they shall all be destroyed as a garment, the moth shall eat them up. who is there among you that feareth the lord, that heareth the voice of his servant, that hath walked in darkness, and hath no light? let him hope in the name of the lord, and lean upon his god. behold all you that kindle a fire, encompassed with dames, walk in the light of your fire, and in the dames which you have kindled: this is done to you by my hand, you shall sleep in sorrows.

give ear to me, you that follow that which is just, and you that seek the lord: look unto the rock whence you are hewn, and to the hole of the pit from which you are dug out. look unto abraham your father, and to sara that bore you: for i called him alone, and blessed him, and multiplied him. the lord therefore will comfort sion, and will comfort all the ruins thereof: and he will make her desert as a place of pleasure, and her wilderness as the garden of the lord. joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of praise. hearken unto me, o my people, and give ear to me, o my tribes: for a law shall go forth from me, and my judgment shall rest to be a light of the nations. my just one is near at hand, my saviour is gone forth, and my arms shall judge the people: the islands shall look for me, and shall patiently wait for my arm. lift up your eyes to heaven, and look down to the earth beneath: for the heavens shall vanish like smoke, and the earth shall be worn away like a garment, and the inhabitants thereof shall perish in like manner: but my salvation shall be for ever, and my justice shall not fail. hearken to me, you that know what is just, my people who have my law in your heart: fear ye not the reproach of men, and be not afraid of their blasphemies. for the worm shall eat them up as a garment: and the moth shall consume them as wool: but my salvation shall be for ever, and my justice from generation to generation, arise, arise, put on strength, o thou arm of the lord, arise as in the days of old, in the ancient generations. hast not thou struck the proud one, and wounded the dragon? hast not thou dried up the sea, the water of the mighty deep, who madest the depth of the sea a way, that the delivered might pass over? and now they that are redeemed by the lord, shall return, and shall come into

sion singing praises, and joy everlasting shall be upon their heads, they shall obtain joy and gladness, sorrow and mourning shall flee away. i, i myself will comfort you: who art thou, that thou shouldst be afraid of a mortal man, and of the son of man, who shall wither away like grass? and thou hast forgotten the lord thy maker, who stretched out the heavens, and founded the earth: and thee hast been afraid continually all the day at the presence of his fury who afflicted thee, and had prepared himself to destroy thee: where is now the fury of the oppressor? he shall quickly come that is going to open unto you, and he shall not kill unto utter destruction, neither shall his bread fail. but i am the lord thy god, who trouble the sea, and the waves thereof swell: the lord of hosts is my name. i have put my words in thy mouth, and have protected thee in the shadow of my hand, that thou mightest plant the heavens, and found the earth: and mightest say to sion: thou art my people. arise, arise, stand up, o jerusalem, which hast drunk at the hand of the lord the cup of his wrath; thou hast drunk even to the bottom of the cup of dead sleep, and thou hast drunk even to the dregs. there is none that can uphold her among all the children that she hath brought forth: and there is none that taketh her by the hand among all the children that she hath brought up. there are two things that have happened to thee: who shall be sorry for thee? desolation, and destruction, and the famine, and the sword, who shall comfort thee? thy children are cast forth, they have slept at the head of all the ways, as the wild ox that is snared: full of the indignation of the lord, of the rebuke of thy god. therefore hear this, thou poor little one, and thou that art drunk but no with wine. thus saith thy sovereign the lord and thy god, who will fight for his people: behold i have taken out of thy hand the cup of dead sleep, the dregs of the cup of my indignation, thou shalt not drink it again any more. and i will put it in the hand of them that have oppressed thee, and have said to thy soul: bow down, that we may go over: and thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as a way to them that went over.

arise, arise, put on thy strength, o sion, put on the garments of thy glory, o jerusalem, the city of the holy one: for henceforth the uncircumcised, and unclean shall no more pass through thee. shake thyself from the dust, arise, sit up, o jerusalem: loose the bonds from off thy neck, o captive daughter of sion. for thus saith the lord: you were sold gratis, and you shall be redeemed without money. for thus saith the lord god: my people went down into egypt at the beginning to sojourn there: and the assyrian hath oppressed them without any cause at all. and now what have i here, saith the lord: for my people is taken away gratis. they that rule over them treat them unjustly, saith the lord, and my name is continually blasphemed all the day long. therefore my people shall know my name in that day: for i myself that spoke, behold i am here. how beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, and that preacheth peace: of him that sheweth forth good, that preacheth salvation, that saith to sion: thy god shall reign! the voice of thy watchmen: they have lifted up their voice, they shall praise together: for they shall see eye to eye when the lord shall convert sion rejoice, and give praise together, o ye deserts of jerusalem: for the lord hath comforted his people: he hath redeemed jerusalem. the lord hath prepared his holy arm in the sight of all the gentiles: and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our god. depart, depart, go ye out from thence, touch no unclean thing: go out of the midst of her, be ye clean, you that carry the vessels of the lord. for you shall not go out in a tumult, neither shall you make haste by flight: for the lord will go before you, and the god of israel will gather you together. behold my servant shall understand, he shall be exalted, and extolled, and shall be exceeding high. as many have been astonished at thee, so shall his visage be inglorious among men, and his form among the sons of men. he shall sprinkle many nations, kings shall shut their mouth at him: for they to whom it was not told of him, have seen: and they that heard not, have beheld.

who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the lord revealed? and he shall grow up as a tender plant before him, and as a root out of a thirsty ground: there is no beauty in him, nor comeliness: and we have seen him, and there was no sightliness, that we should be desirous of him: despised, and the most abject of men, a man of sorrows, and acquainted with infirmity: and his look was as it were hidden and despised, whereupon we esteemed him not. surely he hath borne our infirmities and carried our sorrows: and we have thought him as it were a leper, and as one struck by god and afflicted. but he was wounded for our iniquities, he was bruised for our sins: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and by his bruises we are healed. all we like sheep have gone astray, every one hath turned aside into his own way: and the lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. he was offered because it was his own will, and he opened not his mouth: he shall be led as a sheep to the slaughter, and shall be dumb as a lamb before his shearer, and he shall not open his mouth. he was taken away from distress, and from judgment: who shall declare his generation? because he is cut off out of the land of the living: for the wickedness of my people have i struck him. and he shall give the ungodly for his burial, and the rich for his death: because he hath done no iniquity, neither was there deceit in his mouth. and the lord was pleased to bruise him in infirmity: if he shall lay down his life for sin, he shall see a long-lived seed, and the will of the lord shall be prosperous in his hand. because his soul hath laboured, he shall see and be filled: by his knowledge shall this my just servant justify many, and he shall bear their iniquities. therefore will i distribute to him very many, and he shall divide the spoils of the strong, because he hath delivered his soul unto death, and was reputed with the wicked: and he hath borne the sins of many, and hath prayed for the transgressors.

give praise, o thou barren, that bearest not: sing forth praise, and make a joyful noise, thou that didst not travail with child: for many are the children of the desolate, more than of her that hath a husband, saith the lord. enlarge the place of thy tent, and stretch out the skins of thy tabernacles, spare not: lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes. for thou shalt pass on to the right hand, and to the left: and thy seed shall inherit the gentiles, and shall inhabit the desolate cities. fear not, for thou shalt not be confounded, nor blush: for thou shalt not be put to shame, because thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, and shalt remember no more the reproach of thy widowhood. for he that made thee shall rule over thee, the lord of hosts is his name: and thy redeemer, the holy one of israel, shall be called the god of all the earth. for the lord hath called thee as woman forsaken and mourning in spirit, end as a wife cast off from her youth, said thy god. for a small moment have i forsaken thee, but with great mercies will i gather thee. in a moment of indignation have i hid my face a little while from thee, but with everlasting kindness have i had mercy on thee, said the lord thy redeemer. this thing is to me as in the days of noe, to whom i swore, that i would no more bring in the waters of noe upon the earth: so have i sworn not to be angry with thee, and not to rebuke thee. for the mountains shall be moved, and the hills shall tremble; but my mercy shall not depart from thee, and the covenant of my peace shall not be moved: said the lord that hath mercy on thee. o poor little one, tossed with tempest, without all comfort, behold i will lay thy stones in order, and will lay thy foundations with sapphires, and i will make thy bulwarks of jasper: and thy gates of graven stones, and all thy borders of desirable stones. all thy children shall be taught of the lord: and great shall be the peace of thy children. and thou shalt be founded in justice: depart far from oppression, for thou shalt not fear; and from terror, for it shall not come near thee. behold, an inhabitant shall come, who was not with me, he that was a stranger to thee before, shall be joined to thee. behold, i have created the smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, and bringeth forth an instrument for his work, and i have created the killer to destroy. no weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper: and every tongue that resisteth thee in judgment, thou shalt condemn. this is the inheritance of the servants of the lord, and their justice with me, saith the lord.

all you that thirst, come to the waters: and you that have no money make haste, buy, and eat: come ye, buy wine and milk without money, and without any price. why do you spend money for that which is not breed, and your labour for that which doth not satisfy you? hearken diligently to me, and eat that which is good, and your soul shall be delighted in fatness. incline your ear and come to me: hear and your soul shall live, and i will make an everlasting covenant with you, the faithful mercies of david. behold i have given him for a witness to the people, for a leader and a master to the gentiles. behold thou shalt call a nation, which thou knewest not: and the nations that knew not thee shall run to thee, because of the lord thy god, and for the holy one of israel, for he hath glorified thee. seek ye the lord, while he may be found: call upon him, while he is near. let the wicked forsake his way, and the unjust man his thoughts, and let him return to the lord, and he will have mercy on him, and to our god: for he is bountiful to forgive. for my thoughts are not your thoughts: nor your ways my ways, saith the lord. for as the heavens are exalted above the earth, so are my ways exalted above your ways, and my thoughts above your thoughts. and as the rain and the snow come down from heaven, and return no more thither, but soak the earth, and water it, and make it to spring, and give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: so shall my word be, which shall go forth from my mouth: it shall not return to me void, but it shall do whatsoever i please, and shall prosper in the things for which i sent it. for you shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall sing praise before yen, and all the trees of the country shah clap their hands. instead of the shrub, shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the nettle, shall come up the myrtle tree: and the lord shall be named for an everlasting sign, that shall not be taken away.

thus saith the lord : keep ye judgment, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my justice to be revealed. blessed is the man that doth this, and the son of man that shall lay hold on this: that keepeth the sabbath from profaning it, that keepeth his hands from doing any evil. and let not the son of the stranger, that adhereth to the lord, speak, saying: the lord will divide and separate me from his people. and let not the eunuch say: behold i am a dry tree. for thus saith the lord to the eunuchs, they that shall keep my sabbaths, and shall choose the things that please me, and shall hold fast my covenant: i will give to them in my house, and within my walls, a place, and a name better than sons and daughters: i will give them an everlasting name which shall never perish. and the children of the stranger that adhere to the lord, to worship him, and to love his name, to be his servants: every one that keepeth the sabbath from profaning it, and that holdeth fast my covenant: i will bring them into my holy mount, and will make them joyful in my house of prayer: their holocausts, and their victims shall please me upon my altar: for my house shall be called the house of prayer, for all nations. the lord god, who gathereth the scattered of israel, saith: i will still gather unto him his congregation. all ye beasts of the field come to devour, all ye beasts of the forest. his watchmen are all blind, they are all ignorant: dumb dogs not able to bark, seeing vain things, sleeping and loving dreams. and meet impudent dogs, they never had enough: the shepherds themselves knew no understanding: all have turned aside into their own way, every one after his own gain, from the first even to the last. come, let us take wine, and be filled with drunkenness: and it shall be as to day, so also to morrow, and much more.

the just perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart, and men of mercy are taken away, because there is none that understandeth; for the just man is taken away from before the face of evil. let peace come, let him rest in his bed that hath walked in his uprightness. but draw near hither, you sons of the sorceress, the seed of the adulterer, and of the harlot. upon whom have you jested? upon whom have you opened your mouth wide, and put out your tongue? are not you wicked children, a false seed, who seek your comfort in idols under every green tree, sacrificing children in the torrents, under the high rocks? in the parts of the torrent is thy portion, this is thy lot: and thou hast poured out libations to them, thou hast offered sacrifice. shall i not be angry at these things? upon a high and lofty mountain thou hast laid thy bed, and hast gone up thither to offer victims. and behind the door, and behind the post thou hast set up thy remembrance: for thou hast discovered thyself near me, and hast received an adulterer: thou hast enlarged thy bed, and made a covenant with them: thou hast loved their bed with open hand. and thou hast adorned thyself for the king with ointment, and hast multiplied thy perfumes. thou hast sent thy messengers far off, and wast debased even to hell. thou hast been wearied in the multitude of thy ways: yet thou saidst not: i will rest: thou hast found life of thy hand, therefore thou hast not asked. for whom hast thou been solicitous and afraid, that thou hast lied, and hast not been mindful of me, nor thought on me in thy heart? for i am silent, and as one that seeth not, and thou hast forgotten me. i will declare thy justice, and thy works shall not profit thee. when thou shalt cry, let thy companies deliver thee, but the wind shall carry them all off, a breeze shall take them away, but he that putteth his trust in me, shall inherit the land, and shall possess my holy mount. and i will say: make a way: give free passage, turn out of the path, take away the stumbling-blocks out of the way of my people. for thus saith the high and the eminent that inhabiteth eternity: and his name is holy, who dwelleth in the high and holy place, and with a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite. for i will not contend for ever, neither will i be angry unto the end: because the spirit shall go forth from my face, end breathings i will make. for the iniquity of his covetousness i was angry, and i struck him: i hid my face from thee, and was angry: and he went away wandering in his own heart. i saw his ways, and i healed him, and brought him back, and restored comforts to him, and to them that mourn for him. i created the fruit of the lips, peace, peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near, said the lord, and i healed him. but the wicked are like the raging sea, which cannot rest, and the waves thereof cast up dirt and mire. there is no peace to the wicked, saith the lord god.

cry, cease not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their wicked doings, and the house of jacob their sins. for they seek me from day to day, sad desire to know my ways, as a nation that hath done justice, and hath not forsaken the judgment of their god: they ask of me the judgments of justice: they are willing to approach to god. why have we fasted, and thou hast not regarded: have we humbled our souls, and thou hast not taken notice? behold in the day of your fast your own will is found, and you exact of all your debtors. behold you fast for debates and strife. and strike with the fist wickedly. do not fast as you have done until this day, to make your cry to be heard on high. is this such a fast as i have chosen: for a man to afflict his soul for a day? is this it, to wind his head about like a circle, and to spread sackcloth and ashes? wilt thou call this a fast, and a day acceptable to the lord? is not this rather the fast that i have chosen? loose the bands of wickedness, undo the bundles that oppress, let them that are broken go free, and break asunder every burden. deal thy bread to the hungry, and bring the needy and the harbourless into thy house: when thou shalt see one naked, cover him, and despise not thy own flesh. then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thy health shall speedily arise, and thy justice shall go before thy face, end the glory of the lord shall gather thee up. then shalt thou call, and the lord shall hear: thou shalt cry, and he shall say, here i am. if thou wilt take away the chain out of the midst of thee, and cease to stretch out the finger, and to speak that which profiteth not. when thou shalt pour out thy soul to the hungry, and shalt satisfy the afflicted soul then shall thy light rise up in darkness, and thy darkness shall be as the noonday. and the lord will give thee rest continually, and will fill thy soul with brightness, and deliver thy bones, and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a fountain of water whose waters shall not fail and the places that have been desolate for ages shall be built in thee: thou shalt raise up the foundations of generation and generation: and thou shalt be called the repairer of the fences, turning the paths into rest. if thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy own will in my holy day, and call the sabbath delightful, and the holy of the lord glorious, and glorify him, while thou dost not thy own ways, and thy own will is not found: to speak a word: then shalt thou be delighted in the lord, and i will lift thee up above the high places of the earth, and will feed thee with the inheritance of jacob thy father. for the mouth of the lord hath spoken it.

behold the hand of the lord is not shortened that it cannot save, neither is his ear heavy that it cannot hear. but your iniquities have divided between you and your god, and your sins have hid his face from you that he should not hear. for your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity: your lips have spoken lies, and your tongue uttereth iniquity. there is none that calleth upon justice, neither is there any one that judgeth truly: but they trust in a mere nothing, and speak vanities: they have conceived labour, and brought forth iniquity. they have broken the eggs of asps, and have woven the webs of spiders: he that shall eat of their eggs, shall die: and that which is brought out, shall be hatched into a basilisk. their webs shall not be for clothing, neither shall they cover themselves with their works: their works are unprofitable works, and the work of iniquity is in their hands. their feet run to evil, and make haste to shed innocent blood: their thoughts are unprofitable thoughts: wasting and destruction are in their ways. they have not known the way of peace, and there is no judgment in their steps: their paths are become crooked to them, every one that treadeth in them, knoweth no peace. therefore is judgment far from us, and justice shall not overtake us. we looked for light, and behold darkness: brightness, and we have walked in the dark. we have groped for the wall, and like the blind we have groped as if we had no eyes: we have stumbled at noonday as in darkness, we are in dark places as dead men. we shall roar all of us like bears, and shall lament as mournful doves. we have looked for judgment, and there is none: for salvation, and it is far from us. for our iniquities are multiplied before thee, and our sins have testified against us: for our wicked doings are with us, and we have known our iniquities: in sinning and lying against the lord: and we have turned away so that we went not after our god, but spoke calumny and transgression: we have conceived, and uttered from the heart, words of falsehood. and judgment is turned away backward, and justice hath stood far off: because truth hath fallen down in the street, and equity could not come in. and truth hath been forgotten: and he that departed from evil, lay open to be a prey: and the lord saw, and it appeared evil in his eyes, because there is no judgment. and he saw that there is not a man: and he stood astonished, because there is none to oppose himself: and his own arm brought salvation to him, and his own justice supported him. he put on justice as a breastplate, and a helmet of salvation upon his head: he put on the garments of vengeance, and was clad with zeal as with a cloak. as unto revenge, as it were to repay wrath to his adversaries, and a reward to his enemies: he will repay the like to the islands. and they from the west, shall fear the name of the lord: and they from the rising of the sun, his glory: when he shall come as a violent stream, which the spirit of the lord driveth on: and there shall come a redeemer to sion, and to them that return from iniquity in jacob, saith the lord. this is my covenant with them, saith the lord: my spirit that is in thee, and my words that i have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the lord, from henceforth and

arise, be enlightened, o jerusalem: for thy light is come, and the glory of the lord is risen upon thee. for behold darkness shall cover the earth, and a mist the people: but the lord shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. and the gentiles shall walk in thy light, and kings in the brightness of thy rising. lift up thy eyes round about, and see: all these are gathered together, they are come to thee: thy sons shall come from afar, and thy daughters shall rise up at thy side. then shalt thou see, and abound, and thy heart shall wonder and be enlarged, when the multitude of the sea shall be converted to thee, the strength of the gentiles shall come to thee. the multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of madian and epha: all they from saba shall come, bringing gold and frankincense: and shewing forth praise to the lord. all the flocks of cedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of nabaioth shall minister to thee: they shall be offered upon my acceptable altar, and i will glorify the house of my majesty. who are these, that fly as clouds, and as doves to their windows? for, the islands wait for me, and the ships of the sea in the beginning: that i may bring thy sons from afar: their silver, and their gold with them, to the name of the lord thy god, and to the holy one of israel, because he hath glorified thee. and the children of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister to thee: for in my wrath have i struck thee, and in my reconciliation have i had mercy upon thee. and thy gates shall be open continually: they shall not be shut day nor night, that the strength of the gentiles may be brought to thee, and their kings may be brought. for the nation and the kingdom that will not serve thee, shall perish: and the gentiles shall be wasted with desolation. the glory of libanus shall come to thee, the ar tree, and the box tree, and the pine tree together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary: and i will glorify the place of my feet. and the children of them that afflict thee, shall come bowing down to thee, and all that slandered thee shall worship the steps of thy feet, and shall call thee the city of the lord, the sion of the holy one of israel. because thou wast forsaken, and hated, and there was none that passed through thee, i will make thee to be an everlasting glory, a joy unto generation and generation: and thou shalt suck the milk of the gentiles, and thou shalt be nursed with the breasts of kings: and thou shalt know that i am the lord thy saviour, and thy redeemer, the mighty one of jacob. for brass i will bring gold, and for iron i will bring silver: and for wood brass, and for stones iron: and i will make thy visitation peace, and thy overseers justice. iniquity shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction in thy borders, and salvation shall possess thy walls, and praise thy gates. thou shalt no more have the sun for thy light by day, neither shall the brightness of the moon enlighten thee: but the lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, and thy god for thy glory. thy sun shall go down no more, and thy moon shall not decrease: for the lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended. and thy people shall be all just, they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hand to glorify me. the least shall become a thousand, and a little one a most strong nation: i the lord will suddenly do this thing in its time.

the spirit of the lord is upon me, because the lord hath anointed me: he hath sent me to preach to the meek, to heal the contrite of heart, and to preach a release to the captives, and deliverance to them that are shut up. to proclaim the acceptable year of the lord, and the day of vengeance of our god: to comfort all that mourn: to appoint to the mourners of sion, and to give them a crown for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, a garment of praise for the spirit of grief: and they shall be called in it the mighty ones of justice, the planting of the lord to glorify him. and they shall build the places that have been waste from of old, and shall raise up ancient ruins, and shall repair the desolate cities, that were destroyed for generation and generation. and strangers shall stand and shall feed your flocks: and the sons of strangers shall be your husbandmen, and the dressers of your vines. but you shall be called the priests of the lord: to you it shall be said: ye ministers of our god: you shall eat the riches of the gentiles, and you shall pride yourselves in their glory. for your double confusion and shame, they shall praise their part: therefore shall they receive double in their land, everlasting joy shall be unto them. for i am the lord that love judgment, and hate robbery in a holocaust: and i will make their work in truth, and i will make a perpetual covenant with them. and they shall know their seed among the gentiles, and their offspring in the midst of peoples: all that shall see them, shall know them, that these are the seed which the lord hath blessed. i will greatly rejoice in the lord, and my soul shall be joyful in my god: for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation: and with the robe of justice he hath covered me, as a bridegroom decked with a crown, and as a bride adorned with her jewels. for as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth her seed to shoot forth: so shall the lord god make justice to spring forth, and praise before all the nations.

for sion's sake i will not hold my peace, and for the sake of jerusalem, i will not rest till her just one come forth as brightness, and her saviour be lighted as a lamp. and the gentiles shall see thy just one, and all kings thy glorious one: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the lord shall name. and thou shalt be a crown of glory in the hand of the lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy god. thou shalt no more be called forsaken: and thy land shall no more be called desolate: but thou shalt be called my pleasure in her, and thy land inhabited. because the lord hath been well pleased with thee: and thy land shall be inhabited. for the young man shall dwell with the virgin, and thy children shall dwell in thee. and the bridegroom shall rejoice over the bride, and thy god shall rejoice over thee. upon thy wails, o jerusalem, i have appointed watchmen all the day, and all the night, they shall never hold their peace. you that are mindful of the lord, hold not your peace, and give him no silence till he establish, and till he make jerusalem a praise in the earth. the lord hath sworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength: surely i will no more give thy corn to be meat for thy enemies: and the sons of the strangers shall not drink thy wine, for which thou hast laboured. for they that gather it, shall eat it, and shall praise the lord: and they that bring it together, shall drink it in my holy courts. go through, go through the gates, prepare the way for the people, make the road plain, pick out the stones, and lift up the standard to the people. behold the lord hath made it to be heard in the ends of the earth, tell the daughter of sion: behold thy saviour cometh: behold his reward is with him, and his work before him. and they shall call them, the holy people, the redeemed of the lord. but thou shalt be called: a city sought after, and not forsaken.

who is this that cometh from edom, with dyed garments from bosra, this beautiful one in his robe, walking in the greatness of his strength. i, that speak justice, and am a defender to save. why then is thy apparel red, and thy garments like theirs that tread in the winepress? i have trodden the winepress alone, and of the gentiles there is not a man with me: i have trampled on them in my indignation, and have trodden them down in my wrath, and their blood is sprinkled upon my garments, and i have stained all my apparel. for the day of vengeance is in my heart, the year of my redemption is come. i looked about, and there was none to help: i sought, and there was none to give aid: and my own arm hath saved for me, and my indignation itself hath helped me. and i have trodden down the people in my wrath, and have made them drunk in my indignation, and have brought down their strength to the earth. i will remember the tender mercies of the lord, the praise of the lord for all the things that the lord hath bestowed upon us, and for the multitude of his good things to the house of israel, which he hath given them according to his kindness, and according to the multitude of his mercies. and he said: surely they are my people, children that will not deny: so he became their saviour. in all their affliction he was not troubled, and the angel of his presence saved them: in his love, and in his mercy he redeemed them, and he carried them and lifted them up all the days of old. but they provoked to wrath, and afflicted the spirit of his holy one: and he was turned to be their enemy, and he fought against them. and he remembered the days of old of moyses, and of his people: where is he that brought them up out of the sea, with the shepherds of his flock? where is he that put in the midst of them the spirit of his holy one? he

that brought out moſes by the right hand, by the arm of his majeſty: that divided the waters before them, to make himſelf an everlaſting name. he that led them out through the deep, as a horſe in the wilderneſs that ſtumbleth not. as a beaſt that goeth down in the field, the ſpirit of the lord was their leader: ſo diſt thou lead thy people to make thyſelf a glorious name. look down from heaven, and behold from thy holy habitation and the place of thy glory: where is thy zeal, and thy ſtrength, the multitude of thy bowels, and of thy mercies? they have held back themſelves from me. for thou art our father, and abraham hath not known us, and iſrael hath been ignorant of us: thou, o lord, art our father, our redeemer, from everlaſting is thy name. why haſt thou made us to err, o lord, from thy ways: why haſt thou hardened our heart, that we ſhould not fear thee? return for the ſake of thy ſervants, the tribes of thy inheritance. they have poſſeſſed thy holy people as nothing: our enemies have trodden down thy ſanctuary. we are become as in the beginning, when thou diſt not rule over us, and when we were not called by thy name.

that thou wouldeſt rend the heavens, and wouldeſt come down: the mountains would melt away at thy preſence. they would melt as at the burning of fire, the waters would burn with fire, that thy name might be made known to thy enemies: that the nations might tremble at thy preſence. when thou ſhalt do wonderful things, we ſhall not bear them: thou diſt come down, and at thy preſence the mountains melted away. from the beginning of the world they have not heard, nor perceived with the ears: the eye hath not ſeen, o god, beſides thee, what things thou haſt prepared for them that wait for thee. thou haſt met him that rejoiceth, and doth juſtice: in thy ways they ſhall remember thee: behold thou art angry, and we have ſinned: in them we have been always, and we ſhall be ſaved. and we are all become as one unclean, and all our juſtices as the rag of a menſtruous woman: and we have all fallen as a leaf, and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away. there is none that calleth upon thy name: that riſeth up, and taketh hold of thee: thou haſt hid thy face from us, and haſt cruſhed us in the hand of our iniquity. and now, o lord, thou art our father, and we are clay: and thou art our maker, and we all are the works of thy hands. be not very angry, o lord, and remember no longer our iniquity: behold, ſee we are all thy people. the city of thy ſanctuary is become a deſert, ſion is made a deſert, jeruſalem is deſolate. the houſe of our holineſs, and of our glory, where our fathers praiſed thee, is burnt with fire, and all our lovely things are turned into ruins. wilt thou refrain thyſelf, o lord, upon theſe things, wilt thou hold thy peace, and afflict us vehemently?

they have ſought me that before aſked not for me, they have found me that ſought me not. i ſaid: behold me, behold me, to a nation that did not call upon my name. i have ſpread forth my hands all the day to an unbelieving people, who walk in a way that is not good after their own thoughts. a people that continually provoke me to anger before my face: that immolate in gardens, and ſacrifice upon bricks. that dwell in ſepulchres, and ſleep in the temple of idols: that eat ſwine's fleſh, and profane broth is in their veſſels. that ſay: depart from me, come not near me, becauſe thou art unclean: theſe ſhall be ſmoke in my anger, a fire burning all the day. behold it is written before me: i will not be ſilent, but i will render and repay into their boſom. your iniquities, and the iniquities of your fathers together, ſaith the lord, who have ſacrificed upon the mountains, and have reproached me upon the hills; and i will meaſure back their firſt work in their boſom. thus ſaith the lord: as if a grain be found in a cluſter, and it be ſaid: deſtroy it not, becauſe it is a bleſſing: ſo will i do for the ſake of my ſervants, that i may not deſtroy the whole. and i will bring forth a ſeed out of jacob, and out of juda a poſſeſſor of my mountains: and my elect ſhall inherit it, and my ſervants ſhall dwell there. and the plains ſhall be turned to folds of hocks, and the valley of achor into a place for the herds to lie down in, for my people that have ſought me. and you, that have forſaken the lord, that have forgotten my holy mount, that ſet a table for fortune, and offer libations upon it, i will number you in the ſword, and you ſhall all fall by ſlaughter: becauſe i called and you did not answer: i ſpoke, and you did not hear: and you did evil in my eyes, and you have choſen the things that diſpleaſe me. therefore thus ſaith the lord god: behold my ſervants ſhall eat, and you ſhall be hungry: behold my ſervants ſhall drink, and you ſhall be thirſty. behold my ſervants ſhall rejoice, and you ſhall be confounded: behold my ſervants ſhall praiſe for joyfulneſs of heart, and you ſhall cry for ſorrow of heart, and ſhall howl for grief of ſpirit. and you ſhall leave your name for an execration to my elect: and the lord god ſhall ſlay thee, and call his ſervants by another name. in which he that is bleſſed upon the earth, ſhall be bleſſed in god, amen: and he that ſweareth in the earth, ſhall ſwear by god, amen: becauſe the former diſtreſſes are forgotten, and becauſe they are hid from my eyes. for behold i create new heavens, and a new earth: and the former things ſhall not be in remembrance, and they ſhall not come upon the heart. but you ſhall be glad and rejoice for ever in theſe things, which i create: for behold i create jeruſalem a rejoicing, end the people thereof joy. and i will rejoice in jeruſalem, and joy in my people, and the voice of weeping ſhall no more be heard in her, nor the voice of crying. there ſhall no more be an infant of days there, nor an old man that ſhall not fill up his days: for the child ſhall die a hundred years old, and the ſinner being a hundred years old ſhall be accuſed. and they ſhall build houſes, and inhabit them; and they ſhall plant vineyards, and eat the fruits of them. they ſhall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat: for as the days of a tree, so shall be the days of my people, and the works of their hands shall be of long continuance. my elect shall not labour in vain, nor bring forth in trouble; for they are the seed of the blessed of the lord, and their posterity with them. and it shall come to pass, that before they call, i will hear; as they are yet speaking, i will hear. the wolf and the lamb shall feed together; the lion and the ox shall eat straw; and dust shall be the serpent's food: they shall not hurt nor kill in all my holy mountain, saith the lord.

thus saith the lord: heaven is my throne, and the earth my footstool: what is this house that you will build to me? and what is this place of my rest? my hand made all these things, and all these things were made, saith the lord. but to whom shall i have respect, but to him that is poor and little, and of a contrite spirit, and that trembleth at my words? he that sacrificeth an ox, is as if he slew a man: he that killeth a sheep in sacrifice, as if he should brain a dog: he that offereth an oblation, as if he should offer swine's blood; he that remembereth incense, as if he should bless an idol. all these things have they chosen in their ways, and their soul is delighted in their abominations. wherefore i also will choose their mockeries, and will bring upon them the things they feared: y because i called, and there was none that would answer; i have spoken, and they heard not; and they have done evil in my eyes, and have chosen the things that displease me. hear the word of the lord, you that tremble at his word: your brethren that hate you, and cast you out for my name's sake, have said: let the lord be glorified, and we shall see in your joy: but they shall be confounded. a voice of the people from the city, a voice from the temple, the voice of the lord that rendereth recompense to his enemies. before she was in labour, she brought forth; before her time came to be delivered, she brought forth a man child. who hath ever heard such a thing? and who hath seen the like to this? shall the earth bring forth in one day? or shall a nation be brought forth at once, because sion hath been in labour, and hath brought forth her children? shall not i that make others to bring forth children, myself bring forth, saith the lord? shall i, that give generation to others, be barren, saith the lord thy god? rejoice with jerusalem, and be glad with her, all you that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all you that mourn for her. that you may suck, and be filled with the breasts of her consolations: that you may milk out, and flow with delights, from the abundance of her glory. for thus saith the lord: behold i will bring upon her as it were a river of peace, and as an overflowing torrent the glory of the gentiles, which you shall suck; you shall be carried at the breasts, end upon the knees they shall caress you. as one whom the mother caresseth, so will i comfort you, and you shall be comforted in jerusalem. you shall see and your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like an herb, and the hand of the lord shall be known to his servants, and he shall be angry with his enemies. for be-

hold the lord will come with fire, and his chariots are like a whirlwind, to render his wrath in indignation, and his rebuke with flames of fire. for the lord shall judge by fire, and by his sword unto all flesh, and the slain of the lord shall be many. they that were sanctified, and thought themselves clean in the gardens behind the gate within, they that did eat swine's flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse: they shall be consumed together, saith the lord. but i know their works, and their thoughts: i come that i may gather them together with all nations and tongues: and they shall come and shall see my glory. and i will set a sign among them, and i will send of them that shall be saved, to the gentiles into the sea, into africa, and lydia them that draw the bow: into italy, and greece, to the islands afar off, to them that have not heard of me, and have not seen my glory. and they shall declare my glory to the gentiles: and they shall bring all your brethren out of all nations for a gift to the lord, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and on mules, and in coaches, to my holy mountain jerusalem, saith the lord, as if the children of israel should bring an offering in a clean vessel into the house of the lord. and i will take of them to be priests, and levites, saith the lord. for as the new heavens, and the new earth, which i will make to stand before me, saith the lord: so shall your seed stand, and your name. and there shall be month after month, and sabbath after sabbath: and all flesh shall come to adore before my face, saith the lord. and they shall go out, and see the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me: their worm shall not die, and their fire shall not be quenched: and they shall be a loathsome sight to all flesh.

the words of jeremias the son of helcias, of the priests that were in anathoth, in the land of benjamin. the word of the lord which came to him in the days of josias the son of amon king of juda, in the thirteenth year of his reign. and which came to him in the days of joakim the son of josias king of juda, unto the end of the eleventh year of sedecias the son of josias king of juda, even unto the carrying away of jerusalem captive, in the fifth month. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: before i formed thee in the bowels of thy mother, i knew thee: and before thou camest forth out of the womb, i sanctified thee, and made thee a prophet unto the nations. and i said: ah, ah, lord god: behold, i cannot speak, for i am a child. and the lord said to me: say not: i am a child: for thou shalt go to all that i shall send thee: and whatsoever i shall command thee, thou shalt speak. be not afraid at their presence: for i am with thee to deliver thee, saith the lord. and the lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth: and the lord said to me: behold i have given my words in thy mouth: lo, i have set thee this day over the nations, and over the kingdoms, to root up, and pull down, and to waste, and to destroy, and to build, and to plant. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: what seest thou, jeremias? and i said: i see a rod watching. and the lord said to me: thou hast seen well: for i will watch over my word to perform it. and the word of the lord came to me a second time, saying: what seest thou? i see a boiling caldron, and the face thereof from the face of the north. and the lord said to me: from the north shall an evil break forth upon all the inhabitants of the land. for behold i will call together all the families of the kingdoms of the north: saith the lord: and they shall come, and shall set every one his throne in the entrance of the gates of jerusalem, and upon all the walls thereof round about, and upon all the cities of juda, and i will pronounce my judgements against them, touching all their wickedness, who have forsaken me, and have sacrificed to strange gods, and have adored the work of their own hands. thou therefore gird up thy loins, and arise, and speak to them all that i command thee. be not afraid at their presence: for i will make thee not to fear their countenance. for behold i have made thee this day a fortified city, and a pillar of iron, and a wall of brass, over all the land, to the kings of juda, to the princes thereof, and to the priests, and to the people of the land. and they shall fight against thee, and shall not prevail: for i am with thee, saith the lord, to deliver thee.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: go, and cry in the ears of jerusalem, saying: thus saith the lord: i have remembered thee, pitying thy soul, pitying thy youth, and the love of thy espousals, when thou followedst me in the desert, in a land that is not sown. israel is holy to the lord, the first fruits of his increase: all they that devour him offend: evils shall come upon them, saith the lord. hear ye the word of the lord, o house of jacob, and all ye families of the house of israel. thus saith the lord: what iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become vain? and they have not said: where is the lord, that made us come up out of the land of egypt? that led us through the desert, through a land uninhabited and unpassable, through a land of drought, and the image of death, through a land wherein no man walked, nor any man dwelt? and i brought you into the land of carmel, to eat the fruit thereof, and the best things thereof: ad when ye entered in, you defiled my land, and made my inheritance an abomination. the priests did not say: where is the lord? and they that held the law knew me not, and the pastors transgressed against me: and the prophets prophesied in baal, and followed idols. therefore will i yet contend in judgement with you, saith the lord, and i will plead with your children. pass over to the isles of cethim, and see: and send into cedar, and consider diligently: and see if there hath been done any thing like this. if a nation hath changed their gods, and indeed they are not gods; but my people have changed their glory into an idol. be astonished, o ye heavens, at this, and ye gates thereof, be very desolate, saith the lord. for my people have done two evils. they have forsaken me, the fountain of living water, and have digged to themselves cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water. is israel a bondman, or a homeborn slave? why then is he become prey? the lions have roared upon him, and have made a noise, they have made his land a wilderness: his cities are burnt down and there is none to dwell in them. the children also of memphis, and of taphnes have deflowered thee, even to the crown of the head. hath not this been done to thee, because thou hast forsaken the lord thy god at that time, when he led thee by the way? and now what hast thou to do in the way of egypt, to drink the troubled water? and what hast thou to do with the way of the assyrians, to drink the water of the river? thy own wickedness shall reprove thee, and thy apostasy shall rebuke thee. know thou, and see that it is an evil and a bitter thing for thee, to have left the lord thy god, and that my fear is not with thee, saith the lord the god of hosts. of old time thou hast broken my yoke, thou hast burst my bands, and thou saidst: i will not serve. for on every high hill, and under every green tree thou didst prostitute thyself. yet i planted thee a chosen vineyard, all true seed: how then art thou turned unto me into that which is good for nothing, o strange vineyard? though thou wash thyself with nitre, and multiply to thyself the herb borth, thou art stained in thy iniquity before me, saith the lord god. how canst thou say: i am not polluted, and i have not walked after baalim? see thy ways in the valley, know what thou hast done: as a swift runner pursuing his course. a wild ass accustomed to the wilderness in the desire of his heart, snuffed up the wind of his love: none shall turn her away: all that seek her shall not fail: in her monthly filth they shall find her. keep thy foot from being bare, and thy throat from thirst. but thou saidst: i have lost all hope, i will not do it: for i have loved strangers, and i will walk after them. as the thief is confounded

when he is taken, so is the house of israel confounded, they and their kings, their princes and their priests, and their prophets. saying to a stock: thou art my father: and to a stone: thou hast begotten me: they have turned their back to me, and not their face: and in the time of their affliction they will say: arise, and deliver us. where are the gods, whom thou hast made thee? let them arise and deliver thee in the time of thy affliction: for according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, o juda. why will you contend with me in judgement? you have all forsaken me, saith the lord. in vain have i struck your children, they have not received correction: your sword hath devoured your prophets, your generation is like a ravaging lion. see ye the word of the lord: am i become a wilderness to israel, or a lateward springing land? why then have my people said: we are revolted, we will come to thee no more. will a virgin forget her ornament, or a bride her stomacher? but my people hath forgotten me days without number. why dost thou endeavor to shew thy way good to seek my love, thou who has also taught thy malices to be thy ways, and in thy skirts is found the blood of the souls of the poor and innocent? not in ditches have i found them, but in all places, which i mentioned before. and thou hast said: i am without sin and am innocent: and therefore let thy anger be turned away from me. behold, i will contend with thee in judgement, because thou hast said: i have not sinned. how exceeding base art thou become, going the same ways over again! and thou shalt be ashamed of egypt, as thou wast ashamed of assyria. for from thence thou shalt go, and thy hand shall be upon thy head: for the lord hath destroyed thy trust, and thou shalt have nothing prosperous therein.

it is commonly said: if a man put away his wife, and she go from him, and marry another man, shall he return to her any more? shall not that woman be polluted, and defiled? but thou hast prostituted thyself to many lovers: nevertheless return to me, saith the lord, and i will receive thee. lift up thy eyes on high: and see where thou hast not prostituted thyself: thou didst sit in the ways, waiting for them as a robber in the wilderness: and thou hast polluted the land with thy fornications, and with thy wickedness. therefore the showers were withholden, and there was no lateward rain: thou hadst a harlot's forehead, thou wouldst not blush. therefore at least at this time call to me: thou art my father, the guide of my virginity: wilt thou be angry for ever, or wilt thou continue until the end? behold, thou hast spoken, and hast done evil things, and hast been able. and the lord said to me in the days of king josias: hast thou seen what rebellious israel hath done? she hath gone out of herself upon every high mountain, and under every green tree, and hath played the harlot there. and when she had done all these things, i said: return to me, and she did not return. and her treacherous sister juda saw, that because the rebellious israel had played the harlot, i had put her away, and had given her a bill of divorce: yet her treacherous sister juda was not afraid, but went

and played the harlot also herself. and by the facility of her fornication she defiled the land, and played the harlot with stones and with stocks. and after all this, her treacherous sister juda hath not returned to me with her whole heart, but with falsehood, saith the lord. and the lord said to me: the rebellious israel hath justified her soul, in comparison of the treacherous juda. go, and proclaim these words toward the north, and thou shalt say: return, o rebellious israel, saith the lord, and i will not turn away my face from you: for i am holy, saith the lord, and i will not be angry for ever. but yet acknowledge thy iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the lord thy god: and thou hast scattered thy ways to strangers under every green tree, and hast not heard my voice, saith the lord. return, o ye revolting children, saith the lord: for i am your husband: and i will take you, one of a city, and two of a kindred, and will bring you into sion. and i will give you pastors according to my own heart, and they shall feed you with knowledge and doctrine. and when you shall be multiplied, and increase in the land in those days, saith the lord, they shall say no more: the ark of the covenant of the lord: neither shall it come upon the heart, neither shall they remember it, neither shall it be visited, neither shall that be done any more. at that time jerusalem shall be called the thrown of the lord: and all the nations shall be gathered together to it, in the name of the lord to jerusalem, and they shall not walk after the perversity of their most wicked heart. in those days the house of juda shall go to the house of israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land which i gave to your fathers. but i said: how shall i put thee among the children, and give thee a lovely land, the goodly inheritance of the armies of the gentiles? and i said: thou shalt call me father and shalt cease to walk after me. but as a woman that despiseth her lover, so hath the house of israel despised me, saith the lord. a voice was heard in the highways, weeping and howling of the children of israel: because they have made their way wicked, they have forgotten the lord their god. return, ye rebellious children, and i will heal your rebellions. behold we come to thee: for thou art the lord our god. in very deed the hills were liars. and the multitude of the mountains: truly in the lord our god is the salvation of israel. confusion hath devoured the labor of our fathers from our youth, their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters. we shall sleep in our confusion, and our shame shall cover us, because we have sinned against the lord our god, we and our fathers from our youth even to this day, and we have not hearkened to the voice of the lord our god.

if thou wilt return, o israel, saith the lord, return to me: if thou wilt take away thy stumblingblocks out of my sight, thou shalt not be moved. and thou shalt swear: as the lord liveth, in truth, and in judgement, and in justice: and the gentiles shall bless him, and shall praise him. for thus saith the lord to the men of juda and jerusalem: break up anew your fallow ground, and sow not upon thorns: be circumcised to the lord, and take away the foreskins of your hearts, ye men of juda, and ye inhabitants of jerusalem: lest my indignation come forth like fire, and burn, and there be none that can quench it: because of the wickedness of your thoughts. declare ye in juda, and make it heard in jerusalem: speak, and sound with the trumpet in the land: cry aloud, and say: assemble yourselves, and let us go into strong cities. set up the standard in sion. strengthen yourselves, stay not: for i bring evil from the north, and great destruction. the lion is come up out of his den, and the robber of nations hath roused himself: he is come forth out of his place, to make thy land desolate: thy cities shall be laid waste, remaining without an inhabitant. for this gird yourselves with haircloth, lament and howl: for the fierce anger of the lord is not turned away from us. and it shall come to pass in that day, saith the lord: that the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of the princes: and the priests shall be astonished, and the prophets shall be amazed and i said: alas, alas, alas, o lord god, hast thou then deceived this people and jerusalem, saying: you shall have peace: and behold the sword reacheth even to the soul? at that time it shall be said to this people, and to jerusalem: a burning wind is in the ways that are in the desert of the way of the daughter of my people, not to fan, nor to cleanse. a full wind from these places shall come to me: and now i will speak my judgments with them. behold he shall come up as a cloud, and his chariots as a tempest: his horses are swifter than eagles: woe unto us, for we are laid waste. wash thy heart from wickedness, o jerusalem, that thou mayst be saved: how long shall hurtful thoughts abide in thee? for a voice of one declaring from dan, and giving notice of the idol from mount ephraim. say ye to the nations: behold it is heard in jerusalem, that guards are coming from a far country, and give out their voice against the cities of juda. they are set round about her, as keepers of fields: because she hath provoked me to wrath, saith the lord. they ways, and thy devices have brought these things upon thee: this is thy wickedness, because it is bitter, because it hath touched thy heart. my bowels, my bowels are in pain, the senses of my heart are troubled within me, i will not hold my peace, for my soul hath heard the sound of the trumpet, the cry of battle. destruction upon destruction is called for, and all the earth is laid waste: my tents are destroyed on a sudden, and my pavilions in a moment. how long shall i see men fleeing away, how long shall i hear the sound of the trumpet? for my foolish people have not known me: they are foolish and senseless children: they are wise to do evil, but to do good they have no knowledge. i beheld the earth, and lo it was void, and nothing: and the heavens, and there was no light in them. i looked upon the mountains, and behold they trembled: and all the hills were troubled. i beheld, and lo there was no man: and all the birds of the air were gone. i looked, and behold carmel was a wilderness: and all its cities were destroyed at the presence of the lord, and at the presence of the wrath of his indignation. for thus saith the lord: all the land shall be desolate, but yet i will not utterly destroy. the earth shall mourn, and the heavens shall lament from above: because i have spoken, i have purposed, and i have not repented, neither am i turned away from it. at the voice of the horsemen, and the archers, all the city is fled away; they have entered into thickets and have climbed up the rocks: all the cities are forsaken, and there dwelleth not a man in them. but when thou art spoiled what wilt thou do? though thou deckest thee with ornaments of gold, and paintest thy eyes with stibic stone, thou shalt dress thyself out in vain: thy lovers have despised thee, they will seek thy life. for i have heard the voice as of a woman in travail, anguishes as of a woman in labor of a child. the voice of the daughter of sion, dying away, spreading her hands: woe is me, for my soul hath fainted because of them that are slain.

go about through the streets of jerusalem, and see, and consider, and seek in the broad places thereof, if you can find a man that executeth judgement, and seeketh faith: and i will be merciful unto it. and though they say: the lord liveth; this also they will swear falsely. o lord, thy eyes are upon truth: thou hast struck them, and they have not grieved: thou hast bruised them, and they have refused to receive correction: they have made their faces harder than the rock, and they have refused to return. but i said: perhaps these are poor and foolish, that know not the way of the lord, the judgement of their god. i will go therefore to the great men, and i will speak to them: for they know the way of the lord, the judgement of their god: and behold these have together broken the yoke more, and have burst the bonds. wherefore a lion out of the wood hath slain them, a wolf in the evening, hath spoiled them, a leopard watcheth for their cities: every one that shall go out thence shall be taken, because their transgressions are multiplied, their rebellions are strengthened. how can i be merciful to thee? thy children have forsaken me, and swear by them that are not gods: i fed them to the full, and they committed adultery, and rioted in the harlot's house. they are become as amorous horses and stallions, every one neighed after his neighbor's wife. shall i not visit for these things, sayeth the lord? and shall not my soul take revenge on such a nation? scale down the walls thereof, and throw them down, but do not utterly destroy: take away the branches thereof, because they are not the lord's. for the house of israel, and the house of juda have greatly transgressed against me, saith the lord. they have denied the lord, and said, it is not he: and the evil shall not come upon us: we shall not see the sword and famine. the prophets have spoken in the wind, and there was no word of god in them: these things therefore shall befall them. thus saith the lord the god of hosts: because you have spoken this word, behold i will make my words in thy mouth as fire, and this people as wood, and it shall devour them. behold i will bring upon you a nation from afar, o house of israel, saith the lord: a strong nation, an ancient nation, a nation whose language thou shalt not know, nor understand what they say. their quiver is as an open sepulchre, they are all valiant. and they shall eat up thy corn, and thy bread: they shall devour thy sons, and thy daughters: they shall eat up thy flocks, and thy herds: they shall eat thy vineyards, and thy figs: and with the sword they shall destroy thy strong cities, wherein thou trustest. nevertheless in those days, saith the lord, i will not bring you to utter destruction. and if you shall say: why hath the lord our god done all these things to us? thou shalt say to them: as you have forsaken me, and served a strange god in your own land, so shall you serve strangers in a land that is not your own. declare ye this to the house of jacob, and publish it in juda, saying: hear, o foolish people, and without understanding: who have eyes, and see not: and ears, and hear not. will not you then fear me, saith the lord: and will you not repent at my presence? i have set the sand a bound for the sea, an everlasting ordinance, which it shall not pass over: and the waves thereof shall toss themselves, and shall not prevail: they shall swell, and shall not pass over it. but the heart of this people is become hard of belief and provoking, they are revolted and gone away. and they have not said in their heart: let us fear the lord our god, who giveth us the early and the latter rain in due season: who preserveth for us the fullness of the yearly harvest. your iniquities have turned these things away, and your sins have withholden good things from you. for among my people are found wicked men, that lie in wait as fowlers, setting snares and traps to catch men. as a net is full of birds, so their houses are full of deceit: therefore are they become great and enriched. they are grown gross and fat: and have most wickedly transgressed my words. they have not judged the cause of the widow, they have not managed the cause of the fatherless, they have not judged the judgement of the poor. shall i not visit for these things, saith the lord? or shall not my soul take revenge on such a nation? astonishing and wonderful things have been done in the land. the prophets prophesied falsehood, and the priests clapped their hands: and my people loved such things: what then shall be done in the end thereof?

strengthen yourselves, ye sons of benjamin, in the midst of jerusalem, and sound the trumpet in thecua, and set up the standard over bethacarem: for evil is seen out of the north, and a great destruction. i have likened the daughter of sion to a beautiful and delicate woman. the shepherds shall come to her with their flocks: they have pitched their tents against her round about: every one shall feed them that are under his hand. prepare ye war against her: arise, and let us go up at midday: woe unto us, for the day is declined, for the shadows of the evening are grown longer. arise, and let us go up in the night, and destroy her houses. for thus saith the lord of hosts: hew down her trees, cast up a trench about jerusalem: this is the city to be visited, all oppression is in the midst of her. as a cistern maketh its water cold, so hath she made her wickedness cold: violence and spoil shall be heard in her, infirmity and stripes are continually before me. be thou instructed, o jerusalem, lest my soul depart from thee, lest i make thee desolate, a land uninhabited. thus saith the lord of hosts: they shall gather the remains of israel, as in a vine, even to one cluster: turn back thy hand, as a grape gatherer into the basket. to whom shall i speak? and to whom shall i testify, that he may hear? behold, their ears are uncircumcised, and they cannot hear: behold the word of the lord is become unto them a reproach: and and they will not receive it. therefore am i full of the fury of the lord, i am weary with holding in: pour it out upon the child abroad, and upon the council of the young men together: for man and woman shall be taken, the ancient and he that is full of days. and their houses shall be turned over to others, with their lands and their wives together: for i will stretch for my hand upon the inhabitants of the land, saith the lord. for from the least of them even to the greatest, all are given to covetousness: and from the prophet even to the priest, all are guilty of deceit. and they healed the breach of the daughter of my people disgracefully, saying: peace, peace: and there was no peace. they were confounded, because they committed abomination: yea, rather they were not confounded with confusion, and they knew not how to blush: wherefore they shall fall among them that fall: in the time of their visitation they shall fall down, saith the lord. thus saith the lord: stand ye on the ways, and see and ask for the old paths which is the good way, and walk ye in it: and you shall find refreshment for your souls. and they said: we will not walk. and i appointed watchmen over you, saying: hearken ye to the sound of the trumpet. and they said: we will not hearken. therefore hear, ye nations, and know, o congregation, what great things i will do to them. hear, o earth: behold i will bring evils upon this people, the fruits of their own thoughts: because they have not heard my words, and they have cast away my law. to what purpose do you bring me frankincense from saba, and the sweet smelling cane from a far country? your holocausts are not acceptable, nor are your sacrifices pleasing to me. therefore thus saith the lord: behold, i will bring destruction upon this people, by which fathers and sons together shall fall, neighbor and kinsman shall perish. thus saith the lord: behold a people cometh from the land of the north, and a great nation shall rise up from the ends of the earth. they shall lay hold on arrow and shield: they are cruel, and will have no mercy. their voice shall roar like the sea: and they shall mount upon horses, prepared as men for war, against thee, o daughter of sion. we have heard the fame thereof, our hands grow feeble: anguish hath taken hold of us, as a woman in labor. go not out into the fields, nor walk in the highway: for the sword of the enemy, and fear is on every side. gird thee with sackcloth, o daughter of my people, and sprinkle thee with ashes: make thee mourning as for an only son, a bitter lamentation, because the destroyer shall suddenly come upon us. i have set thee for a strong trier among my people: and thou shalt know and prove their way. all of these princes go out of the way, they walk deceitfully, they are brass and iron: they are all corrupted. the bellows have failed, the lead is consumed in the fire, the founder hath melted in vain: for their wicked deeds are not consumed. call them reprobate silver, for the lord hath rejected them.

the word that came to jeremias from the lord, saying: stand in the gate of the house of the lord, and proclaim there this word, and say: hear ye the word of the lord, all ye men of juda, that enter in at these gates, to adore the lord. thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: make your ways and your doings good: and i will dwell with you in this place. trust not in lying words, saying: the temple of the lord, the temple of the lord, it is the temple of the lord. for if you will order well your ways, and your doings: if you will execute judgement between a man and his neighbor, if you oppress not the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, and shed not innocent blood in this place, and walk not after strange gods to your own hurt, i will dwell with you in this place: in the land, which i gave to your fathers from the beginning and for evermore. behold you put your trust in lying words, which shall not profit you: to steal, to murder, to commit adultery, to swear falsely, to offer to baalim, and to go after strange gods, which you know not. and you have come, and stood before me in this house, in which my name is called upon, and have said: we are delivered, because we have done all these abominations. is this house then, in which my name hath been called upon, in your eyes become a den of robbers? i, i am he: i have seen it, saith the lord. go ye to my place in silo, where my name dwelt from the beginning: and see what i did to it for the wickedness of my people israel: and now, because you have done all these works, saith the lord: and i have spoken to you rising up early, and speaking, and you have not heard: and i have called you, and you have not answered: i will do to this house, in which my name is called upon, and in which you trust, and to the places which i have given you and your fathers, as i did to silo. and i will cast you away from before my face, as i have cast away all your brethren, the whole seed of ephraim. therefore, do not thou pray for this people, nor take to thee praise and supplication for them: and do not withstand me: for i will not hear thee. seest thou not what they do in the cities of juda, and in the streets of jerusalem? the children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire and the women knead the dough, to make cakes to the queen of heaven, and to offer libations to strange gods, and to provoke me to anger. do they provoke me to anger, saith the lord? is it not themselves, to the confusion of their contenance? therefore thus saith the lord god: behold my wrath and my indignation was enkindled against this place, upon men and upon beasts, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruits of the land, and it shall burn, and shall not be quenched. thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: add your burnt offerings to your sacrifices, and eat ye the flesh. for i spoke not to your fathers, and i commanded them not, in the day that i brought them out of the land of egypt, concerning the matter of burnt offerings and sacrifices.

but this thing i commanded them, saying: hearken to my voice, and i will be your god, and you shall be my people: and walk ye in all the way that i have commanded you, that it may be well with you. but they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear: but walked in their own will, and in the perversity of their wicked heart: and went backward and not forward, from the day that their fathers came out of the land of egypt, even to this day. and i have sent to you all my servants the prophets from day to day, rising up early and sending, and they have not hearkened to me: nor inclined their ear: but have hardened their neck, and have done worse than their fathers. and thou shalt speak to them all these words, but they will not hearken to thee: and thou shalt call them, but they will not answer thee. and thou shalt say to them: this is a nation which hath not hearkened to the voice of the lord their god, nor received instruction: faith is lost, and is carried away out of their mouth. cut off thy hair, and cast it away: and take up a lamentation on high: for the lord hath rejected and forsaken the generation of his wrath, because the children of juda have done evil in my eyes, saith the lord. they have set their abominations in the house in which my name is called upon, to pollute it; and they have built the high places of topeth, which is in the valley of the son of ennom, to burn their sons, and their daughters in the fire: which i commanded not, nor thought on in my heart. therefore behold the days shall come, saith the lord, and it shall no more be called topeth, nor the valley of the son of ennom: but the valley of slaughter, and they shall bury in topeth, because there is no place. and the carcasses of this people shall be meat for the fowls of the air, and for the beasts of the earth, and there shall be non to drive them away. and i will cause of cease out of the cities of juda, and out of the streets of jerusalem, the voice of joy, and the coice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride: for the land shall be desolate.

at that time, saith the lord, they shall cast out the bones of the kings of juda, and the bones of the princes thereof, and the bones of the priests, and the bones of the inhabitants of jerusalem, out of their graves. and they shall spread them abroad to the sun, and the moon, and all the host of heaven, whom they have loved, and whom they have served, and after whom they have walked, and whom they have sought, and adored: they shall not be gathered, and they shall not be buried: they shall be as dung upon the face of the earth. and death shall be chosen rather than life by all that shall remain of this wicked kindred in all places, which are left, to which i have cast them out, saith the lord of hosts. and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord: shall not he that falleth, rise again? and he that is turned away, shall he not turn again? why then is this people in jerusalem turned away with a stubborn revolting? they have laid hold on lying, and have refused to return. i attended, and hearkened; no man speaketh what is good, there is none that doth penance for his sin, saying: what have i done? they are all turned to their own course, as a horse rushing to the battle. the kite in the air hath known her time: the turtle, and the swallow, and the stork have observed the time of their coming: but my people have not known the judgment of the lord. how do you say: we are wise, and the law of the lord is with us? indeed the lying pen of the scribes hath wrought falsehood. the wise men are confounded, they are dismayed, and taken: for they have cast away the word of the lord, and there is no wisdom in them. therefore i will give their women to strangers, their fields to others for an inheritance: because from the least even to the greatest all follow covetousness: from the prophet even to the priest, all deal deceitfully. and they healed the breach of the daughter of my people disgracefully, saying peace, peace: when there was no peace. they are confounded, because they have committed abomination: yea rather they are not confounded with confusion, and they have not know how to blush: therefore shall they fall among them that fall; in the time of their visitation they shall fall, saith the lord. gathering i will gather them together, saith the lord, there is no grape on the vines, and there are no figs on the fig tree, the leaf is fallen: and i have given them the things that are passed away. why do we sit still? assemble yourselves, and let us enter into the fenced city, and let us be silent there: for the lord our god hath put us to silence, and hath given us water of gall to drink: for we have sinned against the lord. we looked for peace and no good came: for a time of healing, and behold fear. the snorting of his horse was heard from dan, all the land was moved at the sound of the neighing of his warriors: and they came and devoured the land, and all that was in it: the city and its inhabitants. for behold i will send among you serpents, basilisks, against which there is no charm: and they shall bite you, saith the lord. my sorrow is above sorrow, my heart mourneth within me. behold the voice of the daughter my people from a far country: is not the lord in sion, or is not her king in her? why then have they provoked me to wrath with their idols, and strange vanities? the harvest is passed, the summer is ended, and we are not saved. for the affliction of the daughter of my people i am afflicted, and made sorrowful, astonishment hath taken hold on me. is there no balm in galaad? or is no physician there? why then is not the wound of the daughter of my people closed?

who will give water to my head, and a fountain of tears to my eyes? and i will weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people. who will give me in the wilderness a lodging place of wayfaring men, and i will leave my people, and depart from them? because they are all adulterers, an assembly of transgressors. and they have bent their tongue, as a bow, for lies, and not for truth: they have strengthened themselves upon the earth, for they have proceeded from evil to evil, and me they have not known, saith the lord. let every man take heed of his neighbor, and let his not trust in any brother of his: for every brother will utterly supplant, and every friend will walk deceitfully. and a man shall mock his brother, and they will not speak the truth: for they have taught their tongue to speak lies: they have laboured to commit iniquity. thy habitation is in the midst of deceit: through deceit they have refused to know me, saith the lord. therefore thus saith the lord of hosts: behold i will melt, and try them: for what else shall i do before the daughter of my people? their tongue is a piercing arrow, it hath spoken deceit: with his mouth one speaketh peace with his friend, and secretly he lieth in wait for him. shall i not visit them for these things, saith the lord? or shall not my soul be revenged on such a nation? for the mountains i will take up weeping and lamentation, and for the beautiful places of the desert, mourning: because they are burnt up, for that there is not a man that passeth through them: and they have not heard the voice of the owner: from the fowl of the air to the beasts they are gone away and departed. and i will make jerusalem to be heaps of sand, and dens of dragons: and i will make the cities of juda desolate, for want of an inhabitant. who is the wise man, that may understand this, and to whom the word of the mouth of the lord may come that he may declare this, why the land hath perished, and is burnt up like a wilderness, which none passeth through? and the lord said: because they have forsaken my law, which i gave them, and have not heard my voice, and have not walked in it. but they have gone after the perverseness of their own heart, and after baalim, which their fathers taught them. therefore thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: behold i will feed this people with wormwood, and give them water of gall to drink. and i will scatter them among the nations, which they and their fathers have not known: and i will send the sword after them till they be consumed. thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: consider ye, and call for the mourning women, and let them come: and send to them that are wise women, and let them make haste: let them hasten and take up a lamentation for us: let our eyes shed tears, and our eyelids run down with waters. for a voice of wailing is heard out of sion: how are we wasted and greatly confounded? because we have left the land, because our dwellings are cast down. hear therefore, ye women, the word of the lord: and let your ears receive the word of his mouth: and teach your daughters wailing: and every one her neighbor mourning. for death is come up through our windows, it is entered into our houses to destroy the children from without, the young men from the streets. speak: thus saith the lord: even the carcass of man shall fall as dung upon the face of the country, and as grass behind the back of the mower, and there is none to gather it. thus saith the lord: let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, and let not the strong man glory in his strength, and let not the rich man glory in his riches: but let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, for i am the lord that exercise mercy, and judgment, and justice in the earth: for these things please me, saith the lord. behold, the days come, saith the lord, and i will visit upon every one that hath the foreskin circumcised. upon egypt, and upon juda, and upon edom, and upon the children of ammon, and upon moab, and upon all that have their hair polled round, that dwell in the desert: for all the nations are uncircumcised in the flesh, but all the house of israel are uncircumcised in the heart.

hear ye the word which the lord hath spoken concerning you, o house of israel. thus saith the lord: learn not according to the ways of the gentiles: and be not afraid of the signs of heaven, which the heathens fear: for the laws of the people are vain: for the works of the hand of the workman hath cut a tree out of the forest with an axe. he hath decked it with silver and gold: he hath put it together with nails and hammers, that it may not fall asunder. they are framed after the likeness of a palm tree, and shall not speak: they must be carried to be removed, because they cannot go. therefore, fear them not, for they can neither do evil nor good. there is none like to thee, o lord: thou art great and great is thy name in might. who shall fear thee, o king of nations? for thine is the glory: among all the wise men of the nations, and in all their kingdoms there is none like unto thee. they shall all proved together to be senseless and foolish: the doctrine of their vanity is wood. silver spread into plates is brought from tharsis, and gold from opahz: the work of the artificer, and of the hand of the coppersmith: violet and purple is their clothing: all these things are the work of artificers. but the lord is the true god: he is the living god, and the everlasting king, at his wrath the earth shall tremble, and the nations shall not be able to abide his threatening. thus then shall you say to them: the gods that have not made heaven and earth, let them perish from the earth, and from among those places that are under heaven. he that maketh the earth by his power, that prepareth the world by his wisdom, and stretcheth out the heavens by his knowledge. at his voice he giveth a multitude of waters in the heaven, and lifteth up the clouds from the ends of the earth: he maketh lightnings for rain, and bringeth for the wind out of his treasures. every man is become a fool for knowledge every artist is confounded in his graven idol: for what he hath cast is false, and there is no spirit in them. they are vain things and a ridiculous work: in the time of their visitation they shall perish. the portion of jacob is not like these: for it is he who formed all things: and israel is the rod of his inheritance: the lord of hosts is his name. gather up thy shame out of the land, thou that dwellest in a siege. for thus saith the lord: behold i will cast away far off the inhabitants of the land at this time: and i will afflict them, so that they may be found. woe is me for my destruction, my wound is very grievous. but i said: truly this is my own evil, and i will bear it. my tabernacle is laid waste, all my cords are broken: my children are gone out from me, and they are not: there is none to stretch forth my tent any more, and to set up my curtains.

because the pastors have done foolishly, and have not sought the lord: therefore have they not understood, and all their flock is scattered. behold the sound of a noise cometh, a great commotion out of the land of the north: to make the cities of juda a desert, and a dwelling for dragons. i know, o lord, that the way of a man is not his: neither is it in a man to walk, and to direct his steps. correct me, o lord, but yet with judgement: and not in fury, lest thou bring me to nothing. pour out thy indignation upon the nations that have not known thee, and upon the provinces that have not called upon thy name: because they have eaten up jacob, and devoured him, and consumed him, and have destroyed his glory.

the word that came from the lord to jeremias, saying: hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak to the men of juda, and to the inhabitants of jerusalem, and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord the god of israel: cursed is the man that shall not hearken to the words of yethis covenant, which i commanded your fathers in the day that i brought them out of the land of egypt, from the iron furnace, saying: hear ye my voice, and do all things that i command you: and you shall be my people, and i will be your god: that i may accomplish the oath which i swore to your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day. and i answered and said: amen, o lord. and the lord said to me: proclaim aloud all these words in the cities of juda, and in the streets of jerusalem, saying: hear ye the words of the covenant, and do them: for protesting i conjured your fathers in the day that i brought them out of the land of egypt even to this day: rising early i conjured them, and said: hearken ye to my voice: and they obeyed not, nor inclined their ear: but walked every one in the perverseness of his own wicked heart: and i brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which i commanded them to do, but they did them not. and the lord said to me: a conspiracy is found among the men of juda, and among the inhabitants of jerusalem. they are returned to the former iniquities of their fathers, who refused to hear my words: so these likewise have gone after strange gods, to serve them: the house of israel, and the house of juda have made void my covenant, which i made with their fathers. wherefore thus saith the lord: behold i will bring in evils upon them, which they shall not be able to escape: and they shall cry to me, and i will not hearken to them. and the cities of juda, and the inhabitants of jerusalem shall go, and cry to the gods to whom they offer sacrifice, and they shall not save them in the time of their affliction. for according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, o juda: and according to the number of the streets of jerusalem thou hast set up altars of confusion, altars to offer sacrifice to baalim. therefore, do not thou pray for this people, and do not take up praise and prayer for them: for i will not hear them in the time of their cry to me, in the time of their affliction. what is the meaning that my beloved hath wrought muck wickedness in my house? shall the holy flesh take away from thee thy crimes, in which thou hast boasted? the lord called thy name, a plentiful olive tree, fair, fruitful, and beautiful: at the noise of a word, a great fire was kindled in it and the branches thereof are burnt. and the lord of hosts that planted thee, hath pronounced evil against thee: for the evils of the house of israel, and the house of juda, which they have done to themselves, to provoke me, offering sacrifice to baalim. but thou, o lord, hast shewn me, and i have known: then thou shewedst me their doings. and i was as a meek lamb, that is carried to be a victim: and i knew not that they had devised counsels against me, saying: let us put wood on his bread, and cut him off from the land of the living, and let his name be remembered no more. but thou, o lord of sabaoth, who judgest justly, and triest the reins and hearts, let me see thy revenge on them: for to thee i have revealed my cause. therefore thus saith the lord to the men of anathoth, who seek thy life, and say: thou shalt not prophesy in the name of the lord, and thou shalt not die in our hands. therefore thus saith the lord of hosts: behold i will visit upon them: and their young men shall die by the sword, their sons and their daughters shall die by famine. and there shall be no remains of them: for i will bring in evil upon the men of anathoth, the year of their visitation.

thou indeed, o lord, art just, if i plead with thee, but yet i will speak what is just to thee: why doth the way of the wicked prosper: why is it well with all them that transgress, and do wickedly? thou hast planted them, and they have taken root: they prosper and bring forth fruit: thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins. and thou, o lord, hast known me, thou hast seen me, and proved my heart with thee: gather them together as sheep for a sacrifice, and prepare them for the day of slaughter. how long shall the land mourn, and the herb of every field wither for the wickedness of them that dwell therein? the beasts and the birds are consumed: because they have said: he shall not see our last end. if thou hast wearied with running with footmen, how canst thou contend with horses? and if thou hast been secure in a land of peace, what wilt thou do in the swelling of the jordan? for even thy brethren, and the house of thy father, even they have fought against thee, and have cried after thee with full voice: believe them not when they speak good things to thee. i have forsaken my house, i have left my inheritance: i have given my dear soul into the land of her enemies. my inheritance is become to me as a lion in the wood: is hath cried out against me, therefore have i hated it. is my inheritance to me as a speckled bird? is it as a bird died throughout? come ye, assemble yourselves, all the beasts of the earth, make haste to devour. many pastors have destroyed my vineyard, they have trodden my portion under foot: they have changed my delightful portion into a desolate wilderness. they have laid it waste, and it hath mourned for me. with desolation is all the land made desolate; because there is none that considereth in the heart. the spoilers are come upon all the ways of the wilderness, for the sword of the lord shall devour from one end of the land to the other end thereof: there is no peace for all flesh. they have sown wheat, and reaped thorns: they have received an inheritance, and it shall not profit them: you shall be ashamed of your fruits, because of the fierce wrath of the lord. thus saith the lord against all my wicked neighbors, that touch the inheritance that i have shared out to my people israel: behold i will pluck them out of their land, and i will pluck the house of juda out of the midst of them. and when i shall have plucked them out, i will return, and have mercy on them: and i will bring them back, every man to his inheritance, and every man to his land. and it shall come to pass, if they will be taught, and will learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name: the lord liveth, as they have taught my people to swear by baal: that they shall be built up in the midst of my people. but if they will not hear, i will utterly pluck out and destroy that nation, saith the lord.

thus saith the lord to me: go, and get thee a linen girdle, and thou shalt put it about thy loins, and shalt not put it into water. and i got a girdle according to the word of the lord, and put it about my loins. and the word of the lord came to me the second time, saying: take the girdle which thou hast got, which is about thy loins, and arise, and go to the euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock. and i went, and hid it by the euphrates, as the lord had commanded me. and it came to pass after many days, that the lord said to me: arise, go to the euphrates, and take from thence the girdle, which i commanded thee to hide there. and i went to the euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle out of the place where i had hid it: and behold the girdle was rotten, so that it was fit for no use. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: thus saith the lord: after this manner will i make the pride of juda, and the great pride of jerusalem to rot. this wicked people, that will not hear my words, and that walk in the perverseness of their heart, and have gone after strange gods to serve them, and to adore them: and they shall be as this girdle which is fit for no use. for as the girdle sticketh close to the loins of a man, so have i brought close to me all of the house of israel, and all the house of juda, saith the lord: that they might be my people, and for a name, and for a praise, and for a glory: but they would not hear. thou shalt speak therefore to them this word: thus saith the lord god of israel: every bottle shall be filled with wine, and they shall say to thee: do we not know that every bottle shall be filled with wine? and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord: behold i will fill all the inhabitants of this land, and the kings of the race of david that sit upon his throne, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of jerusalem. with drunkenness, and i will scatter them every man from his brother, and fathers and sons in like manner, saith the lord: i will not spare, and i will not pardon: nor will i have mercy, but to destroy them. hear ye, and give ear: be not proud, for the lord hath spoken. give

ye glory to the lord your god, before it be dark, and before your feet stumble upon the dark mountains: you shall look for light, and he will turn it into the shadow of death, and into darkness. but if you will not hear this, my soul shall weep in secret for your pride: weeping it shall weep, and my eyes shall run down the tears, because the flock of the lord is carried away captive. say to the king, and to the queen: humble yourselves, sit down: for the crown of your glory is come down from your head. the cities of the south are shut up, and there is none to open them: all juda is carried away captive with an entire captivity. lift up your eyes, and see, you that come from the north: where is the flock that is given thee, thy beautiful cattle? what wilt thou say when he shall visit thee? for thou hast taught them against thee, and instructed them against thy own head: shall not sorrows lay hold on thee, as a woman in labour? and if thou shalt say in thy heart: why are these things come upon me? for the greatness of thy iniquity, thy nakedness is discovered, the soles of thy feet are defiled. if the ethiopian can change his skin, or the leopard his spots: you may also do well, when you have learned evil. and i will scatter them as stubble, which is carried away by the wind in the desert. this is thy lot, and the portion of thy measure from me, saith the lord, because thou hast forgotten me, and hast trusted in falsehood. wherefore i have also bared my thighs against thy face, and thy shame hath appeared. i have seen thy adulteries, and thy neighing, the wickedness of thy fornication: and thy abominations, upon the hills in the field. woe to thee, jerusalem, wilt thou not be made clean after me: how long yet?

the word of the lord that came to jeremias concerning the words of the drought. juda hath mourned, and the gates thereof are fallen, and are become obscure on the ground, and the cry of jerusalem is gone up. the great ones sent their inferiors to the water: they came to draw, they found no water, they carried back their vessels empty: they were confounded and afflicted, and covered their heads. for the destruction of the land, because there came no rain upon the earth, the husbandmen were confounded, they covered their heads. yea, the hind also brought forth in the field, and left it, because there was no grass. and the wild asses stood upon the rocks, they snuffed up the wind like dragons, their eyes failed, because there was no grass. if our iniquities have testified against us, o lord, do thou it for thy name's sake, for our rebellions are many, we have sinned against thee. o expectation of israel, the saviour thereof in time of trouble: why wilt thou be a stranger in the land, and as a wayfaring man turning in to lodge? why wilt thou be as a wandering man, as a mighty man that cannot save? but thou, o lord, art among us, and thy name is called upon by us, forsake us not. thus saith the lord to his people, that have loved to move their feet, and have not rested, and have not pleased the lord: he will now remember their iniquities, and visit their sins. and the lord said to me: pray not for this people

for their good. when they fast i will not hear their prayers: and if they offer holocausts and victims, i will not receive them: for i will consume them by the sword, and by famine, and by the pestilence. and i said: ah, ah, ah, o lord god, the prophets say to them: you shall not see the sword, and there shall be no famine among you, but he will give you true peace in this place. and the lord said to me: the prophets prophesy falsely in my name: i sent them not, neither have i commanded them, nor have i spoken to them: they prophesy unto you a lying vision, and divination and deceit, and the seduction of their own heart. therefore thus saith the lord concerning the prophets that prophesy in my name, whom i did not send, that say: sword and famine shall not be in this land: by sword and famine shall those prophets be consumed. and the people to whom they prophesy, shall be cast out in the streets of jerusalem because of the famine and the sword, and there shall be none to bury them: they and their wives, their sons and their daughters, and i will pour out their wickedness upon them. and thou shalt speak this word to them: let my eyes shed down tears night and day, and let them not cease, because the virgin daughter of my people is afflicted with a great affliction, with an exceeding grievous evil. if i go forth into the fields, behold the slain with the sword: and if i enter into the city, behold them that are consumed with famine. the prophet also and the priest are gone into a land which they knew not. hast thou utterly cast away juda, or hath thy soul abhorred sion? why then hast thou struck us, so that there is no healing for us? we have looked for peace, and there is no good: and for the time of healing, and behold trouble. we acknowledge, o lord, our wickedness, the iniquities of our fathers, because we have sinned against thee. give us not to be a reproach, for thy name's sake, and do not disgrace in us the throne of thy glory: remember, break not thy covenant with us. are there any among the graven things of the gentiles that can send rain? or can the heavens give showers? art not thou the lord our god, whom we have looked for? for thou hast made all these things.

and the lord said to me: if moyses and samuel shall stand before me, my soul is not towards this people: cast them out from my sight, and let them go forth. and if they shall say unto thee: whither shall we go forth? thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord: such as are for death, to death: and such as are to the sword, to the sword: and such as are for famine, to famine: and such as are to captivity, to captivity. and i will visit them with four kinds, saith the lord: the sword to kill, and the dogs to tear, and the fowls of the air, and the beasts of the earth, to devour and destroy. and i will give them up to the rage of all the kingdoms of the earth: because of manasses the son of ezechias the king of juda, for all that he did in jerusalem. for who shall have pity on thee, o jerusalem? or who shall bemoan thee? or who shall go to pray for thy peace? thou hast forsaken me, saith the lord, thou art gone backward: and i will stretch out my hand against thee, and i will destroy thee: i am weary of entreating thee. and i will scatter them with a fan in the gates of the land: i have killed and destroyed my people, and yet they are not returned from their ways. their widows are multiplied unto me above the sand of the sea: i have brought upon them against the mother of the young man a spoiler at noonday: i have cast a terror on a sudden upon the cities. she that hath borne seven is become weak, her soul hath fainted away: her sun is gone down, while it was yet day: she is confounded, and ashamed: and the residue of them i will give up to the sword in the sight of their enemies, saith the lord. woe is me, my mother: why hast thou borne me a man of strife, a man of contention to all the earth? i have not lent on usury, neither hath any man lent to me on usury: yet all curse me. the lord saith to me: assuredly it shall be well with thy remnant, assuredly i shall help thee in the time of affliction, and in the time of tribulation against the enemy. shall iron be allied with the iron from the north, and the brass? thy riches and thy treasures i will give unto spoil for nothing, because of all thy sins, even in all thy borders. and i will bring thy enemies out of a land, which thou knowest not: for a fire is kindled in my rage, it shall burn upon you. o lord, thou knowest, remember me, and visit me, and defend me from them that persecute me, do not defend me in thy patience: know that for thy sake i have suffered reproach. thy words were found, and i did eat them, and thy word was to me a joy and gladness of my heart: for thy name is called upon me, o lord god of hosts. i sat not in the assembly of jesters, nor did i make a boast of the presence of thy hand: i sat alone, because thou hast filled me with threats. why is my sorrow become perpetual, and my wound desperate so as to refuse to be healed? it is become to me as the falsehood of deceitful waters that cannot be trusted. therefore thus saith the lord: if thou wilt be converted, i will convert thee, and thou shalt stand before my face; and if thou wilt separate the precious from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth: they shall be turned to thee, and thou shalt not be turned to them. and i will make thee to this people as a strong wall of brass: and they shall fight against thee, and shall not prevail: for i am with thee to save thee, and to deliver thee, saith the lord. and i will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and i will redeem thee out of the hand of the mighty.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: thou shalt not take thee a wife, neither shalt thou have thee sons and daughters in this place. for thus saith the lord concerning the sons and daughters, that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that bore them: and concerning their fathers, of whom they were born in this land: they shall die by the death of grievous illnesses: they shall not be lamented, and they shall not be buried, they shall be as dung upon the face of the earth: and they shall be consumed with the sword, and with famine: and their carcasses shall be meat for the fowls of the air, and for the beasts of the earth. for thus saith the lord: enter not into the house of feasting, neither go thou to mourn, nor to comfort them: because i have taken away my peace from this people, saith the lord, my mercy and commiserations. both the great and the little shall die in the land: they shall not be buried nor lamented, and men shall not cut themselves, nor make themselves bald for them. and they shall not break bread among them to him that mourneth, to comfort him for the dead: neither shall they give them to drink of the cup, to comfort them for their father and mother. and do not thou go into the house of feasting, to sit with them, and to eat and drink. for thus saith the lord of hosts, the god of israel: behold i will take away out of this place in your sight, and in your days the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride. and when thou shalt tell this people all these words, and they shall say to thee: wherefore hath the lord pronounced against us all this great evil? what is our iniquity? and what is our sin, that we have sinned against the lord our god? thou shalt say to them: because your fathers forsook me, saith the lord: and went after strange gods, and served them, and adored them: and they forsook me, and kept not my law. and you also have done worse than your fathers: for behold every one of you walketh after the perverseness of his evil heart, so as not to hearken to me. so i will cast you forth out of this land, into a land which you know not, nor you fathers: and there you shall serve strange gods day and night, which shall not give you any rest. therefore behold the days come, saith the lord, when it shall be said no more: the lord liveth, that brought for the children of israel out of the land of egypt: but, the lord liveth, that brought the children of israel out of the land of the north, and out of all the lands to which i cast them out: and i will bring them again into their land, which i gave to their fathers. behold i will send many fishers, saith the lord, and they shall fish them: and after this i will send them many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks. for my eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, and their iniquity hath not been hid from my eyes. and i will repay first their double iniquities, and their sins: because they have defiled my land with the carcasses of their idols, and they have filled my inheritance with their abominations. o lord, my might, and my strength, and my refuge in the day of tribulation: to thee the gentiles shall come from the ends of the earth, and shall say: surely our fathers have possessed lies, a vanity which hath not profited them. shall a man make gods unto himself, and there are no gods? therefore, behold i will this once cause them to know, i will shew them my hand and my power: and they shall know that my name is the lord.

the sin of juda is written with a pen of iron, with the point of a diamond, it is graven upon the table of their heart, upon the horns of their altars. when their children shall remember their altars, and their groves, and their green trees upon high mountains, sacrificing in the field: i will give thy strength, and all thy treasures to the spoil, and thy high places for sin in all thy borders. and thou shalt be left stripped of thy inheritance, which i gave thee: and i will make thee serve thy enemies in a land which thou knowest not: because thou hast kindled a fire in my wrath, it shall burn for ever. thus saith the lord: cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the lord. for he shall be like tamaric in the desert, and he shall not see when good shall come: but he shall dwell in dryness in the desert in a salt land, and not inhabited. blessed be the man that trusteth in the lord, and the lord shall be his confidence. and he shall be as a tree that is planted by the waters, that spreadeth out its roots towards moisture: and it shall not fear when the heat cometh. and the leaf thereof shall be green, and in the time of drought it shall not be solicitous, neither shall it cease at any time to bring forth fruit. the heart is perverse above all things, and unsearchable, who can know it? i am the lord who search the heart and prove the reins: who give to every one according to his way, and according to the fruit of his devices. as the partridge hath hatched eggs which she did not lay: so is he that hath gathered riches, and not by right: in the midst of his days he shall leave them, and in his latter end he shall be a fool. a high and glorious throne from the beginning is the place of our sanctification: o lord the hope of israel: all that forsake thee shall be confounded: they that depart from thee, shall be written in the earth: because they have forsaken the lord, the vein of living waters. heal me, o lord, and i shall be healed: save me, and i shall be saved, for thou art my praise. behold they say to me: where is the word of the lord? let it come. and i am not troubled, following thee for my pastor, and i have not desired the day of man, thou knowest. that which went out of my lips, hath been right in thy sight. be not thou a terror unto me, thou art my hope in the day of affliction. let them be confounded that persecute me, and let not me be afraid: let them be afraid, and let not me be afraid: bring upon them the day of affliction, and with a double destruction, destroy them. thus saith the lord to me: go, and stand in the gate of the children of the people, by which the kings of juda come in, and go out, and in all the gates of jerusalem: and thou shalt say to them: hear the word of the lord, ye kings of juda, and all juda, and all the inhabitant of jerusalem, that enter in by these gates. thus saith the lord: take heed to your souls and carry no burdens on the sabbath day: and bring them not in by the gates of jerusalem. and do not bring burdens out of your houses on the sabbath day, neither do ye any work: sanctify the sabbath day, as i commanded your fathers. but they did not hear, nor incline their ear: but hardened their neck, that they might not hear me, and might not receive instruction. and it shall come to pass: if you will hearken to me, saith the lord, to bring in no burdens by the gates of this city on the sabbath day: and if you will sanctify the sabbath day, to do no work therein: then shall there enter in by the gates of this city kings and princes, sitting upon the throne of david, and riding in chariots and on horses, they and their princes, the men of juda, and the inhabitants of jerusalem: and this city shall be inhabited forever. and they shall come from the cities of juda, and from the places round about jerusalem, and from the land of benjamin, and from the plains, and from the mountains, and from the south, bringing holocausts, and victims, and sacrifices, and frankincense, and they shall bring in an offering into the house of the lord. but if you will not hearken to me, to sanctify the sabbath day, and not to carry burdens, and not to bring them in by the gates of jerusalem on the sabbath day: i will kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it shall devour the houses of jerusalem, and it shall not be quenched.

the word that came from jeremias to the lord, saying: arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there thou shalt hear my words. and i went down into the potter's house, and behold he was doing a work on the wheel. and the vessel was broken which he was making with clay with his hands: and turning he made another vessel, as it seemed good in his eyes to make it. then the word of the lord came to me, saying: cannot i do with you as this potter, saith the lord? behold as clay is in the hand of the potter, so are you in my hand, o house of israel. i will suddenly speak against a nation, and against a kingdom, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy it. if that nation against which i have spoken, shall repent of their evil, i also will repent of the evil that i have thought to do to them. and i will suddenly speak of a nation and of a kingdom, to build up and plant it. if it shall do evil in my sight, that it obey not my voice: i will repent of the good that i have spoken to do unto it. now therefore tell the men of juda, and the inhabitants of jerusalem, saying: thus saith the lord: behold i frame evil against you, and devise a device against you: let every man of you return from his evil way, and make ye your ways and your doings good. and they said: we have no hopes: for we will go after our own thoughts, and we will do every one according to the perverseness of his evil heart. therefore thus saith the lord: ask among the nations: who hath heard such horrible things, as the virgin of israel hath done to excess? shall now the snow of libanus fail from the rock of the field? or can the cold waters that gush out and run down, be taken away? because my people have forgotten me, sacrificing in vain, and stumbling in their ways, in ancient paths, to walk by them in a way not trodden: that their land might be given up to desolation, and to a perpetual hissing: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, and wag his head. as a burning will i scatter them before the enemy: i will shew them the back, and not the face, in the day of their destruction. and they said: come, and let us invent devices against jeremias: for the law shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet: come, and let us strike him with the tongue, and let us give no heed to all his words. give heed to me, o lord, and hear the voice of my adversaries. shall evil be rendered for good, because they have digged

a pit for my soul? remember that i have stood in thy sight, so speak good for them, and turn away thy indignation from them. therefore deliver up their children to famine, and bring them into the hands of the sword: let their wives be bereaved of children and widows: and let their husbands be slain by death: let their young men be stabbed with the sword in battle. let a cry be heard out of their houses: for thou shalt bring the robber upon them suddenly: because they have digged a pit to take me, and have hid snares for my feet. but thou, o lord, knowest all their counsel against me unto death: forgive not their iniquity, and let not their sin be blotted out from thy sight: let them be overthrown before thy eyes, in the time of thy wrath do thou destroy them.

thus saith the lord: go, and take a potter's earthen bottle, and take of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the priests: and go forth into the valley of the son of ennom, which is by the entry of the earthen gate: and there thou shalt proclaim the words that i shall tell thee. and thou shalt say: hear the word of the lord, o ye kings of juda, and ye inhabitants of jerusalem: thus saith the lord of hosts, the god of israel: behold i will bring an affliction upon this place: so that whoever shall hear it, his ears shall tingle: because they have forsaken me, and have profaned this place: and have sacrificed therein to strange gods, whom neither they nor their fathers knew, nor the kings of juda: and they have filled this place with the blood of innocents. and they have built the high places of baalim, to burn their children with fire for a holocaust to baalim: which i did not command, nor speak of, neither did it once come into my mind. therefore behold the days come, saith the lord, that this place shall no more be called topheth, nor the valley of the son of ennom, but the valley of slaughter. and i will defeat the counsel of juda and of jerusalem in this place: and i will destroy them with the sword in the sight of their enemies, and by the hands of them that seek their lives: and i will give their carcasses to be meat for the fowls of the air, and for the beasts of the earth. and i will make this city an astonishment, and a hissing: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, and shall hiss because of all the plagues thereof. and i will feed them with the flesh of their sons, and with the flesh of their daughters: and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend in the siege, and in the distress wherewith their enemies, and they that seek their lives shall straiten them. and thou shalt break the bottle in the sight of the men that shall go with thee. and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord of hosts: even so will i break this people, and this city, as the potter's vessel is broken, which cannot be made whole again: and they shall be buried in topheth, because there is no other place to bury in. thus will i do to this place, saith the lord, and to the inhabitants thereof: and i will make this city as topheth. and the houses of jerusalem, and the houses of juda shall be unclean as the place of topheth: all the houses upon whose roots they have sacrificed to all the host of heaven, and have poured out drink offerings to strange gods. then jeremias came from topheth, whither the lord had sent him to prophecy, and he stood in the court of the house of the lord, and said to all people: thus saith the lord of hosts, the god of israel: behold i will bring in upon this city, and upon all the cities thereof all the evils that i have spoken against it: because they have hardened their necks, and they might not hear my words.

now phassur the son of emmur, the priest, who was appointed chief in the house of the lord, heard jeremias prophesying these words. and phassur struck jeremias the prophet, and put him in the stocks, that were in the upper gate of benjamin, in the house of the lord. and when it was light the next day, phassur brought jeremias out of the stocks. and jeremias said to him: the lord hath not called thy name phassur, but fear on every side. for thus saith the lord: behold i will deliver thee up to fear, thee and all thy friends: and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and thy eyes shall see it, and i will give all juda into the hand of the king of babylon: and he shall strike them with the sword. and i will give all the substance of this city, and all its labour, and every precious thing thereof, and all the treasures of the kings of juda will i give into the hands of their enemies: and they shall pillage them, and take them away, and carry them to babylon. but thou, phassur, and all that dwell in thy house, shall go into captivity, and thou shalt go to babylon, and there thou shalt die, and there thou shalt be buried, thou and all thy friends, to whom thou hast prophesied a lie. thou hast deceived me, o lord, and i am deceived: thou hast been stronger than i, and thou hast prevailed. i am become a laughing-stock all the day, all scoff at me. for i am speaking now this long time, crying out against iniquity, and i often proclaim devastation: and the word of the lord is made a reproach to me, and a derision all the day. then i said: i will not make mention of him, nor speak any more in his name: and there came in my heart as a burning fire shut up in my bones, and i was wearied, not being able to bear it. for i heard the reproaches of many, and terror on every side: persecute him, and let us persecute him: from all the men that were my familiars, and continued at my side: if by any means he may be deceived, and we may prevail against him, and be revenged on him. but the lord is with me as a strong warrior: therefore they that persecute me shall fall, and shall be weak: they shall be greatly confounded, because they have not understood the everlasting reproach, which never shall be effaced. and thou, o lord of hosts, prover of the just, who seest the reins and the heart: let me see, i beseech thee, thy vengeance on them: for to thee i have laid open my cause. sing ye to the lord, praise the lord: because he hath delivered the soul of the poor out of the hand of the wicked. cursed be the day wherein i was borne: let not the day in which my mother bore me, be blessed. cursed be the man that brought the tidings to my father, saying: a man child is born to thee:

and made him greatly rejoice. let that man be as the cities that the lord hath overthrown, and hath not repented: let him hear a cry in the morning, and howling at noontide: who slew me not from the womb, that my mother might have been my grave, and her womb an everlasting conception. why came i out of the womb, to see labour and sorrow, and that my days should be spent in confusion?

the word that came to jeremias from the lord, when king sedecias sent unto him phassur, the son of melchias, and sophonias, the son of maasias the priest, saying: inquire of the lord for us, for nabuchodonosor king of babylon maketh war against us: if so be the lord will deal with us according to all his wonderful works, that he may depart from us. and jeremias said to them: thus shall you say to sedecias: thus saith the lord, the god of israel: behold i will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, with which you fight against the king of babylon, and the chaldeans, that besiege you round about the walls: and i will gather them together in the midst of this city. and i myself will fight against you with an outstretched hand, and with a strong arm, and in fury, and in indignation, and in great wrath. and i will strike the inhabitants of this city, men and beasts shall die of a great pestilence. and after this, saith the lord, i will give sedecias the king of juda, and his servants, and his people, and such as are left in this city from the pestilence, and the sword, and the famine, into the hand of nabuchodonosor the king of babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life, and he shall strike them with the edge of the sword, and he shall not be moved to pity, nor spare them, nor shew mercy on them. and to this people thou shalt say: thus saith the lord: behold i set before you the way of life, and the way of death. he that shall abide in this city, shall die by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence: but he that shall go out and flee over to the chaldeans, that besiege you, shall live, and his life shall be to him as a spoil. for i have set my face against this city for evil, and not for good, saith the lord: it shall be given into the hand of the king of babylon, and he shall burn it with fire. and to the house of the king of juda: hear ye the word of the lord, o house of david, this saith the lord: judge ye judgement in the morning, and deliver him that is oppressed by violence out of the hand of the oppressor: lest my indignation go forth like a fire, and be kindled, and there be none to quench it, because of the evil of your ways. behold i come to thee that dwelleth in a valley upon a rock above a plain, saith the lord: and you say: who shall strike us? and who shall enter into our houses? but i will visit upon you according to the fruit of your doings, saith the lord: and i will kindle a fire in the forest thereof: and it shall devour all things round about it.

thus saith the lord: go down to the house of the king of juda, and there thou shalt speak this word, and thou shalt say: hear the word of the lord, o king of juda, that sittest upon the throne of david: thou and thy servants, and thy people, who enter in by these gates. thus saith the lord: execute judgement and justice, and deliver him that is oppressed out of the hand of the oppressor: and afflict not the stranger, the fatherless, nor the widow, nor oppress them unjustly: and shed not innocent blood in this place. for if you will do this thing indeed, then shall there enter in by the gates of this house, kings of the race of david sitting upon his throne, and riding in chariots and on horses, they and their servants, and their people. but if you will not hearken to these words: i swear by myself, saith the lord, that this house shall become a desolation. for thus saith the lord to the house of the king of juda: thou art to me galaad the head of libanus: yet surely i will make thee a wilderness, and cities not habitable. and i will prepare against thee the destroyer and his weapons: and they shall cut down thy chosen cedars, and shall cast them headlong into the fire. and many nations shall pass by this city: and they shall say every man to his neighbor: why hath the lord done so to this great city? and they shall answer: because they have forsaken the covenant of the lord their god, and have adored strange gods, and served them. weep not for him that is dead, nor bemoan him with your tears: lament him that goeth away, for he shall return no more, nor see his native country. for thus saith the lord to sellum the son of josias the king of juda, who reigned instead of his father, who went forth out of this place: he shall return hither no more: but in the place, to which i have removed him, there shall he die, and he shall not see this land any more. woe to him that buildeth up his house by injustice, and his chambers not in judgement: that will oppress his friend without cause, and will not pay him his wages. who saith: i will build me a wide house and large chambers: who openeth to himself windows, and maketh roofs of cedar, and painteth them with vermilion. shalt thou reign, because thou comparest thyself to the cedar? did not thy father eat and drink, and do judgment and justice, and it was then well with him? he judged the cause of the poor and needy for his own good: was it not therefore because he knew me, saith the lord? but thy eyes and thy heart are set upon covetousness, and upon shedding innocent blood, and upon oppression, and running after evil works. therefore thus saith the lord concerning joakim the son of josias king of juda: they shall not mourn for him, alas, my brother, and alas, sister: they shall not lament for him, alas, my lord, or, alas, the noble one. he shall be buried with the burial of an ass, rotten and cast forth without the gates of jerusalem. go up to libanus, and cry: and lift up thy voice in basan, and cry to them that pass by, for all thy lovers are destroyed. i spoke to thee in thy property: and thou saidst: i will not hear: this hath been thy way from thy youth, because thou hast not heard my voice. the wind shall feed all thy pastors, and thy lovers shall go into captivity: and then shalt thou be confounded, and ashamed of all thy wickedness. thou that sittest in libanus, and makest thy nest in the cedars, how hast thou mourned when sorrows came upon thee, as the pains of a woman in labour? as i live, saith the lord, if jechonias the son of joakim the king of juda were a ring on my right hand, i would pluck him thence. and i will give thee into the hand of them that seek thy life, and into the hand of them whose face thou fearest, and into the hand of nabuchodonosor king of babilon, and into the hand of the chaldeans. and i will send thee, and thy mother that bore thee, into a strange country, in which you were not born, and there you shall die: and they shall not return into the land, whereunto they lift up their mind to return thither. is this man jechonias an earthen and a broken vessel? is he a vessel wherein there is no pleasure? why are they cast out, he and his seed, and are cast into a land which they know not? o earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the lord. thus saith the lord: write this man barren, a man that shall not prosper in his days: for there shall not be a man of his seed that shall sit upon the throne of david, and have power any more in juda.

woe to the pastors, that destroy and tear the sheep of my pasture, saith the lord. therefore thus saith the lord the god of israel to the pastors that feed my people: you have scattered my flock, and driven them away, and have not visited them: behold i will visit upon you for the evil of your doings, saith the lord. and i will gather together the remnant of my flock, out of all the lands into which i have cast them out: and i will make them return to their own fields, and they shall increase and be multiplied. and i will set up pastors over them, and they shall feed them: they shall fear no more, and they shall not be dismayed: and none shall be wanting of their number, saith the lord. behold the days come, saith the lord, and i will raise up to david a just branch: and a king shall reign, and shall be wise, and shall execute judgement and justice in the earth. in those days shall juda be saved, and israel shall dwell confidently: and this is the name that they shall call him: the lord our just one. therefore behold the days to come, saith the lord, and they shall say no more: the lord liveth, who brought up the children of israel out of the land of egypt: but the lord liveth, who hath brought out, and brought hither the seed of the house of israel from the land of the north, and out of all the lands, to which i had cast them forth: and they shall dwell in their own land. to the prophets: my heart is broken within me, all my bones tremble: i am become as a drunken man, and as a man full of wine, at the presence of the lord, and at the presence of his holy words. because the land is full of adulterers, because the land hath mourned by reason of cursing, the fields of the desert are dried up: and their course is become evil, and their strength unlike. for the prophet and the priest are defiled: and in my house i have found their wickedness, saith the lord. therefore their way shall be as a slippery way in the dark: for they shall be driven on, and fall therein: for i will bring evils upon them, the year of their visitation, saith the lord. and i have seen folly in the prophets of samaria: they prophesied in baal, and deceived my people israel. and i have seen the likeness of adulterers, and the way of lying in the peophets of jerusalem: and they strengthened the hand of the wicked, that no man should return from his evil doings: that are all become unto me as sodom, and the inhabitants thereof as gamorraha. therefore thus saith the lord of hosts to the prophets: behold i will feed them with wormwood, and i will give them gall to drink: for from the prophets of jerusalem corruption has gone forth into all the land. thus saith the lord of hosts: hearken not to the words of the prophets that prophesy to you, and deceive you: they speak a vision of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the lord. they say tothem that blaspheme me: the lord hath said: you shall have peace: and to every one that walketh in the perverseness of his own heart, they have said: no evil shall come to you. for who hath stood in the counsel of the lord, and hath seen and heard his word? who hath considered his word and heard it? behold the whirlwind of the lord's indignation shall come forth, and a tempest shall break out and come upon the head of the wicked. the wrath of the lord shall not return till he execute it, and till he accomplish the thought of his heart: in the latter days you shall understand his counsel. i did not send prophets, yet they ran: i have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied. if they stood in my counsel, and had made my words known to my people, i should have turned them from their evil way and from their wicked doings. am i, think ye, a god at hand, saith the lord, and not a god afar off? shall a man be hid in secret places, and i not see him, saith the lord? do not i fill heaven and earth, saith the lord? i have heard what the prophets said, that prophesies in my name, and say: i have dreamed, i have dreamed. how long shall this be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy lies, and that prophesy the delusions of their own heart? who seek to make my people forget my name through their dreams, which they tell every man to his neighbor: as their fathers forgot my name for baal. the prophet that hath a dream, let him tell a dream: and he that hath my word, let him speak my word with truth: what hath the chaff to do with the wheat, saith the lord? are not my words as a fire, saith the lord: and as a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces? therefore behold i am against the prophets, saith the lord: who steal my words every one from his neighbor. behold i am against the prophets, saith the lord: who use their tongues, and say: the lord saith it. behold i am against the prophets that have lying dreams, saith the lord: and tell them, and cause my people to err by their lying, and by their wonders: when i sent them not, nor commanded them, who have not profited this people at all, saith the lord. if therefore this people, or the prophet, or the priest shall ask thee, saying: what is the burden of the lord? thou shalt say to them: you are the burden: for i will cast you away, saith the lord. and as for the prophet, and the priest, and the people that shall say: the burden of the lord: i will visit upon that man, and upon his house. thus shall you say every one to his neighbor, and to his brother: what hath the lord answered? and what hath the lord spoken? and the burden of the lord shall be mentioned no more, for every man's word shall be his burden: for you have perverted the words of the living god, of the lord of hosts our god. thus shalt thou say to the prophet: what hath the lord answered thee? and what hath the lord spoken? but if you shall say: the burden of the lord: therefore thus saith the lord: because you have said this word: the burden of the lord: and i have sent to you saying: say not, the burden of the lord: therefore behold i will take you away carrying you, and will forsake you, and the city which i gave to you, and to your fathers, out of my presence. and i will bring an everlasting reproach upon you, and a perpetual shame which shall never be forgotten.

the lord shewed me: and behold two baskets full of figs, set before the temple of the lord: after that nabuchodonosor king of babylon had carried away jechonias the son of joakim the king of juda, and his chief men, and the craftsmen, and engravers of jerusalem, and had brought them to babylon. one basket had very good figs, like the figs of the first season: and the other basket had very bad figs, which could not be eaten, because they were bad. and the lord said to me: what seest thou, jeremias? and i said: figs, the good figs, very good: and the bad figs, very bad, which cannot be eaten because they are bad. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: thus saith the lord the god of israel: like these good figs, so will i regard the captives of juda, whom i have sent forth out of this place into the land of the chaldeans, for their own good. and i will set my eyes upon them to be pacified, and i will bring them again into this land: and i will be their god: and i will build them up, and not pull them down: and i will plant them, and not pluck them up. and i will give them a heart to know me, that i am the lord: and they shall be my people, and i will be their god: because they shall return to me with their whole heart. and as the very bad figs, that cannot be eaten, because they are bad: thus saith the lord: so will i give sedecias the king of juda, and his princes, and the residue of jerusalem, that have remained in this city, and that dwell in the land of egypt. and i will deliver them up to vexation, and affliction, to all the kingdoms of the earth: to be a reproach, and a byword, and a proverb, and to be a curse in all places, to which i have cast them out. and i will send among them the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence: till they be consumed out of the land which i gave to them, and their fathers.

the word that came to jeremias concerning all the people of juda, in the fourth year of joakim the son of josias king of juda, (the same is the first year of

nabuchodonosor king of babylon,) which jeremias the prophet spoke to all the people of juda, and to all the inhabitants of jerusalem, saying: from the thirteenth year of josias the son of ammon king of juda until this day: this is the three and twentieth year, the word of the lord hath come to me, and i have spoken to you, rising before day, and speaking, and you have not hearkened. and the lord hath sent to you all his servants the prophets, rising early, and sending, and you have not hearkened, nor inclined your ears to hear. when he said: return ye, every one from his evil way, and from your wicked devices, and you shall dwell in the land which the lord hath given to you, and your fathers for ever and ever. and go not after strange gods to serve them, and adore them: nor provoke me to wrath by the works of your hands, and i will not afflict you. and you have not heard me, saith the lord, that you might provoke me to anger with the works of your hands, to your own hurt. therefore thus saith the lord of hosts: because you have not heard my words: behold i will send, and take all the kindreds of the north, saith the lord, and nabuchodonosor the king of babylon my servant: and i will bring them against this land, and against the inhabitants thereof, and against all the nations that are round about it: and i will destroy them, and make them an astonishment and a hissing, and perpetual desolations. and i will take away from them the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the sound of the mill, and the light of the lamp. and all this land shall be a desolation, and an astonishment: and all these nations shall serve the king of babylon seventy years. and when the seventy years shall be expired, i will punish the king of babylon, and that nation, saith the lord, for their iniquity, and the land of the chaldeans: and i will make it perpetual desolations. and i will bring upon the land all my words, that i have spoken against it, all that is written in this book, all that jeremias hath prophesied against all nations: for they have served them, whereas they were many nations, and great kings: and i will repay them according to their deeds, and according to the works of their hands. for thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: take the cup of wine of this fury at my hand: and thou shalt make all nations to drink thereof, unto which i shall send thee. and they shall drink, and be troubled, and be mad because of the sword, which i shall send among them. and i took the cup at the hand of the lord, and i presented it to all the nations to drink of it, to which the lord sent me: to wit, jerusalem, and the cities of juda, and the kings thereof, and the princes thereof: to make them a desolation, and an astonishment, and a hissing, and a curse, as it is at this day. pharao the king of egypt, and his servants, and his princes, and all his people, and all in general: all the kings of the land of ausitis, and all the kings of the land of the philistines, and ascalon, and gaza, and accaron, and the remnant of azotus. and edom, and moab, and the children of ammon. and all the kings of tyre, and all the kings of sidon: and the kings of the land of the islands that are beyond the sea. and dedan, and thema, and buz, and all that have their hair cut round. and all the kings of arabia, and all the kings of the west, that dwell in the desert. and all the kings of zambri, and all the kings of elam, and all the kings of medes: and all the kings of the north far and near, every one against his brother: and all the kingdoms of the earth, which are upon the face thereof: and the king of sesac shall drink after them. and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: dring ye, and be drunken, and vomit: and fall, and rise no more, because of the sword, which i shall send among you. and if they refuse to take the cup at thy hand to drink, thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord of hosts: drinking you shall drink: for behold i begin to bring evil on the city wherein my name is called upon: and shall you be as innocent and escape free? you shall not escape free: for i will call for the sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the lord of hosts. and thou shalt prophesy unto them all these words, and thou shalt say to them: the lord shall roar from on high, and shall utter his voice from his holy habitation: roaring he shall roar upon the place of his beauty: the shout as it were of them that tread grapes shall be given out against all the inhabitants of the earth. the noise is come even to the ends of the earth: for the lord entereth into judgement with the nations: he entereth into judgement with all flesh; the wicked i have delivered up to the sword, saith the lord. thus saith the lord of hosts: behold evil shall go forth from nation to nation: and a great whirlwind shall go forth from the ends of the earth. and the slain of the lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even to the other end thereof: they shall not be lamented, and they shall not be gathered up, nor buried: they shall lie as dung upon the face of the earth. howl, ye shepherds, and cry: and sprinkle yourselves with ashes, ye leaders of the flock: for the days of your slaughter and your dispersion are accomplished, and you shall fall like precious vessels. and the shepherds shall have no way to flee, nor the leaders of the flock to save themselves. a voice of the cry of the shepherds, and a howling of the principal of the flock: because the lord hath wasted their pastures. and the fields of peace have been silent, because of the fierce anger of the lord. he has forsaken his covert as the lion, for the land is laid waste because of the wrath of the dove, and because of the fierce anger of the lord.

in the beginning of the reign of joakim the son of josias king of juda, came this word from the lord, saying: thus saith the lord: stand in the court of the house of the lord, and speak to all the cities of juda, out of which they come, to adore in the house of the lord, all the words which i have commanded thee to speak unto them: leave not out one word. if so be they will hearken and be converted every one from his evil way; that i may repent me of the evil that i think to do unto them for the wickedness of their doings. and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord: if you will not hearken to me to walk in my law, which i have given to you: to give ear to the words of my servants the prophets, whom i sent to you rising up early: and sending, and you have not hearkened: i will make this house like silo: and i will make this city a curse to all the nations of the earth. and the priests, and the prophets, and all the people heard jeremias speaking these words in the house of the lord. and when jeremias made an end of speaking all that the lord had commanded him to speak to all the people, the priests, and the prophets, and all the people laid hold on him, saying: let him be put to death. why hath he prophesied in the name of the lord, saying: this house shall be like silo; and this city shall be made desolate, without an inhabitant? and all the people were gathered together against jeremias in the house of the lord. and the princes of juda heard these words: and they went up from the king's house into the house of the lord, and sat in the entry of the new gate of the house of the lord. and the priests and the prophets spoke to the princes, and to all the people, saying: the judgement of death is for this man: because he hath prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your ears. then jeremias spoke to all the princes, and to all the people, saying: the lord sent me to prophesy concerning this house, and concerning this city all the words you have heard. now therefore amend your ways, and your doings, and hearken to the voice of the lord your god: and the lord will repent of the evil that he hath spoken against you. but as for me, behold i am in your hands: do with me what is good and right in your eyes: but know ye, and understand, that if you put me to death, you will shed innocent blood against your own selves, and against this city, and the inhabitants thereof. for in truth the lord sent me to you, to speak all these words in your hearing. then the princes, and all the people said to the priests, and to the prophets: there is no judgement of death for this man: for he hath spoken to us in the name of the lord our god. and some of the ancients of the land rose up: and they spoke to all the assembly of the people, saying: micheas of morasthi was a prophet in the days of ezechias king of juda, and he spoke to all the people of juda, saying: thus saith the lord of hosts: sion shall be ploughed like a field, and jerusalem shall be a heap of stones: and the mountain of the house the high places of woods. did ezechias king of juda, and all juda, condemn him to death? did they not fear the lord, and beseech the face of the lord: and the lord repented of the evil that they had spoken against them? therefore we are doing a great evil against our souls. there was also a man that prophesied in the name of the lord, urias the son of semei of cariathiarim: and he prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of jeremias. and joakim, and all his men in power, and his princes heard these words: and the king sought to put him to death. and urias heard it, and was afraid, and fled and went into egypt. and king joakim sent men into egypt, elnathan the son of achobor, and men with him into egypt. and they brought urias out of egypt: and brought him to king joakim, and he slew him with the sword: and he cast his dead body into the graves of the common people. so the hand of ahicam the son of saphan was with jeremias, that he should not be delivered into the hands of the people, to put him to death.

in the beginning of the reign of joakim the son of josias king of juda, this word came to jeremias from the lord, saying: thus saith the lord to me: make thee bands, and chains: and thou shalt put them on thy neck. and thou shalt send them to the of edom, and to the king of moab, and to the king of the children of ammon, and to the king of tyre, and to the king of sidon: by the hand of the messengers that are come to jerusalem to sedecias the king of juda. and thou shalt command them to speak to their masters: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: thus shall you say to your masters: i made the earth, and the men, and the beasts that are upon the face of the earth, by my great power, and by my stretched out arm: and i have given it to whom it seemed good in my eyes. and now i have given all these lands into the hand of nabuchodonosor king of babylon my servant: moreover also the beasts of the field i have given him to serve him. and all nations shall serve him, and his son, and his son's son: till the time come for his land and himself: and many nations and great kings shall serve him. but the nation and kingdom that will not serve nabuchodonosor king of babylon, and whosoever will not bend his neck under the yoke of the king of babylon: i will visit upon that nation with the sword, and with famine, and with pestilence, saith the lord: till i consume them by his hand. therefore hearken not to your prophets, and diviners, and dreamers, and soothsayers, and sorcerers, that say to you: you shall not serve the king babylon. for they prophesy lies to you: to remove you far from your country, and east you out, and to make you perish. but the nation that shall bend down their neck under the yoke of the king babylon, and shall serve him: will let them remain in their own land, saith the lord: and they shall till it, and dwell in it. and i spoke to sedecias the king of juda according to all these words, saying: bend down your necks under the yoke of the king of babylon, and serve him, and his people, and you shall live. why will you die, thou and thy people by the sword, and by famine, and by the pestilence, as the lord hath spoken against the nation that will not serve the king of babylon? hearken not to the words of the prophets that say to you: you shall not serve the king of babylon: for they tell you a lie. for i have not sent them, saith the lord: and they prophesy in my name falsely: to drive you out, and that you may perish, both you, and the prophets that prophesy to you. i spoke also to the priests, and to this people, saying: thus saith the lord: hearken not to the words of your prophets, that prophesy to you, saying: behold the vessels of the lord shall now in a short time be brought again from babylon: for they prophesy a lie unto you. therefore hearken not to them, but serve the king of babylon, that you may live. why should this city be given up to desolation? but if they be prophets, and the word of the lord be in them: let them interpose themselves before the lord of hosts, that the vessels which were left in the house of the lord, and in the house of the king of juda, and in jerusalem, may not go to babylon. for thus saith the lord of hosts d to the pillars, and to the sea, and to the bases, and to the rest of the vessels that remain in this city: which nabuchodonosor the king of babylon did not take, when he carried away jechonias the son of joakim the king of juda, from jerusalem to babylon, and all the great men of juda and jerusalem. for thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel, to the vessels that are left in the house of the lord, and in the house of the king of juda and jerusalem: they shall be carried to babylon, and there they shall be until the day of their visitation, saith the lord: and i will cause them to be brought, and to be re- stored in this place.

and it came to pass in that year, in the beginning of the reign of sedecias king of juda, in the fourth year, in the fifth month, that hananias the son of azur, a prophet of gabaon spoke to me, in the house of the lord before the priests, and all the people, saying: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: i have broken the yoke of the king of babylon. as yet two years of days, and i will cause all the vessels of the house of the lord to be brought back into this place, which nabuchodonosor king of babylon took away from this place, and carried them to babylon. and i will bring back to this place jechonias the son of joakim king of juda, and all the captives of juda, that are gone to babylon, saith the lord: for i will break the yoke of the king of babylon. and jeremias the prophet said to hananias the prophet in the presence of the priests, and in the presence of all the people that stood in the house of the lord: and jeremias the prophet said: amen, the lord do so: the lord perform thy words, which thou hast prophesied: that the vessels may be brought again into the house of the lord, and all the captives may return out of babylon to this place. nevertheless hear this word that i speak in thy ears, and in the ears of all the people: the prophets that have been before me, and before thee from the beginning, and have prophesied concerning many countries, and concerning great kingdoms, of war, and of affliction, and of famine. the prophet that prophesied peace when his word shall come to pass, the prophet shall be known, whom the lord hath sent in truth. and hananias the prophet took the chain from the neck of jeremias the prophet, and broke it. and hananias spoke in the presence of all the people, saying: thus saith the lord: even so will i break the yoke of nabuchodonosor the king of babylon after two full years from off the neck of all the nations. and jeremias the prophet went his way. and the word of the lord came to jeremias, after that hananias the prophet had broken the chain from off the neck of jeremias the prophet, saying: go, and tell hananias: thus saith the lord: thou hast broken chains of wood, and thou shalt make for them chains of iron. for thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: i have put a yoke of iron upon the neck of all these nations, to serve nabuchodonosor king of babylon, and they shall serve him: moreover also i have given him the beasts of the earth. and jeremias the prophet said to hananias the prophet: hear now, hananias: the lord hath not sent thee, and thou hast made this people to trust in a lie. therefore thus saith the lord: behold i will send thee away from off the face of the earth: this year shalt thou die: for thou hast spoken against the lord. and hananias the prophet died in that year, in the seventh month.

now these are the words of the letter which jeremias, the prophet sent from jerusalem to the residue of the ancients that were carried into captivity, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people, whom nabuchodonosor had carried away from jerusalem to babylon: after that jechonias the king, and the queen, and the eunuchs, and the princes of juda, and of jerusalem, and the craftsman, and the engravers were departed out of jerusalem: by the hand of elasa the son of saphan, and gamarias the son of helcias, whom sedecias king of juda sent to babylon to nabuchodonosor king of babylon, saying: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel, to all that are carried away captives, whom i have caused to be carried away from jerusalem to babylon: build ye houses, and dwell in them: and plant orchards, and eat the fruit of them. take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters: and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to husbands, and let them bear sons and daughters: and be ye multiplied there, and be not few in number. and seek the peace of the city, to which i have caused you to be carried away captives; and pray to the lord for it: for in the peace thereof shall be your peace. for thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: let not your prophets that are in the midst of you, and your diviners deceive you: and give no heed to your dreams which you dream: for they prophesy falsely to you in my name: and i have not sent them, saith the lord. for thus saith the lord: when the seventy years shall begin to be accomplished in babylon, i will visit you: and i will perform my good word in your favour, to bring you again to this place. for i know the thoughts that i think towards you, saith the lord, thoughts of peace, and not of affliction, to give you an end and patience. and you shall call upon me, and you shall go: and you shall pray to me, and i will hear you. you shall seek me, and shall and me: when you shall seek me with all your heart. and i will be found by you, saith the lord: and i will bring back your captivity, and i will gather you out of all nations, and from all the places to which i have driven you out, saith the lord: and i will bring you back from the place to which i caused you to be carried away captive. because you have said: the lord hath raised us up prophets in jerusalem: for thus saith the lord to the king that sitteth upon the throne of david, and to all the people that dwell in this city, to your brethren that are not gone forth with you into captivity. thus saith the lord of hosts: behold i will send upon them the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence: and i will make them like bad figs that cannot be eaten, because they are very bad. and i will persecute them with the sword, and with famine, and pith the pestilence: and i will give them up unto affliction to all the kingdoms of the earth: to be a curse, and an astonishment, and a hissing, and a reproach to all the nations to which i have driven them out: because they have not hearkened to my words, saith the lord: which i sent to them by my servants the prophets, rising by night, and sending: and you have not heard, saith the lord. hear ye therefore the word of the lord, all ye of the captivity, whom i have sent out from jerusalem to babylon. thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel, to achab the son of colias, and to sedecias the son of maasias, who prophesy unto you in my name falsely: behold i will deliver them up into the hands of nabuchodonosor the king of babylon: and he shall kill them before your eyes. and of them shall be taken up a curse by all the captivity of juda, that are in babylon, saying: the lord make thee like sedecias, and like achab, whom the king of babylon fried in the fire: because they have acted folly in israel, and have committed adultery with the wives of their friends, and have spoken lying words in my name, which i commanded them not: i am the judge and the witness, saith the lord. and to semeias the nehelamite thou shalt say: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: because thou hast sent letters in thy name to all the people that are in jerusalem, and to sophonias the son of maasias the priest, and to all the priests, saying: the lord hath made thee priest instead of joiaida the priest, that thou shouldst be ruler in the house of the lord, over every man that raveth and prophesieth, to put him in the stocks, and into prison. and now why hast thou not rebuked jeremias the anathothite, who prophesieth to you? for he hath also sent to us in babylon, saying: it is a long time: build ye houses, and dwell in them: and plant gardens, and eat the fruits of them. so sophonias the priest read this letter, in the hearing of jeremias the prophet. and the word of the lord came to jeremias, saying: send to all them of the captivity, saying: thus saith the lord to semeias the nehelamite: because semeias hath prophesied to you, and i sent him not: and hath caused you to trust in a lie: therefore thus saith the lord: behold i will visit upon semeias the nehelamite, and upon his seed: he shall not have a man to sit in the midst of this people, and he shall not see the good that i will do to my people, saith the lord: because he hath spoken treason against the lord.

this is the word that came to jeremias from the lord, saying: thus saith the lord, the god of israel, saying: write thee all the words that i have spoken to thee, in a book. for behold the days come, saith the lord, and i will bring again the captivity of my people israel and juda, saith the lord: and i will cause them to return to the land which i gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it. and these are the words that the lord hath spoken to israel and to juda: for thus saith the lord: we have heard a voice of terror: there is fear and no peace. ask ye, and see if a man bear children? why then have i seen every man with his hands on his

loins, like a woman in labour, and all faces are turned yellow? alas, for that day is great, neither is there the like to it; and it is the time of tribulation to jacob, but he shall be saved out of it. and it shall come to pass in that day, saith the lord of hosts, that i will break his yoke from off thy neck, and will burst his bands: and strangers shall no more rule over him: but they shall serve the lord their god, and david their king, whom i will raise up to them. therefore fear thou not, my servant jacob, saith the lord, neither be dismayed, o israel: for behold, i will save thee from a country afar off, and thy seed from the land of their captivity: and jacob shall return, and be at rest, and abound with all good things, and there shall be none whom he may fear: for i am with thee, saith the lord, to save thee: for i will utterly consume all the nations, among which i have scattered thee: but i will not utterly consume thee: but i will chastise thee in judgment, that thou mayst not seem to thyself innocent. for thus saith the lord: thy bruise is incurable, thy wound is very grievous. there is none to judge thy judgment to bind it up: thou hast no healing medicines. all thy lovers have forgotten thee, and will not seek after thee: for i have wounded thee with the wound of an enemy, with a cruel chastisement: by reason of the multitude of thy iniquities, thy sins are hardened. why criest thou for thy affliction? thy sorrow is incurable: for the multitude of thy iniquity, and for thy hardened sins i have done these things to thee. therefore all they that devour thee shall be devoured: and all thy enemies shall be carried into captivity: and they that waste thee shall be wasted, and all that prey upon thee will i give for a prey. for i will close up thy scar, and will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the lord. because they have called thee, o sion, an outcast: this is she that hath none to seek after her. thus saith the lord: behold i bring back the captivity of the pavilions of jacob, and will have pity on his houses, and the city shall be built in her place, and the temple shall be found according to the order thereof. and out of them shall come forth praise, and the voice of them that play: and i will multiply them, and they shall not be made few: and i will glorify them, and they shall not be lessened. and their children shall be as from the beginning, and their assembly be permanent before me: and i will against all that afflict them. and their leader shall be of themselves: and their prince shall come forth from the midst of them: and i will bring him near, and he shall come to me: for who is this that setteth his heart to approach to me, saith the lord? and you shall be my people: and i will be your god. behold the whirlwind of the lord, his fury going forth, a violent storm, it shall rest upon the head of the wicked. the lord will not turn away the wrath of his indignation, till he have executed and performed the thought of his heart: in the latter days you shall understand these things.

at that time, saith the lord, i will be the god of all the families of and they shall be my people. thus saith the lord: the people were left and escaped from the sword, found grace in the desert: israel shall to his rest. the lord hath appeared from afar to me. yea i have loved thee with everlasting love, therefore have i drawn thee, taking pity on thee. and i will build thee again, and thou shalt be built, o virgin of israel: thou shalt again be adorned with thy timbrels, and shalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry. thou shalt yet plant vineyards in the mountains of samaria: the planters shall plant, and they shall not gather the vintage before the time. for there shall be a day, in which the watchmen on mount ephraim, shall cry: arise, and let us go up to sion to the lord our god. for thus saith the lord: rejoice ye in the joy of jacob, and neigh before the head of the gentiles: shout ye, and sing, and say: save, o lord, thy people, the remnant of israel. behold i will bring them from the north country, and will gather them from the ends of the earth: and among them shall be the blind, and the lame, the woman with child, and she that is bringing forth, together, a great company of them returning hither. they shall come with weeping: and i will bring them back in mercy: and i will bring them through the torrents of waters in a right way, and they shall not stumble in it: for i am a father to israel, and ephraim is my firstborn. hear the word of the lord, o ye nations, and declare it in the is-lands that are afar off, and say: he that scattered israel will gather him: and he will keep him as the shepherd doth his flock. for the lord hath redeemed jacob, and delivered him out of the hand of one that was mightier than he. and they shall come, and shall give praise in mount sion: and they shall flow together to the good things of the lord, for the corn, and wine, and oil, and the increase of cattle and herds, and their soul shall be as a watered garden, and they shall be hungry no more. then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, the young men and old men together: and i will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them joyful after their sorrow. and i will fill the soul of the priests with fatness: and my people shall be filled with my good things, saith the lord. thus saith the lord: a voice was heard on high of lamentation, of mourning, and weeping, of rachel weeping for her children, and refusing to be comforted for them, because they are not. thus saith the lord: let thy voice cease from weeping, and thy eyes from tears: for there is a reward for thy work, saith the lord: and they shall return out of the land of the enemy. and here is hope for thy last end, saith the lord: and the children shall return to their own borders. hearing i heard ephraim when he went into captivity: thou hast chastised me, and i was instructed, as a young bullock unaccustomed to the yoke. convert me, and i shall be converted, for thou art the lord my god. for after thou didst convert me, i did penance: and after thou didst shew unto me, i struck my thigh: i am confounded and ashamed, because i have borne the reproach of my youth. surely ephraim is an honourable son to me, surely he is a tender child: for since i spoke of him, i will still remember him. therefore are my bowels troubled for him: pitying i will pity him, saith the lord. set thee up a watchtower, make to thee bitterness: direct thy heart into the right way, wherein thou hast walked: return, o virgin of israel, return to these thy cities. how long wilt thou be dissolute in deliciousness, o wandering daughter? for the lord hath created a new thing upon the earth: a woman shall compass a man. thus saith the lord of hosts, the god of israel: as yet shall they say this word in the land of juda, and in the cities thereof, when i shall bring back their captivity: the lord bless thee, the beauty of justice, the holy mountain. and juda and all his cities shall dwell therein together: the husbandmen and they that drive the docks. for i have inebriated the weary soul: and i have filled every hungry soul. upon this i was as it were awaked out of a sleep, and i saw, and my sleep was sweet to me. behold the days come, saith the lord: and i will sow the house of israel and the house of juda with the seed of men, and with the seed of beasts. and as i have watched over them, to pluck up, and to throw down, and to scatter, and destroy, and afflict: so will i watch over them, to build up, and to plant them, saith the lord. in those days they shall say no more: the fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the teeth of the children are set on edge. but every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that shall eat the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge. behold the days shall come, saith the lord, and i will make a new covenant with the house of israel, and with the house of juda: not according to the covenant which i made with their fathers, in the day that i took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of egypt: the covenant which they made void, and i had dominion over them, saith the lord. but this shall be the covenant that i will make with the house of israel, after those days, saith the lord: i will give my law in their bowels, and i will write it in their heart: and i will be their god, and they shall be my people. and they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying: know the lord: for all shall know me from the least of them even to the greatest, saith the lord: for i will forgive their iniquity, and i will remember their sin no more. thus saith the lord, who giveth the sun for the light of the day, the order of the moon and of the stars, for the light of the night: who stirreth up the sea, and the waves thereof roar, the lord of hosts is his name. if these ordinances shall fail before me, saith the lord: then also the seed of israel shall fail, so as not to be a nation before me for ever. thus saith the lord: if the heavens above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, i also will cast away all the seed of israel, for all that they have done, saith the lord. behold the days come, saith the lord, that the city shall be built to the lord from the tower of hanameel even to the gate of the corner. and the measuring line shall go out farther in his sight upon the hill gareb: and it shall compass goatha, and the whole valley of dead bodies and of ashes, and all the country of death, even to the torrent cedron, and the corner of the horse gate towards the east, the holy of the lord: it shall not be plucked up, and it shall not be destroyed any more for ever.

the word that came to jeremias from the lord in the tenth year of sedecias king of juda: the same is eighteenth year of nabuchodonosor. at that time the army of the king o babylon besieged jerusalem: and jeremias the prophet was shut up in the court of the prison, which was in the house of the king of juda. for sedecias king of juda had shut him up, saying: why dost thou prophesy, saying: thus saith the lord: behold i will give this city into the hand of the king of babylon, and he shall take it? and sedecias king of juda shall not escape out of the hand of the chaldeans: but he shall be delivered into the hands of the king of babylon: and he shall speak to him mouth to mouth, and his eyes shall see his eyes. and he shall lead sedecias to babylon: and he shall be there till i visit him, saith the lord. but if you will fight against the chaldeans, you shall have no success. and jeremias said: the word of the lord came to me, saying: behold, hanameel the son of sellum thy cousin shall come to thee, saying: buy thee my field, which is in anathoth, for it is thy right to buy it, being akin. and hanameel my uncle's son cam to me, according to the word of the lord to the entry of the prison, and said me: buy my held, which is in in the land of benjamin: for the right of inheritance is thins, and thou art next of kin to possess it. and i understood this was the word of the lord. and i bought the held of my uncle's son, that is in anathoth: and i weighed him the money, seven staters, and ten pieces of silver. and i wrote it in a book and sealed it, and took witnesses: and i weighed him the money in the balances. and i took the deed of the purchase that was sealed, and the stipulations, and the ratifications with the seals that were on the outside. and i gave the deed of the purchase to baruch the son of neri the son of masias in the sight of hanameel my uncle's son, in the presence of the witnesses that subscribed the book of the purchase, and before all the jews that sat in the court of the prison. and i charged baruch before them, saying: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: take these writings, this deed of the purchase that is sealed up, and this deed that is open: and put them in an earthen vessel, that they may continue many days. for thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: houses, and fields, and vineyards shall be possessed again in this land. and after i had delivered the deed of purchase to baruch the son of neri, i prayed to the lord, saying: alas, alas, alas, o lord god, behold thou hast made heaven and earth by thy great power, and thy stretched out arm: no word shall be hard to thee: thou shewest mercy unto thousands, and returnest the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them: o most mighty, great, and powerful, the lord of hosts is thy name. great in counsel and incomprehensible in thought: whose eyes are open upon all the ways of the children of adam, to render unto every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his devices. who hast set signs and wonders in the land of egypt even until this day, and in israel, and amongst men, and hast made thee a name as at this day. and hast brought forth thy people israel, out of the land of egypt with signs, and with wonders, and with a strong hand, and a stretched out arm, and with great terror. and best given them this land which thou didst swear to their fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey. and they came in, and possessed it: but they obeyed not thy voice, and they walked not in thy law: and they did not any of those things that thou didst command them to do, and all these evils are come upon them. behold works are built up against the city to take it: and the city is given into the hands of the chaldeans, who fight against it, by the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence: and what thou hast spoken, is all come to pass, as thou thyself seest. and sayest thou to me, o lord god: buy a field for money, and take witnesses, whereas the city is given into the hands of the chaldeans? and the word of the lord came to jeremias, saying: behold i am the lord the god of all flesh: shall any thing be hard for me? therefore thus saith the lord: behold i will deliver this city into the hands of the chaldeans, and into the hands of the king of babylon, and they shall take it. and the chaldeans that fight against this city, shall come and set it on fire, and burn it, with the houses upon whose roofs they offered sacrifice to baal, and poured out drink offerings to strange gods, to provoke me to wrath. for the children of israel, and the children of juda, have continually done evil in my eyes from their youth: the children of israel who even till now provoke me with the work of their hands, saith the lord. for this city hath been to me a provocation and indignation from the day that they built it, until this day, in which it shall be taken out of my sight. because of all the evil of the children of israel, and of the children of juda, which they have done, provoking me to wrath, they and their kings, their princes, and their priests, and their prophets, the men of juda, and the inhabitants of jerusalem. and they have turned their backs to me, and not their faces: when i taught them early in the morning, and instructed them, and they would not hearken to receive instruction. and they have set their idols in the house, in which my name is called upon, to defile it. and they have built the high places of baal, which are in the valley of the son of ennom, to consecrate their sons and their daughters to moloch: which i commanded them not, neither entered it into my heart, that they should do this abomination, and cause juda to sin. and now, therefore, thus saith the lord the god of israel to this city, whereof you say that it shall be delivered into the hands of the king of babylon by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: behold i will gather them together out of all the lands to which i have cast them out in my anger, and in my wrath, and in my great indignation: and i will bring them again into this place, and will cause them to dwell securely. and they shall be my people, and i will be their god. and i will give them one heart, and one way, that they may fear me all days: and that it may be well with them, and with their children after them. and i will make an everlasting covenant with them, and will not cease to do them good: and i will give my fear in their heart, that they may not revolt from me. and i will rejoice over them, when i shall do them good: and i will plant them in this land in truth, with my whole heart, and with all my soul. for thus saith the lord: as i have brought upon this people all this great evil: so will i bring upon them all the good that i now speak to them. and fields shall be purchased in this land: whereof you say that it is desolate, because there remaineth neither man nor beast, and it is given into the hands of the chaldeans. fields shall be bought for money, and deeds shall be written, and sealed, and witnesses shall be taken, in the land of benjamin, and round about jerusalem, in the cities of juda, and in the cities on the mountains, and in the cities of the plains, and in the cities that are towards the south: for i will bring their captivity, saith the lord.

and the word of the lord came to jeremias the second time, while he was yet shut up in the court of the prison, saying: thus saith the lord, who will do, and will form it, and prepare it, the lord is his name. cry to me and i will hear thee: and i will shew thee great things, and sure things which thou knowest not. for thus saith the lord the god of israel to the houses of this city, and to the houses of the king of juda, which rue destroyed, and to the bulwarks, and to the sword. of them that come to fight with the chaldeans, and to fill them with the dead bodies of the men whom i have slain in my wrath, and in my indignation, hiding my face from this city because of all their wickedness. behold i will close their wounds and give them health, and i will cure them: and i will reveal to them the prayer of peace and truth. and i will bring back the captivity of juda, and the captivity of jerusalem: and i will build them as from the beginning. and i will cleanse them from all their iniquity, whereby they have sinned against me: and i will forgive all their iniquities, whereby they have sinned against me, and despised me. and it shall be to me a name, and a joy, and a praise, and a gladness before all the nations of the earth, that shall hear of all the good things which i will do to them: and they shall fear and be troubled for all the good things, and for all the peace that i will make for them. thus saith the lord: there shall be heard again in this place (which you say is desolate, because there is neither man nor beast: in the cities of juda, and without jerusalem, which are desolate without man, and without inhabitant, and without beast) the voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voice of them that shall say: give ye glory to the lord of hosts, for the lord is good, for his mercy endureth for ever: and of them that shall bring their vows into the house of the lord: for i will bring back the captivity of the land as at the first, saith the lord. thus saith the lord of hosts: there shall be again in this place that is desolate without man, and without beast, and in all the cities thereof, an habitation of shepherds causing their flocks to lie down. and in the cities on the mountains, and in the cities of the plains, and in the cities that are towards the south: and in the land of benjamin, and round about jerusalem, and in the cities of juda shall the flocks pass again under the hand of him that numbereth them, saith the lord. behold the days come, saith the lord, that i will perform the good word that i have spoken to the house of israel, and to the house of juda. in those days, and at that time, i will make the bud of justice to spring forth unto david, and he shall do judgment and justice in the earth. in those days shall juda be saved, and jerusalem shall dwell securely: and this is the name that they shall call him, the lord our just one. for thus saith the lord: there shall not be cut off from david a man to sit upon the throne of the house of israel. neither shall there be cut off from the priests and levites a man before my face to offer holocausts, and to burn sacrifices, and to kill victims continually: and the word of the lord came to jeremias, saying: thus saith the lord: if my covenant with the day can be made void, and my covenant with the night, that there should not be day and night in their season: also my covenant with david my servant may be made void, that he should not have a son to reign upon his throne, and with the levites and priests my ministers. as the stars of heaven cannot be numbered, nor the sand of the sea be measured: so will i multiply the seed of david my servant, and the levites my ministers. and the word of the lord came to jeremias, saying: hast thou not seen what this people hath spoken, saying: the two families which the lord had chosen, are cast off: and they have despised my people, so that it is no more a nation before them? thus saith the lord: if i have not set my covenant between day and night, and laws to heaven and earth: surely i will also cast off the seed of jacob, and of david my servant, so as not to take any of his seed to be rulers of the seed of abraham, isaac, and jacob: for i will bring back their captivity, and will have mercy on them.

the word that came to jeremias from the lord, (when nabuchodonosor king of babylon, and all his army, and all the kingdoms of the earth, that were under the power of his hand, and all the people fought against jerusalem and against all the cities thereof,) saying: thus saith the lord, the god of israel: go, and speak to sedecias king of juda, and say to him: thus saith the lord: behold i will deliver this city into the hands of the king of babylon, and he shall burn it with fire. and thou shalt not escape out of his hand: but thou shalt surely be taken, and thou shalt be delivered into his hand: and thy eyes shall see the eyes of the king of babylon, and his mouth shall speak with thy mouth, and thou shalt go to babylon. yet hear the word of the lord, o sedecias king of juda: thus saith the lord to thee: thou shalt not die by the sword. but thou shalt die in peace, and according to the burnings of thy fathers, the former kings that were before thee, so shall they burn thee: and they shall mourn for thee, saying: alas, lord: for i have spoken the word, saith the lord. and jeremias the prophet spoke all these words to sedecias the king of juda in jerusalem. and the army of the king of babylon fought against jerusalem, and against all the cities of juda that were left, against lachis, and against azecha: for these remained of the cities of juda, fenced cities. the word that came to jeremias from the lord, after that king sedecias had made a covenant with all the people in jerusalem making a proclamation: that every man should let his manservant, and every man his maidservant, being a hebrew man or a hebrew woman, go free: and that they should not lord it over them, to wit, over the jews their brethren. and all the princes, and all the people who entered into the covenant, heard that every man should let his manservant, and every man his maidservant go free, and should no more have dominion over them: and they obeyed, and let them go free. but afterwards they turned: and brought back again their servants and their handmaids, whom they had let go free, and brought them into subjection as menservants and maidservants. and the word of the lord came to jeremias from the lord, saying: thus saith the lord the god of israel: i made a covenant with your fathers in the day that i brought them out of the land of egypt, out of the house of bondage, saying: at the end of seven years, let ye go every man his brother being a hebrew, who hath been sold to thee, so he shall serve thee six years: and thou shalt let him go free from thee: and your fathers did not hearken to me, nor did they incline their ear. and you turned to day, and did that which was right in my eyes, in proclaiming liberty every one to his brother: and you made a covenant in my sight, in the house upon which my name is invoked. and you are fallen back, and have defiled my name: and you have brought back again every man his manservant, and every man his maidservant, whom you had let go free, and set at liberty: and you have brought them into subjection to be your servants and handmaids. therefore thus saith the lord: you have not hearkened to me, in proclaiming liberty every man to his brother and every man to his friend: behold i proclaim a liberty for you, saith the lord, to the sword, to the pestilence, and to the famine: and i will cause you to be removed to all the kingdoms of the earth. and i will give the men that have transgressed my covenant, and have not performed the words of the covenant which they agreed to in my presence, when they cut the calf in two and passed between the parts thereof: the princes of juda, and the princes of jerusalem, the eunuchs, and the priests, and all the people of the land that passed between the parts of the calf: and i will give them into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of them that seek their life: and their dead bodies shall be for meat to the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the earth. and sedecias the king of juda, and his princes, i will give into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of them that seek their lives, and into the hands of the armies of the king of babylon, which are gone from you. behold i will command, saith the lord, and i will bring them again to this city, and they shall fight against it, and take it, and burn it with fire: and i will make the cities of juda a desolation, without an inhabitant.

the word that came to jeremias from the lord in the days of joakim the son of josias king of juda, saying: go to the house of the rechabites: and speak to them, and bring them into the house of the lord, into one of the chambers of the treasures, and thou shalt give them wine to drink. and i took jezonias the son of jeremias the son of habsanias, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the rechabites. and i brought them into the house of the lord, to the treasure house of the sons of hanan, the son of jegedelias the man of god, which was by the treasure house of the princes, above the treasure of maasias the son of sellum, who was keeper of the entry. and i set before the sons of the house of the rechabites pots full of wine, and cups: and i said to them: drink ye wine. and they answered: we will not drink wine: because jonadab the son of rechab, our father, commanded us, saying: you shall drink no wine, neither you, nor your children, for ever: neither shall ye build houses, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyards, nor have any: but you shall dwell in tents all your days, that you may live many days upon the face of the earth, in which you are strangers. therefore we have obeyed the voice of jonadab the son of rechab, our father, in all things that he commanded us: so as to drink no wine all our days: neither we, nor our wives, nor our sons, nor our daughters: nor to build houses to dwell in, nor to have vineyard, or field, or seed: but we have dwelt in tents, and have been obedient according to all that jonadab our father commanded us. but when nabuchodonosor king of babylon came up to our land, we said: come, let us go into jerusalem from the face of the army of the chaldeans, and from the face of the army of syria: and we have remained in jerusalem. and the word of the lord came to jeremias, saying: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: go, and say to the men of juda, and to the inhabitants of jerusalem: will you not receive instruction, to obey my words, saith the lord? the words of jonadab the son of rechab, by which he commanded his sons not to drink wine, have prevailed: and they have drunk none to this day, because they have obeyed the commandment of their father: but i have spoken to you, rising early and speaking, and you have not obeyed me, and i have sent to you all my servants the prophets, rising early, and sending and saying: return ye every man from his wicked way, and make your ways good: and follow not strange gods, nor worship them, and you shall dwell in the land, which i gave you and your fathers: and you have not inclined your ear, nor hearkened to me. so the sons of jonadab the son of rechab have constantly kept the commandment of their father, which he commanded them: but this people hath not obeyed me. therefore thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: behold i will bring upon juda, and upon all the inhabitants of jerusalem all the evil that i have pronounced against them, because i have spoken to them, and they have not heard: i have called to them, and they have not answered me. and jeremias said to the house of the rechabites: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: because you have obeyed the commandment of jonadab your father, and have kept all his precepts, and have done all that he commanded you: therefore thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: there shall not be wanting a man of the race of jonadab the son of rechab, standing before me for ever.

and it came to pass in the fourth year of joakim the son of josias king of juda, that this word came to jeremias by the lord, saying: take thee a roll of a book, and thou shalt write in it all the words that i have spoken to thee against israel and juda, and against all the nations from the day that i spoke to thee, from the days of josias even to this day. if so be, when the house of juda shall hear all the evils that i purpose to do unto them, that they may return every man from his wicked way: and i will forgive their iniquity, and their sin. so jeremias called baruch the son of nerias: and baruch wrote from the mouth of jeremias all the words of the lord, which he spoke to him, upon the roll of a book. and jeremias commanded baruch, saying: i am shut up, and cannot go into the house of the lord. go thou in therefore, and read out of the volume, which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of the lord, in the hearing of all the people in the house of the lord on the fasting day: and also thou shalt read them in the hearing of all juda that come out of their cities: if so be they may present their supplication before the lord, and may return every one from his wicked way: for great is the wrath and indignation which the lord hath pronounced against this people. and baruch the son of nerias did according to all that jeremias the prophet had commanded him, reading out of the volume the words of the lord in the house of the lord. and it came to pass in the fifth year of joakim the son of josias king of juda, in the ninth month, that they proclaimed a fast before the lord to all the people in jerusalem, and to all the people that were come together out of the cities of juda to jerusalem. and baruch read out of the volume the words of jeremias in the house of the lord, in the treasury of gamarias the son of saphan the scribe, in the upper court, in the entry of the new gate of the house of the lord, in the hearing of all the people. and when micheas the son of gamarias the son of saphan had heard out of the book all the words of the lord, he went down into the king's house to the secretary's chamber: and behold all the princes sat there, elisama the scribe, and dalaia the son of semeias, and elnathan the son of achobor, and gamarias the son of saphan, and sedecias the son of hananias, and all the princes. and micheas told them all the words that he had heard when baruch read out of the volume in the hearing of the people. therefore all the princes sent judi the son of nathanias, the son of selemias, the son of chusi, to baruch, saying: take in thy hand the volume in which thou hast read in the hearing of the people, and come. so baruch the son of nerias took the volume in his hand, and came to them. and they said to him: sit down and read these things in our hearing. and baruch read in their hearing. and when they had heard all the words, they looked upon one another with astonishment, and they said to baruch: we must tell the king all these words. and they asked him, saying: tell us how didst thou write all these words from his mouth. and baruch said to them: with his mouth he pronounced all these words as if he were reading to me: and i wrote in a volume with ink. and the princes said to baruch: go, and hide thee, both thou and jeremias, and let no man know where you are. and they went in to the king into the court: but they laid up the volume in the chamber of elisama the scribe: and they told all the words in the hearing of the king. and the king sent judi that he should take the volume: who bringing it out of the chamber of elisama the scribe, read it in the hearing of the king, and of all the princes that stood about the king. now the king sat in the winter house, in the ninth month: and there was a hearth before him full of burning coals. and when judi had read three or four pages, he cut it with the penknife, and he cast it into the are, that was upon the hearth, till all the volume was consumed with the fire that was on the hearth. and the king and all his servants that heard all these words were not afraid, nor did they rend their garments. but yet elnathan, and dalaia, and gamarias spoke to the king, not to burn. the book: and he heard them not. and the king commanded jeremiel the son of amelech, and saraia, the son of eziel, and selemias the son of abdeel, to take up baruch the scribe, and jeremias the prophet: but the lord hid them. and the word of the lord came to jeremias the prophet, after that the king had burnt the volume, and the words that baruch had written from the mouth of jeremias, saying: take thee again another volume: and write in it all the former words that were in the first volume which joakim the king of juda hath burnt. and thou shalt say to joakim the king of juda: thus saith the lord: thou hast burnt that volume, saying: why hast thou written therein, and said: the king of babylon shall come speedily, and shall lay waste this land: and shall cause to cease from thence man and beast? therefore thus saith the lord against joakim the king of juda: he shall have none to sit upon the throne of david: and his dead body shall be cast out to the heat by day, and to the frost by night. and i will punish him, and his seed and his servants, for their iniquities, and i will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of jerusalem, and upon the men of juda all the evil that i have pronounced against them, but they have not heard. and jeremias took another volume, and gave it to baruch the son of neri, the scribe: who wrote in it from the mouth of jeremias all the words of the book which joakim the king of juda had burnt with fire: and there were added besides many more words than had been before.

now king sedecias the son of josias reigned instead of jechonias the son of joakim: whom nabuchodonosor king of babylon made king in the land of juda. but neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land did obey the words of the lord, that he spoke in the hand of jeremias the prophet. and king sedecias sent juchal the son of selemias, and sophonias the son of maasias the priest to jeremias the prophet, saying: pray to the lord our god for us. now jeremias walked freely in the midst of the people for they had not as yet cast him into prison. and the army of pharao was come out of egypt: and the chaldeans that besieged jerusalem, hearing these tidings, departed from jerusalem. and the word of the lord came to jeremias the prophet, saying: thus saith the lord the god of israel: thus shall you say to the king of juda, who sent you to inquire of me: behold the army of pharao, which is come forth to help you, shall return into their own land, into egypt. and the chaldeans shall come again, and fight against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire. thus saith the lord: deceive not your souls, saying: the chaldeans shall surely depart and go away from us: for they shall not go away; but if you should even beat al: the army of the chaldeans that fight against you, and there should be left of them some wounded men: they shall rise up, every man from his tent, and burn this city with are. now when the army of the chaldeans was gone away from jerusalem, because of pharao's army, jeremias went forth out of jerusalem to go into the land of benjamin: and to divide a possession there in the presence of the citizens. and when he was come to the gate of benjamin, the captain of the gate, who i was there in his turn, was one named jerias, the son of selemias, the son of hananias: and he took hold of jeremias the prophet, saying: thou art fleeing to the chaldeans. and jeremias answered: it is not so, i am not fleeing to the chaldeans. but he hearkened not to him: so jerias took jeremias and brought him to the princes. wherefore the princes were angry with jeremias, and they beat him, and cast him into the prison that was in the house of jonathan the scribe: for he was chief over the prison. so jeremias went into the house of the prison, and into the dungeon: and jeremias remained there many days. then sedecias the king, sending, took him: and asked him secretly in his house, and said: is there, thinkest thou, any word from the lord? and jeremias said: there is. and he said: thou shalt be delivered into the hands of the king of babylon. and jeremias said to king sedecias: in what have i offended against thee, or thy servants, or thy people, that thou hast cast me into prison? where are your prophets that prophesied to you, and said: the king of babylon shall not come against you, and against this land? now therefore hear, i beseech thee, my lord the king: let my petition be accepted in thy sight: and send me not back into the house of jonathan the scribe, lest i die there. then king sedecias commanded that jeremias should be committed into the entry of the prison: and that they should give him daily a piece of bread, beside broth, till all the bread in the city were spent: and jeremias remained in the entry of the prison.

now saphatias the son of mathan, and gedelias the son of phassur, and juchal the son of selemias, and phas-

sur the son of melchias heard the words that jeremias spoke to all the people, saying: thus saith the lord: whosoever shall remain in this city, shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence : but he that shall go forth to the chaldeans, shall live, and his life shall be safe, and he shall live. thus saith the lord: this city shall surely be delivered into the hand of the army of the king of babylon, and he shall take it. and the princes said to the king: we beseech thee that this man may be put to death: for on purpose he weakeneth the hands of the men of war, that remain in this city, and the hands of the people, speaking to them according to these words: for this man seeketh not peace to this people, but evil. and king sedecias said: behold he is in your hands: for it is not lawful for the king to deny you any thing. then they took jeremias and cast him into the dungeon of melchias the son of amelech, which was in the entry of the prison: and they let down jeremias by ropes into the dungeon, wherein there was no water, but mire. and jeremias sunk into the mire. now abdemelech the ethiopian, an eunuch that was in the king's house, heard that they had put jeremias in the dungeon: but the king was sitting in the gate of benjamin. and abdemelech went out of the king's house, and spoke to the king, saying: my lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have done against jeremias the prophet, casting him into the dungeon to die there with hunger, for there is no more bread in the city. then the king commanded abdemelech the ethiopian, saying: take from hence thirty men with thee, and draw up jeremias the prophet out of the dungeon, before he die. so abdemelech taking the men with him, went into the king's house that was under the storehouse: and he took from thence old rags, and old rotten things, and he let them down by cords to jeremias into the dungeon. and abdemelech the ethiopian said to jeremias: put these old rags and these rent and rotten things under thy arms, and upon the cords: and jeremias did so. and they drew up jeremias with the cords, and brought him forth out of the dungeon. and jeremias remained in the entry of the prison. and king sedecias sent, and took jeremias the prophet to him to the third gate, that was in the house of the lord: and the king said to jeremias: i will ask thee a thing, hide nothing from me. then jeremias said to sedecias: if i shall declare it to thee, wilt thou not put me to death? and if i give thee counsel, thou wilt not hearken to me. then king sedecias swore to jeremias, in private, saying: as the lord liveth, that made us this soul, i will not put thee to death, nor will i deliver thee into the hands of these men that seek thy life. and jeremias said to sedecias: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: if thou wilt take a resolution and go out to the princes of the king of babylon, thy soul shall live, and this city shall not be burnt with fire: and thou shalt be safe, and thy house. but if thou wilt not go out to the princes of the king of babylon, this city shall be delivered into the hands of the chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire: and thou shalt not escape out of their hands. and king sedecias said to jeremias: i am afraid because of the jews that are fled over to the chaldeans: lest i should be delivered into their hands, and they should abuse me. but jeremias answered: they shall not deliver thee: hearken, i beseech thee, to the word of the lord, which i speak to thee, and it shall be well with thee, and thy soul shall live. but if thou wilt not go forth, this is the word which the lord hath shewn me: behold all the women that are left in the house of the king of juda, shall be brought out to the princes of the king of babylon: and they shall say: thy men of peace have deceived thee, and have prevailed against thee, they have plunged thy feet in the mire, and in a slippery place, and they have departed from thee. and all thy wives, and thy children shall be brought out to the chaldeans, and thou shalt not escape their hands, but thou shalt be taken by the hand of the king of babylon: and he shall burn this city with fire. then sedecias said to jeremias: let no man know these words, and thou shalt not die. but if the princes shall hear that i have spoken with thee, and shall come to thee, and say to thee: tell us what thou hast said to the king, hide it not from us, and we will not kill thee: and also what the king said to thee: thou shalt say to them: i presented my supplication before the king, that he would not command me to be carried back into the house of jonathan, to die there. so all the princes came to jeremias, and asked him: and he spoke to them according to all the words that the king had commanded him: and they left him: for nothing had been heard. but jeremias remained in the entry of the prison, until the day that jerusalem was taken: and it came to pass that jerusalem was taken.

in the ninth year of sedecias king of juda, in the tenth month, came nabuchodonosor king of babylon, and all his army to jerusalem, and they besieged it. and in the i eleventh year of sedecias, in the fourth month, the fifth day of the month, the city was opened. and all the princes of the king of babylon came in, and sat in the middle gate: neregel, serezer, semegarnabu, sarsachim, rabsares, neregel, serezer, rebmag, and all the rest of the princes of the king of babylon. and when sedecias the king of juda and all the men of war saw them, they fled: and they went forth in the night out of the city by the way of the king's garden, and by the gate that was between the two walls, and they went; out to the way of the desert. but the army of the chaldeans pursued after them: and they took sedecias in the plain of the desert of jericho, and when they had taken him, they brought him to nabuchodonosor king of babylon to reblatha, which is in the land of emath: and he gave judgment upon him. and the king of babylon slew the sons of sedecias, in reblatha, before his eyes: and the king of babylon slew all the nobles of juda. he also put out the eyes of sedecias: and bound him with fetters, to be carried to babylon. and the chaldeans burnt the king's house, and the houses of the people with fire, and they threw down the wall of jerusalem. and nabuzardan the general of the army carried away captive to babylon the remnant of the people that remained in the city, and the fugitives that had gone over to him, and the rest of the people that remained. but nabuzardan the general left some of the poor people that had nothing at all, in the land of juda, and he gave them vineyards, and cisterns at that time. now nabuchodonosor king of babylon had given charge to nabuzardan the general concerning jeremias, saying: take him, and set thy eyes upon him, and do him no harm: but as he hath a mind, so do with him. therefore nabuzardan the general sent, and nabusezban, and rabsares, and neregel, and sereser, and rebmag, and all the nobles of the king of babylon, sent, and took jeremias out of the court of the prison, and committed him to codolias the son of ahicam the son of saphan, that he might go home, and dwell among the people. but the word of the lord came to jeremias, when he was yet shut up in the court of the prison, saying: go, and tell abemelech the ethiopian, saying: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: behold i will bring my words upon this city unto evil, and not unto good: and they shall be accomplished in thy sight in that day. and i will deliver thee in that day, saith the lord: and thou shalt not be given into the hands of the men whom thou fearest: but delivering, i will deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword: but thy life shall be saved for thee, because thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the lord.

the word that came to jeremias from the lord, after that nabuzardan the general had let him go from rama, when he had taken him, being bound with chains, among all them that were carried away from jerusalem and juda, and were carried to babylon. and the general of the army taking jeremias, said to him: the lord thy god hath pronounced this evil upon this place, and he hath brought it: and the lord hath done as he hath said: because you have sinned against the lord, and have not hearkened to his voice, and this word is come upon you. now then behold i have loosed thee this day from the chains which were upon thy hands: if it please thee to come with me to babylon, come: and i will set my eyes upon thee: but if it do not please thee to come with me to babylon, stay here: behold all the land is before thee, as thou shalt choose, and whither it shall please thee to go, thither go. and come not with me: but dwell with godolias the son of ahicam the son of saphan, whom the king of babylon hath made governor over the cities of juda: dwell therefore with him in the midst of the people: or whithersoever it shall please thee to go, go. and the general of the army gave him victuals and presents, and let him go. and jeremias went to godolias the son of ahicam to masphath: and dwelt with him in the midst of the people that were left in the land. and when all the captains of the army that were scattered through the countries, they and their companions, had heard that the king of babylon had made godolias the son of ahicam governor of the country, and that he had committed unto him men and women, and children, and of the poor of the land, them that had not been carried away captive to babylon: they came to godolias to masphath: and ismahel the son of nathanias, and johanen, and jonathan, the sons of caree, and sareas the son of thanehumeth, and the children of ophi, that were of netophathi, and jezonias the son of maachati, they and their men. and godolias the son of ahicam the son of saphan swore to them and to their companions, saying: fear not to serve the chaldeass: dwell in the land, and serve the king of babylon, and it shall be well with you. behold i dwell in masphath, that i may answer the commandment of the chaldeans that are sent to us: but as for you, gather ye the vintage, and the harvest, and the oil, and lay it up in your vessels, and abide in your cities which you hold. moreover all the jews that were in moab, and among the children of ammon, and in edom, and in all the countries, when they heard that the king of babylon had left a remnant in judea, and that he had made godolias the son of ahicam the son of saphan ruler over them: all the jews, i say, returned out of all the places to which they had fled, and they came into the land of juda to godolias to masphath: and they gathered wine, and a very great harvest. then johanen the son of caree, and all the captains of the army, that had been scattered about in the countries, came to godolias to masphath. and they said to him: know that baalis the king of the children of ammon hath sent ismahel the son of nathanias to kill thee. and godolias the son of ahicam believed them not. but johanen the son of caree, spoke to oodolias privately in masphath, saying: i will go, and i will kill ismahel the son of nathanias, and no man shall know it, lest he kill thee, and all the jews be scattered, that are gathered unto thee, and the remnant of juda perish. and codolias the son of ahicam said to johanen the son of caree: do not this thing: for what thou sayst of ismahel is false.

and it came to pass in the seventh month, that ismahel the son of nathanias, the son of elisama of the royal blood, and the nobles of the king, and ten men with him, came to godolias the son of ahicam into masphath: and they ate bread there together in masphath. and ismahel the son of nathanias arose, and the ten men that were with him, and they struck godolias the son of ahicam, the son of saphan with the sword, and slew him whom the king of babylon had made governor over the land. ismahel slew also all the jews that were with godolias in masphath, and the chaldeans that were found there, and the soldiers. and on the second day after he had killed godolias, no man yet knowing it, there came some from sichem, and from silo, and from samaria, fourscore men, with their beards shaven, and their clothes rent, and mourning: and they had offerings and incense in their hand, to offer in the house of the lord. and ismahel the son of nathanias went forth from masphath to meet them, weeping all along as he went: and when he had met them, he said to them: come to godolias, the son of ahicam. and when they were come to the midst of the city, ismahel the son of nathanias, slew them, and cast them into the midst of the pit, he and the men that were with him. but ten men were found among them, that said to ismahel: kill us not: for we have stores in the field, of wheat, and barley, and oil, and honey. and he forbore, and slew them not with their brethren. and the pit into which ismahel cast all the dead bodies of the men whom he slew because of godolias, is the same that king asa made, for fear of baasa the king of israel: the same did ismahel the son of nathanias fill with them that were slain. then ismahel carried away captive all the remnant of the people that were in masphath: the king's daughters, and all the people that remained in masphath: whom nabuzardan the general of the army had committed to godolias the son of ahicam. and ismahel the son of nathanias took them, and he departed, to go over to the children of ammon. but johanen the son of caree, and all the captains of the fighting men that were with him, heard of the evil that ismahel the son of nathanias had done. and taking all the men, they went out to fight against ismahel the son of nathanias, and they found him by the great waters that are in gabaon. and when all the people that were with ismahel, had seen johanen the son of caree, and all the captains of the fighting men that were with him, they rejoiced. and all the people whom ismahel had taken, went back to masphath: and they returned and went to johanen the son of caree. but ismahel the son of nathanias fled with eight men, from the face of johanen, and went to the children of ammon. then johanen the son of caree, and all the captains of the soldiers that were with him, took all the remnant of the people whom they had recovered from ismahel the son of nathanias, from masphath, after that he had slain godolias the son of ahicam: valiant men for war, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs, whom he had brought back from gabaon: and they departed, and sat as sojourners in chamaam, which is near bethlehem: in order to go forward, and enter into egypt, from the face of the chaldeans: for they were afraid of them, because ismahel the son of nathanias had slain godolias the son of ahicam, whom the king of babylon had made governor in the land of juda.

then all the captains of the warriors, and johanen the son of caree, and jezonias the son of osaia, and the rest of the people from the least to the greatest came near: and they said to jeremias the prophet: let our supplication fall before thee: and pray thou for us to the lord thy god for all this remnant, for we are left but a few of many, as thy eyes do behold us. and let the lord thy god shew us the way by which we may walk, and the thing that we must do. and jeremias the prophet said to them: i have heard you: behold i will pray to the lord your god according to your words: and whatsoever thing he shall answer me, i will declare it to you: and i will hide nothing from you. and they said to jeremias: the lord be witness between us of truth and faithfulness, if we do not according to every thing for which the lord thy god shall send thee to us. whether it be good or evil, we will obey the voice of the lord our god, to whom we send thee: that it may be well with us when we shall hearken to the voice of the lord our god. now after ten days, the word of the lord came to jeremias. and he called johanen the son of caree, and all the captains of the fighting men that were with him, and all the people from the least to the greatest. and he said to them: thus saith the lord the god of israel, to whom you sent me, to present your supplications before him: if you will be quiet and remain in this land, i will build you up, and not pull you down: i will plane you, and not pluck you up: for now i am appeased for the evil that i have done to you. fear not because of the king of babylon, of whom you are greatly afraid: fear him not, saith the lord: for i am with you, to save you, and to deliver you from his hand. and i will shew mercies to you, and will take pity on you, and will cause you to dwell in your own land. but if you say: we will not dwell in this land, neither will we hearken to the voice of the lord our god, saying: no, but we will go into the land of egypt: where we shall see no war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor suffer hunger: and there we will dwell. for this now hear the word of the lord, ye remnant of juda: thus saith the lord of hosts, the god of israel: if you set your faces to go into egypt, and enter in to dwell there: the sword which you fear, shall overtake you there in the land of egypt: and the famine, whereof you are afraid, shall cleave to you in egypt, and there you shall die. and all the men that set their faces to go into egypt, to dwell there, shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: none of them shall remain, nor escape from the face of the evil that i will bring upon them. for thus saith the lord of hosts, the god of israel: as my anger and my indignation hath been kindled against the inhabitants of jerusalem: so shall my indignation be kindled against you, when you shall enter into egypt, and you shall be an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach: and you shall see this place no more. this is the word of the lord concerning you, o ye remnant of juda: go ye not into egypt: know certainly that i have adjured you this day. for you have deceived your own souls: for you sent me to the lord our god, saying: pray for us to the lord our god, and according to all that the lord our god shall say to thee, so declare unto us, and we will do it. and now i have declared it to you this day, and you have not obeyed the voice of the lord your god, with regard to all the things for which he hath sent me to you. now therefore know certainly that you shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence in the place to which you desire to go to dwell there.

and it came to pass, that when jeremias had made an end of speaking to the people all the words of the lord their god, for which the lord their god had sent him to them, all these words: azarias the son of osaia, and johanen the son of caree, and all the proud men, made answer, saying to jeremias: thou tellest a lie: the lord our god hath not sent thee, saying: go not into egypt, to dwell there. but baruch the son of nerias setteth thee on against us, to deliver us into the hands of the chaldeans, to kill us, and to cause us to be carried away captives to babylon. so johanen the son of caree, and all the captains of the soldiers, and all the people, obeyed not the voice of the lord, to remain in the land of juda. but johanah the son of caree, and all the captains of the soldiers took all the remnant of juda, that were returned out of all nations, to which they had before been scattered, to dwell in the land of juda: men, and women, and children, and the king's daughters, and every soul, which nabuzardan the general had left with godolias the son of ahicam the son of saphan, and jeremias the prophet, and baruch the son of nerias. and they went into the land of egypt, for they obeyed not the voice of the lord: and they came as far as taphnis. and the word of the lord came to jeremias in taphnis, saying: take great stones in thy hand, and thou shalt hide them in the vault that is under the brick wall at the gate of pharao's house in taphnis: in the sight of the men of juda. and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: behold i will send, and take nabuchodonosor the king of babylon my servant: and i will set his throne over these stones which i have hid, and he shall set his throne over them. and he shall come and strike the land of egypt: such as are for death, to death: and such as are for captivity, to captivity: and such as are for the sword, to the sword. and he shall kindle a fire in the temples of the gods of egypt, and he shall burn them, and he shall carry them away captives: and he shall array himself with the land of egypt, as a shepherd putteth on his garment: and he shall go forth from thence in peace. and he shall break the statues of the house of the sun, that are in the land of egypt; and the temples of the gods of egypt he shall burn with fire.

the word that came to jeremias, concerning all the jews that dwelt in the land of egypt, dwelling in magdal, and in taphnis, and in memphis, and in the land of phatures, saying: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: you have seen all this evil that i have brought upon jerusalem, and upon all the cities of juda: and behold they are desolate this day, and there is not an inhabitant in them: because of the wickedness which they have committed, to provoke me to wrath, and to go and offer sacrifice, and worship other gods, which neither they, nor you, nor your fathers knew. and i sent to you all my servants the prophets, rising early, and sending, and saying: do not commit this abominable thing, which i hate. but they heard not, nor inclined their ear to turn from their evil ways, and not to sacrifice to strange gods. wherefore my indignation and my fury was poured forth, and was kindled in the cities of juda, and in the streets of jerusalem: and they are turned to desolation and waste, as at this day. and now thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: why do you commit this great evil against your own souls, that there should die of you man and woman, child and suckling out of the midst of juda, and no remnant should be left you: in that you provoke me to wrath with the works of your hands, by sacrificing to other gods in the land of egypt, into which you are come to dwell there: and that you should perish, and be a curse, and a reproach to all the nations of the earth? have you forgotten the evils of your fathers, and the evils of the kings of juda, and the evils of their wives, and your evils, and the evils of your wives, that they have done in the land of juda, and in the streets of jerusalem? they are not cleansed even to this day: neither have they feared, nor walked in the law of the lord, nor in my commandments, which i set before you and your fathers. therefore thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: behold i will set my face upon you for evil: and i will destroy all juda. and i will take the remnant of juda that have set their faces to go into the land of egypt, and to dwell there: and they shall be all consumed in the land of egypt: they shall fall by the sword, and by the famine: and they shall be consumed from the least even to the greatest, by the sword, and by the famine shall they die: and they shall be for an execration, and for a wonder, and for a curse, and for a reproach. and i will visit them that dwell in the land of egypt, as i have visited jerusalem by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence. and there shall be none that shall escape, and remain of the remnant of the jews that are gone to sojourn in the land of egypt: and that shall return into the land of juda, to which they have a desire to return to dwell there: there shall none return but they that shall flee. then all the men that knew that their wives sacrificed to other gods: and all the women of whom there stood by a great multitude, and all the people of them that dwelt in the land of egypt in phatures, answered jeremias, saying: as for the word which thou hast spoken to us in the name of the lord, we will not hearken to thee: but we will certainly do every word that shall proceed out of our own mouth, to sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink offerings to her, as we and our fathers have done, our kings, and our princes in the cities of juda, and in the streets of jerusalem: and we were filled with bread, and it was well with us, and we saw no evil. but since we left off to offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink offerings to her, we have wanted all things, and have been consumed by the sword, and by famine. and if we offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and pour out drink offerings to her: did we make cakes to worship her, to pour out drink offerings to her, without our husbands? and jeremias spoke to all the people, to the men, and to the women, and to all the people which had given him that answer, saying: was it not the sacrifice that you offered in the cities of juda, and in the streets of jerusalem, you and sour fathers, your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land, which the lord hath remembered, and hath it not entered into his heart? so that the lord could no longer bear, because of the evil of your doings, and because of the abominations which you have committed: therefore your land is become a desolation, and an astonishment, and a curse, without an inhabitant, as at this day. because you have sacrificed to idols, and have sinned against the lord: and have not obeyed the voice of the lord, and have not walked in his law, and in his commandments, and in his testimonies: therefore are these evils come upon you, as

at this day. and jeremias said to all the people, and to all the women : hear ye the word of the lord, all juda, you that dwell in the land of egypt: thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel, saying: you and your wives have spoken with your mouth, and fulfilled with your hands, saying: let us perform our vows which we have made, to offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink offerings to her: you have fulfilled your vows, and have performed them indeed. therefore hear ye the word of the lord, all juda, you that dwell in the land of egypt: behold i have sworn by my great name, saith the lord: that my name shall no more be named in the mouth of any man of juda, in the land of egypt, saying: the lord god liveth. behold i will watch over them for evil, and not for good: and all the men of juda that are in the land of egypt, shall be consumed, by the sword, and by famine, till there be an end of them. and a few men that shall flee from the sword, shall return out of the land of egypt into the land of juda: and all the remnant of juda that are gone into the land of egypt to dwell there, shall know whose word shall stand, mine, or theirs. and this shall be a sign to you, saith the lord, that i will punish you in this place: that you may know that my words shall be accomplished indeed against you for evil. thus saith the lord: behold i will deliver pharao ephree king of egypt into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that seek his life: as i delivered sedecias king of juda into the hand of nabuchodonosor the king of babylon his enemy, and that sought his life.

the word that jeremias the prophet spoke to baruch the son of nerias, when he had written there words in a book, out of the mouth of jeremias, in the fourth year of joakim the son of josias king of juda, saying: thus saith the lord the god of israel to thee, baruch: thou hast said: woe is me, wretch that i am, for the lord hath added sorrow to my sorrow: i am wearied with my groans, and i find no rest. thus saith the lord: thus shalt thou say to him: behold, them whom i have built, i do destroy: and them whom i have planted, i do pluck up, and all this land. and dost thou seek great things for thyself ? seek not : for behold i will bring evil upon all flesh, saith the lord ! but i will give thee thy life, and save thee in all places whithersoever thou shalt go.

the word of the lord that came to jeremias the prophet against the gentiles, against egypt, against the army of pharao nechao king of egypt, which was by the river euphrates in charcamis, whom nabuchodonosor the king of babylon defeated, in the fourth year of joakim the son of josias king of juda. prepare ye the shield and buckler, and go forth to battle. harness the horses, and get up, ye horsemen: stand forth with helmets, furbish the spears, put on coats of mail. what then? i have seen them dismayed, and turning their backs, their valiant ones slain: they fled apace, and they looked not back: terror was round about, saith the lord. let not the swift flee away, nor the strong think to escape: they are overthrown, and fallen down, towards the north by the river euphrates. who is this that cometh up as a flood: and his streams swell like those of rivers ? egypt riseth up like a hood, and the waves thereof shall be moved as rivers, and he shall say: i will go up and will cover the earth: i will destroy the city, and its inhabitants. get ye up on horses, and glory in chariots, and let the valiant men come forth, the ethiopians, and the libyans that hold the shield, and the lydians that take, and shoot arrows. for this is the day of the lord the god of hosts, a day of vengeance, that he may revenge himself of his enemies: the sword shall devour, and shall be filled, and shall be drunk with their blood: for there is a sacrifice of the lord god of hosts in the north country, by the river euphrates. go up into galaad, and take balm, o virgin daughter of egypt: in vain dost thou multiply medicines, there shall be no cure for thee. the nations have heard of thy disgrace, and thy howling hath filled the land: for the strong hath stumbled against the strong, and both are fallen together. the word that the lord spoke to jeremias the prophet, how nabuchodonosor king of babylon should come and strike the land of egypt: declare ye to egypt, and publish it in magdal, and let it be known in memphis, and in taphnis: say ye: stand up, and prepare thyself: for the sword shall devour all round about thee. why are thy valiant men come to nothing? they stood not: because the lord hath overthrown them. he hath multiplied them that fall, and one hath fallen upon another, and they shall say: arise, and let us return to our own people, and to the land our nativity, from the sword of the dove. call ye the name of pharao king egypt, a tumult time hath brought. as i live, (saith the king, whose name is the lord of hosts,) as thabor is among the mountains, and as carnal by the sea, so shall he come. furnish thyself to go into captivity, thou daughter inhabitant of egypt: for memphis shall be made desolate, and shall be forsaken and uninhabited. egypt is like a fair and beautiful heifer: there shall come from the north one that shall goad her. her hirelings also that lived in the midst of her, like fat-ted calves are turned back, and are fled away together, and they could not stand, for the day of their slaughter is come upon them, the time of their visitation. her voice shall sound like brass, for they shall hasten with an army, and with axes they shall come against her, as hewers of wood. they have cut down her forest, saith the lord, which cannot be counted: they are multiplied above locusts, and are without number. the daughter of egypt is confounded, and delivered into the hand of the people of the north. the lord of hosts the god of israel hath said: behold i will visit upon the tumult of alexandria, and upon pharao, and upon egypt, and upon her gods, and upon her kings, and upon pharao, upon them that trust in him. and i will deliver them into the hand of them that seek their lives, into the hand of nabuchodonosor king of babylon, and into the hand of his servants: and afterwards it shall be inhabited, as in the days of old, saith the lord. and thou my servant jacob, fear not

and be not thou dismayed, o israel: for behold i will save thee from afar off, and thy seed out of the land of thy captivity: and jacob shall return and be at rest, and prosper: and there shall be none to terrify him. and thou, my servant jacob, fear not, saith the lord: because i am with thee, for i will consume all the nations to which i have cast thee out: but thee i will not consume, but i will correct thee in judgment, neither will i spare thee as if thou wert innocent.

the word of the lord that came to jeremias the prophet against the people of palestine, before pharao took gaza. thus saith the lord: behold there come up waters out of the north, and they shall be as an overflowing torrent, and they shall cover the land, and all that is therein, the city and the inhabitants thereof: then the men shall cry, and all the inhabitants of the land shall howl, at the noise of the marching of arms, and of his soldiers, at the rushing of his chariots, and the multitude of his wheels. the fathers have not looked back to the children, for feebleness of hands, because of the coming of the day, in which all the philistines shall be laid waste, and tyre and sidon shall be destroyed, with all the rest of their helpers. for the lord hath wasted the philistines, the remnant of the isle of cappadocia. baldness is come upon gaza: ascalon hath held her peace with the remnant of their valley: how long shalt thou cut thyself? o thou sword of the lord, how long wilt thou not be quiet? go into thy scabbard, rest, and be still. how shall it be quiet, when the lord hath given it a charge against ascalon, and against the countries thereof by the sea side, and there hath made an appointment for it?

against moab thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: woe to nabo, for it is laid waste, and confounded: cariathaim is taken: the strong city is confounded and hath trembled. there is no more rejoicing in moab over hesebon: they have devised evil. come, and let us cut it off from being a nation. therefore shalt thou in silence hold thy peace, and the sword shall follow thee. a voice of crying from oronaim: waste, and great destruction. moab is destroyed: proclaim a cry for her little ones. for by the ascent of luith shall the mourner go up with weeping: for in the descent of oronaim the enemies have heard a howling of destruction. flee, save your lives: and be as heath in the wilderness. for because thou hast trusted in thy bulwarks, and in thy treasures, thou also shalt be taken: and chamos shall go into captivity, his priests, and his princes together. and the spoiler shall come upon every city, and no city shall escape: and the valleys shall perish, and the plains shall be destroyed, for the lord hath spoken: give a flower to moab, for in its flower it shall go out: and the cities thereof shall be desolate, and uninhabited. cursed be he that doth the work of the lord deceitfully: and cursed be he that withholdeth his sword from blood. moab hath been fruitful from his youth, and hath rested upon his lees: and hath not been poured out from vessel to vessel, nor hath gone into captivity: therefore his taste hath remained in him, and his scent is not changed. therefore behold the days come, saith the lord, and i will send him men that shall order and overturn his bottles, and they shall cast him down, and shall empty his vessels, and break their bottles one against another. and moab shall be ashamed of chamos, as the house of israel was ashamed of bethel, in which they trusted. how do you say: we are valiant, and stout men in battle? moab is laid waste, and they have cast down her cities: and her choice young men are gone down to the slaughter: saith the king, whose name is the lord of hosts. the destruction of moab is near to come: the calamity thereof shall come on exceeding swiftly. comfort him, all you that are round about him, and all you that know his name, say: how is the strong staff broken, the beautiful rod? come down from thy glory, and sit in thirst, o dwelling of the daughter of dibon: because the spoiler of moab is come up to thee, he hath destroyed thy bulwarks. stand in the way, and look out, o habitation of aroer: inquire of him that fleeth: and say to him that hath escaped: what is done? moab is confounded, because he is overthrown: howl ye, and cry, tell ye it in amen, that moab is wasted, and judgment is come upon the plain country: upon helon, and upon jasa, and upon mephaath. and upon dibon, and upon nabo, and upon the house of deblathaim, and upon cariathaim, and upon bethgamul, and upon bethmaon, and upon carioth, and upon bosra: and upon all the cities of the land of moab, far or near. the horn of moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, saith the lord. make him drunk, because he lifted up himself against the lord: and moab shall dash his hand in his own vomit, and he also shall be in derision. for israel hath been a derision unto thee: as though thou hadst found him amongst thieves: for thy words therefore, which thou hast spoken against him, thou shalt be led away captive. leave the cities, and dwell in the rock, you that dwell in moab: and be ye iike the dove that maketh her nest in the mouth of the hole in the highest place. we have heard the pride of moab, he is exceeding proud: his haughtiness, and his arrogance, and his pride, and the loftiness of his heart. i know, saith the lord, his boasting, and that the strength thereof is not according to it, neither hath it endeavoured to do according as it was able. therefore will i lament for moab, and i will cry out to all moab, for the men of the brick wall that mourn. o vineyard of sabama, i will weep for thee, with the mourning of jazer: thy branches are gone over the sea, they are come even to the sea of jazer: the robber hath rushed in upon thy harvest and thy vintage. joy and gladness is taken away from carmel, and from the land of moab, and i have taken away the wine out of the presses: the treader of the grapes shall not sing the accustomed cheerful tune. from the cry of hesebon even to eleale, and to jasa, they have uttered their voice: from segor to oronaim, as a heifer of three years old: the waters also of nemrim shall be very bad. and i will take away from moab, saith the lord, him that offereth in the high places, and that sacrificeth to his gods. therefore my heart shall sound for moab like pipes: and my heart a sound like pipes for the men of the brick wall: because he hath done more than he could, therefore they have perished. for every head shall be bald, and every beard shall be shaven: all hands shall be tied together, and upon every back there shall be hair-cloth. upon all the housetops of moab, and in the streets thereof general mourning: because i have broken moab as an useless vessel, saith the lord. how is it overthrown, and they have howled! how hath moab bowed down the neck, and is confounded! and moab shall be a derision, and an example to all round about him. thus saith the lord: behold he shall fly as an eagle, and shall stretch forth his wings to moab. carioth is taken, and the strong holds are won: and the heart of the valiant men of moab in that day shall be as the heart of a woman in labour. and moab shall cease to be a people: because he hath gloried against the lord. fear, and the pit, and the snare come upon thee, o inhabitant of moab, saith the lord. he that shall flee from the fear, shall fall into the pit: and he that shall get up out of the pit, shall be taken in the snare: for i will bring upon moab the year of their visitation, saith the lord. they that fled from the snare stood in the shadow of hesebon: but there came a fire out of kesebon, and a flame out of the midst of seen, and it shall devour part of moab. and the crown of the head of the children of tumult. woe to thee, moab, thou hast perished, o people of chamos: for thy sons, and thy daughters are taken captives. and i will bring back the captivity of moab in the last days, saith the lord. hitherto the judgments of moab.

against the children of ammon. thus saith the lord: hath israel no sons? or hath he no heir? why then hath melchom inherited gad: and his people dwelt in his cities? therefore behold the days come, saith the lord, and i will cause the noise of war to be heard in rabbath of the children of ammon, and it shall be destroyed into a heap, and her daughters shall be burnt with fire, and israel shall possess them that have possessed him, saith the lord. howl, o hesebon, for hai is wasted. cry, ye daughters of rabbath, gird yourselves with hair-cloth: mourn and go about by the hedges: for melchom shall be carried into captivity, his priests, and his princes together. why gloriest thou in the valleys? thy valley hath flowed away, o delicate daughter, that hast trusted in thy treasures, and hast said: who shall come to me? behold i will bring a fear upon thee, saith the lord god of hosts, from all that are round about thee: and you shall be scattered every one out of one another's sight, neither shall there be any to gather together them that flee. and afterwards i will cause the captives of the children of ammon to return, saith the lord. against edom. thus saith the lord of hosts: is wisdom no more in theman? counsel is perished from her children: their wisdom is become unprofitable. flee and turn your backs, go down into the deep hole, ye inhabitants of dedan: for i have brought the destruction of esau upon him, the time of his visitation. if grapegatherers had come to thee, would they not have left a bunch? if thieves in the night, they would have taken what was enough for them. but i have made esau bare, i have revealed his secrets, and he cannot be hid: his seed is laid waste, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and he shall not be. leave thy fatherless children: i will make them live: and thy widows shall hope in me. for thus saith the lord: behold they whose judgment was not to drink of the cup, shall certainly drink: and shalt thou come off as innocent? thou shalt not come off as innocent, but drinking thou shalt drink. for i have sworn by myself, saith the lord, that bosra shall become a desolation, and a reproach, and a desert, and a curse: and all her cities shall be everlasting wastes. i have heard a rumour from the lord, and an ambassador is sent to the nations: gather yourselves together, and come against her, and let us rise up to battle. for behold i have made thee a little one among the nations, despicable among men. thy arrogancy hath deceived thee, and the pride of thy heart: o thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock, and endeavourst to lay hold on the height of the hill: but though thou shouldst make thy nest as high as an eagle, i will bring thee down from thence, saith the lord. and edom shall be desolate: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, and shall hiss at all its plagues. as sodom was overthrown and gomorra, and the neighbours thereof, saith the lord: there shall not a man dwell there, and there shall no son of man inhabit it. behold one shall come up as a lion from the swelling of the jordan, against the strong and beautiful: for i will make him run suddenly upon her: and who shall be the chosen one whom i may appoint over her? for who is like to m? and who shall abide me? and who is that shepherd that can withstand my countenance? therefore hear ye the counsel of the lord, which he hath taken concerning edom: and his thoughts which he hath thought concerning the inhabitants of theman: surely the little ones of the flock shall cast them down, of a truth they shall destroy them with their habitation. the earth is moved at the noise of their fall: the cry of their voice is heard in the red sea. behold he shall come up as an eagle, and fly: and he shall spread his wings over bosra: and in that day the heart of the valiant ones of edom shall be as the heart of a woman in labour. against damascus. emath is confounded and arphad: for they have heard very bad tidings, they are troubled as in the sea: through care they could not rest. damascus is undone, she is put to flight, trembling hath seized on her: anguish and sorrows have taken her as a woman in labour. how have they forsaken the city of renown, the city of joy! therefore her young men shall fall in her streets: and all the men of war shall be silent in that day, saith the lord of hosts. and i will kindle a fire in the wall of damascus, rind it shall devour the strong holds of benadad. against cedar and against the kingdoms of asor, which nabuchodonour king of babylon destroyed. thus saith the lord: arise, and go ye up to cedar, and waste the children of the east. they shall take their tents, and their flocks: and shall carry off for themselves their curtains, and all their vessels, and their camels: and they shall call fear upon them round about. flee ye, get away speedily, sit in deep holes, you that inhabit asur, saith the lord: for nabuchodonosor king of babylon hath taken counsel against you, and hath conceived designs against you. arise, and so up to a nation that is at ease, and that dwelleth securely, saith the lord: they have neither gates, nor bars: they dwell alone. and their camels shall be for a spoil, and the multitude of their cattle for a booty, and i will scatter into every wind them that have their hair cut round, and i will bring destruction upon them from i all their confines, saith the lord. and asur shall be a habitation for dragons, desolate for ever: no man shall abide there, nor son of man inhabit it. the word of the lord that came to jeremias the prophet against elam, in the beginning of the reign of sedecias king of juda, saying: thus saith the lord of hosts: behold i will break the bow of elam, and their chief strength. and i will bring upon elam the four winds from the fear quarters of heaven: and i will scatter them into all these winds: and there shall be no nation, to which the fugitives of elam shall not come. and i will cause elam to be afraid before their enemies, and in the sight of them that seek their life: and i will bring evil upon them, my fierce wrath, saith the lord: and will send the sword after them, till i consume them. and i will set my throne in elam, and destroy kings and princes from thence, saith the lord. but in the latter days i will cause the captives of elam, to return, saith the lord.

the word that the lord hath spoken against babylon, and against the land of the chaldeans in the hand of jeremias the prophet. declare ye among the nations, and publish it, lift up a standard: proclaim, and conceal it not: say: babylon is taken, bel is confounded, merodach is overthrown, their graven things are confounded, their idols are overthrown. for a nation is come up against her out of the north, which shall make her land desolate: and there shall be none to dwell therein, from man even to beast: yea they are removed, and gone away. in those days, and at that time, saith the lord, the children of israel shall come, they and the children of juda together: going and weeping they shall make haste, and shall seek the lord their god. they shall ask the way to sion, their faces are hitherward. they shall come, and shall be joined to the lord by an everlasting covenant, which shall never be forgotten. my people have been a lost flock, their shepherds have caused them to go astray, and have made them wander in the mountains: they have gone from mountain to hill, they have forgotten their resting place. all that found them, have devoured them: and their enemies said: we have not sinned in so doing: because they have sinned against the lord the beauty of justice, and against the lord the hope of their fathers. remove out of the midst of babylon, and go forth out of the land of the chaldeans: and be ye as kids at the head of the flock. for behold i raise up, and will bring against babylon an assembly of great nations from the land of the north: and they shall be prepared against her, and from thence she shall be taken: their arrows, like those of a mighty man, a destroyer, shall not return in vain. and chaldea shall be made a prey: all that waste her shall be filled, saith the lord. because you rejoice, and speak great things, pillaging my inheritance: because you are spread abroad as calves upon the grass, and have bellowed as bulls. your mother is confounded exceedingly, and she that bore you is made even with the dust: behold she shall be the last among the nations, a wilderness unpassable, and dry. because of the wrath of the lord it shall not be inhabited, but shall be wholly desolate: every one that shall pass by babylon, shall be astonished, and hiss at all her plagues. prepare yourselves against babylon round about, all you that bend the bow: fight against her, spare not arrows: because she hath sinned against the lord. shout against her, she hath every where given her hand, her foundations are fallen, her walls are thrown down, for it is the vengeance of the lord. take vengeance upon her: as she hath done, so do to her. destroy the sower out of babylon, and him that holdeth the sickle in the time of harvest: for fear of the sword of the dove every man shall return to his people, and every one shall flee to his own land. israel is a scattered flock, the lions have driven him away: first the king of assyria devoured him: and last this nabuchodonosor king of babylon hath broken his bones. therefore thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: behold i will visit the king of babylon and his land, as i have visited the king of assyria. and i will bring israel again to his habitation: and he shall feed on carmel, and bason, and his soul shall be satisfied in mount ephraim, and galaad. in those days, and at that time, saith the lord, the iniquity of israel shall be sought for, and there shall be none: and the sin of juda, and there shall none be found: for i will be merciful to them, whom i shall leave. go up against the land of the rulers, and punish the inhabitants thereof, waste, and destroy all behind them, saith the lord: and do according to all that i have commanded thee. a noise of war in the land, and a great destruction. how is the hammer of the whole earth broken, and destroyed! how is babylon turned into a desert among the nations! i have caused thee to fall into a snare, and thou art taken, o babylon, and thou wast not aware of it: thou art found and caught, because thou hast provoked the lord. the lord hath opened his armoury, and hath brought forth the weapons of his wrath: for the lord the god of hosts hath a work to be done in the land of the chaldeans. come ye against her from the uttermost borders: open that they may go forth that shall tread her down: take the stones out of the way, and make heaps, and destroy her: and let nothing of her be left. destroy all her valiant men, let them go down to the slaughter: woe to them, for their day is come, the time of their visitation. the voice of them that flee, and of them that have escaped out of the land of babylon: to declare in sion the revenge of the lord our god, the revenge of his temple. declare to many against babylon, to all that bend the bow: stand together against her round about, and let nose escape; pay her according to her work: according to all that she hath done, do ye to her: for she hath lifted up herself against the lord, against the holy one of israel. therefore shall her young men fall in her streets: and all her men of war shall hold their peace in that day, saith the lord. behold i come against thee, o proud one, saith the lord the god of hosts: for thy day is come, the time of thy visitation. and the proud one shall fall, he shall fall down, and there shall be none to lift him up: and i will kindle a fire in his cities, and it shall devour all round about him. thus saith the lord of hosts: the children of israel, and the children of juda are oppressed together: all that have taken them captives, hold them fast, they will not let them go. their redeemer is strong, the lord of hosts is his name: he will defend their cause in judgment, to terrify the land, and to disquiet the inhabitants of babylon. a sword is upon the chaldeans, saith the lord, and upon the inhabitants of babylon, and upon her princes, and upon her wise men. a sword upon her diviners, and they shall be foolish: a sword upon her valiant ones, and they shall be dismayed. a sword upon their horses, and upon their chariots, and upon all the people that are in the midst of her: and they shall become as women: a sword upon her treasures, and they shall be made a spoil. a drought upon her waters, and they shall be dried up: because it is a land of idols, and they glory in monstrous things. therefore shall dragons dwell there with the fig fauns: and ostriches shall dwell therein, and it shall be no more inhabited for ever, neither shall it be built up from generation to generation. as the lord overthrew sodom and gomorrha, and their neighbour cities, saith the lord: no man shall dwell there, neither shall the son of man inhabit it. behold a people cometh from the north, and a great nation, and many kings shall rise from the ends of the earth. they shall take the bow and the shield: they are cruel and unmerciful: their voice shall roar like the sea, and they shall ride upon horses: like a man prepared for battle against thee, o daughter of babylon. the king of babylon hath heard the report of them, and his hands are grown feeble: anguish hath taken hold of him, pangs as a woman in labour. behold he shall come up like a lion from the swelling of the jordan to the strong and beautiful: for i will make him run suddenly upon her: and who shall be the chosen one whom i may appoint over her? for who is like to me? and who shall bear up against me? and who is that shepherd that can withstand my countenance? therefore hear ye the counsel of the lord, which he hath taken against babylon: and his thoughts which he hath thought against the land of the chaldeans: surely the little ones of the flocks shall pull them down, of a truth their habitation shall be destroyed with them. at the noise of the taking of babylon the earth is moved, and the cry is heard amongst the nations.

thus saith the lord: behold i will raise up as it were a pestilential wind against babylon and against the inhabitants thereof, who have lifted up their heart against me. and i will send to babylon fanners, and they shall fan her, and shall destroy her land: for they are come upon her on every side in the day of her affliction. let not him that bendeth, bend his bow, and let not, him go up that is armed with a coat of mail: spare not her young men, destroy all her army. and the slain shall fall in the land of the chaldeans, and the wounded in the regions thereof. for israel and juda have not been forsaken by their god the lord of hosts: but their land hath been filled with sin against the holy one of israel. flee ye from the midst of babylon, and let every one save his own life: be not silent upon her iniquity: for it is the time of revenge from the lord, he will i render unto her what she hath deserved. babylon hath been a golden cup in the hand of the lord, that made all the earth drunk: the nations have drunk of her wine, and therefore they have staggered. babylon is suddenly fallen, and destroyed: howl for her, take balm for her pain, if so she may be healed. we would have cured babylon, but she is not healed: let us forsake her, and let us go every man to his own land: because her judgment hath reached even to the heavens, and is lifted up to the clouds. the lord hath brought forth our justices: come, and let us declare in sion the work of the lord our god. sharpen the arrows, fill the quivers, the lord hath raised up the spirit of the kings of the medes: and his mind is against babylon to destroy it, because it is the vengeance of the lord, the vengeance of his temple. upon the walls of babylon set up the standard, strengthen the watch: set up the watchmen, prepare the ambushes: for the lord hath both purposed, and done all that he spoke against the inhabitants of babylon. o thou that dwellest upon many waters, rich in treasures, thy end is come for thy entire destruction. the lord of hosts hath sworn by himself, saying: i will fill thee with men as with locusts, and they shall lift up a joyful shout against thee. he that made the earth by his power, that hath prepared the world by his wisdom, and stretched out the heavens by his understanding. when he uttereth his voice the waters are multiplied in heaven: he lifeth up the clouds from the ends of the earth, he hath turned lightning into rain: and hath brought forth the wind out of his treasures. every man is become foolish by his knowledge: every founder is confounded by his idol, for what he hath cast is a lie, and there is no breath in them. they are vain works, and worthy to be laughed at, in the time of their visitation they shall perish. the portion of jacob is not like them: for he that made all things he it is, and israel is the sceptre of his inheritance: the lord of hosts is his name. thou dashest together for me the weapons of war, and with thee i will dash nations together, and with thee i will destroy kingdoms: and with thee i will break in pieces the horse, and his rider, and with thee i will break in pieces the chariot, and him that getteth up into it: and with thee i will break in pieces man and woman, and with thee i will break in pieces the old man and the child, and with thee i will break in pieces the young man and the virgin: and with thee i will break in pieces the shepherd and his dock, and with thee i will break in pieces the husbandman and his yoke of oxen, and with thee i will break in pieces captains and rulers. and i will render to babylon, and to all the inhabitants of chaldea all their evil, that they have done in sion, before your eyes, saith the lord. behold i come against thee, thou destroying mountain, saith the lord, which corruptest the whole earth: and i will stretch out my hand upon thee, and will roll thee down from the rocks, and will make thee a burnt mountain. and they shall not take of thee a stone for the corner, nor a stone for foundations, but thou shalt be destroyed for ever, saith the lord. set ye up a standard in the land: sound with the trumpet among the nations: prepare the nations against her: call together against her the kings of ararat, menni, and ascenez: number taphsar against her, bring the horse as the stinging locust. prepare the nations against her, the kings of media, their captains, and all their rulers, and all the land of their dominion. and the land shall be in a commotion, and shall be troubled: for the design of the lord against babylon shall awake, to make the land of babylon desert and uninhabitable. the valiant men of babylon have forborne to fight, they have dwelt in holds: their strength hath failed, and they are become as women: her dwelling places are burnt, her bars are broken. one running post shall meet another, and messenger shall meet messenger: to tell the king of babylon that his city is taken from one end to the other: and that the fords are taken, and the marshes are burnt with fire, and the men of war are affrighted. for thus saith the lord of hosts the god of israel: the daughter of babylon is like a thrashingfloor, this is the time of her thrashing: yet a little while, and the time of her harvest shall come. nabuchodonosor king of babylon hath eaten me up, he hath devoured me: he hath made me as an empty vessel: he hath swallowed me up like a dragon, he hath filled his belly with my delicate meats, and he hath cast me out. the wrong done to me, and my flesh be upon babylon, saith the habitation of sion: and my blood upon the inhabitants of chaldea, saith jerusalem. therefore thus saith the lord: behold i will judge thy cause, and will take vengeance for thee, and i will make her sea desolate, and will dry up her spring. and babylon shall be reduced to heaps, a dwelling place for dragons, an astonishment and a hissing, because there is no inhabitant. they shall roar together like lions, they shall shake their manes like young lions. in their heat i will set them drink: and i will make them drunk, that they may slumber, and sleep an everlasting sleep, and awake no more, saith the lord. i will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, and like rams with kids. how is sesach taken, and the renowned one of all the earth surprised? how is babylon become an astonishment among the nations? the sea is come up over babylon: she is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof. her cities are become an astonishment, a land uninhabited and desolate, a land wherein none can dwell, nor son of man pass through it. and i will visit against bel in babylon, and i will bring forth out of his mouth that which he had swallowed down: and the rations shall no more flow together to him, for the wall also of babylon shall fall. go out of the midst of her, my people: that every man may save his life from the fierce wrath of the lord. and lest your hearts faint, and ye fear for the rumour that shall be heard in the land: and a rumour shall come in one year, and after this year another rumour: and iniquity in the land, and ruler upon ruler. therefore behold the days come, and i will visit the idols of babylon: and her whole land shall be confounded, and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her. and the heavens and the earth, and all things that are in them shall give praise for babylon: for spoilers shall come to her from the north, saith the lord. and as babylon caused that there should fall slain in israel: so of babylon there shall fall slain in all the earth. you that have escaped the sword, come away, stand not still: remember the lord afar off, and let jerusalem come into your mind. we are confounded, because we have heard reproach: shame hath covered our faces: because strangers are come upon the sanctuaries of the house of the lord. therefore behold the days come, saith the lord, and i will visit her graven things, and in all her land the wounded shall groan: if babylon should mount up to heaven, and establish her strength on high: from me there should come spoilers upon her, saith the lord. the noise of a cry from babylon, and great destruction from the land of the chaldeans: because the lord hath laid babylon waste, and destroyed out of her the great voice: and their wave shall roar like many waters: their voice hath made a noise: because the spoiler is come upon her, that is, upon babylon, and her valiant men are taken, and their bow is weakened, because the lord, who is a strong revenger, will surely repay. and i will make her princes drunk. and her wise men, and her captains, and her rulers, and her valiant men: and they shall sleep an everlasting sleep, and shall awake no more, saith the whose name is lord of hosts. thus saith the lord of hosts: that broad wall of babylon shall be utterly broken down, and her high gates shall be burnt with fire, and the labours of the people shall come to nothing, and of the nations shall go to the fire, and shall perish. the word that jeremias the prophet commanded saraiahs the son of nerias, the son of maasias, when he went with king sedecias to babylon, in the fourth year of his reign: now saraiahs was chief over the prophecy. and jeremias wrote in one book all the evil that was to come upon babylon: all these words that are written against babylon. and jeremias said to saraiahs: when thou shalt come into babylon, and shalt see, and shalt read all these words, thou shalt say: o lord, thou hast spoken against this place to destroy it: so that there should be neither man nor beast to dwell therein, and that it should be desolate for ever. and when thou shalt have made an end of reading this book, thou shalt tie a stone to it, and shalt throw it into the midst of the euphrates: and thou shalt say: thus shall babylon sink, and she shall not rise up from the affliction that i will bring upon her, and she shall be utterly destroyed. thus far are the words of jeremias.

sedecias was one and twenty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned eleven years in jerusalem: and the name of his mother was amital, the daughter of jerernias of lobna. and he did that which was evil in the eyes of the lord, according to all that joakim had done. for the wrath of the lord was against jerusalem, and against juda, till he cast t hem out from his presence: and sedecias revolted from the king of babylon. and it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, that nabuchodonosor the king of babylon came, he and all his army, against jerusalem, and they besieged it, and built forts against it round about. and the city was besieged until the eleventh year of king sedecias. and in the fourth month, the ninth day of the month, a famine overpowered the city: and there was no food for the people of the land. and the city was broken up, and the men of war fled, and went out of the city in the night by the way of the gate that is between the two walls, and leadeth to the king's garden, (the chaldeans besieging the city round about,) sad they went by the way that leadeth to the wilderness. but the army of the chaldeans pursued after the king: and they overtook sedecias in the desert which is near jericho: and all his companions were scattered from him. and when they had taken the king, they carried him to the king of babylon to reblatha, which is in the land of emath: and he gave judgment upon him. and the king of babylon slew the sons of sedecias before his eyes: and he slew all the princes of juda in reblatha. and he put out the eyes of sedecias, and bound him with fetters, and the king of babylon brought him into babylon, and he put him in prison till the day of his death. and in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month, the same is the nineteenth year of nabuchodonosor, king of babylon, came nabuzardan the general of the army, who stood before the king of babylon in jerusalem. and he burnt the house of the lord, and the king's house, and all the houses of jerusalem, and every great house he burnt with fire. and all the army of the chaldeans that were with the general broke down all the wall of jerusalem round about. but nabuzardan the general carried away captives some of the poor people, and of the rest of the common sort who remained in the city, and of the fugitives that were fled over to the king of babylon, and the rest of the multitude. but of the poor of the land, nabuzardan the general left some for vinedressers, and for husbandmen. the chaldeans also broke in pieces the brazen pillars that were in the house of the lord, and the bases, and the sea of brass that was in the house of the lord: and they carried all the brass of them to babylon. and they took the caldrons, and the fleshhooks, and the psalteries, and the bowls, and the little mortars, and all the brazen vessels that had been used in the ministry: and the general took away the pitchers, and the censers, and the pots, and the basins, and the candlesticks, and the mortars, and the cups: as many as were of gold, in gold: and as many as were of silver, in silver: and the two pillars, and one sea, and twelve oxen of brass that were under the bases, which king solomon had made in the house of the lord: there was no weight of the brass of all these vessels. and concerning the pillars, one pillar was eighteen cubits high: and a cord of twelve cubits compassed it about: but the thickness thereof was four fingers, and it was hollow within. and chapters of brass were upon both: and the height of one chapter was five cubits: and network, and pomegranates were upon the chapters round about, all of brass. the same of the second pillar, and the pomegranates. and there were ninety-six pomegranates hanging down: and the pomegranates being a hundred in all, were compassed with network. and the general took saraia the chief priest, and sophonias the second priest, and the three keepers of the entry. he also took out of the city one eunuch that was chief over the men of war: and seven men of them that were near the king's person, that were found in the city: and a scribe, an officer of the army who exercised the young soldiers: and threescore men of the people of the land, that were found in the midst of the city. and nabuzardan the general took them, and brought them to the king of babylon, to reblatha. and the king of babylon struck them, and put them to death in reblatha, in the land of emath: and juda was carried away captive out of his land. this is the people whom nabuchodonosor carried away captive : in the seventh year, three thousand and twenty-three jews. in the eighteenth year of nabuchodonosor, eight hundred and thirty-two souls from jerusalem. in the three and twentieth year of nabuchodonosor, nabuzardan the general carried away of the jews seven hundred and forty-five souls. so all the souls were four thousand six hundred. and it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of joachin king of juda, in the twelfth month, the five and twentieth day of the month, that evilmerodach king of babylon, in the first year of his reign, lifted up the head of joachin king of juda, and brought him forth out of prison. and he spoke kindly to him, and he set his throne above the thrones of the kings that were with him in babylon. and he changed his prison garments, and he ate bread before him always all the days of his life. and for his diet a continual provision was allowed him by the king of babylon, every day a portion, until the day of his death, all the days of his life.

now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, when i was in the midst of the captives by the river chobar, the heavens were opened, and i saw the visions of god. on the fifth day of the month, the same was the fifth year of the captivity of king joachim, the word of the lord came to ezechiel the priest the son of bud in the land of the chaldeans, by the river chobar: and the hand of the lord was there upon him. and i saw, and behold a whirlwind came out of the north: and a great cloud, and a fire infolding it, and brightness was about it: and out of the midst thereof, that is, out of the midst of the fire, as it were the resemblance of amber: and in the midst thereof the likeness of four living creatures: and this was their appearance: there was the likeness of a man in them. every one had four faces, and every one four wings. their feet were straight feet, and the sole of their foot was like the sole of a calf's foot, and they sparkled like the appearance of glowing brass. and they had the hands of a man under their wings on their four sides: and they had faces, and wings on the four sides, and the wings of one were joined to the wings of another. they turned not when they went: but every one went straight forward. and as for the likeness of their faces: there was the face of a man, and the face of a lion on the right side of all the four: and the face of an ox, on the left side of all the four: and the face of an eagle over all the four. and their faces, and their wings were stretched upward: two wings of every one were joined, and two covered their bodies: and every one of them went straight forward: whither the impulse of the spirit was to go, thither they went: and they turned not when they went. and as for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like that of burning coals of fire, and like the appearance of lamps. this was the vision running to and fro in the midst of the living creatures, a bright fire, and lightning going forth from the fire. and the living creatures ran and returned like flashes of lightning. now as i beheld the living creatures, there appeared upon the earth by the living creatures one wheel with four faces. and the appearance of the wheels, and the work of them was like the appearance of the sea: and the four had all one likeness: and their appearance and their work was as it were a wheel in the midst of a wheel. when they went, they went by their four parts: and they turned not when they went. the wheels had also a size, and a height, and a dreadful appearance: and the whole body was full of eyes round about all the four. and when the living creatures went, the wheels also went together by them: and when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels also were lifted up with them. whithersoever the spirit went, thither as the spirit went the wheels also were lifted up withal, and followed it: for the spirit of life was in the wheels. when those went these went, and when those stood these stood, and when those were lifted up from the earth, the wheels also were lifted up together, and followed them: for the spirit of life was in the wheels. and over the heads of the living creatures was the likeness of the firmament, as the appearance of crystal terrible to behold, and stretched out over their heads above. and under the firmament were their wings straight, the one toward the other, every one with two wings covered his body, and the other was covered in like manner. and i heard the noise of their wings, like the noise of many waters, as it were the voice of the most high god: when they walked, it was like the voice of a multitude, like the noise of an army, and when they stood, their wings were let down. for when a voice came from above the firmament, that was over their heads, they stood, and let down their wings. and above the firmament that was over their heads, was the likeness of a throne, as the appearance of the sapphire stone, and upon the likeness of the throne, was a likeness as of the appearance of a man above upon it. and i saw as it were the resemblance of amber as the appearance of fire within it round about: from his loins and upward, and from his loins downward, i saw as it were the resemblance of fire shining round about. as the appearance of the rainbow when it is in a cloud on a rainy day: this was the appearance of the brightness round about.

this was the vision of the likeness of the glory of the lord. and i saw, and i fell upon my face, and i heard the voice of one that spoke. and he said to me: son of man, stand upon thy feet, and i will speak to thee. and the spirit entered into me after that he spoke to me, and he set me upon my feet: and i heard him speaking to me, and saying: son of man, i send thee to the children of israel, to a rebellious people, that hath revolted from me, they, and their fathers, have transgressed my covenant even unto this day. and they to whom i send thee are children of a hard face, and of an obstinate heart: and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord god: if so be they at least will hear, and if so be they will forbear, for they are a provoking house: and they shall know that there hath been a prophet in the midst of them. and thou, o son of man, fear not, neither be thou afraid of their words: for thou art among unbelievers and destroyers, and thou dwellest with scorpions. fear not their words, neither be thou dismayed at their looks: for they are a provoking house. and thou shalt speak my words to them, if perhaps they will hear, and forbear: for they provoke me to anger. but thou, o son of man, hear all that i say to thee: and do not thou provoke me, as that house provoketh me: open thy mouth, and eat what i give thee. and i looked, and behold, a hand was sent to me, wherein was a book rolled up: and he spread it before me, and it was written within and without: and there were written in it lamentations, and canticles, and woe.

and he said to me: son of man, eat all that thou shalt find: eat this book, and go speak to the children of israel. and i opened my mouth, and he caused me to eat that book : and he said to me: son of man, thy belly shall eat, and thy bowels shall be filled with this book, which i give thee. and i did eat it: and it was sweet as honey in my mouth. and he said to me: son of man, go to the house of israel, and thou shalt speak my words to them. for thou art not sent to a people of a profound speech, and of an unknown tongue, but to the house of israel: nor to many nations of a strange speech, and of an unknown tongue, whose words thou canst not understand: and if thou wert sent to them, they would hearken to thee. but the house of israel will not hearken to thee: because they will not hearken to me: for all the house of israel are of a hard forehead and an obstinate heart. behold i have made thy face stronger than their faces: and thy forehead harder than their foreheads. i have made thy face like an adamant and like flint: fear them not, neither be thou dismayed at their presence: for they are a provoking house. and he said to me: son of man, receive in thy heart, and hear with thy ears, all the words that i speak to thee: and go get thee in to them of the captivity, to the children of thy people, and thou shalt speak to them, and shalt say to them: thus saith the lord: if so be they will hear and will forbear. and the spirit took me up, and i heard behind me the voice of a great commotion, saying: blessed be the glory of the lord, from his place. and the noise of the wings of the living creatures striking one against another, and the noise of the wheels following the living creatures, and the noise of a great commotion. the spirit also lifted me, and took me up: and i went away in bitterness in the indignation of my spirit: for the hand of the lord was with me, strengthening me. and i came to them of the captivity, to the heap of new corn, to them that dwelt by the river chobar, and i sat where they sat: and i remained there seven days mourning in the midst of them. and at the end of seven days the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, i have made thee a watchman to the house of israel: and thou shalt hear the word out of my mouth, and shalt tell it them from me. if, when i say to the wicked, thou shalt surely die: thou declare it not to him, nor speak to him, that he may be converted from his wicked way, and live: the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but i will require his blood at thy hand. but if thou give warning to the wicked, and he be not converted from his wickedness, and from his evil way: he indeed shall die in his iniquity, but thou hast delivered thy soul. moreover if the just man shall turn away from his justice, and shall commit iniquity: i will lay a stumblingblock before him, he shall die, because thou hast not given him warning: he shall die in his sin, and his justices which he hath done, shall not be remembered: but i will require his blood at thy hand. but if thou warn the just man, that the just may not sin, and he doth not sin: living he shall live, because thou hast warned him, and thou hast delivered thy soul. and the hand of the lord was upon me, and he said to me: rise and go forth into the plain, and there i will speak to thee. and i rose up, and went forth into the plain: and behold the glory of the lord stood there, like the glory which i saw by the river chobar: and i fell upon my face. and the spirit entered into me, and set me upon my feet: and he spoke to me, and said to me: go in; and shut thyself up in the midst of thy house. and thou, o son of man, behold they shall put bands upon thee, and they shall bind thee with them: and thou shalt not go forth from the midst of them. and i will make thy tongue stick fast to the roof of thy mouth, and thou shalt be dumb, and not as a man that reproveth: because they are a provoking house. but when i shall speak to thee, i will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord god: he that heareth, let him hear: and he that forbeareth, let him forbear: for they are a provoking house.

and thou, o son of man, take thee a tile, and lay it before thee: and draw upon it the plan of the city of jerusalem. and lay siege against it, and build forts, and cast up a mount, and set a camp against it, and place battering rams round about it. and take unto thee an iron pan, and set it for a wall of iron between thee and the city: and set thy face resolutely against it, and it shall be besieged, and thou shalt lay siege against it: it is a sign to the house of israel. and thou shalt sleep upon thy left side, and shalt lay the iniquities of the house of israel upon it, according to the number of the days that thou shalt sleep upon it, and thou shalt take upon thee their iniquity. and i have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days three hundred and ninety days: and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of israel. and when thou hast accomplished this, thou shalt sleep again upon thy right side, and thou shalt take upon thee the iniquity of the house of juda forty days: a day for it year, yea, a day for a year i have appointed to thee. and thou shalt turn thy face to the siege of jerusalem, and thy arm shall be stretched out: and thou shalt prophesy against it. behold i have encompassed thee with bands: and thou shalt not turn thyself from one side to the other, till thou hast ended the days of thy siege. and take to thee wheat and barley, and beans, and lentils, and millet, and fitches, and put them in one vessel, and make thee bread thereof according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon thy side: three hundred and ninety days shalt thou eat thereof. and thy meat that thou shalt eat, shall be in weight twenty staters a day: from time to time thou shalt eat it. and thou shalt drink water by measure, the sixth part of a hin: from time to time thou shalt drink it, and thou shalt eat it as barley bread baked under the ashes: and thou shalt cover it, in their sight, with the dung that cometh out of a man. and the lord said: so shall the children of israel beat their bread all filthy among the nations whither i will cast them out. and i said: ah, ah, ah, o lord god, behold my soul hath not been defiled, and from my infancy even till now, i have not eaten any thing that died of itself, or was torn by beasts, and no unclean flesh hath entered into my mouth. and he said to me: behold i have given thee neat's dung for man's dung, and thou shalt make thy bread therewith. and he said to me: son of man: behold, i will break in pieces the staff of bread in jerusalem: and they shall eat bread by weight, and with care: and they shall drink water by measure, and in distress. so that when bread and water fail, every man may fall against his brother, and they may pine away in their iniquities.

and thou, son of man, take thee a sharp knife that shaveth the hair: and cause it to pass over thy head, and over thy beard: and take thee a balance to weigh in, and divide the hair. a third part thou shalt burn with fire in the midst of the city, according to the fulfilling of the days of the siege: and thou shalt take a third part, and cut it in pieces with the knife all round about: and the other third part thou shalt scatter in the wind, and i will draw out the sword after them. and thou shalt take thereof a small number: and shalt bind them in the skirt of thy cloak. and thou shalt take of them again, and shalt cast them in the midst of the fire, and shalt burn them with fire: and out of it shall come forth a fire into all the house of israel. thus saith the lord god: this is jerusalem, i have set her in the midst of the nations, and the countries round about her. and she hath despised my judgments, so as to be more wicked than the gentiles; and my commandments, more than the countries that are round about her: for they have cast off my judgments, and have not walked in my commandments. therefore thus saith the lord god: because you have surpassed the gentiles that are round about you, and have not walked in my commandments, and have not kept my judgments, and have not done according to the judgments of the nations that are round about you: therefore thus saith the lord god: behold i come against thee, and i myself will execute judgments in the midst of thee in the sight of the gentiles. and i will do in thee that which i have not done: and the like to which i will do no more, because of all thy abominations. therefore the fathers shall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers: and i will execute judgments in thee, and i will scatter thy whole remnant into every wind. therefore as i live, saith the lord god: because thou hast violated my sanctuary with all thy offences, and with all thy abominations: i will also break thee in pieces, and my eye shall not spare, and i will not have any pity. a third part of thee shall die with the pestilence, and shall be consumed with famine in the midst of thee: and a third part of thee shall fall by the sword round about thee: and a third part of thee will i scatter into every wind, and i will draw out a sword after them. and i will accomplish my fury, and will cause my indignation to rest upon them, and i will be comforted: and they shall know that i the lord have spoken it in my zeal, when i shall have accomplished my indignation in them. and i will make thee desolate, and a reproach among the nations that are round about thee, in the sight of every one that passeth by. and thou shalt be a reproach, and a scoff, an example, and an astonishment amongst the nations that are round about thee, when i shall have executed judgments in thee in anger, and in indignation, and in wrathful rebukes. i the lord have spoken it: when i shall send upon them the grievous arrows of famine, which shall bring death, and which i will send to destroy you: and i will gather together famine against you: and i will break among you the staff of bread. and i will send in upon you famine, and evil beasts unto utter destruction: and pestilence, and blood shall pass through thee, and i will bring in the sword upon thee. i the lord have spoken it.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, set thy face towards the mountains of israel, and prophesy against them. and say: ye mountains of israel, hear the word of the lord god: thus faith the lord god to the mountains, and to the hills, and to the rocks, and the valleys: behold, i will bring upon you the sword, and i will destroy your high places. and i will throw down your altars, and your idols shall be broken in pieces: and i will cast down your slain before your idols. and i will lay the dead carcasses of the children of israel before your idols: and i will scatter your bones round about your altars, in all your dwelling places. the cities shall be laid waste, and the high places shall be thrown down, and destroyed, and your altars shall be abolished, and shall be broken in pieces: and your idols shall be no more, and your temples shall be destroyed, and your works shall be defaced. and the slain shall fall in the midst of you: and you shall know that i am the lord. and i will leave in you some that shall escape the sword among the nations, when i shall have scattered you, through the countries. and they that are saved of you shall remember me amongst the nations to which they are carried captives: because i have broken their heart that was faithless, and revolted from me: and their eyes that went a fornicating after their idols: and they shall be displeased with themselves because of the evils which they have committed in all their abominations. and they shall know that i the lord have not spoken in vain that i would do this evil to them. thus saith the lord god: strike with thy hand, and stamp with thy foot, and say: alas, for all the abominations of the evils of the house of israel: for they shall fall by the sword, by the famine and by the pestilence. he that is far off shall die of the pestilence: and he that is near, shall fall by the sword: and he that remaineth, and is besieged, shall die by the famine: and i will accomplish my indignation upon them. and you shall know that i am the lord, when your slain shall be amongst your idols, round about your altars, in every high hill, and on all the tops of mountains, and under every woody tree, and under every thick oak, the place where they burnt sweet smelling frankincense to all their idols. and i will stretch forth my hand upon them: and i will make the land desolate, and abandoned from the desert of deblatha in all their dwelling places: and they shall know that i am the lord.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: and thou son of man, thus saith the lord god to the land of israel: the end is come, the end is come upon the four quarters of the land. now is an end come upon thee, and i will send my wrath upon thee, and i will judge thee according to thy ways: and i will set all thy abominations against thee. and my eye shall not spare thee, and i will shew thee no pity: but i will lay thy ways upon thee, and thy abominations shall be in the midst of thee: and you shall know that i am the lord. thus saith the lord god: one affliction, behold an affliction is come. an end is come, the end is come, it hath awaked against thee: behold it is come. destruction is come upon thee that dwellest in the land: the time is come, the day of slaughter is near, and not of the joy of mountains. now very shortly i will pour out my wrath upon thee, and i will accomplish my anger in thee: and i will judge thee according to thy ways, and i will lay upon thee all thy crimes. and my eye shall not spare, neither will i shew mercy: but i will lay thy ways upon thee, and thy abominations shall be in the midst of thee: and you shall know that i am the lord that strike. behold the day, behold it is come: destruction is gone forth, the rod hath blossomed, pride hath budded. iniquity is risen up into a rod of impiety: nothing of them shall remain, nor of their people, nor of the noise of them: and there shall be no rest among them. the time is come, the day is at hand: let not the buyer rejoice: nor the seller mourn: for wrath is upon all the people thereof. for the seller shall not return to that which he hath sold, although their life be yet among the living. for the vision which regardeth all the multitude thereof, shall not go back: neither shall man be strengthened in the iniquity of his life. blow the trumpet, let all be made ready, yet there is none to go to the battle: for my wrath shall be upon all the people thereof. the sword without: and the pestilence, and the famine within: he that is in the field shall die by the sword: and they that are in the city, shall be devoured by the pestilence, and the famine. and such of them as shall flee shall escape: and they shall be in the mountains like doves of the valleys, all of them trembling, every one for his iniquity. all hands shall be made feeble, and all knees shall run with water. and they shall gird themselves with haircloth, and fear shall cover them, and shame shall be upon every face, and baldness upon all their heads. their silver shall be cast forth, and their gold shall become a dunghill. their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of the lord. they shall not satisfy their soul, and their bellies shall not be filled: because it hath been the stumblingblock of their iniquity. and they have turned the ornament of their jewels into pride, and have made of it the images of their abominations, and idols: therefore i have made it an uncleanness to them. and i will give it into the hands of strangers for spoil, and to the wicked of the earth for a prey, and they shall defile it. and i will turn away my face from them, and they shall violate my secret place: and robbers shall enter into it, and defile it. make a shutting up: for the land is full of the judgment of blood, and the city is full of iniquity. and i will bring the worse of the nations, and they shall possess their houses: and i will make the pride of the mighty to cease, and they shall possess their sanctuary. when distress cometh upon them, they will seek for peace and there shall be none. trouble shall come upon trouble, and rumour upon rumour, and they shall seek a vision of the prophet, and the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients. the king shall mourn, and the prince shall be clothed with sorrow, and the hands of the people of the land shall be troubled. i will do to them according to their way, and will judge them according to their judgments: and they shall know that i am the lord.

and it came to pass in the sixth year, in the sixth month, in the fifth day of the month, as i sat in my house, and the ancients of juda sat before me, that the hand of the lord god fell there upon me. and i saw, and behold a likeness as the appearance of fire: from the appearance of his loins, and downward, fire: and from his loins, and upward, as the appearance of brightness, as the appearance of amber. and the likeness of a hand was put forth and took me by a lock of my head: and the spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heaven, and brought me in the vision of god into jerusalem, near the inner gate, that looked toward the north, where was set the idol of jealousy to provoke to jealousy. and behold the glory of the god of israel was there, according to the vision which i had seen in the plain. and he said to me: son of man, lift up thy eyes towards the way of the north. and i lifted up my eyes towards the way of the north: and behold on the north side of the gate of the altar the idol of jealousy in the very entry. and he said to me: son of man, dost thou see, thinkest thou, what these are doing, the great abominations that the house of israel committeth here, that i should depart far off from my sanctuary? and turn thee yet again and thou shalt see greater abominations. and he brought me in to the door of the court: and i saw, and behold a hole in the wall. and he said to me: son of man, dig in the wall. and when i had digged in the wall, behold a door. and he said to me: go in, and see the wicked abominations which they commit here. and i went in and saw, and behold every form of creeping things, and of living creatures, the abomination, and all the idols of the house of israel, were painted on the wall all round about. and seventy men of the ancients of the house of israel, and jezonias the son of saaphan stood in the midst of them, that stood before the pictures: and every one had a censor in his hand: and a cloud of smoke went up from the incense. and he add to me: surely thou seest. o son of man, what the ancients of the house of israel do in the dark, every one in private in his chamber: for they say: the lord seeth us not, the lord hath forsaken the earth. and he said to me: if thou turn thee again, thou shalt see greater abominations which these commit. and he brought me in by the door of the gate of the lord's house, which looked to the north: and behold women sat there mourning for adonis. and he said to me: surely thou hast seen, o son of man: but turn thee again: and thou shalt see greater abominations than these. and he brought me into the inner court of the house of the lord: and behold at the door of the temple of the lord, between the porch and the altar, were about five and twenty men having their backs towards the temple of the lord, and their faces to the east: and they adored towards the rising of the sun. and he said to me: surely thou hast seen, o son of man: is this a light thing to the house of juda, that they should commit these abominations which they have committed here: because they have filled the land with iniquity, and have turned to provoke me to anger? and behold they put a branch to their nose. therefore i also will deal with them in my wrath: my eye shall not spare them, neither will i shew mercy: and when they shall cry to my ears with a loud voice, i will not hear them.

and he cried in my ears with a loud voice, saying: the visitations of the city are at hand, and every one hath a destroying weapon in his hand. and behold six men came from the way of the upper gate, which looketh to the north: and each one had his weapon of destruction in his hand: and there was one man in the midst of them clothed with linen, with a writer's inkhorn at his reins: and they went in, and stood by the brazen altar. and the glory of the lord of israel went up from the cherub, upon which he was, to the threshold of the house: and he called to the man that was clothed with linen, and had a writer's inkhorn at his loins. and the lord said to him: go through the midst of the city, through the midst of jerusalem: and mark thou upon the foreheads of the men that sigh, and mourn for all the abominations that are committed in the midst thereof. and to the others he said in my hearing: go ye after him through the city, and strike: let not your eyes spare, nor be ye moved with pity. utterly destroy old and young, maidens, children and women: but upon whomsoever you shall see thou, kill him not, and begin ye at my sanctuary. so they began at the ancient men who were before the house. and he said to them: defile the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go ye forth. and they went forth, and slew them that were in the city. and the slaughter being ended i was left: and i fell upon my face, and crying, i said: alas, alas, alas, o lord god, wilt thou then destroy all the remnant of israel, by pouring out thy fury upon jerusalem? and he said to me: the iniquity of the house of israel, and of juda, is exceeding great, and the land is filled with blood, and the city is filled with perverseness: for they have said: the lord hath forsaken the earth, and the lord seeth not. therefore neither shall my eye spare, nor will i have pity: i will requite their way upon their head. and behold the man that was clothed with linen, that had the inkhorn at his back, returned the word, saying: i have done as thou hast commanded me.

and saw and behold in the firmament that was over the heads of the cherubims, there appeared over them as it were the sapphire stone, as the appearance of the likeness of a throne. and he spoke to the man, that was clothed with linen, and said: go in between the wheels that are under the cherubims and fill thy hand with the coals of fire that are between the cherubims, and pour them out upon the city. and he went in, in my sight: and the cherubims stood on the right side of the house, when the man went in, and a cloud filled the inner court. and the glory of the lord was lifted up from above the cherub to the threshold of the house: and the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was filled with the brightness of the glory of the lord. and the sound of the wings of the cherubims was heard even to the outward court as the voice of god almighty speaking. and when he had commanded the man that was clothed with linen, saying: take fire from the midst of the wheels that are between the cherubims: he went in and stood beside the wheel, and one cherub stretched out his arm from the midst of the cherubims to the fire that was between the cherubims: and he took, and put it into the hands of him that was clothed with linen: who took it and went forth. and there appeared in the cherubims the likeness of a man's hand under their wings. and i saw, and behold there were four wheels by the cherubims: one wheel by one cherub, and another wheel by another cherub: and the appearance of the wheels was to the sight like the chrysolite stone: and as to their appearance, all four were alike: as if a wheel were in the midst of a wheel. and when they went, they went by four ways: and they turned not when they went: but to the place whither they first turned, the rest also followed, and did not turn back. and their whole body, and their necks, and their hands, and their wings, and the circles were full of eyes, round about the four wheels. and these wheels he called voluble, in my hearing. and every one had four faces: one face was the face of a cherub, and the second face, the face of a man: and in the third was the face of a lion: and in the fourth the face of an eagle. and the cherubims were lifted up: this is the living creature that i had seen by the river chobar. and when the cherubims went, the wheels also went by them: and when the cherubims lifted up their wings, to mount up from the earth, the wheels stayed not behind, but were by them. when they stood, these stood: and when they were lifted up, these were lifted up: for the spirit of life was in them. and the glory of the lord went forth from the threshold of the temple: and stood over the cherubims. and the cherubims lifting up their wings, were raised from the earth before me: and as they went out, the wheels also followed: and it stood in the entry of the east gate of the house of the lord: and the glory of the god of israel was over them. this is the living creature, which i saw under the god of israel by the river chobar: and i understood that they were cherubims. each one had four faces, and each one had four wings: and the likeness of a man's hand was under their wings. and as to the likeness of their faces, they were the same faces which i had seen by the river chobar, and their looks, and the impulse of every one to go straight forward.

and the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the east gate of the house of the lord, which looketh towards the rising of the sun: and behold in the entry of the gate five and twenty men: and i saw in the midst of them jezonias the son of azur, and pheltias the son of banaias, princes of the people. and he said to me: son of man, these are the men that study iniquity, and frame a wicked counsel in this city, saying: were not houses lately built? this city is the caldron, and we the flesh. therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, thou son of man. and the spirit of the lord fell upon me, and said to me: speak: thus saith the lord: thus have you spoken, o house of israel, for i know the thoughts of your heart. you have killed a great many in this city, and you have filled the streets thereof with the slain. therefore thus saith the lord god: your slain, whom you have laid in the midst thereof, they are the flesh, and this is the caldron: and i will bring you forth out of the midst thereof. you have feared the sword, and i will bring the sword upon you, saith the lord god. and i will cast you out of the midst thereof, and i will deliver you into the hand of the enemies, and i will execute judgments upon you. you shall fall by the sword: i will judge you in the borders of israel, and you shall know that i am the lord. this shall not be as a caldron to you, and you shall not be as flesh in the midst thereof: i will judge you in the borders of israel. and you shall know that i am the lord: because you have not walked in my commandments, and have not done my judgments, but you have done according to the judgments of the nations that; are round about you. and it came to pass, when i prophesied, that pheltias the son of banaias died: and i fell down upon my face, and cried with a loud voice: and said: alas, alas, alas, o lord god: wilt thou make an end of all the remnant of israel? and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, thy brethren, thy brethren, thy kinsmen, and all the house of israel, all they to whom the inhabitants of jerusalem have said: get ye far from the lord, the land is given in possession to us. therefore thus saith the lord god: because i have removed them far off among the gentiles, and because i have scattered them among the countries: i will be to them a little sanctuary in the countries whither they are come. therefore speak to them: thus saith the lord god: i will gather you from among the peoples, and assemble you out of the countries wherein you are scattered, and i will give you the land of israel. and they shall go in thither, and shall take away all the scandals, and all the abominations thereof from thence. and i will give them one heart, and will put a new spirit in their bowels: and i will take away the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them a heart of flesh: that they may walk in my commandments, and keep my judgments, and do them: and that they may be my people, and i may be their god. but as for them whose heart walketh after their scandals and abominations, i will lay their way upon their head, saith the lord god. and the cherubims lifted up their wings, and the wheels with them: and the glory of the god of israel was over them. and the glory of the lord went up from the midst of the city, and stood over the mount that is on the east side of the city. and the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into chaldaea, to them of the captivity, in vision, by the spirit of god: and the vision which i had seen was taken up from me. and i spoke to them of the captivity all the words of the lord, which he had shewn me.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, thou dwellest in the midst of a provoking house: who have eyes to see, and see not: and ears to hear, and hear not: for they are a provoking house. thou, therefore, o son of man, prepare thee all necessities for removing, and remove by day in their sight: and thou shalt remove out of thy place to another place in their sight, if so be they will regard it: for they are a provoking house. and thou shalt bring forth thy furniture as the furniture of one that is removing by day in their sight: and thou shalt go forth in the evening in their presence, as one goeth forth that removeth his dwelling. dig thee a way through the wall before their eyes: and thou shalt go forth through it. in their sight thou shalt be carried out upon men's shoulders, thou shalt be carried out in the dark: thou shalt cover thy face, and shalt not see the ground: for i have set thee for a sign of things to come to the house of israel. i did therefore as he had commanded me: i brought forth my goods by day, as the goods of one that removeth: and in the evening i digged through the wall with my hand: and i went forth in the dark, and was carried on men's shoulders in their sight. and the word of the lord came to me in the morning, saying: son of man, hath not the house of israel, the provoking house, said to thee: what art thou doing? say to them: thus saith the lord god: this burden concerneth my prince that is in jerusalem, and all the house of israel, that are among them. say: i am a sign of things to come to you: as i have done, so shall it be done to them: they shall be removed from their dwellings, and go into captivity. and the prince that is in the midst of them, shall be carried on shoulders, he shall go forth in the dark: they shall dig through the wall to bring him out: his face shall be covered, that he may not see the ground with his eyes. and i will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my net: and i will bring him into babylon, into the land of the chaldeans, and he shall not see it, and there he shall die. and all that are about him, his guards, and his troops i will scatter into every wind: and i will draw out the sword after them. and they shall know that i am the lord, when i shall have dispersed them among the nations, and scattered them in the countries. and i will leave a few men of them from the sword, and from the famine, and from the pestilence: that they may declare all their wicked deeds among the nations whither they shall go: and they shall know that i am the lord. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, eat thy bread in trouble: and drink thy water in hurry and sorrow. and say to the people of the land: thus saith the lord god to them that dwell in jerusalem in the land of israel: they shall eat their bread in care, and drink their water in desolation: that the land may become desolate from the multitude that is therein, for the iniquity of all that dwell therein. and the cities that are now inhabited shall be laid waste, and the land shall be desolate: and you shall know that i am the lord. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, what is this proverb that you have in the land of israel? saying: the days shall be prolonged, and every vision shall fail. say to them therefore: thus saith the lord god: i will make this proverb to cease, neither shall it be any more a common saying in israel: and tell them that the days are at hand, and the effect of every vision. for there shall be no more any vain visions, nor doubtful divination in the midst of the children of israel. for i the lord will speak: and what word soever i shall speak, it shall come to pass, and shall not be prolonged any more: but in your days, ye provoking house, i will speak the word, and will do it, saith the lord god. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, behold the house of israel, they that say: the vision that this man seeth, is for many days to come: and this men prophesieth of times afar off. therefore say to them: thus saith the lord god: not one word of mine shall be prolonged any more: the word that i shall speak shall be accomplished, saith the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, prophesy thou against the prophets of israel that prophesy: and thou shalt say to them that prophesy out of their own heart: hear ye the word of the lord: thus saith the lord god: woe to the foolish prophets that follow their own spirit, and see nothing. thy prophets, o israel, were like foxes in the deserts. you have not gone up to face the enemy, nor have you set up a wall for the house of israel, to stand in battle in the day of the lord. they see vain things, and they foretell lies, saying: the lord saith: whereas the lord hath not sent them: and they have persisted to confirm what they have said. have you not seen a vain vision and spoken a lying divination: and you say: the lord saith: whereas i have not spoken. therefore thus saith the lord god: because you have spoken vain things, and have seen lies: therefore behold i come against you, saith the lord god. and my hand shall be upon the prophets that see vain things, and that divine lies: they shall not be in the council of my people, nor shall they be written in the writing of the house of israel, neither shall they enter into the land of israel, and you shall know that i am the lord god. because they have deceived my people, saying: peace, and there is no peace: and the people built up a wall, and they daubed it with dirt without straw. say to them that daub without tempering, that it shall fall: for there shall be an overflowing shower, and i will cause great hailstones to fall violently from above, and a stormy wind to throw it down. behold, when the wall is fallen: shall it not be said to you: where is the daubing wherewith you have daubed it? therefore thus saith the lord god: lo, i will cause a stormy wind to break forth in my indignation, and there shall be an overflowing shower in my anger: and great hailstones in my wrath to consume. and i will break down the wall that you have daubed with untempered mortar: and i will make it even with the ground, and the foundation thereof shall be laid bare: and it shall fall, and shall be consumed in the midst thereof: and you shall know that i am the lord. and i will accomplish my wrath upon the wall, and upon them that daub it without tempering the mortar, and i will say to you: the wall is no more, and they that daub it are no more. even the prophets of israel that prophesy to jerusalem, and that see visions of peace for her: and there is no peace, saith the lord god. and thou, son of man, set thy face against the daughters of thy people that prophesy out of their own heart: and do thou prophesy against them, and say: thus saith the lord god: woe to them that sew cushions under every elbow: and make pillows for the heads of persons of every age to catch souls: and when they caught the souls of my people, they gave life to their souls. and they violated me among my people, for a handful of barley, and a piece of bread, to kill souls which should not die, and to save souls alive which should not live, telling lies to my people that believe lies. therefore thus saith the lord god: behold i declare against your cushions, wherewith you catch flying souls: and i will tear them off from your arms: and i will let go the souls that you catch, the souls that should fly. and i will tear your pillows, and will deliver my people out of your hand, neither shall they be any more in your hands to be a prey: and you shall know that i am the lord. because with lies you have made the heart of the just to mourn, whom i have not made sorrowful: and have strengthened the hands of the wicked, that he should not return from his evil way, and live. therefore you shall not see vain things, nor divine divinations any more, and i will deliver my people out of your hand: and you shall know that i am the lord.

and some of the ancients of israel came to me, and sat before me. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, these men have placed their uncleanness in their hearts, and have set up before their face the stumblingblock of their iniquity: and shall i answer when they inquire of me? therefore speak to them, and say to them: thus saith the lord god: man, man of the house of israel that shall place his uncleanness in his heart, and set up the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and shall come to the prophet inquiring of me by him: i the lord will answer him according to the multitude of his uncleanness: that the house of israel may be caught in their own heart, with which they have departed from me through all their idols. therefore say to the house of israel: thus saith the lord god: be converted, and depart from your idols, and turn away your faces from all your abominations. for every man of the house of israel, and every stranger among the proselytes in israel, if he separate himself from me, and place his idols in his heart, and set the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and come to the prophet to inquire of me by him: i the lord will answer him by myself. and i will set my face against that man, and will make him an example, and a proverb, and will cut him off from the midst of my people: and you shall know that i am the lord. and when the prophet shall err, and speak a word: i the lord have deceived that prophet: and i will stretch forth my hand upon him, and will cut him off from the midst of my people israel. and they shall bear their iniquity: according to the iniquity of him that inquireth, so shall the iniquity of the prophet be. that the house of israel may go no more astray from me, nor be polluted with all their transgressions: but may be my people, and i may be their god, saith the lord of hosts. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, when a land shall sin against me, so as to transgress grievously, i will stretch forth my hand upon it, and will break the staff of the bread thereof: and i will send famine upon it, and will destroy man and beast out of it. and if these three men, noe, daniel, and job, shall be in it: they shall deliver their own souls by their justice, saith the lord of hosts. and if i shall bring mischievous beasts also upon the land to waste it, and it be desolate, so that there is none that can pass because of the beasts: if these three men shall be in it, as i live, saith the lord, they shall deliver neither sons nor daughters: but they only shall be delivered, and the land shall be made desolate. or if i bring the sword upon that land, and say to the sword: pass through the land: and i destroy man and beast out of it: and these three men be in the midst thereof: as i live, saith the lord god, they shall deliver neither sons nor daughters, but they themselves alone shall be delivered. or if i also send the pestilence upon that land, and pour out my indignation upon it in blood, to cut off from it man and beast: and noe, and daniel, and job be in the midst thereof: as i live, saith the lord god, they shall deliver neither son nor daughter: but they shall only deliver their own souls by their justice. for thus saith the lord: although i shall send in upon jerusalem my four grievous judgments, the sword, and the famine, and the mischievous beasts, and the pestilence, to destroy out of it man and beast, yet there shall be left in it some that shall be saved, who shall bring away their sons and daughters: behold they shall come among you, and you shall see their way, and their doings: and you shall be comforted concerning the evil that i have brought upon jerusalem, in all things that i have brought upon it. and they shall comfort you, when you shall see their ways, and their doings: and you shall know that i have not done without cause all that i have done in it, saith the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, what shall be made of the wood of the vine, out of all the trees of the woods that are among the trees of the forests? shall wood be taken of it, to do any work, or shall a pin be made of it for any vessel to hang thereon? behold it is cast into the fire for fuel: the fire hath consumed both ends thereof, and the midst thereof is reduced to ashes: shall it be useful for any work? even when it was whole it was not fit for work: how much less, when the fire hath devoured and consumed it, shall any work be made of it? therefore thus saith the lord god: as the vine tree among the trees of the forests which i have given to the fire to be consumed, so will i deliver up the inhabitants of jerusalem. and i will set my face against them: they shall go out from fire, and fire shall consume them: and you shall know that i am the lord, when i shall have set my face against them. and i shall have made their land a wilderness, and desolate, because they have been transgressors, saith the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, make known to jerusalem her abominations. and thou shalt say: thus saith the lord god to jerusalem: thy root, and thy nativity is of the land of chanaan, thy father was an amorrhite, and thy mother a cethite. and when thou wast born, in the day of thy nativity thy navel wits not cut, neither wast thou washed with water for thy health, nor salted with salt, nor swaddled with clouts. no eye had pity on thee to do any of these things for thee, out of compassion to thee: but thou wast cast out upon the face of the earth in the abjection of thy soul, in the day that thou wast born. and passing by thee, i saw that thou wast trodden under foot in thy own blood. and i said to thee when thou wast in thy blood: live: i have said to thee: live in thy blood. i caused thee to multiply as the bud of the field: and thou didst increase and grow great, and advancedst, and camest to woman's ornament: thy breasts were fashioned, and thy hair grew: and thou wast naked, and full of confusion. and i passed by thee, and saw thee: and behold thy time was the time of lovers: and i spread my garment over thee, and covered thy ignominy. and i swore to thee, and i entered into a covenant with thee, saith the lord god: and thou becamest mine. and i washed thee with water, and cleansed away thy blood from thee: and i anointed thee with oil. and i clothed thee with embroidery, and shed thee with violet coloured shoes: and i girded thee about with fine linen, and clothed thee with fine garments. i decked thee also with ornaments, and put bracelets on thy hands, and a chain about thy neck. and i put a jewel upon thy forehead and earrings in thy ears, and a beautiful crown upon thy head. and thou wast adorned with gold, and silver, and wast clothed with fine linen, and embroidered work, and many colours: thou didst eat fine hour, and honey, and oil, and wast made exceeding beautiful: and wast advanced to be a queen. and thy renown went forth among the nations for thy beauty: for thou wast perfect through my beauty, which i had put upon thee, saith the lord god. but trusting in thy beauty, thou playedst the harlot because of thy renown, and thou hast prostituted thyself to every passenger, to be his. and taking of thy garments thou hast made thee high places sewed together on each side: and hast played the harlot upon them, as hath not been done before, nor shall be hereafter. and thou tookest thy beautiful vessels, of my gold, and my silver, which i gave thee, and thou madest thee images of men, and hast committed fornication with them. and thou tookest thy garments of divers colours, and coveredst them: and settest my oil and my sweet incense before them. and my bread which i gave thee, the fine flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith i fed thee, thou hast set before them for a sweet odour; and it was done, saith the lord god. and thou hast taken thy sons, and thy daughters, whom thou hast borne to me: and best sacrificed the same to them to be devoured. is thy fornication small? thou hast sacrificed and given my children to them, consecrating them by fire. and after all thy abominations, and fornications, thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked, and full of confusion, trodden under foot in thy own blood. and it came to pass after all thy wickedness (woe, woe to thee, saith the lord god) that thou didst also build thee a common stew, and madest thee a brothel house in every street. at every head of the way thou hast set up a sign of thy prostitution: and hast made thy beauty to be abominable: and hast prostituted thyself to every one that passed by, and hast multiplied thy fornications. and thou hast committed fornication with the egyptians thy neighbours, men of large bodies, and hast multiplied thy fornications to provoke me. behold, i will stretch out my hand upon thee, and will take away thy justification: and i will deliver thee up to the will of the daughters of the philistines that hate thee, that are ashamed of thy wicked way. thou hast also committed fornication with the assyrians, because thou wast not yet satisfied: and after thou hadst played the harlot with them, even so thou wast not contented. thou hast also multiplied thy fornications in the land of chanaan with the chaldeans: and neither so wast then satisfied. wherein shall i cleanse thy heart, saith the lord god: seeing thou dost all these the works of a shameless prostitute? because thou hast built thy brothel house at the head of every way, and thou hast made thy high place in every street: and wast not as a harlot that by disdain enhanceth her price, but as an adulteress, that bringeth in strangers over her husband. gifts are given to all harlots: but thou hast given hire to all thy lovers, and thou hast given them gifts to come to thee from every side, to commit fornication with thee. and it hath happened in thee contrary to the custom of women in thy fornications, and after thee there shall be no such fornication: for in that thou gavest rewards, and didst not take rewards, the contrary hath been done in thee. therefore, o harlot, hear the word of the lord. thus saith the lord god: because thy money hath been poured out, and thy shame discovered through thy fornications with thy lovers, and with the idols of thy abominations, by the blood of thy children whom thou gavest them: behold, i will gather together all thy lovers with whom thou hast taken pleasure, and all whom thou hast loved, with all whom thou hast hated: and i will gather them together against thee on every side, and will discover thy shame in their sight, and they shall see all thy nakedness. and i will judge thee as adulteresses, and they that shed blood are judged: and i will give thee blood in fury and jealousy. and i will deliver thee into their hands, and they shall destroy thy brothel house, and throw down thy stews: and they shall strip thee of thy garments, and shall take away the vessels of thy beauty: and leave thee naked, and full of disgrace. and they shall bring upon thee a multitude, and they shall stone thee with stones, and shall slay thee with their swords. and they shall burn thy houses with fire, and shall execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women: and thou shalt cease from fornication, and shalt give no hire any more. and my indignation shall rest in thee: and my jealousy shall depart from thee, and i will cease and be angry no more. because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, but hast provoked me in all these things: wherefore i also have turned thy ways upon thy head, saith the lord god, and i have not done according to thy wicked deeds in all thy abominations. behold every one that useth a common proverb, shall use this against thee, saying: as the mother was, so also is her daughter. thou art thy mother's daughter, that cast off her husband, and her children: and thou art the sister of thy sisters, who cast off their husbands, and their children: your mother was a cethite, and your father an amorrhite. and thy elder sister is samaria, she and her daughters that dwell at thy left hand: and thy younger sister that dwelleth at thy right hand is sodom, and her daughters. but neither hast thou walked in their ways, nor hast thou done a little less than they according to their wickednesses: thou hast done almost more wicked things than they in all thy ways as i live, saith the lord god, thy sister sodom herself, and her daughters, have not done as thou hast done, and thy daughters. behold this was the iniquity of sodom thy sister, pride, fulness of bread, and abundance, and the idleness of her, and of her daughters: and they did not put forth their hand to the needy, and to the poor. and they were lifted up, and committed abominations before me: and i took them away as thou hast seen. and samaria committed not half thy sins: but thou hast surpassed them with thy crimes, and hast justified thy sisters by all thy abominations which thou hast done. therefore do thou also bear thy confusion, thou that hast surpassed thy sisters with thy sine, doing more wickedly than they: for they are justified above thee, therefore be thou also confounded, and bear thy shame, thou that hast justified thy sisters. and i will bring back and restore them by bringing back sodom, with her daughters, and by bringing back samaria, and her daughters: and i will bring those that return of thee in the midst of them. that thou mayest bear thy shame, and mayest be confounded in all that thou hast done, comforting them. and thy sister sodom and her daughters shall return to their ancient state: and samaria and her daughters shall return to their ancient state: and thou and thy daughters shall return to your ancient state. and sodom thy sister was not heard of in thy mouth, in the day of thy pride, before thy malice was laid open: as it is at this time, making thee a reproach of the daughters of syria, and of all the daughters of palestine round about thee, that encompass thee on all sides. thou hast borne thy wickedness, and thy disgrace, saith the lord god. for thus saith the lord god: i will deal with thee, as thou hast despised the oath, in breaking the covenant: and i will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth: and i will establish with thee an everlasting covenant. and thou shalt remember thy ways, and be ashamed: when thou shalt receive thy sisters, thy elder and thy younger: and i will give them to thee for daughters, but not by thy covenant. and i will establish my covenant with thee: and thou shalt know that i am the lord, that thou mayest remember, and be confounded, and mayest no more open thy mouth because of thy confusion, when i shall be pacified towards thee for all that thou hast done, saith the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, put forth a riddle, and speak a parable to the house of israel, and say: thus saith the lord god: a large eagle with great wings, long-limbed, full of feathers, and of variety, came to libanus, and took away the marrow of the cedar. he cropped off the top of the twigs thereof: and carried it away into the land of chanaan, and he set it in a city of merchants. and he took of the seed of the land, and put it in the ground for seed, that it might take a firm root over many waters: he planted it on the surface of the earth. and it sprung up and grew into a spreading vine of low stature, and the branches thereof looked towards him: and the roots thereof were under him. so it became a vine, and grew into branches, and shot forth sprigs. and there was another large eagle, with great wings, and many feathers: and behold this vine, bending as it were her roots towards him, stretched forth her branches to him, that he might water it by the furrows of her plantation. it was planted in a good ground upon many waters, that it might bring forth branches, and bear fruit, that it might become a large vine. say thou: thus saith the lord god: shall it prosper then? shall he not pull up the roots thereof, and strip off its fruit, and dry up all the branches it hath shot forth, and make it wither: and this without a strong arm, or many people, to pluck it up by the root? behold, it is planted: shall it prosper then? shall it not be dried up when the burning wind shall touch it, and shall it not wither in the furrows where it grew? and the word of the lord came to me, saying: say to the provoking house: know you not what these things mean? tell them: behold the king of babylon cometh to jerusalem: and he shall take away the king and the princes thereof, and carry them with him to babylon. and he shall take one of the king's seed, and make a covenant with him, and take an oath of him. yea, and he shall take away the mighty men of the land, that it may be a low kingdom and not lift itself up, but keep his covenant, and observe it. but he hath revolted from him and sent ambassadors to egypt, that it might give him horses, and much people. and shall he that hath done thus prosper, or be saved? and shall he escape that hath broken the covenant? as i live, saith the lord god: in the place where the king dwelleth that made him king, whose oath he hath made void, and whose covenant he broke, even in the midst of babylon shall he die. and not with a great army, nor with much people shall pharao fight against him: when he shall cast up mounts, and build forts, to cut off many souls. for he had despised the oath, breaking his covenant, and behold he hath given his hand: and having done all these things, he shall not escape. therefore thus saith the lord god: as i live, i will lay upon his head the oath he hath despised, and the covenant he hath broken. and i will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my net: and i will bring him into babylon, and will judge him there for the transgression by which he hath despised me. and all his fugitives with all his hands shall fall by the sword: and the residue shall be scattered into every wind: and you shall know that i the lord have spoken. thus saith the lord god: i myself will take of the marrow of the high cedar, and will set it: i will crop off a tender twig from the top of the branches thereof, and i will plant it on a mountain high and eminent. on the high mountains of israel will i plant it, and it shall shoot forth into branches, and shall bear fruit, and it shall become a great cedar: and all birds shall dwell under it, and every fowl shall make its nest under the shadow of the branches thereof. and all the trees of the country shall know that i the lord have brought down the high tree, and exalted the low tree: and have dried up the green tree, and have caused the dry tree to flourish. i the lord have spoken and have done it.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: what is the meaning? that you use among you this parable as a proverb in the land of israel, saying: the fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the teeth of the children are set on edge. as i live, saith the lord god, this parable shall be no more to you a proverb in israel. behold all souls are mine: as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that sinneth, the same shall die. and if a man be just, and do judgment and justice, and hath not eaten upon the mountains, nor lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of israel: and hath not defiled his neighbour's wife, nor come near to a menstruous woman: and hath not wronged any man: but hath restored the pledge to the debtor, hath taken nothing away by violence: hath given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment: hath not lent upon usury, nor taken any increase: hath withdrawn his hand from iniquity, and hath executed true judgment between man and man: hath walked in my commandments, and kept my judgments, to do truth: he is just, he shall surely live, saith the lord god. and if he beget a son that is a robber, a shedder of blood, and that hath done some one of these things: though he doth not all these things, but that eateth upon the mountains, and that defileth his neighbour's wife: that grieveth the needy and the poor, that taketh away by violence, that restoreth not the pledge, and that lifteth up his eyes to idols, that committeth abomination: that giveth upon usury, and that taketh an increase: shall such a one live? he shall not live. seeing he hath done all these detestable things, he shall surely die, his blood shall be upon him. but if he beget a son, who, seeing all his father's sines, which he hath done, is afraid, and shall not do the like to them: that hath not eaten upon the mountains, nor lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of israel, and hath not defiled his neighbour's wife: and hath not grieved any man, nor withholden the pledge, nor taken away with violence, but hath given his bread to the hungry, and covered the naked with a garment: that hath turned away his hand from injuring the poor, hath not taken usury and increase, but hath executed my judgments, and hath walked in my commandments: this man shall not die for the iniquity of his father, but living he shall live. as for his father, because he oppressed and offered violence to his brother, and wrought evil in the midst of his people, behold he is dead in his own iniquity. and you say: why hath not the son borne the iniquity of his father? verily, because the son hath wrought judgment and justice, hath kept all my commandments, and done them, living, he shall live. the soul that sinneth, the same shall die: the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, and the father shall not bear the iniquity of the son: the justice of the just shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him. but if the wicked do penance for all his sins which he hath committed, and keep all my commandments, and do judgment, and justice, living he shall live, and shall not die. i will not remember all his iniquities that he hath done: in his justice which he hath wrought, he shall live. is it my will that a sinner should die, saith the lord god, and not that he should be converted from his ways, and live? but if the just man turn himself away from his justice, and do iniquity according to all the abominations which the wicked man useth to work, shall he live? all his justices which he hath done, shall not be remembered: in the prevarication, by which he hath prevaricated, and in his sin, which he hath committed, in them he shall die. and you have said: the way of the lord is not right. hear ye, therefore, o house of israel: is it my way that is not right, and are not rather your ways perverse? for when the just turneth himself away from his justice, and committeth iniquity, he shall die therein: in the injustice that he hath wrought he shall die. and when the wicked turneth himself away from his wickedness, which he hath wrought, and doeth judgment, and justice: he shall save his soul alive. because he considereth and turneth away himself from all his iniquities which he hath wrought, he shall surely live, and not die. and the children of israel say: the way of the lord is not right. are not my ways right, o house of israel, and are not rather your ways perverse? therefore will i judge every man according to his ways, o house of israel, saith the lord god. be converted, and do penance for all your iniquities: and iniquity shall not be your ruin. cast away from you all your transgressions, by which you have transgressed, and make to yourselves a new heart, and a new spirit: and why will you die, o house of israel? for i desire not the death of him that dieth, saith the lord god, return ye and live.

moreover take thou up a lamentation for the princes of israel, and say: why did thy mother the lioness lie down among the lions, and bring up her whelps in the midst of young lions? and she brought out one of her whelps, and he became a lion: and he learned to catch the prey, and to devour men. and the nations heard of him, and took him, but not without receiving wounds: and they brought him in chains into the land of egypt. but she seeing herself weakened, and that her hope was lost, took one of her young lions, and set him up for a lion. and he went up and down among the lions, and became a lion: and he learned to catch the prey, and to devour men. he learned to make widows, and to lay waste their cities: and the land became desolate, and the fulness thereof by the noise of his roaring. and the nations came together against him on every side out of the provinces, and they spread their net over him, in their wounds he was taken. and they put him into a cage, they brought him in chains to the king of babylon: and they cast him into prison, that his voice should no more be heard upon the mountains of israel. thy mother is like a vine in thy blood planted by the water: her fruit and her branches have grown out of many waters. and she hath strong rods to make sceptres for them that bear rule, and her stature was exalted among the branches: and she saw her height in the multitude of her branches. but she was plucked up in wrath, and cast on the ground, and the burning wind dried up her fruit: her strong rods are withered, and dried up: the fire hath devoured her. and now she is transplanted into the desert, in a land not passable, and dry. and a fire is gone out from a rod of her branches, which hath devoured her fruit: so that she now hath no strong rod, to be a sceptre of rulers. this is a lamentation, and it shall be for a lamentation.

and it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month: there came men of the ancients of israel to inquire of the lord, and they sat before me. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, speak to the ancients of israel, and say to them: thus saith the lord god: are you come to inquire of me? as i live, i will not answer you, saith the lord god. if thou judgest them, if thou judgest, son of man, declare to them the abominations of their fathers. and say to them: thus saith the lord god: in the day when i chose israel, and lifted up my hand for the race of the house of jacob: and appeared to them in the land of egypt, and lifted up my hand for them, saying: i am the lord your god: in that day i lifted up my hand for them, to bring them out of the land of egypt, into a land which i had provided for them, flowing with milk and honey, which excel-leth amongst all lands. and i said to them: let every man cast away the scandals of his eyes, and defile not yourselves with the idols of egypt: i am the lord your god. but they provoked me, and would not hearken to me: they did not every man cast away the abomi-nations of his eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of egypt: and i said i would pour out my indignation upon them, and accomplish my wrath against them in the midst of the land of egypt. but i did otherwise for my name's sake, that it might not be violated before the nations, in the midst of whom they were, and among whom i made myself known to them, to bring them out of the land of egypt. therefore i brought them out from the land of egypt, and brought them into the desert. and i gave them my statutes, and i shewed them my judgments, which if a man do, he shall live in them. moreover i gave them also my sabbaths, to be a sign between me and them: and that they might know that i am the lord that sanc-tify them. but the house of israel provoked me in the desert: they walked not in my statutes, and they cast away my judgments, which if a man do he shall live in them: and they grievously violated my sabbaths. i said therefore that i would pour out my indignation upon them in the desert, and would consume them.

but i spared them for the sake of my name, lest it should be profaned before the nations, from which i brought them out, in their sight. so i lifted up my hand over them in the desert, not to bring them into the land which i had given them flowing with milk and honey, the best of all lands. because they cast off my judgments, and walked not in my statutes, and violated my sabbaths: for their heart went after idols.
yet my eye spared them, so that i destroyed them not:
neither did i consume them in the desert. and i said to their children in the wilderness: walk not in the statutes of your fathers, and observe not their judgments, nor be ye defiled with their idols: i am the lord your god: walk ye in my statutes, and observe my judgments, and do them. and sanctify my sabbaths, that they may be a sign between me and you: and that you may know that i am the lord your god. but their children provoked me, they walked not in my commandments, nor observed my judgments to do them:
which if a man do, he shall live in them: and they violated my sabbaths: and i threatened to pour out my indignation upon them, and to accomplish my wrath in them in the desert. but i turned away my hand, and wrought for my name's sake, that it might not be violated before the nations, out of which i brought them forth in their sight. again i lifted up my hand upon them in the wilderness, to disperse them among the nations, and scatter them through the countries:
because they had not done my judgments, and had cast off my statutes, and had violated my sabbaths, and their eyes had been after the idols of their fathers.
therefore i also gave them statutes that were not good, and judgments, in which they shall not live. and i polluted them in their own gifts, when they offered all that opened the womb, for their offences: and they shall know that i am the lord. wherefore speak to the house of israel, o son of man, and say to them:

thus saith the lord god: moreover in this also your fathers blasphemed me, when they had despised and contemned me; and i had brought them into the land, for which i lifted up my hand to give it them: they saw every high hill, and every shady tree, and there they sacrificed their victims: and there they presented the provocation of their offerings, and there they set their sweet odours, and poured forth their libations. and i said to them: what meaneth the high place to which you go? and the name thereof was called high-place even to this day. wherefore say to the house of israel:
thus saith the lord god: verily, you are defiled in the way of your fathers, and you commit fornication with their abominations. and you defile yourselves with all your: idols unto this day, in the offering of your gifts, when you make your children pass through the fire: and shall i answer you, o house of israel? as i live, saith the lord god, i will not answer you. neither shall the thought of your mind come to pass, by which you say: we will be as the gentiles, and as the families of the earth, to worship stocks and stones. as i live, saith the lord god, i will reign over you with a strong hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out. and i will bring you out from the people, and i will gather you out of the countries, in which you are scattered, i will reign over you with a strong hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out. and i will bring you into the wilderness of people, and there will i plead with you face to face. as i pleaded against your fathers in the desert of the land of egypt; even so will i judge you, saith the lord god. and i will make you subject to my sceptre, and will bring you into the bands of the covenant. and i will pick out from among you the transgressors, and the wicked, and will bring them out of the land where they sojourn, and they shall not enter into the land of israel: and you shall know that i am the lord. and as for you, o house of israel: thus saith the lord god:
walk ye every one after your idols, and serve them.
but if in this also you hear me not, but defile my holy name any more with your gifts, and with your idols;
in my holy mountain, in the high mountain of israel, saith the lord god, there shall all the house of israel serve me; all of them i say, in the land in which they shall please me, and there will i require your firstfruits, and the chief of your tithes with all your sanctifications. i will accept of you for an odour of sweetness, when i shall have brought you out from the people, and shall have gathered you out of the lands into which you are scattered, and i will be sanctified in you in the sight of the nations. and you shall know that i am the lord, when i shall have brought you into the land of israel, into the land for which i lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers. and there you shall remember your ways, and all your wicked doings with which you have been defiled; and you shall be displeased with yourselves in your own sight, for all your wicked deeds which you committed. and you shall know that i am the lord, when i shall have done well by you for my own name's sake, and not according to your evil ways, nor according to your wicked deeds, o house of israel, saith the lord god. and the word of the lord came to me, saying : son of man, set thy face against the way of the south, and drop towards the south, and prophesy against the forest of the south field. and any to the south forest: hear the word of the lord: thus saith the lord god: behold i will kindle a fire in thee, and will burn in thee every green tree, and every dry tree: the dame of the fire shall not be quenched: and every face shall be burned in it, from the south even to the north. and all flesh shall see, that i the lord have kindled it, and it shall not be quenched. and i said: ah, ah, ah, o lord god: they say of me: doth not this man speak by parables?

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, set thy face toward jerusalem, and let thy speech flow towards the holy places, and prophesy against the land of israel: and say to the land of israel: thus saith the lord god: behold i come against thee, and i will draw forth my sword out of its sheath, and will cut off in thee the just, and the wicked. and forasmuch as i have cut off in thee the just, and the wicked, therefore shall my sword go forth out of its sheath against all flesh, from the south even to the north. that all flesh may know that i the lord have drawn my sword out of its sheath not to be turned back. and thou, son of man, mourn with the breaking of thy loins, and with bitterness sigh before them. and when they shall say to thee: why mournest thou? thou shalt say: for that which i hear: because it cometh, and every heart shall melt, and all hands shall be made feeble, and every spirit shall faint, and water shall run down every knee: behold it cometh, and it shall be done, saith the lord god. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, prophesy, and say: thus saith the lord god: say: the sword, the sword is sharpened, and furbished. it is sharpened to kill victims: it is furbished that it may glitter: thou removest the sceptre of my son, thou hast cut down every tree. and i have given it to be furbished, that it may be handled: this sword is sharpened, and it is furbished, that it may be in the hand of the slayer. cry, and howl, O son of man, for this sword is upon my people, it is upon all the princes of israel, that are fled: they are delivered up to the sword with my people, strike therefore upon thy thigh, because it is tried: and that when it shall overthrow the sceptre, and it shall not be, saith the lord god. thou therefore, o son of man, prophesy, and strike thy hands together, and let the sword be doubled, and let the sword of the slain be tripled: this is the sword of a great slaughter, that maketh them stand amazed, and languish in heart, and that multiplieth ruins. in all their gates i have set the dread of the sharp sword, the sword that is furbished to glitter, that is made ready for slaughter. be thou sharpened, go to the right hand, or to the left, which way soever thou hast a mind to set thy face. and i will clap my hands together, and will satisfy my indignation: i the lord have spoken. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: and thou son of man, set thee two ways, for the sword of the king of babylon to come: both shall come forth out of one land: and with his hand he shall draw lots, he shall consult at the head of the way of the city. thou shalt make a way that the sword may come to rabbath of the children of ammon, and to juda unto jerusalem the strong city. for the king of babylon stood in the highway, at the head of two ways, seeking divination, shuffling arrows: he inquired of the idols, and consulted entrails. on his right hand was the divination for jerusalem, to set battering rams, to open the mouth in slaughter, to lift up the voice in howling, to set engines against the gates, to cast up a mount, to build forts. and he shall be in their eyes as one consulting the oracle in vain, and imitating the leisure of sabbaths: but he will call to remembrance the iniquity that they may be taken. therefore thus saith the lord god: because you have remembered your iniquity, and have discovered your prevarications, and your sins have appeared in all your devices: because, i say, you have remembered, you shall be taken with the hand. but thou profane wicked prince of israel, whose day is come that hath been appointed in the time of iniquity: thus saith the lord god: remove the diadem, take off the crown: is it not this that hath exalted the low one, and brought down him that was high? i will shew it to be iniquity, iniquity, iniquity: but this was not done till he came to whom judgment belongeth, and i will give it him. and thou son of man, prophesy, and say: thus saith the lord god concerning the children of ammon, and concerning their reproach, and thou shalt say: sword, o sword, come out of the scabbard to kill, be furbished to destroy, and to glitter, whilst they see vain things in thy regard, and they divine lies: to bring thee upon the necks of the wicked that are wounded, whose appointed day is come in the time of iniquity. return into thy sheath. i will judge thee in the place wherein thou wast created, in the land of thy nativity. and i will pour out upon thee my indignation: in the fire of my rage will i blow upon thee, and will give thee into the hands of men that are brutish and contrive thy destruction. thou shalt be fuel for the fire, thy blood shall be in the midst of the land, thou shalt be forgotten: for i the lord have spoken it.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: and thou son of man, dost thou not judge, dost thou not judge the city of blood? and thou shalt shew her all her abominations, and shalt say: thus saith the lord god: this is the city that sheddeth blood in the midst of her, that her time may come: and that hath made idols against herself, to defile herself. thou art become guilty in thy blood which thou hast shed: and thou art defiled in thy idols which thou hast made: and thou hast made thy days to draw near, and hast brought on the time of thy years: therefore have i made thee a reproach to the gentiles, and a mockery to all countries. those that are near, and those that are far from thee, shall triumph over thee: thou filthy one, infamous, great in destruction. behold the princes of israel, every one hath employed his arm in thee to shed blood. they have abused father and mother in thee, they have oppressed the stranger in the midst of thee, they have grieved the fatherless and widow in thee. thou hast despised my sanctuaries, and profaned my sabbaths. slanderers have been in thee to shed blood, and they have eaten upon the mountains in thee, they have committed wickedness in the midst of thee. they have discovered the nakedness of their father in thee, they have humbled the uncleanness of the menstruous woman in thee. and every one hath committed abomination with his neighbour's wife, and the father in law hath wickedly defiled his daughter in law, the brother hath oppressed his sister the daughter of his father in thee. they have taken gifts in thee to shed blood: thou hast taken usury and increase, and hast covetously oppressed thy neighbours: and then hast forgotten me, saith the lord god. behold, i have clapped my hands at thy covetousness, which thou hast exercised and at the blood that hath been shed: in the midst of thee. shall thy heart endure, or shall thy hands prevail ill the days which i will bring upon thee: i the lord have spoken, and will do it. and i will disperse thee in the nations, and will scatter thee among the countries, and i will put an end to thy uncleanness in thee. and i will possess thee in the sight of the gentiles, and thou shalt know that i am the lord. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, the house of israel is become dress to me: all these are brass, and tin, and iron, and lead, in the midst of the furnace: they are become the dress of silver. therefore thus saith the lord god: because you are all turned into dress, therefore behold i will gather you together in the midst of jerusalem. as they gather silver, and brass, and tin, and iron, and lead in the midst of the furnace: that i may kindle a fire in it to melt it: so will i gather you together in my fury and in my wrath, and will take my rest, and i will melt you down. and i will gather you together, and will burn you in the fire of my wrath, and you shall be melted in the midst thereof. as silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall you be in the midst thereof: and you shall know that i am the lord, when i have poured out my indignation upon you. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, say to her: thou art a land that is unclean, and not rained upon in the day of wrath. there is a conspiracy of prophets in the midst thereof: like a lion that roareth and catcheth the prey, they have devoured souls, they have taken riches and hire, they have made many widows in the midst thereof. her priests have despised my law, and have defiled my sanctuaries: they have put no difference between holy and profane: nor have distinguished between the polluted and the clean: and they have turned away their eyes from my sabbaths, and i was profaned in the midst of them. her princes in the midst of her, are like wolves ravening the prey to shed blood, and to destroy souls, and to run after gains through covetousness. and her prophets have daubed them without tempering the mortar, seeing vain things, and divining lies unto them, saying: thus saith the lord god: when the lord hath not spoken. the people of the land have used oppression, and committed robbery: they afflicted the needy and poor, and they oppressed the stranger by calumny without judgment. and i sought among them for a man that might set up a hedge, and stand in the gap before me in favour of the land, that i might not destroy it: and i found none. and i poured out my indignation upon them, in the fire of my wrath i consumed them: i have rendered their way upon their own head, saith the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, there were two women, daughters of one mother. and they committed fornication in egypt, in their youth they committed fornication: there were their breasts pressed down, and the teats of their virginity were bruised. and their names were oolla the elder, and ooliba her younger sister: and i took them, and they bore sons and daughters. now for their names, samaria is oolla, and jerusalem is ooliba. and oolla committed fornication against me, and doted on her lovers, on the assyrians that came to her, who were clothed with blue, princes, and rulers, beautiful youths, all horsemen, mounted upon horses. and she committed her fornications with those chosen men, all sons of the assyrians: and she defiled herself with the uncleanness of all them on whom she doted. moreover also she did not forsake her fornications which she had committed in egypt: for they also lay with her in her youth, and they bruised the breasts of her virginity, and poured out their fornication upon her. therefore have i delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the sons of the assyrians, upon whose lust she doted. they discovered her disgrace, took away her sons and daughters, and slew her with the sword: and they became infamous women, and they executed judgments in her. and when her sister ooliba saw this, she was mad with lust more than she: and she carried her fornication beyond the fornication of her sister. impudently prostituting herself to the children of the assyrians, the princes, and rulers that came to her, clothed with divers colours, to the horsemen that rode upon horses, and to young men all of great beauty. and i saw that she was defiled, and that they both took one way. and she increased her fornications: and when she had seen men painted on the wall, the images of the chaldeans set forth in colours, and girded with girdles about their reins, and with dyed turbans on their heads, the resemblance of all the captains, the likeness of the sons of babylon, and of the land of the chaldeans wherein they were born, she doted upon them with the lust of her eyes, and she sent messengers to them into chaldaea. and when the sons of babylon were come to her to the bed of love, they defiled her with their fornications, and she was polluted by them, and her soul was glutted with them. and she discovered her fornications, and discovered her disgrace: and my soul was alienated from her, as my soul was alienated from her sister. for she multiplied her fornications, remembering the days of her youth, in which she played the harlot in the land of egypt. and she was mad with lust after lying with them whose flesh is as the flesh of asses: and whose issue as the issue of horses. and thou hast renewed the wickedness of thy youth, when thy breasts were pressed in egypt, and the papa of thy virginity broken. therefore, ooliba, thus saith the lord god: behold i will raise up against thee all thy lovers with whom thy soul hath been glutted: and i will gather them together against thee round about. the children of babylon, and all the chaldeans, the nobles, and the kings, and princes, all the sons of the assyrians, beautiful young men, all the captains, and rulers, the princes of princes, and the renowned horsemen. and they shall come upon thee well appointed with chariot and wheel, a multitude of people: they shall be armed against thee on every side with breastplate, and buckler, and helmet: and i will set judgment before them, and they shall judge thee by their judgments. and i will set my jealousy against thee, which they shall execute upon thee with fury: they shall cut off thy nose and thy ears: and what remains shall fall by the sword: they shall take thy sons, and thy daughters, and thy residue shall be devoured by fire. and they shall strip thee of thy garments, and take away the instruments of thy glory. and i will put an end to thy wickedness in thee, and thy fornication brought out of the land of egypt: neither shalt thou lift up thy eyes to them, nor remember egypt any more. for thus saith the lord god: behold, i will deliver thee into the hands of them whom thou hatest, into their hands with whom thy soul hath been glutted. and they shall deal with thee in hatred, and they shall take away all thy labours, and shall let thee go naked, and full of disgrace, and the disgrace of thy fornication shall be discovered, thy wickedness, and thy fornications. they have done these things to thee, because thou hast played the harlot with the nations among which thou wast defiled with their idols. thou hast walked in the way of thy sister, and i will give her cup into thy hand. thus saith the lord god: thou shalt drink thy sister's cup, deep, and wide: thou shalt be had in derision and scorn, which containeth very much. thou shalt be filled with drunkenness, and sorrow: with the cup of grief, and sadness, with the cup of thy sister samaria. and thou shalt drink it, and shalt drink it up even to the dregs, and thou shalt devour the fragments thereof, thou shalt rend thy breasts: because i have spoken it, saith the lord god. therefore thus saith the lord god: because thou hast forgotten me, and hast cast me off behind thy back, bear thou also thy wickedness, and thy fornications. and the lord spoke to me, saying: son of man, dost thou judge oolla, and ooliba, and dost thou declare to them their wicked deeds? because they have committed adultery, and blood is in their hands, and they have committed fornication with their idols: moreover also their children, whom they bore to me, they have offered to them to be devoured. yea, and they have done this to me. they polluted my sanctuary on the same day, and profaned my sabbaths. and when they sacrificed their children to their idols, and went into my sanctuary the same day to profane it: they did these things even in the midst of my house. they sent for men coming from afar, to whom they had sent a messenger: and behold they came: for whom thou didst wash thyself, and didst paint thy eyes, and wast adorned with women's ornaments. thou satest on a very fine bed, and a table was decked before thee: whereupon thou didst set my incense, and my ointment. and there was in her the voice of a multitude rejoicing: and to some that were brought of the multitude of men, and that came from the desert, they put bracelets on their hands, and beautiful crowns on their heads. and i said to her that was worn out in her adulteries: now will this woman still continue in her fornication. and they went in to her, as to a harlot: so went they in unto oolla, and ooliba, wicked women. they therefore are k just men: these shall judge them as adulteresses are judged, and as shedders of blood are judged: because they are adulteresses, and blood is in their hands. for thus saith the lord god: bring a multitude upon them, and deliver them over to tumult and rapine: and lee the people stone them with stones, and let them be stabbed with their swords: they shall kill their sons and daughters, and their houses they shall burn with fire. and i will take away wickedness out of the land: and all women shall learn, not to do according to the wickedness of them. and they shall render your wickedness upon you, and you shall bear the sins of your idols: and you shall know that i am the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me in the ninth year, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, saying: son of man, write thee the name of this day, on which the king of babylon hath set himself against jerusalem to day. and thou shalt speak by a figure a parable to the provoking house, and say to them: thus saith the lord god: set on a pot, set it on, i say, and put water into it. heap together into it the pieces thereof, every good piece, the thigh and the shoulder, choice pieces and full of bones. take the fattest of the flock, and lay together piles of bones under it: the seething thereof is boiling hot, and the bones thereof are thoroughly sodden in the midst of it. therefore thus saith the lord god: woe to the bloody city, to the pot whose rust is in it, and its rust is not gone out of it: cast it out piece by piece, there hath no lot fallen upon it. for her blood is in the midst of her, she hath shed it upon the smooth rock: she hath not shed it upon the ground, that it might be covered with dust. and that i might bring my indignation upon her, and take my vengeance: i have shed her blood upon the smooth rock, that it should not be covered. therefore thus saith the lord god: woe to the bloody city, of which i will make a great bonfire. heap together the bones, which i will burn with are: the flesh shall be consumed, and the whole composition shall be sodden, and the bones shall be consumed. then set it empty upon burning coals, that it may be hot, and the brass thereof may be melted: and let the filth of it be melted in the midst thereof, and let the rust of it be consumed. great pains have been taken, and the great rust thereof is not gone out, not even by fire. thy uncleanness is execrable: be- cause i desired to cleanse thee, and thou art not cleansed from thy filthiness: neither shalt thou be cleansed, before i cause my indignation to rest in thee. i the lord have spoken: it shall come to pass, and i will do it: i will not pass by, nor spare, nor be pacified: i will judge thee according to thy ways, and according to thy doings, saith the lord. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, behold i take from thee the desire of thy eyes with a stroke: and thou shalt not lament, nor weep: neither shall thy tears run down. sigh in silence, make no mourning for the dead: let the tire of thy head be upon thee, and thy shoes on thy feet, and cover not thy face, nor eat the meat of mourners. so i spoke to the people in the morning, and my wife died in the evening: and i did in the morning as he had commanded me. and the people said to me: why dost thou not tell us what these things mean that thou doest? and i said to them: the word of the lord came to me, saying: speak to the house of israel: thus saith the lord god: behold i will profane my sanctuary, the glory of your realm, and the thing that your eyes desire, and for which your soul feareth: your sons, and your daughters, whom you have left, shall fall by the sword. and you shall do as i have done: you shall not cover your faces, nor shall you eat the meat of mourners. you shall have crowns on your heads, and shoes on your feet: you shall not lament nor weep, but you shall pine away for your iniquities, and every one shall sigh with his brother. and ezechiel shall be unto you for a sign of things to come: according to all that he hath done, so shall you do, when this shall come to pass: and you shall know that i am the lord god. and thou, o son of man, behold in the day wherein i will take away from them their strength, and the joy of their glory, and the desire of their eyes, upon which their souls rest, their sons and their daughters. in that day when he that escapeth shall come to thee, to tell thee: in that day, i say, shall thy mouth be opened to him that hath escaped, and thou shalt speak, and shalt be silent no more: and thou shalt be unto them for a sign of things to come, and you shall know that i am the lord.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, set thy face against the children of ammon, and thou shalt prophesy of them. and thou shalt say to the children of ammon: hear ye the word of the lord god: thus saith the lord god: because thou hast said: ha, ha, upon my sanctuary, because it was profaned: and upon the land of israel, because it was laid waste: and upon the house of juda, because they are led into captivity: therefore will i deliver thee to the men of the east for an inheritance, and they shall place their sheepcotes in thee, and shall set up their tents in thee: they shall eat thy fruits: and they shall drink thy milk. and i will make rabbath a stable for camels, and the children of ammon a couching place for flocks: and you shall know that i am the lord. for thus saith the lord god: because thou hast clapped thy hands and stamped with thy foot, and hast rejoiced with all thy heart against the land of israel: therefore behold i: will stretch forth my hand upon thee, and will deliver thee to be the spoil of nations, and will cut thee off from among the people, and destroy thee out of the lands, and break thee in pieces: and thou shalt know that i am the lord. thus saith the lord god: because moab and seir have said: behold the house of juda is like all other nations: therefore behold i will open the shoulder of moab from the cities, from his cities, i say, and his borders, the noble cities of the land of bethesimoth, and beelmeon, and cariahaim, to the people of the east with the children of ammon, and i will give it them for an inheritance: that there may be no more any remembrance of the children of ammon among the nations. and i will execute judgments in moab: and they shall know that i am the lord. thus saith the lord god: because edom hath taken vengeance to revenge herself of the children of juda, and hath greatly offended, and hath sought revenge of them: therefore thus saith the lord god: i will stretch forth my hand upon edom, and will take away out of it man and beast, and will make it desolate from the south: and they that are in dedan shall fall by the sword. and i will lay my vengeance upon edom by the hand of my people israel: and they shall do in edom according to my wrath, and my fury: and they shall know my vengeance, saith the lord god. thus saith the lord god: because the philistines have taken vengeance, and have revenged themselves with all their mind, destroying and satisfying old enmities: therefore thus saith the lord god: behold i will stretch forth my hand upon the philistines, and will kill the killers, and will destroy the remnant of the sea coast. and i will execute great vengeance upon them, rebuking them in fury: and they shall know that i am the lord, when i shall lay my vengeance upon them.

and it came to pass in the eleventh year, the first day of the month, that the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, because tyre hath said of jerusalem: aha, the gates of the people are broken, she is turned to me: i shall be filled, now she is laid waste. therefore thus saith the lord god: behold i come against thee, o tyre, and i will cause many nations to come up to thee, as the waves of the sea rise up. and they shall break down the walls of tyre, and destroy the towers thereof: and i will scrape her dust from her, and make her like a smooth rock. she shall be a drying place for nets in the midst of the sea, because i have spoken it, saith the lord god: and she shall be a spoil to the nations. her daughters also that are in the field, shall be slain by the sword: and they shall know that i am the lord. for thus saith the lord god: behold i will bring against tyre nabuchodonosor king of babylon, the king of kings, from the north, with horses, and chariots, and horsemen, and companies, and much people. thy daughters that are in the field, he shall kill with the sword: and he shall compass thee with forts, and shall cast up a mount round about: and he shall lift up the buckler against thee. and he shall set engines of mar and battering rams against thy walls, and shall destroy thy towers with his arms. by reason of the multitude of his horses, their dust shall cover thee: thy walls shall shake at the noise of the horsemen, and wheels, and chariots, when they shall go in at thy gates, as by the entrance of a city that is destroyed. with the hoofs of his horses he shall tread down all thy streets: thy people he shall kill with the sword, and thy famous statues shall fall to the ground. they shall waste thy riches, they shall make a spoil of thy merchandise: and they shall destroy thy walls, and pull down thy fine houses: and they shall lay thy stones and thy timber, and thy dust in the midst of the waters. and i will make the multitude of thy songs to cease, and the sound of thy harps shall be heard no more. and i will make thee like a naked rock, then shalt be a drying place for nets, neither shalt thou be built any more: for i have spoken it, saith. the lord god. thus saith the lord god to tyre: shall not the islands shake at the sound of thy fall, and the groans of thy slain when they shall be killed in the midst of thee? then all the princes of the sea shall come down from their thrones: and take off their robes, and cast away their brodered garments, and be clothed with astonishment: they shall sit on the ground, and with amazement shall wonder at thy sudden fall. and taking up a lamentation over thee, they shall sag to thee: how art thou fallen, that dwellest in the sea, renowned city that wast strong in the sea, with thy inhabitants whom all did dread? now shall the ships be astonished in the day of thy terror: and the islands in the sea shall be troubled because no one cometh out of thee. for thus saith the lord god: when i shall make thee a desolate city like the cities that are not inhabited: and shall bring the deep upon thee, and many waters shall cover thee: and when i shall bring thee down with those that descend into the pit to the everlasting people, and shall set thee in the lowest parts of the earth, as places desolate of old, with them that are brought down into the pit, that thou be not inhabited: and when i shall give glory in the land of the living, i will bring thee to nothing, and thou shalt not be, and if thou be sought for, thou shalt not be found any more for ever, saith the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: thou therefore, o son of man, take up a lamentation for tyre: and say to tyre that dwelleth at the entry of the sea, being the mart of the people for many islands: thus saith the lord god: o tyre, thou hast said: i am of perfect beauty, and situate in the heart of the sea. thy neighbours, that built thee, have perfected thy beauty: with fir trees of sanir they have built thee with all sea planks: they have taken cedars from libanus to make thee masts. they have cut thy oars out of the oaks of basan: and they have made thee benches of indian ivory and cabins with things brought from the islands of italy. fine brodered linen from egypt was woven for thy sail, to be spread on thy mast: blue and purple from the islands of elisa, were made thy covering. the inhabitants of sidon, and the arábians were thy rowers: thy wise men, o tyre, were thy pilots. the ancients of gebal, and the wise men thereof furnished mariners for the service of thy various furniture: all the ships of the sea, and their mariners were thy factors. the persians, and lydians, and the libyans were thy soldiers in thy army: they hung up the buckler and the helmet in thee for thy ornament. the men of arad were with thy army upon thy walls round about: the pygmians also that were in thy towers, hung up their quivers on thy walls round about: they perfected thy beauty. the carthaginians thy merchants supplied thy fairs with a multitude of all kinds of riches, with silver, iron, tin, and lead. greece, thubal, and mosoch, they were thy merchants: they brought to thy people slaves and vessels of brass. from the house of thogorma they brought horses, and horsemen, and mules to thy market. the men of dedan were thy merchants: many islands were the traffic of thy hand, they exchanged for thy price teeth of ivory and ebony. the syrian was thy merchant: by reason of the multitude of thy works, they set forth precious stones, and purple, and brodered works, and fine linen, and silk, and chodchod in thy market. juda and the land of israel, they were thy merchants with the best corn: they set forth balm, and honey, and oil, and rosin in thy fairs. the men of damascus were thy merchants in the multitude of thy works, in the multitude of divers riches, in rich wine, in wool of the best colour. dan, and greece, and mosel have set forth in thy marts wrought iron: stacte, and calamus were in thy market. the men of dedan were thy merchants in tapestry for seats. arabia, and all the princes of cedar, they were the merchants of thy hand: thy merchants came to thee with lambs, and rants, and kids. the sellers of saba, and reema, they were thy merchants: with all the best spices, and precious stones, and gold, which they set forth in thy market. haran, and chene, and eden were thy merchants; saba, assur, and chelmad sold to thee. they were thy merchants in divers manners, with bales of blue cloth, and of embrodered work, and of precious riches, which were wrapped up and bound with cords: they had cedars also in thy merchandise. the ships of the sea, were thy chief in thy merchandise: and thou wast replenished, and glorified exceedingly in the heart of the sea. thy rowers have brought thee into great waters: the south wind hath broken thee in the heart of the sea. thy riches, and thy treasures, and thy manifold furniture, thy mariners, and thy pilots, who kept thy goods, and were chief over thy people: thy men of war also, that were in thee, with all thy multitude that is in the midst of thee: shall fall in the heart of the sea in the day of thy ruin. thy fleets shall be troubled at the sound of the cry of thy pilots, and all that handled the oar shall come down from their ships: the mariners, and all the pilots of the sea shall stand upon the land: and they shall mourn over thee with a loud voice, and shall cry bitterly: and they shall cast up dust upon their heads, and shall be sprinkled with ashes. and they shall shave themselves bald for thee, and shall be girded with haircloth: and they shall weep for thee with bitterness of soul, with most bitter weeping, and they shall take up a mournful song for thee, and snail lament thee: what city is like tyre, which is become silent in the midst of the sea? which by thy merchandise that went from thee by sea didst fill many people: which by the multitude of thy riches, and of thy people didst enrich the kings of the earth. now thou art destroyed by the sea, thy riches are in the bottom of the waters, and all the multitude that was in the midst of thee is fallen. all the inhabitants of the islands are astonished at thee: and all their kings being struck with the storm have changed their countenance. the merchants of people have hissed at thee: thou art brought to nothing, and thou shalt never be any more.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, say to the prince of tyre: thus saith the lord god: because thy heart is lifted up, and thou hast said: i am god, and t sit in the chair of god in the heart of the sea: whereas thou art a man, and not god: and hast set thy heart as if it were the heart of god. behold thou art wiser than daniel: no secret is hid from thee. in thy wisdom and thy understanding thou hast made thyself strong: and hast gotten gold and silver into thy treasures. by the greatness of thy wisdom, and by thy traffic thou hast increased thy strength: and thy heart is lifted up with thy strength. therefore, thus saith the lord god: because thy heart is lifted up as the heart of god: therefore behold, i will bring upon thee strangers the strongest of the nations: and they shall draw their swords against the beauty of thy wisdom, and they shall defile thy beauty. they shall kill thee, and bring thee down: and thou shalt die the death of them that are slain in the heart of the sea. wilt thou yet say before them that slay thee: i am god; whereas thou art a man, and not god, in the hand of them that slay thee? thou shalt die the death of the uncircumcised by the hand of strangers: for i have spoken it, saith the lord god. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, take up a lamentation upon the king of tyre: and say to him: thus saith the lord god: thou wast the seal of resemblance, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty. thou wast in the pleasures of the paradise of god: every precious stone teas thy covering: the sardius, the topaz, and the jasper, the chrysolite, and the onyx, and the beryl, the sapphire, and the carbuncle, and the emerald: gold the work of thy beauty: and thy pipes were prepared in the day that thou wast created. thou a cherub stretched out, and protecting, and i set thee in the holy mountain of god, thou hast walked in the midst of the stones of fire. thou wast perfect in thy ways from the day of thy creation, until iniquity was found in thee. by the multitude of thy merchandise, thy inner parts were filled with iniquity, and thou hast sinned: and i cast thee out from the mountain of god, and destroyed thee, o covering cherub, out of the midst of the stones of fire. and thy heart was lifted up with thy beauty: thou best lost thy wisdom in thy beauty, i have cast thee to the ground: i have set thee before the face of kings, that they might behold thee. thou hast defiled thy sanctuaries by the multitude of thy iniquities, and by the iniquity of thy traffic: therefore i will bring forth a fire from the midst of thee, to devour thee, and i will make thee as ashes upon the earth in the sight of all that see thee. all that shall see thee among the nations, shall be astonished at thee: thou art brought to nothing, and thou shalt never be any more. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, set thy face against sidon: and thou shalt prophesy of it, and shalt say: thus saith the lord god: behold i come against thee, sidon, and i will be glorified in the midst of thee: and they shall know that i am the lord, when i shall execute judgments in her, and shall be sanctified in her. and i will send into her pestilence, and blood in her streets: and they shall fall being slain by the sword on all sides in the midst thereof: and they shall know that i am the lord. and the house of israel shall have no more a stumblingblock of bitterness, nor a thorn causing pain on every side round about them, of them that are against them: and they shall know that i am the lord god. thus saith the lord god: when i shall have gathered together the house of israel out of the people among whom they are scattered: i will be sanctified in them before the gentiles: and they shall dwell in their own land, which i gave to my servant jacob. and they shall dwell therein secure, and they shall build houses, and shall plant vineyards, and shall dwell with confidence, when i shall have executed judgments upon all that are their enemies round about: and they shall know that i am the lord their god.

in the tenth year, the tenth month, the eleventh day of the month, the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, set thy face against pharao king of egypt: and thou shalt prophesy of him, and of all egypt: speak, and say: thus saith the lord god: behold, i come against thee, pharao king of egypt, thou great dragon that liest in the midst of thy rivers, and sayest: the river is mine, and i made myself. but i will put a bridle in thy jaws: and i will cause the fish of thy rivers to stick to thy scales: and i will draw thee out of the midst of thy rivers, and all thy fish shall stick to thy scales. and i will cast thee forth into the desert, and all the fish of thy river: thou shalt fall upon the face of the earth, thou shalt not be taken up, nor gathered together: i have given thee for meat to the beasts of the earth, and to the fowls of the air. and all the inhabitants of egypt shall know that i am the lord: because thou hast been a staff of a reed to the house of israel. when they took hold of thee with the hand thou didst break, and rent all their shoulder: and when they leaned upon thee, thou brokest, and weakenest all their loins. therefore thus saith the lord god: behold, i will bring the sword upon thee: and cut off man and beast out of thee. and the land of egypt shall become a desert, and a wilderness: and they shall know that i am the lord: because thou hast said: the river is mine, and i made therefore, behold i come against thee, and thy rivers: and i will make the land of egypt utterly desolate, and wasted by the sword, from the tower of syene, even to the borders of ethiopia. the foot of man shall not pass through it, neither shall the foot of beasts go through it: nor shall it be inhabited during forty years. and i will make the land of egypt desolate in the midst of the lands that are desolate, and the cities thereof in the midst of the cities that are destroyed, and they shall be desolate for forty years: and i will scatter the egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries. for thus saith the lord god: at the end of forty years i will gather the egyptians from the people among whom they had been scattered. and i will bring hack the captivity of egypt, and will place them in the land of phatures, in the land of their nativity, and they shall be there a low kingdom: it shall be the lowest among other kingdoms, and it shall no more be exalted over the nations, and i will diminish them that they shall rule no more over the nations. and they shall be no more a confidence to the house of israel, teaching iniquity, that they may flee, and follow them: and they shall know that i am the lord god. and it came to pass in the seven and twentieth year, in the first month, in the first of the month: that the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, nabuchodonosor king of babylon hath made his army to undergo hard service against tyre: every head was made bald, and every shoulder was peeled: and there hath been no reward given him, nor his army for tyre, for the service that he rendered me against therefore thus saith the lord god: behold, i will set nabuchodonosor the king of babylon in the land of egypt: and he shall take her multitude, and take the booty thereof for a prey, and rifle the spoils thereof: and it shall be wages for his army. and for the service that he hath done me against it: i have given him the land of egypt, because he hath laboured for me, saith the lord god. in that day a horn shall bud forth to the house of israel, and i will give thee an open mouth in the midst of them: and they shall know that i am the lord.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man prophesy, and say: thus saith the lord god: howl ye, woe, woe to the day: for the day is near, yea the day of the lord is near: a cloudy day, it shall be the time of the nations. and the sword shall come upon egypt: and there shall be dread in ethiopia, when the wounded shall fall in egypt, and the multitude thereof shall be taken away, and the foundations thereof shall be destroyed. ethiopia, and libya, and lydia, and all the rest of the crowd, and chub, and the children of the land of the covenant, shall fall with them by the sword. thus saith the lord god: they also that uphold egypt shall fall, and the pride of her empire shall be brought down: from the tower of syene shall they fall in it by the sword, saith the lord god of hosts. and they shall be desolate in the midst of the lands that are desolate, and the cities thereof shall be in the midst of the cities that are wasted. and they shall know that i am the lord: when i shall have set a fire in egypt, and all the helpers thereof shall be fired in, in that day shall messengers go forth from my face in ships to destroy the confidence of ethiopia, and there shall be dread among them in the day of egypt: because it shall certainly come. thus saith the lord god: i will make the multitude of egypt to cease by the hand of nabuchodonosor the king of babylon. he and his people with him, the strongest of nations, shall be brought to destroy the land: and they shall draw their swords upon egypt: and shall fill the land with the slain. and i will make the channels of the rivers dry, and will deliver the land into the hand of the wicked: and will lay waste the land and all that is therein by the hands of strangers, i the lord have spoken it. thus saith the lord god: i will also destroy the idols, and i will make an end of the idols of memphis: and there shall be no more a prince of the land of egypt: and i will cause a terror in the land of egypt. and i will destroy the land of phatures, and will make a fire in taphnis, and will execute judgments in alexandria. and i will pour out my indignation upon pelusium the strength of egypt, and will cut off the multitude of alexandria. and i will make a fire in egypt: pelusium shall be in pain like a woman in labour, and alexandria shall be laid waste, and in memphis there shall be daily distresses. the young men of heliopolis, and of bubastus shall fall by the sword, and they themselves shall go into captivity. and in taphnis the day shall be darkened, when i shall break there the sceptres of egypt, and the pride of her power shall cease in her: a cloud shall cover her, and her daughters shall be led into captivity. and i will execute judgments in egypt: and they shall know that i am the lord. and it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, in the seventh day of the month, that the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, i have broken the arm of pharao king of egypt: and behold it is not bound up, to be healed, to be tied up with clothes, and swathed with linen, that it might recover strength, and hold the sword. therefore, thus saith the lord god: behold, i come against pharao king of egypt, and i will break into pieces his strong arm, which is already broken: and i will cause the sword to fall out of his hand: and i will disperse egypt among the nations, and scatter them through the countries. and i will strengthen the arms of the king of babylon, and will put my sword in his hand: and i will break the arms of pharao, and they shall groan bitterly being slain before his face. and i will strengthen the arms of the king of babylon, and the arms of pharao shall fall: and they shall know that i am the lord, when i shall have given my sword into the hand of the king of babylon, and he shall have stretched it forth upon the land of egypt. and i will disperse egypt among the nations, and will scatter them through the countries, and they shall know that i am the lord.

and it came to pass in the eleventh year, the third month, the first day of the month, that the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, speak to pharao king of egypt, and to his people: to whom art thou like in thy greatness? behold, the assyrian was like a cedar in libanus, with fair branches, and full of leaves, of a high stature, and his top was elevated among the thick boughs. the waters nourished him, the deep set him up on high, the streams thereof ran round about his roots, and it sent forth its rivulets to all the trees of the country. therefore was his height exalted above all the trees of the country: and his branches were multiplied, and his boughs were elevated because of many waters. and when he had spread forth his shadow, all the fowls of the air made their nests in his boughs, and all the beasts of the forest brought forth their young under his branches, and the assembly of many nations dwelt under his shadow. and he was most beautiful for his greatness, and for the spreading of his branches: for his root was near great waters. the cedars in the paradise of god wars not higher than he, the fir trees did not equal his top, neither were the plane trees to be compared with him for branches: no tree in the paradise of god was like him in his beauty. for i made him beautiful and thick set with many branches: and all the trees of pleasure, that were in the paradise of god, envied him. therefore thus saith the lord god because he was exalted in height, and shot up his top green and thick, and his heart was lifted up in his height: i have delivered him into the hands of the mighty one of the nations, he shall deal with him: i have cast him out according to his wickedness. and strangers, and the most cruel of the nations shall cut him down, and cast him away upon the mountains, and his boughs shall fall in every valley, and his branches shall be broken on every rock of the country: and all the people of the earth shall depart from his shadow, and leave him. all the fowls of the air dwelt upon his ruins, and all the beasts of the field were among his branches. for which cause none of the trees by the waters shall exalt themselves for their height: nor shoot up their tops among the thick branches and leaves, neither shall any of them that are watered stand up in their height: for they are all delivered unto death to the lowest parts of the earth, in the midst of the children of men, with them that go down into the pit. thus saith the lord god: in the day when he went down to hell, i brought in mourning, i covered him with the deep: and i withheld its rivers, and restrained the many waters: libanus grieved for him, and all the trees of the field trembled. i shook the nations with the sound of his fall, when i brought him down to hell with them that descend into the pit: and all the trees of pleasure, the choice and best in libanus, all that were moistened with waters, were comforted in the lowest parts of the earth. for they also shall go down with him to hell to them that are slain by the sword: and the arm of every one shall sit down under his shadow in the midst of the nations. to whom art thou like, o thou that art famous and lofty among the trees of pleasure? behold, thou art brought down with the trees of pleasure to the lowest parts of the earth: thou shalt sleep in the midst of the uncircumcised, with them that are slain by the sword: this is pharao, and all his multitude, saith the lord god.

and it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first day of the month, that the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, take up a lamentation for pharao the king of egypt, and say to him: thou art like the lion of the nations, and the dragon that is in the sea: and thou didst push with the horn in thy rivers, and didst trouble the waters with thy feet, and didst trample upon their streams. therefore, thus saith the lord god: i will spread out my net over thee with the multitude of many people, and i will draw thee up in my net. and i will throw thee out on the land, i will cast thee away into the open field: and i will cause all the fowls of the air to dwell upon thee, and i will fill the beasts of all the earth with thee. and i will lay thy flesh upon the mountains, and will fill thy hills with thy corruption, and i will water the earth with thy stinking blood upon the mountains, and the valleys shall be filled with thee. and i will cover the heavens, when thou shalt be put out, and i will make the stars thereof dark: i will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light. i will make all the lights of heaven to mourn over thee: and i will cause darkness upon thy land, saith the lord god, when thy wounded shall fall in the midst of the land, saith the lord god. and i shall provoke to anger the heart of many people, when i shall have brought in thy destruction among the nations upon the lands, which thou knowest not. and i will make many people to be amazed at thee, and their kings shall be horribly afraid for thee, when my sword shall begin to fly upon their faces: and they shall be astonished on a sudden, every one for his own life, in the day of their ruin. for thus saith the lord god: the sword of the king of babylon shall come upon thee, by the swords of the mighty i will overthrow thy multitude: all these nations are invincible: and they shall waste the pride of egypt, and the multitude thereof shall be destroyed. i will destroy also all the beasts thereof that were beside the great waters: and the foot of man shall trouble them no more, neither shall the hoof of beasts trouble them. then will i make their waters clear, and cause their rivers to run like oil, saith the lord god: when i shall have made the land of egypt desolate: and the land shall be destitute of her fulness, when i shall have struck all the inhabitants thereof: and they shall know that i am the lord. this is the lamentation, and they shall lament therewith: the daughters of the nations shall lament therewith: for egypt, and for the multitude thereof they shall lament therewith, saith the lord god. and it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the fifteenth day of the month that the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, sing a mournful song for the multitude of egypt: and cast her down, both her, and the daughters of the mighty nations to the lowest part of the earth, with them that go down into the pit. whom dost thou excel in beauty? go down and sleep with the uncircumcised. they shall fall in the midst of them that are slain with the sword: the sword is given, they have drawn her down, and all her people. the most mighty among the strong ones shall speak to him from the midst of hell, they that went down with his helpers, and slept uncircumcised, slain by the sword. assur is there, and all his multitude: their graves are round about him, all of them slain, and that fell by the sword. whose graves are set in the lowest parts of the pit: and his multitude lay round about his grave: all of them slain, and fallen by the sword, they that heretofore spread terror in the land of the living. there is elam and all his multitude round about his grave, all of them slain, and fallen by the sword; that went down uncircumcised to the lowest parts of the earth: that caused their terror in the land of the living, and they have borne their shame with them that go down into the pit. in the midst of the slain they have set him a bed among all his people: their graves are round about him: all these are uncircumcised, and slain by the sword: for they spread their terror in the land of the living, and have borne their shame with them that descend into the pit: they are laid in the midst of the slain. there is mosoch, and thubal, and all their multitude: their graves are round about him: all of them uncircumcised and slain, and fallen by the sword: though they spread their terror in the land of the living, and they shall not sleep with the brave, and with them that fell uncircumcised, that went down to hell with their weapons, and laid their swords under their heads, and their iniquities were in their bones, because they were the terror of the mighty in the land of the living. so thou also shalt be broken in the midst of the uncircumcised, and shalt sleep with them that are slain by the sword. there is edom, and her kings, and all her princes, who with their army are joined with them that are slain by the sword: and have slept with the uncircumcised, and with them that go down into the pit. there are all the princes of the north, and all the hunters: who were brought down with the slain, fearing, and confounded in their strength: who slept uncircumcised with them that are slain by the sword, and have borne their shame with them that go down into the pit. pharao saw them, and he was comforted concerning all his multitude, which was slain by the sword: pharao, and all his army, saith the lord god: because i have spread my terror in the land of the living, and he hath slept in the midst of the uncircumcised with them that are slain by the sword: pharao and all his multitude, saith the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and say to them: when i bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man, one of their meanest, and make him a watchman over them: and he see the sword coming upon the land, and sound the trumpet, and tell the people: then he that heareth the sound of the trumpet, whosoever he be, and doth not look to himself, if the sword come, and cut him off: his blood shall be upon his own head. he heard the sound of the trumpet and did not look to himself, his blood shall be upon him: but if he look to himself, he shall save his life. and if the watchman see the sword coming, and sound not the trumpet: and the people look not to themselves, and the sword come, and cut off a soul from among them: he indeed is taken away in his iniquity, but i will require his blood at the hand of the watchman. so thou, o son of man, i have made thee a watchman to the house of israel: therefore thou shalt hear the word from my mouth, and shalt tell it them from me. when i say to the wicked: o wicked man, thou shalt surely die: if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked man from his way: that wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but i will require his blood at thy hand. but if thou tell the wicked man, that he may be converted from his ways, and he be not converted from his way: he shall die in his iniquity: but thou hast delivered thy soul. thou therefore, o son of man, say to the house of israel: thus you have spoken, saying: our iniquities, and our sins are upon us, and we pine away in them: how then can we live? say to them: as i live, saith the lord god, i desire not the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way, and live. turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways: and why will you die, o house of israel? thou therefore, o son of man, say to the children of thy people: the justice of the just shall not deliver him, in what day soever he shall sin: and the wickedness of the wicked shall not hurt him, in what day soever he shall turn from his wickedness: and the just shall not be able to live in his justice, in what day soever he shall sin. yea, if i shall say to the just that he shall surely live, and he, trusting in his justice, commit iniquity: all his justices shall be forgotten, and in his iniquity, which he hath committed, in the same shall he die. and if i shall say to the wicked: thou shalt surely die: and he do penance for his sin, and do judgment and justice, and if that wicked man restore the pledge, and render what he had robbed, and walk in the commandments of life, and do no unjust thing: he shall surely live, and shall not die. none of his sins, which he hath committed, shall be imputed to him: he hath done judgment and justice, he shall surely live. and the children of thy people have said: the way of the lord is not equitable: whereas their own way is unjust. for when the just shall depart from his justice, and commit iniquities, he shall die in them. and when the wicked shall depart from his wickedness, and shall do judgments, and justice: he shall live in them. and you say: the way of the lord is not right, i will judge every one of you according to his ways, o house of israel. and it came to pass in the twelfth year of our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month, that there came to me one that was fled from jerusalem, saying: the city is laid waste. and the hand of the lord had been upon me in the evening, before he that was fled came: and he opened my mouth till he came to me in the morning, and my mouth being opened, i was silent no more. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, they that dwell in these ruinous places in the land of israel, speak, saying: abraham was one, and he inherited the land, but we are many, the land is given us in possession. therefore say to them: thus saith the lord god, you that eat with the blood and lift up your eyes to your uncleannesses, and that shed blood: shall you possess the land by inheritance? you stood on your swords, you have committed abominations, and every one hath defiled his neighbour's wife; and shall you possess the land by inheritance? say thou thus to them: thus saith the lord god: as i live, they that dwell in the ruinous places, shall fall by the sword: and he that is in the field, shall be given to the beasts to be devoured: and they that are in holds, and caves, shall die of the pestilence. and i will make the land a wilderness, and a desert, and the proud strength thereof shall fail, and the mountains of israel shall be desolate, because there is none to pass by them. and they shall know that i am the lord, when i shall have made their land waste and desolate, for all their abominations which they have committed. and thou son of man: the children of thy people, that talk of thee by the walls, and in the doors of the houses, and speak one to another each man to his neighbour, saying: come, and let us hear what is the word that cometh forth from the lord. and they come to thee, as if a people were coming in, and my people sit before thee: and hear thy words, and do them not: for they turn them into a song of their mouth, and their heart goeth after their covetousness. and thou art to them as a musical song which is sung with a sweet and agreeable voice: and they hear thy words, and do them not. and when that which was foretold shall come to pass, (for behold it is coming,) then shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, prophesy concerning the shepherds of israel: prophesy, and say to the shepherds: thus saith the lord god: woe to the shepherds of israel, that fed themselves: should not the hocks be fed by the shepherds? you ate the milk, and you clothed yourselves with the wool, and you killed that which was fat: but my flock you did not feed. the weak you have not strengthened, and that which was sick you have not healed, that which was broken you have not bound up, and that which was driven away you have not brought again, neither have you sought that which was lost: but you ruled over them with rigour, and with a high hand. and my sheep were scattered, because there was no shepherd: and they became the prey of all the beasts of the field, and were scattered. my sheep have wandered in every mountain, and in every high hill: and my flocks were scattered upon the face of the earth, and there was none that sought them, there was none, i say, that sought them. therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the lord: as i live, saith the lord god, forasmuch as my flocks have been made a spoil, and my sheep are become a prey to all the beasts of the field, because there was no shepherd: for my shepherds did not seek after my flock, but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flocks: therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the lord: thus saith the lord god: behold i myself come upon the shepherds, i will require my hock at their hand, and i will cause them to cease from feeding the flock any more, neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more: and i will deliver my flock from their mouth, and it shall no more be meat for them. for thus saith the lord god: behold i myself will seek my sheep, and will visit them. as the shepherd visiteth his hock in the day when he shall be in the midst of his sheep that were scattered, so will i visit my sheep, and will deliver them out of all the places where they have been scattered in the cloudy and dark day. and i will bring them out from the peoples, and will gather them out of the countries, and will bring them to their own land: and i will feed them in the mountains of israel, by the rivers, and in all the habitations of the land. i will feed them in the most fruitful pastures, and their pastures shall be in the high mountains of israel: there shall they rest on the green grass, and be fed in fat pastures upon the mountains of israel. i will feed my sheep: and i will cause them to lie down, saith the lord god. i will seek that which was lost: and that which was driven away, i will bring again: and i will bind up that which was broken, and i will strengthen that which was weak, and that which was fat and strong i will preserve: and i will feed them in judgment. and as for you, o my flocks, thus saith the lord god: behold i judge between cattle and cattle, of rams and of he goats. was it not enough for you to feed upon good pastures? but you must also tread down with your feet the residue of your pastures: and when you drank the dearest water, you troubled the rest with your feet. and my sheep were fed with that which you had trodden with your feet: and they drank what your feet had troubled. therefore thus saith the lord god to you: behold, i myself will judge between the fat cattle and the lean. because you thrust with sides and shoulders, and struck all the weak cattle with your horns, till they were scattered abroad: i will save my dock, and it shall be no more a spoil, and i will judge between cattle and cattle. and i will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant david: he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd. and i the lord will be their god: and my servant david the prince in the midst of them: i the lord have spoken it. and i will make a covenant of peace with them, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land: and they that dwell in the wilderness shall sleep secure in the forests. and i will make them a blessing round about my hill: and i will send down the rain in its season, there shall be showers of blessing. and the tree of the field shall yield its fruit, and the earth shall yield her increase, and they shall be in their land without fear: and they shall know that i am the lord, when i shall have broken the bonds of their yoke, and shall have delivered them out of the hand of those that rule over them. and they shall be no more for a spoil to the nations, neither shall the beasts of the earth devour them: but they shall dwell securely without any terror. and i will raise up for them a bud of renown: and they shall be no more consumed with famine in the land, neither shall they bear any more the reproach of the gentiles. and they shall know that i the lord their god am with them, and that they are my people the house of israel: saith the lord god. and you my flocks, the flocks of my pasture are men: and i am the lord your god, saith the lord god.

and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, set thy face against mount seir, and prophesy concerning it, and say to it: thus saith the lord god: behold i come against thee, mount seir, and i will stretch forth my hand upon thee, and i will make thee desolate and waste. i will destroy thy cities, and thou shalt be desolate: and thou shalt know that i am the lord. because thou hast been an everlasting enemy, and hast shut up the children of israel in the hands of the sword in the time of their affliction, in the time of their last iniquity. therefore as i live, saith the lord god, i will deliver thee up to blood, and blood shall pursue thee: and whereas thou hast hated blood, blood shall pursue thee. and i will make mount seir waste and desolate: and i will take away from it him that goeth and him that returneth. and i will fill his mountains with his men that are slain: in thy hills, and in thy valleys, and in thy torrents they shall fall that are slain with the sword. i will make thee everlasting desolations, and thy cities shall not be inhabited: and thou shalt know that i am the lord god. because thou hast said: the two nations, and the two lands shall be mine, and i will possess them by inheritance: whereas the lord was there. therefore as i live, saith the lord god, i will do according to thy wrath, and according to thy envy, which thou hast exercised in hatred to them: and i will be made known by them, when i shall have judged thee. and thou shalt know that i the lord have heard all thy reproaches, that thou hast spoken against the mountains of israel, saying: they are desolate, they are given to us to consume. and you rose up against me with your mouth, and have derogated from me by your words: i have heard them. thus saith the lord god: when the whole earth shall rejoice, i will make thee a wilderness. as thou best rejoiced over the inheritance of the house of israel, because it was laid waste, so will i do to thee: thou shalt be laid waste, o mount seir, and all idumea: and they shall know that i am the lord.

and thou son of man, prophesy to the mountains of israel, and say: ye mountains of israel, hear the word of the lord: thus saith the lord god: because the enemy hath said of you: aha, the everlasting heights are given to us for an inheritance. therefore prophesy, and say: thus saith the lord god: because you have been desolate, and trodden under foot on every side, and made an inheritance to the rest of the nations, and are become the subject of the talk, and the reproach of the people: therefore, ye mountains of israel, hear the word of the lord god: thus saith the lord god to the mountains, and to the hills, to the brooks, and to the valleys, and to desolate places, and ruinous walls, and to the cities that are forsaken, that are spoiled, and derided by the rest of the nations round about. therefore thus saith the lord god: in the fire of my zeal i have spoken of the rest of the nations, and of all edom, who have taken my land to themselves, for an inheritance with joy, and with all the heart, and with the mind: and have cast it out to lay it waste. prophesy therefore concerning the land of israel, and say to the mountains, and to the hills, to the ridges, and to the valleys: thus saith the lord god: behold i have spoken in my zeal, and in my indignation, because you have borne the shame of the gentiles. therefore thus saith the lord god: i have lifted up my hand, that the gentiles who are round about you, shall themselves bear their shame. but as for you, o mountains of israel, shoot ye forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people of israel: for they are at hand to come. for lo i am for you, and i will turn to you, and you shall be ploughed and sown. and i will multiply men upon you, and all the house of israel: and the cities shall be inhabited, and the ruinous places shall be repaired. and i will make you abound with men and with beasts: and they shall be multiplied, and increased: and i will settle you as from the beginning, and will give you greater gifts, than you had from the beginning: and you shall know that i am the lord. and i will bring men upon you, my people israel, and they shall possess thee for their inheritance: and thou shalt be their inheritance, and shalt no more henceforth be without them. thus saith the lord god: because they say of you: thou art a devourer of men, and one that suffocatest thy nation: therefore thou shalt devour men no more, nor destroy thy nation any more, saith the lord god: neither will i cause men to hear in thee the shame of the nations any more, nor shalt thou bear the reproach of the people, nor lose thy nation any more, saith the lord god. and the word of the lord came to me, saying: son of man, when the house of israel dwelt in their own land, they defiled it with their ways, and with their doings: their way was before me like the uncleanness of a menstruous woman. and i poured out my indignation upon them for the blood which they had shed upon the land, and with their idols they defiled it. and i scattered them among the nations, and they are dispersed through the countries: i have judged them according to their ways, and their devices. and when they entered among the nations whither they went, they profaned my holy name, when it was said of them: this is the people of the lord, and they are come forth out of his land. and i have regarded my own holy name, which the house of israel hath profaned among the nations to which they went in. therefore thou shalt say to the house of israel: thus saith the lord god: it is not for your sake that i will do this, o house of israel, but for my holy name's sake, which you have profaned among the nations whither you went. and i will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the gentiles, which you have profaned in the midst of them: that the gentiles may know that i am the lord, saith the lord of hosts, when i shall be sanctified in you before their eyes. for i will take you from among the gentiles, and will gather you together out of all the countries, and will bring you into your own land. and i will pour upon you clean water, and you shall be cleansed from all your filthiness, and i will cleanse you from all your idols. and i will give you a new heart, and put a new spirit within you: and i will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and will give you a heart of flesh. and i will put my spirit in the midst of you: and i will cause you to walk in my commandments, and to keep my judgments, and do them. and you shall dwell in the land which i gave to your fathers, and you shall be my people, and i will be your god. and i will save you from all your uncleannesses: and i will call for corn, and will multiply it, and will lay no famine upon you. and i will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the held, that you bear no more the reproach of famine among the nations. and you shall remember your wicked ways, and your doings that were not good: and your iniquities, and your wicked deeds shall displease you. it is not for your sakes that i will do this, saith the lord god, be it known to you: be confounded, and ashamed at your own ways, o house of israel. thus saith the lord god: in the day that i shall cleanse you from all your iniquities, and shall cause the cities to be inhabited, and shall repair the ruinous places, and the desolate land shall be tilled, which before was waste in the sight of all that passed by, they shall say: this land that was untilled is become as a garden of pleasure: and the cities that were abandoned, and desolate, and destroyed, are peopled and fenced. and the nations, that shall be left round about you, shall know that i the lord have built up what was destroyed, and planted what was desolate, that i the lord have spoken and done it. thus saith the lord god: moreover in this shall the house of israel find me, that i will do it for them: i will multiply them as a flock of men, as a holy dock, as the flock of jerusalem in her solemn feasts: so shall the waste cities be full of flocks of men: and they shall know that i am the lord.

the hand of the lord was upon me, and brought me forth in the spirit of the lord: and set me down in the midst of a plain that was full of bones, and he led me about through them on every side: now they were very many upon the face of the plain, and they were exceeding dry. and he said to me: son of man, dost thou think these bones shall live? and i answered: o lord god, thou knowest. and he said to me: prophesy concerning these bones; and say to them: ye dry bones, hear the word of the lord. thus saith the lord god to these bones: behold, i will send spirit into you, and you shall live. and i will lay sinews upon you, and will cause flesh to grow over you, and will cover you with skin: and i will give you spirit and you shall live, and you shall know that i am the lord. and i prophesied as he had commanded me: and as i prophesied there was a noise, and behold a commotion: and the bones came together, each one to its joint. and i saw, and behold the sinews, and the flesh came up upon them: and the skin was stretched out over them, but there was no spirit in them. and he said to me: prophesy to the spirit, prophesy, o son of man, and say to the spirit: thus saith the lord god: come, spirit, from the four winds, and blow upon these slain, and let them live again. and i prophesied as he had commanded me: and the spirit came into them, and they lived: and they stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army. and he said to me: son of man: all these bones are the house of israel: they say: our bones are dried up, and our hope is lost, and we are cut off. therefore prophesy, and say to them: thus saith the lord god: behold i will open your graves, and will bring you out of your sepulchres, o my people: and will bring you into the land of israel. and you shall know that i am the lord, when i shall have opened your sepulchres, and shall have brought you out of your graves, o my people: and shall have put my spirit in you, and you shall live, and i shall make you rest upon your own land: and you shall know that i the lord have spoken, and done it, saith the lord god: and the word of the lord came to me, saying: and thou son of man, take thee a stick: and write upon it: of juda, and of the children of israel his associates: and take another stick and write upon it: for joseph the stick of ephraim, and for all the house of israel, and of his associates. and join them one to the other into one stick, and they shall become one in thy hand. and when the children of thy people shall speak to thee, saying: wilt thou not tell us what thou meanest by this? say to them: thus saith the lord god: behold, i will take the stick of joseph, which is in the hand of ephraim, and the tribes of israel that are associated with him, and i will put them together with the stick of juda, and will make them one stick: and they shall be one in his hand. and the sticks whereon thou hast written, shall be in thy hand, before their eyes. and thou shalt say to them: thus saith the lord god: behold, i will take the children of israel from the midst of the nations whither they are gone: and i will gather them on every side, and will bring them to their own land. and i will make them one nation in the land on the mountains of israel, and one king shall be king over them all: and they shall no more be two nations, neither shall they be divided any more into two kingdoms. nor shall they be defiled any more with their idols, nor with their abominations, nor with all their iniquities: and i will save them out of all the places in which they have sinned, and i will cleanse them: and they shall be my people, and i will be their god. and my servant david shall be king over them, and they shall have one shepherd: they shall walk in my judgments, and shall keep my commandments, and shall do them. and they shall dwell in the land which i gave to my servant jacob, wherein your fathers dwelt, and they shall dwell in it, they and their children, and their children's children, for ever: and david my servant shall be their prince for ever. and i will make a covenant of peace with them, it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and i will establish them, and will multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for ever. and my tabernacle shall be with them: and i will be their god, and they shall be my people. and the nations shall know that i am the lord the sanctifier of israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for ever.
